And to common the Indiana wake shelper in a hut of an island. Hayward finds a murdered man in the hut.

CHAPTER VI.—Continued.

I stood staring at it, and then down into the face of the dead man. D'Auvary: Her name! The same name she had given me! The face of the girl came back instantly to memory, distinct, living. There was a familiarity, a resemblance, now that I thus concend the two together. She had told me her father was a Franch officer—but dead, killed in action. Perhaps she thought so; had been deceived into this belief. Yet I was convinced now that this was the man; that he had been living up to a few hours before, and had met his fate here in the wilderness by a foul and treacherous blow. Her father! The knowledge seemed to shock me, to leave me help-less; I could not divorce my mind from the remembrance of the daughter. Where would she be that night? Safe at Harmar? or in the dark woods with Girty? Did she know about this idden cabin? This island rendezvous? Surely this could be no mere coincident of name and history, yet what was the mystery that enveloped both? Why was-thy Captain D'Auvary liding here, and why did she deny that he was still living? The more I thought, the more tangled grew the skein. Brady called me, and I stepped back into the other room, still dazed, grasping the medal in my hand.

"Well, what is it?" he asked gruffly. "What have you found out?"

I told him briefly, describing the appearance of the body, and handing him the medal. He turned it over in the light of the torch.

"French, ain't it? What does it any?"

"An army decoration for gallant conduct given to Cant. Recol D'Auvary."

I told him all I knew, and he listened eagerly, his eyes on Schuitz puttering about the fire.

"She must have jested in her threat to travel hither with the renegade."

"I fear it was not jest," I said sobertly. "She was in a mood to do even that, and I do not think she feared the man. They may be on our trail now, ay! close at hand, itrady, for they both know these woods better than either of us. "I is my thought, now, the dead man yonder was the lass' father, and she would know his cabin."

His eyes turned to the door, and then to the food Schuitz was placing on the table before us, but whatever his thought it remained unuttered. As we sat there eating, he was apparently turning it all over in his mind, trying to draw the tangled ends of the skein together. As we finished the meal, some newly awakened curjosity caused me to glance out again into the rear room. It was gloomy with shadows, the bodies of man and dog beyond view, yet what I perceived brought from my lips a sudden exclamation. "Brady, some one has been in here!

"Brady, some one has been in here!
The outer door is uniatched—yes—and the soldier's coat is gong!"
We searched the room carefully, but the discovered no sign of its having been entered, except for the door standing slightly ajar, and the disappearance of the red coat. We dare not carry a torch into the opes, and the night was too dark for us to trace marks on the ground. Brady stood in the glow of firelight, looking to the priming of his ride, his face shadowed.

"I am going out awhile, Hayward," he said finally. "Yes, I am all right now. I meant to take you along, but, I reckon, it will be safer not to leave the Dutchman here alone. However, I don't think there will be any more visitors tonight."

the Dutchman here alone. However, I don't think there will be any more visitors tonight."

He slipped out the back way, disappearing instantly, and I picked up my own rifle, bade Schultz remain where he was, and followed, with the purpose of scouting about the island. I could perceive the new danger we were in. Suppose the assassin, eager to save himself from suspicion, should be attracted to that camp of raiders, and, relying on their friendship for protection, charge us with the murder of D'Auvray. What mercy could we hope for at their hands? Beyond doubt the band was composed of ambitious young warriors, who had already tasted blood, and under control of no chief able to restrain them, if their wild passions should be appealed to.

But I emerged into darkness and silence. Quickly as I had made this decision I was too late. The scout had already disappeared across the narrow open space, and vanished into the frings of trees. There was nothing to guide me, except a vague sensesyof di-country except by British officers. What is that red garment lying on the box? I thought so: an English is faintry jacket, made in London, and it never belonged to D'Aurya? "He held it up. "It was a big fellow who were the boar? I thought so: an English is never belonged to D'Aurya?" He held it up. "It was a big fellow who were the boar of the boar of

I heard a quick breath of surprise, almost an exclamation: the stock of almost an exclamation: the stock of the fifte sank to the ground, but the hands still clung to the barrel, as the startled figure straightened up. I could not dietinguish the face, only the white outline shadowed by the hat, yet the short, slender form was that of a boy. The relief at this discovery brought a laugh to my lips. "What does this mean, lad?" I asked. "Have children gone to war? Come, answer me; you are no savage."
"Tile not a lad with whom you deal, Monsieur Hayward," replied a soft voice, trembling a bit nevertheless, though attempting boldness. "You know me now?"

She flung the concealing hat into the grass, the silvery light of the stars on her face.

"You here! you!" I exclaimed in swift surprise at this unexpected denoument, and feeling the bot blood flush my face. "You came with

She ventured to laugh lightly at my tone and manner.

"We traveled together—yes. What of that, monster? The wilderness is not a parlor where we can choose associates. Did I not warn you I would come with him when you refused me? An' you think I did what was wrong?"

"I?" puzzled by ber direct question. "What is it to me, mademoiselle? You would not care what I think. Yet were you sister of mine I would speak plainly enough; we all know what Slmon Girty is."

were you stater of mine I would speak plainly enough; we all know what Simon Girty is."

"Oh, no, monsieur, the Americains do not," and her voice rung with carnestness. "He is to them an enemy, a fiend. He wars on the other side, and as the Indians make war. Why not! He has lived in our wigwams, and sat at our council fires. He belongs with us, save for the birthmark of a white skin. To me he is not enemy, but friend. I have known him always, from childhood; there is no fear in my heart; did he desire, he would not dare harm me—I am a Wyandot."

The swift words were a denance, a challenge.

"Have it as you will," I said coldly, "but nothing you may say will ever make me think well of that renegade."

"You!" she exclaimed passionately. "Why do you say that, Joseph Hay-ward? Why do you keep up this masquerade with me? We are no longer at Fort Harmar where it was safer for you to guard your speech.

I knew you would be here; that was why I came alone—that we might talk to each other, and no longer lie." I stared at her face in the starlight, my memory suddenly reverting to the dead man within.
"You knew I mould be here?"
"I guessed it, and my instinct was true. Why not, monsieur? You alone knew the house was here, and who lived in it."

Mademoiselle Meets Her Father

Mademoiselle Meets Her Father.

There was evidently no use of my groping longer in the dark. The girl was in earnest; she firmly believed me to be another. There could be no understanding between us until this mystery of identity was cleared away. Her discovery of me here bad only served to increase her hallucination.

"Mademoiselle D'Auvray," I said earnestly, and I stood bare-headed before her, "there is a serious mistake being made. I am not willing you should deceive yourself any longer. I am going to be perfectly frank with you, and in return I sak you to be equally frank with me. Who do you believe me to be?"

She gazed straight into my face, answering:

She gazed straight thin my race, an swering:

"Unless one particularly desired to do so," she replied swiftly, "and that I am beginning to suspect is the case." She straightened her slender figure, throwing back her shoulders and using a clearer English than before, as if throwing off disguise. "You ask me to deal with you frankly, monsleur; very well, I will. Down in my heart I have never trusted you—never! My father did, and I made pretense to please him. But from our first meet.

"You call me a spy," I said soberly, as her breath failed, "but I am not. To me this is all mysters. But what about yourself, mademoisele? Whywere you at Fort Harmar? What purpose brought you there?"

"I went there openly, and in no disguise," she replied, restraining berself with an effort. "I was not a spy, nor a victim of curiosity. I told the truth when I said I was seeking my father."

"Yet you left at once to return north without finding him?"

"Because I had learned be was not there, not in the American forts. I heard the generali tell it to you."

"To me! the name was not mentioned. We spoke only of a medicine man—Wa-pa-tee-tah."

"Yes, the White Chief. He came to the Wyandots with the Christ message. He was there before the priests, and it is through his efforts there has been peace. Yet why should I tell you all this? You have met him in council, have eaten at his table, and shared his bed. He alone has stood, and blocked your plans of war."

"Mademoiselle," I said, "let us for get this controversy, this misunder standing, for it is that, and be friends."

Lansing—In the present chaotic situation of the leading political parties of this State—with Governor Ferris leader of the Democratic party of the State calling his counsellors to his office, and Republican Chairman Groesbeck's call for the preliminaries of his proposed peace conference in the near future, it may be interesting to note some of the mandatory features of statute for party organization.

Section 43 of the general primary law, as amended in 1911, requires that the State Convention of all political parties for the nomination of candidates for State offices, and the selection of members of the State Central Committee, shall be held within forty days after the August primary (Au-

Representatives of the various telephone companies of Michigan, gathered with the state railroad commission last week for the purpose of discussing the various phases of the telephone law and their application by the state railroad commission.

"Varied and interesting as are the many problems arising our only purpose is to bring out clearly the fact that as between the utility which private capital brings into existance, which the private citizen directs and manages, and the public which contributes to its support, the relation abould be that of a co-partnership; a co-partnership in which the mutuality of intrest, of obligations and responsibilities are clearly recognized and

Following a conference of the representatives of the various telephone companies with the state railroad commission the Michigan Telephone Association was organized here, and all companies whether organized for profit or for mutual benefit, have been invited to join.

A committee of five was appointed to set up a standard of construction rules for telephone lines, it being the intention to formulte some scheme to by the Administration of Ardent Spirits.

On his return to his native heath a year or two ago, P. J. O'Keefe found Nellie, the oldest woman in the parish, was dying.

Her friends, arriving at her home, found her lying back in her easy chair, apparently about to pass over the last threshold. Nellie, being a good house-wife, carried a bunch of keys at her girdle and, thinking that she was now gone, one of the neighbors reached under the folds of her dress to find the key that would unlock the closet where her shroud was kept. As the good woman was fumbling at the girdle she felt a sly pinch of her hand and knew by that that there was still a spark of life remaining.

"Perhaps," she suggested, "a wee drop of brandy would revive her."

A teaspoontul of brandy was administered, but with only a flickering response. So the friends departed sornowfully, forgetting, however, to remove the bottle from her side. On their return at few hours later they discovered that the, brandy had vanished and that Nellie had completely recovered. She lived to be more than one hundred years old. "But that," says Mr. O'Keefe, "was the story of Nellie's dying."

CORN CAN BE GROWN ON CANADIAN PRAIRIES

and would be a profitable investment. According to the Farm and Ranch Review, a correspondent visited a field of corn in southern Manitoba on September 23. The corn then was untouched by frost and it stood on an average eight and nine feet in height. The corn had developed into the dough stage, and the crop would easily enceed 20 tons to the acre. At many experimental farms, the same favorable showing of the corn crop has manifested itself. At the Brandon experimental farm this year several varieties, all very good yielders, matured into good sile corn.

Considering the success with which corn can be produced, and the advantages to be gained by so producing it, whould not it receive the serious attention of the western agriculturist?

Corn is successfully grown in the northern part of Minnesota in similar sail and under the same climatic condition, and there does not appear to be any reason why like results should not be secured in western Canada. It is the opinion of many American farmers of experience that the corn belt is extending northward. The prairie provinces must gradually take up with mired farming. More stock on the farms must be raised, and in consequence farming must to some extent be diverted from grain growing

Some people will try to involve by suggestion the naval expenditure in a cloud of suspicion. Let them mock. I am convinced that a reduction of naval expenditure is necessary for the welfare of civilization. It is a question that does not only affect governments and diplomats but concerns parliaments and the people. We must not be discouraged by a want of success. The time will come when the present expenditure and competition in naval armaments will be a thing of the past and when the great naval powers will look back upon it with feelings of regret." The significance of these words in the making of a different world tomorrow comes from the fact that they are the carefully-considered utterance of the head of the navy of the greatest sea power in the world.

BANDIT KILLED BY POLICEMAN

ANOTHER DETROIT HOLD-UP MAN WITH LIFE.

RUNS BLOCKS WITH WOUNDS

Detroit, Mich.—With a bullet from a policeman's revolver in his abdomen, a man known only as "Specks" staggered three city blocks to apparent safety Monday night, only to die less than an hour later in St. Mary's hospital as the result of the wound. "Specks" was one of three men surprised by Patrolman George Miller in the act of holding up Peter Reardon, 245 Second arenue, at First and State streets at 9.15 o'clock. Miller arrested George Crandail, who said he lived at the Michigan Exchange hotel.

To the other two, Miller shouted a command to halt. They paid no heed, and he sent two shots in their direction. Although he believed one butlet had taken effect. Miller was not certain until hours afterward, when Crandail reluctantly identified "Specks" as one of his two companions.

Accident Saturday.

Ypsilanti, Mich.—Cyril Nellis, 10year-old son of Mrs. Elizabeth B.
Nellis, was drowned in the Huron river here late Saturday afternoon.

The boy, in company with Aden
Benedict, son of Mr, and Mrs. J. E.
Benedict, a playmate, 13 years old, secured a canoe and started down stream, attempting to keep near shore.

The river was high and the current swift, and the boys lost control of the canoe and got out into the current.
Realizing that the Oak knitting mill dam was below, young Nellis grabbed some timbers under the bridge above the dam in an attempt to save himself.
He held on until almost exhausted,
and then dropped into the swiftly moving current, and not being able to swim was carried over the dam and drowned.

West Liberty, O.—One person was killed and several suffered minor in juries when passenger train No. 3 on the Big Four railroad was wrecked near here late Saturday. The rear truck of a dining car left the track at a switch and the rear coach, a chair car, was hurled into a ditch.

Miss Lou Nell, aged 45, of Cleveland, a passenger in the chair car, was thrown through a window and her body was crushed when the car overturned. She was instantly killed. Ten other occupants of the car were cut and bruised.

The passenger train was bound for

AGED CONVICT MAY GO FREE

Has Served 15 Years.

Jackson, Mich.—George Boucher, formerly of Detroit, sentenced to life imprisonment from Benton Harbor in 1899 for killing William Hawken, believes that within a few days the prison doors will open to him and he will be a free man after 15 years. His hope is based on the fact that a telegram was received at Benton Harbor Monday, saying that Horace Condon had confessed to the crime for which Boucher was convicted.

Condon was arrested at Mattoon, Ill. Condon was arrested at Mattoon, and was arrested for breaking his parole. The confession is alleged to have been made to the Mattoon police. He was in Benton Harbor at the time Hawken, an old soldier from Michigan City, Ind., was killed.

SAME BLANKS MAY BE USED.

Law Costs State $1,000.

Lansing, Mich.—Deputy Secretary of State Mills says those having the blanks for making automobile license applications under the law just declared unconstitutional by the supreme court, can use the same blank in applying for a license under the old law. The failure of the legislature to pass a law providing for a horse power tax on automobiles that would stand the test of the courts will prove a financial loss to the state. More than $1,000 in postage stamps will have to be used in remitting the rebates due those who have applied for licensee under the law.

The added expense for employing extra help in getting the books adjusted will be several hundred more dollars, and incidental expenses incurred cannot be estimated.

DANES REJECT ARBITRATION.

New-Style Body— Roadster or Touring Car.

Now $220 Less

Last season's model of Reo the Fifth, with electric starter and complete equipment, sold at $1,395. And the year was our record year, exceeding our previous year by 25 per cent.

Now we have added many improve-ments. And, without sacrificing one feat-ure, without skimping one part, we are quoting the car at $1,175 complete.

This is how we have done it:

The best electric starters cost much less is year. Our chassis is standardized. this year. Our chassis is stan-Our capacity is largely increased.

All the special machinery, jigs and tools for this chassis have been charged against previous output. These items from now on are wiped out from our cost.

So we offer you now the best car that R. E. Olds ever built. We offer the hand-somest car thar ever went from this factory. And we offer a price $220 less that a car of this class ever sold for.

This is the greatest innovation which has ever been offered in the history of the Reo concern.

Reo the Fifth with Many Improvements

The New Things

Now comes this car with a new-style body—s low, rakish, low-hung body. A sider body. A cowl-front body with a gondola back—the very latest mode.

The instrument board, with all instruments set flush, is brought within reach of the operator.

The windshield is ventilating, clear vision and rain vision. The search-lights have dimming attachment. The upholstering is deep and soft.

There's a new-style tire carrier on the back, which also holds the tail light and the number tag in a man-ner which complies with all laws.

We add an electric born.

The transmission has been changed in ways which accomplish utter si-

Our Exclusive One-Rod Control

This car alone has our center rod control. A rod which connects directly with the gears. No outside levers, no connecting links.

The gears are tested for 75,000 pounds per tooth—the springs for 100,000 vibrations.

The cars is over-tired. We use 15 roller bearings and 190 drop forgrings.

The carburetor is doubly-heated.

No side levers, no brake levers. Both brakes are operated by foot pedals. The diver's entrance from either side is clear. These appealing features are found in no other car.

Every Feature Retained

We still retain every costly feature which made this car distinctive. It is still the best car R. E. Olds can build, after 26 years' experience.

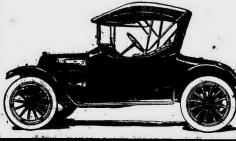

The steel is twice analyzed, so the strength is made certain. Each vital part, at much added cost, given 50 per cent over-capacity.

All the extremes, all the costly pre-cautions which made this car fam-ous are here. All the tests and in spections—all the margins of unlety— all the uter exactness. The cos-is built for low cost of upkers, and to run year after year as well as at runs when new.

Now all of these unique with all these improvements, we do not you a saving of 20. That the result of three years' thing on a single model. The saving was at such a price would be saving to make the price would be saving the saving
