A Great Anniversary

Easter is the anniversary of the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead. Good Friday and Easter—the Cross and the Open Tomb—are the heart of hearts of the church's plea, and of her very existence. They stand for her message of redemption and life. By the cross and the tomb the church is differentiated from all other institutions and organizations. These are the symbols of her divine nature and mission.

Easter is a great anniversary in the life of the world because it brings a message of a new life, a risen life, a divine life. It is the day of the eternal hope. It brings to memory our beloved dead; most of all, the Redeemer who broke death's power and assures us of a resurrection. Let us join with the millions that will keep this day "holy unto the Lord."

"This Easter morn—this day of days,
His triumph we recall,
Let us with angels sing his praise
And own him Lord of all.
The Son of God now reigns above;
Oh, who can slight his wondrous Love?"

A Live Wire

Why would it not be a good idea for the Plymouth Improvement Association, which is composed of nearly all our business men, to hold monthly meetings at the various churches where they may buy an appetizing supper at the same time, as an evidence of the fraternal spirit that exists in Plymouth's commercial life. There are a lot of live wire public topics that are hanging above the head of village just now.
There is the question of whether Plymouth wants to take up the commission form of government or some other form or leave alone the present system; the question of securing new enterprises to locate here; the good roads proposition which should receive the careful attention of our business men, as good roads are a great factor in bringing trade to any town. There are many other things which it is the business of an improvement association to discuss as well as questions pertaining to a possible factory. And the easy way to discuss them is to get together at a dinner table where fellowship reigns and talk matters over. The improvement association is the heart of a town's system of veins. As it pulsates so does the town go forward, fast or slow. It is an organization that not only merits but should demand the support of every loyal citizen. Let us get together and revive interest in the Plymouth Improvement Association and make it a live wire for the good of the village.

Township Election's

One of the Most Closely Contested
That Has Been Held in Years

The annual township election which occurred Monday was one of the most closely-contested that has been held here in some years, and no one could guess the results until the last vote was counted. Although the day was anything but an ideal one for town meeting day, yet there was a total of 542 votes polled. There were 134 straight Republican votes and 136 straight Democratic votes. The gas franchise was carried by a vote of 407 for and 89 against. The following is the vote given each candidate:

New Council Met

President Hillmer Makes His Annual Appointments

The new village council met in an adjourning regular meeting Tuesday evening. The usual list of accounts were read and ordered paid. Floyd Bennett was given the contract to care for Central Park for the coming season. He is to receive $30.00 for his services. A petition asking for the extension of the water mains on Oak street from Pearl street north was read. The petition was referred to the water committee. A petition asking for a street light at the extreme end of East Ann Arbor street was laid on the table until a future meeting. A petition was also read from property owners on Liberty street asking the council to reconsider the petition which was recently presented and acted favorably upon by that body, relative to the paving of Liberty street from Oak to Mill street. The petition for reconsideration sets forth that the signers feel that the burden of expense of the improvement which would fall upon the owners of the abutting property, would be too great for them to bear. A survey has already been made of the street and the matter was deferred until another meeting. The question of oiling the streets again the coming summer was discussed at some length and the clerk was instructed to get the best quotations on oil for this purpose. The matter of a new heating plant for the village hall was also discussed by the council and it was decided to get plans and estimates for the installing of a new system of heating and ventilating.

President Hillmer in a few well chosen remarks made the following appointments and standing committees
for the ensuing year:

President pro. tem.—A. V. Jones
Chief Fire Dept.—Frank Dicks
Marshal—Geo. W. Springer
Street Commissioner—T. C. Chilson

A Fine Funeral Car

Schrader Bros. have just received what is probably one of the finest funeral cars in Wayne county. This car is of the very latest and most improved pattern of funeral cars. Three beautifully carved panels form the sides of the car with only a small showing of glass, which form the sides of the more ordinary funeral cars. The interior hangings are of the richest and most expensive material. The car is equipped with an electric bell and has rubber tire wheels.
It is certainly a beautiful funeral car and Schrader Bros. are to be congratulated for the progressive spirit which they display in keeping abreast of the times in everything pertaining to their business.

Rev. Willis A. Moore of the Church of our Father, Detroit, will speak in the Universalist church next Sunday even-subject, "The Necessity of the Supreme. Revelation of Jesus." The public is cordially invited.

Easter

in Many Lands

STRUGGLING TO REACH THE HOLY FIRE - HOLY SEPULCHRE CHURCH

CATHEDRAL OF TOURS, FRANCE

FLORIDA VISITING SACRED SITES OUTSIDE CERVOLINA

EASTER in foreign lands is the gala day of the year and is celebrated with a zest rarely found in this country, where the chief features of the occasion are choral services and Dame Fashion's parade of Easter finery. Easter festivities abroad are elaborate in the extreme and marked by many unique customs and ceremonies.

During Holy week no meat is eaten in Poland. Good Friday, dressed in mourning, the women go to church and pray for an hour. The grave of Christ is always represented at the church, and it is before this prayers are said. Saturday, too, is spent in fasting and prayer. Easter Sunday the great luncheon, or "swieczny," as it is called in Polish, takes place. At the castles of the nobility refreshments are prepared for hundreds of guests. The tables are laden with cold meats, pigs roasted whole, various kinds of sausages and great cakes, or "haha," which are always eaten at Eastertide. During the afternoon visitors call. It is the custom of the host and hostess to meet their guests at the door with a plate of eggs, each visitor takes a small piece and the greeting of the day, "Hallelujah," is exchanged.

kiss three times, first on one cheek, then on the other, and the last time on the other cheek again. This represents the joy they feel on account of the Savior's resurrection. The custom is sometimes continued for several days, and the peasants often kiss those whom they have just met.

Following the half-hour church service there is a night mass held, the only one during the year. This is not usually ended until 3 o'clock in the morning. From the church the people return home and have what is really an early breakfast, but which is more like a feast. They eat hard-boiled eggs, "pascha" and "coolitch" which form the features of the repast.

The custom of kissing is also observed in the court. Easter day the emperor receives the members of his household, his bodyguard and representatives from the officers and soldiers of the regiments stationed in and near St. Petersburg. Easter is a joyful occasion for the children. For two or three days previous their elders dye eggs for them, much as is done in this country. Easter the children roll them and play with them. It is also the custom to exchange eggs, and many people carry a few with them to present to their friends after the church service. The children play with their eggs for a week after Easter and sometimes longer. The "pascha" and "coolitch"

EASTER SUNDAY AROUND THE ARMYANIS RUSSIAN EASTER - KISSING THE IRONS

On the day preceding this luncheon the food is blessed by the priest. As the castle is usually the center of the community, the peasants or farmers bring their food there. When the priest blesses the castle luncheon he also bestows a blessing upon the food of the servants and peasants in the lower hall. During the entire week following Easter Sunday visitors are invited to partake of the cold dishes on the Easter luncheon table, which is replenished as necessity arises.

Landowners receive gifts from the peasants on their estates at Eastertide. One may bring his best calf, another his fattest pig, and a woman her largest chicken or duck. In turn the peasants receive presents of money and other valuables.

The children play with eggs on Easter Sunday in much the same manner they do on the White House lawn in Washington. In Austria-Hungary the same ceremony is observed, with the exception of the great luncheon. Always on Good Friday the emperor and his court attend divine services for an hour.

Easter in France is primarily a floral celebration. The flower market along the Seine is replete with the perfume of lilacs and other as fragrant, though less stately blooms. Every one wears flowers at Eastertide, and poor indeed is the household that does not display a fad symbol of "the resurrection and the life."

It is not one of the great celebrations of France, but is decidedly a children's day. Of course, it is a legal holiday and the banks, government buildings and schools are closed. There are the usual religious services to be found in a Catholic country. The Parisian child makes merry with Easter eggs, which are generally painted in vivid colors. For the children of the wealthier class are eggs of chocolate and sugar, either solid candy or hollowed out so as to conceal pretty favors in the form of small toys.

In Italy, Easter is quite the most important religious festival of the year and a time of public and private rejoicing. In Rome on Easter Sunday and for several days afterward religious processions are to be seen on the streets. Dignitaries of the church, clad in gorgeous raiment, march from church to church, blessing the baptismal fonts and rekindling the altar fires that were extinguished on Good Friday in memory of the death of Christ.

A unique ceremony marks the observance of Holy week in Florence, Italy. It is probable this ceremony will be discontinued before many years because of the fatalities and serious accidents which have occurred in recent years.

At noon on Saturday of Holy week a ceremony called the "espanto del carro" (the explosion of the cart) takes place in the Piazza del Duomo, just west of the Baptistero. It is in fulfillment of the will of the de Pazzi family, an ancient Florentine household, certain members of which were slain from the holy land with the fires on the altars at Easter.

The "carro" resembles an altar and is drawn by a small frame horse, is drawn before the cathedral by a team of oxen and is filled with fireworks and decorated with flowers. A wire is stretched from the altar to the altar in the cathedral. At the conclusion of the service a wooden device known as a "dove," traveling over the wire on a wheel and bearing a small fuse, is lighted from the sacred fire on the altar. It rushes down the wire to the car filled with combustibles. The explosion that follows is a wonderful pyrotechnic display. The peasants in and near Florence attach considerable importance to the explosion of the "car," and especially to the uninterrupted descent of the "dove" down the wire; if everything transpires without a hitch, they consider it an omen of plentiful crops the rest of the year.

Abounding in quaint customs and strange ceremonies Mexico upholds her reputation in her Easter celebration. The day is a day of vengeance—not upon the living, but upon the numberless images of Judas Iscariot, the betrayer of Christ. All over the country countless images of Judas are made, generally in peasant clothes, with ropes fastened around their necks. Amid the shouts and jeers of the crowd the images are swung aloft and hung. As they swing to and fro stones and knives are hurled at them; out in the provinces the figures are riddled with bullets until they are literally cut to ribbons. Sometimes an image is stuffed with cigarettes, confections and trinkets, strung aloft and exploded from a fuse running to the ground. The contents are scattered to the explosion, of course, and the grown-ups as well as the children scramble for the flying gifts.

The ceremonies really begin with Thursday evening of Holy week, when the "visita de la siete casas," or the calling of the seven houses or churches, is held. The populace on this occasion visit seven or more churches—there must be seven at the lowest—and pray. All the churches are decorated, and there is considerable rivalry as to which has the most gorgeous altar. On the afternoon of Good Friday there is a service called "la siete palabras," or the seven words, referring to the seven words of Christ on the cross. All women attending this service are dressed either in mourning or in somber colors. In the evening, attired in the same manner, they attend a service called "pesame," a service of condolence and mourning.

On Saturday morning the "gloria" service is held, after which comes the hanging of the effigies of Judas. In the afternoon the people attend the theaters or a bull fight if the weather is not too warm for the latter. On Easter day proper the celebration is almost entirely a religious one. Easter is the holiday of holidays in Russia. This is partly due to the fact that Easter is the first celebration of the spring season, and the warm weather naturally draws people to the outdoors.

On Easter eve in Russia there is a church service held which begins before midnight and continues for half an hour. In the country, even among the peasants where the customs are more strictly followed, the people wear their best and lightest clothes.

After the service comes the Easter kiss. Friends are also eaten during the week after Easter, and always served to visitors who may call. It is also a custom to greet friends Easter day with "Christ is risen from the dead." To that the friend replies in the same way or exclaims: "Yea, verily, he is risen!"

Another phase of the Russian celebration of Easter is to be found in Russia, but in Palestine. Thousands upon thousands of pilgrims, from Russia, but also, from other parts of the world as well, assemble on the banks of the river Jordan on Easter morning to bathe in the same waters in which Christ was baptized. As the rays of the rising sun gild the tops of the mountains of Moab a shout of "Hosanna" bursts forth with one accord from every throat, followed by song. Baptismal robes are donned and the people rush into the stream. The Russian government has erected hospices for the pilgrims all along their line of march.

Easter in Jerusalem is a great occasion. At the Church of the Holy Sepulchre the ceremony of the descent of the holy fire is celebrated on Saturday. All lights in the church are extinguished at a certain hour and the worshippers stand praying that the holy fire be sent down from heaven. Two high priests go down into the sacred sepulchre; suddenly lights appear in the tomb, and other priests hand down candles, which are returned to them lighted. These candles are then carried to the various churches in the city to light their altar candles, and, in fact, there have been instances wherein they have carried all the way back to Russia by pilgrims. On Palm Sunday a great service is held in the church, at the conclusion of which the worshippers stream forth shouting "Hosanna!" and waving their palm branches.

The most remarkable feature of the Easter celebration in Jerusalem, however, is the march of the pilgrims through the Via Dolorosa. Many thousands of persons from all over the world participate in this march, following the course taken by Christ in his journey to the cross on Calvary.

Good Friday in Spain, especially in Seville, is the day on which the various guilds and societies and the monks array themselves in fantastic garb and parade the streets as mummers. They bear before them huge standards, crosses, images of the Virgin Mary and queer symbolic devices. In other sections of the country the parade takes the form of a carnival of flowers; queens of the carnival are chosen and they are feted with all the homage usually shown a real sovereign. Vast sums, secured by popular subscription, are expended upon the parades. The images of the virgin are garbed in robes and jewels that cost thousands of dollars.

The beautiful service in St. Mark's cathedral is by far the chief feature of the Easter celebration in Venice. The worshippers come to the church in gondolas literally covered with flowers. The entire scene is a riot of color and blooms. In the afternoon every one bears a supply of food to the square in front of the cathedral and scatters it broadcast to the countless flocks of pigeons that fly about the stately edifice.

FAT MAN GETS STUCK IN NARROW DOORWAY

Printer's Customer Becomes Wedged in Door When He Attempts to Enter Shop.

New York—John W. Cunningham, printer, is a slim young man, and although his shop at 162 Fulton street is only 39 inches wide and 132 inches long, he refers to it as "commodious." His 18-inch door he terms "spacious."

John Vishefski, who lives at Avenue C and Twenty-second street, Bayonne, N. J., weighs 200 pounds. He is a larger edition of Jim Jeffries. When Vishefski stepped out of the Hudson tube the other day he discovered he had no calling cards. Noticing Cunningham's sign he stopped.

"Come in," invited the slender printer.

"Sure; I need some cards," replied Vishefski, and he started to enter.

"But there he stuck," explained Cunningham to a reporter later.

"When he took a deep breath the walls creaked. The glass in my door cracked. A crowd gathered. Some men grabbed him by the coat tails and began pulling him out. I didn't want to lose a customer, so I did my best to haul him in. We couldn't budge him either way."

"Finally Mr. Vishefski said that if I would help push him out on the sidewalk he would give me my order from there. So I began to push. The others pulled and Mr. Vishefski strained, and finally he was released.

"Mr. Vishefski stood out on the street and gave me a liberal order for cards. I refused his offer to pay for the broken glass in the door. It is one of the risks of my business."

AWAY FROM HOME 24 YEARS

Michigan Storekeeper, Harassed by Deats, Went to Klondike and Dug Up a Fortune.

Greenville, Mich.—Twenty-four years ago G. W. Vanderlip arose from lunch, kissed his wife good-by and went back to his little music store with his helpmate's invocation to bring a pound of tea. A couple of weeks ago Vanderlip came home for the first time in a quarter of a century, but he had forgot to bring the tea.

Vanderlip explains his long absence by saying that he was so overwhelmed by debts, he didn't go to his store that day, but instead he boarded a train and went west. He reached Seattle, and from there he went into the Klondike region.

Eight years ago found him with a comfortable sum, so he started for home, but on the way he fell ill with fever and was sick for many months. When he recovered, his gold was gone and he returned to the Klondike to accumulate another fortune. He succeeded after years of toil.

No word had passed during all the years between the husband and the wife, who had remained faithful, and they are now spending their second honeymoon in their little home here.

THIS PRINCESS EXCITES IRE

Yankee Girl's Grandmother Orders Son's Wife to Return to Her Own Chateau.

Warsaw—Polish society is gossiping about an incident alleged to have happened between Princess Radziwill, nee Dorothy Deacon, and her husband's grandmother, Countess Brancicka, whom she visited alone at the Castle Bialyerkloft.

While doing a jigsaw puzzle one evening Dorothy began to whistle. The countess inquired aloud who was whistling in her presence, and Dorothy soon after began it again the countess sent her a message that if she wished to whistle she should do so in her own rooms.

The next afternoon the party again sat down to the puzzles, and some one daring Dorothy to whistle, she did so, and the princess later had a message conveyed to her that she would better return to her husband's chateau, where evidently they didn't object to whistling in public.

Princess Dorothy's unconventional behavior excites amusement here, as Countess Brancicka's dignified methods are well known.

Secrets of the Wardrobe. When Winston Churchill was running for the governorship of New Hampshire, his opponents became pestiferously active, making speeches, writing letters and distributing campaign buttons. One morning a friend sent this telegram to Churchill: "Have you no buttons for your supporters?"

The candidate was out of town and did not get the telegram, but a pretty girl stenographer did.

She sent this answering wire: "No. We use safety pins."

The condition of the alley in the rear of the store on Main street and Penniman avenue has been receiving the attention of Health Officer Geo. Springer. Great piles of the winner's accumulation of refuse and rubbish of all kinds do not make a very slightly spectacle, to say nothing of the unsanitary condition which is sure to prevail with the advent of warmer weather. It would seem that some sort of receptacles should be provided for refuse of all kinds and then have it hauled away at short intervals. The matter of keeping the alley clean and sanitary should receive the attention of every merchant in the village.

An Imitation
Is never as good as the article it imitates. And so it is with RENNÉ'S PAIN-KILLING MAGIC OIL. Hundreds of imitations have been offered to the public in place of the genuine, but none of them have quite answered the purpose. RENNÉ'S does the work expected of it, both internally for cramp colic and cholera morbus, and externally for rheumatism, neuralgia and for sore muscles. The public knows it well and the public likes it. Price 25¢. Sold by J. W. Blackman & Co. and Beyer's Pharmacy.—Adv.

TODAY'S REFLECTIONS

You'll soon be running up to the lake.
And fanning mosquitos.
Oh well, the peach crop is reasonably safe.
Plenty of peaches on the streets Saturday evenings.
Quit your kidding.
Early to bed and early to rise.
Makes father fumble when baby cries.
Oh you beautiful snow.
Going to church Sunday?
The government has furnished the seed.
We told you about it.
You'll have to do your own spading.

And the neighbor's chickens will do the rest.
Such is life in the gentle spring time.
Got your wife's new hat yet?
And next Sunday is Easter.
Stop kicking about the weather.
It brings May flowers, as well as rheumatism.
Lent is almost over.
Some people won't know the difference.
Indications are for a long warm summer in Mexico.

SCHOOL NOTES.

The spring vacation has put new energy into the school.
The third grade has a new pupil, Jennie Meising by name.
The fourth grade have recently completed colored maps of the U. S. Ethel Good and Florence Meising entered the grade the first of the week.
This has been a banner week for the domestic science department. The seventh grade made doughnuts and the eighth floating island.
The sixth grade are having an interesting time tracing water routes from Lakes Michigan and Superior to New York City and determining what products are carried back and forth. The room is divided into two sections, the Star and Busy Workers.
The Juniors are studying "The Deserted Village."
Supt. Isbell and Miss Lappeus attended the Schoolmaster's Club at Ann Arbor last week.

A BUSY PLACE.

One of the busy places in Plymouth is the Specialty Foundry Co., which is located in the building owned by the Plymouth Improvement Association. This business has only been established a short time, but it is steadily growing. Five men are employed at the present time and there is every indication that more will have to be employed in the near future to care for their growing business.

Redford Minstrel Show Postponed

On account of the illness of several members of the cast, the Redford home talent minstrel show which was to have been given at the Plymouth opera house this evening, has been postponed until Friday evening, April 17. Seats will be on sale at Blickenstaff's drug store, Tuesday, April 14.

From that pleasant and life-like little drama of Lancashire, England, "Hazel Kirk," the current bill, the Permanent Players of the Avenue theater, Detroit, will turn to a play that has proved an epoch-maker in American history, "Uncle Tom's Cabin." This book and play perhaps more than any other agent served to plunge the United States into civil war. The version, which the Permanent Players will use, is not the version in the several more or less disconnected scenes, but a version in five acts. The story is consecutively told and all the characters of the book will be reproduced, necessitating an enlarged cast. Roy Walling, who has become such a favorite, will don the cork, to play Uncle Tom. Miss Leona Stater is cast for the role of Eliza Harris, which part has been emphasized in this particular version. Milton Nobles, Jr. will be seen in the character of Marka, the lawyer, while Simon Legree will be impersonated by Russell Brady. All the other popular members of the company will be seen in roles suited to their peculiar talents. Other competent players have been engaged for this production, including some real Southern darkey singers. The steamboat scene on the Mississippi promises to be a thriller.

OPENED UP WESTERN CANADA

Prince Rupert, Famous Soldier, Was First Governor of the Hudson's Bay Company.

Six years from this month will mark the centenary of the birth of Prince Rupert, the great English military officer whose name is forever associated with western Canada by reason of the fact that he was one of the organizers and the first governor of the Hudson's Bay company. The territories of the company, now the western provinces of the dominion, were long called Rupert's land in honor of the prince. Rupert was the third son of Frederick V. of Bohemia and Elizabeth, sister of Charles I. of England. He was noted for his reckless bravery in battle, which he first displayed on the continent. He then went to England to assist his uncle, Charles I., and in 1648 was made admiral of the English fleet. After the restoration he was made lord high admiral and fought against the Dutch. His later years were largely devoted to scientific study and to the affairs of the Hudson's Bay company. Charles II. granted a charter to Rupert and 17 other nobles and gentlemen, incorporated them as the "Governor and company of adventurers of England trading into Hudson's bay." The part played by this company in the development of the west constitutes one of the many romantic chapters in the history of the North American continent.

The Inspector's Disguise.
 Some days ago, about five o'clock in the afternoon the principal police inspector of the Second district was called to an affair as delicate as it was urgent.

He quickly made up his disguise. For his bourgeois melon hat, he substituted a cap, the classic cap of the Apache. He then jumped into an auto.

He was not recognizable, or rather he would not have been if the honorable inspector had not retained upon his breast the red ribbon of the legion of honor, a ribbon that he had heroically won at Sholva-le-Roi, under tragic circumstances that no one has forgotten.

And the mal-factors in the midst of whom this disguised officer insinuated himself could not refrain from laughing and are laughing yet at this man clothed like one of them and decorated with the legion of honor.—Le Cri de Paris.

Evil of Gossip.
 Every man and woman will be entitled to think better of themselves and will have a stronger claim to the regard of others, if they cease to be on the lookout for something to find fault with, to treasure up and repeat and magnify every scandal, little and big, and to retail and spread every small item of tea table gossip which carries with it ridicule or censure for some one. Suppose all that were dropped, and really it is unworthy of intelligent well meaning people, and the habit formed of only speaking well of others. Would it, after all, be as stupid as some seem to think?—Cincinnati Enquirer

EXERCISE IS AN INVESTMENT

Better Three Hours a Week at Single Play Than Three Weeks of Sickness.

Tennis is over with for the year. Golf is at an end. The great open out of doors which has been the training master to millions for some happy months is closing up its season. What are you going to do about it? asks Collier's. You Mr. Hardworking Man who have sacrificed, your few pounds of flesh to the healthful strain and have received in exchange a tonic better than any drug in the pharmacopoeia, are you going, now that winter is here, to let your hard muscles stiffen, your clear eye dull, your quickened vitality slump and slacken?

If so don't blame providence or the weather because you fall a prey to tonsillitis or grip or find yourself presently wincing from the twinges of rheumatism or hobble forth next spring feeling somewhat more than a thousand years old. It's all your own fault. You will have wasted capital, the capital of bodily and nervous force which you have laid up for yourself by your summer's exercise. Why not keep it up in the winter? Surely there is some sort of athletic opportunity in your town—club or squash or hand ball court or Y. M. C. A. gymnasium.

If there isn't there ought to be. Get busy and start one. Indoor exercise may not be as enlivening or quite as beneficial as outdoor play, but it is an incalculable number of times better than none at all. Of course, there is the familiar can't afford the time argument, but the man who advances this plea is usually the man who, about February, takes three weeks off to go to the hospital with stomach trouble or gets invalided off to a sanitarium to recuperate his depleted nerves. Three hours a week in a gymnasium isn't very much time to expend. Five is better, but three, conscientiously adhered to, will keep the average man going and enable him to get through his winter's work in sound condition. Give it a trial. It isn't an amusement only. It's an investment.

HID DISGRACE FROM PARENTS

Cases of Record Where Convicts Successfully Concealed the Fact That They Had "Done Time."

In most cases men sentenced to imprisonment are only too glad to receive the sympathy of their relatives. The case of Nolan L. Gartner, an convict who returned to Kingston, O., the other day after serving a two-year sentence for wrecking a bank is an exception. During all the time he was in prison his mother, eighty-six years of age, had supposed he was "in the west on business." She greeted him with smiles on his liberation, little thinking that the weekly letters she had received from him telling of business movements were mailed from a prison through the friendly assistance of the officials.

Another case was that of Adolph Rebstock, an immigrant who killed a man in a quarrel at Chicago shortly after his arrival in this country. He received a sentence of ten years. He gave a cousin $2,500 for investment when he went behind the bars.

The cousin opened a corner grocery store in the name of the convict. The latter wrote monthly to his parents in Berlin that he was prospering slowly. He was paroled in six years.

The grocery store had grown into a flourishing business. He took his cousin into partnership and sent for his parents. They never knew of his imprisonment. Shortly before they died a discharged clerk told the story to them but they refused to believe him and they declared him a lunatic.

New Industry in Mississippi

The advent of the Mexican cotton boll weevil has caused at least one new industry to spring up in Pike county, namely, the gathering, drying, grinding and shipping leaves of the sassafras tree to be used as an article of commerce. The product is known as "file," and seven barrels of it, aggregating 750 pounds, were shipped to New Orleans from here recently by F. W. Allen, a progressive farmer, residing seven miles east of Magnolia. Mr. Allen has a mill made specially for grinding "file," and he shipped a small quantity of it last year. While the article is used extensively in the preparation of "gumbo file," the delicious soup which has made French cooking famous, the demand for it is very limited. The leaves are gathered in July and August, and are thoroughly dried in the shade before being carried to the mill. It requires about three hundred pounds of green leaves to make one hundred pounds of meal.—Magnolia News.

Night Blooming Cereus

The Night-Blooming Cereus buds are especially susceptible to sudden jars, or to a handling of the buds. We have known them to drop just because a curious flower-lover took hold of the soft, cottony mass, lovingly, she thought, but the buds dropped. If possible, before it is time for the buds to start, place the plant in its position for the summer, where it will get an abundance of sunshine. Water with lukewarm water in plenty, and do not allow anyone to handle the plant. Some liquid plant food—should be given at this time as freely as to geraniums; liquid cow manure, diluted, is one of the best plant foods.

Watch that the green aphids do not get a footing, for they will hide in the hairy bud covering, and induce blasting. Fight them off with tobacco-water.

CAR OR SUPER-CAR

That is the chief question men have to decide in buying a car to keep.

It overshadows everything else.

Almost any car is fit for normal service. There are very few cars which won't demonstrate well, or even run well for a season.

Then it is worth while to build or to buy a super-car like this Reo the Fifth?

Listen to our side of the story.

After 27 Years

Mr. R. E. Olds, after 27 years of car building, says that all these extremes are essential. Not for normal conditions, not for one-season service. But to stand shocks and strains—to withstand years of wear—to save troubles, repairs and upkeep, a car must be built like this. And no man in the world knows better about that than Mr. R. E. Olds.

Ask any old motorist—men who have been through the mill. They will tell you, by all means, to get the utmost in a car.

What It Costs

Before we deal with the cost of Reo extremes let us point out our price: $1,175 with electric starter and lights. Note how it compares with other cars in this class. Note that in the past year, through factory efficiency, we have brought down our price just $220.

WOOD OF IMMENSE VALUE TOO LIBERAL WITH ADVICE

Greenheart, South American Product, Has Most Wonderful Qualities for the Shipbuilder.

Greenheart, the wood which the isthmian canal commission is desirous of securing for use in the construction of docks and similar works in the Panama canal, because it is said by experts to resist more than any other wood the attacks of marine borers which rapidly destroy piles and other submarine structures, is one of the most valuable of timbers. It is native of South America and the West Indies, and from its bark and fruits is obtained bibitine, which is often used as a febrifuge instead of quinine.

The wood is of a dark green color, sap wood and heart wood being so much alike that they can with difficulty be distinguished from each other. The heart wood is one of the most desirable of all timbers, particularly in the shipbuilding industry. In disputable records show that the best grades surpass iron and steel in lasting qualities in salt water, submerged logs having remained intact for one hundred years.

In the Kelvingrove museum, Glasgow, there are two pieces of planking which illustrate better than anything else this durable quality. They are both from a wreck which was submerged eighteen years off the west coast of Scotland. The one specimen—greenheart—is merely slightly pitted on the surface, the body of the wood being perfectly sound and untouched, while the other—teak—is almost entirely eaten away.

It is extensively used in shipbuilding for keelsons, beams, engine bearings and planking, and it is also used in the general arts, but its excessive weight unfit it for many purposes for which its other properties would render it eminently suitable.—Below the Rio Grande.

Fireproofing Children's Clothes.
 When fires are started, if there is any danger of children getting so near as to ignite cotton dresses or aprons, add salt to the water in which the clothes are rinsed. This renders the fabric fireproof.

Bank Cashier Meant Well, But Sad Experience Taught Him a Great and Lasting Lesson.

The story sifted down from St. Paul the other day that "Jim" Hill engineered a shakeup in a bank there because he found an ink spot on his monthly statement, which recalled to a bank official of this town the reason why one cashier ceased to be a "big ray of sunshine. Persons who coax more than a conversational bit out of him nowadays are indeed skilled. "He was a conservative guy—and good," said the banker. "He was the sort of a man who would leave a light turned on in the hall at night so that burglars might think that some member of the family had not returned home. He was especially strong on temperance. Strong drink had never seared his pure lips. He cashiered in a savings bank in the edge of the town. One day a Hunkey blew in with an active hang-over. If he'd had any more liquor in him he wouldn't have been legal without a revenue stamp. He said he wanted the $50 he had on deposit. The cashier stepped to the rear limits of his cage and refused to pay until he came around sober. "Your signature," said the cashier, "looks like a dog bite when you're in this condition. I will not accept it." So the Hunkey went booting up and down town announcing that the savings bank had refused to pay his money. By alarm-clock time next morning the streets were full of yammering Hunkeys, waving bank books. The reserves were called out and the depositors were chased away. Then the bank officials investigated and the cashier confessed. He's stopped giving good advice."—New York Globe.

Couldn't Place Them.
 Little Jessie, aged four, who was quite familiar with a pack of cards, was taken to church for the first time. She was very much interested in the stained glass windows, which portrayed the different saints of the bible. Much to the amusement of those seated by, and very much to the chagrin of her mother, Jessie said, in a stage whisper: "Tell me, mother, is they kings or jacks?"

SYNOPSIS.

Joseph Hayward, an ensign in the United States army, on his way to Fort Harmor, meets Simon Girty, a renegade whose name has been connected with all manner of atrocities. Girty, headed for Fort Harmor with a message from the British general, Hamilton, Hayward guides him to the fort. At General Hamilton's headquarters Hayward meets Rene D'Auray, who professes to recognize him, although he has no recollection of ever having seen her before. Hayward volunteers to carry a message for Harmor to Soudaky, where Hamilton is stationed. The northwest Indian tribes are ready for war and are only held back by the refusal of the friendly Wyandots to join. The latter are demanding the return of Wap-tee-tah, a religious teacher, whom they believe to be a prisoner. Hayward's mission is to assure the Wyandots that the man is not held by the soldiers. Rene asks Hayward to let her accompany him. She tells him that she is a quarter-blood Wyandot and a missionary among the Indians. She insists that she has seen Hayward before, but in a British uniform. Hayward uses her honest and starts for the north accompanied by a scout named Brady and a private named Tom. They come on the trail of a war party and to escape from the Indians take shelter in a hut on an island. Hayward finds a murdered man who he believes to be Rene D'Auray, a former French officer who is called by the Wyandots "white chief." Rene appears and Hayward is puzzled by her insistence that they have met before.

to breathe. Then she sank slowly upon her knees beside the body, her head close to the cold cheek. "Father! Father!" she sobbed, as if in sudden realization of the truth. "It is you!" Her hat had fallen to the floor, and her wealth of dark hair unloosened completely hid her face. She had forgotten my presence; everything but her grief. I drew back silently, stuck the sputtering candle on a box, where it burned bravely, and left the room. As I glanced back from the doorway, odd shadows flickered along the walls, and she still knelt there, a vague, indistinct figure. In the other room I found a chair, and sat down, staring dumbly into the smoldering fire.

CHAPTER VIII.

Mademoiselle's Story.
In the intense silence, the gloom of that room lit only by those smoldering embers, with Schultz sleeping undisturbed against the wall, my thought could not be diverted from the lonely girl sobbing above her dead. Was she of dual nature, womanly and savage by turn, as the instincts of two races dominated her action? Yet this could never account for her distrust of me, her continued insistence upon having previously known me. As I and she meant it! There was no attempt at deceit, no acting in all this; her full faith in the charge was written upon her face, found echo upon her lips. She believed me to be another man, a pretended British officer, a traitor to her people, a scoundrelly spy. Yet she applied to him my name. That was the strangest part of it all.

Even as I started toward the open door the girl herself appeared, outlined against the candle flame. She had bound up the loosened strands of hair, and her dark eyes, dry and tearless, looked straight at me. I doubt if she saw Schultz at all as she came forward, stopping only as her hand finally touched the table. As I watched her, my earlier determination died within me; I could only wait in silence for her to speak. "Joseph Hayward," she said slowly, the words rasping a little with her effort at self-control. "You confess to that name, do you not?" "Yes, mademoiselle," I answered, my lips dry, my eyes riveted on her face. "Yet you still claim not to be the same Joseph Hayward whom I have known?" "I am an ensign in the army of the United States, and have never worn a red coat."

She smiled, but the smile was not altogether pleasant. Then she said slowly, "Very well; have it so then. I do not in the least believe you, but am going to speak exactly as if I did. I am a girl, alone, and must turn to you for help. It makes no difference now if I am of Indian blood and ancestry, I am here alone with you. I have got to trust you, rely upon your word, ask your aid. You claim to know nothing of me, or mine. That there may be no possible mistake I will tell you—tell you about him," she pointed backward, with her hand, her voice breaking, and—and about myself. You shall know all, and then you will dare pretend ignorance no longer. Listen, monsieur. The man lying dead yonder—murdered—was my father."

She leaned forward, resting her hands on the table, for support, the veins in her throat throbbing. "I wish you would at least confess a knowledge of my tongue," she almost pleaded. "It is not in English I think, monsieur, and it is difficult for me to speak in that language."

"It would be a pleasure to confess anything that would aid you," I replied politely. "But I possess small understanding of French."

Her eyes darkened indignantly, and she made a forceful gesture indicative of her true thought of me. "You continue to act your part well," she said scornfully, "even when there is no longer a necessity. Bah! I despise this play acting! It is unworthy a soldier. So you would have me tell over what you already know; you would make me stand here and suffer—" "Mademoiselle," I interrupted swiftly. "I ask nothing. All I seek is the opportunity of service. There is no truth in all this—you have remained in my memory since the first hour we met. I desire your trust, your friendship; whatever you may tell me will be held sacred, inviolate. I will serve you though you speak no word, give no explanation. I beg the privilege."

I thought she would never speak, standing there before me in the dim light, swaying slightly, her bosom rising and falling with quick breathing. A great sympathy welled up in my heart, and all unconsciously, I extended my hands. She must have seen them, but she made no response, but the glitter of unshed tears was in her eyes. "What is the use of our talking like this," she said impetuously. "I as though we exchanged compliments in Montreal. Instead we are in the wilderness, with danger all about us. You are what you are, monsieur, and I am a woman of the Wyandots. Let all else pass; I care nothing whether your thoughts of me be good or evil. I am what I am; what birth and conditions have made me. All I appeal to in you is whatever of manhood you may still retain. I tell you my story, because you swear you know it not; then listen, and you shall. No, do not move, but hear me; I would not do this without reason."

She glanced aside at Schultz, and then into the red embers of the fire, her eyes coming slowly back to rest on my face. "I am Rene D'Auray, and my father lies dead there in the next room. He was all I had in the world, yet I knew little enough of him. He spoke seldom of his past life even to me. Still, I have much reason to believe that in his younger days he was intimate at the French court. I know he was a soldier, an officer of the king's guard, decorated for bravery. He never told me why he was exiled to this land, buried in the far wilderness, made a companion of savages. I never asked, although my heart ached to do so, for he was not a man to be questioned lightly, and I early learned that the very thought brought him pain. But I know this, for I saw a letter once, a yellow, creased letter, which I think he purposely mislaid hoping I would see. He wanted me to know, yet had not the heart to tell me. It was from a French comrade in arms, and there was a crest on the paper, and a great name signed. I wept as I read, for the writer loved the man to whom he told the story, and the words came warm from his heart. Whatever else you may know of us, Monsieur Joseph Hayward, you have never known this. It was because of a lady my father loved, a relative of the king. For her sake he fought the Prince de Millier, and killed him in the royal garden. It was a fair fight, but the king saw it was so, for it disarranged his plans, and my father had to flee France to save his own life. Then was he proscribed, a price set upon his head."

"She paused, and sank into a chair, bowing her face upon the table. I stood silent, unable to speak, the sound of her voice still in my ears. She looked up again, dashing her hand across her eyes. "I must be far more French than Indian to become so weak," she explained, ashamed of the emotion. "T is the memory of him lying yonder, monsieur, with no word—no last word—for me. So it was he came to America, but they would not let him rest in either Quebec or Montreal. They drove him forth into the woods, into the camps of Indians. He told me once about those days; of how he traversed the black waters of the Ottawa and met hardships on the great lakes, his companions voyageurs and couriers des bois, his only means of support the furs he could send back to Montreal. But he might not venture there himself, but was doomed forever to a life beyond civilization. His associations would have brutalized him, made him also into a savage, but for one thing—he was a fervent Catholic. It was this which kept him ever gentle, sweet and strong. He possessed the passion to save souls; he became an evangel to the Indians among whom he lived. He was at Mackinac and Green Bay; he told the Pottawatomes of Christ, but they cast him out; he traveled to the villages of the Illinois, but the Jesuits were already there, and gave him no welcome. At last he found a home with the Wyandots. At first the task was not easy, for they were a savage people. They had tortured Jesuit priests to the stake, and flogged the Recollets who came also. But my father won their confidence; he went forth with them to battle; he went with them against their enemies, and so they finally listened to what he

CHAPTER IX.
The Return of Brady.
There was still silence, except for the heavy breathing of the soldier still sound asleep on the bench. I could distinguish no noise without. "It was like a cry, faint but I hear nothing now. Did you catch it, monsieur?" "I heard only your voice." "Then I may have been deceived, although I have the ears of an Indian." Some sound caused me to wheel about, and I faced Brady, who had just stepped within and closed the door. His gray eyes surveyed us in one swift glance, settling inquiringly on the girl who had arisen to her feet. Schultz awakened, sat up on the bench, blinking sleepily. "Brady?" "Of course; and who have you here, Master Hayward? A woman surely, by dress Indian, and by face white." "This is Mademoiselle D'Auray," I replied, not liking his manner of speech, "the daughter of the man we found here dead."

"She was not in the house when I left. Oh, I remember! The same perchance who was at Fort Harmor. The one you told me about, and who threatened to follow us with Simon Girty. Truly, she must have kept her word, for that black renegade is here."

"Here! Girty? You saw him?" "Ay! In the Indian camp out yonder. Nor was that all I saw. There is something savage on foot, or I am no woodsman. I thought those devils might have other quarry, and come back here to lie quiet in hiding, but I am not so sure now that we are not the ones sought. This girl belongs with them."

He became Wap-tee-tah, the white chief, and taught them of Christ Jesus. They became Christians because they were proud of him. He accomplished what the priests could not do, and kept the tribe at peace with the whites. The English came, and hated him, for he would not enter into their schemes, nor permit his people to. Only once did he lead them to war, against your General Clark at Vincennes.

"Exiled and lonely, abandoning all hope of ever returning to France, or even civilization, my father finally, to increase his influence with the tribe, took for a wife a woman of the Wyandots. Although I was born of that union, yet I never saw my mother, who died when I was but a babe. I am told she was of fair complexion, but jet black hair and eyes, the daughter of a French trader and Indian mother, able to read and write. My father loved her, and taught her much that he had learned in early life. When she died he seemed to change, to lose interest in the past, to cease to dream longer of Europe. He became more fully a Wyandot. I was brought up in the camps of the tribe, living in their wigwams, sharing in their prosperity and adversity. I played with Indian children, and was cared for by Indian women. I must have been ten years old, monsieur, before I first realized that I was mainly of white blood, of another race. Yet when this knowledge came it brought with it sudden ambition."

Her eyes were upon the fire now, and her voice had lost its harshness. "I remember when I went to my father's grave, and made him tell me more of his own life and the life of my mother. What he said opened before me a fairland. I began to dream and hope. He taught me the French tongue, and all the scraps of learning his memory retained. He sent to Quebec for books, and we studied them together. When I was sixteen he sent me to Montreal, to the convent of the Ursulines, and I was there three years. Then—the Indian blood conquered, and I came back. The woods called me, and my father, besides," she made the sign of the cross, "God called me to the work I had to do."

"To my own people. No! I was of no order—what was that?" She arose to her feet listening.

BEQUEATH A BILLION

Demise of Vanderbilt and Others Breaks the Record.

Astor Estate Paid Largest Inheritance Tax Since Enactment of Law With the Sum of $3,150,000—Many Rich Men Die.

New York.—With the death recently of George W. Vanderbilt, George Westinghouse and John L. Cadwalader, officials in the state comptroller's office in this city began a tabulation of the wealth left by the large number of prominent New York men who have died since January 1, 1913. It is estimated that the total amount of wealth passed on to the next generation by the death of these men is more than one billion dollars.

The state comptroller at Albany reports that for the year ending last September the total amount of revenue collected by the state from the inheritance tax was $12,724,236.86. The sum to be collected from estates not yet appraised is believed to be much larger.

Never before in the history of this country, it is said, have so many men of wealth and power died in such a short period. Included in the list are such names as J. Pierpont Morgan, Anthony N. Brady, Benjamin Altman, Charles E. Appleby, George A. Hearn, Henry M. Flagler and Isaac V. Brokaw.

The tax on the Brady estate, paid recently in advance on appraisal to get a discount on the regular percentage, was $2,584,000, which was on an estimated valuation of $75,000,000. The Morgan estate has paid an advance tax of $2,500,000 on an estimated total valuation of $65,000,000, exclusive of works of art, which have been valued at more than $50,000,000. George W. Vanderbilt is supposed to have left $60,000,000. Attorneys for the estate are working on an estimate of the fortune to be made to the state comptroller.

The largest inheritance tax paid since the enactment of the law was that of $3,150,000 on the $75,000,000 estate of the late Col. John Jacob Astor. Previous to that the estate of John S. Kennedy, valued at $67,000,000, held the record.

Benjamin Altman, George A. Hearn, Isaac V. Brokaw and Isidor Straus, great merchants, are some of the men whose estates are being adjusted by the state comptroller. Mr. Altman left his art works, valued at $10,000,000, to the Metropolitan museum. His total estate is supposed to be worth $20,000,000.

Mr. Hearn, another noted art collector, left an estate of $10,000,000, besides a notable art collection. The estate of Isaac V. Brokaw is estimated at $5,000,000, and a valuation of $4,427,668 was placed on the estate of Isidor Straus. Henry Flagler left an estate of $6,000,000.

Other large estates settled in 1913 are those of D. O. Mills, who left about $10,000,000; Edwin Hawley, valued at $9,740,000, less debts of about $4,000,000, and James R. Keene, estimated at $20,000,000.

STILL FIND WITCHES

Woman Freed for Sorcery Recently in Pennsylvania.

"Hex" Doctor Shoots Wax Image to Relieve Pains Caused by Powers of the Evil Eye—Salt in a Lawyer's Bed.

New York.—A woman tried for witchcraft! We hold up our hands and wonder at the bigotry of those narrow-minded Puritans in Salem, Mass. Such a situation seems so remote from anything that would be possible today! So we are in the habit of saying, but it is not an impossibility.

Only a short time ago a woman was tried for witchcraft in a court of law in south Pennsylvania. That was not the name used in the charge that was brought against her, but that was the accusation that was lodged in the minds of every one who was interested in the case, which was tried in a region so thoroughly saturated with traditional superstition that not even the present prosperity and general education can destroy them. Technically the woman was convicted of obtaining money under false pretenses, but actually she was convicted of being a witch a "hex" doctor who "pow-wow'd."

In the home of a prominent lawyer in Camden county there is a hole in the post of a mahogany bedstead filled with salt which witnesses to his belief in witchcraft. At one time he prosecuted a case against an old woman who, when convicted and fined, left the court muttering incantations and vowing vengeance.

That night the lawyer was suddenly attacked with violent pains in the head. The curse had come upon him and he feared the wretched old woman, whom he believed to be responsible for it. Only witchcraft can drive out witchcraft. No doctor of medicine would do in such a case. A day laborer who was born with a caul over his face was brought in through the back door and taken to the bedroom of the suffering lawyer. The electric lights had been extinguished and a candle flickered at each side of the bed. Looking at the patient through the veil, which he wears is the identical one that he was born with, the "hex" doctor muttered his peculiar ritual, tied a rattlesnake around the sufferer's neck and bored the hole in the northeast leg of the bed, filling it with salt, over which he had chanted incantations. This done, he announced that the evil powers had notified the witch, who lived in a hut at some distance, that she could no longer hold dominion over the body of her enemy, the lawyer. The patient believed that his pains ceased from that hour.

A prosperous merchant in Carlisle permitted the body of his infant child to be covered with a coating of green paint in obedience to the orders of a "hex" doctor who had been called in to ward off the evil spirits. A stranger in Carlisle pretended that he had suffered from pain in the stomach which he believed to be due to the evil eye of an old woman of the town who was generally believed

Backache Warns You
Backache is one of Nature's warnings of kidney weakness. Kidney disease kills thousands every year.
Don't neglect a bad back. If your back is lame—if it hurts to stoop or lift—if there is irregularity of the secretions—suspect your kidneys. If you suffer headaches, dizziness and are tired, nervous and worn-out, you have further proof.
Use Doan's Kidney Pills, a fine remedy for bad backs and weak kidneys.
AN OHIO CASE
Francis M. Huffmas, 85 E. 14th St., Portsmouth, Ohio, says: "My back had given out completely and I had to use two canes to get around. It dropped out. I couldn't stoop to pick it up. My back was terribly lame and painful and by night I was laid up in bed. I lost hope, as it seemed that nothing could be done for me. I fortunately heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and before long they made me strong and well, so that I could work. I have remained cured."

After jerking loose from the negro, the horse galloped into Market street and appropriated the sidewalk.
At 2309 Market street Harry and Benjamin Yatkeman conduct a second hand clothing store. To display their goods to advantage a dummy, dressed as a John Drew, is placed on each side of the door, the latter being open in welcome to the prospective purchaser.
The horse discovered the store and evidently took a liking to the styles displayed. He entered the store. The singletree caught both doorway dummies and they fell to the pavement.
After invading the store the horse started for the rear, where the more advanced styles are kept. On the way an art cuspidor was in his way. Mr. Horse promptly put a foot down on it.
At the end of the store is a stairway leading to a fitting balcony. Toward this the horse headed, turning over several tables, chairs and other things. Meanwhile Harry Yatkeman had vacated the store. His brother, Ben, held the fort.
Then, after scrambling over a table, the horse took the stairs with a leap, landing halfway up, pawed with desperation a moment, slipped a step, then fell crashing to the floor, where he lay still.
The negro rushed in at this moment.
"Will you take $25 for the damage, boss?" he asked Ben. Ben thought hard for a moment.
"I've got an awful pain in my leg," Ben said. "I'll have to wait and talk it over with Harry."
The horse was then led out, once more in bondage, while the merchants started to tabulate the damages.

Most $5 Bills Are Not Jokes; This One Was
KANSAS CITY, MO.—A $5 bill is no joke nowadays; but a grocer over on the South side managed to derive considerable excitement from a phony $5 bill the other day. An enterprising wholesale firm got out a phony bill with its advertisement printed on it in fine letters. The South side grocer was presented with one and thrust it in his pocket that evening when he went home to dinner. His wife was reading the bargain page in the paper when he reached home and inquired into the state of the family exchequer.
"You never give me any money," she complained. "Surprise me once with a piece of money without my asking."
"Sure thing," said the grocer, and handed over the phony bill. It was examined—and exonerated in the same breath. Then the wife put it in a sugar bowl on the sideboard, where the maid found it later in the evening. The maid happened to need about that much so she appropriated it to her own uses.
Early the next morning she hurried down to a corner store and had the bill changed to five ones, which she adroitly concealed in her shoe, according to the latest ideas in the women detective stories she was reading at the time. About two hours later the missus was a trifle surprised to find an enraged storekeeper on her front step, holding her phony $5 bill in his hand and demanding his money back.
"I want those five ones," he howled. The maid discreetly retired to the kitchen and laced her shoe a little tighter.
"If you'd just explain," said the mistress, "maybe I'd have some idea of what all this is about."
"Your maid brought this $5 bill to my store this morning and said you wanted it changed to ones," sputtered the storekeeper. "I gave 'em to her, and less'n two hours afterward a man threatened to have me arrested for trying to pass a phony bill on him."
The maid was haled to the court of inquiry, and with many tears and sob's confessed to her unholly bunkering for five bucks. She unlaced the money, was fired on the spot and the incident closed.

Allow Them to Smoke at Women's Select Club
NEW YORK.—Just off Fifth avenue, in the wonderful new section of town which is growing up around the Grand Central terminal, is the Women's University club. At 106 East Forty-second street, to be precise, its nine new-stone stories loom up briskly. I was convoked thither by a Smith college alumna, writes our New York correspondent.
"Oh, dear me, how distressing!" she exclaimed at the entrance. I had thrown away about half of one of my favorite cigars. "You don't think we'd be as inhospitable as that?" she continued. "Men guests are always privileged to smoke here. We can, too, though few of the girls do."
So I lit up a fresh butt and we invaded the sacred precincts, leaving in our trail an odor of burning tobacco.
"Each section is furnished by a different college," explained Miss Smith. "We did the library on the third floor. Vassar the living room on the fourth floor, Bernard the reception room on the first floor, and the 'U' of Chicago the dressing room on the first floor. Wells gave the silver, and so on."
This was certainly a real club. But there was a different atmosphere than that of a man's menage. Everything was bright and sunny. The man's club is dull and somber. Here the furnishings were gay and warm, positively cheerful. It was not a place to while away a fit of the blues, but a place to forget them.
"I don't think this club will break up any homes," I observed sincerely. "That tired wife and mother ought to come back to father and the children with a new bundle of sunshine after an hour or two here."

Tells Court Why He Stole "Rags" for His Girl
DETROIT, MICH.—"Lawsee, but dat gal o' Dave Ross's was shush 'nuff dollod up—jes' lak chicken, boy, an' Dave done gabe 'er eb'ry one dem rags, too."
"Dave" Ross stole the five ladies' short coats—he freely admitted it when arraigned in police court before Justice Stein on the complaint of Caspar Kuschnski, who keeps a store on Gratiot avenue.
On the same charge, another person of the same hue was arraigned with "Dave"—Harry Williams, but "Dave" cleared Williams of all complicity in the theft and the latter was discharged.
"You-all admits dat you-all stole these clothes, do you, Dave?" asked Justice Stein.
"Yessuh, Ah admits it, all right, seein' as dey done got de goods on me," said Dave, with a grin. "But Ah was de only one, jedge."
"Stole them for your girl, did you, Dave?" asked the court.
"Yessuh," said Dave, honestly. "Yuh see, jedge, Ah jes' done had ter do it. She talked me, Lindy did, dat if Ah didn't dress 'er up lak de other swell queens paradin' de streets dat she'd leab me an' get another man. So Ah went out an'—well, yo' honoh, Ah's still got dat gal, anyhow."
Justice Stein found Dave guilty of the charge and suspended sentence.

DRYS WINNERS IN ELECTION

MOST POPULOUS COUNTIES ARE WON BY ANTI-SALOON FORCES.

CAPITOL OF STATE TO BE ARID

Each Side Loses Two Counties to Other—First Reports Indicate Eight Dry and Four Wet Victories.
Lansing—Incomplete returns from the twelve counties voting on the local option issue Monday indicate that the dries have won in eight and the wets in four by the following vote; counties voting dry:
County. Popula- Result tion Monday
Benzie 10,638 85 D.
Kalkaska 8,097 386 D.
Mecosta 19,466 450 D.
Midland 14,005 559 D.
Shiawassee 33,245 45 D.
Oscoda 2,027 116 D.
Ingham 63,310 700 D.
Roscommon 2,274 54 D.
Counties voting wet:
Arenac 9,640 158 W.
Clare 9,240 156 W.
Ogemaw 8,907 49 W.
Wexford 20,761 10 W.

Clare and Wexford were previously dry and Ingham and Roscommon wet. These four are the only counties to change status by reason of Monday's vote.
It is the most notable victory ever won by the dries in Michigan. They carried all the populous counties in the zone of contest. Ingham, including the capital of the state, now wet, goes dry by over 700 votes; Mecosta, the home of the governor, now dry, remains so by an increased majority; Wexford, including the city of Cadillac is close, but appears to be wet by 10 votes on the face of the returns give it to the wets by four majority with one precinct missing that in the last previous contest gave 54 dry majority.
The anti-saloon league claims Ingham county by 1569 and the wets at 10 o'clock Monday night conceded that it had probably gone dry by 700 majority.
Despite the blizzard and bad country roads, the farmer vote apparently rallied in force, as usual, to the dry cause. There were abundant charges of colonization from dry sources but only one arrest was made. This was in Mason in Ingham county where a wet worker was charged with offering a $2 bribe to a voter.
It was in Ingham that both sides put up their hardest fight. Ingham went wet two years ago by 456 after two years of dryness. Prohibition will outlaw upwards of 35 saloons in the county.
Early returns from Wexford county indicated that the city of Cadillac had gone wet by a bare 200 majority. This was received with dubious shakes of the head at wet headquarters, it being declared that Cadillac should have showed double this wet majority to make Wexford safe for license.

Other Results.
Early returns from out in the state indicate that the voting was light for all city offices in cities where the local option issue was not involved and in many places rain, which began early, kept the voters at home.
In Greenville a revision of the charter to include commission form of government was voted. St. Johns voted against a revision. In Hillsdale a proposition to build a good roads system appears to have lost.
With returns coming in slowly, the indications are in Washtenaw county that the state reward plan of good roads, adopted last spring, has been rescinded by a large majority.
Ionia voted to revise its charter.

Shiawassee Must Assess Again.
Corunna, Mich.—William R. Kennedy, deputy state tax examiner, who had been in the county two days, has notified the supervisors that assessments throughout the county will have to be boosted or the state tax commission will come in and boost the valuations.
Two deputy tax examiners were in the county several weeks ago and spent two weeks comparing property sales with the assessed valuation of adjoining property, and the order of Examiner Kennedy is a result of their findings.

Dark Bread Pudding.
Take dry bread enough to fill a two-quart pan two-thirds full of bread after it is soaked, one-half cup molasses, one cup of sugar (brown if you have it, white will do), one cup of chopped suet or fat pork, two eggs, a pint of milk, two cups of chopped raisins. You can put in all kinds of spice. I only put in nutmeg and clove, salt teaspoon. I bake mine all night. Wants to be baked slowly. It is fine.—Boston Globe.
India Curried Eggs.
Cut hard-boiled eggs in halves; then fry one small chopped onion and one chopped apple in hot butter; add one-fourth cup of pounded almonds and one pint of milk, mixed with one-half tablespoonful of cornstarch. Season with salt and a dessert spoonful of curry powder. Let cook ten minutes; then add the eggs. Let it get very hot. Serve with cucumbers; garnish with fried parsley.—The Mother's Magazine.

Man Outfles the Birds.
Compared with an aeroplane ascent of 15,000 feet, the common birds are mere groundlings, for generally they fly at no greater height than 300 feet. When migrating, however, they mount higher, though even then the wild goose (the loftiest of them) seldom reaches 2,000 feet. The highest flier in the world is the great condor, which sometimes rises five miles.
Sparrows Don't Like Oil.
To keep sparrows from roosting or nesting stuff the places with sags dipped in kerosene. In a day or two they will give up the places.
Daily Thought.
The first hour of the morning is the ruler of the day.—Henry Ward Beecher.
Ostriches, Please Note.
"They say that when an ostrich is surprised he hides his head in the sand." "I wish he'd hide his tail there!" remarked a man who had just settled his wife's millinery bill.

TO RID FOODS OF POISONS

Deleterious Substances May Be Removed if One Will Take a Little Pains With the Work.

To cook cranberries as they are brought from the market is to meet a keen disappointment in a delicate berry which many persons do not enjoy because its wild flavor is unpleasant to the taste. Clean the berries, place them in a pan with sufficient water to cover them, and add a half teaspoon of soda. Boil the berries in the soda water until you hear them bursting. Drain the water from them. It will be found a greenish black. Rinse them in cold water, then cook with the sugar. It removes the tang and less sugar is needed to sweeten them if cooked in this way. The same method has been used successfully in cooking soup beans, from which the greenish water removes a poisonous substance, makes the bean clear and white when cooked and they cook in less time, too. Others have used soda water for cooking rice for a few minutes to remove the artificial glaze which is a coating of talcum, and a glue-like substance in which pure rice is immersed before it is ready for market.

COFFEE SERVED IN ORANGES

Idea Is From New Orleans, Where They Claim to Make the Best Beverage in America.
A young hostess recently pleased her dinner guests with a new way of serving after-dinner coffee, which she said was learned at a famous New Orleans cafe.
The entire rind of an orange is used as a cup. It is cut with a sharp knife, and the lower half is turned back to form a standard for the upper half, which is the cup. The orange remains between the two and unites them.
The cups are filled with boiling hot black coffee and sweetened by a lump of sugar dipped in cognac. A match applied to each cup before serving ignites the brandy and the flame so produced is aided by the oil of the orange rind, so that a charming effect is produced by a tray of these brightly burning cups. Each orange is placed on a small plate or saucer.

Mock Turtle Soup.
Boll a calf's head until the meat leaves the bones. Leave it in the seasoned soup until the next day, then take it out, scrape off the fat and remove the bones. Put in the jellied stock over the fire with the bones; the ears, chopped; one grated carrot, one sliced onion, a bunch of soup herbs, a teaspoonful of allspice, a saltspoonful of paprika and salt to taste. Boll for one hour. Take from the fire, strain, thicken with two tablespoonfuls of butter rolled in as much browned flour; add two tablespoonfuls of kitchen bouquet, and, when the soup is thickened, drop in the tongue and parts of the cheek cut into dice. Add a gill of sherry and the juice of a lemon, and pour upon forcemeat balls in a hot tureen. Make the forcemeat balls by rubbing the brains to a paste with a hard-boiled egg, a little browned flour and the yolk of a raw egg. Roll them in browned flour and let them stand in a quick oven until lightly crusted over.

Cabbage or Salad Dressing.
Melt in a double boiler one generous tablespoonful of butter. Add to it one tablespoonful of flour, one teaspoonful of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of made mustard, three dashes of paprika, one-quarter teaspoonful of salt, white pepper to taste. When these are well blended add slowly, stirring constantly to avoid lumps, one-half pint of boiling water and three drops of Worcestershire sauce. Continue stirring until thick. Cook five minutes; if too thick put in a little more water. Should the dressing be for cold slaw pour it while hot over finely shredded cabbage, if for salads use when cold.

Vegetable Ragout.
Put one cup each sliced turnips, potatoes and carrots into boiling water. Cook till tender. Melt two tablespoons of butter in another pan, stir into it one-half cup of minced onion and fry brown. Add two tablespoons browned flour and gradually one pint of hot water. When smooth turn contents of saucepan into it, season to taste with salt and pepper, cook slowly 30 minutes, dish and serve. Just before sending to table sprinkle a tablespoon of minced parsley over.

He Was Lucky

Early last Saturday evening when coming to town from his home in Livonia, Matt Miller had the misfortune to lose his pocket-book containing $170. He discovered his loss soon after reaching town, and believing that his pocket had been picked, placed the case in Marshal Springer's hands. While standing on the walk in front of his home last Sunday morning, Myron Willett noticed a small object lying in the road, beside the wagon track, partially covered by the light fall of snow the previous evening. Upon investigation he found it to be the lost pocket-book containing the money, and a slip of paper bearing Mr. Miller's name was an easy means of identification. Mr. Willett notified Mr. Miller and the pocket-book and contents were soon restored to the rightful owner.

Home Product Gaining Wide Reputation

Plymouth not only has a world wide fame as an air gun town, but there is another product manufactured here that is also gaining a wide spread reputation for its goodness and quality. Wilcox Bros. received an order last week from the Raymond hotel at Pasadena, Cal., to ship some of their famous buckwheat flour to two parties in Buffalo, N. Y. These two parties had been guests at the Raymond hotel, who are large users of the buckwheat flour made at the Plymouth mill, and were so much pleased with the goodness of the buckwheat, cakes served on the tables of this great hostelry, that on their return home they wrote the management to order some of the flour sent to them. This speaks highly for the quality of the product made at the Plymouth mill.

Make Your Money Earn Good Profit. Why will you let your money lie in bank at 3 or 4 per cent when you can build houses in Royal Oak and rent or sell them at a big profit? Five hundred houses are needed at once. The Royal Oak real estate agencies are swamped with applicants for homes—and there is not a vacant house, new or old, to be had in town. Out of 300 residents interviewed, 150 own their own homes. Many Ford auto factory employees already live in Royal Oak, and hundreds want to make homes there because of the short quick ride from the factory to the village. Those Ford men who live in Detroit must spend 30 minutes or more to get from the factory to their homes. But those who live in Royal Oak can get home in ten minutes. Hence the big rush to Royal Oak. Think what splendid tenants 15,000 Ford employees making $5 or more a day will make—and bring your money to Royal Oak right now for investment.
