Memories of the Past

In This Paper Twenty-five Years Ago Today.

W. N. Wherry, of this place, has been granted a patent on his mole trap. About one inch of snow last Sunday morning is a warning that winter approacheth.

Horace Smith moved into his new house corner of Main and Mill streets last Friday. He has a very handsome residence.

Northville commandery, No. 33, K. T., of which Plymouth has several members, will go by special train, Friday, Nov. 30, to visit Detroit commandery and exemplify the work on the temple degree.

"The Christmas Ship" is the title of an acting play written by Miss Nettie H. Pelham, of this village, and published by T. S. Denison, of Chicago, a copy of which has found its way to our table. The price is fifteen cents per copy and those looking for something of this sort will find this a very interesting little play. There are seven characters and the time required to go through it is twenty minutes.

If the senders of parcels by mail would use a little care in addressing them they would reach their destinations much quicker in many instances. The address should be placed in the lower right hand corner of the package, and the sender's name and address in the upper left hand corner, the same as a letter should be addressed. Many parcels come in with these inscriptions transposed, and the postal clerk on the train, not having time to read everything written on the package, sees the name of the postoffice in the lower right hand corner and pretty soon the parcel is back at the office of origin.

MORE RECORDS BROKEN IN CONNECTION WITH THE CHICAGO STOCK SHOW.

With its $75,000 offered in prizes and its entries closed, the International Live Stock Exposition, which will be held on the dates of November 28th to December 8th, inclusive, at the Union Stock Yards, Chicago, has broken all records in every department in regard to the number of exhibits. Every breed of cattle, sheep, swine and horses will be represented on a much larger scale, the arrangements for the Show have been better provided for, and the great Stock Show of 1913 will go down into history as the most comprehensive the most complete, the most modern, advanced and up to date of all the exhibitions, wonderful as they have been, which have preceded it. Such a statement of facts as this is positive proof of the importance of the event and how it is regarded by the stockmen of the country.

It not only offers to breeders, feeders, farmers and others who are interested in the live stock industry, a school of analysis but a free and liberal education in everything that a stockman requires, and presents to the sons of these men an opportunity for obtaining that information, and insight to the stockman's business so necessary, so indispensable to them in after years.

Breeders, feeders and farmers who are developing a business of this kind, or who have already developed one, and who have sons ready to step into their shoes when they shall have cast them off, and put upon them the slippers of ease and restfulness, owe to these young men the privilege of seeing the extraordinary Exposition, and imbibing that knowledge without which they will be sorely handicapped when they come to compete with those who have taken advantage and profited by the opportunities it affords.

Money spent in attending this Show is money invested in gift edged security that will return interest at the rate of a hundred per cent.

A great reduction in photographs at Baker's studio. Cabinet photos at $1.00 per dozen. Also a reduction in post card photos. Those who desire photographs come quick. E. P. Baker.

Declare War on Colds.

A crusade of education which aims "that common colds may become uncommon within the next generation" has been begun by prominent New York physicians. Here is a list of the "do's" which the doctors say will prevent the annual visitation of the cold: "Don't sit in a drafty car." "Don't sleep in hot rooms." "Don't avoid the fresh air." "Don't stuff yourself at meal time. Overeating reduces your resistance." To which we would add—when you take a cold get rid of it as quickly as possible. To accomplish that you will find Chamberlain's Cough Remedy most excellent. Sold by all dealers.—Adv.

The Special Election

The special election held Monday for the purpose of submitting to the people the proposition of granting a franchise to Pontiac parties for the laying of main and pipes upon, across and along the village streets for the purpose of furnishing gas to the citizens of the village resulted in 105 votes being cast. 94 votes were for the proposition and 14 were against it.

SCHOOL NOTES.

The 2nd grade gave the chapel exercises on the lower floor a week ago Monday. The exercises were enjoyed by all.

A Thanksgiving poster has just been completed by the children of the second grade.

The 5th grade is studying "Paul Revere's Ride" by Longfellow.

The 7th grade division of the Domestic Science Department made French fried potatoes last Tuesday. Three cheers for the instructor.

The pupils of the 8th grade are making little booklets containing geographical drawings of land forms, etc., which they have studied.

The eighth grade has begun Longfellow's "Evangeline."

The high school this year boasts of 126 students, of which number 60 are girls and 64 boys. Another stiff blow at woman suffrage!

The Juniors are about to begin the study of English Literature, having recently finished the study of American authors and their principal works.

Quite a number of the high school boys are attending the lecture course. No need to mention the girls—Nuff said!

The Literary Society has begun for the year and the students are becoming well versed in parliamentary drill. One of the objects of the Society is to give the boys and girls ability to express their ideas before an audience.

Present day topics are being discussed daily in English IV.; each student speaking on a special subject. The speeches are limited to fifteen minutes and are freely discussed by the class. Some of the subjects deal with the I. W. W. (Industrial Workers of the World); The Washington Sugar Lobby; and Swift and Cheap Justice. Miss Hanford should be given unstinted praise for her up-to-date educational ideas.

The football game of last Friday was a keen disappointment to all who have the interests of the home team at heart. The poor showing of the Plymouth squad was due in a large measure to the absence of Captain Spencer who has almost recovered from injuries received a few weeks ago. Without leadership the Plymouth eleven was thoroughly crippled and Royal Oak broke through almost at will. The final score, 32 to 0, is evident proof that the visiting team was superior in every department of the game. The boys of both teams were conquered by the high school girls, who showed a very commendable spirit in helping them to promote the good will between the two high schools. The team coachess Wayne on the home gridiron tried and hopes to restore its good standing by a relative victory.

The Turner Picture Exhibit shown at the school a few weeks ago was a distinct success. The school wishes to thank the patronizing public and especially those who gave their services in order that the time might be an enjoyable one for all concerned. The programs rendered were of a high order and greatly appreciated by those fortunate enough to be present. The money received, which amounted to something like $32, is to be used to pay off the debt on the stereopticon lantern.

A Hunting Accident

A terrible hunting accident happened on the farm of Andrew Ellembush in Canton township, Sunday afternoon about two o'clock when Michael Nimschick lost his life and Elmer Matts had his right hand badly injured by the accidental discharge of a gun. Nimschick, who was 17 years of age, accompanied by his two brothers and Matts were out hunting when in getting over a fence the gun was discharged with the above results. Nimschick lived about one hour after the accident. Dr. Patterson was called and dressed Matts' injured hand.

About twenty-five from Detroit, Farmington and Plymouth were guests of Mrs. R. C. Safford and daughter Ada at their pleasant farm home last Tuesday. A pot-luck dinner was served. In the afternoon a short program was rendered after which Rev. Willis A. Moore, pastor of the Church of Our Father, Detroit, and Mrs. Grady, state president of Universalist Missions, gave interesting talks on mission work.

HAPPENINGS IN THE CITIES

Stung Once, but Came Back and Squared Account

NEW YORK—Did I ever tell you how a frowny old rube—a regular hayseed—once stung me? An auctioneer who formerly worked in a fake auction on Broadway asked a reporter: "I first saw the rube one afternoon when we had a pretty good crowd in the place and I was selling off cheap watches. I could see at a glance that he was a farmer from way back in the woods. "The old hayseed, after looking on for a while, finally bit and made a bid of $4.50 on a watch. One of our regular paid 'cappers' was beside the fellow from the country, and he kept raising the farmer's bid until he could go no higher. I knocked the watch down to the rube for $8.10. It had cost us 60 cents, wholesale. "Three days later the farmer came into the store again and walked quietly up front. I noticed that he was standing beside the same 'capper' that had raised his bids on the watch; but I thought nothing of it. My impression was that the old hayseed was pleased with the watch and had probably come back to buy another for a friend or relative.

"Business was slow this day, and as there were not many in the room I passed around a really good watch containing well known American works. The case was a good, heavy, gold plate, and the watch cost us $30. "I offer $1," said the farmer, as soon as I had asked for a bid. The 'capper' raised the price up to $2, and the farmer made it $2.25. Several men raised it a little, until it had reached $3.20, and at that figure it was the farmer's. "What troubled me was that our 'capper' hadn't continued to raise the bid. "I guess that watch is mine," said the farmer, in a nasal, high toned pitch. "He stepped up and took the watch out of my hand before I had a chance to exchange it for a cheaper one, as I had planned to do. He paid for it, and walked back to his place. "As soon as he had paid for the watch the rube stalked out of the store and down Broadway. I got the assistant auctioneer to take my place for a while and signaled the 'capper' I wanted to see him in the office. "Why didn't you raise the farmer's bid?" I demanded. "Why didn't I?" he answered hysterically. "That hayseed had a revolver in his overcoat pocket as big as a young cannon. Every time I started to raise the bid he tickled me under the arm with that piece of artillery and whispered to me to keep quiet. He got wise as to how he was stung the other day and came back to get even."

Twenty Cats Deported, But Fail to Take the Hint

CLEVELAND, O.—In spite of himself R. H. Humphries, member of the Chamber of Commerce and the Builders' exchange, has opened an asylum for cats at his home near Chagrin Falls, and do what he will to prevent, the number of increases daily. He first noticed last summer the tide of cats which now threatens to engulf him. One morning he was met by a maudlin-looking tabby followed by four fluffy balls that seemed to roll along the walk. Mr. Humphries likes cats, in moderation, and he greeted his guests warmly, waved his hand toward the catnip bed and said: "Make yourselves at home." The next morning when Mr. Humphries started for Cleveland, twenty cats, all he could conveniently lay hands on, reposed in the tonneau of his machine. They were going back to Cleveland and they were to be but one of many cargoes which were to follow. When the menagerie reached the city limits Mr. Humphries decided it was about time to shed a few cats and he looked back into the tonneau to make his selection. Every cat was gone. The boxes had been insecurely fastened and the twenty had disappeared. Mr. Humphries consoled himself with the thought that he had carried the cats beyond walking distance of his home, but he had not. That evening when he returned home the deported twenty greeted him with reproachful looks and plaintive mewls.

Fair Students Dance Tango on Sticky Flypaper

BALTIMORE, MD.—The "tanglefoot tango" is the latest. And—whisper it softly—it had its beginning in their rooms in one of the college dormitories. A number of sophomores besides their hostesses greeted the freshmen. From some mysterious corner a roll of paper was brought forth. "Take off your shoes," ordered the tallest sophomore. The two timid freshmen kicked off their pumps. "And your stockings," continued the lengthy leader of the sophomore hosts. The stockings came off, too, and the timid freshmen tried to hide their toes beneath their freshman-length skirts. Two long, mysterious rolls of paper were spread out upon the floor, and then came the final order: "Now, dance the tango." And the freshmen—game representatives of their spunky class—danced. They danced with their hair feet tangled in lengths of tanglefoot fly paper, which had been laid for their dancing floor.

Amiable Prowler Is Trapped by a Falling Window

DETROIT, MICH.—It was shortly after midnight when a crawling noise awakened Miss Helen Miles. Her door opened and she opened her eyes. A black shadow against the moonlight filled the wide, old-fashioned window of her second-story apartment. He soft but not away to be caught up the side of the house, one of the second-story windows was broken. He had lost his smile and his hat and acted not a bit less scared than they felt. "What are you doing here? The police are coming!" For answer the prowler gave a mighty heave to his shoulders and was out the sash as he tumbled to the ground. The glass crashed to the street of the little veranda with him, but he picked himself up out of the wreckage and ran through the yard and disappeared down the alley, seemingly unhurt.

Miss Helen Miles quavered a bit, but the man was as safe as a caged rat. The window had caught him squarely and he couldn't move. He had lost his smile and his hat and acted not a bit less scared than they felt. "What are you doing here? The police are coming!" For answer the prowler gave a mighty heave to his shoulders and was out the sash as he tumbled to the ground. New Ideas for Handy Boys

HOLIDAY MAGIC.
Christmas and New Year's usually present good opportunities for boys to give home entertainments, because with grandfathers and grandmothers, father and mother, uncles and aunts, and sisters and cousins at the house, you have good material to draw upon to make up an enthusiastic audience. Arrange to have the show directly after dinner, and you will catch everybody in unusually good humor to enjoy the performance.

Home magic furnishes splendid material for a one-boy show, and requires no apparatus other than what a boy can make himself. The following are among the best of the simpler, easily-performed tricks. You need a table on which to hold apparatus, and any small table will do, but Fig. 1 shows how you can make a small stand like those used by real magicians. The top consists of a shallow box, and this is supported upon a broom-handle or piece of curtain-pole mounted upon a base made like a Christmas tree standard. The open end of the box forms a convenient pocket for slipping things into at various times. Cover the top and sides of the box with red cloth, and slash the lower edge of the side covering, as shown, for fringes.

The Egg-and-Handkerchief Trick.
In this trick, after exposing both sides of a handkerchief to the view of the audience, the boy magician folds the handkerchief and then causes an egg to slide out of one end of the fold. This is how it is done: The egg is "blown" so as to make it light, and the blown shell is suspended on one end of a thread attached to the center of one edge of a large handkerchief (Fig. 2). The thread must be about 3 inches shorter than the distance across the handkerchief. In performing the trick, place a hat upon your table and inform the audience that you will cause an egg to drop from an ordinary handkerchief into it.

The Chinese Paradox.
This is a very simple trick, yet one of the most mystifying nature when cleverly performed. In appearance to the audience the apparatus consists of three small corks threaded upon two pieces of cord (Fig. 14). First exhibit the three corks and two cords 18 inches long. In addition to these cords you must have two others of equal length, looped as shown in Fig. 14, and the loops tied together with fine thread. These cords must be concealed and be substituted for the other cords after they have been exhibited for inspection. Thread the corks upon the looped cords (Fig. 13), and ask two of the audience to take hold of the ends; then ask each person to hand you one of the cord ends and keep hold of the other one, and taking the ends handed to you tie them together as shown in Fig. 15. Grasp the three corks with one hand, then, and direct the persons holding the ends to pull. The thread connecting the loops (Fig. 14) will break, the loops part, and the three corks will be left in your hand, while each person will still retain the cord end that he has been holding. (Copyright, 1913, by A. Neely Hall.)

NOT FLATTERING TO GOLFER
Caddie Probably Did Not Realize Just How Much He Said in Those Few Words.

Walter J. Travis, the great golf player, told this story to ex-President Taft as the best anecdote about golf he had ever heard: "Old Mr. Brown had played the game for years with great avidity and without any noticeable improvement in his performance. Emulating the same caddie every afternoon, he sought the greens and hazards unrelentingly. The caddie, however, being discreet and also desirous of tips, never voiced his real opinion of Mr. Brown's game. One day a stranger came to the links and arranged to play a round with Mr. Brown. Mr. Brown went over to his caddie and asked confidentially: "Bobbie, have you ever seen this gentleman play?" "Yes, sir," replied Bobbie. "How is his game?" "Rotten, sir; very rotten." "How much handicap can I give him?" asked Mr. Brown, as if seeking reliable information. "Sir," replied the caddie, "not a stroke, not a stroke."—The Popular Magazine.

Trained Habit.
"I have discovered that the post who writes for the papers is a gas inspector." "Then he ought to be able to make his meter work right." The Reason. He—And you loved me so long. She—Yes, but now you are so short.

ANOTHER GOOD YEAR IN WESTERN CANADA

MANITOBA, SASKATCHEWAN AND ALBERTA HAVE SPLENDID CROPS.
The results of the threshing throughout Western Canada shows a mere wonderful yield than usual of wheat, oats, barley and flax, all of which was harvested and threshed in perfect order. Not only was the average yield excellent over the entire country, but the quality was of the highest standard. Without going into figures, it is sufficient to say that wheat graded almost universally very near the top. Reports are to hand showing yields of wheat from many fields which averaged forty bushels per acre, and weighing 55 pounds to the measured bushel. Oats were very heavy, running from fifty to one hundred and fifteen bushels to the acre. Barley also was a very heavy yielder and kept up the reputation of Western Canada as a producer of that cereal. In many parts of the country the yield of flax exceeded the earlier expectations, but in other parts, there was some loss on account of winds blowing off the boll. Hundreds of farmers who have only been in the country three or four years, with but little means when they arrived, will, out of the crop of this year, clean up all their indebtedness, and be able to put some things aside for further improvements on their farms and homes which are now freed of incumbrance. The writer has just heard of the experience of a man in the Battleford district that is worth repeating. He went to the district seven or eight years ago, with no money, worked for a time, got a team of horses, did some freighting and homesteaded a quarter section of land. He now owns 480 acres of land, clear of all incumbrances, and has wheat, oats, barley and hay, as well as a good number of horses, cattle and hogs, feeding rough grain to the stock. He is a firm believer in mixed farming. The fifty dollars that he first earned in the country has now increased to $25,000. He has never had a crop failure. Instances of this kind could be repeated over and over again.

There is a Dane, named Key, east of Saskatoon, whose oats this year went 110 bushels to the acre, and his wheat 40 bushels. He has paid off the mortgage on his farm, and now contemplates a trip to Denmark, to visit his old home. He has no more cares or worries, but is anxious to have more of his people settle in that part. It is not only the farmer with limited means and small area of land who is doing well, and has done wonderfully in Western Canada this year, but the man with means, the man who is able to conduct successful farming on a large scale and may opportunities offer for such in Western Canada, also has increased his bank account handsomely. A farmer in Southern Alberta raised 350,000 bushels of grain in 1913, and made almost a fortune out of it. In Saskatchewan and in Manitoba is to be heard the same story of what has been done by the farmer working a large area, which he is able to do successfully, by the use of improved farm machinery, enabling him to cut hundreds of acres a day, and plow the land immediately with large traction outfits. No better recommendation could be given the country than the fact that during the past year, upwards of 400,000 settlers arrived in Canada, the greater number of whom went to the farm. There are still many thousands of homesteads still available, capable of producing such crops and maintaining such herds as has made rich men out of the thousands whose experiences could be reproduced were it necessary.—Advertisement.

A CLERGYMAN'S TESTIMONY.
The Rev. Edmund Heslop of Wigton, Pa., suffered from Dropsy for a year. His limbs and feet were swollen and puffed. He had heart fluttering, was dizzy and exhausted at the least exertion. Hands and feet were cold and he had such a dragging sensation across the loins that it was difficult to move. After using 5 boxes of Dodds Kidney Pills the swelling disappeared and he felt himself again. He says he has been benefited and blessed by the use of Dodds Kidney Pills. Several months later he wrote: I never changed my faith in your remedy since the above statement was authored. Correspond with Rev. E. Heslop about this wonderful remedy. Dodds Kidney Pills, 50c per box at your dealer or Dodds Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Write for Household Hints, also music of National Anthem (English and German words) and recipes for dainty dishes. Some Good Advice.
The restaurant manager stood behind the cashier's desk, wearing his stock-in-trade smile for each customer. An old gentleman came up. "I notice," said he, fumbling for his wallet, "that you advertise to make your own pies." "Yes, sir," answered the manager proudly, "we do." "Will you permit me to offer a suggestion?" "Certainly, sir; certainly. We should be most happy to have you." "Well, then, let some one else make 'em."

Their Oddity.
"There is one odd thing about men of iron." "What is that?" "So few of them appear to be well tempered." The people who fish for compliments usually fish in shallow water.

35 Bushels Per Acre
Was the yield of wheat on many farms in Western Canada in 1913, some yields being reported as high as 45 bushels per acre. As high as 35 bushels were reported in some districts for oats, 45 bushels for barley, and from ten to twenty bushels for flax. J. Keys arrived in the country five years ago from Denmark with very little means. He homesteaded, worked hard, in 1913 had a crop of 35 bushels of wheat, which will realize him about four thousand dollars. His wheat weighed 60 pounds to the bushel and averaged over 55 bushels to the acre. Thousands of similar instances might be related of the homesteaders in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. The year of 1913 was an abundant one for wheat in Western Canada. Ask for descriptive literature, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, Ontario, Canada.

"CLUNSY JOHN" WAS CURED

How Physical Defects in Aworvedly Clever Boy Were Remedied at Last.

In Women's Home Companion Mary Heaton Vorse in "The New Freedom for Little Children," says:

"I know a headlong boy who was a continual trial to his parents. He never ran through a room without upsetting something; he never ate or drank without spilling food and drink lavishly over his clothes. He broke his toys. He was always having accidents, and he was continually scolded, of course, for his tiresome ways.

"The continual cry, 'Don't be so clumsy, John,' gave him the nickname of Clunsy John." John was a clever boy intellectually, and it never came to his parents that his headlong ways were anything but a defect of character, a sort of "clumsiness" of John's, which, if he would only take thought, he could immediately correct. Then one day his mother began piecing together various facts concerning John's clumsiness, having been led in this by finding out that John couldn't skip a rope.

"What he needed was muscular training. So the family stopped nagging John and sent him to a gymnasium. They got him a bicycle to ride, which taught him balance. He also had lessons in modeling and carpentry, and little by little John came out of his clumsiness.

"This woman, in homely ways, applied a theory that a great English physical culturist has applied for overcoming serious physical defects in children who are deficient on account of severe illness. Every child who lacks deftness has needed the sort of training when they were babies that Doctor Montessori suggests. There are no careless children; there are only children who need muscular training. In the first place the children in a Montessori school walk the chalk line, which gives them balance. I have seen small children amuse themselves for hours elaborating this game, first walking a chalk line or a crack, then walking it with a heavy object held at right angles, and finally the older children walking it with glasses of water held at arm's length."

Keep the Babies' Feet Warm and Their Heads Cool

An important point in guarding babies from colds and their bad effects is to see that their little legs and feet, their wrists and hands, are kept warm, and their heads cool. Repeated colds and persistent attacks of "snuffles" may start adenoids even in the first and second years of childhood. Forcoughs, colds, croup, and stuffy, wheezy breathing that keeps the children wakeful and feverish, give Foley's Honey and Tar Compound promptly. It will help from mild laxative, is excellent for whooping cough. John W. Blichenstaff & Co. —Adv.

FACT STRANGER THAN FICTION

After This, Novelists Need Not Be Accused of Unduly Stretching Their Imagination.

Novelists accused of overworking the long arm of coincidence might keep for reference the following strange piece of fact. The bark Nomia was posted as missing on December 17 last. She sailed from Newcastle with a cargo of coal for Chile on July 10, and sank in midocean when six days out. At least, so it appears from the only scrap of evidence available—a small, ragged bit of paper torn from a German log book, on which was written, "Monday, 16, 7, 1912—Nomia is sinking fast by hurricane in 42 S. 160 E. Gott save us all and every body." This message, inclosed in a bottle, was picked up recently on the beach between Mangonui Bluff and Scotts Point, New Zealand. But was the manuscript genuine? Here the extensive limb above mentioned got in its good work. The message was given to German Consul Carl Seegner of Auckland, who had known a Captain Nimme, formerly of the bark Germania. The Nomia's skipper was also named Nimme. Searching among his papers, Consul Seegner unearthed the letter written by the German's Nimme, and on comparing the letter with the message from the sea he found the writings identical. Here was evidence enough that the German's Nimme was also the Nomia's Nimme, and that the message wasn't a fake. Seeing that Consul Seegner was the only man in New Zealand—perhaps in Australasia—likely to be able to settle the question, the arm which piloted that wandering bottle right to his door had, as before mentioned, a useful hand at the end of it.

FEAR INVASION OF MOTHS

Forest Products Carried Between States Are Hereafter to Be Rigorously Inspected.

No more Christmas trees or Christmas greens or forest products, such as logs, tan bark, posts, poles, shrubs, vines and cuttings, will be allowed to move interstate without inspection from any point in the areas defined by the department of agriculture as infested by the brown-tail moth or the gypsy moth, says the Country Gentleman.

Secretary Houston in a recent quarantine order to this effect, defines certain towns in Maine, Vermont, Massachusetts and Connecticut and all the territory between them and the Atlantic ocean as infested by the brown-tail moth. Similar definitions as to the areas infested by the gypsy moth embrace Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

Every interstate shipment of such plants, shrubs or forest products listed in this quarantine order must bear the names and addresses of consigner and consignee, together with a certificate showing that the contents have been duly inspected and found free from moth infestation. This order became effective August 1, 1913, and has been issued by the secretary under authority conferred by the plant quarantine act, approved August 29, 1912.

Mourning for the Dean. In the process of expansion press telegrams often undergo a wonderful transformation. Some years ago the first three horses in the Lincoln handicap were Ob, Dean Swift and Roseate Dawn. A press agency in London wired the result to an Australian paper, as follows: "Lincoln Ob Dean Swift Roseate Dawn."

The sub-editor, who was in charge, had never heard of the Lincoln handicap, and for some time puzzled vainly over the mysterious message. Finally he came to the conclusion that "Ob" must stand for obit, the Latin word expressing a death notice.

He accordingly turned out the following paragraph, which duly appeared in print: "We deeply regret to announce the death at Lincoln of the celebrated Dean Swift, the author of that favorite hymn, 'The Roseate Hues of Early Dawn.'"—Chambers' Journal.

Yuan Shih-K'ai's Sons. The three sons of Yuan Shih-k'ai, "the strong man of China," have been for some time in Paris, whence they will go to London for a stay of five years. They are, it is said, more up-to-date than any Celestials who have appeared in Europe, and the eldest, Yuan Ke Chuan, is a choice copy in dress of the true Parisian. In fact, except for a full-face view, no one would take this slim built, elegant youth for a Chinese. He wore a smartly tailored suit of light gray cashmere, in a sober check pattern, and above his tan shoes, with their broad bows, were to be seen some vividly purple socks. A fawn scarf was round his stand-up collar, and he wore a little silver watch on his wrist. One of his brothers, Yuan Ke Huan, is like himself, fifteen years old, and the other, Yuan Ke Chi is thirteen. All of them speak English.

Famous Rhode Island. It was a geography lesson, and the teacher had been asking what some of the different states were noted for. Looking at one of the little girls, she asked: "Tell me, Florence, what Rhode Island is celebrated for." For a moment the girl was silent, then an inspiration apparently came to her. "Rhode Island," she replied, "is celebrated for being the little of the United States that is the smallest."—Harper's Magazine. —Adv.

Is there any difference between immortality and everlasting life?" If "He only hath immortality," and later He to whom it was imparted as a gift, and finally to the "body" members; are we sure that even Adam in all his "Earthly" "Glory" was blessed with this wonderful gift? Could immortality be possessed by any conditionally? Was father Adam's sustenance and life conditional or no? Is the immortal, inherent, deathless condition of God Jehovah conditional or no? Come and help us look this up.

HAD BANK NOTES IN PILLOW

Supposedly Boston Pauper Left a Small Fortune When She Passed Away Recently.

Mrs. Bridget Doherty, who until her death last week lived alone and apparently in poverty in East Cambridge, left a comfortable little fortune of between $7,000 and $8,000, relates the Boston Transcript. This fact was not discovered, however, until the administrator of her estate, John H. Hurley, had carefully searched her modest apartment at 57 Seventh street.

His first scrutiny disclosed a small box containing $263 in currency and specie, and he supposed that this would be the limit of personal property. He persisted, however, and came next upon four bank books, showing an aggregate deposit of more than $5,000.

Further research did not reveal anything of material value until a neighbor suggested that he open the pillows of Mrs. Doherty's bed. Plunging his hand into the feathers, accordingly, he brought forth two crisp bank notes, each for $1,000.

Mr. Hurley is now looking about for Mrs. Doherty's heirs.

Thunderstorms and Lightning.

In the United States thunderstorms are four or five times as frequent east of the Rocky mountains as west. omitting, from consideration parts of Arizona and New Mexico. This is due to the generally mountainous condition of the west. Lightning is most frequent in Florida and Illinois.

Even for the world of make-believe-the stage-from standard drama to one of the frothiest of frothy farce comedies is a far cry, yet this is the venture of those accomplished artists, the Holden Players at the Avenue theater, Detroit, the coming week. Following the production of "Sapho," they will present "Brown's in Town." This latter production is from the pen of that facile writer, Mark Swan. The Holden players, besides being consummate players of standard drama, are also jolly farceurs as was demonstrated when they played "The Girl in the Taxi" in "Brown's in Town." Mr. H. M. Holden, the manager of these players, is confident that he has the stage wherewithal for another great artistic triumph. Meanwhile, "Sapho" is proving the record breaking event in the Avenue theater's present season.

Easy Lessons in Cooking and Baking

By EMILY RIESENBERG

HOW TO BAKE ROLLS AND BUNS.

So many different varieties of rolls and buns can be made of one kind of dough, by merely changing the method of shaping or the trimmings, that only a few formulas will be given in this lesson, as it is best to learn how to make the simpler kinds of dough at first, until you are perfectly successful in handling yeast dough. (When baking with compressed yeast it is well to immerse the yeast in a cup of cold water over night or at least long enough to dissolve. This eliminates the strong odor without impairing its strength, as the yeast germ lies dormant while under water. When ready to use, pour off the water; the yeast will have settled to the bottom of the cup. Now add a spoonful of sugar. This awakens the process of fermentation, and when yeast is added to the warm liquid, you have a reliable, sweet raising power which, if treated right, will never fail you. All ingredients must be lukewarm, and dough kept in a warm place while raising. All measurements are level. Use a graduated half-pint measuring cup and sift flour before measuring. Do not pack flour into cup, just slide it in lightly and level off.)

PARKER HOUSE ROLLS.

Ingredients for Sponge.
Two cups of sifted bread flour.
Two tablespoons of lard and butter (equal parts).
One teaspoonful of salt.
One cake of compressed yeast.
Two teaspoonfuls of sugar.
One and one-half cups of warm milk and water.
One egg.
Method.
Soak yeast in cold water over night or long enough to dissolve. When ready to use pour off the water and add sugar, rub shortening and salt into the flour, beat egg well and add to liquid, stir this and yeast into flour and beat until it bubbles, cover pan and set aside until sponge has doubled its size.

Method for Second Mixing.
Have two and one-half cups of sifted flour on hand, stir into sponge gradually, and when dough leaves sides of pan take one floured board and with floured hands begin to knead in the rest of the flour. As the dough becomes elastic, take up and drop onto the board a few times, then place in pan and let rise again until doubled.
Method of Shaping.
Take dough onto a floured board and with the rolling pin rubbed with flour, roll and pat into a sheet one-half inch thick. With a cutter or sharp edged glass, cut into rounds. When all are cut, rub each with a little melted butter, then take knife and with the handle score each roll a little to one side. Now fold the shorter side over, forming a fold, press and lay one inch apart on flat greased tins. Let stand from 30 to 40 minutes, or until light, then place in a very hot oven so the rolls will crust before they lose their shape. After a few minutes reduce the heat and bake until done, then rub with a little melted butter.

PLAIN MILK ROLLS.

Method.
Take some dough as for Parker House rolls. When ready to shape divide into small pieces and roll each into a smooth ball; lay well apart on a greased tin and brush with milk before putting into oven and after taking out. If you want to keep them soft for a second day, lay them so they touch. They will run together. When done let them cool without separating. When ready to use break apart and you have soft, flaky rolls.

POPPY SEED ROLLS.

Method.
Proceed as directed for milk rolls. Get well apart, and before putting into oven brush with melted butter and strew poppy seed over.

WALNUT FINGERS.

Method.
Take some dough, roll one-half inch thick, brush with melted butter, strew chopped walnuts over and roll rolling pin over lightly. Now, cut into strips one inch by three, lay well apart on greased tin, let rise 30 minutes, then bake in moderate heat.

SWEET CURRANT BUNS.

Ingredients for Sponge.
One and one-half cups of sifted bread flour.
Four tablespoonfuls of lard and butter.
Two tablespoonfuls of sugar.
One cake of compressed yeast.
Method.
(See sponge as directed for Parker House rolls.)
Method for Second Mixing.
One and one-half cups of sifted bread flour.
Two cups of entire wheat flour.
Two teaspoonfuls of baking powder.
Two teaspoonfuls of sugar.
One teaspoonful of salt.
Two eggs.
One cupful of cold milk and water.
Method.
Do not sift the flour. Mix all dry ingredients together, beat egg well, then add to liquid and beat into four, fill heated and greased muffin pans two-thirds full and bake in brisk oven until a toothpick if inserted comes out clean.

Light sponge and when dough leaves sides of pan take one floured board and knead in rest of flour; set aside again in covered pan until light. Now take onto floured board and work into smooth little balls and set in greased tin to raise about 30 minutes. Bake in moderate heat until a golden color. When done spread with a little icing made of confectioner's sugar rubbed smooth with boiling water.

HOW TO BAKE HOT BREADS.

A plate of tender golden corn bread or light muffins is a fine addition to a simple breakfast or luncheon, and if the cook will give a little care and thought to the planning of menus she can make them on short notice as they should be served warm. Hot breads require a hot oven and iron pans, or muffin pans are better than those made of tin or granite ware.
Remember all measurements are level, use a graduated half pint measuring cup and sift flour before measuring. Do not pack or shake flour into cup, just fill lightly, then level off. Also refrain from rounding your spoonfuls of baking powder and don't neglect thorough beating of eggs if you want good results.

GOLDEN CORN BREAD.

Ingredients.
One and one-half cups of yellow corn meal.
One-half cupful of sifted bread flour.
Two teaspoonfuls of baking powder.
One teaspoonful of salt.
Two teaspoonfuls of sugar.
Two eggs.
One and one-half cups of milk or part water.
Two tablespoonfuls of melted butter and lard.
Method.
Mix all dry ingredients, beat eggs well, then add to liquid and beat into meal, add the melted shortening and beat hard, pour into greased flat tins about one to two inches deep, and bake in brisk oven until a rich golden color and a toothpick if inserted comes out clean.

CINNAMON BUNS.

Method.
Use same dough as for currant buns. When ready to shape roll into a thin sheet, brush with melted butter, strew a little sugar and cinnamon over, then roll firmly like a jelly roll, cut into rounds about one inch thick, lay flat on greased pans, and after letting them stand 30 minutes bake as other rolls.
These buns can be iced, or confectioner's sugar sifted over after they are baked.
(When baking any of these rolls or buns, never try to hasten the process by setting in too warm a place or putting in oven before they are quite light, or you lose the proper expansion and the buns will be flat and heavy.)

EGG MUFFINS.

Ingredients.
Two and one-half cups of sifted bread flour.
Two teaspoonfuls of baking powder.
One teaspoonful of salt.
One teaspoonful of sugar.
Three eggs.
One cupful of milk.
Two tablespoonfuls of melted butter.
Method.
Sift all dry ingredients together, beat the eggs very well, add to milk, then beat into flour, add the melted butter and beat again, fill well greased heated muffin tins over half full and bake in brisk oven until nicely browned and toothpick comes out clean.

GERMAN PUFFS.

Ingredients.
One and one-half cups of sifted bread flour.
One and one-half cups of milk.
One scant teaspoonful of salt.
Two eggs.
Method.
Sift flour three times before measuring, place in a deep round bottomed bowl, add the salt and stir in the milk very lightly just so flour is moistened, then drop in the unbeaten egg, and with a strong Dover egg beater or perforated spoon—preferably the egg beater—beat the mass until full of bubbles and frothy. Have ready some very hot greased iron or earthenware muffin cups, fill each about two-thirds full, and bake in a very hot oven. As these puffs get their expansion from the eggs, the beating and hot oven are both needed to puff up the material. After a time when puffs are getting high, the heat must be abated some, for the puffs must bake very thoroughly, so as to dry out the centers, which must be hollow, and the puff will be a mere shell, very tasty and delicate. If puffs have not baked enough they get soft and unpalatable, so if this happens remember to bake them longer at the next trial.

ENTIRE WHEAT MUFFINS.

Ingredients.
Two cupfuls of entire wheat flour.
Two teaspoonfuls of baking powder.
Two teaspoonfuls of sugar.
One teaspoonful of salt.
Two eggs.
One cupful of cold milk and water.
Method.
Do not sift the flour. Mix all dry ingredients together, beat egg well, then add to liquid and beat into four, fill heated and greased muffin pans two-thirds full and bake in brisk oven until a toothpick if inserted comes out clean.

FRENCH OMELET VERY GOOD

Slightly Different From the Usual Combination, but is Excellent Breakfast Dish.

Use more yolks than whites of eggs, to insure the proper tenderness. The pan should be small and thin, to secure a thick omelet and quick cooking. For a small omelet, take two whole eggs and the yolks of two more; beat with a spoon until a full spoonful can be taken up, add three tablespoonfuls of water, one-fourth a teaspoonful of salt and a dash of pepper, and when well mixed turn into a hot omelet pan in which a tablespoonful of butter has been melted. Move to a hot part of the range for a few seconds, then with a thin knife or spatula separate the cooked portion from the side of the frying pan and shake the pan back and forth in such a manner that the cooked portion may rattle on the pan and leave space for the uncooked egg to run down upon the hot surface of the pan. When cooked to a creamy consistency throughout begin at the side of the pan next the handle and roll the omelet over and then upon a hot plate. Serve at once.

FOR CHAFING DISH SUPPER

Those Fond of Cheese Will Find This a Meal Exactly Suited to Their Taste.

Into a chafing dish put half a cup of milk—add to this half an onion chopped fine—a red and a green pepper seeded and cut in small pieces, a large juicy tomato, skinned and cut in small pieces, together with a teaspoonful of salt and three lumps of sugar. Let these boil slowly for ten minutes. Add to this a cupful of cheese and when it is thoroughly melted pour in a well beaten egg—beating all the time until the mixture is smooth. Have ready sufficient toast beautifully browned and serve a large spoonful on each square of toast. Five people can be served with this quantity. It makes an appetizing supper dish, and one which will often be called for by those who care for cheese.

Cream of Lima Bean Soup.

Cook one pint lima beans in slightly salted water until perfectly tender. Press through a colander, add one quart milk, put through a food chopper one or two onions, as the flavor of onions is desired. Rub together one tablespoonful of butter, two tablespoonfuls of flour. Add to the mixture, beat, stir constantly until smooth, and add a dash of peppers. Salt to properly season. Serve hot. I find a vast difference in lima beans. Some turn dark in cooking and flavor is objectionable, but those that remain light in color when cooked are very palatable.

Waffles.

Two cupfuls sifted flour, two teaspoonfuls baking powder, one-half teaspoonful salt, two tablespoonfuls butter, three eggs, one and one-half cupfuls milk.
Mix the dry ingredients and sift together several times. Cut in the butter as in biscuits. Separate the eggs, beat yolks and mix with milk; add this to the dry ingredients, beat well, then fold in the stiffly beaten whites. The batter should be of pouring consistency; if too thick add milk, then cook in hot buttered waffle irons.

Fish Souffle.

Make a cream sauce of one large teaspoonful of butter, one tablespoonful of flour and one cup of milk. Have ready one cup of cold fish (any kind) in small pieces, beaten yolks of two eggs, and salt. After making the sauce add the fish and eggs; if desired add a drop or two of table sauce. Let it cook a minute, let cool and fold in the whites beaten stiff. Have ramekins or buttered dish ready, place in hot water in a pan and bake 20 minutes. These will be light and delicious.

Codfish Salad.

Put a piece of white codfish to soak over night. In the morning pour off the water, put on fresh cold water and let come to a scald. Try, and if still salt, repeat as it wants to be tender and soft like fresh fish. Pick up, in flakes, cut a hard-boiled egg in pieces, mix with it some chopped lettuce, line a dish with crisp leaves, cover with the mixture and pour salad dressing over it.

Round Steak Cooked in Gravy.

Get one pound round steak, cut thin. Cut into several pieces and brown on stove with a little butter or clean grease. Bacon is good. Do this about nine o'clock for noon dinner. Then cover with water and set back on range, letting it cook until nearly 12 o'clock. Turn once between and salt it. Then thicken the gravy and turn over meat. Add more water as it cooks.

Tomato Oysters.

Slice green tomatoes and take out the seeds. Lay in salted water for 20 minutes; then take out and drain. Dip each piece in beaten egg, seasoned with salt and pepper, and roll in flour or fine bread crumbs. Fry a nice brown in good drippings or vegetable fat. Serve with a dish of creamed macaroni or curried rice.

Green Salad.

Pick, wash and drain two heads lettuce and break into pieces, mix with some watercress, shredded celery and a few leaves of mint; put in a salad bowl, sprinkle with salt, pepper, sugar and lemon juice, and pour over a mild dressing; garnish with slices of hard-boiled eggs and pickled beet root.

GOOD JOKES

THE REASON. DARKEST AFRICA.

His Aunt—Why did your father lick you?
Claude—Cos he's bigger than I am, I guess.

Too Late.
He waits for Opportunity
To knock upon his door;
If 'er she does, she'll probably find
Him dead upon the floor.

Made No Difference.
Two women mutually confiding their grousches. One woman, a sweet little soul; the other, a self-assertive body. "You can't think how this high cost of living affects us," confessed the one. "Why, my bills for clothes alone are more than twice as large this year as they were last year." "Mercy!" gasped the other. "I don't see how your husband can afford it!" "That's the answer—he can't," retorted the first. "But he couldn't afford it last year. So what's the difference?"

Bright Side.
"He always tries to see the bright side."
"What's happened?"
"He was run down by an automobile yesterday and almost killed, yet the first thing he said when he regained consciousness was, 'Gee whiz! after fifteen years I've got a chance to cash in on an accident policy!'"

Logical Results.
"Boss," complained the famous twirler, "I'm all run down!"
"I don't wonder," sharply answered the manager of the team. "You've been trying to save your arm by pitching without winding up."

Do Their Own Talking.
Now graphophones are pretty good
To have upon one's shelves,
In such lines, be it understood,
The goods speak for themselves.

A Good and Valid Reason.
"I wish this fellow wouldn't send you so many chocolates," said the other suitor.
"Why?" simpered the girl. "Are you jealous?"
"No; but I prefer to eat marshmallows."

Appropriate.
"Dicks is one of those facetious fellows who, instead of saying he's had his lunch, invariably says he's had his 'beans.'"
"No matter what he really did eat?"
"Yes. And while I hate slang, in a case of this kind I don't think it would be much of an exaggeration to call Dicks' head a 'bean.'"

By His Wit No Longer.
"Say, what's Bill Smithers doing now? Still living by his wit, as he always did, huh?"
"Nope. Bill's made a change for himself and settled down to hard work. Runs the funny column in the Afternoon Squeak."

Sound to Be.
"I see where a man makes a good living writing obituary notices."
"Umph! I dare say he's a facile liar."
"Sure. Otherwise he couldn't live up to his favorite motto."
"And what is that?"
"De mortuis nil nisi bonum."

So Light.
"Miss Gaddera," said the young man, tentatively, "if I should stumble and fall into this lake, would you be alarmed?"
"Oh, no, Mr. Blathers," answered the young woman, with a yawn. "Your head would keep afloat."

Matrimonial Amenities.
He (during the quarrel)—Then, by your own account, I didn't tell you a single truth before we married.
She—You did one; you said you were unworthy of me.

Impossible.
"Your conduct should always be open with your wife."
"How can I be when she is always shutting me up?"

The Humorist's Wife.
"Before I submit them to the editors I let my wife read over all the jokes I write," said the humorist to the inquiring friend. "The bad ones, of course, I don't send, and thus save stamps."
"What an odd process! I thought it was settled that woman has no sense of humor. Your wife must be a treasure."

Smugler.
"Here is a rather unusual story of a disaster written by a young newspaper man."
"Why is it unusual?"
"He doesn't refer a single time to 'Death's grisly tail.'"

The lovers lingered long. At their feet the noble Zamboni hurried onward to the sea. It was in Darkest Africa, but they were not afraid of the dark.
"No," she was cooing, softly but firmly, "I cannot marry you on any other terms. Papa says I'm worth three yoke of oxen and a tame elephant, and I cannot become your wife for any less."
"All I have in the world," he protested wildly, "is one yoke of oxen."
For a moment no sound was heard save the ripple of the water. She first broke silence.
"I think—" Her voice trembled, and her glance was bent shyly upon the ground.
"—Papa is willing to let me be a sister to you for one yoke of oxen." But he only groaned.—Puck.

A Painful Reminiscence.
"Yes," confessed the imprisoned confidence man. "I have had moments of deep regret. I remember on the occasion of my first arrest—I was barely nineteen years old—" He paused for a moment.
"Yes!" put in the good old clergyman, sympathetically.
"I was bitterly disappointed to find that not a single newspaper referred to me as 'young in years but old in crime.'"—Puck.

ACCOMMODATED HIM.
The Child Was Instantly Killed.
cally she ran to the neighbors, summoning assistance. They pacified her and the broken-hearted brother, while others notified the coroner.
The children had been "playing Indian" all morning around the house, and the boy found the rifle that had been carried by his father. It had been packed away in a trunk through which his mother had been rummaging. Brandishing it in his hand, he told his sister that he was a real Indian and would run from him, picking up a toy cap pistol to carry out the game. He called to her to stop. She turned and pretended to plead with him. Then he raised the rifle, pointed it directly at her, and pulled the trigger, little suspecting that it was loaded.
The child was instantly killed, as the bullet tore through the heart.
The family has lived in the Ninth street house only a short time.

How "Count Von de Broch" Made Way With a Chicago Girl's Valuables.
New York.—Miss Alice Wilking, a pretty Chicago girl who arrived the other day by the liner Prinz Friedrich Wilhelm, was asked by the ship news reporter if she had met any members of the nobility while abroad.
"Yes," said Miss Wilking. "I met a count in Paris and he stole my handbag. At least he said he was a count. Here is his card."
She showed a visiting card bearing the name Count von de Broch.
"You see, it was this," said Miss Wilking, who was accompanied by her mother, who declared it was all true. "I was rushing for the St. Lazare station to catch the Kaiser Wilhelm II. when it happened. We were staying at the Hotel Tivoli and I stopped to pay the bill while mother went on to the station.
"Time was short when I came out and I rushed about looking for a taxicab. I was laden with bags and bundles and when a very polite and well dressed gentleman stepped up to assist me I was glad to let him. He handed me his card in a very polite way and then succeeded in getting a taxi for me.
"He bundled me in and as I thought, gave all my bags to the driver. When I got to the station I was horrified to find that my pet handbag, containing our steamship tickets and money, was missing. We had to cancel our passage and cable for funds to get home with. I told the police about it, but they could do nothing. Of course, I don't know whether he was a real count or not, but he was a very expensive porter, anyway."

Her Husband Meanest Man.
Marion, O.—"I married the meanest man in the world," declared Mrs. William Dixon, a prominent society woman in her suit for divorce. "I never knew of one before who would take his children's Christmas toys, and even the candy given them, and send them to get money to fritter away on other women. Why, he would even take the pennies our friends would give them and spend them for his own selfish pleasure."

BOY KILLS SISTER IN MIMIC BATTLE

"Playing Indian," He Shot the Little Girl Through the Heart.

Denver, Colo.—"Playing Indian" with his eight-year-old sister, Pauline, at noon the other day, Eugene Greenstead, eleven years old, of 1214 Ninth street, pointed a 30-30 rifle at her and pulled the trigger. There was an explosion and the bullet pierced the heart of the little girl, killing her instantly.
Mrs. Josephine Greenstadt, the mother, a widow, heard the discharge of the rifle and the shriek of the boy, and rushed into the room where the children had been at play. A glance disclosed the dead child, and hysterically she ran to the neighbors, summoning assistance. They pacified her and the broken-hearted brother, while others notified the coroner.
The children had been "playing Indian" all morning around the house, and the boy found the rifle that had been carried by his father. It had been packed away in a trunk through which his mother had been rummaging. Brandishing it in his hand, he told his sister that he was a real Indian and would run from him, picking up a toy cap pistol to carry out the game. He called to her to stop. She turned and pretended to plead with him. Then he raised the rifle, pointed it directly at her, and pulled the trigger, little suspecting that it was loaded.
The child was instantly killed, as the bullet tore through the heart.
The family has lived in the Ninth street house only a short time.

How "Count Von de Broch" Made Way With a Chicago Girl's Valuables.
New York.—Miss Alice Wilking, a pretty Chicago girl who arrived the other day by the liner Prinz Friedrich Wilhelm, was asked by the ship news reporter if she had met any members of the nobility while abroad.
"Yes," said Miss Wilking. "I met a count in Paris and he stole my handbag. At least he said he was a count. Here is his card."
She showed a visiting card bearing the name Count von de Broch.
"You see, it was this," said Miss Wilking, who was accompanied by her mother, who declared it was all true. "I was rushing for the St. Lazare station to catch the Kaiser Wilhelm II. when it happened. We were staying at the Hotel Tivoli and I stopped to pay the bill while mother went on to the station.
"Time was short when I came out and I rushed about looking for a taxicab. I was laden with bags and bundles and when a very polite and well dressed gentleman stepped up to assist me I was glad to let him. He handed me his card in a very polite way and then succeeded in getting a taxi for me.
"He bundled me in and as I thought, gave all my bags to the driver. When I got to the station I was horrified to find that my pet handbag, containing our steamship tickets and money, was missing. We had to cancel our passage and cable for funds to get home with. I told the police about it, but they could do nothing. Of course, I don't know whether he was a real count or not, but he was a very expensive porter, anyway."

Genuine "Key West."
Yes—it's another. Professor Van Dusen was vainly trying to unlock his front door with a key, as the announcement of a friend who had accompanied him home to talk over the fourth dimension.
"Look here, man," said the friend when he could talk without betraying his amusement, "do you know what you're trying to open that door with?"
The professor looked, then gave a start of dismay.
"Gracious!" he blurted out, "I must have smoked my latch key!"

Is Your Body Poisoned?

Well kidneys keep the blood free of uric acid, a deadly poison that is constantly forming in the body. Suffering kidneys allow the uric acid to accumulate, causing rheumatic attacks, headache, dizziness, gravel, urinary troubles, weak eyes, dropsy, and heart disease.

DEATH 'DUE TO IMAGINATION'

Dr. Mary Walker Cites an Instance— Says Georgia Banker Might Have Been Saved.

I deem it a cruel thing to have insisted that "Mr. Walker must die of poison" when he had lived so long. Dr. Mary Walker writes to the Washington Post.

Had he been a patient of mine I should have declared that he could not die, and proceeded with saving methods. When my father was a medical student the following story was told to him:

A large, stout fellow was awaiting his day to be hanged for murder. Some doctors persuaded the warden of the prison to allow an experiment, promising not to hurt the man, provided the criminal consented.

The doctors told him that they "could bleed him to death, and spare his relatives the ignominy of his being hanged," and he readily consented to die that way.

He was placed upon a table, a tin pan put on the floor at his feet, and another placed high above it with a puncture to let the water out in drops.

The man's eyes were covered and his body fastened to the table and a blunt instrument used to press hard against his foot. Then the water falling in big drops into the pan made the noise that convinced the man that he was being bled.

The doctors talked low about the quantity of blood he might have, and occasionally felt his pulse, and in a whisper stated he would be dead in a few minutes longer, and he did die without one drop of blood having been taken.

Many people have died because of having been told that they must die, when if they had been told that they would not die they would have recovered.

WHEN RICHARD BACKED AWAY

Turn in the Conversation Evidently Was Not to the Liking of the Enamored Swain.

"I've bought the ring, dear," exclaimed Dick as his fingers moved toward his vest pocket.

"Well, Richard, before we become formally engaged will you answer me a few questions?"

"Sure, sweetheart."

"First, you will always love me?"

"You bet I will."

"And we will have a dear little bungalow?"

"Exactly."

"One servant?"

"Yes."

"You will let me buy gowns and hats whenever I need them?"

"Sure."

"Nor will you quarrel about my spending money?"

"Indeed no."

"You won't smoke in the house?"

"Never."

"You will always kiss me when you leave?"

"Certainly."

"And I can always have the last word?"

"You will have that anyway."

"You won't care if I sleep late in the morning?"

"No."

"And you will let mother be with us for the first three months to advise me?"

"Dear," exclaimed Dick, suddenly, "I forgot and left that ring in my room. I must get it at once." And he is still trying to find it.

Pat Meant Well.

An Irishman made his way to a county jail and asked to be allowed to see the governor. On being ushered into that functionary's presence he begged for the favor of an interview with a prisoner who was to suffer the extreme penalty of the law in the course of the morning.

"No, my man," said the governor, on being appealed to, "you cannot see the prisoner. He is to be executed in half an hour's time, and it is not allowed for visitors to see a prisoner on the day of execution. But what might be your business with him?"

"Shure, sorr," answered Pat, "it's his birthday, and I was after wishing him many happy returns at the day."
