FOOD FOR THOUGHT

The best way for a man to train up a child in the way he should go, is to travel that way himself.

I am only one, but I am one; I cannot do everything, but I can do something; and what I can do I ought to do; and what I ought to do, by the help of God, I will do.

Dost thou love life? Then do not squander time, for that is the stuff life is made of.

Every human being is intended to have a character of his own, to be what no other is, to do what no other can.

If God writes "Opportunity" on one side of open doors, he writes "Responsibility" on the other.

Rally Day at the Presbyterian Church

The Presbyterian church observed Rally Day and Anniversary Sunday, last Sunday, October 3. This special occasion really commenced with an automobile ride and picnic supper, which gave the children of the Sunday-school the Saturday afternoon previous. There were plenty of automobiles on hand to take the children, and when the start was made there were fourteen autos in line, carrying 180 members of the Sunday-school. After the return from a twenty-mile ride, the children were treated to a fine supper. The children, with their appetites sharpened by the long ride, got away with the good things set before them at a most astonishing rate. They had a fine time and the occasion will long be remembered by them.

The Sunday morning services at ten o'clock were largely attended. This was a combined Sunday-school and church service. The church was prettily decorated with autumn flowers for the occasion. There was special music by a quartette and quintette, composed of Misses Hazel and Myrtle, Misses Chumpha and Hilda Smye and Messrs. Calvin Whipple and Myron Beals, with Miss Bertha Beals as accompanist. The departments of the Sunday-school were represented as follows: A report from the Cradle Roll was given by Miss Rose Hawthorne of the Primary department, Elizabeth Burrows and Jeannette Whipple gave recitations, while Alton Trumbull and Gladys Schrader from the Junior department, also gave recitations. Miss Ellen Gardner of the Intermediate department, gave a reading. Mrs. E. B. Bennett of the Senior and Adult department. A report of the work of the Home department was given by Mrs. Louis Hillmer. Miss Hilda Smye rendered a vocal solo very beautifully. E. B. Bennett, assistant superintendent, gave a splendid talk to the members of the Sunday-school. Rev. Farber made a short address, in which he briefly reviewed the work of the church during his five years' pastorate here.

The evening service was also largely attended. There was special music by the quartette and two solos by Miss Lucille Calkins of Northville. Miss Calkins is a singer of exceptional ability and her two selections were greatly appreciated.

Rev. H. H. Blocher of Royal Oak, delivered a fine sermon that held the closest attention of his hearers throughout the day. The day was a review of the history of the church and Sunday-school, and will long be remembered by those who were in attendance.

Last Sunday marked the fifth anniversary of Rev. Farber's pastorate of the local church. During these five years there have been many lines of progress in the work of the church, that surely must be very gratifying to both Mr. Farber and the members of the society. The old manse was sold, a new one built at an additional cost, and the difference entirely paid. Repairs and improvements have been made upon the church property. An additional piece of ground has been purchased, and work is now being done to beautify the environment of the church property. Every department of the church work is flourishing and upon a substantial financial base. The church has made a gain of over seventy members, which represents almost one-half of the present membership, during Rev. Farber's pastorate. It may be of interest to know that he has preached 427 sermons and given many other addresses. His services have been called for at 102 funerals, 19 weddings and 24 baptisms, during his five years' residence here.

Mrs. J. J. Travis entertained the King's Herald at her home last Saturday afternoon. This was Japanese day and eighteen girls were present, nearly all being dressed in costume. The roll call was responded to by an item of interest relative to Japan. After the regular order of business, games were played, and later in the afternoon the girls, seated on cushions were served rice and cakes. All present report a very enjoyable afternoon.

How Catarrh is Contracted
Mothers are sometimes so thoughtless as to neglect the colds which their children contract. The inflammation of the mucous membrane, at first acute, becomes chronic, and the child has chronic catarrh, a disease that is seldom cured and that may prove a life's burden. Many parents who have this bathhouse disease will remember having had frequent colds at the time it was contracted. A little book, "Catarrh," a bottle of Chamberlain's Catarrh Remedy judiciously used, and all this trouble might have been avoided. Obtainable everywhere.—Advt.

Literary Club Held First Meeting of the Year

The opening meeting of the Women's Literary club was held at the home of Mrs. E. C. Leach, last Friday afternoon. Although the weather was very inclement, a large company of ladies was present. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. J. J. Travis, and after a short business session, the program was given over to the first division, with Mrs. Carmen Root, chairman. Response to roll call was a clever sketch of a club member-guess who. Some original and unique descriptions were given, many in rhyme. The program was opened with a vocal duet by Mrs. Wm. Bake and Miss Hazel Conner, with Miss Bertha Beals as accompanist. The program was an interesting talk on the anti-cigarette movement by Mrs. Geo. Caron of Detroit, vice president of the anti-cigarette committee of the Twentieth Century club. Mrs. Caron was formerly president of this reform, and carried on a very successful campaign in the city. Mrs. C. B. Bennett, chairman of the 1915-16 program committee, gave a foreword of the work that is before the club for the coming year. She earnestly urged the ladies to bear in mind the club motto, "We Study to Serve." The program committee should indeed be commended for the excellent course of study that has been prepared for the club for this year. The order of study is Michigan; Great Movements of Our Times, and Current Events. Mrs. R. E. Cooper, chairman of the 1916-17 program committee, presented several subjects to the club for consideration for next year's study. The anti-cigarette program concluded with a piano solo charmingly rendered by Miss Madeleine Bennett. Then followed a social hour with light refreshments. Guests from out of town present at the meeting were Mrs. F. J. Williams of Alliance, Ohio, and Miss Alice D. Todd of Rochester, New York.

Many Changes on R. F. D. From Plymouth Postoffice

Postmaster Ladd and the rural carriers are having their troubles this week, as a consequence of the changes in rural routes in this vicinity, which went into effect, Oct. 1st. Route 4 from this office has been discontinued, and Carrier Arthur White was transferred to Route 5, in place of Carrier Frank Shattuck. The Plymouth office will not lose any patronage as a result of the changes, but on the other hand will serve about 300 more people than before. The increased patronage is due to the additional mileage that has been added to each route diverting from the local office. Many patrons have been changed from one route to another, and this, together with the additional number of new patrons, has considerably complicated matters for the local office force for the past few days, but very shortly the new order of things will have adjusted themselves and business will be running as smooth as ever again.

A Serious Accident

Mrs. Luther Passage and daughter, Eva, were painfully injured while driving on East Ann Arbor road near their home, last Saturday morning. Their horse became frightened at a passing street car, and jumped in the ditch. The carriage was overturned and the occupants were thrown out. Mrs. Passage sustained a fractured ankle and Miss Eva's left ankle was sprained. They were taken into H. A. Spioer's house and a physician was immediately called. Later they were removed to their home, where they are resting as comfortably as possible.

Claude Williams and wife of Detroit, visited relatives here over Sunday.

Merle Roe, the twelve-year old daughter of E. S. Roe, received twelve premiums at the Milford fair this year on crocheted articles of her own handiwork. Miss Merle is acquiring quite a reputation on her fine crocheted work, and the past year has made a number of articles on order.

Last Sunday at the Methodist Sunday-school, Miss Carter's class of boys worked hard and carried off the banner for the highest percentage of attendance. Several other classes are determined to win it from them next Sunday. The class having the highest average attendance, Miss Sanders, reading on Rally Day, October 17th, will be declared the winner of the cup. The contest is very interesting. Come and get in the fray.

Plymouth Road in Bad State of Repair

A resolution will come before the October session of the board of supervisors, providing for the laying of a $300,000 tax, this amount to be used for the building of county roads. The county road fund is practically exhausted, with several roads left unfinished, the Canton Center road being among this number. The Detroit Chamber of Commerce is boosting the $300,000 tax project and will bring every pressure to bear upon the supervisors to bring about the adoption of the resolution. While there may be no objection to this tax being spread upon the county, the Detroiters are a little selfish in where this amount of money is being or going to be spent. It is a well known fact that most of the road building is being done in other parts of the county, besides this section.

The Plymouth road is built of macadam, we believe the only one in the county so constructed. It is not like a cement road, and at the present time is in a wretched state of repair, neglected all the year by the county road commissioners. The traffic over this road is nearly as heavy as over Michigan avenue and it should be kept in prime condition for travel. Detroiters will themselves do this road for an automobile ride and thousands of machines pass over it. While the board of commerce is boosting good roads, a little pressure brought to bear in getting the Plymouth road up to a good state of repair would not be amiss.

Assa Joy has been quite seriously ill at his home for the past week.

Mrs. G. A. Shafer and mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Terry, are visiting relatives in Detroit this week.

TO EACH AN APPLE

Soldiers in Trenches and Hospitals to Get Fruit.

Growers and Dealers Plan to Send Immense Consignment of Apples to Soldiers of All Armies Now At War.

Chicago.—Every soldier in the trenches and hospitals in Europe will be given an apple in the near future, if plans now being worked out by a committee of the apple trade throughout the United States are successful. It is proposed to have a vessel take over a big cargo of apples to be distributed free under the auspices of the Red Cross, and efforts will be made to get President Wilson and Secretary of State Lansing to have the several warring governments permit safe passage for portions of the big consignment to the various fronts and hospitals where the fruit can be placed in the hands of the Red Cross for distribution, especially among the sick and wounded.

Apple growers and dealers who are endeavoring to send over the big consignment have learned that many of the fighting men are suffering because of lack of fruit juices, giving rise to scurvy and other disorders. Returning surgeons who have seen service in the European hospitals are said to approve heartily the plan to provide more fruit juices not only among the wounded but also for the men in the trenches.

"We are working on this undertaking purely from humanitarian motives," said one of the committee who is a leading wholesale apple distributor. "It's going to cost a lot of money for the fruit alone, and we shall call upon all the people engaged in the apple industry to contribute a portion of the expense. At first the trade did not take kindly to the plan, as it was feared that vessels could not be found to carry over the apples. Then the idea was conceived of chartering a ship which would take nothing but apples, and we believe that when the purpose is disclosed to foreign governments none will oppose free passage of our ship, for it will go on a mission of charity."

A local apple man who has interested himself in the matter, and who has figured out how it can be done, says: "It is a big proposition and will require skillful handling, but it can be done. The value of the fruit alone would approximate about $300,000 aboard ship at New York. We understand that there are about 25,000,000 men actively engaged in the various armies and navies in the European war, and probably as many more indirectly involved. To give them all an American apple apiece would mean at least 50,000,000, and taking 500 apples to the barrel, which would mean medium-size fruit, we shall have to provide 100,000 barrels or 300,000 boxes, at the lowest estimate."

BORDER MAN HUNT

Correspondent Describes Ride With Texas Rangers.

Pursuit of Mexican Bandits Who Raided American Ranch Conducted in Businesslike Manner—"Got Five," is Quiet Report.

By JOHN W. ROBERTS. (International News Service.) Brownsville, Tex.—It takes more qualifications to be a Texas ranger than to be a soldier in the United States army. For one thing, you must be able to shoot 90 per cent average—very few soldiers can do that. And then, you have to be more than five feet ten inches tall. You must know how to ride like a cowpuncher and be skillful in handling the lariat. You must be a man of unqualified nerve, and be ready at all times to face danger without a flinch.

It was my good fortune to be one of a party of ten rangers who left Brownsville early one evening in pursuit of some Mexican bandits who had recently raided an American ranch in the vicinity. I rode beside a tall, quiet, handsome boy of about twenty-two years of age. His face was as tanned as a Mexican's, but his steel-blue eyes betrayed his Anglo-Saxon nationality. We had entered that part of the country which is covered with a network of mesquite brush, ten feet in height, as thick as any African jungle ever could be. I started to whistle an old familiar tune.

"Shut up," said my partner quietly. We came to a small clearing and halted. The waters of the Rio Grande were dotted with reflections of the stars in the bright sky. Across the river was Mexico, and her vast, silent prairies gleamed like silver in the starlight. One of the rangers dismounted and examined the ground closely.

"They have gone that way," he pointed northward. "How does he know that it is the men we are after?" I asked of my companion. "By the footprints," he replied. "Greasers never take the trouble to shoe their horses. An American's horse is always shod—this is the difference, and the hoof prints point northward."

Here we left the road and took up a trail through the chaparral, single file. The thud, thud of our horses' hoofs in the soft earth, and the occasional squeak of a saddle were the only sounds which broke the stillness of the night. Suddenly, without warning, the crash of a body dashing through the dry mesquite to our left was heard. In almost the same instant ten saddles were emptied and two big, strapping Texans had dashed into the brush like so many rabbits. The horses, but for turning curious eyes toward the brush in which their masters had disappeared, remained absolutely still.

A minute later, however, the ten men returned and remounted. "Coyote," explained my partner, with a smile. "The damn critters are always fooling us, because they sound just like a greaser trying to get away."

We had ridden into a mile farther along this trail, when the shrill whinny of a pony broke through the stillness. It halted our small band like magic. Although no one said a word, each man knew what the other thought, and they acted together. Each ranger dismounted and took his rifle from the scabbard.

"It's them, I guess," my partner informed me. "You had better stay with the horses and keep your head under cover in case there is any shooting. We will be back in a little while."

Although every one of the ten rangers who took into the brush were big fellows, each wearing heavy boots, yet, when they had gone but ten paces from where I stood I could not hear a sound—not even the breaking of a dry twig.

Five minutes later the sound of a shot cracked through the air. I was in a state of feverish excitement. Never before had I been in a man hunt, and this one, staged in a still night on the prairies bordering the waters of the Rio Grande, made me doubt, even then, that it was taking place on American soil. The shot was followed by another one, then a third, then many, all at once, and in a few seconds more the air rang with the cracks of rifles. I heard a gath scream in Spanish; a sharp-voiced command to halt, in English. Heard the plink of a body jumping into the Rio Grande, then another and another one. Someone was crashing madly through the mesquite brush to my right, then all was silence again. A few minutes later, the ten rangers returned unhurt. While I was trembling in my excitement, the men quietly put their guns back into their scabbards, mounted their horses, turned around, and started back to Brownsville again. Not a word was spoken and each man's face was as impassive as though nothing had happened.

"Did—did—did you get any of them?" I whispered to my partner. "Five," he said quietly, without looking up. Ten minutes passed before I served myself to ask the second question. "What did you do with them?" The question seemed to amuse him. "Greasers are like dogs," he answered. "Let them rot where they die."

KEPT HIS COFFIN 30 YEARS

Eccentric War Veteran Arranges His Own Funeral—Fought in Both Armies.

Newcastle, Ind.—Moab Turner, seventy-seven years old, was buried in a coffin he had made 30 years ago when he suffered his first stroke of paralysis. It was built from a dead walnut chest, which had been in his family for years. The coffin has been in the care of a local undertaker for the last ten years. Turner, who was eccentric and arranged his own funeral, lived in Tennessee when the Civil war broke out. He was conscripted by the South, and after six months' service succeeded in having himself taken prisoner so that he could join the Union army. He was captured at Cumberland gap, exchanged, saw service daily in the Atlanta campaign and was again captured.

HORSE KNEW HIM WELL

Animal Nipped at Man on the Street Who Trained Him Eight Years Ago.

Davenport, Wash.—The intelligence of the horse was strikingly shown here recently when County Prosecutor David McCallum passed by an equine which nipped at him and then began prancing at the railing next the sidewalk where it was hitched and by which the prosecutor had passed. Struck by the queer actions of the animal the attorney turned around and recognized a mare which he as a farm lad had raised but which he had not seen in more than eight years. Those who happened to see the occurrence say the recognition by the animal was unmistakable.

Found Money in Wall

Mount Clemens, Mich.—The hoarding of what was evidently property of a miser was discovered recently between two walls of a building belonging to the late Frederick Kendrick, when William Singer attempted to tear down the house. The money was found in a wooden box which had evidently been placed when the house was being erected some 65 years ago.

A DOCTOR'S EXPERIENCE
Medicine Not Needed in This Case.

It is hard to convince some people that coffee does them an injury! They lay their bad feelings to almost every cause but the true and unsuspected one. But the doctor knows. His wide experience has proven to him that, to some systems, coffee is an insidious poison that undermines the health. Ask him if coffee is a cause of constipation, stomach and nervous troubles.

"I have been a coffee drinker all my life, and when taken sick two years ago with nervous prostration, the doctor said that my nervous system was broken down and that I would have to give up coffee. I got so weak and shaky I could not work, and reading an advertisement of Postum I asked my grocer if he had any of it. He said, 'Yes,' and that he used it in his family and it was all it claimed to be. 'So I quit coffee and commenced to use Postum steadily, and in about two weeks I could sleep better and get up in the morning feeling fresh. In about two months I began to gain flesh. I weighed only 146 pounds when I commenced on Postum and now I weigh 187 and feel better than I did at 20 years of age. 'I am working every day and sleep well at night. My two children were coffee drinkers, but they have not drunk any since Postum came into the house, and are far more healthy than they were before.' Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Postum comes in two forms: Postum Cereal—the original form—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—a soluble powder—dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water, and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 25c and 50c tins.

Both kinds are equally delicious and not about the same per cup. "There's a Reason" for Postum.—Sold by Grocers.

Effect of Great Kidney Remedy Is Soon Realized
I feel it my duty to let you know what Swamp-Root did for me. I was bothered with my back for over twenty years and at times I could hardly get out of bed. I read your advertisement and decided to try Swamp-Root. Used five bottles, and it has been five years since I used it, and I have never been bothered a day since I took the last bottle of it. I am thoroughly convinced that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root cured me and would recommend it to others suffering as I did. My husband was troubled with kidney and bladder troubles and he took your Swamp-Root and it cured him. This was about five years ago. You may publish this letter if you choose.

Very truly yours,
MRS. MATTIE CAMPFIELD,

Awarded Medal of Honor and Gold Medal At Panama-Pacific Exposition

Warm and Happy

The NEW PERFECTION Heater is an agreeable source of comfort to grow people—but it is a positive necessity when there are children in the house. You can't let the baby shiver and take cold. With the NEW PERFECTION to take off the chill mornings and evenings, and to dry out dampness, you can delay starting winter fires until real cold weather begins.

With everyone warm and happy, free from colds developed from lowered vitality, there is no need of a furnace. The NEW PERFECTION is the greatest comfort you can have in your home, and it is good health, a means to economy, the cleanest best you can use.

Easy to care for, ready by striking a match; burns 10 hours on one gallon of oil; can't smoke. No trouble to re-wick because wick and burner are combined—the wick sticks all ready to put in, clean, smooth and ready to light. For best results use Perfection Oil.

At the Panama-Pacific Exposition the many points of superiority of the NEW PERFECTION Heater were a model of honor, while a Gold medal was awarded the NEW PERFECTION Heater—its crowning victory.

Your dealer has the NEW PERFECTION Oil. Look for the Perfection logo on the can. Be sure to get the oil that has the Perfection logo on it.

The fans expected a bare royal in Friday's contest and many were hoping that it would be played off at a later date. However, it was decided to call it off and a settlement was made with the teams."

A Letter of Appreciation
Through the columns of the Plymouth Mail, the writer of this communication desires to express his keen appreciation of the good work he has gained, through having had the pleasure of listening last Sunday evening to the sermon delivered in the Methodist church by Rev. Dutton. The subject, "A Crisis in a Man's Life," was certainly handled in a masterly way, and had evidently received much time and thought in the matter of preparation. It is a good thing to live one's own life well, but a still greater thing to always be ready with a helping hand or a cheerful word to help a less fortunate individual overcome an obstacle or decision which may mean his or her future success. The writer would strongly urge others to hear these Sunday evening discourses.
A REGULAR ATTENDANT.

Council Had Busy Session
The council had another busy session Monday evening. Aside from the regular routine business transacted the matter of the removal of the two small buildings, one occupied by the Adams Express office and the other by a shoe shop, and owned by Chas. Greenlaw, to the sidewalk line on Main street, came up for some real lively discussion, which gave a tinge of spice to the usual quiet and uninteresting meetings of this kind.
J. W. Henderson was present and on behalf of himself and other residents along Main street, made a strong protest against the moving of these buildings to their present location and asked the council to cause their removal if possible. Also that some kind of an ordinance be enacted to prevent a repetition of similar occurrences in the village. There is no way in which the council could cause the removal of these buildings at the present time, as there is no ordinance on the books covering matters of this kind. Trustee Tighe therefore offered a motion to instruct the city attorney to draft a resolution providing for the opening of Gravel avenue from Harvey street to Main street, and which would necessitate the purchase of the property upon which these buildings now stand, as the only means by which their removal could be accomplished. The motion was lost.
The moving of these two small wooden buildings to a slightly location on one of the most beautiful and prominent streets in the village, does not enhance the beauty of the street by any means, and the council should enact an ordinance at once establishing fire limits and building restrictions to prevent further unpleasant matters of this kind from arising.
Mr. Greenlaw stated to the council that the property on which the buildings now stand had been sold to a party who expected at some future time to erect a fine building thereon, when he would remove the small buildings which he still owns. He also stated that when he was through the buildings would present a good appearance.

THE air in a coal range oven is very dry. It absorbs the juices from the roast, dries it out and causes a heavy shrinkage.
In an Acorn Gas Range oven the air is very moist. Hold your hand over the pipe collar of a gas range and feel the moisture.
The moist air will not absorb the juices as the dry air does. As a result there is little shrinkage waste and a juicier, better flavored roast.

LETTER FROM STATE CAPITOL

BETTER CONDITIONS AT BOYS SCHOOL AT LANSING ARE PROMISED.

GOVERNOR WINS HIS POINT

Supreme Court Grinds Out Several Decisions, Justice Persons Writing His First Opinion in Interesting Case.

[By Gurd M. Hayes.]

Lansing—"The better the conditions at the school here, the better the boys will be when they leave the institution," was Governor Ferris' parting statement to the board of control and superintendent of the industrial school for boys at Lansing, followed a two hours hearing Thursday at which the governor severely criticized the methods employed at the school.

The result of the hearing was twofold. Admission of every charge made by the governor, with possibly a few exceptions, was gained from the board. Superintendent Lawson will be given a chance to carry out the new methods advised by the governor and failure of accomplishment means dismissal.

Not only was the governor prepared with statements backed by affidavits in his position, but Fred L. Keeler, state superintendent of public instruction, told the board members that the governor's position with reference to the teaching department of the school were absolutely correct, as an investigation by him had developed.

"You have 14 cottages at the school here, which constitute 14 country schools with no unity at all," declared the governor. "Your teachers are unfit for the work, are underpaid and are not getting results. The idea that the boys in this institution have to be taught differently than in any public school is nonsense. What I desire is, if you do not desire to adopt the methods I have outlined, working through the state superintendent of public instruction, call in a committee of three or five men who are up on education and its methods and let them investigate and report to you. If their findings do not coincide with mine, I am willing to resign as governor of Michigan."

Franklin Sayre, of Flushing, one of the three board members, took exception to the governor's remarks and said the school was one of the best conducted in the United States. Pinned down, the governor made him admit that he had visited only one other institution of a like character in the country.

Superintendent Lawson was rather sarcastic at times, but the governor pushed a hush to his remarks when he flatly asked Lawson what objection he had to improving the school. Both Lawson and Sayre answered that they had no objection, whatever.

Lawson admitted that but two towels, changed only twice each week, had been allowed 40 boys in a cottage, but that now they receive three towels a week.

Lawson also admitted that the boys at the school did not have a single tooth brush.

Governor Ferris said Assistant Superintendent Daymude was guilty of taking extreme measures to discipline unruly inmates, and it was the governor's suggestion that Daymude be relieved of further responsibility. The governor also said that he had reliable information that J. Merritt Hewitt, another employe of the school, was guilty of beating the boys unmercifully and that he should not be permitted to remain in a position where he had an opportunity to exercise punishment. This matter will be taken up at another meeting and undoubtedly both men will be called before the board and the governor to answer charges made by the chief executive.

"There's another matter I want to call your attention to," said the governor. "I want you to see that the teachers desist from having the boys here march the lockstep, prison style. It's not needed and should be abolished."

As the result of an opinion penned by Justice Rollin H. Person and concurred in by other members of the supreme bench, the Detroit & Mackinac railroad will have to pay $600 to William Moss, aged 17, of Saginaw, which is the amount of damages awarded the lad by a jury in the circuit court after he had been carried past his destination by the railroad and forced to walk eight miles through the snow.

From the record in the case it appears that William Moss and his younger sister left Saginaw December 23, 1911, to visit their grandparents at Linwood. At that time Moss was 13 years old. Their father purchased tickets and placed the children in the custody of the conductor who promised to put them off the train at Linwood.

It appears that the children made some inquiry after they had been on the train for some time and the conductor informed them that they had passed Linwood and had better get off at once. They left the train at Michie, a flag station on the Detroit

J. D. Edmondson, of Ann Arbor, was elected president of the teachers' retirement fund board at a meeting here Friday afternoon. Superintendent of public instruction Fred L. Keeler was elected secretary and Deputy Superintendent John M. Munson was named as clerk.

William L. Ouyman, of Detroit, a former judge of the supreme court has been retained by the board to test out the constitutionality of the teachers' retirement fund pension bill passed by the last legislature.

& Mackinac line and started back the track for Linwood, a distance of eight miles.

The lad was burdened with a suit case weighing 15 pounds. It was a cold day and as a result of the long walk he contracted pneumonia, and his sister was also seriously ill. In another case against the company damages were recovered for the girl.

This opinion was the first written by Justice Person since he was appointed to succeed Judge McAlvay, who died several weeks ago. The supreme court reversed the decision of the Kent circuit in the case of Edward Hutchins, a Fenaville fruit grower against Henry J. Vinkemider and Moses J. Dark, Grand Rapids commission merchants. This case involved the shipment of a carload of pears over which a controversy had arisen when settlement was to be made. Hutchins won in the case in the lower court.

Owing to the fact that the "blue sky law" was amended by the last session of the legislature, the supreme court dismissed a case started two years ago by Burton Howe and Claude H. Corrigan to restrain the Michigan securities commission from enforcing the provisions of the act. The amendment of laws was recently attacked in the federal court by Chicago brokers.

The supreme court sustained the ruling of the industrial accident board in awarding compensation to Mrs. Emma Fitzgerald whose husband died from blood poisoning following an injury sustained while in the employe of the Losier Motor company. The compensation board awarded Mrs. Fitzgerald $7.21 per week for a period of 300 weeks.

A case of considerable interest to Ingham county was decided when the supreme court held that Mrs. Mary Thayer was entitled to a farm of 40 acres in Aurelius township which had been left to Edward Thayer, her brother-in-law, by the provisions of her divorced husband's will.

When Mrs. Thayer's divorced husband, John Thayer, died, the farm property was left to his brother, but Mrs. Thayer contested the will claiming that John was mentally incompetent at the time of his death. The circuit court of Ingham county awarded her the property and the supreme court affirmed the ruling of the circuit judge.

In 1892 John Thayer left his family and went to South Dakota and after several years fled suit in the Dakota courts to divorce his wife. She filed a cross bill and was awarded the decree. The court gave her the farm near Mason, but owing to the fact that a court from another state has no authority to transfer Michigan property this provision of the decree was void.

This left Mrs. Thayer with four children and no property. However, she ran the farm successfully until John Thayer's death when by the terms of his will the property reverted to his brother. Now, as a result of the decision of the circuit and the supreme court the farm is the property of Mrs. Thayer.

The state livestock sanitary commission, with the help of Governor Ferris, has closed the state of Michigan absolutely against cattle of any description, coming from Illinois. This quarantine is inspired by the prevalence of foot and mouth disease there and is in line with the plans of Detroit commission merchants.

The new proclamation even goes further than the one issued last winter during the general epidemic. Under that one cattle intended for immediate slaughter could be admitted, but this new order bars even all animals for immediate slaughter.

Saturday night President Halladay of the commission held a conference in Detroit with representatives of the packers there, in which the entire situation was discussed. Some of the packers wanted the immediate slaughter exemption retained, but the commission would not listen to such a proposition. The order had already been prepared before the conference was held.

Mr. Halladay says the new order is not the result of any startling developments in Illinois, but the commission has come to the conclusion that an absolute quarantine is needed.

"This step we are taking not only protects Michigan cattle within the state, but will enable Michigan owners to ship to other states without any suspicion of infection. If we bar absolutely Illinois cattle, no other state can raise any question as to admitting our cattle," said Mr. Halladay.

What is held to be one of the most far-reaching decisions ever handed down by the Michigan railroad commission is embodied in an order in the case of the Canadian Rural Telephone Co. and the Reading Central Telephone Co. against the Michigan State Telephone Co.

The complaint alleges: "Discriminations and interference with the independent business and refusal to route independent calls over independent lines; a center checking scheme to delay and hinder independent class calls, the question of contract and the observance of it between the Reading Central Telephone Co. and the Southern Michigan Telephone Co. effecting territorial rights in the southwest quarter of the country."

Reserving to the Reading company, exclusive toll rights in that territory, together with rights of other independent companies doing business through Hillsdale are affected by the order.

Before any money is collected or permanent plans made for the administration of the law, the members of the board want to be sure that the measure is constitutional and it is expected that the supreme court will be asked to pass upon it before the first of the year.

It is expected that more than 300 members of Michigan will be at Grand Rapids October 27 and 28, to attend the convention of the Michigan State Osteopathic association.

Great Diplomatic Victory for the United States—Settlement of All Controversies Seems Probable.

Washington—Germany has completely acceded to the American demands for settlement of the Arabic case.

The imperial government, in a letter presented Tuesday by its ambassador, Count von Bernstorff, to Secretary of State Lansing, disavows the sinking of the vessel, announces that it has notified the submarine commander who made the attack, expresses regret for the loss of American lives and agrees to pay an indemnity to their families.

Official Washington was both gratified and relieved by the diplomatic victory. The communication delivered by the ambassador pursuant to general instructions from his government spread absolute confidence that there would be no more submarine controversies between the United States and Germany, for the document reveals that stringent orders have been given to submarine commanders to prevent a recurrence of such incidents as the Arabic.

Since this case embraces the principles for which President Wilson contended in his notes following the torpedoing of the Lusitania and the Falaba, the concessions made by Germany to the American viewpoint were generally regarded Tuesday as paving the way for amicable settlement of all the cases which have threatened severance of diplomatic relations between the two countries.

Count von Bernstorff left here Tuesday night happy over the confident hope that relations between Germany and the United States would continue to improve.

GREEK PREMIER IS OUSTED

King Asks for Resignation Owing to Differences Over War Policy.

Paris—Premier Venizelos has resigned, according to a Havas News agency dispatch from Athens, the king having informed him that he could not support his policies.

The Greek situation is one of the most peculiar and the most menacing that has arisen out of the war. The resignation of Venizelos will necessarily mean the dissolution of the present Greek cabinet and the formation of a new one. But the ministry, which is appointive by the king, must be ratified by the chamber of deputies, and the Greek chamber is radically in favor of Venizelos.

King Constantine has absolutely rejected the diplomacy of his premier whose party was returned to power last spring on a platform which openly advocated support of the Entente powers. It would appear that the king, always a sympathizer of the German cause, has determined to stake everything on the support of that cause, even at the risk of losing his throne. A break between the king and Venizelos is likely to throw the country into revolution.

Lid Ordered For Chicago.

Chicago—Mayor Thompson, in a message Monday night to the city council, announced that the owners of all saloons in Chicago hereafter would be forced to obey the state law, which provides that they remain closed on Sunday.

The mayor ordered the city collector to notify in writing all persons holding licenses for saloons that they must comply with the requirements of the state law.

Vom Schauplatz des europäischen Völker-Krieges

In den „Siegen“ der Alliierten.

Die Alliierten brauchen Geld, und zwar sehr viel und sehr notwendig. Da nun der genial angelegte Pumpverfuch angeht die schlimmsten Lage der Alliierten selbst in diesem Lande, das mit ihnen so stark sympathisiert, nicht nach Blunzig konstatieren gehen wird, brauchen die Alliierten auch Sie. Diese letzteren sollen den fehlenden Kredit für die Alliierten liefern. Daher der Siegesjubel in Petrograd, London und Paris, welcher von dem Gefühle unserer Anglophilen noch überboten wird.

Was daran Wahres ist, können wir zur Zeit noch nicht definitiv feststellen. Nach den bisherigen Erfahrungen jedoch sind die alliierten Erfolge nicht die Hälfte von dem, als was sie in die Welt hinausposaunt werden. Nach einer Anzahl misglückter Offensiv-Veruche hat die französische und englische Seeresleitung Monate lang Zeit zur Vorbereitung gehabt. Somit unterliegt es keinem Zweifel, daß die französisch-englische Seeres die günstige Gelegenheit benutzen, da anheimende große Massen der deutschen Streitkräfte im Ozean gebunden sind, um endlich einmal ihren Völkern zu zeigen, daß sie noch nicht ganz tot sind. Ebenfalls ist es aber auch, daß die deutsche Seeresleitung schon längst bereit war und den ihre letzte Kraft einsetzenden Alliierten keinen schlechten Empfang bereitet hat, oder noch bereiten wird.

Es scheint sogar nicht unmöglich, daß deutscherseits die begonnene feindliche Offensiv mit einem gewaltigen Gegen-Vorstoß beantwortet werden wird. Ohne Zweifel sind schon längst entsprechende Truppenmassen zu diesem Zweck bereitgestellt worden, da die Kampagne gegen Rußland des früh eintretenden Winters wegen gewissermaßen vorläufig als abgeschlossen betrachtet werden kann.

Wo nun aber die neue deutsche Operation einsetzt wird, im Westen oder am Balkan, das weiß niemand als der deutsche Generalstab. Und der allein diktiert, was geschehen soll. In London und Paris müssen sich auch den Siegesjubel bereits machende Stimmen, welche es für nötig halten, daran zu erinnern, daß noch schwere Rückschläge zu erwarten sind. Während andererseits die alliierten Seeführer sich heute damit begnügen, zu melden, daß sie in Stande seien, die eroberten Positionen zu halten. Lange wird das sicherlich nicht mehr dauern und die Alliierten werden bald ausgejukt haben. Die deutsche Seeresleitung wird schon dafür Sorge tragen. Darum nur nicht bange machen lassen!

Die Hauptsache ist, daß den alliierten Pumpgenies die Anleihe in diesem Lande nicht unter dem künstlichen Siegestaumel gelingt.

Gültigkeit der Alliierten-Sekuritäten ist sehr zweifelhaft.

New York. Auf die Gefahr, sein Geld zu verlieren, der sich jeder aussetzt, der sich direkt oder indirekt an der französischen Anleihe beteiligt, die hier untergebracht werden soll, weist der frühere staatliche Rechnungsprüfer Herman E. Goldsmith an der Hand eines dieser Tage von Ex-Mayor George W. McClellan veröffentlichten Artikels hin. Er lautet:

„Von George W. McClellan, der frühere Mayor der Stadt New York und jetzige Professor der Rechte und Volkswirtschaft an der Princeton Universität, zeigt in einem längeren Artikel der „New York Times“, daß die französische Regierung in ihrer jetzigen Geistesverfassung unheilvoll ist, weil die Amtstermine aller Mitglieder der oberen Kammer und eines Drittels der unteren Kammer abgelaufen sind.“

Wenn Herrn McClellans Feststellungen richtig sind — und ein Mann seines Schlages wird sich in einer so wichtigen Angelegenheit sicherlich irren — dann ist die Gültigkeit der Sekuritäten, in denen die Banken und Anleiher in diesem Lande ihr Geld angelegen ausgefordert werden, äußerst zweifelhaft. Die Erfahrungen, die ich amtlich bezüglich der Sekurität betreffend Kalesien und Bond - Emissionen gesammelt habe, bezeugen mich, das amerikanische Volk zu ermahnen, hinsichtlich der Gültigkeit der verschiedenen Regierungen - Sekuritäten, in denen es direkt oder als Depositor von Bank-Instituten sein Geld anlegt, äußerst vorsichtig zu sein.

Solche Anleiher sollten sich bei ihren Anleiher genau hüten, daß sie ihr Geld direkt oder indirekt in zweifelhaften Papieren anlegen.

Daß auch Geld, welches Amerikaner den Engländern leihen müssen, in erster Gefahr steht, das zu bezeugen vermag zu geben, weiß jeder.

Das „Berliner Tageblatt“ bespricht unter der Überschrift „Zurückbare Zahlen“ die deutsche Anleihe und vermutet weitere Hunderttausende von Loten. Es schließt mit den Worten: „Wie man angeht, so werden die Alliierten sich nicht nur durch den Krieg, sondern auch durch die Revolution zu verfahren zu müssen. Aber als ich ein Erzeugnis geben. Dann wird die Revolution der Nationen mit denen erfolgen, die sie so lange in die Irre geleitet haben.“

Präsident der American Truth Society, Jeremiah A. O'Leary, in einem Schreiben nach, das er an den Vorsitzenden der alliierten Pumpkommission Sir Rufus Isaacs gerichtet hat. In dem Briefe erinnert der Anwalt daran, daß Bonds, die während des Bürgerkrieges von Südstaaten ausgegeben wurden, und die von Britischen Finanziers finanziert wurden, die ein Interesse daran hatten, den Bürgerkrieg fortzuführen zu sehen, damit die Union zerstört würde, noch nicht eingelöst sind. Diese Bonds befinden sich in den Händen der Kaufleute, die noch heute darauf warten, daß sie ihr Geld mit Zins und Zinseszins erhalten. Dazu stellt Herr O'Leary die Frage:

Anfragen in der „Eastland“-Katastrophe erhoben.

Chicago. In Verbindung mit der „Eastland“-Katastrophe haben die Großgeschworenen wegen Verschönerung bzw. strafbarer Fahrlässigkeit gegen folgende Personen Anfragen erhoben:

George J. Arnold, Präsident der Chicago and St. Joseph Steamship Co., William D. Hull, Vizepräsident und Generalmanager derselben Gesellschaft, Walter E. Steele, Geschäftsführer der Chicago and St. Joseph Steamship Co., Harry Peterson, Kapitän der „Eastland“, J. M. Erickson, Cheingenieur der „Eastland“, sowie die beiden Bundes-Schiffsinpektoren, Charles E. Edlitz und Robert Reid. Ferner gegen Walter Greenbaum, welcher nur der fahrlässigen Fahrlässigkeit angeklagt ist.

Die Chicago & St. Joseph Steamship Co. eigne das Schiff, sie überließ es zur Benutzung der Indiana Transportation Co. Die Beamten der ersten Gesellschaft wußten, daß das Schiff nicht seetüchtig war und der Kapitän sowie der Ingenieur haben sich von der Seetüchtigkeit des Schiffes nicht vorher überzeugt.

Greenbaum erlaubte, daß das Schiff mehr Leute an Bord nahm, als es nach bestehenden Vorschriften aufnehmen durfte.

Die beiden Inspektoren haben der St. Joseph Gesellschaft einige Kopien der über die gute Seetüchtigkeit des Fahrzeuges erteilt.

Das Schiff wird im Bundesgericht unter Richter Landis öffentlich versteigert.

Die beiden bezeichneten Gesellschaften wurden ferner als Korporationen angeklagt.

Petrograd von Hungersnot bedroht.

Der in, drahtlos über Sapelle, L. J. Nach der russischen Zeitung „Nitsch“ ist Petrograd von einer Hungersnot bedroht. Die Wärdereien müssen sich einbringen, da nicht genug Weizen zur Verfügung liegt. Das russische Volk bringt den jüngerjünglichen Nachweis, daß der Mangel an Bahnwagen die Lage verurteilt hat. Die Stadt benötigt täglich 510 Waggons voll Weizen, und während im Mai noch 2132 Waggons Weizen nach Petrograd gebracht wurden, war die Zahl im August auf 153 heruntergefallen.

Entlang der ganzen Bahnhalle Petrograd-Dinaburg ist kein Zunder, kein Petroleum, kein Kohlen und kein Salz mehr zu erhalten. Graf Kolofoi, der Stadtkommandant von Petersburg, hat selbst angegeben, daß es an Heizmaterial gebricht und die Vorräte für die Militärhospitäler verbraucht werden müssen, während die Privatleute sich zu durchschlagen sollen. Um die Stadt mit dem nötigen Heizmaterial zu versorgen, wären 25,000,000 Rubel nötig, und die fehlen.

Russische Besätze.

GETTING A START

By NATHANIEL C. FOWLER, Jr.

SIMPLICITY.

Simplicity is art, understood by the ignorant and appreciated by the intelligent.

Great men are simple, and their tastes are simple. They dress simply, never ostentatiously; their watch chains, if they have any, are never large and conspicuous. Occasionally they wear a ring, but only one ring. Their natural appetites crave simple food, and not the rich viands and the mysterious sauces which can tickle only the palate of the epicure, who lives to eat rather than eat to live.

The great authors, those who have written the living words which never die, write in simple diction, use language as a means to an end, not to make a display of it.

Many years ago, a then somewhat unknown man, by the name of Daniel DeFoe, made a story out of the experiences of a shipwrecked sailor and called his hero "Robinson Crusoe." For a generation this narrative was read by youngsters, and it was looked upon as a children's book. Today it has passed beyond the juvenile class and is considered one of the finest examples of simple English narrative, having a place in the libraries of the world.

Lincoln was not the only orator at Gettysburg. Competing with him—I may put it that way—was one of America's greatest scholars; yet the simple words of Lincoln have become an English classic, and millions of people can recite the whole speech from memory, while the words of the scholar are almost forgotten, and not one in ten thousand of the men of today know what he said; in fact, most of them do not know that he spoke at all.

Simplicity lives, its opposite dies young. Great men of every class have been simple and their reputations have been built upon simplicity. They not only understand what they say, but they say it so that others understand it.

Education by itself does not produce an educated man. Education is simply one of the elements which go to round out a man and make him a better citizen, enabling him to accomplish better results. Education, academically speaking, is not necessarily simple. It is more or less complex. Therefore, the educated man of use in the world has mixed simplicity with his learning that it may be in a condition to be assimilated.

Not what we know, but what we do with what we know, counts; and we cannot distribute either learning or experience, or use them to advantage, unless we have prepared them to meet the exigencies of the times, made them so that they are of use.

The greatest leveling power in the world, that which makes things good for something, is common simplicity mixed with common sense. The two are practically synonymous, for one cannot exist without the other. Where they do not exist, all the learning in the world, and all the experience possible for one to obtain, are like so much gold buried beyond the reach of man.

Be simple, be clear. Don't swallow a dictionary and exhale words, which, like dust, blind the eye and clog the ear.

COMPANIONSHIP.

Place the most liberally educated president of the highest institution of learning alone on a desert island, and if he lives, he will soon become more animal than man, perhaps crawling on all fours, forgetting his native tongue, and becoming intellectually below the domestic dog in intelligence. He will even forget how to talk to himself.

By ourselves we amount to practically nothing. Although the human brain does not lack individuality, it is pre-eminently a receptacle for the storage of what comes to it from the outside. Not what we possess, but what we obtain from others, or to put it differently, what we collectively receive by exchanging experiences with others, rounds out a man and lifts him beyond the animal.

Man, collectively, is almost all-powerful; to him impossibility does not seem to exist. Individually, he is, or would be, a worthless product.

One of the principal causes of failure is the tendency to live too much within ourselves, to depend upon ourselves, to judge for ourselves.

I am not asking anyone to give up his individuality, or to allow others to dictate his every action, but I am saying to you, young man, and to you, young woman, that, if you would round yourself out in usefulness, and obtain a character and a reputation, you must depend upon others, exchanging your ideas for those of others, giving and taking, drawing from the great world at large all that it can give you, or, rather, all that you can take of it.

There is no other way. The more friends you have, the more you mix intelligently with others, the more you get together, the more you will amount to. You will not forfeit your individuality, but, rather, you will combine it with that of others, making exchanges, swapping experiences.

Depending upon yourself is laudable and to be encouraged, but when you carry that self-dependence to the extreme, you will find that you have nothing back of you which will sustain you, even in small emergencies.

You need companions, companions of your own kind—you cannot have any other kind.

To be an acceptable and useful citizen and to succeed in business, contact with your fellows is absolutely essential. Progressive business men are members of boards of trade and chambers of commerce. They keep in touch with financial movements and are never ignorant of those current events which have a bearing upon their vocations. Even competitors lunch together and exchange experiences, realizing that only in this way can they keep abreast of the times.

This intermingling is as necessary in social life as it is in business. Unless you are constantly in touch with your fellows, you will become too rusty to be considered of any consequence in any community.

The more you fraternize with intelligent and honest others, the more intelligent and the more honest you will be. You cannot escape your fellows, unless you shut yourself away from them; and, if you do, you might as well jump overboard and stay there, for the world does not want you and there is no reason why it should.

BAD MANNERS IN SOME SHOPS

Story Concerning the Amusing Superciliousness of Saleswomen in Big Establishments.

An amusing discussion took place the other day in the dressing room of a fashionable restaurant. Three women were laughing over the grandeur of the saleswomen in a certain Walnut street shop. The shop was offering reduced rates, and one of them sauntered in from curiosity—what woman can resist looking over what may prove to be a bargain? The saleswoman in charge seemed quite indifferent, and upon Mrs. X making some critical remark about a simple little gown marked down to $16.50, she raised her penciled eyebrows and looked plyingly at the customer, as though sizing her up according to the gown's value. "Oh," she drawled, "but that, you know, you would only find on an expensive gown—a $50 gown!" Mrs. X mimicked the grande maniere of the saleswoman quite out of all proportion with her evident regard for a $50 gown, and her companions laughed heartily.—Kansas City Star.

Alexandria's Jetty.

The Jetty at Alexandria, Egypt, with a total length of 330 feet, is made up of five caissons, which were built up of reinforced concrete, and floated into place. Each caisson is 66 feet long by 26 feet wide and 20 to 22 feet deep, and after being launched into the water on a special slipway it was towed to its prepared undersea bed by one or more tugs.

Its Big Event in History.

"What do you consider the most important event in the history of Paris?" "Well," replied the tourist wearily, who had grown weary of distributing tips, "so far as financial prosperity is concerned, I should say the discovery of America was the making of this town."

Hold-Over.

"Why, Tommie, how dirty your hands are to see so early in the morning! Have you been out before breakfast?" "No, papa, it's a 'hold-over'; I got 'em dirty last night."

As a Substitute. "Please, ma'am," said the unlearned hobo at the back door, "could you give a pore faller a trifle today?" "Ta sorry," replied the wily lady, "but we are entirely out of trifle. But I can give you a hunk of corn-bread and bacon."

Sure Enough.

Boudoir Coat of China Silk

Slipped on over a frilly petticoat of silk, or one of plaited crepe de chine, an embroidered coat of light-colored china silk is pretty enough to put one in a good humor in the early morning hours. Here is pictured a contribution from the Orient that is a thing of beauty and a joy as long as it lasts.

The coat is cut like a kimono, on the simplest of lines. It is somewhat longer than a three-quarter length, and is slashed up at each side to a depth of about eight inches at the bottom. There is a shaped band of silk about the neck and down the front opening. The fastening is made with frogs of silk cord that match the silk in color.

In the picture a coat is shown made in a lovely shade of grayish blue silk and lined with white silk of the same kind. The color makes the best of backgrounds for the long sprays of flowers and leaves that wander over the surface of the coat. The chrysanthemum, shaded from pink to white, is the flower so faithfully portrayed in the embroidery. The stems and leaves are in a soft gray green.

The embroidery appears at each side of the front and across the back, with one long spray extending down the side. Buds and leaves are scattered over the band at the neck and at the bottom of the sleeves. A small white silk cord outlines the band at each side. Other coats are shown with the wild rose or the wisteria blossom used instead of the chrysanthemum.

Coats of the same shape and design but of heavier silks and richer embroideries, are used for evening wear. The boudoir coat shown is a very inexpensive affair, but is as beautiful as those used for evening, although it is so much more simple in its decoration.

Button Bag.

"Button, button, who's got the button?" It should be in your button bag, madam; but if you have not any, here is an odd little pattern that you might copy. Make a perfectly round little bag with a square bottom and a drawstring. You may use natural-colored linen, and out of the same linen make four pockets for the outside of the bag, binding them with colored tape. The flaps of these pockets are fastened with the variety of button that is intended to be kept in each pocket. As decoration, you might embroider some sunbonnet babies and instead of buttons, supply faces

Fad for Furs and Feathers

All sorts of furs and all sorts of feathers are to be found in neckwear and millinery for the coming winter. Fur as a trimming for fabrics and in neckwear, and fur sets, appear to be better liked than in all-fur garments. Matched sets of three pieces, showing muff, neckpiece and hat trimming of the same fur, or all of them, are among the most elegant and practical offerings of the new season.

The neckpiece and fur-trimmed turban at the right of the picture given here recommend themselves to maid and matron alike. As shown, the high pompadour and soft collar are made of white angora, but the same idea is carried out in other furs such as martin and fox, or any of the long-haired skins.

The turban has a high crown covered with white satin and a smartly fringed brim of black velvet. The big fur pompadour is its only trimming. At the left a toque shape entirely covered with hackle feathers in black and Belgian blue is made to conform to the shape of the head. At the left side a fan, made of wide blue velvet ribbon, set together in three rows, gives the required height. The feathers fall with their own natural grace about the head at the sides and back, and the toque is exceptionally becoming.

Both these hats may be worn by women of middle age, and the all-feather turban is designed for them. The richness of the darker furs, used as shown in the picture, makes the high-crowned turban trimmed with them a distinctly good model for the matron.

JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

Apron is Model.

The humble kitchen apron has been the inspiration for many smart semi-princess designs; the pinafore of our childhood days has reappeared in the sauced overdresses of checked, striped or plain taffeta, and the dainty, frilly apron of mislady's maid appears on afternoon and dance frocks. The dress of laces are used for the latter.

Side Frills.

The fully side frill is in vogue again. A jabot thus adorned will do much to redeem a somber looking dress or an out-of-date waist. There should be a number of these fluffy frills lying about at home, as it was so popular a model not long ago. Those who must make them will need, for one jabot, half a yard of pretty insertion and from three-quarters to one yard of piping for the frill, according to the width of the frill.

Never play at any game of chance.

ALL BUILT OF TIMBER

WOODEN CANTILEVER USED IN CONSTRUCTION OF VIADUCT.

Notable Example of Modern Engineering Methods—Derrick Booms Stretched More Than One Hundred Feet Ahead of Finished Work.

In constructing a railroad viaduct at Lewistown, Mont., a wooden cantilever traveler which was used for handling the steelwork offers an interesting example of modern engineering methods. Except for the supporting guy rods, reaching from the center tower to the outer end of the long overhang, the traveler was built entirely of timber. The heavy horizontal beams were about twenty feet above the track, and, with the two derrick booms which they supported at their outer ends, commanded a reach of approximately one hundred and ten feet in advance of the finished work. These beams extended about the same distance to the rear that they did forward and held a platform on which the hoisting engines were carried. This provided the traveler with an adequate counterweight. The material was delivered in cars at the end of the track, carried through the lower part of the traveler and swung out, as may be seen in the accompanying photograph. In this manner the booms were used in building up the bridge towers and putting the short girders in place. The connecting members were swung into position by tackles attached to the overhang structure.—Popular Mechanics.

Great Kentucky Central.

A railroad president spoke at a dinner in Boston on railway safety. "Why, the day may come," he declared, "when all roads will be as safe as the Great Kentucky Central."

"A passenger on that railroad said to the conductor: 'Do you use the block system on this line?'"

"No; we ain't got no use for the block system, stranger."

"Oh, I suppose, then, you use electric or pneumatic signaling?"

"No; no use for them, nuther."

"Then you have train dispatchers and run your trains by telegraph?"

"None."

"But when you stop between stations, you at least go back a hundred yards and flag the rear?"

"None, stranger; nope."

"Then," said the passenger, angrily, "all I've got to say is that this road is run in a criminally reckless manner."

"The conductor frowned, took out a plug of tobacco and snapped off a chew viciously."

"Stranger," he said, "if you don't like this line, say so, and I'll stop the train and you can get off and walk. I'm the president of the line and the sole owner. This is the Great Kentucky Central, and stranger, don't you forget it. She's seven miles and a half long. She runs from Paint Rock to Nola Chucky. This is the only train that travels on the Great Kentucky Central, and what you hear snortin' ahead is our only engine. We ain't never had a collision. We ain't never had an accident. What's more, we never will. Now, are you satisfied, stranger, or will I pull the string and let you get out and walk?"

Passenger Train Statistics.

"Of the 175,465 regular passenger trains operated by the Southern railroad during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1915, 89 per cent, made schedule time and 148,288, or 83 per cent, were on time at all stations," said District Passenger Agent M. Coxwell.

"During the year 149,100 strictly local trains were operated and of these 133,866, or 90 per cent, made schedule time, while 17,232, or 86 per cent, were on time at all stations. Of the 26,202 limited trains, nearly all of which cover long distances and are handled by other lines in connection with the Southern railway, 21,744, or 83 per cent, made schedule time, while 4,458, or 71 per cent, were on time at all stations."—Birmingham (Ala.) Age-Herald.

Requires Warnings at R. R. Crossings.

New Hampshire now has a law placing the protection of railroad grade crossings in the hands of the public service commission, which has ordered that each city and town shall maintain warning signs at a reasonable distance on each side of crossings. The signs must be of enameled metal, 24 by 12 inches in size, and have white letters on a blue ground. If any town neglects to set such signs for sixty days, it forfeits $1 for each day.

TO DO AWAY WITH STEAM

Electric "Juice," Instead of Coal, is Planned to Haul Trains in the West.

With Chicago, Boston, and several other large cities of the country discussing the electrification of the railways entering the city with a view of eliminating a large part of the smoke nuisance problems, and the railroad saying it cannot be done because of the excessive cost, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad is preparing to electrify its road from Harlowton, Mont., to the Pacific coast, a distance of 850 miles, not because of the smoke from its engines, but as a matter of economy.

As federal engineers' investigations into the most efficient uses of the natural resources of the country have led them to suggest the electrification of the railways, the power to be supplied from the rivers and from plants located at the coal mines, they are much interested in the news that comes from the West concerning this railway. Plans have already been completed and contracts let for the electric locomotives, substation apparatus and line material for 113 miles of the main line from Three

The Electric Locomotive in Use Beginning the Erection of the Viaduct at Lewistown, Mont.

Forks, Mont., to Deer Lodge, the first of four engine divisions from Harlowton, Mont., to Avery, Mont., aggregating about 650 miles of track, including yards and sidings. While this comprises the extent of track to be equipped in the near future, it is understood that plans are being made for the electrification of 850 miles should the operating results of the initial installation prove as satisfactory as anticipated.

This is said to be the first attempt to install and operate electric locomotives on tracks extending over several engine divisions. The various other installations throughout the country have usually been made because of local conditions, but it is understood that the electrification of this road has been undertaken purely on economic grounds, with the expectation that superior operating results with electric locomotives will effect a sufficient reduction from the present cost of steam operation to yield an adequate return on the large investment required. The power will be obtained from various rivers along the route.

The electric locomotives to be used will weigh approximately 260 tons, and have a continuous capacity greater than any steam or electric locomotive yet constructed. The passenger locomotives will be capable of hauling an 800-ton train at a speed of 60 miles an hour, and will be equipped with an oil-fired steam heating apparatus for the cars.

When the four engine divisions are completed, it is the intention to combine them into two divisions of 220 mile lengths, changing crews, however, at the present division points. As the electric locomotive needs inspection only after a run of about 2,000 miles, requires no stops for taking on coal or water, or lay-over due to dumping ashes, cleaning boilers, or petty roundhouse repairs, it may be expected that the use of these locomotives will result in considerable change in the method of hauling trains now limited by the restrictions of the steam engine.—Washington Star.

Passengers in Dire Peril.

An exciting experience befell the passengers in a train traveling from Shrewsbury to Llanymynech, Wales, the other day. The train was derailed while crossing the girder bridge that spans the River Severn at Shrewsbury, and all the passenger coaches were thrown against the sides of the iron bridge. The passengers' position was perilous, as the bridge is 60 feet above the river, and even when they escaped from the coaches they were faced with the danger of falling through the spaces between the girders of the bridge into the water below. Although none of the passengers were actually injured, many women among them were greatly alarmed. One fell out of the train on one of the girders of the bridge. She was saved from falling into the river by a Shrewsbury solicitor, who managed to grasp her as she clutched the girder; but she was so frightened that she could not be persuaded to release her hold for nearly half an hour.

Train Held Up by Wildcats.

Traffic was suspended on the main line of the Pennsylvania railroad for a full hour near Millerstown the other morning when a fast freight train was held up by wildcats. A train of derailed beef parted at a defective coupler while passing through the Millerstown narrows, and the conductor hurried forward from the caboose, only to find the situation in charge of an old shag bobcat and her two half-grown kittens.

MARKET QUOTATIONS

Live Stock. DETROIT—Yards were formally opened at 3 p. m. Monday and now the entire state of Michigan is in the free area and anything from the state may now be unloaded here, and cars do not have to be distracted coming to the yards from Michigan points. Shipments can be made from here anywhere and milch cows, stockers and feeders may again be handled as before the quarantine was placed last November.

An embargo has been placed against Illinois and no live stock from that state can enter Michigan for any purpose.
