MISSING THE POINT

It does not require very much imagination to calculate on what would happen in a neighborhood where the church had altogether disappeared.

The most indifferent of non-church goers will confess that he would not by any means be willing to keep his home in a community where there was no church.

But if the church is necessary to a community, it is his business to help keep up that church and make it a good church.

A man cannot possibly call the church a valuable institution in society, and after that find a tenable explanation for not going to church himself.

The man who claims he can stay at home and "be just as good as if he went to church" misses the point in the whole question.

The point is not what he would be, but what he and all his neighbors would be, with the church gone.

THERE MUST BE A REASON

Mr. Dairyman, I want cream, I can use all you can send; My butter is in such demand, To my limit there's no end, So, let me have the next one, do, And I surely will not fail To pay the highest price and mail A check right back to you.

Yes, I'm the Miss Daisy Brand to whom Billy Junks, and several thousand other satisfied dairymen have been shipping their cream. And there's room for you in the prosperous colony. The only inducement I offer is the highest price for your butter-fat, cash every shipment, and a check right back. And remember—this offer is backed by the old reliable.

Plymouth Gun Club Hold Big Shoot

Last week Thursday the Gun Club held a shoot and chose sides. The losers were to pay for a supper for the crowd. Merle Murray and Warren Baxter were captains on the losing side, while W. W. Murray and Matt Powell had the honor to captain the winning side. The following is the score:

Merle Murray, whose pride was so inflated, has never been seen since the shoot was held. We've all tried to get him on the phone. He always says, "nobody home." We all think he has the right to bow.

At 7:30 in the evening the members of the club and a few invited guests sat down to a banquet given by the losers of the shoot. George Taylor was the caterer for this pleasant event, and that Mr. Taylor fully sustained his already enviable reputation for serving appetizing menus of this kind, was made evident by a rising vote of thanks by the banqueters for the most excellent repast which he had provided for their enjoyment. After the members had regaled themselves with cigars, a pleasant social hour was passed.

Methodist Anniversary

One year ago next Sunday the Methodist people of Plymouth dedicated their re-built church. They are to celebrate next Sunday, Nov. 21st. Dr. D. H. Ramsdell, the new superintendent of the Detroit West District, will preach at the morning service. Dr. Ramsdell is regarded as the leader in religious matters among the younger Methodist ministers of Michigan. He should be greeted by a fine congregation on this his first appearance officially in the Plymouth Methodist church. A financial report of the building committee will be presented by three church treasurers. No appeal in any form will be made for funds. It will be a time of review and rejoicing. Everybody is welcome.

The Woman's Literary Club

The fourth meeting of the Woman's Literary Club was held at the home of Mrs. F. F. Bennett last Friday afternoon. About forty ladies were in attendance. The president, Mrs. J. J. Travis, presided over the business session. The program, prepared by the fourth division, was in charge of Mrs. R. G. Samsen, who acted as chairman. The chief subject of the day being "Our State Metropolitans." The response to roll call was given by mentioning some articles manufactured in Detroit. Three interesting papers were given: "Detroit—Past," Mrs. J. Olaver; "Present," Mrs. Pierre Pennett; "Pictorial—Detroit," Miss Madeline Bennett. A paper on "The Peace Movement" was given by Mrs. Wm. T. Pettigill. An instrumental solo, with accompaniment by Miss Madeline Bennett, after which an excellent report of the State Federation meeting, held at Lansing in October, was given by the delegate, Mrs. Frank Shattuck. Club adjourned to meet with Mrs. C. L. Wilcox, Friday afternoon, Nov. 26th.

Chapman-Miller

On Saturday evening, Nov. 13th, at the Methodist parsonage in Plymouth, Mrs. Mabel Muir of 1045 Ann Arbor street, Plymouth, was united in marriage to Eljah Chapman of Bronson, Michigan. The wedding couple will live in Bronson, where Mr. Chapman is engaged in farming. Rev. Joseph Dunning, pastor of the Methodist church, read the marriage ceremony.

Another Veteran Has Passed Away

Again we are called upon to chronicle the death of one of our most highly esteemed citizens and a veteran of the civil war, Ephraim H. Partridge, Sr., who passed away at the home of his son, Melburn Partridge, last Saturday, after a two weeks' illness. Mr. Partridge had been in failing health since the first of September, but had been able to be about as usual until about two weeks ago, when, in a delicate condition, he succumbed to the Wilcox mill on the night of Nov. 1st, and plunged into the cold waters of the mill race, an account of which appeared in the columns of the Mail at that time. From that time on he had steadily faded. The result of the exposure which he suffered at that time, no doubt hastened his death.

The funeral was held from the Presbyterian church Monday afternoon at two o'clock, Rev. B. F. Farber conducting the services. Eddy Post, of which deceased was an honored member, attended the services in a body. The floral offerings were many and beautiful. The remains were laid to rest in Riverside cemetery.

Ephraim H. Partridge was born in Superior township, Washtenaw county, December 2, 1831, and departed this life November 13, 1915, aged 72 years, 11 months and 11 days. His parents died when he was 12 years of age, and having no near relatives he made his own way in the world from that time on. In August, 1851, he enlisted in Co. B, First Michigan Cavalry, Custer's brigade. He served throughout the civil war, becoming first sergeant of his company. He was wounded at the battle of Cold Harbor, June 1, 1864. His regiment went west with Custer at the close of the war, where he was honorably discharged in December, 1865. His country's flag was always near to him and he never forgot his greatest devotion to his wife in her last long illness, which is so well remembered by all. He will be greatly missed by his family, his comrades and all who knew him.

Death of Mrs. Jacob Bogert

Mrs. Jacob Bogert, nee Hannah S. Salley, was called to her heavenly home Monday morning, Nov. 15, after a lingering illness of nearly ten years. She was born in Plymouth, April 25, 1841. In the year 1861 she was united in marriage to Jacob Bogert. Of this union one child was born, Fred, who is well known in this community. In the year 1868 she was converted and joined with the Baptist church of Salena, where she retained her membership till she moved to Plymouth, where she united with the Baptist church of this place. Her life was one of service and charity. It was given her to see that the score of life is love and service. In her home life love was shown in and all strife shut out. In her church life she was faithful and always ready to be of service. To her neighbors she was always a devoted friend. All who came in contact with her were made stronger and purer by her loving Christ-like disposition. Mrs. Bogert leaves to mourn their loss, a husband, son and one sister, Mrs. D. W. Packard, and four grandchildren, besides an innumerable number of friends. All will miss her, but the afterglow of her life will remain an inspiration to all. Her funeral services were held Wednesday from the family home, on Pennington avenue, conducted by her pastor, who was assisted by Dr. Betts, a life-long friend of the family, and her remains laid to rest in beautiful Riverside cemetery.

Death of E. P. Baker

E. P. Baker, for many years a well known and highly respected business man of this village, passed away at the home of his granddaughter, Mrs. C. H. Rauch, with whom he made his home, Wednesday morning, of old age. Mr. Baker was one of the pioneer photographers of Michigan, having been engaged in that business for sixty years, the greater part of which time was in this village.

Mr. Baker was born in New York state, December 13th, 1829. On October 13th, 1853 he was united in marriage to Maria Marshall of Plymouth. To this union two children were born, who with the wife have preceded him to the great beyond.

The funeral services will be held from the home this Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock. Rev. Joseph Dutton will officiate, assisted by Rev. B. F. Farber. Interment in Riverside cemetery.

A Fine Entertainment

The second number on the Citizens' Entertainment Course was presented at the opera house last Tuesday evening, when the Boulaah Buck Quartet company appeared before a large and appreciative audience. The well trained talent of every member of the company made the evening a delightful one. Mrs. Buck gave several readings which were heartily enjoyed. The solos rendered by the four ladies were greatly appreciated, as each possesses a voice of rare sweetness and ability. The entertainment closed with a pretty little sketch entitled "Now and Then," the ladies appearing in gowns of our grandmother's time, and singing several of the sweet old time melodies. It is hoped this quartet may again appear in our town.

FORMER SENATOR BURROWS IS DEAD

AGED MICHIGAN STATESMAN ANSWERS LAST SUMMONS WEDNESDAY MORNING.

HALF CENTURY IN POLITICS

Served Several Terms in Lower House of Congress Before Election to Senate and Was Twice Speaker Pro Tem.

Kalamazoo—Former Senator Julius Caesar Burrows, active in Michigan and national politics since the Civil war, died at his home in Kalamazoo very early Wednesday morning, presumably of heart disease or apoplexy.

Mr. Burrows had been in the best of health all day and was actively planning a trip to be made with his wife next week to California, where they were to spend the winter.

A little after 11 o'clock Tuesday night he retired. Some time later his wife was attracted to his room by his heavy breathing. She was unable to arouse him, and, alarmed, summoned two physicians. Before they could arrive, Mr. Burrows was beyond assistance. The doctors were unable to determine the exact cause of death, stating that either apoplexy or heart disease was the cause.

Leaves But One Child. Aside from his wife, Mr. Burrows is survived by his sister, Mrs. H. B. Peck, of Kalamazoo. A brother, who was a member of the Ohio bar, died two months ago. His only child, Mrs. George McNeil, of Scarborough-on-the-Hudson, is in Kalamazoo.

Julius Caesar Burrows was born in Erie county, Pa., January 9, 1837, and was educated at Kalamazoo college for the law and admitted to the bar in 1861. He served in the Union army as an officer during the Civil war, and at its close again took up his profession in Kalamazoo, where he resided until his death.

Notable Political Career. He was first elected to the house of representatives, serving in congress from 1873 to 1875 and from 1879 to 1883. In 1885 he again was sent to congress, and was elected senator to all the unexpired term of Francis E. Stockbridge in 1894, while still a member of the lower house.

Rich had appointed John Patton senator and interim to succeed Mr. Stockbridge. After his election to the senate Mr. Burrows was twice re-elected, retiring in 1911.

Mr. Burrows twice was speaker pro tem of the house; served as delegate to Republican national conventions several times, and was temporary chairman of the convention of 1908. He was one time appointed supervisor of internal revenue for Michigan and Wisconsin and also solicitor of the treasury, but declined both offices.

ROBERT FAY TELLS STORY TO KNOX

ASSISTANT DISTRICT ATTORNEY IS GIVEN DETAILS OF BOMB PLOTS.

CONFESSION IS VOLUNTARY

Truth of Prisoner's Story is Not Yet Assured But Some Features Have Been Verified.

New York.—Robert Fay, self-styled lieutenant in the German army, and by his own confession head of a gang of bomb-makers that sought to disable or destroy munition-laden ships sailing from New York to the Allies, told the story of his life Monday to Assistant United States District Attorney Knox.

Fay talked freely, fully and of his own volition for five hours without interruption. What he said was not made public but at the conclusion of the session, Mr. Knox announced that all Fay wanted to do now was to plead guilty to the government's charges against him and go to jail.

The statement which the prisoner dictated carried him back to Germany, almost to the date of his birth, covered the high lights of his service in his alleged mission to America and recited his movements and activities here.

Whether it was true in its essentials, District Attorney Marshall said afterward, had yet to be determined, but in some respects it was verified by information which the government had collected from other sources.

To Arrest Inhumane Resorfers.

Muskegon—Fully a score of prominent summer resorters who spend the warmer months at Lake Michigan park and whose homes are located in Grand Rapids, Detroit, Chicago and other large cities, will face criminal charge of failing to provide proper food and shelter for pet dogs and cats they abandoned when they closed up their summer homes for the season this fall.

Two Held for Middleton's Death.

Flint—Hiram Stratton and Elmer Wilcox were bound over to the circuit court on a charge of manslaughter. It is alleged the men caused the death of Emery T. Middleton, former state representative from Genesee county and prominent local option worker on the night of August 26. Middleton was trying to detain them for sheriff's officers after their automobile had wrecked a milk wagon and fell or was pushed from the running board of the machine, dying the next day with a fractured skull.

Columbiaville Bank is Robbed.

Columbiaville—Yeggmen blew open the safe of the Columbiaville State bank at 2:30 o'clock Friday morning, obtained $4,000 in cash and negotiable papers, and escaped. Sheriff Carrigan of Lapeer, who is investigating, has no clue.

Mrs. A. R. Lambert, who lives across the street from the bank, was awakened by the noise of the explosion and attempted to spread an alarm. She was ordered back into the house by an armed man stationed on the porch.

ITEMS OF STATE INTEREST

After being out six hours a jury in the circuit court at Adrian awarded Cornelius Marsons, of Grand Rapids, $777 in his suit against the city of Hudson. The suit was for $8,000, which Marsons said was due him on a paving contract.

The Garland hotel, one of Boyne City's landmarks, was burned Friday. The brick building adjoining, owned by the Petoskey Brewing Co., was also badly damaged by fire and water. The loss will reach $10,000, partially covered by insurance.

Fred Chapman, a farmer of Seville township Gratiot county, lost a leg in a bean thresher while assisting on the farm of Charles Goring. He stepped from the haymow on to the top of the thresher and his foot went through into one of the cylinders.

Farmers of eastern Michigan who have been raising sugar beets received nearly $2,000,000 Monday, at the first pay roll this fall of the Michigan Sugar Co., which owns six of the biggest plants in Michigan. The farmers this year are paid a flat rate of $6 a ton.

Henry Bartholemew, about 38 years old, was electrocuted in the Fordney-Chappell mine at Saginaw Thursday. It is presumed that Bartholemew's head came in contact with a live wire and death was instantaneous.

The Shawassee County Sunday School association and Ministerial association are planning a church canvass of the county. The work will be carried on in every part of the county and along the general lines of increasing church interest in the county. Two state workers will aid in the house-to-house campaign.

Governor Ferris has appointed John A. Dennis, of Hastings, member of the board of managers of the Michigan Soldiers' home, at Grand Rapids. Mr. Dennis fills the vacancy caused by the death of Asa Joy, and his term expires in 1917.

Although apples are bringing high prices in other parts of the state, for reasons unknown the figures quoted for this fruit at Pentwater are so low that farmers are already feeding this important fruit product of their stock, rather than accept offers of as low as 15 cents a bushel for them.

The Peabody disaster has aroused them to extra vigilance.

Seen and Heard in Michigan

Ann Arbor.—Superintendent J. H. Draper of the University hospital was almost instantly killed by an Am Arbor street car as he was on his way home last night. Both legs and one arm were broken. Grand Rapids.—Safe robbers blew a safe in the offices of the Michigan Trust company and stole $5,000 in negotiable paper, besides a diamond pin valued at $100, a ring and about $30 in postage. They attempted to break three other safes in the building. Grand Rapids.—Fully 300 furniture manufacturers are expected for the annual meeting of the National Furniture Manufacturers' association here December 1. George P. Hummer, Henry D. Easterbrook of New York and Governor Ferris will speak. Monroe.—At the conclusion of the testimony produced by the prosecution, Judge Gilday held that there was not sufficient evidence against Edward Duvall, a mechanic charged with a statutory offense, and directed a verdict of not guilty. Menominee.—The freighter Starlight was destroyed by fire while 14 miles from this port. The crew of three got into the lifeboat, but when near Chambers Island the boat capsized, throwing the men into the icy water. They managed to swim to safety and walked four miles to shelter. Lansing.—Adjutant General Fuller received notice that the Germania Refining company of Pennsylvania has appealed to the United States Supreme court from the decision of Judge West of the Ingham circuit, who upheld the constitutionality of the act providing for a tax upon car loading companies. Bay City.—Deputy State Fire Marshal Sam Robinson and Fire Chief Charles H. Crampton took three schools unawares with fire drill tests. Each was perfect. The schools were emptied in less than two minutes. The deputy declared that he would serve notice on the board of education to equip several schools with fire escapes. Escanaba.—Only the fact that a cartridge failed to explode prevented a murder at Lathrop. August Wenzel was chased into the home of E. W. Foster by Joseph Wensook. The latter pointed the gun at Wenzel and pulled the trigger, but only a snap followed. Wenzel's refusal to pay Wensook for labor caused the row. East Lansing.—Announcement has been made by R. J. Baldwin of the M. A. C. extension department of the following schools in agriculture, to be held in the state: Texas Township Farmers' club, Kalamazoo county, December 6-10; Benzonia, November 29-December 3; Shelby, December 20-24; Caledonia, December 27-31; Convia, Calhoun county, December 13-17. Port Huron.—Word has been received here that Capt. B. J. McCormick is now in England waiting to leave for the front and that his son, Arthur, has enlisted in Toronto. Mrs. McCormick is with her husband in England. The McCormicks formerly resided in Port Huron. When he enlisted Mr. McCormick was prominently identified with commercial interests of Welland, Ont. Battle Creek.—If the United States ever goes to war Thomas A. Edison will present some surprises in military inventions which will startle the European scientific world, is the belief of Fred K. Walton, who for four years was private secretary to Mr. Edison. Mr. Walton is at the sanitarium for a short stay. Mr. Walton believes that Edison has a large number of war plans which he will offer at the opportune time. Marquette.—William D. Stevens of the Winona mine, who was lost in the woods near Winona for 48 hours, has turned up at Twin Lake station. Stevens left with a party that was searching for three missing hunters. The men and all of the searchers returned to Winona during the day, but Stevens failed to appear. Fraternity brothers of the Michigan College of Mines searched for him with 150 men. They returned empty-handed, and they were of the opinion that the man was dead, until his arrival disproved this theory. Jackson.—At the concluding session of the Michigan conference, Woman's Home Missionary society, a resolution was adopted urging the members to co-operate in the prohibition campaign in Michigan. Grand Rapids was selected for the 1916 meeting. Officers elected were: First vice-president, Mrs. E. L. Barnes, Petoskey; second vice-president, Mrs. Alma Smith, Ionia; department secretaries, young people's, Mrs. Maude Hildreth, Lansing; children's work, Mrs. Mary E. Brockway, Mason; mite boxes, Miss Nellie Chase, Grand Rapids; supplies, Mrs. C. L. Gardner, Lansing; literature, Mrs. Bertha B. Greene, Albion; temperance, Mrs. F. B. Rich, Holland; Christian stewardship and evangelism, Mrs. Carrie Godfrey, Grand Rapids. Hillsdale.—An order for 2,000,000 pairs of shoes for the Russians was offered to the Hillsdale Shoe Manufacturing company. Flint.—The Peters State bank at Columbiaville, near here, was robbed of $4,000 by burglars. A charge of nitroglycerin wrecked the bank building and broke windows in nearby stores. Lansing.—Governor Ferris has appointed John A. Dennis of Hastings a member of the board of managers of the Michigan Soldiers' home at Grand Rapids. Mr. Dennis fills the vacancy caused by the death of Asa Joy. His term will expire in 1917. Calumet.—William Stevens, graduate of the Michigan College of Mines, employed as mining engineer by the Winona Mining company, who was lost in woods Monday, found his way out. Searching parties spent two days and 50 students of the mining college assisted in the search. Stevens was without food and drink for two days. Perry.—Bert Kinney, a young farmer living near Perry, cut his wrist so badly when he tried to take a piece of broken glass from a window that he nearly bled to death before medical assistance arrived. An artery was severed.

A STORY OF THE GREAT NORTHWEST

CHAPTER I.

Out of the Vine Maples. Siletz sat, her knees drawn up to her chin, on the flat top of a stump. Beside her lay Coonah, heavy muzzle on huge paws, his eyes as pale as the girl's were dark. They were hill-bred both. Perhaps that accounted for the delight both found in the solitude of this acre, where they could look down toward the west on the feathery, green sea of close-packed pine and fir, of spruce and hemlock—and toward the east on the narrow strip of tide-water slough and the unpainted shacks of the lumber camp huddled above its roadway. It was the magnificent timber country of the great Northwest.

Siletz was wondering, as she always did, how far the mountains ran to the south, how far it was to that "Frisco" of which she had heard so much from the tramp loggers who came and went with the seasons, their "turkeys" on their backs and the joyous liberty of the irresponsible forever tugging at their eccentric souls.

Over the facing ridge she knew that the cold Pacific roared and coaxed on the ships, to play with them in the hell of Vancouver coast. She could hear it sometimes when the pines were still; yet she had never seen it.

She had pictures of it in her mind, many pictures. She knew well how it would look when she should see it—a gray floor, a world of it, shot through with the reds and purples of a tardy sun. Of the cities she had no clear pictures. They were artificial, man-made, therefore alien to her, who knew only nature, though she had listened intently to roammers from every corner of the globe; for Dally's lumber camp had seen a queer lot.

It all resolved itself into these dreams when she sat on the edge of a fir stump, or better yet, in the exalted cloud-high airiness of the very apex of the Hog Back.

There had been no sun, neither today nor for many days; and yet there was as surely a presence of approaching night as if shadows forewarned Siletz had hoped for a break, one of those short pageants when the sun should shoot for a moment into the gloom, transfiguring the world. Now, as she scanned the west, the dog suddenly rose from beside her, peering down with his huge head thrust forward, his pendulous ears swaying. A hundred feet below in a tangle of vine maple something was laboring. Presently the slim trees parted and out of their tangle struggled a horse, a magnificent black beast with glaring nostrils and full, excited eyes. After every few steps it turned its head to right or left with the instinct of the mountain breed to zigzag, and as often the man in the saddle pulled it sharply back.

With the first sight of the intruder the girl on the high stump had sprung up, leaning forward, a growing excitement in her face. It was the horse that caused it. Something was stirring within her all suddenly and her heart beat hard. She gripped her bridle tight in both hands and swallowed.

"Blunderer," she said aloud. "Oh, the blunderer!"

Then she cupped her hands at her hips and called down: "Let him alone! He knows how to climb! Let him alone!"

The man looked up startled, and tightened his grip on the rein. The gallant animal went down upon its side, rolling completely over, to lodge, feet downward, against a stone. The man swung sidewise out of the saddle, saving himself with a splendid quickness. Before he could gather himself for action the girl tore down upon him.

"What have you done?" she cried wildly. "What have you done to it?"

"She dropped on her knees and her hands went fluttering over the black head in a very passion of pity, touching the white star on the forehead, smoothing the quivering nostrils.

"Why didn't you let him climb his own way? He knew—he's a bunch-grasser. Nothing could go straight up!"

She raised her eyes to him and he saw they were burning behind a film of tears. He saw also what gave him a strange feeling of shock—a faint, blue tracery extending from the left corner of her lips downward nearly to the point of the chin, a sharply broken fragment of a tattooed design. Her eyes were very dark and her hair, parted after the first fashion of woman, was straight and very dark also. The accusing words irritated him. "You're right," he said coldly, "noobling could—in such a country. Stan back, please."

Siletz looked up at him and instinctively rose to her feet, though her slim body was alert with an unconscious readiness for prevention of something.

But the man only stepped to the black's head, tightened the rein a bit and clucked encouragingly.

"Come up," he said sharply, "up, boy!"

The horse stretched its head forward, arched its neck, gathered its feet and lurched mightily upward finding difficulty and floundering a little by reason of the stone which had saved it from rolling down the mountain. It placed its feet gingerly, bracing against the declivity, shook itself vigorously, drew a good, long breath and turned its soft nose to investigate the girl. With a little gurgling cry her hands went out again to caress it, hungrily, forgetful of the man, her face alight with the joy of its escape from injury. She smiled and passed her hands along the high neck, over the shoulder, down to the knee, bending to finger with a deft swiftness the fetlock and pastern.

When she looked up again she smiled at the man frankly, her anger gone.

"He's all right, but you want to give him the rein. He knows how to go up all right. All Oregon horses can climb if you give them their time and way."

He slipped the bridle over his arm. "I'm looking for Dally's lumber camp. Can you tell me how to get there and how near I am?"

"It's right over the ridge. You'll see it from the top!"

"Thanks," he said, lifted his soft, gray hat perfunctorily and turned up the slope.

He took the ascent straight, with a certain grimness of purpose. Soon he felt a slight pull on the reins toward the left, which slackened immediately to repeat itself to the right. The black was trying to zigzag in the narrow play of the conning bridge. After an interval that tried him severely in muscle and breath the stranger reached the sharp crest of the ridge.

Below him lay the valley, the winding slough, the yellow huddle of the camp, the toy railway, with its tiny engine, the donkey whose puffing rose in a white spiral, the roadways and the huge log trail winding up the other slope like a giant serpent. Even as he looked there came the staccato notes of the whistle, whose invisible line crept away into the hills above the cables, the engine got down to work with a volley of coughs, the spools screamed and the great steel rope lifted heavily along the trail.

Presently a long, gray shape, ghostly and sinister, came creeping over the lower ridge, gliding down the face of the hills, silent, relentless, a veritable thing of life. He leaned forward, watching it come to rest above the roadway, half a little while the antlike men darted here and there, and then rolled sidewise into position against the stays.

lanced involuntarily back along the way he had come.

The girl still stood by the bowlder looking up, her face illumined by that light he had noticed, and he was quick enough to comprehend that it was passionate longing for the big black behind him. She had forgotten his presence.

Out of the ferns had crept the mammoth mongrel. They stood together in a subtle comradeship which struck him by its isolated sufficiency.

CHAPTER II.

An Amazing Arrival.

It was a quiet time—quitting time in the coast country, which means whatever time the light fades. Presently the loggers came creeping down the trail, sturdy men in spiked boots (faced to the knee, blue flannel shirts, and, for the most part, corduroys). They trooped down to the cook-shack, a long building of unpainted pine, its two side doors leading, the one into the dining room, the other sheltered by a rude porch, into the kitchen.

Inside, "Ma" Dally, a white-haired general of meals and men in their order, creaked heavily from oven to pine sink, her placid face flaming with the heat of the great steel range.

The eating room was long and narrow, its pine floor innocent of covering. From end to end ran two long tables, neat in white oilcloth, with intervals of catchup bottles, pepper sauce, sugar bowls, cream pitchers, and solidly built receptacles for salt and pepper. Along both edges stood an army of white earthenware plates, flanked by bone-handled knives and forks and tin spoons.

At the west, beside an open door, was a high pine desk littered with papers, a telephone hung at one side. A small table stood before a window, with a rocking chair in proximity—one of those low, old-fashioned rocking chairs that old women use, and that invariably hold a patchwork cushion with green fringe, and a white knitted tidy. That rocker was part of Dally's camp. It had followed the march of progress as the camp cut its way into the hills.

"It's my one comfort," Ma was wont to say, "though I don't know I don't get to set in it more'n a quarter what I'd like."

As the loggers slid noisily on to the benches, their caulk giving up the mud they had held purposely for the sweep floor, Siletz came and went, setting the substantial viands in the open spaces left in the expanse of white oilcloth. She exchanged a word here and there, always a sensible word, something of the work, the day, or the men themselves. She was putting a plate of cookies, sugar-sanded, with currants on top, between Jim Anworthy and a black-haired Pole, when a foot struck the step at the west door. There was something in the sound that drew every head around at once. A stranger stood against the misty darkness between the jambs.

He was young, apparently about twenty-five or six, well set up, with straight shoulders above narrow hips and a pose that claimed instant attention. He removed his soft hat, holding it in his hand, while his bright, blue eyes looked impersonally over the room. Over his shoulder, a pair of big, dark ones peered anxiously, while a black muzzle with a small white patch nosed his elbow aside.

"John Dally?"

It was a call that demanded, not a question.

From the head of the nearest table a giant of a man, easy tatured, lax featured, loose joints banded together by steel sinews, rose lumberingly.

"I'm him," he said.

The man in the door brought his eyes sharply to focus on his face, reading it with lightning rapidity.

"I'm the Dillingworth Lumber company—or most of it," he said clearly, "and I've come to stay. Where shall I put my horse?"

There was a startled silence after these amazing words. An unexpressed ejaculation went from face to face up and down the tables. Then John Dally showed why he was the best foreman in that region. He got himself loose from the end bench and walked over to the door.

"All right, Mr.—"

He waited easily, as if it was perfectly natural for strangers to drop from a hilltop and announce themselves the ruling power of the country, or more strictly speaking one of the ruling powers, for there were two.

It was a call that demanded, not a question.

From the head of the nearest table a giant of a man, easy tatured, lax featured, loose joints banded together by steel sinews, rose lumberingly.

"Sandy" finished the other. "Water Sandry—from New York."

"Come in, Mr. Sandry—you're just in time."

Dally turned back to the lighted room.

"Siletz, give Mr. Sandry my place. Harrison, I'll have to take your dining shed for tonight. Tomorrow we'll fix things in better shape."

The saw-filer, an important personage and one to be conciliated, frowned in his plate, but the foreman had lost sight of him. He reached out a huge, hard hand and took the bridle-rein from the newcomer.

Already this man was standing inside the rude building, with a high-headed air of force, of personality that made itself felt in the most stolid nature present. He glanced down the double line of faces and for a second, just a fractional, fleeting moment, seemed to hesitate. Then he laid his hat on the small table, walked round to Dally's empty seat, swung a leather puttee and a well-built shoe over the bench and sat down. He was in place, and a vague feeling of adjustment, of solidity, accompanied him, as if he was there, as he said, to stay. Every man in the room felt it; and one of those strange sensations of portent communicated itself to them, as when the everyday affairs of life come to a turn in the road.

Dally's was on the eve of a change. The girl was putting a thick, white plate, hot from boiling water, before him, deftly laying the simple cutlery, pushing back an intruding dish.

It was still dark when the loggers trooped out into the fine rain. John Dally came to him.

"Now, what would you like, Mr. Sandry?" he asked. "Will you come into the hills with us, or would you rather rest around camp? You come a long ways, I guess."

"Yes, from New York."

"I was thinking yesterday mebbe you'd rather just loaf around—"

"Yesterday? Did you expect me?"

"Oh, yes. I got a letter from Mr. Fraser last week. He said the company had made a change and I might look for a visit."

"I think I'll go about," said Sandy.

"Outside it was fresh and slightly cold. A thick, white fog struck him in the face with an almost palpable touch. It lay close to the earth, a sluggish monster spread down in the valleys as if for warmth. Through its enshrouding whiteness a lantern glowed faintly across the slough.

Already the little locomotive was getting up steam and the donkey showed a red throat for an instant as McDonald roared in more wood.

From ahead came shouts and a laugh or two as the men straggled to the roadway.

There were five cabins set around on the edge of the small, sloping mountain meadow which gave background for Dally's camp; and in all the windows lights were gleaming. In one cabin a door opened and a man came out, stopping a moment on the sill to reach up and kiss a woman, who stood silhouetted against the light, when the door closed and Sandy could not see the man, though he could hear his footsteps. The foreman swung ahead in the path.

"They're foot-log here," he said, "tidewater slough. 'Tain't deep."

He stopped at the foot of the ridge where the donkey, the railway and the track terminal huddled against the hold uplift, and Dally introduced him to Hastings and Murphy, the latter of whom hung out of the window of his diminutive cab and peered at the stranger out of laughing eyes whose forebears had twinkled on Donegal's blue bay and Erin's red-creeled daughters with impartial joy.

"Ah, Mither Dillingworth," he said heartily, "an' phat d'ye tink av the West Coast now?"

"Sandy, Murphy," caught up Dally easily, yet with a warning note.

"Shure! Sandy, but ain't 'it scenery fine?"

"What I've seen, yes, Murphy," answered Sandy after a slight pause. As he turned after Dally the Irishman stuck his tongue in the corner of his lips and drummed a minute on the sill, the broad smile lessening on his reckless face.

"An' phat d'ye know about that?" he asked retrospectively of the fog.

Scientists Interested in Find.

At a recent scientific gathering, Professors Edgeworth, David and Wilson described a completely mineralized human skull found near Warwick, in the Darling Downs of Queensland. It probably dates from a period when the great fossil marsupials were still living, and is earlier than any other human remains hitherto found in Australia.

Was Not a Roman.

While a sergeant of a certain British regiment was engaged with a company of the National Reservists a short time ago in physical drill—a drill that demands, to say the least of it, a small amount of agility—a private, who looked as if he had been younger in his day, complained to the non-commissioned officer in charge that he was too old for that sort of practice.

"How old are you?" said the instructor.

"Fifty-three," said the private.

"Why," exclaimed the instructor, "the Romans used to do this sort of thing at the age of sixty."

"That may be," said the private, "but I'm not a Roman; I'm a Wesleyan."

WOMEN ENVIOUS OF THRESHER'S COOKIES

Wisconsin Man Wins Prizes for Dainties That Set Mouths Watering at Festival.

Madison, Wis.—"Cooking for the thrashers" has been the stock expression for all that is wearisome in farming households for many years. It meant extra help in the kitchen—hustle and worry and stew, bake and broil and treat from 5 a. m. until after eight o'clock at night.

But in Dane county the farmers' wives have no need to worry. That county can boast of one thrasherman who is such an exceedingly skillful and resourceful cook that he can beat the best of woman competitors.

C. A. Bailey of De Forest is the man. At the Windsor fall festival he carried off one first prize on devil's food cake, another first prize on cocoa-nut cookies, first prize on baking-powder biscuits, second prize on lemon pie and sweetstakes on canned peaches.

"It's a shame I couldn't have spared more time from my work with the gang or I would have entered something in every class in the outfit," smilingly declared Bailey to a group of people who were admiring his dainties.

He then leaned back complacently against the show case and, putting his thumbs in the armbolts of his vest, told the gaping group his best recipes. His defeated rivals icily turned their backs and began examining the crazy quilts and tatting.

Bailey bids fair to rival the famous Baker Bunn of Baraboo.

There were five cabins set around on the edge of the small, sloping mountain meadow which gave background for Dally's camp; and in all the windows lights were gleaming. In one cabin a door opened and a man came out, stopping a moment on the sill to reach up and kiss a woman, who stood silhouetted against the light, when the door closed and Sandy could not see the man, though he could hear his footsteps. The foreman swung ahead in the path.

"They're foot-log here," he said, "tidewater slough. 'Tain't deep."

He stopped at the foot of the ridge where the donkey, the railway and the track terminal huddled against the hold uplift, and Dally introduced him to Hastings and Murphy, the latter of whom hung out of the window of his diminutive cab and peered at the stranger out of laughing eyes whose forebears had twinkled on Donegal's blue bay and Erin's red-creeled daughters with impartial joy.

"Ah, Mither Dillingworth," he said heartily, "an' phat d'ye tink av the West Coast now?"

"Sandy, Murphy," caught up Dally easily, yet with a warning note.

"Shure! Sandy, but ain't 'it scenery fine?"

"What I've seen, yes, Murphy," answered Sandy after a slight pause. As he turned after Dally the Irishman stuck his tongue in the corner of his lips and drummed a minute on the sill, the broad smile lessening on his reckless face.

"An' phat d'ye know about that?" he asked retrospectively of the fog.

The Secret of Success

Genial Merit Required to Win the People's Confidence

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfil the promise of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says: "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, in many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy that I know of has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder diseases, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper—Adv.

To Protect Her Chest.

Rev. Horace Leonard, continuing his campaign against cosmetics in Washington, said at an all fresco luncheon: "A young husband at the shore noted that in dressing for dinner the other evening his wife had chosen a very décollete gown."

"There's a dampish sea wind blowing," he grumbled. "Don't you think you'd better put something on your chest?"

"It's powdered it twice, dear," she answered. "Still, if you don't mind waiting, I suppose I might add another coat."

The Making of the Pup.

Ted and James M. who live some distance from the city, have a young bull dog, which they intend to make training. The dog is by nature ferocious, so the training is not difficult.

A short time ago a tramp was about to enter their front gate, when he spied the dog and changed his mind, not soon enough, however, to avert disaster.

"Sit 'em, Kid, sit 'em!" cried the boys in delight.

Kid immediately began to play with the tramp's ankles in a way which gave cause for alarm.

"Take your dog off, or I'll kill him," yelled the victim, trying to carry out his threat.

The boy grinned. "Stand it if you can, mister. It's hard on you, but it'll be the making of the pup!" called Ted.—Indianapolis News.

CHANGE

Quit Coffee and Get Well.

A woman's coffee experience is interesting. "For two weeks at a time I have taken no food but skim milk, for solid food would ferment and cause such distress that I could hardly breathe at times, also excruciating pain and heart palpitation and all the time I was so nervous and restless."

"From childhood up I had been a coffee and tea drinker and for the past 20 years I had been trying different physicians but could get only temporary relief. Then I read an article telling how some one had been helped by leaving off coffee and drinking Postum and it seemed so pleasant just to read about good health I decided to try Postum.

"I made the change from coffee to Postum and there is such a difference in me that I don't feel like the same person. We all found Postum delicious and like it better than coffee. My health now is wonderfully good.

"As soon as I made the shift to Postum I got better and now my troubles are gone. I am fleshy, my food assimilates, the pressure in the chest and palpitation are all gone, my bowels are regular, have no more stomach trouble, and my headaches are gone. Remember I did not use medicines at all—just left off coffee and used Postum steadily." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

The pastor delivers the eighth illustrated sermon on the life of Christ. The illustrated hymn, "Jesus Saviour Pilot Me," will also be used. Mid-week prayer meeting Thursday evening, at 7 p. m.

BIBLE STUDENTS

Services for Sunday, Nov. 21, as usual: Two to three o'clock. Berean. Topic for discussion, who is "the man of destiny" spoken of in Daniel 11:36-45. The one man "who exalted himself above every good" (Elohim, mighty one) "neither regarded the God of his fathers" and tried to magnify himself above all others. His trust was in "the God of forces," "yet he shall come to the end and none shall help him." See verses 36, 37, 38, 45. Shall we not surmise the same with those in Europe who are honoring the God of forces (mighty ones of earth) rather than the Almighty Jehovah, God of Abraham, David, Washington and Lincoln and others who fully trusted in him. Bible Students understand that with this man's (Napoleon) downfall began the beginning of "the time of the end" whose close marks the close of the age and the beginning of the age just dawning. Thus we know where we are on the stream of time. How glad we are, for who takes any pleasure walking in the dark. Wednesday evening meeting at James Manser's.

ST. JOHN'S EPISCOPAL MISSION.

Sunday, Nov. 21—Divine service at 10:30 a. m. prompt. Holy communion. The Rev. Dr. Hall, late rector of St. George church, Detroit, will be the preacher. Please note the change of time.

EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN

The following services will be held in St. Peter's Evangelical Lutheran church next Sunday: Sunday-school at 9:30 local time; English services at 10:30. The pastor will preach, 1 Thess. 4:13-18 verses. Theme, "All faithful Christians, glorious confirmation and sure hope in view of Death."

Special German services in the evening for the Ladies Aid, 7:30 local time. Annual meeting of the Ladies' Aid after service.

Thanksgiving morning German services will be held in this church at 10:15. English services in the evening at 7:30.

Ladies' ribbed union suits, 35c per suit, at Kraus Sample Shop, opposite postoffice.

In And Around Plymouth

Charles Durkee of Pine Lake, near Pontiac, has sold his 160 acre farm for $40,000.

The Holly council is considering the establishment of a rest room for ladies in the town hall.

A Stockbridge farmer recently sold 83 lambs, he had raised, for $548. Not so very bad for a wet season.

Chicken thieves are operating around South Lyon. They got away with 70 fowls from one farmer one night last week.

Joe Haas of the Holly Herald, has figured out the license to be paid next year on Fords. It is $8.75 for a roadster and $9.25 for a touring car.

L. Dey, our implement dealer, has sold Waterloo Boy milking machines to Robert Thompson, Musolf Bros., Joe Miller of near Northville, and Wm. Bunn of South Lyon.

The Plymouth & Northville Gas Co. are now shooting gas into Northville. Service connections are being made as rapidly as possible. The company has opened a store in that village for the sale of gas stoves and fixtures.

Northville Masons will observe their annual homecoming event Monday, November 22. An elaborate banquet will be served. Past Grand Master Frank T. Lodge of Detroit, will present new aprons to all the 18 past masters. The Northville lodge was organized in 1866. The late A. H. Dibble of this village, was one of the charter members and first officers of the lodge.

A Brighton farmer was brought into court Monday morning for hunting without a license. On pleading guilty, Judge Appleton gave him the minimum fine, $10 and costs. The new game law is very strict and when Game Warden Otto Robinson is around it will have to be lived up to. You are liable to arrest if you are even walking across the field with a gun—if the field is not your own, and you don't have a hunter's license. Then, if convicted, the judge must fine you $10 and may fine you $10 together with the costs. In addition to this he has a right to give a jail sentence. A license costs $1.00. It will be cheaper to get one if you want to hunt. It is unlawful to hunt on Sunday on any condition.—Brighton Argus.

In Memoriam

The long roll has again sounded and our comrade, Ephraim H. Partridge, has been summoned from earth bivouac to that great eternal camp of the beyond, whose commander is the Lord.

Resolved, That we sincerely sympathize with the children of the deceased, on the dispensation of which it has pleased Divine Providence to afflict them and commend them for consolation to Him who orders all things for the best and whose chastisements are meant in mercy.

Resolved, That this heartfelt testimonial of our sympathy and sorrow be sent to the sons of our departed comrade, be printed in the Plymouth Mail, and placed upon the records of our order, and our charter be draped for a period of thirty days.

O. P. Showers, O. Westfall, W. I. Stewart, Committee.

A CARD—We desire to express our sincere thanks and appreciation for the many acts of kindness of neighbors and friends shown us during the sickness and death of our father. Especially do we wish to thank the societies and personal friends for the beautiful flowers and those who furnished automobiles.—Ephraim H. Partridge, Jr., Melburn Partridge and Families.

TIN HAT IS INNOVATION

Designer Puts Forth Many Reasons Why It Should Be Accepted as an Article of Attire.

The latest innovation in men's apparel has been sprung by W. H. Whiting of Jonesboro, Me. It is a tin hat, with a band made of copper. He fashioned the natty headpiece himself. It is not only very light in weight, but he claims that it is cheaper than a straw "bonnet," lasts longer and is absolutely rainproof.

Whiting's tin hat has a luster all its own, something that takes the shine off all other hats. It is more showy than Mambrino's helmet, made famous by Don Quixote. Whiting's hat is made of tin, common sheet tin, the same kind of tin that baked beans and sardines and tomatoes are put in.

It is built on a 1915 model and no fashionable youth of the town can "put anything over" on him in the matter of style. It is neat, but not gaudy, a tin body with a copper band, not quite as brilliant as a ribbon with college colors, but more substantial and quite as attractive. At least, it attracts plenty of attention when Whiting wears it on the streets.

Career of Duke of the Abruzzi.

The Duke of the Abruzzi, commander-in-chief of Italy's navy, comes of a famous fighting house—the House of Savoy. He is forty-two years old, and is mainly known to the world as an intrepid explorer, particularly as a mountaineer. In 1897 he ascended the frozen heights of Mount Elias in Alaska, a feat, it is said, never theretofore performed. Two years later came his polar expedition, in which he made a point farther north than Nansen had reached. This was followed by mountaineering feats in Africa and among the Himalayas. In early boyhood the duke showed a fondness for the sea, and entered the Italian navy at the minimum age. He was educated at the naval school at Leghorn, and had had a most successful career as an officer of the fleet, having risen in the service by his own merits and industry.

Battle Famous in History.

The capture of Warsaw antedated by a day another historic anniversary in German history, the battle of Woerth, August 6, 1870. Here the French under Marshal McMahon, fresh from their defeat by the Prussians at Weissenburg, ten miles away, were again overwhelmed by the victorious Germans. The fiercest fighting occurred in the village of Freschweiler, which had to be stormed, the struggle in the streets being of the most desperate character as may be judged by the fact that the Prussian loss was 10,000 and the French 8,000 with 9,000 prisoners.

Replacing Fallen Soldiers.

Even if the number of permanently invalidated equaled a million more, this drain would have little effect. Half of the world's population is less than twenty-one years of age. Out of three or four hundred million of people now at war, the number of young men who will have within the year become of military age will far exceed the number killed and disabled. And it is absurd to say that this means no reparation of fighting strength because wars have always been fought in large part by boys.—Carl Snyder in Collier's Weekly.

One Cost of Tuberculosis.

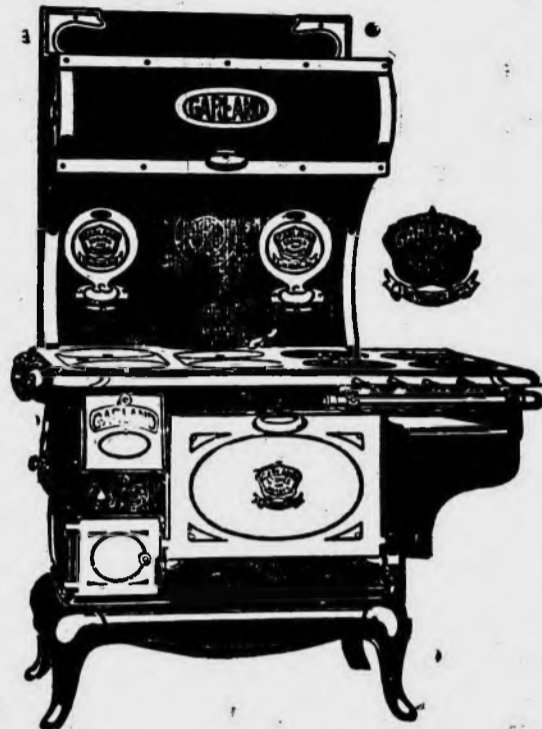

In a pamphlet on "What Tuberculosis Costs in Wages," the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis says that an investigation of 500 cases in Boston shows that these men lost more than $425,000 in wages as a result of this disease.

How This Stove Does The Work of Two

A WARM KITCHEN IN WINTER—A COOL KITCHEN IN SUMMER.

That is what this "two-in-one" range affords. GAS in Summer COAL in WINTER, both in the same range affording a service heretofore was practically impossible, except with two ranges.

The "Garland" Combination Range and What It Accomplishes

This "Garland" Range is successful because it operates perfectly with coal or gas, without interchange of numerous parts. Both coal and gas can be used separately or simultaneously. The use of one fuel does not interfere with the use of the other—a unique feature and a decided advantage. There are four top burners for coal and four for gas, and the same oven can be used for coal and gas. Could anything be more convenient? The strongest possible recommendation we can give this stove, aside from its utility and convenience, is the fact that it is a "Garland" made by the "Largest Makers of Stoves and Ranges in the World." This is a guarantee of excellence and a positive assurance of faultless construction and operation.

Don't think of buying a new range until you see this one

Chas. Mining accidentally slipped and fell from the side porch at his home on Ann Arbor street last Friday afternoon and sustained a compound fracture of his right arm. Drs. Pasterson and Kistler were called and reduced one of the fractures, but owing to the seriousness of the other it was thought advisable to remove him to Harper hospital, where he was taken that evening. He is feeling as comfortable as possible at this writing.

Late last Friday evening the building on Hill street, owned by the Plymouth Improvement Association, and occupied by the Hickey Casting Co. of Detroit, was completely destroyed by fire. The flames are believed to have started from an over heated boiler, as casing had been done in the building late Friday afternoon. The loss of building and contents is partially covered by insurance. This company has been doing a splendid business here for the past few months and as the present were employing seven men with expectations of increasing their force soon. It is very probable that the Association will rebuild at once, and that the building will be occupied by the same company.

Thanksgiving

IN THE HANDS OF THE COOK

HE American Thanksgiving this year is invested with a profound significance, a blending of reverent appreciation for the blessings of the twelfth month, and a poignant regret that so many members of the World Family are in the red agony of war. The Thanksgiving, definitely established after national stress and travail, is tender with sympathy and brotherhood, and while one gives freely of thanks to his Creator, freely, likewise, does he give of love for his fellows. It is the most human of seasons, in which man should, and does, follow the eternal lesson of the Great Teacher.

Thanksgiving is elemental in the soul of man and it probably found its first expression, not in peace, but in conflict in the early twilight of history, when some of the hairy men, who had awakened to the mystery and majesty of the sun as the giver of good things, raised their scarred arms toward it, reverent and triumphant, their grateful gutturals voicing thanks for victory.

And this primitive thanksgiving will be multiplied and intensified a thousandfold at the expiration of the present war—and not for the victory but for the coming of peace. In the intoxication of bloody triumph there can be little of the deep, spiritual thanksgiving; for, despite the gigantic slaughter that has made this century the crimson age, the world is still one big family with interests so closely interrelated that none is unaffected by the struggle. And none will give thanks, even with the prize of victory, for having made widows and orphans by the hundreds of thousands.

In the real thanksgiving there is neither exultation nor pride; no reflection of bitterness or hate; but a sweet realization of the kinship of all men before the Great Father.

In certain early and oriental liturgies was the Great Thanksgiving, now replaced by the Preface and part of the canon. Then there is the General Thanksgiving in the Book of Common Prayer, to collect in the third place from the end of the order for morning and evening prayer, and of the litany. But the Thanksgiving which, while marked by the incense of prayer, has the sunny lightness of good cheer and laughter, is that annually observed in the United States.

In the beginning of the observance was a day set apart by the Plymouth Pilgrims, in 1621, in acknowledgment of their first harvest in America. It was perpetuated in many states by an annual festival appointed by the governor. Its national celebration, in recognition of the year's blessings, was first recommended by proclamation issued at the city of New York, in 1789, by George Washington, who set apart for observance Thursday, November 26, of that year.

The war between the states was the event that established the national day. It has been, therefore, sanctified by the blood of brothers who died not in vain, for as a recurring observance it was proclaimed by President Lincoln in October, 1863, who fixed the last Thursday in November. It since has thus been observed.

So it is that in 1915 the people of the United States give thanks, not for a war over, with the combatants putting aside the science of murder for the science of constructive things and resolutely facing the future, but because the country is at peace with its world brothers and looks toward taking the impartial part in the bringing about of the peace of Europe—and of the world. Dr. Carleton Simon, the distinguished neurologist, recently, while discussing "war as an acute nervous affliction and its treatment and its cure," made an interesting diagnosis of the condition of the United States. It may be reassuring to hear from such an eminent authority, who regards the more than 90,000,000 human beings in the presentment of a gigantic composite, that there is no fear of Uncle Sam "flying off the handle."

"The United States has escaped," says he. "That is the special occasion for thanksgiving. But may not the whole world come to find cause for real thanksgiving in the new spirit derived and nourished by the tragedy of this war?"

Contrast these typical rural Thanksgiving pictures with some of the family groups and of sustenance operations within the war-smitten territory, and, if you be apart from want, you will feel a pang of keenest compassion and a regret that all of the world's struggling family should not be sharing the peace-and-plenty conditions.

In this case the turkey is the bird alike of peace and of plenty. It is the bird, likewise, of sacrifice—but not of burnt offering—and goes to its appointed end with what seems like a conscious dignity of the part it plays in the grateful season.

What finish more honorable and impressive for a bird than to be fated to die to make happy an entire nation? For this remote symbol, the Thanksgiving bird is magically transformed into a tempting thing of appetizing odors, an eye-entrancing vision, a glistening brown and bronze and bringing in its train attendants of the field that crisply show ivory white and pale emerald, and translucent, liquid ruby. In the turkey at this season there are the pride of country, the religious sense of a nation and its sustaining hopefulness, the racial family spirit that "makes the whole world akin," and the very essence of pleasing plenty.

Immune to Love Germs

By H. M. EGBERT

(Copyright, 1915, by W. G. Chapman.)

The three professors looked inquiringly at the younger member of the faculty as he entered the room. It pity had been known in the year 2215, it might have been said that pity was reflected upon their faces. As it was not, the look must have been merely curiosity.

The white-robed, sterilized nurse would have been called beautiful three centuries before. But her wealth of blond hair was hidden by the hideous hood that was the fashion, and in her loose garments she looked more like a mandarin.

She, too, gazed curiously at the young fellow who entered and took his station respectfully before the professors.

"No A 69 W P 14," began the eldest professor, addressing him by the name he bore. "You are still decided to become the subject of this experiment?"

"Yes, sir," replied the young man. "You are making it in the interests of civilization. You have weighed the consequences? You know that it will mean persecution, ostracism, and worst of all, the existence within your system of a diabolical germ, which has become so rare that it is necessary to demonstrate its existence by performing this inoculation?"

"I have considered all the consequences, gentlemen," replied the young man.

The three professors addressed the nurse.

"No. B 27 F F 7," began the second professor, "you, too, have volunteered to sacrifice your happiness for the hour the boat will be waiting to convey you to your island home."

The professors withdrew, leaving the young victims together in the laboratory of the science building. Situated on the seashore, in the curve of the wooded heights of Brooklyn, it was an ideal spot for experimentation. The hum of the great distant city only came faintly to their ears.

In three hours' time the vessel would anchor off the dock to carry them away to the South seas, there to remain for a term of years until the deadly virus had been eliminated.

The young man shuddered as he thought of the awful fate in store for them. Now that the act was irrevocable he began to think of the sacrifice. He remembered a hundred friendships, the college days when he had been the heart and soul of his set. All these memories he must leave behind him, to go out to a savage island with this nurse.

As he glanced at her, he began to feel a novel interest in her that he had never felt before. Life with her would at least be companionable. He was not so sure, now, that he had done a foolish thing.

"Do you regret the sacrifice, B 27 F F 7?" he inquired, curiously.

"Not a bit," answered the young woman.

"May I ask why you are smiling?"

"She smiled more significantly. "That is my secret," she answered. "Some day I will tell you."

"When?"

"When we are alone together."

"But we shall never be more alone than we are now."

"I know. But you see, A 69 W P 14, the virus has not yet begun to take effect in you."

"I know it hasn't. I wonder how it will feel. They say that the first sign is fever. I wish I had a shorter name for you."

The girl still smiled at him. He was half piqued and half indignant.

"Don't you begin to feel the effects of the virus?" he inquired.

"Not yet," she answered. "I don't believe I ever shall."

"Why not?"

"That is part of the secret, too," she said.

He turned indignantly. He had meant to turn away. Instead of which, to his surprise, he found that he was standing nearer to her than he had ever stood before. And, as his arms went groping blindly for some mysterious purpose he found that they had closed about her and were holding her fast. The harder he tried to escape her, the more tightly he held her.

The girl made no attempt to escape, but continued smiling. "What is it?" he whispered. And suddenly the realization came to him.

"It's the poison—the love virus!" he exclaimed.

The girl nodded. She nodded so hard that her wealth of hair came tumbling down from under the hideous hood. He caught a strand between his fingers and pressed it to his lips.

"What am I doing? Why am I doing this?" he cried. "Is it—is it the symptoms?"

She nodded again. "It begins that way," she answered.

"What a curious disease," said the young man, thoughtfully. "Do you know, I don't believe I shall really mind being exiled with you on our island. Of course, a woman's company is apt to prove tedious. One doesn't expect the same intellectual companionship that a man's company affords. And then, I don't know that I shall have very much to say to you. But you will be useful for cooking my meals, and sometimes I will tell you things, and—"

The girl for the first time uttered a hearty laugh. The young man seemed in a daze. He passed his hand across his forehead.

"As I was saying," he resumed, "it will be delightful helping each other in the little things of the day, and in the evenings we'll sit and chat by the camp fire and compare notes and experiences—"

The silvery ripple of her mirth seemed to fill the room. Again the young man was laughing aloud.

"Why are you laughing at me?" he cried at length. "Don't you want me devoted? Don't you want me to wait on you, to learn from you, to sit at your feet as your slave? Is there somebody else you prefer? I can hardly wait for the boat to arrive. —I—I believe I—love you. Is this love?"

"Yes, this is love," said the girl.

"How do you know? Do you love me? Do you feel the virus?"

"No," she answered, thoughtfully. "I am sure now that I am immune against it. I didn't tell those old professors, but—"

"Why? Why?" shouted the young man.

"Because, you see," she answered, "we have known all about it all the time."

"Yes, sir," replied the young man.

of science? You, too, are undergoing this martyrdom with a full knowledge of the consequences?"

The other two asked her almost the same question, though not in identical words. There was a faint smile upon the nurse's face as she replied.

"Yes, gentlemen, I am prepared to suffer this martyrdom," she answered.

"Then you have both been warned, as is required by law," said the eldest professor. "I shall now proceed to inoculate you both with the rare germ known as diplococcus amoris, found only in Patagonia and Fiji."

It was a weighty experiment. During the three centuries that had elapsed love had become rarer and rarer. Marriages were now and had long been regulated by the state. Spasmodic cases of love had been reported to the medical faculty, but except for these epidemics, now becoming rarer as the principles of hygiene were better understood, there had not been a case in years.

It was the desire of the physicians to observe a genuine case of love, in order to revise the text-books of this disease, that had led the professors to cast about for two suitable subjects. As soon as the disease developed they were to be placed for a period of years upon a desert island, to avoid the spread of the malady. They would be supplied with food and a home and left there until the virulence of the disease was believed to have abated.

"It is a splendid thing to sacrifice ourselves for science," said A 69 W P 14, enthusiastically.

"Yes, it is indeed," answered B 27 F F 7. Nevertheless the same faint, almost inscrutable smile played about her features as she spoke. The young man wondered whether the nurse had fully realized the nature of the experiment, the suffering that it would entail. However, he said nothing, but bared his arm for the inoculation with the rare microbe, a supply of which had come from the Fiji islands only a few days before.

The first professor, having sterilized his needle, drew up a minute quantity of gelatin out of a tube. In this substance were millions of the deadly diplococcus. He inserted the point of the hypodermic into the young man's arm. A 69 W P 14 did not flinch at the pain. Then, having withdrawn the needle, the professor performed the same operation on the young woman.

Everybody noticed that the same faint and inscrutable smile played about her features, but nobody commented upon that fact. Even in 2215 it was the privilege of young women to smile.

The operations completed, the professors solemnly shook hands with the victims.

"In three hours," said the middle professor, "the symptoms should begin to take effect. This is 11:05 o'clock. At 11:20, therefore, you will both be about a message to society." At that

WESTERN CANADA CONTINUES TO WIN

The 1915 Yield of Grain Keeps Western Canada to the Front.

The great publicity that has been given to the grain yields of the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the three provinces that comprise that portion of Western Canada east of the British Columbia boundary, has kept Canada to the front with a prominence that is merited.

The grain crop of the three provinces has now been harvested, and sufficient of it has been threshed so that it is no longer a matter of estimate as to the returns. It is safe to say that the entire yield of wheat will be upwards of 275,000,000 bushels, and the average yield well over 25 bushels per acre. In proportion to the aggregate this is perhaps the largest yield ever known on the continent.

Most of this wheat will grade No. 1 northern, and better, and with present prices the condition of the farmer is to be envied. Many individual yields are reported, and verified, and they are almost beyond belief, but they go to show that under the careful system of agriculture that produced these yields Western Canada would have far exceeded a 300,000,000 production of wheat in 1915 had the system been universal.

It was not in one or two districts that big yields have been made known. The reports come from all parts of the 24,000 square miles of territory in which the growing of wheat is carried on.

Mr. Elmır Seller, a farmer south of Strassburg, Sask., has harvested 5,465 bushels No. 1 hard wheat from 160 acres.

Mr. A. Benner, near Oyasland, Alberta, says his wheat went over 40 bushels to the acre, with an all round crop of 33 bushels to the acre.

J. N. Wagner, near the same place, also lays claim to over 40 bushels of wheat per acre.

A Norwegian farmer, named S. A. Toftagen, not far from Daysland, had 23 acres of wheat which gave a yield of 47 bushels to the acre.

Well, then, near Gleichen, Alberta, D. H. Engle of Humboldt, Iowa, owns a quarter section of land. This land was rented so that Mr. Engle should receive one-third of the crop, and this gave him $612.65, his net rental for the crop, and there was only 50 acres in crop.

Scores of reports give yields fully as large as those given above. A large field of spring wheat near Lethbridge averaged 69 bushels, another 59 and a third 55 bushels per acre. On the fall farm at Lethbridge 25 acres of Marquis wheat yielded 60 bushels to the acre and yielded 57 pounds to the bushel. A test lot of one acre of Marquis wheat when threshed yielded 89 bushels and a 30 acre field averaged 60.13 bushels. This farm had 200 acres under crop to Marquis wheat and it is expected the average from the whole will exceed 50 bushels.

In all portions of Saskatchewan and Manitoba, as well, remarkable yields are reported, many large fields showing averages of from 40 to 55 bushels per acre.

When the story of this year's threshing is completed some extraordinary yields will be heard of. One farmer west of Unity, Saskatchewan, threshed 10,000 bushels of No. 1 northern from 200 acres and such instances will not be isolated.

Considerable of the wheat grown in Western Canada is finding its way to the markets of the United States, notwithstanding the duty of ten cents per bushel. The miller in the United States finds Western Canadian wheat necessary for the blending of the high class flour that is demanded by some millers. Already nearly a hundred thousand bushels of the 1915 crop has found its way to the Minneapolis, Duluth, St. Louis and other markets.

It was not in wheat alone that there were extraordinary yields. A farmer living south of Wadena, Sask., harvested 900 bushels of oats from ten acres. S. A. Toftagen of Daysland, referred to had oats which yielded 110 bushels to the acre, while those of J. N. Wagner went 90 bushels to the acre.

As is pointed out by a Toronto paper Canada's great good fortune and splendid service as the Granary of the Empire are revealed in the record harvest from her rich fields of wheat and other grains. "The foundation of its prosperity is solid and enduring. While mines may be exhausted and lumber may disappear through improvident management, agriculture is a perpetual source of wealth, increasing from year to year by the stimulus of individual industry and personal interest. A wheat harvest of 335,250,000 bushels from 13,000,000 acres, an average yield of 25 bushels to the acre. The substantial nature of this growth in production is shown by the fact that the harvest returns are 72 per cent greater than the average for the past five years.

The same satisfactory and highly important success has been attained in other grain crops. The aggregate yield of oats is 431,035,500 bushels from the 11,365,000 acres under crop. Of this yield 305,680,000 bushels are from the three Prairie Provinces. These provinces also contribute 204,200,000 bushels of wheat. The barley harvest is 50,869,000 bushels from 2,509,850 acres, an average yield of 33.7 bushels per acre."

The impression one gets in going through Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba," said a traveler from the East, "is that all the horses and teams and all the threshing machines engaged make no impression on the crops and that it will take six months to thresh the grain out; but two weeks ago the Canadian Pacific railway were having a daily shipment of 1,700 cars of wheat from the three provinces, and a week ago they had got up to 2,160 cars a day. And besides this there is the Canadian Northern railway and the Grand Trunk Pacific, so an enormous quantity must be being shipped out of the provinces. The weather farmers are building large granaries on their farms, while there is a great improvement in the storage facilities provided by the government."

It is therefore no wonder that the greatest interest was shown by those who attended the Soil Products Exposition held at Denver a short time ago, when it was demonstrated that it was not only in quantity that Western Canada still occupied the primary position. It was there that Western Canada again proved its supremacy. In wheat, it was early conceded that Canada would be a winner, and this was easily the case, not only did it win the big prize, but it carried off the sweepstakes. What, however, to those who were representing Canada at this exposition, was of greater value probably, was winning first and second prize for alfalfa. The exhibits were beautiful and pronounced by old alfalfa growers to be the best they had ever seen. First, second and third cuttings of this year's growth were shown.

At this same exposition, there were shown some excellent samples of fodder corn, grown in the Swift Current district.

Topping the range cattle market in Chicago a short time ago is another of the feats accomplished by Western Canada this year.

On Wednesday, October 13, Clay, Robinson and company sold at Chicago for E. H. Maunsel, Macleod, Alberta, a consignment of cattle, 17 head of which, averaging 1,420 pounds, brought $8.90 per hundredweight, topping the range cattle market for the week to date. The same firm also sold for Mr. Maunsel 206 head, averaging 1,240 pounds, at $8.55, without a throwout. These were all grass cattle. They were purchased by Armour and company. Clay, Robinson and company describe the cattle as of very nice quality, in excellent condition, and a great credit to Mr. Maunsel. It speaks well for Canadian cattle raisers that they can produce stock good enough to top the Chicago market against strong competition, there being over 4,600 range cattle on sale that day.

It is one thing to produce crops such as are referred to, and another to get them to market. The facilities of Western Canada are excellent. The railway companies, of which there are three, the Canadian Pacific, the Canadian Northern and the Grand Trunk Pacific, have the mark of efficiency stamped upon all their work. Besides the main trunk lines of these systems, which extend from ocean to ocean, there are branch lines and laterals, feeders which enter into remote parts of the farming districts, and give to the farmer immediate access to the world's grain markets. The elevator capacity of the country is something enormous, and if the figures can be digested, the full extent of the grain producing powers of Western Canada may be realized. The total elevator capacity is about 170,000,000 bushels, or nearly one-half of the entire wheat production of the Dominion in 1915. Of this large storage facilities the country elevators number 2,300, with a capacity of 95,000,000 bushels.—Advertisement.

Achy Joints Give Warning

A creaky joint often predicts rain. It also foretells inward trouble. It may mean that the kidneys are not filtering the blood and are allowing poisonous acids to clog the blood and cause trouble.

Bad backs, rheumatic pains, sore, aching joints, headaches, dizziness, nervous troubles, heart fluttering, and urinary disorders are some of the effects of weak kidneys and if nothing is done there's danger of dropsy, gravel or Bright's disease.
