EASTER---DAY OF HOPE

Associated with Easter—Flowers, music, rejoicing.

WHY?

Because we are glad for this day that gives us hope for meeting those who have preceded us to that "undiscovered country from whose bourne no traveller returns." This day we keep sacred to the Redeemer, who broke death's power and assures us of a resurrection. "In my Father's house are many mansions. I go to prepare a place for you and if I go to prepare a place for you I will come again and receive you unto myself, that, where I am there ye may be, also."

Because it breathes for us a freer, fairer, fuller life even now. For this Jesus who brought immortality to light, also brought life. He said: "I am come that they might have life, and might have it more abundantly." Through Him we are born into newness of life even here and now.

A Carnegie Library Mass Meeting

The sentiment in favor of a Carnegie library for Plymouth has been growing to such an extent, that it has been deemed advisable to call a public meeting, to talk the matter over and perfect some kind of an organization that will get busy and go after this worthy project in real earnest. The meeting has been called for next Wednesday evening, April 7, at 7:30 o'clock in the parlors of the Presbyterian church. Every citizen in the village and township of Plymouth is invited and urged to attend this meeting, at which time a full explanation of what we will have to do in order to get a Carnegie library will be presented. Those who have interested themselves in the matter will also have information from several towns where Carnegie libraries have been established as to cost of maintenance, etc. The idea of establishing a Carnegie library in Plymouth is a matter that should appeal to every citizen in both village and township, and be given their hearty support and encouragement. Almost every town in which there is a spirit of progression and a desire for higher ideals are maintaining them today. Remember this meeting is not only for people of the village, but those of the township as well. The ladies are especially invited to attend.

Vom Schauplatz des europäischen Krieges

Auf der ganzen Linie, die auf russischem Gebiete parallel mit der Südgrenze von Ostpreußen läuft, ist die Lage die gleiche geblieben. Am jedes Dorf wird heftig gekämpft, und an den Uebergängen der das Schlachtfeld durchlaufenden Flüsse, der Vistula und des Drage, spielen sich hartnäckige Kämpfe ab, die bisher keine Seite einen entscheidenden Erfolg gebracht haben.

Die Lage im Westen.

Die Kämpfe bei Neu Chapelle und St. Eloi in Flandern nehmen infolge noch immer die Hauptrolle in den Nachrichten von westlichen Kriegsschauplätzen ein, als nun allmählich die furchtbaren Verluste der Engländer in diesen Kämpfen bekannt werden. Die Londoner Times gibt an, daß die Briten innerhalb zehn Tagen 12,000 Mann an Toten, Verwundeten und Vermissten verloren. Die Zahl ist zum mindesten sehr konservativ, da der amtlich von England veröffentlichte Verlust von 508 Offizieren auf einen Gesamtverlust von lediglich nicht weniger als 15,000 Mann schließen läßt.

In der Champagne.

Auf den Blutgetränkten Feldern des französischen Schampannegebietes sind die Kämpfe noch keineswegs zum Abschluß gekommen. Bei Le Mesnil u. Vesvieux kämpfen die Besatzer ohne Unterbrechung, aber trotz der fast übermenschlichen Anstrengungen der Franzosen, deren Ausdauer unbändige Anerkennung erheischt, bleiben die deutschen Linien unüberdrossen, und an verschiedenen Stellen, wie a. B. nordwestlich von Vesvieux, gelang es den deutschen Truppen sogar, einige französische Gräben zu nehmen. Die im englischen Zusammenhänge mit diesen Kämpfen in den Argonnen stattfindenden Operationen haben gleichfalls keine Unterbrechung erfahren. Jour de Paris und Raquois sind nach wie vor der Brennpunkt dieser Dauerkämpfe in den Argonnen, deren Zweck beiderseitig die Isolierung Verduns im Nordwesten und Westen ist.

Die Kämpfe im Osten.

Wit nicht minder bewundernswürdiger Ausdauer, die sie in den Argonnenkämpfen bewiesen, hängen die Russen in den Argonnen an ihren Anfang des Krieges eigenemommenen Stellungen an dem Darnumskweilerkopf, nordwestlich von Baitweiler, und dem Amickopf, östlich von Steinbach. Die Tatsache, daß die Franzosen die Gipfel dieser Höhen besetzt halten, macht es den Deutschen unmöglich, sich in den Dörfern Baitweiler und Steinbach, die beide im Bereich des französischen Feuers liegen, zu halten. Bezeichnend ist es jedoch, daß die Franzosen es seit Monaten nicht mehr gemacht haben, von den Höhen zu steigen und es zur offenen Feldschlacht mit den Deutschen kommen zu lassen. Solche Verhüte sind in den ersten Monaten des Krieges noch immer verhängnisvoll für die Franzosen geblieben. Kälthäuten und Colmar schweben deshalb auch nicht in der geringsten Gefahr, wie denn die Lage in den Argonnen überhaupt zu ernstlichen Befürchtungen keine Veranlassung bietet.

Deutschland hat Vorkriegsstand an Geld für Kriegszwecke.

Berlin, 2. April. Die Besetzung des Reichsbudgets durch den Reichstag verleiht dem Reichsbankpräsidenten die Befugnis, auf die zweite Kriegsanleihe die ersten sechs Milliarden zu begeben. Die Besetzung des Reichsbudgets durch den Reichstag verleiht dem Reichsbankpräsidenten die Befugnis, auf die zweite Kriegsanleihe die ersten sechs Milliarden zu begeben.

Nicht genügend Schiffe vorhanden.

New York. Noch niemals ist im Hafen von New York soviel Fracht nach England und Frankreich verladen worden als jetzt. Allein an den Gelfsee Piers liegen ein Dutzend oder mehr große Dampfer, die Tag und Nacht beladen werden und trotzdem geht in Schiffsfahrtskreisen die Klage, daß man nicht genügend Schiffe habe, um alles von den Alliierten hier bestellte Kriegsmaterial, denn nur ein solches und um Nahrungsmittel handels es sich, befördern zu können. Eisher ist jedenfalls, daß sich die amerikanischen Fabriken, welche sich mit der Geschloß- und Waffenfabrikation befassen, bei dieser Art von Neutralität glänzend stellen und sie haben noch nie so gute Geschäfte gemacht, als jetzt.

So wird aus Bridgeport, Conn., berichtet, daß die dortige Metall-Zubehörfabrik Aufträge zum Werte von $30,000,000 von den Alliierten erhalten hat.

Was in Bridgeport an Metall-Fabriken vorhanden ist, und es sind über mehr als 300, fertigt Kriegsmaterial für die Feinde Deutschlands und Österreich-Ungarns an. Die Bridgeport Brass Co., welche sich bisher niemals mit der Fabrikation von Munition befaßt, hat sich auf die Anfertigung von Maschinen-Gehäusepatronen verlegt und arbeitet an einem Auftrage von 50,000,000 Patronen und macht nicht Munition, Gewehre oder Bajonette fabriziert, stellt Rekrutentente für Fracht-Autos her, die gleichfalls für England und Frankreich bestimmt sind.

Fabrikanten die wirklich Neutral geblieben sind.

Die Zahl der Fabrikanten in unserem Lande, die sich geweigert haben, Waffen und Munition herzustellen für die verbündeten Engländer, Franzosen und Russen, ist gar nicht so klein. Aus den verschiedensten Kreisen meldet man solche Fälle. So erit dieser Lage aus Davenport, Iowa, den Bericht der Davenport Locomotive Works auf eine Weigerung zur Lieferung von Teilen für Schraubenlokomotiven in großen Mengen. Der Präsident dieser Gesellschaft erklärte ausdrücklich, daß man nicht geneigt sei, durch Annahme des Auftrags die Deutsch-Amerikaner vor den Kopf zu stoßen.

Der Davenport Demofrat schreibt:

Die Davenport Locomotive Works sind mit allem Material, das für die Weltstellung verwendet werden müßte, wohl versehen und hätten die Befähigung sofort in Angriff nehmen können. Präsident Johnson und die anderen Beamten der Gesellschaft haben durch diese Abgabe bewiesen, daß sie wahre Freunde des Deutsch-Amerikanertums sind, und in dieser schmerzlichen Zeit, da das Deutsch-Amerikanertum von vielen Seiten bedrängt wird und von Stürmen umdrungen ist, sind wir für jedes Wort der Anerkennung doppelt dankbar und für jede freundliche Tat doppelt erfreulich. Es gibt in Davenport und Scott County keine Deutsch-Amerikaner, den diese Abgabe der Davenport Locomotive Works nicht mit aufrichtiger und herzlichster Freude erfüllt hätte.

Deutsche Reichsbank hat großen Goldvorrat.

Die Engländer und auch die Anglo-Amerikaner können nicht verstehen, wie es möglich ist, daß der deutschen Reichsbank immer noch mehr Gold zugeführt wird, trotzdem so gut wie gar kein Gold von auswärts in's Reich hineinkommt. Die Lösung des Rätsels ist sehr einfach. Die Deutschen sind, sozusagen, ein „hartgedrückt“ Volk. Im Gegensatz zu den Amerikanern lieben sie das Papiergeld nicht sehr. In Folge dessen haben sie die Mittel der Reichsbank durch die Regierungsbekanntmachung der Banken, die Weisheit, die Lehrer und die Presse nach und nach zum Vorhanden. Viele Gelehrte, Lehrer und auch patriotische Privatpersonen machen es sich ansehnlich, in ihrem Wirkungskreise und Bekanntheit Gold zusammen für die Reichsbank, das heißt, es gegen Banknoten einzutauschen. Auch etliche Bekanntheit der Reichsbank. So trat die „Reichsische Volkszeitung“ der Reichsbank bis Mitte Februar 1914 4 1/2 Millionen Reich Gold zugeführt, die „Brandenburger Anzeigerzeitung“ 1 1/2 und das „Völkische Tageblatt“ 1 Million.

Belgien verlor ein Auge auf Luxemburg.

Berlin, 2. April. Die Freigabe des Großherzogtums Luxemburg, darunter die hochoffizielle luxemburgische Zeitung, ist einträufel über ein belgisches Ministerhandverwehle, der in London erklärte, daß Belgien sich beim Friedensschluß in den Besitz Luxemburgs setzen müsse. In Luxemburg ist man sich einig darüber, daß Belgien sich schon seit vielen Jahren mit dieser Abgabe trug, obwohl Belgien erst jetzt an's Tageslicht kam.

PARROT & CO HAROLD MACGRATH Author of The Carpet from Bagdad, The Place of Honeymoons, etc.

Warrington, an American adventurer, and James, his servant, with a cargo of opium, the two know up and down the Irrawaddy as Parrot & Co. travel along the road to the landing, bound for Rangoon to catch a draft for $20,000 rupees. Eliza Chetwood, rich American girl tourist, sees Warrington come aboard the boat at the landing.

CHAPTER II—Continued. He eyed her, mildly surprised. "Oh, he puzzles us all a bit, you know. Well educated; somewhere back a gentleman; from the States. Of course I don't know; something shady, probably. They don't tramp about like this otherwise. For all that, he's rather a decent sort; no bouncer like this rotter we left at Mandalay. He never talks about himself. I fancy he's love-some again."

"Loneliness?" "It's the way, you know. These poor beggars drop aboard for the night, merely to see a white woman again, to hear decent English, to dress and dine like a human being. They disappear the next day, and often we never see them again."

"What do they do?" The question came to her lips mechanically. "Paddy-fields. White men are needed to oversee them. And then, there's the railway, and there's the new oil country north of Prome. You'll see the wells tomorrow. Rather fancy this Warrington chap has been working along the new pipe line. They're running them down to Rangoon. If he's with us tomorrow, I'll have him put the parrot through its turns. An amusing little beggar."

"Why not introduce him to me?" "Beg pardon?" "I'll take it all the responsibility. It's a whim."

"Well, you American girls are the eighth wonder of the world." The pursuer was distinctly annoyed. "And it may be an impertinence on my part, but I never yet saw an American woman who would accept advice or act upon it."

"Thanks. What would you advise?" with dangerous sweetness. "Not to meet this man. It's irregular. I know nothing about him. If you had a father or a brother on board."

"Or even a husband?" laughing. "There you are!" resignedly. "You laugh. You women go everywhere, and half the time unprotected."

"Never quite unprotected. We never venture beyond the call of gentlemen."

"That is true," brightening. "You insist on meeting this chap?" "I do not insist; only, I am bored, and he might interest me for an hour."

She added: "Besides, he may annoy the others."

The pursuer grinned reluctantly. "You and the colonel don't get on. Well, I'll introduce, this chap at dinner. If I don't."

"I am fully capable of speaking to him without any introduction whatever." She laughed again. "It will be very kind of you."

When he had gone she mused over this impulse so alien to her character. An absolute stranger, a man with a past, perhaps a fugitive from justice; and because he looked like Arthur Ellison, she was seeking his acquaintance. Something, then, could break through her reserve and aloofness? She had traveled from San Francisco to Colombo, unattended save by an elderly maiden who had risen by gradual stages from nurse to companion, but who could not be made to remember that she was no longer a nurse. In all these four months Eliza had not made half a dozen acquaintances, and of these she had not sought one. Yet, she was asking to meet a stranger who, so only recommendation was a singular likeness to another man. The pursuer was right. It was very irregular.

"Parrot & Co.," she murmured. She searched among the phantoms moving to and fro upon the ledge; but the man with the cage was gone. It was really uncanny.

Eliza Chetwood was twenty-five, lithely built, outwardly reposeful, but dynamic within. Education, environment and breeding had somewhat smothered the glowing fires. She was a type of the ancient repression of woman, which finds its exceptions in the Aspasia and Helens and Cleopatras of legend and history. In features she looked exactly what she was, well-bred and well-born. Beauty she also had, but it was the cold beauty of northern winter nights. It compelled admiration rather than invited it. Spiritually, Eliza was asleep. The fire was there, the gift of loving greatly, only it smoldered, without radiating even the knowledge of its presence. Men loved her, but in awe, as one loves the marble of Phidias. She knew no restraint, and yet, she had passed through her sterner years restrained. Her independence was inherent and not acquired. She had laid down certain laws for herself to follow; and that these often clashed with the laws of convention, which are fetters to those who divide society into three classes, only mildly amused her. Right from wrong she knew, and that sufficed her.

Her immediate relatives were dead; those who were distantly related remained so, as they had no part in her life nor she in theirs. From her father she had inherited a remarkable and seldom errant judgment. To her, faces were generally book covers, they revealed or attracted; and she found large and undiminished interest in the faculty of pressing back the covers and reading the text. Often battered covers held treasures, and often the editions of laws were swindlers. But in between the battered covers and the exquisite floridness of the text, she found a ring of truth.

When Eliza learned that the man at her side was to proceed to Rangoon, she ceased to ask him any more questions. She preferred to read her books slowly. Once, while he was engaged the pursuer, her glance ran over his clothes. She instantly berated her impulsive criticism as a bit of downright childishness. The lapses of the coat were shabby; the winged collar gave evidence of having gone to the native laundry once too often, and the cuff buttons were of ordinary, rapeseed-alive. The impossible suggested that stranger, the likeness, so close at hand, started a ringing in her ears and a flutter in her throat. It was almost unbelievable. He was bigger broader, his eyes were keener, but there was only one real difference: this man was rugged, whereas Arthur was elegant. It was as if nature had taken two forms from the same mold, and had finished but one of them. His voice was not unpleasant, but there were little sharp points of harshness in it, due quite possibly to the dust.

"I am much interested in that little parrot of yours. I have heard about it."

"Oh! I suppose you've heard what they call us?" His eyes looked straight into hers, smiling.

"Parrot & Co.?" Yes. Will you show him off tomorrow?" "I shall be very happy to."

But all the while he was puzzling over the pursuer's unaccountable action in deliberately introducing him to this brown-eyed, golden-skinned young woman. Never before had such a thing occurred upon these boats. True, he had occasionally been spoken to; an idle question flung at him, like a bare bone to a dog. If sung by an Englishman, he answered, it courted, and he smiled. He had been snubbed too many times not to have learned this lesson. It never entered his head that the introduction might have been brought about by the girl's interest. He was too mortally shy of women to conceive of such a possibility. So his gratitude was extended to the pursuer, who, on his side, regretted his good-natured recommendations of the previous hour.

When Eliza learned that the man at her side was to proceed to Rangoon, she ceased to ask him any more questions. She preferred to read her books slowly. Once, while he was engaged the pursuer, her glance ran over his clothes. She instantly berated her impulsive criticism as a bit of downright childishness. The lapses of the coat were shabby; the winged collar gave evidence of having gone to the native laundry once too often, and the cuff buttons were of ordinary, rapeseed-alive. The impossible suggested that since the purchase of these habits of civilization the man had grown, expanded. Immediately after dinner she retired to her stateroom, conscious that her balance needed readjusting. She had heard and read much lore concerning reincarnation, skeptically; yet here, within call of her voice, was Arthur, not the shadow of a substance, but Arthur, shorn of his elegance, his soft, lazy voice, his half-dreaming eyes, his charming indolence. Why should this man's path cross hers, out of all the millions that ran parallel?

She opened her window and looked up at the stars again. She wondered what this man had done to put him beyond the pale. It was not possible that dishonor lurked behind those frank blue eyes. She turned from the window and threw open one of her kit-bags, delved among the soft fabrics and silks and produced a photograph. She had not glanced at it during all these weeks. There had been a purpose back of this apparent neglect. The very thing she dreaded happened. Her pulse beat on, evenly, untroubled. She was a failure.

In the photograph the man's beard was trimmed Valois; the beard of the man who had sat next to her at dinner had grown freely and naturally, full. Such a beard was out of fashion, save among country doctors. It signified carelessness, indifference, or a full life wherein the niceties of the razor had of necessity been ignored. Keenly she searched the familiar likeness. What an amazing freak of nature! It was unreal. She tossed the photograph back into the kit-bag, bewildered, uneasy.

Meantime Warrington followed the pursuer into his office. "I haven't paid for my stateroom yet," he said. "I'll make it out at once. Rangoon, I understand?" "Yes. But I'm in a difficulty. I have nothing in change but two rupees."

here, I was to tell it to you instantly. And this one is just ripplin'!" "Begin," said Eliza. She sat up and threw back her cloak, for it was now growing warm. "It's about Parrot & Co., I'm sure."

"It's better than any story you've read in a month of Sundays. Our man has just turned the trick, as you Americans say, for twenty thousand pounds."

"Why, that is a fortune!" "For some of us, yes. You see, whatever he was in the past, it was something worth while, I fancy. Engineering, possibly. Knew his geology and all that. Been wondering for months what kept him hanging around this bally old river. Seems he found oil, borrowed the savings of his servant and bought up some land on the line of the new discoveries. Then he waited for the syndicate to buy. They ignored him. They didn't send any one even to investigate his claim. Stupid, rather. After a while, he went to them, at Prome, at Rangoon. They thought they knew his kind. Ten thousand rupees was all he asked. They laughed. The next time he wanted a hundred thousand. They laughed again. Then he left for the teak forests. He had to live. He came back in four months. In the meanwhile they had secretly investigated. They offered him fifty thousand. He laughed. He wanted two hundred thousand. They advised him to raise coconuts. What do you suppose he did them?"

"Got some other persons interested." "Right! Some Americans in Rangoon said they'd take it over for two hundred thousand. Something about the deal got into the newspapers. The American oil men sent over a representative. That settled the syndicate. What they could have originally purchased for ten thousand they paid three hundred thousand."

"Splendid!" cried Eliza, clapping her hands. She could see it all, the quiet determination of the man, the peanery of the lean years, his belief in himself and in what he had fought, and the disinterested loyalty of the servant.

"Sometimes I wish I were a man and could do things like that." "Recollect that landing last night?" "Eliza's gesture signified that she was glad to be miles to the south of it. (TO BE CONTINUED.)"

CHAPTER III. The Weak Link. The day began white and chill, for February nights and mornings are not particularly comfortable on the Irrawaddy. The boat sped down the river, smoothly and noiselessly. For all that the sun shone, the shorelines were still black. There were a hundred or more natives squatting in groups on the deck. They were wrapped in ragged shawls, cotton rugs of many colors, and woolen blankets, and their turbans were as bright and colorful as a Holland tulip-bed. Some of them were smoking long pipes and using their fists as mouthpieces; others were scrubbing their teeth with short sticks of fibrous wood; and still others were eating rice and curry out of little brown copper pots. There were very few Burmese among them. The few were Hindus from central and southern India, with a scattering of Cingalese. Whenever a Hindu gets together a few rupees, he travels. The past is the past, tomorrow is tomorrow, but today is today; he lives and works and travels, prisoner to this creed.

Eliza never strolled among them. She was dainty. She stood framed in the doorway, a picture rare indeed to the dark eyes that sped their frank glances in her direction.

Upon a bench, backed against the partition, almost within touch of her hand, sat the man Warrington and his servant, arguing over their accounts. The former's battered helmet was tilted at a comfortable angle and an ancient cutty hung pendant from his teeth, an idle wisp of smoke hovering over the blackened bowl.

Eliza quietly returned to her chair in the bow and tried to become interested in a novel. By and by the book slipped from her fingers to her lap, and her eyes closed. But not for long. She heard the rasp of a camp-stool being drawn toward her.

"Shedn't have disturbed you," said the pursuer, apologetically. "But your orders were that whenever I had an interesting story about the life over

Upon a bench, backed against the partition, almost within touch of her hand, sat the man Warrington and his servant, arguing over their accounts. The former's battered helmet was tilted at a comfortable angle and an ancient cutty hung pendant from his teeth, an idle wisp of smoke hovering over the blackened bowl.

Eliza quietly returned to her chair in the bow and tried to become interested in a novel. By and by the book slipped from her fingers to her lap, and her eyes closed. But not for long. She heard the rasp of a camp-stool being drawn toward her.

"Shedn't have disturbed you," said the pursuer, apologetically. "But your orders were that whenever I had an interesting story about the life over

meanwhile they had secretly investigated. They offered him fifty thousand. He laughed. He wanted two hundred thousand. They advised him to raise coconuts. What do you suppose he did them?"

"Got some other persons interested." "Right! Some Americans in Rangoon said they'd take it over for two hundred thousand. Something about the deal got into the newspapers. The American oil men sent over a representative. That settled the syndicate. What they could have originally purchased for ten thousand they paid three hundred thousand."

"Splendid!" cried Eliza, clapping her hands. She could see it all, the quiet determination of the man, the peanery of the lean years, his belief in himself and in what he had fought, and the disinterested loyalty of the servant.

"Sometimes I wish I were a man and could do things like that." "Recollect that landing last night?" "Eliza's gesture signified that she was glad to be miles to the south of it. (TO BE CONTINUED.)"

CHAPTER III. The Weak Link. The day began white and chill, for February nights and mornings are not particularly comfortable on the Irrawaddy. The boat sped down the river, smoothly and noiselessly. For all that the sun shone, the shorelines were still black. There were a hundred or more natives squatting in groups on the deck. They were wrapped in ragged shawls, cotton rugs of many colors, and woolen blankets, and their turbans were as bright and colorful as a Holland tulip-bed. Some of them were smoking long pipes and using their fists as mouthpieces; others were scrubbing their teeth with short sticks of fibrous wood; and still others were eating rice and curry out of little brown copper pots. There were very few Burmese among them. The few were Hindus from central and southern India, with a scattering of Cingalese. Whenever a Hindu gets together a few rupees, he travels. The past is the past, tomorrow is tomorrow, but today is today; he lives and works and travels, prisoner to this creed.

MRS. WILLIAMS' LONG SICKNESS Yields To Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound.

Elkhart, Ind.—"I suffered for fourteen years from organic inflammation, female weakness, pain and irregularities. The pains in my sides were increased by walking or standing on my feet and I had such awful bearing down feelings, was depressed in spirits and became thin and pale with dull, heavy eyes. I had six doctors from whom I received only temporary relief. I decided to give Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial and also the Sensitive Wash. I have now used the remedies for four months and cannot express my thanks for what they have done for me."

"If these lines will be of any benefit you have my permission to publish them."—Mrs. SARAH WILLIAMS, 455 James Street, Elkhart, Indiana.

Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound, made from natural roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Finkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Finkham, Medicine Co., (considered) 175 West 17th St., New York, N. Y. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

VILLA AND THE MEXICAN UPLIFT

IS FIGHTING TO GIVE THE POOR PEOPLE A CHANCE TO LIVE.

VILLA NEVER WENT TO SCHOOL

Has Done Everything for the American People Living in Mexico; All He Asks They Obey the Law.

Monterey, Mex.—"Pancho" Villa, the man whose list of applied names ranges from "bandit" and "murderer" to the "George Washington of Mexico," is also a prohibitionist. He neither drinks nor smokes.

General Paul Madero arranged for an interview with General Villa in the latter's private car here in the railroad yards. General Madero introduced me, and interpreted.

"I never talk about plans," replied General Villa. "I never say what I am going to do. My fight is simply the fight of the poor people for a chance to live. We want conditions under which children can be educated and brought up to be intelligent citizens."

"I know I am not educated, but education is not everything. Education and civilization takes away from men a few things which books and learning fail to put into them. I don't think that it is a little education that is bad, but rather it is too much education that is of harm. Too much education usually makes for the exploitation of too much ignorance. One extreme takes advantage of the other."

"The Americans have no fight with the Mexican people. We are all human beings just trying to live. It is the interests of capital that are here in Mexico that are trying to stir up the trouble between two people who have nothing against one another. In case of intervention it is not the men behind the interests that will come here to catch bullets but poor people who have no fight with us Mexicans."

"I have done all that I could for the Americans in Mexico. I have given them special trains and guards and free use of the telegraph and all the accommodations in my power during times when they felt they were in danger. I will continue to do so. All that is asked of the foreigners in Mexico is that they obey the laws and don't try to take everything out of the country without leaving something behind."

"About peace, I can say only that I hope it will be soon. I prefer not to say what I will do and let what I do speak for itself."

U. S. TO GUARD BROWNSVILLE

Three Batteries of Artillery to Proceed to the Border.

Washington—The war department ordered three batteries of artillery to proceed from Fort Sam Houston, at San Antonio, Tex., to Brownsville, for duty in protecting the American city from danger growing out of the artillery battle between Villistas and Carranzistas across the river.

At the same time one regiment of infantry was ordered held in readiness at Texas City, Tex., fully equipped and ready to proceed to Brownsville at a moment's notice.

This action by the war department followed a dispatch from Major-General Funston, in command of the United States forces on the Mexican border, in which he said the situation was serious and that the use of United States troops might be necessary. Fifteen minutes earlier, Secretary of State Bryan had announced the receipt of assurances from both Villistas and Carranzistas that their fighting would not be permitted to endanger Americans on this side of the border.

A dispatch to the state department says when the Villa forces retired at Matamoros, they left 200 dead and 170 wounded and 600 horses on the field after a fight that lasted four hours and a half. The Carranza losses were given as eight killed and 36 wounded.

IMMENSE QUANTITY OF WHEAT TIED UP

There Will Still, However, Be a Heavy Deficit of the World's Normal Crop.

A grain expert who has been watching the grain markets and the world's grain fields for a number of years, says: "There is at the present time about two billion bushels of wheat, the production of the countries at war, tied up. This is about one-half the world's total production of wheat, which is four billion bushels. One writer argues that, granting that the warring nations produce a one-half crop in the coming year, a deficit of one billion bushels will still be shown. The three countries upon which the filling of this deficit of one billion bushels will rest are the United States, Canada, and Argentina. The combined output of these three countries is only 1,249,000,000, their exportable surplus would of course be much less, so it can easily be seen that the question is not one to be easily solved and it behooves all the above countries to increase their respective productions as much as they possibly can, for when the war is over and trade begins to re-establish itself and the nations undergo a process of rehabilitation, the demand for all breadstuffs will be enormous."

"During the three years following the declaration of peace the farmers of all neutral wheat-producing countries will have ample opportunity to market their wheat at good prices, and it may safely be assumed that the demand will be heavy. Canada has an unusual opportunity in that she has the natural environment for wheat production; she is under the protection of the British flag, and she will not be molested upon the water to her any great extent; she can increase her acreage and greatly enhance her production. In other words, she can become a far greater wheat-producing country than she is at the present time."

If the summing-up as made by this expert be correct, is there not the very best reason for the continued effort that is being made by the Government of the Dominion of Canada to secure settlers on the productive vacant lands of the country? Not only are these lands capable of producing high class wheat in large quantities, but cattle, pigs, sheep and horses also do well. The climate is admirably suited.

Canada is Calling You to her Rich Wheat Lands

She extends to Americans a hearty invitation to settle on her FREE Homestead lands of 160 acres each or secure some of the low priced lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

This year wheat is higher but Canadian land just as cheap, so the opportunity is more attractive than ever. Canada wants you to help to feed the world by filling some of her soil—land similar to that which during many years has averaged 20 to 40 bushels of wheat to the acre. Think what you can make with wheat around $1 a bushel and land so easy to get. Wonderful yields plus of Oats, Barley and Flax. Mixed farming is fully as profitable as industry or stock raising.

The Government this year is asking farmers to put increased emphasis on grain. Military service is not open to young men who have volunteered for service. Some curious facts about the effects of the wind, temperature, moisture and composition of the atmosphere on the way sound waves travel through the air and reach our ears have been brought to light by some investigations which Dr. H. Batesman, a famous meteorologist, has been making.

The general influence of any wind, it appears, is to reduce the audibility of sounds. The usual greater range of a sound with the wind than against it is ascribed to the influence of wind velocity with altitude, which tends upward the sound waves traveling against the wind and downward those going with the wind.

Easter the World Over

HERE PILGRIMS SAID: "BEHOLD THE MAN"

PILGRIMS OUTSIDE THE HOLY SEPULCHER CHURCH

EASTER in the Holy Land is the most impressive occasion of the year, for thither through pilgrims from all parts of the Christian world, deeply reverent with the spirit of the season, in Jerusalem they follow in the footsteps of Jesus on his march to the cross, and the procession that leaves the Church of the Holy Sepulcher, bearing a huge cross, and makes its way along the Via Dolorosa, offering supplications at the stations of the cross, is a spectacle that never grows dim in the memory.

Here, in the setting of the most profound tragedy in the history of the world, is incarnated the eternal spirit that had its expression 2,000 years ago, defying time and death and sweetening the world with tenderness and love. Incense from fire and the incense of prayer rise along the way, and hearts are hymned to tears, while the stolid Moslem looks on with impassive face.

Next to a pilgrimage to Jerusalem, the bathing in the river Jordan is one of the precious experiences of the peasants from Russia, Greece, Bulgaria, Turkey and other countries. Thousands journey to this holy stream to bathe, that they may be washed clean of their sins. And in the joy of the cleansing, those who are compelled to remain at home are not forgotten. So every pilgrim fills a bottle with the sacred water to be taken back on the tedious journey.

These reverent people even go to the extent of taking home branches and shrubs growing along the banks of the river. But one of the most picturesque sights is the carrying away of sacred fire from the Church of the Holy Sepulcher.

the shrine, and, jealously guarding the little flame from capricious winds and drafts, make the journey to Jaffa, board ship, and, throughout the sea voyage, often to the end of a rough journey over mountains by the most primitive means of transportation, unceasingly guard the treasure until they finally arrive among the expectant stay-at-homes with their blessings of fire and water.

Pilgrims recall one Holy Week when, in upon the peaceful spirit of adoration, came the menace of Christian massacre—the first alarm told it—and in a few minutes the streets, swarming with picturesque crowds, were deserted, the shops and bazaars closed. But when the garrison of the city marched through the streets, headed by the band to allay the fears of the Christians, the Moslem population turned out—not to rise against the infidel, but just like the inhabi-plants of any western city—to see the parade go by.

Easter celebrations take on varied aspects all over the world, with curious customs and usages in the rural districts and spots remote from the great traveled highways. But it is in the foreign cities that one often sees the expression of the big, impressive picturesque note. This is especially so of the Latin countries. In Spain, for instance, one sees it, as well as in Italy and in France.

But in all countries, though it is the time of outpouring, it is largely judged from an individual standpoint. Easter in New York is different from Easter in Rome; and so the contrast may be carried along between many places. What is Easter to one man may not at all approach what another conceives to be the day—it may be too destitute of form and show, or too prodigal of it.

Fields of Lilies.

Loveliest, perhaps of all the sights of nature are the fields of Bermuda lilies when in bloom. The vast undulating field of lilies rises and falls like an ocean of pearly white, and a vague, sweet perfume permeates everywhere. Sailing and boating are naturally among the principal pastimes of Bermuda.

Seen and Heard in Michigan

Ann Arbor.—Alderman E. W. Groves, former city engineer, died here of Bright's disease.

Camden.—Camden village voted in favor of installing an electric light plant, 156 to 5.

Madison.—The University of Michigan debating team won a unanimous decision over the University of Wisconsin team here.

Flint.—Reuben A. Carman, eighty-nine years old, the oldest member of the First Baptist church here and for 55 years a deacon, is dead.

Rochester.—Edward Bromley, eighty-seven, wealthy retired farmer, is dead at his home in this place. He had lived in this section for 80 years.

Jackson.—Vernie Beatty, twenty-five, committed suicide by severing an artery in his wrist. Despondency is thought to have been a contributing cause.

St. Clair.—The question of purchasing a pulmotor is to be decided by the city council at its next meeting. Two drownings early in the winter started agitation for the apparatus.

Port Huron.—Prosecuting Attorney Stewart has asked that an injunction against John Hintz, a saloonkeeper of Port Huron township, be made permanent.

Jackson.—Dr. E. E. Emmerson, fifty-seven years old, who had practiced medicine in Jackson county for 30 years, shot himself to death at his home in Springport.

Rochester.—The Standard Oil company is erecting here two big tanks, one for kerosene, with a capacity of 25,000 gallons, the other for gasoline, with a capacity of 40,000 gallons.

Muskegon.—Orin F. Rodgers, fifty-three, dropped dead while at work at his factory bench. Death was due to apoplexy. Rodgers was vice-president of the Muskegon Mill Men's union and a charter member of that organization.

Saginaw.—Charles Kimbrough (negro) was convicted on a charge of first degree murder in connection with the death of eight-year-old Rose Fernier-Laundry. Kimbrough was immediately sentenced to the Ionia reformatory for life. He showed no emotion when the verdict was rendered or when sentence was announced.

Monroe.—Henry Herbst, defendant in the LaBranch-Herbst breach-of-promise suit, in which the plaintiff was awarded $1,000, pleaded guilty to assault and battery on his brother-in-law, Charles Cousino, and was fined $7 and costs. Herbst still refuses to pay the love suit verdict and is in the county jail.

Ann Arbor.—Frank Armstrong, cashier of the Ann Arbor railroad company, and a member of one of the best families in Ann Arbor, is being sought on a charge of embezzling $1,500. Armstrong, who left the city a few days ago, is alleged to have raised several checks.

Marshall.—Superintendent of Schools Clarence Paul of Burlington has been acquitted on a charge of assault and battery on Roy, fifteen-year-old son of W. E. Waffle, one of his students, by Justice Cortright. Paul recently came to Burlington from Detroit. A suit for $100 damages begun by Waffle against Paul was withdrawn when Paul paid $40 costs in the criminal suit.

Flint.—Reuben A. Carman, eighty-nine, who lived south of Flint for the last 80 years, died of old age. His father took up the first farm in Flint township and built the first house in the township 80 years ago. Israel Pettit, eighty-two, a pioneer resident of Forest township, died at the home of his son, K. P. Pettit. He had lived in Forest township 55 years.

Ypsilanti.—A coroner's jury decided that Anthony Gallo came to his death on the night of March 16, or early on the morning of March 17, at the hands of a person or persons unknown, and that he was killed somewhere else and dragged to the place where the body was found. Three witnesses who saw two Italians, thought to have been Gallo and Grillo, come out from Detroit on the interurban car the morning of March 16, were unable to identify the body of Gallo as one of them. The Danie girl, on whom one theory of the motive hangs, swore that she knew Grillo but did not know Gallo.

Cadillac.—Rev. Elmer Vaughan, fifty-two, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church at McBain, has started suit in the Missaukee county circuit court against Albert Smith, a prosperous farmer, for $5,000. He charges that Smith told a number of persons Vaughan stole 200 bushels of potatoes from him. Mr. Vaughan, who farmed 15 acres of land for Smith last summer, on shares, says he divided the potato crop evenly with Smith, but that Smith accused him of cheating. Pastor Vaughan has preached for 25 years in Arenac, Isabella, Newaygo and Osceola counties.

Kalamazoo.—As the result of what was believed to be a slight injury received months ago, B. T. He was sixty-four years old and was one of the best known employees of the Michigan Central.

Jackson.—Twenty-five southern Michigan lodges of the order of the Progressive association, 1, of the Mystic Workers of the World, were in session here. Several state officers and J. Ross Mickey, supreme master, of Macomb, Ill., were present.

MACHINE GUN MEN CREEP INTO POSITION

This picture, an actual scene on the western battle line, shows a German light artillery and machine gun detachment moving closer and closer to the enemy's lines in an effort to gain a position from which the allies' trenches can be swept with gunfire preparatory to a charge. So effective is the fire of these light machine guns that the few men seen in the picture could withstand an entire regiment if the latter charged them across an open field.

TRENCHES ONE TURN

Hospital Next for Some Canadian Soldiers.

Could Neither Sit Nor Stand in Mud-Filled Ditches Under Heavy Fire for Three Weary Nights and Days.

London.—The discomfort and even actual suffering caused by doing only one turn in the trenches is described by a Canadian soldier in Princess Patricia's Light Infantry in a letter written at the front. Such was the condition of the troops that some of the men hardly were able to crawl from the trenches when the relief hour arrived. With too much mud to sit down and the trench too shallow to stand up straight, the troop was in a difficult position. The letter, which was printed in the London Times, says:

"We left the place from which I last wrote, marched 15 miles and billeted in a barn. The following day we marched 12 miles to within about three miles of the trenches, which we entered late at night, relieving some French troops. We stayed 48 hours in the trenches, or rather ditches, as they're little better, and such a time I never experienced in my life.

"It was raining most of the time, sniping was going on all night, and in the daytime we were subjected to a most awful bombardment, especially on the first day, shells exploding near my trench sometimes in bunches of six. Mud and pieces of shrapnel fell quite close several times. The shells from the German big guns burst with a terrible din, and fairly made the earth quake, our trenches caving in in many places from the severe concussions.

"We of my platoon consider ourselves very lucky indeed, as we suffered the hottest shell fire along the line occupied by the battalion, but fortunately the German gunners had too much elevation, which resulted in the shells, with two or three exceptions, falling over and clear of the trenches. The German trenches opposite our position were only 120 yards away, but very little rifle fire was indulged in, everyone on both sides keeping well under cover.

"The bottom of the trenches in most places is just ankle deep in mud. We sat on our equipment, which was soon smothered in wet, cold mud, and in a deplorable state. But it saved us from actually sitting in the mud, and one could not stand upright, as the trench was not deep enough. Of course sleep was practically impossible, though most of us negotiated 40 winks at intervals when not on watch.

"Our feet were wet through the whole time, also our nether garments. During the long nights we just longed for daylight, although we knew it would bring a renewal of the bombardment. Some of our men were hardly able to crawl out of the trenches when our turn came to be relieved.

"I hardly think human flesh could possibly stand the conditions prevailing, more than three days at the most. The night we came out and into billets I put on dry socks. I had the most peculiar sensations in my feet all that night—a kind of pins and needles. This, I suppose, was the returning of circulation.

"My hands were also much swollen, but two days' rest soon put me all right again. I feel absolutely none the worse for my experience, but some of the men had to go to hospital, and others were unfit to march and had to ride in transports. I myself have been able to stay with the best of them, although I am the oldest man in the section.

"We occupied the trenches on the night of the fifth and were relieved on the night of the eighth. Twenty of us are billeted in what you would call a country public house and sleep in the kitchen on the floor, by far the most comfortable digs we have had so far.

"I was much struck by the behavior of the boys who had never been under fire before; in fact, I was surprised. Of course we all realize that we carry our lives in our hands and I think the most of us don't worry. We found time to laugh and joke while the shells were bursting overhead and quite a

DOCTOR WRONG BY 54 YEARS

War Veteran, Tagged "Mortally Wounded" Recently Dies "Natural" Death for All That.

Fulton, Mo.—Left on the battlefield dying "with the surgeon's notation, 'mortally wounded,'" written after his name, only to live fifty-four years and die a natural death, was the experience of the late John W. Davis, a Confederate veteran of Fulton. A letter received here from Joseph A. Mudd, another Confederate veteran of Hyattsville, Md., tells the story as follows:

"I have just seen mention of the death in Fulton of John W. Davis. He was a member of a grand company of brave boys, commanded by Capt. D. H. McIntyre, afterward attorney-general of Missouri—Company A, Burbridge's regiment. Ours was Company B, and we stood side by side in battle. Comrade Davis was just my age.

"At Wilson's Creek, nearly fifty-four years ago, I saw him shot, so badly hurt that the surgeon wrote 'mortally wounded' after his name."

PATIENT SPOUSE WAITS LONG

But After Keeping Coffee Hot for Her Nine Years, Concludes She Isn't Coming Back.

La Crosse, Wis.—Abdolla Saad, most patient husband in La Crosse, has been granted a divorce by Judge Higbee. One day in 1906 the wife stepped over to a neighbor's. She told her husband to keep the coffee hot. Abdolla was a faithful husband. He kept the coffee hot nine years. He

EDISON THE WIZARD

Builds Benzol Plant Complete in Twenty-Nine Days.

First in United States Since War Began, Turns Out 800 Gallons Daily—Supply Was Formerly From Germany.

Orange, N. J.—Completion of the first benzol plant built in the United States since the war has been announced by Thomas A. Edison. It was finished in the record time of 29 days, from six to eight months usually being required.

Benzol is used in making aniline dyes and synthetic carboxylic acid. Practically the entire supply always has come from Germany, and the war had not been long in progress before there was a scarcity.

Edison uses a ton of carboxylic acid a day in making phonograph records. When the war made carboxylic acid scarce he decided to make it synthetically. But he needed benzol, and benzol was even more scarce. So first he had to make the benzol.

With characteristic directness, Edison gathered the latest information on benzol manufacture. He decided on the method of extracting it from coal gas in preference to the petroleum system of Prof. Walter Rittman of Columbia university. Then he designed a system of apparatus that would combine cheapness and speed of construction.

So well did he succeed that the first plant, which is in Johnstown, Pa., and on which work was started twenty-nine days ago, now is turning out 800 gallons of benzol a day. Edison is planning another plant in Sydney, Nova Scotia, and still another at a yet unknown location. The total benzol production thus is expected to be brought to 2,000 gallons daily.

The benzol apparatus devised by Edison, if easier to build, is unusual type. It is, however, serving its purpose. Edison is getting all the benzol he needs and has had a little left over for his friends. There is not went about his work as usual and said nothing. Then it came to him that he had been deserted, and so he made application for divorce.

The court heard his story. The woman had not written since leaving home. Neighbors had seen her take a train. The husband did not know where she went. The judge granted an interlocutory degree of divorce under which Saad will have to wait at least another year before he remarries. He was so informed by the court. He replied: "Wait only one year? Oh, one year is nothing, nothing at all."

CAST BOTTLE ON THE WATER

After Many Days It Came Back Filled to the Neck With Choice Whisky.

Virginia, Minn.—A. B. Coates, a well-known mining man, got a surprise in the express the other day. It was a bottle of whisky from a Kentucky distillery that he had not ordered. The odd thing about the gift was that the liquor was in a bottle that Mr. Coates emptied with a party of friends while steaming down the River Nile in Africa about a year ago and threw into the murky stream. In the bottle he had placed a slip of paper bearing his name and address. Someone found the bottle and forwarded it to the distillery, where it was filled and sent to Mr. Coates with the liquor factory's compliments. The original bottle was presented to Mr. Coates by a local friend when he started on his African trip.

BORN BLIND; NOW SEES

Miss Maud Emerson Lincoln of Marblehead, Mass., after 21 years in almost total darkness, has suddenly gained full use of her eyes. Practically blind since her birth, one afternoon she felt something snap in her eye and normal sight came instantly to that eye, then to the other. The miracle almost unnerved her. The sight of people scared her; the sight of food was strange; she could not eat; everywhere she turned a new world met her. She plans to make up for her enticed lack of education and rejoices in the miracle of just plain, everyday "seeing."

IN THE SEASON OF REBIRTH

Mankind Can See in Nature Awakening an Appeal to His Spiritual Feelings.

Between the penitential season of the religious year, which Ash Wednesday opens, and the weather of winter's decay and of spring's renewing, is a mysterious bond of similarity which enhances the meaning of the observance. In the order of nature it is a time of the sloughing off of the old and the quickening of the new; of the release of earth and streams from icy fetters and snow burial, and the deep, secret stirrings of new life. And these, if we will, are but the symbols of what may stir and quicken in us under the influence of this season of rebirth.

It is the season of the great things and of the small. It is the season which reaffirms the mystery which, like death, no man understands until he has passed its portals by experience; the mystery, namely, that it is only by giving up that we acquire the greatest gifts of life. We know that the principle holds in the little things, yet the fear of trying it in the great things is such that comparatively few ever bring themselves to the supreme point, and they, their selves forgotten

Proper View of Easter.

Through the fitting associations of this festival day of nature with the name of him who demonstrated in his life the essential things of existence, the soul's salvation through love and service, the triumph of the spirit over the flesh, we are able to regard Easter as a day consecrated to the rebirth or resurrection of our own noble elements, of the divine principle in man.

If we so view it, if we accept it as a day of reconsecration to the ideal of the Wayshower's life, it should serve

True Message of Easter.

The message of Easter is that one man among humanity's millions succeeded not only in passing through the gate of death unharmed, but that

Thus may the mortal reveal and demonstrate the immortal; the mortal put on the vestment of immortality.

The Little Difference.

Herman Frasch, chief chemist of the Standard Oil company, who recently died worth $5,000,000, made many millions for his employers by his utilization of waste.

In an interview in New York, discussing the discovery that turned coal tar from a waste to a highly valuable by-product, Mr. Frasch once said to a reporter:

"That one little change, that little chemical change, did it all. There is never more than a tiny difference,

DON'T THEY LOOK HAPPY?

Well they are. Anyone who has ever visited the Starr Commonwealth Home near Albion, Mich., can tell of the "every joy of living" the boys have. To see these lads, one would not think they came from the worst homes and dens of the state. One lad had never had a meal he did not steal from the time he was three years old until he entered the Home. Another lad was a drunkard and a cigarette fiend for ten years, when he was only 14, before he knew "Uncle" Floyd. The boys call Mr. Starr, the founder of the Home, "Uncle Floyd and his wife 'Aunt' Harriet. And how they love each other—these boys and the young couple, their veritable guardian angels.

"The aim of the home is to solve the bad boy problem in the natural way—giving the boy someone to love, and something to keep him busy," said Mr. Starr when talking of the Home. "It is not an institution, and I do not want it to be. Here we want to give the lads home influence and the love their little hearts crave." Since the Home was opened in August 1913, over 200 boys have been refused admittance because there is not room and at present there is a waiting list of 50. Mr. Starr, the founder of the home, is a young man, not in his thirties. He is a Delta Tau Delta from Albion, his wife an 'Alpha Chi Omega.' This Home is his dream come true, and he is doing wonders.

NEWBURG

The community was shocked to receive the word of the passing away of our young friend, Erwin Grimm, early Monday morning at Harper hospital, where he had been taken to be operated on for abscess on the brain, which later developed into meningitis and the skill of the best surgeons was of no avail. His sickness was of short duration, only two weeks, but the suffering of a life time was crowded in this short space. His kind and genial ways made him a general favorite. During the revival meetings of a year ago, Erwin made the decision to lead a christian life and united with the M. E. church. He was an active member of the Epworth League, being chairman of the social committee, and was also a member of Sunlight Arbor. Erwin's highest ambition was to acquire an education and was a good student and conscientious worker. He will be greatly missed by teachers and pupils of Plymouth High school, especially by the members of the Junior class of which he was a member, who, with the teachers, attended the funeral in a body. The gleaners also attended in a body and conducted their beautiful burial service. The comforting words by his pastor, Rev. Dutton, the beautiful singing by three of the high school pupils and the large number of floral tributes made it an impressive service, which was held Wednesday afternoon at Newburg church. Interment in Newburg cemetery. Erwin Albert Grimm was born in Detroit, Sept. 6, 1896, and died March 29, 1915. His parents moved to this place when he was five years of age.
