—and the ear could not tell the difference!

Christine Miller, the famous concert contralto, recently made a tour of the country singing with the New Edison Diamond Disc. Everywhere people were held spellbound by this daring feat of tone re-creation. The ear could not distinguish the original from Edison's re-creation of it.

The Edison Diamond Disc
Phonograph

No Needles to Change. Unbreakable Records.

Only Mr. Edison's perfected musical instruments could withstand such a test. No mere mechanical reproduction, but the re-creation of the original tone. The actual artist in all her artistry.

A test which Edison's re-creation of any artist's voice or instrumental performance will sustain in actual comparison with artist standing beside Edison's new instrument.

Come in and hear the New Edison Diamond Disc. No obligation, of course.

Is it well with thy Soul?

A Christian worker after an ocean voyage told how, one beautiful Sabbath evening on the Oceanic, in mid-ocean, a large group of Welshmen out on the main deck sang the great old church hymns. Many of the twenty-three hundred souls on board crowded about to listen. They sang "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," in Welsh and repeated it in English. Just as they finished the line, "Safe into the haven guide," the captain on the bridge tapped three bells (half-past nine). The watchman on the first lookout repeated the three taps loudly on his larger bell, and then sent out over the decks the cry, thrilling when first heard, "All's well!" Far up in the crow's nest nearly one hundred feet from the deck, the watchman in the second lookout caught it up and sent it farther yet into the ocean darkness, "All's well!" One on deck, thinking of eternal safety, said in a moment, "Wouldn't it be fine if every soul on this great liner could from the heart and for himself echo it yet again, and fling it up to the angels above, "All's well!"

Woman's Literary Club Meeting

The Woman's Literary Club met at the home of Mrs. Wm. P. Pottier last Friday afternoon. About thirty members were present. The president, Mrs. J. J. Travis presided. "My Favorite Magazine" was the response given to roll call. It was voted at this meeting that a committee of one be appointed to confer with other committees from various clubs in town in regard to equal suffrage work in Plymouth and also to co-operate with the Wayne County Association. The program was in charge of the second division with Mrs. Linus Galpin, leader. Current Events were given by Mrs. Galpin; then followed three interesting papers, Ethical Culture School, Felix Adler—Miss Bessie Hood; Moving Pictures as a Social Force—Mrs. Louis Thomas; Discussion, Local conditions in regard to the moving pictures—Miss Bertha Beale. The next meeting of the club will be held Friday afternoon, March 3rd, in the Epworth League room of the M. E. church. This will be the anniversary meeting and each member will be privileged to invite one guest. An invitation has also been extended to the members of the Northville Ladies Club. Mrs. Marie B. Ferry of Lansing, will give the address of the afternoon, taking for her subject, "Home of Our Hearts."

"The Talk of the Town" Opera House, March 2-3

"The Talk of the Town," presented by Miss Ruth Weissert, assisted by local talent and played under the auspices of the L. O. T. M. M. is ready for its first public appearance on Thursday evening, March 2nd. It promises to be a theatrical treat and as the price is only 25c, it is within the reach of all. "The Talk of the Town" departs from the old time idea of a minstrel first part, it gives ample opportunity for a rapid fire run of jokes, the introduction of a number of up-to-the-minute popular songs, fanciful songs, pretty gitty, beautiful costumes and lastly, funny end men. This has its setting in a brilliantly lighted cafe, where the beautifully dressed company are seen seated about tables. The program as follows will assure you of the success of the entertainment:

CABARET MINSTRELS.
Interlocutor—Miss Ruth Weissert.
Comedians—Calvin Whipple and Stephen Jewell.
French Girls—Laura Bogart, Florence Giger, Alvina Streng and Helen Knapp.

Daisy Mfg. Co. Exhibit Takes First Honors

The exhibit of the Daisy Mfg. Co. of this village carried off the first honors for the most interesting exhibit at the Michigan Retail Hardware Dealers' Association convention held at Grand Rapids last week. The exhibit was in charge of O. H. Rauch of the Daisy Co. Mr. Rauch's arrangement of the exhibit and the decoration of the booth was very artistic and called forth the admiration of all those who saw it. All styles and sizes of the air rifles manufactured by the company were nicely displayed and a shooting gallery was set up which was very effective in showing off the goods. In view of the fact that there were some mighty fine exhibits shown and that several members of the judging committee were expert window trimmers, Mr. Rauch and the Daisy Mfg. Co. have reason to feel proud of having received first ribbon.

Extension School at Grange Hall

The M. A. C. Extension school in Home Economics will be held in Plymouth at Grange hall April 3rd to 7th. This is a subject which should interest every lady in town and country. The work is provided for thru the sums made available by the Smith's Lever Act, which appropriates funds to the various states for co-operative extension work. A 50c. fee at the time the school is held is used to defray local expenses of the school, such as hall rent, groceries, meat, etc., used in the demonstration. All those interested in this work meet at Grange hall Thursday afternoon at 8 o'clock, or call Mrs. S. W. Spicer, 308-F.

Death of Mrs. Monte Wood

The many friends here of Mrs. Monte Wood were deeply shocked last Sunday when they received word from Cleveland, Ohio, of her untimely death. Mrs. Wood died at Huron Road hospital Sunday, February 20th, only a few days after having underwent an operation, from the effects of which she never fully rallied. The remains were brought to Plymouth Monday and the funeral took place from the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gents, Thursday afternoon, Rev. C. Strasen, pastor of the Lutheran church conducting the services. Interment in Riverside cemetery. The many beautiful floral pieces sent came as silent messengers of the deep sympathy felt for the bereaved family. The funeral services taking place on this date seemed extremely sad, as it was Mr. and Mrs. Wood's eighth wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Wood was formerly Miss Louise Gents, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gents of this place. She was born in Plymouth, December 28th, 1886. She received her education in the Plymouth High school, and was a member of the graduating class of 1905. She was united in marriage to Monte Wood of this place, February 24, 1905. About five years ago Mr. and Mrs. Wood went to Detroit where they resided until last September when they moved to Cleveland, Ohio. The deceased is survived by her husband and two children, Clifford, seven years of age, and little Margaret aged four, her father and mother, one brother, Ernest Gents of Detroit, and one sister, Miss Blanche Gents of this place, besides many more distant relatives. The family have the sympathy of the community in their deep sorrow.

The Workingmen's Caucus

The Workingmen's caucus held at the village hall last Friday evening was largely attended. A. V. Jones was chairman of the meeting and W. T. Pettigill secretary. The chair appointed the following tellers: Ed. Bolton, Chas. Mather, Chester Arthur and George Wilsie. H. C. Robinson was the unanimous choice of the caucus for village president, being nominated by acclamation. In the choice of the three trustees there was a spirited contest and it required several ballots to decide the winner. The following ticket was nominated:

President—Harry C. Robinson
Clerk—C. A. Hearn
Treasurer—Winn E. Hubbell
Assessor—Wm. T. Raitenbury
Trustees—Louis Reber, John Patterson, Fred Hall.

The following caucus committee was appointed for the ensuing year: Louis Hillmer, Henry Fisher, George Gale.

The Tuesday Bridge club met with Mrs. J. H. Kimble this week.

Mrs. J. D. McLaren was called to Chelsea last Friday to attend the funeral of a friend.

Wm. T. Pettigill has been in Battle Creek this week attending the annual convention of the Retail Grocer's association.

The Ladies' Aid of the Lutheran church will give a thimble party at the home of Mrs. J. D. Moran next Wednesday afternoon, March 1st. All members are urged to be present with thimbles and needles.

Coquettish Modes Reappearing

The pannier drapery and the pointed bodice, from the coquettish modes of long ago, are plainly embodied in the fascinating frock shown here. But it follows its pretty and frivolous forerunner at a considerable and safe distance and has adapted instead of adopting the original that it compliments so adroitly. The twentieth century maid consents to the frivolity of the seventeenth century gown but stops at its foolishness. She has follies of her own to deal with.

A narrow silk lace with gold threads outlining the flower pattern. The silk bodice, instead of being stiffly boned and smooth, is softly draped about the figure, thus departing from the ways of its prototype. Instead of a long, rigid point at the front it has a short point and easy adjustment to the figure. It is gathered over a cord at the top and narrows to bands over the shoulders. It is graceful and comfortable looking which proves that we have learned something in the lapse of over two hundred years—perhaps.

The gown pictured has a full underskirt of georgette crepe on which a little outline embroidery in gold appears at the front, and an underbodice and three-quarter length sleeves of the crepe. The overskirt, of flowered taffeta, is cut longer than the underskirt and caught up at two places at each side. Wherever required it is tacked to the underskirt and it hangs straight and full at the back, covering the crepe skirt completely.

Seaweed is made into a composition to take the place of bone for handles of cutlery.

Made of Familiar Materials

The art of the milliner means more than the material she works with, or quite as much, anyway, in producing hats in which style is the strongest element. Here are two attractive and inexpensive hats, made of familiar fabrics, that demonstrate how cleverly ideas may be interpreted in materials that every milliner has at hand. These hats are suited to any season, too, which is a great factor in their favor.

extends diagonally across the top. The side crown is covered with a bias strip stretched smoothly about it. The lower part of the coronet is also covered with a plain bias strip of satin. At the top a puff of satin, or of fallie or moire ribbon, gives the required variety and finish. A fine wire is inserted in the lower edge of the puff where it joins the satin. This is not to be neglected if the hat is copied; it is the touch that betrays the work of the professional.

The Norfolk Coat. Norfolk coat is always a satisfactory one. A new model shows milliner's pockets that are new and distinctive. It is admirable for all occasions and for a variety of different materials. Blue gabardine, white gabardine and white serge are especially made up into Norfolk coats.

Plaited Skirts. Plaited skirts are not alone fashionable, they are very generally becoming. One is so arranged as to give the effect of a plain panel at the front and one at the back, also it is cut off at about the hip and finished with a system of pretty shaped yokes.

"Better Off On the Farm"

An Interview with Secretary of Agriculture David F. Houston by Edward B. Clark

It should and doubtless does go without saying that David Franklin Houston, secretary of agriculture, is interested deeply in the solution of the problem of how to keep the young men of the country on the farm. Mr. Houston, like many others who have given careful study to the situation, declares that the cry should not be "Back to the farm," but "Stay on the farm."

The belief of all the government students of agricultural conditions in the United States is that if the farming industry be made increasingly profitable and that if conditions of farm life be bettered the "Back to the farm" movement will take care of itself. In other words, the magnet will be on the farm and it will draw to itself the dwellers in the cities who are ambitious to better their condition.

Secretary Houston was asked by your correspondent to give a message to those who are engaged in a comprehensive plan to show the boys of their communities that it is advisable to stay on the farm instead of leaving it to go to the hurly-burly and uncertainty of city life. Mr. Houston spoke feelingly on the subject. He combined a statement of what is being done by the federal and state governments to give the farming life holding qualities, with a message on the growing opportunities for young men to make a signal success of agricultural occupations.

"It is not so much a problem of bringing young men back to the farm as it is one of so improving agricultural conditions and rural life as to make it clear to the young men that they will be better off in the long run by staying where they are than by going elsewhere.

"The great problem confronting the nation is how to make agriculture profitable and the rural life comfortable, attractive and healthful. If we successfully attack that problem we shall be relieved of the necessity of talking so much about staying on the farm or of going back to the farm. All the efforts of land-grant colleges and of this department are directed to this end. The agencies are becoming consolidated in the extent and efficiency of machinery, and financial support has been forthcoming from the states and the nation, which combined are spending at present $60,000,000 a year through the land-grant colleges and the state and federal departments of agriculture for the improvement of agricultural and rural life.

"The aim is to increase production through plant and animal breeding, better cultural methods, eradication or control of plant and animal diseases which are costing hundreds of millions a year; to study better problems in agriculture; to improve distribution, especially marketing, and to develop community co-operation and teamwork with a view to the better standardization and handling of products and a fuller knowledge of markets and market conditions and the transportation of products—in short, a better organization of rural life.

"In the interest of the young people we are organizing a large number of agricultural clubs, canning clubs, poultry clubs, corn clubs, hog clubs, and so on. The work is being promoted by the demonstration force, now a co-operative machinery under the joint support of land-grant colleges and the federal department.

"In many counties throughout the country there are county agents whose duty it is to work with the farmers on the farms for the improvement of agricultural conditions as they affect production and distribution. Under the Smith-Lever act the states and the nation together will be expending in seven years $9,000,000 yearly for this extension of agricultural education.

"It seems reasonably clear with the natural opportunities we have and with the improvements made by the farmers supplementing these agencies, that the opportunities for young men to make a success in farming will be increased gradually, and that now outside of the actual business of farming there is a loud call for leaders of all these enterprises in rural districts.

"I see no reason why an aspiring country boy should not direct his attention to the opportunities presented in this great field of effort rather than to those of the other industrial offerings presented by city life. Secretary Houston spoke strongly of three factors of the problem of how to keep young men on the farm. They are good rural schools, first-class country roads and a more attractive social life. Schools and a brightening of the social life are wholly state and community problems. In the matter of the improvement of roads the federal government has a voice and power.

The secretary has a heartfelt interest in the solution of the rural-school problem. He believes, as others believe with him, that the boy and girl in the country should have the same opportunities for education that are given to the boy and girl of the city. The lack of proper educational facilities in country districts, he believes, has sent many ambitious parents away from the farms to the cities in order to give their children the advantages which the schools of the large centers afford.

THE CITY OFFERS FEW ADVANTAGES

Chicago Banker Gives Some Sound Advice to Young Men and Women.

SHOWS RURAL OPPORTUNITY

Farmer Has Greater Possibility of Comfort in Old Age, With More Wholesome Pleasures and Real Cultivation.

UNLESS the young man is specially trained by education and practices for some particular kind of work to be found in the city, or has capital to be invested in some legitimate enterprise, he will be better off in the country or small town.

Cities are all overcrowded. Jobs in all ordinary lines of industry are scarce because there are generally more job-hunters than jobs. With so much competition for work, labor is cheap and wages are low.

It costs much more to live in the city than in the country. If a man receives low wages he must find shelter in low-class lodgings—crowded, dirty, garretlike places in poor neighborhoods where fresh air is at a premium and the constant noise maddening. He cannot buy good, nourishing food but must get along on what he can afford to buy. Consequently his health suffers. He cannot afford to buy clothing of good quality, so he must wear shoddy. He can save nothing out of small earnings, so sickness or any other emergency need for funds finds him in serious circumstances. And to live as he must live is a constant invitation to sickness.

City Pleasures False. There seems to be an impression in the country that life in the city is one continual round of entertainment and pleasure. All such so-called pleasures are expensive and all of it becomes quickly tiresome. There is the saloon, the low-class moving picture show and the drive, as forms of entertainment not found in a majority of small towns. But in the city men who cannot afford better things have a tendency to drift to these places and get acquainted with people and habits that wreck character. City entertainment is false, artificial.

I have been up in the Dakotas quite a bit. I have found that farmers and small town people usually are better read than the average city person—better informed about worth-while things than I am. They get good newspapers and good magazines in the rural communities. They can hear the world's finest music on the phonograph. They get as much dramatic entertainment as the majority of city people get, for in every village and town there is at least one moving picture show. They are always within a few hours of the city's rush and bang, for the express train and electric interurban limited penetrate every corner of the nation.

The Unwary Girl. And the young woman who wants to leave the old home town or the farm for the city? It is much harder for her to get along than for the young man. Wages for women in the industries are very low and jobs are scarce. Decent living conditions are beyond her reach unless she gets good pay. Pitfalls for the unwary or unfortunate young woman are everywhere.

Even if the girl must work as a domestic back in the home town she gets as much pay likely as she can get without special training in the city. Living conditions are healthful, physically and morally, in the rural community. Recently I watched a large crowd of girl workers enter a factory. Nearly every one wore those high French heeled shoes. I venture not one had a bank savings account. Suppose one of those girls gets sick, or the factory shuts down. What can she do?

The whole nation will be vastly better off when our young men and young women of the small towns—I include cities of ten thousand population in this description—decide to make the most of opportunity at home.

War Cannot Destroy It. A wonderful night tonight, so that the spirit goes forth a little, enters the harmony of things, drinks the magic of the world. How beauty moves the heart! And war cannot destroy it, cannot take from us the feeling that—living or dead—we belong to such perfection. It cannot take the voice from the streams, remove the light from the stars, the gleam of moonlight, the whisper of night about us, nor that bright star, that cannot take from within us the soul that vibrates to loveliness, to the great-hearted rhythm round us.—John Galsworthy, in Scribner's Magazine.

Anger is an emotion, and all emotions should be subservient to the will. Keep the rising anger down by the power of your will. Admitted there are many things that cause anger—justifiable anger. Yet, now that you know the scientific truth that anger is a killer of men, and that every time you get into a blazing rage you are paying back the price of your years, to a worth while is get angry?

Character Needs It. "I know a boss politician who wants to get a good kind of writer to do his character." "Why don't he get a scrub writer?"

City Nephew—But, Uncle John, you left the banquet table too early. You should have waited for the bon mots and the repartee. Uncle John—Oh, don't worry; I was satisfied. You see, I don't drink nor smoke.

Pair of Breaks. Winks—Miss Uppish is nothing if not consistent. Dinks—What's the explanation? Winks—I was engaged to her for a time, but when she discovered I was broke she immediately broke the engagement.

Powerful Electric Locomotives. Electric locomotives have been built for a German railroad having heavy grades that draw loads of 330 tons at a speed of 42 miles an hour.

Let it Go at That. Hubby—Why is the telephone like matrimony, my dear? Wifey—Oh, I suppose it's because one doesn't always get the party one wants. Hubby—That isn't the correct answer, but it's good, and well let it go at that.

Bad Management. Soubrette (in "continuous")—When do you go on? Comedian—Right after the trained donkeys. Soubrette—Heavens! It's a wonder the stage manager doesn't try to break the monotony more than he does.

PECULIAR IRISH "MONO-RAIL"

VARIOUS QUAINT LINES

FRENCH RAILROADS BUILT TO OVERCOME OBSTACLES.

Ireland Has One of the Most Remarkable Rail Routes—"Rack" System Has Been Found a Necessity in Switzerland.

Of the various quaint railroads in the world one is not so very far away, although you have perhaps never heard of it, much less traveled along its eccentric line, remarks London Answers.

This is the Lartigue railroad, at Balylunion, in Ireland, some idea of which you can glean from the picture. This strange train, you will observe, is in duplicate, the engine and carriages being double, while the line consists of a central rail, which passes down the center of the train. To add to the humor of the thing, passengers are sometimes requested to change their seats from one side of the train to the other, so that a proper balance may be maintained.

Other out-of-the-way railroads are sometimes used in order to negotiate any very steep ascents or descents where the ordinary train would come to grief. In this connection we find what are known as "rack" railroads, more than one of which is used in Switzerland.

The rack railroad, instead of having ordinary smooth lines only, has a rack-rail in the center of the track, this rack being cut into a series of teeth, which fit out rather like the teeth of a saw held upside down. Under the engine of the train itself there is fixed a cogwheel, which grips the teeth of the rack-rail, and so prevents the train from slipping back along the ordinary rails that lie on either side of the rack-rail.

Cars fitted thus are able to ascend and descend mountains on which an ordinary train would quickly meet with disaster.

Another form of mountain railroad is that run by means of cables. The cable principle is roughly this: The cables wind round drums at the top and bottom of the slope. Then, as one train descends the other climbs up the hill, the process being reversed for the return journey.

A sensational train, which we may yet see in everyday work, is the Brennan monorail, demonstrations of which were given by its inventor a few years ago. The peculiarities of this train are that it has only one rail, being balanced by means of a couple of gyroscopes.

There is also a moving-platform railroad, which has been actually used in New York, and which somewhat resembles the moving staircases now in use in parts of London. In this case the first platform is stationary, but beside it there is another platform which moves forward at the rate of three miles an hour. Next to this comes a third platform, moving at six miles per hour, while the fourth and last moves at nine miles per hour.

The idea is, of course, that passengers shall step from platform to platform, according to the pace at which they wish to travel; it being in their power always to return to the stationary platform when they so desire. In leaving one platform for another, moreover, they are never changing their rate of progress by more than three miles. On each platform, also, there are a number of posts and handrails to which passengers can cling, if nervous. Believers in this method of travel prophesy a great future for the invention, but whether their beliefs are justified or not remains to be seen.

Revenue From Railroad Junk Heap. A leading eastern railroad prides itself on the fact that it does not throw away a single article that has any value to man or beast. Everything that has been relegated to the scrap heap is afterwards sold if there is a market for it. In 1914 the scrap metal sold brought in to the company's treasury $2,157,241.54, which was $1,000,000 less than in 1913. Waste paper alone sold for $19,211, oil barrels for $23,439, and old rubber for $16,222. Locomotives and wooden passenger cars sold for $114,326. Old wheels, metals and wrought iron yielded more than $780,000. Other odds and ends brought in $121,997.—Scientific American.

Let it Go at That. Hubby—Why is the telephone like matrimony, my dear? Wifey—Oh, I suppose it's because one doesn't always get the party one wants. Hubby—That isn't the correct answer, but it's good, and well let it go at that.

NOT DEPENDENT ON THE RAIL

Locomotives and Freight Cars That Can Run on Road is a Recent Austrian Invention.

Locomotives and freight cars that run equally well with or without rails are the latest inventions of Austrians in their war on Russia. The wheels are of the broad rim type that will run well on rough roads or through mud. They are fitted with a centrally located flange that fits over the tracks when the strange train is running on rails.

When the train arrives at the end of the railroad line it can still be continued toward the front, unless the roads are in absolutely impassable condition. Over good, solid roads the train runs almost as fast as over rails.

The locomotive is a benzine eater, generating its propelling power by the use of benzine. The hybrid-wheeled freight train has been used effectively by the Austrians, especially in the Carso district. It is expected that the type will soon become familiar on all fronts, as the usefulness of the invention has been well demonstrated. This Austrian contrivance is one striking instance of Teutonic resourcefulness not attributed to the Germans and is in marked contrast with the bomb throwers, iron helmets, spring rockets and other adaptations of ancient warfare which have lately marked the trench-deadlocked conflict on the western front.—Exchange.

Courtesy is Catching. Two great railroad corporations have placed posters about their premises emphasizing the desire to please their patrons. One invites the suggestions, co-operation and friendship of the public in its efforts to remove causes for complaint or criticism. The other enjoins upon its employees to be courteous at all times, that courtesy is catching, is a business asset, a gain and never a loss.

Such evidences of railroad anxiety to be on good terms with the public on a frank basis of mutual confidence and co-operation will undoubtedly strike a responsive chord in popular sentiment. There are many little details that affect the public irritatingly, but which may never have occurred to railroad management. One of these might be removed by referring persons intending to travel at a later date to the information windows at large stations, where they might be routed and instructed without interfering with the ordinary traveler who, as often as not, reaches the station just in time to buy his ticket before the train pulls out.

Germany's Oldest Railroad. The oldest railroad in Germany is one of the shortest railway lines in the world. The Ludwig railroad, connecting the cities of Furth and Nuremberg, is just three and three-quarter miles long, and has never been extended. It was conceived by Johannes Scharrer, a wealthy hop merchant. The plan was first published in 1832, and as King Ludwig favored its construction it was named after him. There are about ninety employees. The road carries about 4,000,000 passengers a year.

Burn Cars to Recover Scrap Iron. To recover the iron in discarded wooden cars, an eastern railroad burns them. Before setting the cars on fire, however, they are carefully inspected and all stiles and other woodwork is removed. The value of what remains is said to be so little that it does not justify the expense of tearing it down, and accordingly it is cheaper to burn the wood, leaving the iron, which is sold as scrap.—Scientific American.

THE EVIDENCE IN THE CASE

Results Following Settlement Show That Conditions in Western Canada Are Highly Satisfactory.

Until a few years ago Mr. Henry Lohmann lived at Edmuntown, Ill. He thought he would better his condition in a new country, where he would have wider scope for his farming operations. It would not seem essential to refer to Mr. Lohmann, at this particular time, as of German blood, but for the fact that so many false statements have gone out as to ill treatment of Germans in Canada.

Writing from Willmont, Sask., under date of January 30, 1916, Mr. Lohmann says: "We are perfectly satisfied in this country, and doing well up here.

"I bought a half section of land and took up a homestead, my three sons also took homesteads, two of them buying each 150 acres of land as well. I sold my homestead, and I and one of my sons own a threshing outfit. "The crop this year was good; the oats went 90 to 80 bushels per acre, and wheat went 40 to 50 bushels and the price is fair."

Sam Morrow, of Millet, Alta., in writing to Mr. J. M. MacLachlan, Canadian government agent at Watertown, S. D., says: "I am well pleased with the country. The climate is better than I ever thought it could be so far north; ideal climate for stock. I have some colts and cattle that have not been inside of a stable in four years. I consider this a fine country for mixed farming. I know of farmers around here who had 42 bushels of barley to the acre and 55 bushels of oats to the acre."

Jacob Coetz of Piapot, Sask., had 43 acres of wheat from which he got 1,200 bushels, and got an average of 93 bushels of oats to the acre.

Golden Prairie, Sask., is a district largely settled by S.uth Dakotans. Horace Blake is one of these. He says: "The crops of 1915 were immense."

Wheat in his locality went from 40 to 55 bushels per acre; oats about 80 bushels on an average. One hundred bushels of potatoes were grown on a quarter of an acre of land. Twelve potatoes weighed 30 pounds. His horses run out all winter, and come in fat. He raised excellent corn, and fattened hogs on it. He concludes an interested letter by saying: "There are schools in every district. The people here are most all hustlers and are fast pushing to the front. When I first came up here on almost every half section stood a little 12x14 shack, now almost everyone has real modern houses and barns."

Some Southern Alberta yields for 1915: I. H. Hooker, 82 acres, 3,820 bushels Marquis wheat No. 1, 64 pounds per bushel.

I. I. Lee, 40 acres, stubble, 1,500 bushels; 40 acres summer fallow, 2,530 bushels.

Peter Brandon, 164 acres, 7,361 bushels Marquis wheat.

R. Marandi, 135 acres, 6,920 bushels, 64 pounds per bushel.

I. McReynolds, 45 acres, 1,675, stubble.

Ole Christoffersen, 50 acres, 2,647 bushels.

Aruffus Gavett, 155 acres wheat, 6,642 bushels; 30 acres oats, 2,000 bushels.

Robert Mathews, 46 acres wheat, 2,016 bushels, machine measure.

D. Dunbar, 130 acres wheat, 5,925 bushels.

Ingauld Hoppy, 80 acres wheat, 2,800 bushels, all stubble.

Louis Kratt, 30 acres wheat, 4,000 bushels.

W. J. Pate, 26 acres wheat, 980 bushels.

W. Roeniche, 150 acres wheat, 5,337 bushels, 80 of this stubble.

J. C. McKinnon, 50 acres wheat, 2,536 bushels.

Gordon Swinehart, 30 acres wheat, 1,140 bushels.

Albert Hanson, 85 acres wheat, 3,760 bushels.

Elmer Hamm, 110 acres wheat, 5,158 bushels; 90 acres oats, 6,550 bushels.

John Larson, 80 acres wheat, 3,000 bushels; 30 acres oats, 2,000 bushels.

John Hecklin, 37 acres, 1,484 bushels.

Wm. Hecklin, 100 acres, 3,376, stubble and breaking.

O. Sallsbury, 50 acres Marquis wheat, 1,600 bushels on breaking.—Advertisement.

TO STOP TERRIBLE RHEUMATIC PAINS

M. E. Sunday-School News

Northville 121. Plymouth 176. The burning of the Northville school-house on Sunday kept many of the members of the Sunday-School away from their classes. Thus making their attendance low.

The girls of Helen Farrand's class met in the kitchen of the church on Wednesday evening, and after a pot-luck supper, proceeded to elect new officers. The following were elected: President, Merle Roe, Vice Pres., Ernestine Roe, Secretary, Ila Roe and Treasurer Altha Hearn.

Hilda Doan, Clyde Blunk and Charles Kingsley were the Doubters last Sunday.

By invitation, the Woman's Christian Temperance Union met Thursday afternoon, Feb. 17, with the Plymouth Grange. A pleasing program was given and enjoyed by all.

Death has again visited Plymouth Union. Mrs. Ella Safford is the third to be called home since the last annual meeting. Although she had been a member but a short time and on account of failing health, had been able to attend but few of the meetings, still she was known and beloved by the members. Of a bright cheery disposition, she had a kind word for everyone and scattered sunshine wherever she went.

"Beautiful spirit, free from all stain. Ours the heart-ache, the sorrow, the pain. Thine is the glory and infinite gain— Thy slumber is sweet." Mary T. Lathrop.

"The Man From Vermont"

The opera house was filled last Tuesday evening with an appreciative audience when Charles Taggart, "The Man From Vermont," gave his delightful entertainment, which consisted of recitations, piano and violin selections, songs and character sketches. Special mention should be made of his wonderful ability on the violin and his splendid impersonations, in fact every selection was highly appreciated. The last number of the Entertainment Course will be given in the opera house March 23rd by the Smith-Spring-Holmes Orchestral Quintet.

Charged With Stealing From Freight Cars

Three men giving the names of Stanley Przybylowski of Canton, Benjamin Przybylowski and Edward Stacienka of Hamtramck, were arrested by Deputy Sheriff Springer last week Thursday, charged with stealing from Pere Marquette freight cars on the Canton siding. The breaking into cars on this siding has been going on for the past six months, and over $2,500 worth of goods has been stolen. Deputy Springer made a search of Przybylowski's premises in Canton and found a quantity of merchandise, consisting of 19 auto tires, 10,000 cigars, 10,000 cigarettes, 30 gallons of whiskey, besides a quantity of shoes, slippers, hards and groceries. The defendants were given a hearing before Justice Campbell Wednesday afternoon and waved examination to the circuit court. They were placed under $500 bonds with two sureties each. In default of bail they were taken to the county jail, Detroit.

Former Plymouth Citizen Builds Many Houses

We are in receipt of a recent copy of a special edition of the Hollywood, California Citizen, which contains a fine half-tone picture of the beautiful grounds surrounding the home of W. F. Markham, formerly of this village. The paper also contains the following article, which will be of interest to Mr. Markham's many Plymouth friends:

W. F. Markham, corner Sunset boulevard and Vine street, who now owns more than a half hundred houses in Hollywood, is building several more houses on his Morningside Court property. At the corner of Sunset and Morningside Court he is erecting a double bungalow of twelve rooms; at Selma and Morningside, he is putting up an 8-room house which he has already rented to D. C. Travis, inside superintendent for the Llewellyn Iron Works. To the south of this he will erect two five-room houses facing on Morningside, one of which is rented. Facing Selma, Mr. Markham will build a court of five houses.

It is reported that Mr. Markham will later build on his other lots on Morningside Court so that the entire tract will be built up.

In And Around Plymouth

Webberville is to have a ladies band. The Milford fair will be held this year, September 19-22.

The Lenten season begins March 8, with Easter Sunday on April 23. Howell expects to have free city delivery of mail beginning April 1st.

The Rockwell farm of 230 acres near Pontiac has just been sold for $176,000.

A Northville made automobile has made its appearance in the shape of a three-quarter ton truck.

The Howell chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution have marked the site of the first school-house in Howell with a monument. The school was built in 1838.

Congressman Kelley has introduced a bill in congress to give Northville town two brass or bronze cannons or field pieces, with cannon balls, etc. The cannon will be located on the school grounds in that village.

Nine business men of Royal Oak, acting as agents for a business men's club to be organized later, have bought the lots on the corner of Lafayette and Fifth streets. It is planned to build a club house at some time in the future.

The village council at Northville have received an estimate for a proposed system of sanitary sewerage and sewerage disposal plant for that village. The plant has been laid out on a unit basis so that part of the work can be done at different times or the entire system put in at once. The total cost is estimated at $38,501.25.

Northville village caucuses held last Saturday night revealed that the coming village election will be a straight-away battle between liquor and prohibition elements. The Workingmen's party favors the return of the bars which were banished at last spring's election. The Workingmen's ticket is headed by Dr. Tom Henry and the People's ticket by Charles Filkins.

The Oakland County Centennial Association, formed to organize a proper celebration of Oakland's 100th birthday next August, is making an effort to induce a public marriage in connection with the celebration. The association offers to the first young lady who shall propose and be accepted, and who will be publicly married at the celebration, the entire furnishings for a house besides the cost of the wedding fee and the license.

O. P. Showers brought to the Mail office Tuesday two very interesting relics. One of them was a copy of the New York Special of April 15th, 1865, which contained an account of Lincoln's assassination. Mr. Showers purchased the paper at Burksville Junction, Va., the following morning of its issue for 15 cents. The other relic was an atlas of Michigan bearing the date of 1834. The population of the state at that time is given as 87,263.

A Table of Antiquities

At the Newburg Washington birthday fish dinner Tuesday last, one of the attractions was a table of relics placed on exhibition. It is really wonderful what a collection of antiquities can be made in many communities if people take the trouble to bring them together. Among the articles on exhibition were the following: A fax betchel, over 100 years old. Basket (wicker) 100 years old. Brass kettle, very old. A pocket-book that Oliver P. Showers obtained by swapping with a rebel soldier at Appomattox. A bronze eagle worn by Benjamin Zimmerman on his cap in the war of 1812, now in the possession of Mrs. C. Kilian of Plymouth, a granddaughter of Mr. Zimmerman. A German Bible about 100 years old. A brown silk bonnet, 50 years old. A cup and saucer and plate made in Germany 150 years ago. An amethyst, 150 years old. A powder horn and shot pouch, very old. A plush hood, 50 years old. A headkerchief on which is painted the photographs of four Prussian soldiers of the Franco-Prussian war, brought from Germany by Henry Groom. A linen sample made in 1800. A cap belonging to C. E. Ryder's grandfather. A woven linen towel made 100 years ago. A pair of antique candle snuffers of great age. A soldier's diary written during the Civil war. A lady's neck shawl of silk and wool, over 100 years old. A hand-made print dress, 80 years old and many other very interesting articles.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Burrows and little daughter Elizabeth Ann, have been guests at Wm. J. Burrows' this week.

H. Midworth of St. John's Episcopal church, will be the preacher on Sunday morning at St. Mark's church, Algona, and in the evening at St. Andrew's church, Marine City. The Rev. Carey of the Church of the Messiah, Detroit, will be the visiting clergyman at St. John's, Plymouth.

For Tired Women With Aching Heads

"They help me so much and I find relief as soon as I begin taking your Foley Kidney Pills." Mrs. Frank P. Wood, Merrill, Maine, R. F. D. No. 1. Sometimes it seems as if you can't stand the pain across your back. It is just making your life miserable and robbing you of all energy and strength. When you are constantly tired, head always aching, nerves "on edge," kidney action painful and burning, then is the time to start in at once on Foley Kidney Pills. They strengthen the weak, bring the nervous system back to normal, and cause your troubles. Your system grows peaceful, sleep becomes sweet, nervous headaches disappear. As Mrs. Wood says: "I find relief as soon as I begin taking your Foley Kidney Pills. Be sure you get the genuine Foley Kidney Pills, for they are the only ones that contain no harmful drugs."

A Fair Association

A Possibility

The smoker of the Plymouth Improvement Association held at the village hall last Thursday evening was well attended. The meeting was called to order by W. T. Pettingill in the absence of President F. D. Schrader. Mr. Pettingill made a report of the committee's visit to Howell to look over the fair grounds at that place and gave the meeting an idea as to what it cost to establish the Howell fair. The committee who had the matter of looking up a site for a fair grounds in Plymouth, reported that there were several good available sites that could be secured near the village if a fair association could be organized here. President Schrader had come in during the discussion of the two reports took the chair. It was the vote of the meeting that a committee should be appointed by the president to solicit stock for the purpose of organizing a fair association in Plymouth. A committee of fourteen members was appointed by President Schrader to solicit stock at $10 per share and report at the next meeting of the association to be held, Thursday evening, March 9th. The matter of bringing some pressure to bear looking toward a cement roadway on the Plymouth road was brought before the meeting and it was decided that an appointment be made with the county road commissioners and the board of directors and as many citizens who can do so, go to Detroit and lay the matter before the commissioners.

THE HEART OF NIGHT WIND

A STORY OF THE GREAT NORTH WEST

By VINGIE E. ROE

ILLUSTRATIONS BY TRAY WALTERS

"You would have followed me across the world upon your knees, and you served me like a slave. And I repaid you with a white man's coin! I left you to break your heart among the dusky people who were kinder than I!"

With failing sight the speaker tried to pierce the mystery, gazing at Siletz. "Did I dream of death and retribution—and of Kolawmie, who—bent above the babe to put that sign upon her face? I struck his hand away when it had set but a fraction of the fatal bar—the sign that said you were wild, that forbade you to the shallow cities, that made you a white man's toy?"

The eagerness left the Preacher's eyes, they became suddenly calm and mild. With a cry that cut high above the steady sounds of the wind and the fires Siletz sprang up, a hand flung to her lips, where the sign of the Siletz stood out—broken in its inception!

"My father!" she cried pitifully, "oh, my father!" Sandy was breathing heavily, a mist in his eyes and a sadness upon his heart. His victory over Hampden had lost its savor.

But the past with its pitiful shadows had drifted away from the Preacher forever and the look of gentle tenderness had returned. "My daughter," he said softly, "why do you weep? Ah—the night closes down and it is dark. I have lost my way. What is the path?"

His fingers groped blindly for the flute. "What is the way out of the labyrinth of youth—and sin—and miseries? Ah, I have forgotten!"

With a sudden inspiration Sandy stopped and picked up the instrument. He had played a bit at college. Softly, silverly, the joyous notes began. "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," to go on to that ancient plea of trusting faith.

"Other refuge have I none, Hungry, homeless, soul on thee," a strange voice of glory amid the death and danger, the sin and stress of the moment.

A holy peace spread on the white features. "Why, certainly!" whispered the traveler of the hills, "how could I forget! That is the Way out!"

And then, "Hush!" the murmur of many wings. Ah, it is God's hand! I go—de profundis! Gloria in excelsis!

With that last whispered word the wandering player of hymns, the preacher to the irresponsible and the lover of humanity fumbled stiffly at his harp's skirt. Sandy knelt, found a deep pocket, felt therein and brought out a small Bible of a long-past day. Its edges were thin and frayed and greatly worn. Its stiff back, with the age-black, raised lettering, had long since lost its corners. He knew it instantly for the counterpart of that one on Siletz' stand in the little south room. It had many openings of its own, and it fell apart, flat at the palms and then at a passage whose beginning caught his eye as he placed it in the loving hands that made to grasp its familiar bulk—and failed.

The stately words whose solemn forecast had struck him once when he sought for some clue to the Preacher's identity now seemed to ring in his ears, a stupendous requiem for the nameless, high-souled, drifter-from-of-woods-men who had spent his blameless life in fanciful stonement for a shadowy wrong.

Who shall ascend unto the hill of the Lord? He that hath clean hands and a pure heart. Who hath not lifted up his soul unto vanity, nor sworn deceitfully.

The Preacher was of that past which he had so long forgotten and flash back to him for one revealing moment.

CHAPTER XXX.

"The Night Wind is Not Afraid to Die." Sandy laid the Bible under the lifeless hand, looked about desperately for something to cover the glorified face between its white curls...

"She lies!" Siletz had sprung to her feet, both hands feeling wildly in her empty blouse.

Miss Ordway swung heavily toward her. "Hush!" she said warningly. She slipped a hand inside her own gown and showed a corner of the soiled packet of proofs that Siletz had guarded for so many days, the packet that she knew instinctively meant harm to Sandy, that must never go east!

It was then that Sandy was to behold the iron in this creature of softness, of faithfulness and of service. With a cry that chilled his blood in its savage wildness, the girl leaped across the silent, form in the shabby habit, tore Sandy's gun from his hand and fired twice before he could seize her and wrest the weapon from her. Both shots went wild.

"What would you do?" he cried aghast. "Mean as I am," he said insolently, "you'll never send me there." His burning eyes were covering the clump of ferns that held his gun, but Sandy went over and picked it up. He stood a moment considering.

A hot wind was whipping up the dips on every side and Black Bolt was stepping unceasingly, pointing anxious ears this way and that. Coosnah had crawled to where Siletz knelt, weeping with her hands over her face.

He crouched low to the ground and laid his heavy muzzle against her boot, whining dolorously. Suddenly, in the momentary silence, Poppy Ordway spoke. Her face was flushed like an April dawn. Chance and the courage of the last throw lent to the last touch of ravishing charm.

"Kismet!" she said, "I am the only one who wins in this game! Hampden, you're right. I've bought you with your own coin. And let me tell you Hampden, that you were disgustingly easy!"

The timberman winced at the brutal words. His florid face darkened with rage. "Ah, yes! So you won his love with your pretty detective work! You'll marry him and settle down."

Thus was the crucial moment presented to Poppy Ordway all suddenly, and she recognized it instantly. It sent a chill to her daring heart, then fired it with that love of chance, that ability to cast great stakes on a single throw, which in a better nature would have made her great.

She felt with a flash of her genius the drama of the situation, the tense readiness of the moment for wild, fantastic things, and accepted it at once. "Yes!" she cried, "yes! I offer Sandy you—and myself!"

With a beautiful gesture she stepped toward Sandy and held out both hands, her golden head up, her slumberous blue eyes sensuous and black with excitement, her whole ex-

With one great bound he flung himself high in the air, leaped the space between and came down with his great weight upon the shoulders of the other man, clutching for back and throat, drawing the one to him in a grip of iron, pushing the other away.

Sandy went down like a reed, and as his knees buckled under him there was an ominous snap. The bone of his right leg, newly healed and fragile, gave way under the strain.

As the two men fell, both guns, the one in Sandy's hand and the one in his trousers band, tumbled loosely apart. Siletz, clinging still to Sandy's knees, was borne down with them. As they rolled over she tore herself from under them and with two sweeps of her outspread arms gathered the guns. Then she sprang up, drawing back a pace, her eyes like fire, and deliberately sought for a chance to kill Hampden.

"Sandy," she cried, "lie flat! Lie flat!" From under Hampden's arm that was choking the breath from his lungs the owner saw that slim figure of doom and strove to cry out. At last he got his voice for a moment.

"Siletz!" he rasped, "don't shoot. I command you, don't kill!" But the bark of the gun drowned his words. She was firing around them.

With the first shot Hampden, remembering the guns that he had failed to get, felt his flesh rise on his body and he loosened his hold, shook off Sandy and got to his feet, panting, fighting mad, his eyes red and awful.

With the courage of the raging bull he made straight for Siletz, who fired point blank at him. He took the ball in his shoulder and spun half round. The girl pulled the trigger again, got an empty snap, threw the weapon away and raised the other.

"Siletz!" shrieked Sandy from the ground, "for my sake stop!" It was a command, a cry of ownership, and it went straight to that part of her nature which had obeyed for generations. She hesitated, holding the man across the barrel.

As for Hampden, he stood, wavering drunkenly, chuckling in his throat, a thing of horror in his malvolence. "Well," he rasped dryly, "I guess it's just as well. I'll leave you to yer pleasant dreams. I sail for Panama—Hawaii—the Yukon. I'm done."

He turned on his heel, to stride away into the pall of smoke toward the north. In one moment he came rushing back to run down to the west. For the first time the three people left together remembered the fires, saw the thickened smoke, heard the roar that had made them scream their tragic words, unconsciously, for the last half hour.

It was all around them, that pouring mass of smoke, and it was black as if the fires were near. Hampden's huge figure tore past them toward the narrow point of the ridge, then came lurching back, a long red streamer staining his bedraggled shirt.

"My God!" he shouted hoarsely. "We've hemmed in! It's on every side! We'll burn like rats!" He flung a tragic arm to the dusky heavens. Poppy Ordway found her voice. She darted forward and to Sandy's side. She bent to him with arms of loving service, exerting all her strength.

"Climb!" she commanded, "climb quick! We can make it yet!" But Sandy looked into her blazing dark face that was like the peaks in storm, so wild was it, so thrilling, so beyond comprehension, and shook his head.

"What would you do?" he asked. "Do? Go down the trail across the Hog Back. There is room for a horse, if he is sure-footed, and Black Bolt will go where I put him. Come! He's jaded a bit but he'll carry us both."

"And—?" She flamed from brow to throat with unholy joy. "Leave them!" she cried savagely, "leave them to burn with their proofs and their schemes and their wickedness! It is the right law!"

"No," he said, "it cannot be. If there is a way you must go—you are a woman—and you must take her with you."

"What?" cried Siletz in anguish. "That is the way of the outside world, Little Siletz—the way of honor. He saw the fires leap and flicker in her eyes, felt the tension of her hands upon his arms. Here was a force as wild and erratic as the great fires in the forest, and he knew not how to handle it. Then came the words of the Preacher like a way out of his difficulty.

"The three bars—of Fidelity, of Faithfulness and of Service. 'You are my woman,' said the young man sternly, 'is it not so?'"

"Yes," answered the girl simply, "I am your woman." "Then I command you to go—and take her with you."

The girl dropped his shoulders and arose. "I will obey," she said. A change was working in her. The singing in her ears was growing fainter. She was coming into the open country where Sandy lived his life, even as he had gone for a moment into the fastnesses where hers was laid.

"Come," she said to the staring woman, "there is a way out. You need not die." As the words forced themselves into the swaying brain of the other they stripped her of every rag of civilization. With a shriek she threw herself forward, caught at the saddle, clawed at its trappings like one demented.

But Siletz flung her back. "A gift for a gift," she cried, "I give you your wicked life. Give me the packet."

The woman tore the papers from her breast, thrusting them in frenzy at the girl and again tried uselessly to mount Black Bolt. Hampden came forward, lifted her gently in his strong arms and set her upon the horse. She leaned down and snatched at the reins, but Siletz held them away.

"Quick!" screamed Poppy Ordway, "do you want me to burn, you squaw?" In silence the girl snapped her fingers to Coosnah and the mammoth mongrel crept to her feet. She tied the end of the long reins securely to his collar. Then she turned to Hampden.

"Go," she said, "get up. He will carry you both and you must hurry. Coosnah knows the secret trail. Urge the horse and he will take it. Don't look down; and hold her, or she will surely go over. Go now."

Sandy, raised on his one knee, beheld this thing aghast. "Siletz!" he cried, "you disobeys!" She shook her black head. "I send her out. I stay. It is my great privilege."

She laid slim fingers against the broken sign beneath her lips. "A woman serves and is faithful—if she loves," she said softly, "and I am your woman."

For a precious moment Hampden stood in indecision. But the lure of the woman, the glimmer of distant shores, mayhap with her—who knew?—was too strong. He turned from the two and leaped up behind the saddle, striking a heel into the flank of the mottled black who bounded forward, dragging the dog.

But Coosnah hung back upon the rein, turning anguished, adoring eyes to his one idol. The girl stooped and caught his long ears, lifting his wrinkled face.

"Go home!" she cried, commanding. "Coosnah! Go home!" "As you love me, go!" she finished in jargon, and the huge, shambling, faithful creature turned from her into the smoke to disappear toward that secret trail which only they knew and which led afar over the rearing spine of the Hog Back. He strained at his tether to obey and Black Bolt broke into a stumbling, burrying gait, overburdened, half-blind with smoke.

And the girl turned to the despairing man upon the ground. "The Night Wind is not afraid to die," she said gently, "and she is Sandy's woman."

"Oh, my God!" groaned he man, "what have you done?" (TO BE CONTINUED.)

Question of Tongue. Some amount of confusion is caused by the pronunciation of the name of the town Kaprula, or Vales, in Macedonia. The difference in nomenclature is attributable to the conflict of tongues. Kaprula, Koprula or Kaprila, is the Turkish equivalent of the Bulgarian Vales and the Greek Velina, all of which refer to the same town in the vilayet (as it was under Turkish rule) of Salonika. The ancient Greek historian Polybius speaks of the town of Byzantia, and it is believed that the Bulgarian and modern Greek names are corruptions of this. The Turkish form, with slight modification, is the cognomen of a family of statesmen who flourished from the sixteenth to the eighteenth centuries. —London Chronicle.

IS HOME LESS ATTRACTIVE? Every Member of Family Nowadays Seems to Find Entertainment Elsewhere. The average American home seems to be losing its attraction for the household. Anna Gladden writes in the New Orleans Times-Picayune. The home is frequently only a place in which to sleep and eat. The children coming home from school stop at home long enough to deposit their books and go off in pursuit of entertainment. The mother entertains her visitors by shopping or visiting the picture show. The evening callers are treated to a musical entertainment or a theater party. The call of outside attraction is strong. However, the home should have its attractions and be satisfying to both old and young in the household. When the back yard has been transformed from an ash heap and a pile to a plot of flowers; when the fence and outbuildings have been covered with vines; when the house and garden are covered with flowers and green...

FEEL CHARM OF CORNWALL Artists Fond of Depicting Beauties of Scenes in That Famous English County. It has been said that of the two hundred or more canvases dispatched each year from Cornwall to London—seventy-eight have been painted at Newlyn or St. Ives. Certainly, in the tangled streets of the little town, wherever a window gives upon the sea be sure an easel stands. St. Ives gets its name from an Irish princess, St. I, who floated through upon a leaf and landed on Penzance, the rocky headland which St. Ives calls "The Island." St. Ives sits by a smooth circle of sea into which a tongue of rocky land thrusts a bold curving headland, including an inner harbor in the great sweep of the bay. On the green hillsides that the summer breeze blows the vines and cuttings of hops, that belong to the truest Cornish wine, are seen the white-washed cottages and the red-roofed barns. The sea is then painting directly toward the scene of wood...

HAVE ROSY CHEEKS AND FEEL FRESH AS A DAISY—TRY THIS!

Says glass of hot water with phosphate before breakfast washes out poisons.

To see the tinge of healthy bloom in your face, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, to wake up without a headache, backache, coated tongue or a nasty breath, in fact to feel your best, day in and day out, just try inside-bathing every morning for one week.

Before breakfast each day, drink a glass of real hot water, with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it as a harmless means of washing from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and toxins, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at your druggist or general store, but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, sweetens and freshens the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the blood and internal organs. Those who are subject to constipation, bilious attacks, acid stomach, rheumatic twinges, also those whose skin is sallow and complexion pallid, are assured that one week of inside-bathing will have them both looking and feeling better in every way.—Adv.

Putting Papa Wise. "Papa," said the hopeful youth, "can you tell me what is natural philosophy?" "Of course I can," said papa, proud and relieved to find that there was at least something he could tell his offspring. "Natural philosophy is the science of cause and reason. Now, for instance, you see the steam coming out of the spout of the kettle, but you don't know why or for what reason it does so, and—"

"Oh, but I do, papa," chirped the hope of the household. "The reason the steam comes out of the kettle is so that mamma may open your letters without your knowing it."

RELIABLE REMEDY RESTORES KIDNEYS. For many years druggists have watched with much interest the remarkable record maintained by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It is a physician's prescription. Swamp-Root is a strengthening medicine. Dr. Kilmer used it for years in his private practice. It helps the kidneys, liver and bladder to do the work nature intended they should do.

Swamp-Root has stood the test of years. It is sold by all druggists on its merit and it will help you. No other remedy can successfully take its place.

Be sure to get Swamp-Root and start treatment at once. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation, send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a simple bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

Claims Life is Not Injurious. Prof. M. E. Jaffe of the California state board of health denies that, as is generally believed, life-peeled peaches are more injurious to health than hand-peeled fruits. The food value, quality and flavor are unchanged, and it is impossible to distinguish one from the other except by the knit marks of the hand-peeled product, he says. Analyses show that the acidity of the fruit is not affected by the use of life in the peeling process.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR. To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and 1/2 oz. of glycerine. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the desired shade. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and remove dandruff. It is excellent for falling hair, and will make hair fall out, and plenty. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky, and does not rub off.—Adv.

NEW GLORY WON BY BRITISH IN LEAVING ANZAC
Antipodeans' Deeds of Arms Rivalled by the Marvel of Their Retirement.
STORY OF FATEFUL NIGHT
Thrills of the Passing Hours Told by Anxious Correspondent Watching From Ship—"All Off" Comes Word at 4:15 a. m.—Gun-fire Bluffs Moslems.

Sydney, Australia.—Rigid censorship has withheld the story of how the Australian and New Zealand troops quitted the Gallipoli peninsula, but now with the few other correspondents, privileged to witness that wonderful piece of work, Captain Bean, the official press representative, has described in telling phrases much of what was done.

Cabling from Anzac bay under date of December 19, Captain Bean says: "The movement, which at this moment is going on, is the one which, from the day of landing, everyone here has most dreaded. I heard it said on the day of landing, and it has been a commonplace ever since, that although the experiences of landing were bad enough, one thing would be worse, and that was if it ever fell to our lot to have to get off again."

"One read in the papers speeches by members of parliament asking light-heartedly why the forces were not withdrawn from the Dardanelles, as if the process was merely one of picking up baggage and walking off. People talking like that, one knew, could not have the slightest conception of the conditions under which we have been holding on for eight months at Anzac."

"Did they realize that the main beach, from which almost all the work of supplying Anzac had to be done, was within 900 yards of the main center and pivot of the whole Turkish line; that if the Turks could fight their way 300 yards they would reach the edge of the cliff, from which they would be able to look down, as from the gallery of a theater, upon the narrow flat, containing nearly all our stores, the ordnance depot, and all the paraphernalia for landing and embarkation?"

"The only chance is to get the troops away without the enemy, of whom there are 85,000 at Anzac and Suvla, having a suspicion of it. The North beach is better hidden than 'Watson's'. The enemy cannot actually see the ground around the landing point, but there is an off-shoot from the main ridge to the north, from which he could look over our inner ridge and into Ari Burnu Point, and half of the North beach. It was known as 'Sniper's Nest' because he habitually sniped from there at night with a machine gun. From 'Sniper's Nest' he can just see the tip of one landing step and all boats moving to or from them. Indeed, he keeps a careful list of all sea traffic. Suvla is even more open to shell fire, but at several miles distance from the nearest Turkish observer."

Departure Made in Moonlight.
Captain Bean here plunges into his account of the actual retirement in this language: "The moon is just beginning to flood sea and land with a light so clear that you can scarcely notice the change from twilight into night. The brightness of the moon is one of our chief anxieties, for if the enemy sees what we are doing and attacks during certain stages of the embarkation before tonight is over, then nothing can prevent one of the most sanguinary and desperate fights in history. But at present, although everyone's nerves are on edge with the proximity of the constant possibility of a great tragedy, there is nothing whatever in the gray shape of land there (the correspondent is on a cruiser) to hint at what is going forward."

Watchful Monitor Steals Past.
"8:27—Another distant gray shape passing outward far to the southward. They are clearly getting away without the least hitch, and actually ahead of time.
"A big monitor has just been sailing in past us—a ship I have never seen before. She must be going in there to enfilade the Suvla trenches, if anything goes wrong."

Heavy Fire Causes Brief Alarm.
By this artillery bluffing the Australians and New Zealanders kept off the Turks.
"11:55 a. m.—There has just steamed silently past us the small warship which I know contains the commander of our army corps. General Birdwood was ashore at Anzac among our men today. They were in splendid heart."

Mines on the Nek Blown Up.
"3:25 a. m.—The trenches opposite the 'Nek' have at this moment been left. The old Anzac line is now open to the Turks along every part. Desultory fire still continues exactly as on other nights from the far right to the far left.
"3:26 a. m.—Just now a huge red cloud rolled low across the 'Nek'. There was a low rumble. Presently, a still larger cloud curled low across the further slope of the same ridge, the angry revolving fumes glowing orange for an instant, then fading into the night. They were the two mines at the 'Nek' where our 'Light Horse' once charged. A rattle of rifles has started from the center. It is spreading thickly to the flanks, and growing steadily into a roar. The Turks evidently think they are being attacked, and they have started firing all along the line."

Turks Made Ready to Be Attacked.
"10:05 p. m.—There are sounds of very heavy firing down south. I can distinctly hear their machine guns, first one, and then two together, then a continuous ripple. I know that the troops, who are now coming off, are using not only the North beach but also the beach in Anzac cove, on to which 'Beachy Bill' can put shells whenever he likes. He can make that beach almost impassable. Occasionally when some small increase in the sniping from the trenches makes one hold one's breath for a moment, I remember this—that 'Beachy Bill' has so far fired only four or five shots during the whole night. And that is certain proof that he cannot even suspect that there is any unusual movement on."

GRANDSON OF THE KAISER

Alexander Ferdinand, the sturdy and likeable-looking youngster seen in this picture with his arms twined about his mother, the Princess Victoria, is the only son of Prince August William, fourth son of the Kaiser. Prince Alexander was born in 1915. His mother before her marriage was the Princess Victoria of Schleswig-Holstein.

From this moment the 'Apex,' the highest point on the ridge in our line which was won by the Wellington battalion on August 8, and held, though it cost Wellington 712 out of 763 men who went into the fight—from this moment the 'Apex' is free to the enemy. His fire trench there is 59 yards from ours.
"11:45 a. m.—'Beachy Bill' has fired again. The shell burst in the supply depot near 'Brighton beach.' So he is at his old games. That supply depot is the favorite target of 'Beachy Bill's' shells at night. This is the first time they will find nobody there. Two bombs at the 'Apex.' Our men have been gone from there a quarter of an hour. Those bombs must have been thrown by the Turks at our empty trenches."

"1:55 a. m.—There has just steamed silently past us the small warship which I know contains the commander of our army corps. General Birdwood was ashore at Anzac among our men today. They were in splendid heart.
"1:57 a. m.—Another bomb at the 'Apex.' We had two tunnels out far beneath the Turkish trenches there in case of need, and into those the engineers have put what explosive remains with them. The biggest mine we ever fired before contained less than five hundredweight. This mine of three tons, if we decide to fire it, should rend the 'Nek' to pieces. It is an extraordinary ending to a fine history. 'Quinn's' (Post), the trench that the Turks could never take at whatever cost, we have quietly left in the night. It now lies open to them."

"3:35 a. m.—The firing is heavy, right to the extreme southern end of the line. A message has been received to say that the Anzac wireless station has been closed and that the last party on the left is safely in the boats.
"3:45 a. m.—Firing still heavy, including machine guns. Suvla wireless station closed also. The navy must have timed the embarkation perfectly.
"4 a. m.—The fire at Anzac has almost ceased, except normal sniping by the Turks along the whole line. Except at 'Sniper's Nest' I can see no flashes from their rifles, so they must be in their trenches."

"4:10 a. m.—The tents and stores at Suvla have just begun to burst into flame. The flames are spreading swiftly along the line of beaches. We can see the torch of the man who is lighting them, going just ahead of the line of flame.
"4:15 a. m.—A wireless has been received stating that the whole embarkation has been completed. A naval officer next to me turns around and holds out his hand. Thank God!"

FIDDED FOR 4,659 PARTIES

This is the Fifty-Three Years Record of a Wisconsin Dance Musician.
Amherst, Wis.—John Eon at Amherst has filed a claim to a world's record for providing music for dances, for he has completed his record of the past fifty-three years as being 4,659 dances, a record he defies any musician in America to equal. His career dates back to January 15, 1862, when he came with his violin to Amherst, then a village in the heart of the pine woods. In those days he was the only musician who could be obtained for miles around, and he was in constant demand. His banner year was 1880, when his record was 450 dances, or an average of more than one a day for the entire year. Since then the country has settled, and he has had more competition. In the old days he would not only play, but would call of the square dances, and many is the time when he would make up a missing set on the floor by taking a fiddle to the dancing floor, and dance, call and play at the same time. He still is playing for the country dances, and says he will continue to play as long as he can finger the strings.

He Probably Would.
"I am looking," remarked Diogenes, "for an honest man." "And what will you do when you find him?" "I damn him."

BROKEN AIR-HOSE COSTS NINE LIVES
REAR-END COLLISION LAID TO DISREGARD OF CAUTIONARY SIGNAL.
FIFTY PERSONS WERE HURT
Local Train Was Running Forty Miles An Hour When the Accident Happened.

Milford, Conn.—Disregard of a cautionary signal was probably responsible for the rear-end collision on the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad in which nine persons lost their lives and fully 50 were injured, according to Charles C. Elwell, of the Connecticut public utilities commission.

The state's investigation already is under way, but inasmuch as four railroad employes, the most important witnesses, were killed, it will be difficult to fix responsibility.
Two passengers, a man and a woman, were killed instantly when a local train running at 40 miles an hour crashed into the rear of the Greenfield express, which had been stalled because of a broken air-hose. Two other passengers died in hospital.
The official theory of the accident is that the engineer of the local disregarded or failed to see the cautionary signal, and could not make his brakes hold when he came in sight of the danger signal.

One of the heroes of the wreck was George L. Tourtellette, flagman, sent back from the stalled train, who stood in the path of the approaching local, frantically waving his red flag until escape was impossible and he was killed under the engine wheels.

EMPLOY MILLION MEN IN NAVY
Navy Has 320,000 Officers and Men to 146,000 When War Broke Out.
London—The magnitude of the work going on in the navy is shown in a letter from the admiralty to Sir Gilbert Parker, answering his inquiry in the house of commons on the number of people engaged in all branches of the navy and of naval work. The letter states that the navy proper had 146,000 officers and men when the war broke out, which number has increased to 320,000, with the authority granted for a further increase to 350,000 officers and men, besides 67,000 naval reserves. There are also 85,000 men engaged in work at royal dockyards and other naval establishments and several times that number on admiralty work under contract and sub-contract. An aggregate of more than 1,000,000 persons engaged in various branches of naval work is shown.

A Woman's Problem

How to Feel Well During Middle Life Told by Three Women Who Learned from Experience.

The Change of Life is a most critical period of a woman's existence, and neglect of health at this time invites disease and pain. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs. Read these letters:—

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I started the Change of Life five years ago. I always had a headache and backache with bearing down pains and I would have heat flashes very bad at times with dizzy spells and nervous feelings. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I feel like a new person and am in better health and no more troubled with the aches and pains I had before I took your wonderful remedy. I recommend it to my friends for I cannot praise it enough."—Mrs. MARGARET GRASSMAN, 759 N. Ringgold St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Beverly, Mass.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for nervousness and dyspepsia, when I was going through the Change of Life. I found it very helpful and I have always spoken of it to other women who suffer as I did and have had them try it, and they also have received good results from it."—Mrs. GEORGE A. DUNBAR, 17 Roundy St., Beverly, Mass.

Erie, Pa.—"I was in poor health when the Change of Life started with me and I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, or I think I should not have got over it as easy as I did. Even now if I do not feel good I take the Compound and it restores me in a short time. I will praise your remedies to every woman for it may help them as it has me."—Mrs. E. KISSLING, 931 East 24th St., Erie, Pa.

No other medicine has been so successful in relieving woman's suffering as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Women may receive free and helpful advice by writing the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. Such letters are received and answered by women only and held in strict confidence.

Long in Secret Service.
William J. Flynn, chief of the federal secret service, the man responsible for unearthing the alleged foreign spy system, is a native of New York, and, save for six months, has been in the government service since 1897. During 1910-1911 he reorganized the New York detective bureau and then returned to government service. He began life as a plumber, but cherished a desire to be a detective. Soon after being appointed to the secret service he became a division chief and was assigned to the Pittsburgh division. He was transferred to New York in 1909 and later was assigned to the task of safeguarding the Russian and Japanese peace commissioners at Paris mouth.

At Work on Magnetic Survey.
The magnetic survey vessel, the Carnegie, of present under the command of J. P. Ault of the department of terrestrial magnetism, arrived at Port Lyttelton, New Zealand, on November 3 after a successful continuous trip of 96 days from Dutch Harbor, Alaska. Leaving Port Lyttelton on December 5, the Carnegie is now engaged on the accomplishment of the circumnavigation of the region between the parallels 50 degrees and 60 degrees south, whose almost no magnetic data have been obtained during the last 75 years.

AILING WOMEN
NEED THIS FAMOUS DOCTOR'S PRESCRIPTION
Thousands of women who are now blessed with robust health cannot understand why thousands of other women continue to worry and suffer from ailments peculiar to women when they can obtain for a trifling sum Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which will surely and quickly banish all pain, distress and misery and restore the womanly functions to health.

"ANURIC!"
NEWEST IN CHEMISTRY
This is a recent discovery of Doctor Pierce, head of the Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y. Experiments for several years proved that there is no other eliminator of uric acid comparable. For those easily recognized symptoms of inflammation—as backache, scalding urine and frequent urination, as well as sediment in the urine, or if uric acid in the blood has caused rheumatism, "Anuric" acts quickly. In rheumatism of the joints, in gravel and gout, invariably the pains and stiffness which so frequently and persistently accompany the disease rapidly disappear.

Miss Edna Holmes visited her sister, Mrs. Alexander Murdoch of Eloise, last Friday. George Dean made a business trip to Detroit last Friday.

Worst of All Luck.

A good character good habits and industry are impregnable to the results of the ill luck that comes raining down. But when I see a tatter-remained creeping out of a grocery store in the soreness with his hands in his pockets, the rim of his hat on his head and the crown knocked in, I know he has had luck—for the worst of all luck is to be a sluggard, a nave or a lippler.—Joseph Addison.

Terrible Croup Attack Quickly Repulsed By Old Reliable Remedy

Willow Grove, Georgia, where longer has been mentioned in the family of the late Mr. F. J. Boyle and the late Mr. F. J. Boyle. The minute that a terrible croupy cough is heard in the home of T. J. Barber, of Jefferson, Ga., out comes Foley's Honey and Tar Compound—there's always a bottle ready. Here's what he says: "Two of my children, one boy and one girl, aged eight and six years respectively, had terrible attacks of croup last winter and I completely cured them with Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. I have ten in family and for years I've used Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and it never fails." "I'm a little worried and have doctor bills—keep Foley's Honey and Tar Compound always on hand, in your home. It's the best remedy for croup, whooping-cough, and the best cure for colds as the first. Get the genuine." 10-23-50

Funeral of Mrs. Ella Safford Held Sunday

Mrs. Ella Safford, widow of the late Henry H. Safford, passed away at her home on Church street Thursday afternoon, February 17th. Mrs. Safford has been in failing health for some time, but about three months ago fell and sustained a fractured hip, which has since confined her to her bed, and from that time she has gradually declined. The deceased was born in Plymouth, Sept. 6th, 1846, and was the daughter of the late Abram and Phila Fralick, pioneers of this place. She was united in marriage to Henry H. Safford, Nov. 1, 1871, and has resided in Plymouth nearly all her life except for a few years spent on the Safford homestead in Canton township. Three children were born of this union, all of whom are living and were present at the funeral services, Mrs. Phila Harrison and Miss Alice Safford of this place and Donald F. Safford of Dallas, Texas. Her husband preceded her to the higher life February 23rd, 1898. The deceased was of a very social nature, loved her friends and companions and her genial manner and sunny disposition endeared her to all with whom she was associated. She will be greatly missed by a large circle of friends. Mrs. Safford was a member of the First Church of Christ Scientist, the W. C. T. U. and the Order of the Eastern Star, and was always interested and enjoyed the work of these societies. The funeral services were held from the First Presbyterian church last Sunday afternoon, the pastor, Rev. B. F. Farber, conducting the services. The large attendance of friends and relatives at the service and the beautiful flowers bore mute witness of the high esteem in which the deceased was held. She was laid to rest in the family lot in Riverside cemetery. The family have the deep sympathy of many friends in their bereavement. The following out of town friends and relatives were present at the service: Mrs. Ellen Woodard, Mrs. Harry Andrews, Major and Mrs. B. D. Safford, Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Safford, Dr. and Mrs. Stewart Hamilton, Mrs. J. E. Lawrence, James Safford, D. J. Fell, Miss Grace Culver, Miss Kate Delmarsh and Dr. Homer Safford of Detroit; Miss Helen Stevens and Albert Stevens of Whitmore Lake; Harry Stevens of Ann Arbor; Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Harrison of Deontons, and Mrs. J. H. Steers of Northville.

WEST PLYMOUTH.

We are sorry to hear that Mrs. Ben Blunk (nee Nina Becker) has had the misfortune to break her right ankle. District No. 7 was closed Tuesday on account of the teacher's illness. J. W. Packard has sold a team of colts to a Salem party, and is breaking another team. Miss Mildred Butler returned home from Detroit Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Butler attended the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Maes at New Boston, February 22. Miss Ester Stevenson of Detroit, visited her sister Mrs. Geo. Innis Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Phil Widmaier called on Mr. and Mrs. Fred Widmaier Sunday. Mrs. Fred Widmaier was a Detroit visitor Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Will Heeney of Farmington, called at the O'Bryan's Wednesday. Miss Olive Brown, who is taking a nurse training course in an Ann Arbor hospital, spent Saturday and Sunday at home. D. M. Berdan and Mrs. Slade spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. George Durlee. Albert Powell is visiting his brother, Louis Powell of Detroit, for a week. Adolph Melow and family, who have for the past year lived upon one of Chas. Tiffin's farms, are moving to the farm which has for so many years, been the home of the families of James and Will Heeney. Mrs. J. F. Root is training the Orange degree team, preparatory to the team's doing initiatory work for Fenton Grange, March 22. All will regret to learn that Mrs. Ed. Shuart has been very seriously ill and is recovering very slowly. Eli Schoch has been on the sick list this week. Don Packard has sold his wood lot to Joseph Montgomery of Northville. Richard Widmaier is working in Detroit. Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Northrop spent a day with Mr. and Mrs. Meldrum Partridge this week. Mrs. T. F. Chilson of Plymouth spent Friday and Saturday with Mrs. Chas. Brems. Miss Elizabeth Sly, who has been keeping house for her brother, Will Sly, returned home Tuesday. Mrs. Will Sly returned home from her western trip Wednesday. Mr. and Adolph Melow attended the pedro party given by Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Melow Saturday night. Mr. and Mrs. A. Melow each won a first prize. The William Holtz sale was well attended. Mr. Holtz and his wife will move to Plymouth, and Louis Holtz and family will move to Northville, where Mr. Holtz will work on the good roads. A farewell party in honor of Miss Helen Worrie was given by Miss Ella Minehart Saturday evening.

Use Your Own Judgment.

"Good advice, said Uncle Eben, 'is generally so mixed up with bad advice that you might as well take a chance on your own judgment.'"

The Best Recommendation.

The strongest recommendation any article may receive is a favorable word from the user. It is the recommendation of those who have used it that makes Chamberlain's Cough Remedy so popular. Mrs. Amanda Gierhart, Waynesfield, Ohio, writes: "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been used in my family for over twenty years and I can say that it is the best cough remedy I ever used." Original in every part.

Severe Cold Quickly Cured

"On December 1st I had a very severe cold or attack of the grip as it may be, and was nearly down with it, when I used O. C. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I bought two bottles of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and it was only a few days until I was completely restored to health. I firmly believe that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is one of the very best remedies and will know what to do in the future."—O. C. Chamberlain, Waynesfield, Ohio.

SALEM

Chas. Holmes and wife and Miss Ora Rathbun of Plymouth, spent Sunday with relatives here. Frank Boyle, Henry Doane and John Nelson attended the large sale of Sheriff Lindemehrd at Salsine Monday. Mr. Boyle acted as one of the auctioneers. Calvin Wheeler and wife of Detroit, were Sunday visitors at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Wheeler. Dick McKenna is suffering from an attack of pneumonia. Frankie Carey is fast recovering from his recent illness. A number of Detroit friends of Mr. and Mrs. John Haray visited them on Sunday. Henry Simpson, wife and child of Plymouth, spent Sunday with the former's parents, here. February business meeting of the Dime Savings was held at the home of Mrs. Jennie Wheeler, Monday afternoon. Fred Paul has moved from the Larned farm to the Hamilton house at Worden. Henry Brinkman of South Salem, was in town on business, Monday. F. J. Boyle, C. Kenalar, John Nelson and A. C. Wheeler were in Northville Sunday. Miss Eleanor Kenalar entertained a number of her friends Saturday evening. Progressive 650 was the leading parade. A dainty luncheon was served by Miss Kenalar's mother. A very enjoyable evening was reported by all. Miss Winifred Thompson of Ypsilanti, visited her cousin, Wm. S. Thompson, Friday evening. Mrs. Walter Rorabacher visited her son Bruce at East Lansing over Sunday. Bruce is taking a short course in farming at the M. A. C. The Baptist society gave a donation for their pastor, Rev. J. M. Baker, Tuesday afternoon and evening. Little Orson Atchison, son of Treasurer Harry Atchison, is quite sick at present.

Something Good

Those who hate many medicines should try Chamberlain's Tablets for constipation. They are pleasant to take and their effect is so agreeable and so natural that you will not realize that it has been produced by a medicine. Obtainable everywhere. Advt.

FRAIN'S LAKE

Mrs. Thomas Geer entertained at cards Tuesday evening. Howard and Miss Mildred Fishbeck are confined to their beds with jaundice. Mrs. Steve Duris of Ann Arbor, will entertain Saturday at a miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Esther Duris, who will become the bride of Lloyd Palmer of Canton next Wednesday. NEWBURG

The red side won last Sunday in the Sunday-school contest. The white side better get a hustle on. Those on the sick list are Mrs. Sylvia Bassett, Lewis Langs and Clara Chilson. We are sorry to learn of the serious illness of Mrs. Louisa Bennett of Plymouth. Mr. and Mrs. James Norris were over Sunday visitors at the Mackender home. Deo Duryee, who is employed at the Ford Motor Co. plant, was home over Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Lockrow of Birmingham, motored to C. Duryee's Sunday. A neat little surprise was sprung on Marietta Rattenbury last Saturday evening. An enjoyable evening was spent in various games, after which delicious refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Peter Groft. The third annual fish dinner was given by the men at the hall, Tuesday in honor of the birthday of the Father of our Country. The beautiful day brought out a goodly attendance, quite a delegation coming down from Plymouth. There was quite a collection of old relics displayed. The dinner was a great success, and if anyone is in need of an up-to-date chef, call on William Farley. A good Washington's day program was given, in charge of the Misses Holsington and Youngs. Miss Priscilla Arnold, an old resident of Newburg, passed away at her home last Friday morning. Funeral services will occur at the house today, Friday. Further particulars next week.
