"The Religion Worth Having"

A recent writer says: "We are developing a kind of religious liberalism which virtually says that our religion is as good as another, provided its adherents are equally honest and sincere." We have all heard this remark: "It does not make very much difference what our religion is we are all aiming for the same place."

Both of these statements record a prevailing opinion. But an opinion is one thing; a fact is another. The pastor of this church believes that the facts will not uphold the above opinion.

It does make a Difference what our Religion is.

Next Sunday evening the above opinion will be discussed. We will endeavor to arrive at some conclusions that will be helpful.

After the banquet the songs used in the play were again sung, and dancing was also indulged in. During the evening the members of the caste presented Miss Ruth Weissert with a handsome cut glass vase and a bouquet of sweet peas as a token of their good will and esteem.

Mrs. G. A. Starkweather Passes Away

Death of Prominent and Widely Known Plymouth Woman. Funeral Held Yesterday.

In the death of Mrs. George A. Starkweather which occurred early Tuesday morning of this week, Plymouth again loses one of her highly honored and most beloved women. Although she had been a sufferer from valvular disease of the heart for several years, yet her sudden demise has cast a cloud of sorrow over the entire village in the loss of this good woman. Practically her whole life has been spent in this community, which she has seen grow from mere farm land to its present size. She always seemed to cherish a desire to watch and aid our village to grow, and through her willingness to relinquish her holdings on her farm land, Plymouth has developed wonderfully fast.

Mrs. Starkweather was the genial head of a very hospitable home and those of us who have enjoyed that hospitality and come in intimate touch with her in her sunny home will grieve with the survivors in their loss. She was a most estimable woman, gentle and kind-hearted to all; universally liked and respected by everybody.

Though the allotted span of human life has come and gone with this good woman; and though she was spared to life's activities worn by the ravages of time and weakened by the wounds of disease yet her life will be remembered by the living and her departure brings to us the debt of love and duty it is our privilege and pleasure to pay to her at this hour. Love is a magnificent tribute to a woman who has fought the stern battles of life and found her solace in helping others. Only at long intervals does an occasion become so impressive and so inspiring.

She cared not what the world said, because she was a woman of true faith, a thorough student of the bible, a noble christian woman, and a most devoted mother.

Amelia Heywood was born in Wayne, August 16, 1844, the daughter of Eliseer and Elmira Heywood. Both parents died when she was four years old. At the age of seven she was adopted by Mr. and Mrs. Jehiel Davis of Plymouth, who brought her up as their own daughter. On August 29, 1865, she was united in marriage to George A. Starkweather, who died Feb. 7, 1907. Mrs. Starkweather is the youngest and last of a family of six children. She leaves two daughters, Mrs. Louis Hillmer and Mrs. Edward H. Fyfe both of Plymouth; six grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

The funeral services were held yesterday afternoon at the long time residence on Starkweather Ave. The services were conducted by Mr. F. F. Cook of Detroit, assisted by Rev. B. F. Farber of this village. Interment at Riverside.

Miss A. L. Thompson

Plymouth, Mich.

There was a very good attendance at the meeting of the Plymouth Improvement Association held at village hall Tuesday evening. The meeting was called to hear the report of the committee appointed to interview the A. J. Detlaff Co. of Detroit, who are in the field for the location of a big foundry plant, employing about 200 men. The company is composed principally of Mr. Detlaff, only a few shares of stock being held by employees of the concern. Mr. Detlaff gave the committee some excellent references as to his financial standing and as to the volume of business he is transacting. At present Mr. Detlaff is getting all his castings made by outside concerns, but is desirous of owning a plant of his own and away from the big city, where help in the foundry line is scarce and not always reliable. He wants a building 70x700 feet, built of concrete, steel and glass, the cost of which he estimated at about $40,000. He had no plans, these being now in preparation by engineers. He also wanted some four or five acres of land, located for easy shipping facilities and a sidetrack. He did not want the cost of which he estimated at about $40,000. He had no plans, these being now in preparation by engineers. He also wanted some four or five acres of land, located for easy shipping facilities and a sidetrack. He did not want the cost of which he estimated at about $40,000. He had no plans, these being now in preparation by engineers.

Mr. Detlaff will put from $15,000 to $20,000 in cash into the business. He will have a manager who will put in that much more and other parties in the city ready to put in stock to bring the total up to about $75,000, for the purchase of machinery and fittings and as working capital. They will bring about twenty-five skilled workmen to the plant, recruiting the balance from outside, Mr. Detlaff claiming three or four weeks' work coached by the skillful men would be sufficient instruction for the unskilled to become efficient workers. They would pay $2.50 per day for common labor and $3.00 per day for skilled workmen. They would expect to buy the building at its cost price and pay six per cent interest on the investment until paid for, the amount to be paid per year being from $5,000 to $10,000.

This is about the sum and substance of the report of the committee. It was most enthusiastically received by the meeting and plans were discussed for raising the money. It was finally determined to try the method of bonding the village, providing it could be done legally. A committee of three, consisting of Messrs. C. A. Fox, J. R. Ewert and E. O. Huston was appointed to look into this phase of the matter and also to confer again with Mr. Detlaff and obtain definite figures as to the cost of the building wanted. Several desirable sites can be secured, among them land owned by Mrs. Kate Allen and the Starkweather estate. Oliver Goldsmith offered a free site of all the land needed along the Pere Marquette railroad in the Auburn Heights Addition.

The meeting adjourned until next Thursday evening, when a further report will be made by the committee. This proposition is one of the best and most tangible that has been projected for Plymouth, and it is up to the people to meet it, even to the offering of extra inducements. What has or has not been done in the past should not be taken as a criterion. We must meet the propositions offered by other cities if we obtain this plant and now is the time to make that feeling manifest.

President Schrader announced that another factory proposition was before the association for their consideration. It is a plant for the manufacture of a machine for making rope for the use of farmers. The company also propose to make other articles. It was decided to have the promoters of the company come to Plymouth and state their proposition in detail at the meeting next Thursday evening.

Rev. Joseph Dutton goes to Redford on Sunday evening to speak in the interest of the dry campaign which is being bravely fought in that village. His pulpit in Plymouth will be supplied on Sunday evening by Rev. R. E. Aiken of Highland Park.

LETTER FROM STATE CAPITOL

THE RAILROAD STATE CASE PUTS A CRIMP IN SOME OF THE POLITICAL PLANS.

CANDIDATES FOR PRESIDENT

The Heads of Important Committees of the Legislature Sets Politicians Figuring On Who is Who.

[By Gurd M. Hayes.] Lansing—Judge Clarence W. Sealon's decision in the Ann Arbor rate case in the United States district court upholding the two-cent fare law is thought here at the capitol to preclude the possibility that the next legislature will be called upon to tackle the question of repealing the two-cent law.

The decision of Judge Sealon in the Ann Arbor case, while admitting the legality of the railroad's move, found as a matter of fact that on both the passenger and freight business the road was making 6 per cent on its investment.

There have been rumors, and most of them based upon statements of the railroad men, that they intend to take a hand in the next legislative primaries and elections, to get as many representatives and senators in the 1917 gathering favorable to their cause as possible. But Lansing is satisfied now that the Ann Arbor decision has put a crimp in this plan.

The Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic rate case is still with the master who took testimony, and there is no evidence here of any sudden termination of that case, although the master's decision may come at any time.

Two Presidential Candidates.

Three candidates for the republican nomination for president had qualified for places on the Michigan presidential primary ballot when the time for filing petitions expired at noon on Tuesday, February 28. William Alden Smith of Grand Rapids, Henry Ford of Detroit, and William Gerald Simpson of Detroit, are the three whose names will appear on the primary ballot for the election April 3. Woodrow Wilson will be the only candidate of the democratic party at the presidential primary, while the national progressives have no candidate. Aside from the republicans and democrats the only party to file petitions was the prohibitionist, William P. F. Ferguson of Pennsylvania is the candidate of the prohibition party. The presidential primary in no way alters the method of electing delegates to the national conventions. The delegates will be chosen in state and district conventions to be announced at the call of the state central committees. However, the delegates are bound, under the terms of the presidential primary law to support at the national conventions the candidates endorsed at the primary. The law does not specify whether the delegation shall be bound by the preferential vote for more than one ballot.

National Committeeman Charles B. Warren of Detroit will have no opposition for renomination at the republican primary. There are two candidates for national committeeman in the democratic primary. National Committeeman E. O. Wood of Flint is a candidate for renomination, and is opposed by William A. Comstock of Alpena, whose name was proposed by the so-called "original Wilsonites." Gustavus D. Pope, of Detroit, is set off as national committeeman of the national progressive party.

In addition to the soup that could be made from that great amount of beans the state used 1,000,000 pounds of beef.

Half a million pounds of butter were consumed in the state "kitchen," 1,000,000 pounds of sugar; 20,000 pounds of baking powder; 150,000 pounds of coffee; 100,000 pounds of prunes; 100,000 pounds of other dried fruits; 20,000 pounds of flour; 350,000 pounds of lard and lard substitutes; 12,000 gallons of molasses; 500,000 pounds of pork; 100,000 barrels of potatoes; 100,000 barrels of rice; 20 gallons of extract; 7,000 pounds of spices; 50,000 pounds of tea; 15,000 gallons of vinegar; 175,000 tons of coal; soap, soap chips and soap powders to the amount of $100,000.

The kitchens of the following institutions consumed the above: State hospital at Newberry; Marquette state prison; state hospitals at Kalamazoo, Traverse City, Pontiac, Saginaw industrial school for the blind; Ionia reformatory, Ionia state hospital for the criminal insane, Michigan Soldiers' home, Grand Rapids; school for children at Coldwater; school for girls at Adrian; Jackson industrial school for the blind; Lansing industrial school at Lansing; school for the deaf at Flint; home for the feeble-minded at Lapeer; epileptic farm at Wajshme; tuberculosis sanitarium at Howland.

HOUSE KILLS WARNING BILL

PRESIDENT WILSON WON HIS LONG AND SENSATIONAL FIGHT.

THE VOTE STOOD 276 TO 142

Republicans Join Democrats in Backing Up the President On His Submarine Negotiations.

Washington—President Wilson completely and decisively won his long and sensational fight to compel congress to acknowledge that it stands behind him in the submarine negotiations with Germany. To the rallying cries of "Stand by the president" and "Is it Lansing and Wilson, or von Bernstorff and the kaiser," a big Democratic majority and nearly half of the Republicans in the house, three times rolled up overwhelming votes against the movement to warn Americans of the armed ships of the European belligerents.

The celebrated McLemore resolution, around which the anti-administration forces centered their fight, was tabled, in other words, killed, just as was the Gore resolution for a similar purpose in the senate last week.

From the very outset of the fight the president's supporters, without regard to party, swept over the opposition. On the first vote, which was a parliamentary proposition to prevent opening the McLemore resolution to amendment and unlimited debate, the administration forces carried the day 256 to 160. On that 192 Democratic, 63 Republicans and one Progressive voted to support the administration. Twenty-one Democrats, 132 Republicans, five Progressives, one Independent and Representative London, the lone Socialist of the house, voted against it.

This was the crucial vote of the fight, the one point on which administration leaders were uncertain. With victory in hand they moved on to the next proposition, the adoption of a special rule for four hours' discussion of the McLemore resolution. Again they carried the day this time 271 to 138, and then pushed their victory to a conclusion by tabling the McLemore resolution, 276 to 142.

FRENCH INFLECT HEAVY LOSS

Steady Pour of Machine Gun Fire Into Enemies Advancing Army.

London—Germany's new drives at the two banks of the French defenders of Verdun have succeeded to the point of taking an important hill northwest of the fortress and the village of Presnes, on the southeast, in the Woerre region. On the southeast, the Germans took the village of Presnes, which has been partially surrounded by them for several days. The town is an important highway center and is on the railway from Montmedy to Commercy.

To the west of the Meuse, the Germans, pressing on from Forges, took positions on both sides of the Cote de L'Oie, penetrating the Corbeaux wood to the west of the Cote, and taking Hill 265 between the Cote de L'Oie and the Meuse.

The French still hold the summit of the Cote itself, thus keeping a salient which projected into the new German line at this point. The French also are still in possession of the village of Bethincourt, the groves to the east of the Bois des Corbeaux and the Bois de Cumieres.

The battle, which gave the Germans possession of Hill 265 was an engagement of great intensity between large forces. The German attack was made with a full division of 20,000 men. A bombardment of extreme violence preceded the attack and was of marked effect on the French defenses. The French artillery and machine guns poured a concentrated fire into the advancing ranks of the Germans, inflicting heavy losses, but the Germans, by force of numbers, concentrated on a narrow front, drove on in spite of their losses and the French were unable to hold the hill.

ITEMS OF STATE INTEREST

Miss Mary Zelink, under arrest on a charge of forgery in New York, and who says she did it to be near her lover in Muskegon, collapsed when a Gotham detective arrived with papers to take her back to face the judge whose name she is said to have forged while in his employ. She sustained a nervous collapse.

John McCullough, 42, came to Owasco to visit his son and the trip resulted in his marriage to Mrs. Zoe McCullough, 37, employed in an Owasco newspaper office. She divorced him about 10 years ago. They will live on his farm near Detroit.

Peter Murphy was feeding chickens at the home of the Little Sisters of the Poor in Grand Rapids when an attorney from Dallas, Tex., informed him a rich cousin had died there, leaving him an estate of $25,000. "Well, go ahead and collect it," said Murphy, continuing his work.

Henry Ford wired the secretary of state to have his name taken from the presidential primary ballot, but word came after the legal limit, and his name will remain on the ballots, following a decision of the attorney-general.

Fire claimed 11 lives in January, according to a report of the state fire marshal. Twenty-six were seriously burned during the month, 10 women were injured and 19 public buildings, including seven schools, five hotels, four churches and three theatres were burned.

CANADA'S PLANS FOR WAR REVENUE

So Wisely Distributed That Taxation Will Affect Farmers to a Degree Practically Unnoticeable.

So many rumors have been circulated regarding war taxation in Canada that the statement made by Sir Thomas White, Canadian Minister of Finance, of the government's plans for raising war revenue should be given the widest circulation. Sir Thomas made it clear that the revenue will be raised by taxing the profits of incorporated companies whenever those profits exceed seven per cent, and the profits of unincorporated firms or partnerships when the profits exceed ten per cent. On all such excess profits these companies or firms will have to contribute one-quarter to the Government.

Transportation companies, banks, mining, milling, and other companies will be subject to this taxation, but life insurance companies, and companies with less than fifty thousand dollars capitalization, and companies, firms, or individuals engaged in agriculture or stock raising, are exempt, and pay no part of this taxation. The only other additional taxation proposed is an increase of fifty cents a barrel in the customs duty on apples, and one-half cent a gallon in customs duty on certain kinds of oils.

It will be noticed that this taxation is being applied in such a way that it does not affect farmers in the slightest degree, except, perhaps, through a small increase in cost of apples and oil. The war revenue is to be paid out of the profits of the big firms and companies with capital of over fifty thousand dollars, and even these are allowed seven per cent in some cases, and ten per cent in others, of clear profits before they have to pay any part of this taxation. It will be seen that the whole policy is to place the war expenditure taxation on those who have been making big profits and are able to pay it, and to encourage farming and stockraising by exempting farmers and stockraisers from the taxation. This ought to set at rest every rumor that the farmer or the farmer's land is being taxed to pay the cost of the war.—Advertisement.

SOME USE FOR OLD JOGGS Didn't Fit in Well With the Rest, but Boss Had Good Reason for Keeping Him Around.

The visitor was being shown about by the head of the up-to-date business house. "Who is that dapper youth at the glass-topped desk?" he asked. "That is the superintendent of the card-index system. He keeps an index showing where the index cases are."

"Who is the young man with the gray suiters and the efficient ears?" "He keeps an index showing the length of time it takes to index the indexes."

"Who is the girl with the golden hair?" "She decides under what index an index to the index of the filing cabinet shall be placed."

"And who is that gray-haired man at the disordered desk in the corner?" "Oh, that's Old Jiggs. He doesn't fit in very well with the rest of the office, but I have to keep him around. He's the only employee who can and important papers when I want them in a hurry."—New York Mail.

Donizetti and the Czar. There are some persons who talk on all occasions when others are speaking, singing or whatever they may be doing. The Evangelical companion tells of the hint given by Donizetti, the great musical composer, to Czar Nicholas of Russia.

During Donizetti's long stay at St. Petersburg, he played by command before Czar Nicholas, who, in the course of the piece, entered into conversation with a bystander. Donizetti at once stopped the performance.

"Why have you stopped?" asked the autocrat. "Sire," was the reply, "when the czar is speaking everyone else should be silent."

THE FIRST TASTE Learned to Drink Coffee When a Boy.

If parents realized the fact that coffee contains a drug—caffein—which is especially harmful to children, they would doubtless hesitate before giving their coffee to drink.

"When I was a child in my mother's arms and first began to nibble things at the table, mother used to give me sips of coffee. And so I contracted the coffee habit early."

"I continued to use coffee until I was 27, and when I got into office work I began to have nervous spells. Especially after breakfast I was so nervous I could scarcely attend to my correspondence."

"At night, after having had coffee for supper, I could hardly sleep, and on rising in the morning would feel weak and nervous."

"A friend persuaded me to try Postum. "I can now get good sleep, am free from nervousness and headaches. I recommend Postum to all coffee drinkers."

FARM SUCCESS SURE

Young Men and Women Should Stick to Agriculture.

Country Citizen Has Advantages Over His City Relative When It Comes to the Real Opportunities.

By G. H. ALFORD, Extension Division Maryland Agricultural College.

WE think we are facing a new condition of affairs in the drift of the young people from the country to the cities, in the steady rise in the cost of living, and in the decline of our food exports.

The young people of this country have been taught in their homes, in the schools, and through the literature placed in their hands, largely to overestimate the advantages of city life and they have not been taught correctly to comprehend its disadvantages.

One middle-aged man in New York city in answering the question, why young men leave the farm, says: "I wish to say that I speak from experience, for I am one of the army of deserters, and like thousands of others, am now too poor financially to go back to the farm, and too proud to go back broke."

Probably the best way to convince boys that it is best to remain on the farm is by such methods of farming as will yield the necessary profits to provide the necessities, comforts, and some of the luxuries of life.

It is unquestioned that we are now entering a permanent era of high priced farm products and high priced land. This being true, it is advisable for farmers' boys to buy land and grow high priced foodstuffs.

The country schools and churches are rapidly being consolidated, and made the equal of the best in the towns. Our industrial and commercial affairs will soon be adjusted so that farmers will receive their full share of what the consumer pays.

Farmers will soon have an equal chance with other men in securing capital to supply their farms and homes with labor-saving and wealth-producing equipment.

The farmer and his family many now have all city conveniences. Water, electric lights, telephone, fireless cookers, gasoline engines, automobiles, and so on, can be obtained for a comparatively small outlay of money.

The time has come when county agents, agricultural specialists, principals of agricultural high schools, and, in fact, agriculturists for all kinds of agricultural work will be selected from among the successful farmers and dragged from the farm.

Farming is a business as well as a science. The business of the farmer is to produce things and sell them for profit. This is also the business of all the manufacturing plants throughout the world.

City Dwellers Struggle for Their Meager Comforts.

GOOD FINANCIAL PROSPECT

Wisconsin Official Shows Why Young Men and Women Should Stay in Country and Help Make the Nation's Real Wealth.

By MATTHEW S. DUDGEON of Wisconsin (Five Library Commission).

TWENTY years ago—twenty years ago—all the alert, energetic farm boys were leaving the farm for the city.

Today, if you go through a fairly prosperous farming community, you will find the telephone in nearly every farmhouse and a daily delivery of mail bringing the daily newspapers to every door.

Prices are going higher. American consumers are demanding more and better farm products and stand ready to pay better prices. They are going more directly to the farm for what they want and the farmer is getting a bigger share of what they pay.

Never before has the American farmer boy had so promising a financial prospect as he has at the present time. Profits are surer than they ever were and they bid fair to increase.

Some of the familiar cotton materials, like cretonne, in light weights are woven with reference to their use in dresses and suits. In suits, plain, coarse linens or cottons are used with them, made into coats finished with collars, cuffs, belts, pockets and other details of finishing, made of cretonne.

Big Financial Returns. In fact, the farmer who formerly was considered a plodder working at one thing, with one idea and one resource, is now getting to be a resourceful business man, an administrator, an alert student of the market and finance, a well-read professional man who understands the science of his profession.

The boy who stays on the farm to become a successful farmer is bringing into an occupation where brains, intelligence and study, energy and alertness are getting as large financial returns as they are in any human activity.

COTTON FABRICS IN NEW WEAVES.

Displays of spring dress goods in the shops are enticed by many beautiful and novel cotton fabrics that are a revelation in the art of weaving cotton. They include canvas cloths and basket weaves that promise something of a revolution in apparel for warm weather.

Some of the familiar cotton materials, like cretonne, in light weights are woven with reference to their use in dresses and suits. In suits, plain, coarse linens or cottons are used with them, made into coats finished with collars, cuffs, belts, pockets and other details of finishing, made of cretonne.

CAPE-COLLARS AND CAPES.

like that in the skirt. Or this is reversed and the plain skirt is worn with a cretonne coat. Beach suits in which hats and bags and pillows are made of these fabrics could hardly be more pleasing than they are.

All of this promises a summer of colorful clothes. These cotton materials are moderate in price and there are no others smarter in design. Best of all, they are washable.

At Last a Pocket. A dainty little nightgown in empire style, all frilled and hand embroidered, has a tiny pocket just big enough to hold a handkerchief.

Separate Short Silk Coats. Jackets of taffeta, faille satin or lace worn with summer frocks of exceedingly sheer material, are to popularize a style which last season was merely tolerated.

Looking Ahead. To repair the wastage of war a proposal has been made by a well-known German physician that the official matrimonial agency after the war. He declares that the surviving young men will have to work very hard and will have little time to attend those society functions at which eligible brides are usually met.

AMERICANS GROW RICH IN CANADA

Testimony Proves Falseness of Statements as to Dnerous Taxation and Conscription.

"The attempt to check emigration from the United States to our prairie provinces by publishing alarming statements about the enormous war taxes that are being paid here—$500 on a quarter section yearly—about forcing young men to enlist for the war; about the cold, no crops and any old story that by their extravagant boldness might influence men and women from venturing north to Canada, is really in the list of curios to our people. Knowing the country, we can hardly take it seriously. Our governments, however, dominion and provincial, are taking steps to expose the false statements that are being made, and thereby keep the channel open for continuing the stream of settlers that has been flowing to us for the past decade. We have thought to assist in this work, and to do so purpose giving, from time to time, actual experiences of Americans who have come to Saskatchewan during late years. We give the statements of two farmers in this issue as follows:—

STATEMENT OF M. P. TYSDAL. I lived near Lee, Illinois, for 46 years. I came to Saskatchewan in the spring of 1912 and bought land near Briercrest. I have farmed this land, 1,680 acres, ever since. I have had grand crops. In 1914 I had 100 acres of wheat that yielded 40 bushels to the acre. I sold this wheat at $1.50 per bushel.

I like the country and my neighbors. My taxes on each quarter section (160 acres) are about $32 a year. This covers municipal tax, school tax, hall insurance tax—everything. There is no war tax, so-called. I like the laws in force here. There is no compulsion to do in any way. I am just as independent here as I was in Illinois, and I feel that my family and I are just as well protected by the laws of the province as we were in our old home in Illinois. What I earn here is my own. I have seven children and they take their places at school, in sports and at all public gatherings the same as the Canadian born.

(Signed) M. P. TYSDAL. February 9th, 1916.

STATEMENT OF STEVE SCHWEITZBERGER. I was born in Wisconsin, but moved with my parents when a boy to Stephen Co., Iowa. I was there farming for 50 years. I sold my land there for over $200 an acre. I moved to Saskatchewan, and located near Briercrest in the spring of 1912. I bought a half section of land. I have good neighbors. I feel quite at home here the same as in Iowa. We have perfect safety and no trouble in living up to the laws in force. My taxes are about $65 a year, on the half section for everything.

I have had splendid crops. Wheat in 1915 yielded me over 50 bushels to the acre. That is more than I ever had in Iowa and yet the land there costs four times as much as it does here. The man who comes here now and buys land at $50 an acre or less gets a bargain. (Signed) S. SCHWEITZBERGER. February 9th, 1916. —Saskatchewan Farmer, February, 1916.—Advertisement.

Her Pride Hurt. "Your fashionable iridient seems to be threatened with palpitation of the heart." "Yes, she has just received a dreadful shock." "And what happened to fortune's favorite?" IF BACK HURTS CLEAN KIDNEYS WITH SALTS

Drink Lots of Water and Stop Eating Meat for a While if the Bladder Bothers You.

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.—Adg.

'The Talk of the Town'

The entertainment, under the auspices of the L. O. T. M. presented Thursday and Friday evenings, March 2 and 3, by local talent, proved a great success, the opera house being crowded for each performance. Miss Ruth Weisert, under whose direction the play was given, is well and favorably known here, this being the second time she has delighted the Plymouth people with one of her charming entertainments. The opening scene, "A Night in a Cabaret," introduced the entire company of merry-makers. The comedians, Calvin Whipple and Stephen Jewell, created much sport with their darky antics. There were many funny jokes, that brought forth plenty of hearty laughs. Miss Weisert captivated the audience with her charming songs, "Bubbles," "Pickaninny Babe" and "Grand-daddy's Violin." The solos by Harold Joffie, Stephen Jewell, Ralph Brown, Calvin Whipple and Miss Hilda Smye, were finely rendered, and the choruses were melodious and inspiring. The pretty little French maids sang very sweetly.

Part second opened with a delightful little song entitled "The Day," which was charmingly rendered by Miss Ada Pitcher, assisted by twenty little boys and girls. The wee ones certainly were a credit to their teacher and the tapping of the pencils upon their slates was in perfect time to the music. Robert Joffie surely must have been proud of his "Village Belle" for they certainly were "beauties" and were greeted with roars of laughter by the audience. "The Old Sweethearts of Mine" showed the "Bachelor," Austin Whipple, upon the eve of marriage, re-acting upon his "Saw" the solos by Miss Hilda Smye and chorus of twelve. This scene was made very pretty by the electrical display on the see-saws. Taken as a whole "The Talk of the Town" was a very successful and pleasing entertainment.

Womans Literary Club Observe 22nd Anniversary

The 22nd anniversary of the Woman's Literary Club was held in the Methodist church last Friday afternoon, and was one of the most pleasant social affairs of the season. Nearly forty ladies from the Northville Woman's Club were present, along with other guests and members of the Plymouth Club the company numbered about one hundred and fifty. The meeting was called to order by the president of the Plymouth Club, Mrs. J. J. Travis, who in a few pleasing words welcomed the guests and introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Mrs. Marie B. Bennett, Lansing, chairman of the Michigan Pioneer Society, in which she is a very earnest worker. She urged the ladies to be more patriotic, to reverence the flag more, and to teach patriotism in their homes. To take more interest in pioneer history and to preserve it. She told many interesting things about Michigan, our beautiful state, "The Home of Our Hearts." Following Mrs. Bennett's address a group of songs were beautifully rendered by Mrs. A. G. Griffin of Northville, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. E. H. Lapham also of Northville. After the program the guests were invited into the Epworth League room where refreshments were served. The members of the third division with Mrs. F. Bennett as chairman had charge of the arrangements and should be complimented on the success of the afternoon.

Miss Prucilla Arnold passed away at her home at Newburg, Feb. 18, 1916. She was born in the state of New York, and came with her parents to Michigan in 1864, residing in this locality ever since. Miss Arnold had been in failing health for some time, yet the end came unexpectedly. She leaves one sister, two brothers, nieces, nephews and a host of friends to mourn her departure. Services were held Feb. 26th at the home, conducted by Rev. Willis Moore of Detroit. Ray Van Valkenburgh of Northville, very feelingly sang, "My Father Knows" and "O Dry Those Tears."

To-day she simply laid life's burdens down. To-morrow we love that now we miss: she is not dead. Dear friends she is but gone a few short steps ahead.

Daily Thought

For manners are not idle but the fruit of loyal nature and of noble mind.—Tennyson.

Rotation of the Earth

The earliest writer, so far as we know, to conceive of the idea of a rotating earth was Philolaus, a Greek, who lived in the fifth century before Christ. The same man, on purely philosophical principles, also hit upon the idea of the sun as the center of our system—an idea that had to wait 2,000 years for confirmation, until Copernicus came in 1540.

INTERESTING ITEMS FROM THE CITIES

Why Owners of Gotham Apartment Houses Rave

NEW YORK.—The average tenant in an apartment house," said a real estate man when a prospective tenant kicked on the high rentals, "thinks that the owner has nothing to do but to wait and grow fat in purse from his revenues from the rent checks each month, and he hasn't a care in his mind. But let me tell you the landlord who makes his expenses on property nowadays is lucky in many cases it all goes out, and more, too. I know of a million-dollar apartment house that suffered from a plague of red ants so persistently that it could not keep its tenants, and its value as an investment was seriously impaired until a good deal of money had been spent in finding a remedy for the pests.

There is a number of big brick apartment houses whose walls above the eighth floor let in the beating rainstorms as if they were sieves instead of being 24 inches thick and of solid brick. No one knows why this is or what is an economical remedy for it.

"The red-ant house," as it used to be known locally, is one of the finest in the city. The cheapest apartment is $2,000 a year, and the most expensive is well, only the well-to-do can afford to live there and enjoy the every modern luxury that it furnishes. A short time after it was opened the red ants appeared—little bits of things, not much larger than pinbeads, but there were millions of them. They got into the tenants' sugar, and those who tasted their morning coffee inadvertently learned that they had an acid flavor. They crawled over the damask sheets at night, and the tenants learned that they could bite.

"Things came to such a pass that not only the occupants, but the agents and owners of the property were frantic. Leases began to be canceled, and the line of moving vans in front of the place was the sight of the neighborhood. Every known remedy for their extermination was tried. Finally a German came along with a chemical preparation, and in a short time the public was freed of the red ants. But it was many years before the landlords of the property caught up with the losses.

"Take another big apartment house quite as valuable as the foregoing, which is said to be typical of many in another peculiarity. This big building is 12 stories high. The front and rear walls, when the storms beat on them, let the rain through so fast that the tenants have to keep sweeping the water up so that the floors will not be flooded. On a single building alone the owners have appropriated $3,000 for the purpose of making the walls above the eighth floor damp proof. Why are the walls porous above the eighth floor—or above, say, 100 feet from the grounds, and impervious to moisture below that line? No one knows."

Wanted the Front Door Key of New York Hotel

NEW YORK.—Henry Lightman, who hails from Jarbridge, Nev., and whose previous metropolitan experience well garnered in fieldwork, will take back to his home bailiwick some big city adventures that will make the boys there gasp. Mr. Lightman has been sojourning in New York, starting out from the McAlpin hotel. He arrived here at the invitation of capitalists to converse on the subject of a tungsten mine in which he has a major interest. His expenses were being paid—a fact which Mr. Lightman dwelt on the other night when he approached Robert Dunlop, the assistant manager of the hotel.

"Partner," he said, "you're connected with this 'ere ranch around here, ain't ye?" On being assured that Mr. Dunlop was, Mr. Lightman drew him to one side.

"Well, it's this 'ere way," he explained. "I'm out tonight with a friend that's with me"—referring to Mr. Jacob Gifford of Goldfield, also here on matters of mining—"and we may be out late. So if you'll just get me a key to your front door we'll let it go at that."

Mr. Dunlop laughed weakly.

"Pretty good," he said, believing that the obvious answer, and he strolled away.

"Hey, wait a minute!" yelled Mr. Lightman. "About that key? We are going to stay out late, and—"

Mr. Dunlop, realizing that he meant it, assured him that the hotel kept open all night. Mr. Lightman, thus assured, went on his way with Mr. Gifford. They returned at four o'clock in the morning in company with a taxi-cab and a newly found friend. That day Mr. Lightman was around the foyer bright and early. He caught sight of Mr. Dunlop.

"How do you like the town?"

"Me?" asked Mr. Lightman. "I like it. Say"—and then he told him of his wild, wild night.

Topeka Invaded by an Army of Hungry Rabbits

TOPEKA, KAN.—Some time on a recent night Topeka was invaded by the most timid army ever gathered together—an army made brave by the pangs of hunger, an army of rabbits.

If it were not for the ordinance prohibiting the discharge of firearms within the city limits, the Topeka townsfolk would be as good a hunting ground as it was in the days when the first log cabin stood on the bank of the Kaw. There are rabbits in the City park by the hundred, and a Topekan ventured the assertion that if the snow and ice continued to cover the ground the wolves and coyotes would sink over the paved street also.

The presence of the rabbits, in numbers, was not discovered until next day, but the peeled bark of the brush piles in City park indicates that hunger has driven them in from the friendly hedge fences and weed patches. The brush was piled in City park last fall and left through the winter. Some of the bark is still green, and while it makes poor food it is better than starvation. The twigs and branches are peeled clean where the rabbits have been at work and there are tracks around the piles by the million.

For weeks the ordinary food supply for bunny has been covered by ice and snow. He has been driven from pillar to post by hunger, always keeping a safe distance from the baunts of man. He has been chased by dogs and shot at by men and boys when he was doing nothing worse than trying to find some morsel overlooked by his thousands of brothers and sisters. But the time finally came when his natural timidity, his fear of men and guns and dogs gave way before the torture of hunger, he took his nerve in his teeth, figuratively speaking, and beat it for the paved streets where the wastefulness of man might have left something with which bunny could appease the gnawing in his interior.

Philadelphia Woman Took Her Pet for a Ride

PHILADELPHIA.—A woman rider in a Woodland-avenue trolley car the other day presented about as ridiculous an appearance as possible and knew that every other person in the car was laughing at her, yet she did not seem to care. She got aboard with a big muff in her hand, which she held close up to her coat while she paid her fare. When she sat down she appeared to be petting something in the muff. Suddenly a cat's head appeared out of the end of the muff and in a flash the cat had leaped to the floor of the car and was heading for the large curved seat in the back.

The woman started after him, calling, "Here, baby, come back to your mother!" The cat did not appreciate these endearing words and after making an attempt to get out the back window, got under a seat, causing an unusual commotion among a crowd of women. The conductor brought up the rear of the parade, while the motor-man stopped the car and sat laughing at the performance. All the people in the front of the car were craning their necks to see what happened.

With the conductor's aid the woman finally got hold of her pet, admonishing the conductor in the meanwhile not to hurt her boy, while everybody roared with laughter. When the conductor told her she would have to get off the car if it happened again she became defiant, and he very wisely shut up, apparently deciding to adopt a watchful waiting policy. She finally quieted down and sat gently stroking her pet and casting disdainful glances at the other passengers.

CAIRO BURSTING WITH WILD WEST AUSTRALIAN ARMY

"Roughest, Toughest Fit and Fighting Body of Men," Says Correspondent.

AWAIT ATTACK ON THE SUEZ

German-Turkish Forces Expected to Plunge Toward Canal—Veterans of Gallipoli Are in the Defensive Army—Longing for a Scrap.

Cairo.—Egypt is waiting. It is waiting with the patience of a country quite conscious of its position in the war. It expects the German-Turkish forces to plunge toward the Suez canal, and it is ready for them. But it awaits the event with an eastern calm on which is superimposed a British calm.

Here in Cairo I feel I am in closed territory. After being raced across the eastern Mediterranean in a P. & O. liner with an honest fear of submarines, I was dropped at Port Said and there was an ordinary train, dining car and all, which hustled us on to Cairo, skirting the canal and the desert which were not at all as ordinary. Once in Egypt I or anyone can move about anywhere. It is easier to knock about on the delta of the Nile than in France or England.

Once you are off the delta the triangle with Cairo at the apex, you run into military zones. The secretive desert lies beyond and even the trails of padded footed camels snoping off across the skyline, no doubt on quite ordinary errands, and their Arab drivers add to the mystery. As to the Arabs most of them could tell a good deal of if they cared to talk.

No Uprising Is Likely. One can spend four and a half days going from Khartoum as easily as any tourist ever traveled the Nile, but if there is one thing extremely unlikely to happen in Egypt it is an uprising between here and the Sudan; nor are any of the desert tribes likely to create any havoc along the river. Trouble can come but from two directions, east and west. Both are under active military control and I am for the present not permitted to write about them.

But there is enough going on in this small, intensely vivid world to keep one from getting restless. For, remote from the war as we are here, we are in it in a strategic position, and the part of Egypt which counts strategically in a military sense is really quite small. It is only three hours' ride from here to Alexandria and five to Port Said. The situation has dramatic compactness. Beyond that there are only the considerable outposts of the desert.

Egypt is staged in Cairo. Cairo has not given up any of its ordinary life, except the tourist trade, and is carrying off its military honors with quite an air. It can afford to let the tourists go, because it has the Australians and they are worth more in a month than the tourists of ten years.

News From the Senussi

I happen to be waiting for something that lifts the curtain and reveals a corner of the stage. A British officer has located an Arab somewhere in the depths of Cairo, and this Arab has just come off the western desert and knows more than any other man on the delta about the doings of the most-talked-of man in Egypt, the head of the Senussi, the desert chieftain who is the unknown quantity in Egypt and that officer's report will mean much. I have seized myself, as many thousands of Americans have done, on the terrace of Shepherd's hotel, but I have quite another sight from the usual one before me.

Imagine the most European of Cairo's streets filled from the steps of the hotel to the arcade across the way with swaggering men in khaki. They walk with a swing and a "cheero," their spurs jangling, the emu feathers in their hats waving, their level eyes a head above even the tall Egyptians. To anyone used to the areas of Europe they strike you like a fresh wind off the mountains. For those are the Australians; the roughest, toughest, fit and fighting body of men I believe the world has ever seen. All the varicolored, fascinating life of Cairo is swept away by their virility. They seem fairly to swell through the streets.

Heroes of Western Romance. Imagine this ancient and secretive city bustling with the heroes of western romance, with their pockets full of money and itching to spend it—to blow it in a large and conspicuous manner. They fill the sidewalk, flicking with their swagger sticks at the bare legs of the sons of the Prophet who wriggle among them keen on baksheesh and offering to sell them what they will.

The steps of the hotel are lined with military police, soldiers wearing the red and white brassard of the P. M.'s guard. They are here, every night. For that matter they are to be found everywhere in Cairo to the number of 1,500 to keep the same imperial Australian private in order. But tonight they are particularly vigilant. As an order has been issued declaring Shepherd's and the Continental hotels out of bounds for anyone under the rank of an officer. The order was issued because the Australian privates were monopolizing the two best places in the town to dine.

Two of these Australian boys, lean-flanked horsemen from the plains, free men in the very carriage of their heads, started to mount the steps. "Pull them up!" the lieutenant of the P. M.'s guard snapped out. For a moment I thought we would have a scene, but the two boys, who had not heard the official order, listened with faces as cold as marble, and, without losing a trace of dignity, turned and walked down the stairs. I wanted to cheer. The landing at Anzak was easier for them than to walk down those stairs, but they did it like cowboys and men.

"Kings' Son a Private. Most of these Australians have plenty of money and there is no telling by their rank how much money they have. One private has rented the most expensive house for rent in Cairo and has a retinue of servants. He is the son of a pearl king.

The democracy of this army shocks some British officers and delights some others. Usually they like it, because the type of British officer who has been sent to Egypt is usually a man who has knocked about the back countries and values men for being men. I spent the morning with a British major who had received orders to work up a contingent to handle a camel corps. For corps captain he picked up an Australian who has not an "A" to his name and swears beyond belief. But he understands camels and that is all my friend asks. He has been doing a large share of his provisional recruiting sitting in a cafe and the word has passed around where he is to be found. And this is the British army!

An Australian told me a story on the Galopoli, and ordered up for a review. So the colonel gave them a few instructions, in the family circle, as to how they were to behave, and ended by saying:

"And for the love of Mike when the General is here don't call me Bill."

I can quite believe that story. After seeing the joyous Australians it does not seem a bit out of the way.

Longing for a Scrap

Three of those mighty men from the Antipodes were riding on a street car with me the other day and three dapper fellows, with polished boots and more than polished manners, entered and sat down opposite.

One of the Australians leaned across to me and remarked:

"Stranger, can't you do something to start a fight? I need exercise."

The offendi looked disturbed but kept their seats.

The most typical of the stories I have heard on passable authority occurred the night of the evacuation of Anzac, the particular evacuation in which the Australians did not lose a man. Officers have told me that as they walked down that deadly slope which they had clung for months they had not the slightest expectation of ever getting away alive. They hoped they might get some of their men off on the transports which had come up under cover of night, but to escape themselves they considered impossible.

After First Effect, Ordinary Life

Once the first overwhelming effect of the Australians had passed, one sees from the terraces more of the ordinary life, the racing garrules with their shouting drivers bearing along Egyptian women with fine eyes and the thin white veils, more a provocation than a protection, now in vogue in the East. Some of the ladies of the sultan's palace have also just passed in a French limousine, going three times as fast as anyone else, and I note they too wear the gossamer yashmaks.

On the sidewalk immediately below the rail of the hotel, an Arab woman is squatting telling the fortunes of two Australians. A water carrier, dirty beyond belief, pushes along through the swarming porters. Officers are arriving, bag and baggage, every half minute, and through the red fez comes a brighter touch of color as two British generals, red bands on their caps, red tabs on their lapels and strips of service ribbons with every color in the rainbow, pull up.

But through all this distracting color comes a figure in a white turban, and a white burnoose who dominates the sidewalk. A staff officer who has just descended the steps sees him and thrusts out a hand for him to shake. He gives it a quiet, dignified shake, and they pass a few compliments before they pass on. It occurs to me that this is the first time I have seen an English officer shake hands with a native and the explanation is being expressed right behind me.

"A Bedouin," an officer is saying, "the first I've seen for some time, right off the desert, too. Isn't he a specimen for you? A man, by Jove, and a gentleman!"

And so I begin to understand why everyone in Cairo talks only of the leader of the Senussi, the chief of all the Bedouins.—Arno Doach in New York World.

GOOD MARKET FOR CAT FUR

Trappers Find a Demand for Almost Any Kind of Hide That Bears Fur.

Bar Harbor, Me.—Boys and men who make a business of trapping and hunting in this vicinity, and there are many such, are all smiles over the results of their winter's work.

Last year the bottom was knocked out of the fur business by the European war. Prices were very low, and there was in consequence very little trapping done. This caused a shortage of manufactured furs and also a decided increase in the number of animals available this winter. Fur-bearing animals, according to the woodsmen, were never so plentiful in this part of New England.

Time was when only a few kinds of animals were much sought for their pelts. With the increased demand, however, there is hardly anything that wears fur, from the bear to the muskrat and rabbit, whose skin is not sought. Even the humble house cat brings a price. The muskrat was formerly considered one of the poorest of all furs. Now there is a steady demand for it, and it appears in the fur shops as American brook mink.

Certain kinds of lamb pelts sell as Iceland fox, certain kinds of dogskin are in high favor as Manchurian wolf and quantities of catkins are also offered under various names.

Beaver, coon, mink, fox and weasel have no difficulty in finding a sale, and do not have to masquerade, as their fur is sufficiently well known and prized in itself.

Provincial Journals in Great Britain Are Hardest Hit by Pulp Shortage.

London.—Owing to the increased cost of print paper, due chiefly to high freights, a number of English newspapers, particularly in the provinces, are considering the question of coming to an agreement to raise their prices.

They state that unless there is an increase of the price at which newspapers are sold a great many of the provincial newspapers will cease to exist, or at any rate will be suspended for the duration of the war.

Added to the high price of print paper is the increased cost of many accessories in connection with newspaper production, great shortage of labor owing to the number of men who have gone from the printing trade into the army, and the munition factories and the great increase in the wages of boy and other labor.

WOULD GO BACK TO PRISON

After Pardon, Aged Man Declares the Outside World Has Treated Him Badly.

Davenport, Ia.—Gus Eisenberg, seventy-four years old, pardoned six months ago, after serving 25 years in Fort Madison penitentiary on a murder charge, has asked the local police to return him to the penitentiary.

"I'm lost. I don't know where to go," he told the police. "I want to return to prison, for I spent all of my life that was worth while there. Wardens Sanders was good to me and nobody out in the world is. I want to go back to the only friend I have."

The local police will probably ask the state board of pardons to revoke Eisenberg's pardon and return him to prison for the remainder of his life.

SHERIFF'S LAUGH IS THE LOUDEST

But Thieves' Laugh Is Hollow as Jug That Once Held the Spoils.

SHOCK AWAITS THEM

Release From Prison Will Reveal That Expected Treasure Is a Phantom—Which Is Why Sheriff Laughs.

Terre Haute, Ind.—To begin with, "Dusty" Graham is a retired hold-up man. He was retired last week by a criminal court judge for eight years. He laughed at the time and told friends that when he is released eight years from now he will have the proceeds of his life of crimes safely waiting for him. Sheriff Kreitenstein laughed just a trifle louder than "Dusty," for he knows that "Dusty's" laugh is poorly founded. There will be nothing waiting for him.

Now for the complications: Harry Davey and "Dusty" took $9,000 from the paymaster of the Lattas Creek mine on October 11. They hid with the money in the outskirts of the city, and finally "Dusty" went into town to confer with friends, and Davey remained hidden in a field, with the money in a sack. "Dusty" and his friends returned to the field in an auto mobile to get Davey, and when Davey saw them approaching he mistook them for policemen and fled, leaving the sack of money.

Found the Jug. "Dusty" and his friends recovered the money and ordered the chauffeur, who was not interested in the crime, to drive the party to Ziegler, where they stopped at the home of Barney Davey, a brother of Harry the easily alarmed. The chauffeur had heard a conversation that he thought the police should know about, so later Harry Davey was arrested and his brother's house was searched for the missing money. The money had been hidden in a jug by "Dusty," and although the police found the jug they did not get the money. After the search was over "Dusty," who had been in hiding, returned to the house. Two days later Barney Davey, who had not been ar-

DRINK HOT WATER BEFORE BREAKFAST

Says you really feel clean, sweet and fresh inside, and are seldom ill.

If you are accustomed to wake up with a coated tongue, foul breath or a dull, dizzy headache; or, if your meals sour and turn into gas and acids, you have a real surprise awaiting you.

Tomorrow morning, immediately upon arising, drink a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This is intended to first neutralize and then wash out of your stomach, liver, kidneys and thirty feet of intestines all the indigestible waste, poisons, sour bile and toxins, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal.

Those subject to sick headaches, backache, bilious attacks, constipation or any form of stomach trouble, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from your druggist or at the store and begin enjoying this morning inside-bath. It is said that men and women who try this become enthusiastic and keep it up daily. It is a splendid health measure for it is more important to keep clean and pure on the inside than on the outside, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing disease, while the bowel pores do.

The principle of bathing inside is not new, as millions of people practice it. Just as hot water and soap cleanse, purify and freshen the skin, so hot water and a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Limestone phosphate is an inexpensive white powder and almost tasteless.—Adv.

WILLIAM E. ROBB, Secretary and Treasurer

The Man Who fired the shot that brought down the price of automobile insurance so that the farmers and business men of the State could afford to insure their automobiles against fire, theft, and liability, and who spent his time in obtaining and organizing a safe automobile insurance company.

This Company was organized August 30th, 1915, thus enabling its first members to join at a time of the year when the best risks could be selected and after the more numerous losses of the summer months had passed. This Company obtained about nineteen hundred members which enabled them to pass through the winter and the experimental stage with safety, and the large membership and surplus will now enable the Company to commence the spring work with everything in its favor.

Two Methods of Procedure. A man in Sussex who owns a number of horses has a great reputation for skill in the treatment of them. One day a farmer who wanted some valuable information approached the horse-owner's little boy, and said:

"Look here, my little man, when one of your father's horses is ill, what does he do?"

"Do you mean slightly ill or seriously ill?" asked the boy cautiously.

"Oh, seriously ill," said the farmer.

"Because," said the child, "if a horse is only slightly ill, he gives it medicine; but if it is seriously ill, he sells it!"—London Answers.

CYCLONE SEASON NEAR

$1,000,000 of Cyclone Losses in the State of Michigan in the Year 1913.

This Company paid out $272,000 of losses in the year 1913. It has paid during the past five years 9,330 losses and a total of $436,338 to people who have had their buildings wrecked in the State of Michigan. The Company has about 40,000 members, and $98,000,000 of available capital. The Company has made only six assessments in nineteen years; thirteen out of the nineteen not a single dollar collected by assessment from any member of this Company. No assessment was made in the year 1915, and yet the Company had on hand January 1st, 1916, about $80,000 in cash.

There are about one hundred mutual companies in Michigan covering fire insurance; they save the farmers of Michigan about $1,000,000 of the cost in stock companies each year. The saving in cyclone insurance is much greater. Because of our large membership with only one overhead expense, mutual insurance against cyclone, in our Company, on account of the low cost and efficient service, has appealed to the farmers and business men of every section of the State.

The many cyclones and tornadoes which have ruined people in nearly every part of the State should be a warning to you. Insure your property whether it be in the city or country, in a safe Company.

FRUIT LAXATIVE FOR SICK CHILD

"California Syrup of Figs" can't harm tender stomach, liver and bowels.

Every mother realizes, after giving her children "California Syrup of Figs" that this is their ideal laxative, because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without griping.

When cross, irritable, feverish, or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless "fruit laxative," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again! When the little system is full of cold, throat sore, his stomach-ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember, a good "inside cleaning" should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask at the store for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups printed on the bottle. Adv.

CHAPTER I

Red Hill was hemmed in by the breathing silences of scattered woods, open fields and the far reaches of misty space, as though it were in hiding from the railroads, mills and highways of an age of hurry. Upon its low, level crest it bore but three centers of life and a symbol—Maple house, the Firs and Elm house, half hidden from the road by their distinctive trees but as alive as the warm eyes of a veiled woman; and the church.

The church was but a symbol—a mere shell. Within it presented the appearance of a lumber room in disuse, a playground for rats and a haven for dust. But without all was as it had ever been, for the old church was still beloved. Its fresh, white walls and green shutters and the aspiring steeple, towering into the blue, denied neglect and robbed abandonment of its sting.

In the shadow of its walls lay an old graveyard whose overgrown sod had long been undisturbed. Along the single road which cut the crest of the hill from north to south were ruins of houses that once had sheltered the scattered congregation. But the ruins were hard to find, for they, too, were overgrown by Juniper, clematis and a crowding thicket of mountain ash.

On these evidences of death and abandonment the old church seemed to turn its back as if by right of its fresh walls and unbroken steeple it were still linked to life. Through its small-paned windows it seemed to gaze contentedly across the road at three houses, widely separated, that half faced it in a diminishing perspective. The three houses looked toward the sunrise; the church toward its decline.

On a day in early spring Alan Wayne was summoned to Red Hill. Snow still hung in the crevices of East Mountain. On the hill the ashes, after the total eclipse of winter, were meekly donning pale green. The elms of Elm house, too, were but faintly outlined in verdure. Farther down the road the maples stretched out bare, black limbs. Only the firs, in a phalanx, scoffed at the general spring cleaning and looked old and sullen in consequence.

The coils, driven by Alan Wayne, flashed over the brim of Red Hill on to the level top. Coachman Joe's jaw was hanging in awe and so had hung since Mr. Alan had taken the reins. For the first time in their five years of equal life the coils had felt the cut of a whip, not in anger but as a reproof for breaking. Coachman Joe had braced himself for the bolt, his hands itching to snatch the reins. But there had been no bolting, only a sudden settling down to business.

For the first time in their lives the coils were being pushed, steadily, evenly, almost—but never quite—to the breaking point. Twice in the long drive Joe gathered up his jaw and turned his head, preparing spoken tribute to a master hand. But there was no speaking to Mr. Alan's face. At that moment Joe was a part of the seat to Mr. Alan, and being a coachman of long standing in the family, he knew it.

"Couldn't of got here quicker if he'd let 'em bolt," said he. In subsequent description to the stable hand and the cook, he snatched up a pail of water and poured it steadily on the ground. "Just like that. He knew what was in the coils the minute he laid hands on 'em, and when he pulled 'em up at the barn door there wasn't a drop left in their buckets, was there, Arthur?"

"Nary a drop," said Arthur, stable hand.

"And his face," continued the coachman. "Most times Mr. Alan has no eyes to speak of, but today and that time Miss Nance struck him with the hatpin—member, cook?—his eyes spread like a fire and eat up his face. This is a black day for the Hill. Something's going to happen. You mark me."

In truth Mr. Alan Wayne had been summoned in no equivocal terms and, for all his haste, it was with nervous step he approached the house.

Maple house sheltered a mixed brood. J. Y. Wayne, seconded by Mrs. J. Y., was the head of the family. Their daughter, Nance Sterling, and her husband represented the direct line, but the orphan, Alan Wayne, and Clematis McAlpin, were on an equal footing as children of the house. Alan was the only child of J. Y.'s dead brother, Clematis, and was also of Wayne blood, but so intricately removed that her exact relation to the rest of the tribe was never figured out twice to the same conclusion. Old Captain Wayne, retired from the regular army, was an uncle in a different degree to every generation of Wayne. He was the only man on Red Hill who dared call for a whisky and soda when he wanted it.

When Alan reached the house Mrs. J. Y. was in her garden across the road, surveying winter's ruin, and Nance with her children had borne the cabin off to the farm to see that oft-repeated wonder and always welcome forerunner of plenty, the quite new calf.

Clematis McAlpin, shy and long limbed, just at the awkward age when woman misses being either boy or girl, had disappeared. Where, nobody knew. She might be bird-nesting in the swamp or crying over the "Idylls of the King" in the barn loft. Certainly she was not in the house. J. Y. Wayne had seen to that. Stern and rugged of face, he sat in the library alone and waited for Alan. He heard a distant screen door open and slam. Steps echoed through the lonely house. Alan came and stood before him.

Alan was a man. Without being tall he looked tall. His shoulders were not broad till you noticed the slowness of his hips. His neck looked too thin till you saw the strong set of his small head. In a word, he had the perfect proportion that looks frail and is strong. As he stood before his uncle his eyes grew dull. They were slightly bloodshot in the corners and with their dullness the clear-cut lines of his face seemed to take on a perceptible tinge.

J. Y. began to speak. He spoke for a long quarter of an hour and then summed up all he had said in a few words. "I've been no uncle to you, Alan; I've been a father. I've tried to win you, but you were not to be won. I've tried to hold you, but it takes more than a Wayne to hold a Wayne. You have taken the bit with a vengeance. You have left such a wreckage behind you that we can trace your life back to the cradle by your failures, all the greater for your successes. You're the first Wayne that ever missed his college degree. I never asked what they expelled you for, and I don't want to know. It must have been bad, but for the old school is lenient, and proud of men that stand as high as you stand in your classes and on the grid. Money—I won't talk of money, for you thought it was your own."

For the first time Alan spoke. "What do you mean, sir?" With the words his slight form straightened, his eyes blazed, there was a slight quivering of the thin nostrils and his features came out clear and strong.

J. Y. dropped his eyes. "I may have been wrong, Alan," he said slowly, "but I've been your banker without telling you. Your father didn't leave much. I saw you through junior year." Alan placed his hands on the desk between them and leaned forward. "How much have I spent since then—in the last three years?"

J. Y. kept his eyes down. "You know, more or less. Alan, we won't talk about that. I was trying to hold you. But today I give it up. I've got one more thing to tell you, though, and there are mighty few people that know it. The Hill's battles have never entered the field of gossip. Seven years before you were born my father—your grandfather—turned me straight to his club and forthwith became the sensation of the club's windows. Old members felt young when they caught sight of him, as though they had come suddenly on a vanished landmark restored. Passing gamins gazed on his short-cropped hair, stary eyes, flaring collar, black string tie and flowing broadcloth and remarked, "flee, look at de old spot to de winder!"

Alan heard the remark as he entered the club and smiled.

"How do you do, sir?" "Huh!" He grunted the captain. "Sit down." He ordered a drink for his guest, and another for himself. He glared at the waiter. He glared at a callow youth who had come up and was looking, with speculative eye at a neighboring chair. The waiter retired almost precipitously. The youth followed.

"In my time," remarked the captain, "a club was for privacy. Now it's a haven for hellboys and a playground for whippersnappers."

"They've made me a member, sir." "Have, eh?" growled the captain, and glared at his nephew. Alan took inspection coolly, a faint smile on his thin face. The captain turned away his bulging eyes, crossed and uncrossed his legs, and finally spoke. "I was just going to say when you interrupted," he began, "that engineering is a dirty job. Not, however," he continued, after a pause, "dirtier than a career." It's a profession but not a career.

"Perhaps when I'm really grown up I can call her Alx. I think Alx is such a pretty name, don't you?"

Clem dashed a look at Alan and he nodded; then, with an impulsive movement she drew close to him in the half-whispering way of woman about to ask a favor. "Alan, they let me ride old Dubbs when he isn't plowing. The old donkey—she's so fat now she can hardly carry the babies. Some day when you're not in a great hurry will you let me ride with you?"

Alan turned away briskly and started down the ladder. "Some day, perhaps, Clem," he muttered. "Not this summer. Come on." When they had left the church he drew out his watch and started. "Run along and play, Clem." He left her and hurried to the barn.

Joe was waiting. "Have we time for the long road, Joe?" asked Alan, as he climbed into the cart.

"Oh, yes, sir; especially if you drive, Mr. Alan."

"I don't want to drive. Let him go and jump in."

The coachman gave the pony his head, climbed in and took the reins. The cart swung out and down the lane. "Alan! Alan!"

Alan recognized Clem's voice and turned. She was racing across a corner of the pasture. Her short skirts bounced madly above her unsteady legs. She tried to take the low stone wall in her stride. Her foot caught in a vine and she pitched headlong into the weeds and grass at the roadside.

Alan leaped from the cart and picked her up, quivering, sobbing and breathless. "Alan," she gasped, "you're not going away?"

Alan half shook her as he drew her thin body close to him. "Clem," he said, "you mustn't do you hear? You mustn't. Do you think I want to go away?"

Clem stifled her sobs and looked up at him with a sudden gravity in her elfish face. She threw her bare arms around his neck. "Good-by, Alan."

He stooped and kissed her.

CHAPTER II

To the surprise of his friends Alan Wayne gave up debauch and found himself employment by the time the spring that saw his dismissal from Maple house had ripened into summer. He was full of preparation for his departure for Africa when a summons from old Captain Wayne reached him.

With equal horror of putting up at hotels or relatives' houses, the captain upon his arrival in town had gone

straight to his club and forthwith became the sensation of the club's windows. Old members felt young when they caught sight of him, as though they had come suddenly on a vanished landmark restored. Passing gamins gazed on his short-cropped hair, stary eyes, flaring collar, black string tie and flowing broadcloth and remarked, "flee, look at de old spot to de winder!"

Alan heard the remark as he entered the club and smiled.

BACKACHE, RHEUMATISM

—Run-down? —Tired? —Weak?

Dear Mr. Editor: For a long time I suffered from backache, pain in left side, frequent urination (bothering me at all times during the day and night), and the uric acid in my blood caused me to suffer from rheumatism along with a constant tired, worn-out feeling. I heard of the new discovery of Dr. Pierce, of the Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., called "Anuric." After giving "Anuric" a good trial I believe it to be the best kidney remedy on the market today. I have tried other kidney medicines but these "Anuric Tablets" of Dr. Pierce's are the only ones that will cure kidney and bladder troubles.

(Signed) HENRY A. LOVE. NOTE:—Experiments at Dr. Pierce's Hospital for several years proved that "Anuric" is 37 times more active than lithia. Send Dr. Pierce 10c for trial package.

Wise Constituent. A congressman received almost daily letters from a constituent asking for garden seed, with emphasis on peas. The demand for peas got so heavy that the congressman was moved to write this letter.

"I am sending you a half dozen more packages of peas as requested. Say, what are you trying to do down there, plant the whole state in peas?" The reply came a few days later. It read: "No, I'm not planting them, but they make bully soup. Send along some more."—Kansas City Star.

In spite of the weather, seventy members of both churches, Northville, and forty-three sat down to the very fine supper prepared by the committee. The Northville male quartet rendered several fine selections, and a whistling solo was given by Harold Joliffe. Impromptu speeches were made by the pastors of both churches, as well as by Superintendent Filkins of Northville, and several teachers from both schools. The visitors left on the 9:30 car and all expressed the hope that it would not be long before another such meeting could be held, as exchanges of ideas and conferences of this kind cannot be other than beneficial to both schools.

Remarkable letter concerning Foley's Honey and Tar Compound as a quick relief for coughs and colds.

"It saved our son's life," says Mrs. Edna Cramer, in speaking of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. "Of this I am sure. Of all cough remedies we ever used, Foley's Honey and Tar Compound is far ahead of them all. It has been our faithful friend for several years and we rely upon it for the quick relief of all our coughs and colds. It never fails and we recommend it to all our friends. We thought he would surely die from suffocation. Foley's Honey and Tar Compound completely and absolutely cured him. We know it and will prove it to anyone interested."

Do you know the soothing, relieving benefits of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound? You ought to. There is healing in every dose. It spreads a cool coating over the rough inflamed throat, soothes the inflamed cough—does all this in a natural way containing no opiates and nothing harmful.

Good druggists are glad to sell Foley's Honey and Tar Compound because they know it is reliable and successful. Refuse substitutes.
