THE DEITY OF JESUS

THIS subject is so large that we could not begin to do it justice in the length of time given to one sermon. So that we continue a study of this theme next Sunday. In the consideration of this theme we are not theorizing or dreaming dreams but looking at it in the presence of three indisputable facts. We considered one fact last Sunday. We consider the other two facts next Sunday.

Capt. T. V. Quackenbush Passes Away

Capt. T. V. Quackenbush passed away at his home in Superior township, six miles southwest of the village, last Sunday morning about 9 o'clock at the age of 86 years. Mr. Quackenbush has been in failing health for a year or more and has been confined to the house since last December, although he was up and around as usual when the final summons came. Heart trouble was the immediate cause of his death. In the passing of Capt. Quackenbush Superior township loses one of its most prominent and most highly esteemed citizens. He was a man of sterling worth and character, honest and upright in his dealings with his fellowmen, and being possessed with a genial disposition, he made for himself a host of friends and acquaintances. He will be greatly missed in the community where he has resided for so many years. Capt. Quackenbush has served as vice president of the Plymouth United Savings Bank for the past fourteen years. He was one of the oldest members of Plymouth Stock Lodge, F. & A. M., having become a member of the order in 1861. He was also an honored member of Eddy Post, G. A. R. and always took an active part in the affairs of the Post.

CAPT. T. V. QUACKENBUSH.

The funeral services which were largely attended, were held from his late home in Superior township, Wednesday afternoon, Rev. B. F. Farber officiating. The services were in charge of the Marine Order, who attended in a body. The members of Eddy Post also attended the funeral in a body. The local offerings were many and beautiful. The interment took place in the Oak cemetery.

Thomas V. Quackenbush was born Sept. 8, 1830, near Axtellville, Montgomery county, N. Y. When about seven years of age his parents moved to Henrico, Ontario county, N. Y. In 1850 he came to Michigan and resided in Whitnash Lake until the war broke out. On October 12, 1861 he was commissioned into the United States service as Captain of Company G, Third Michigan Cavalry and served in the army of the northwestern for three years. The annual reunions of Company G, and the meeting of old comrades, have always been a source of great pleasure to the Quackenbushs for he was one of the survivors who also served with him. On May 6, 1868 he was united in marriage to Hannah Parker of Oxford, Michigan, and who passed away, Sept. 7, 1898. He was survived by one son, George B., and a daughter, Mrs. J. H. Smith, both of whom he had in his old age. He also leaves one grandchild, Irene, and one great-grandchild, Fred, and one great-grandson, Fred.

Death of Mrs. C. A. Frisbie at Chelsea

The people of Plymouth were greatly shocked last Saturday, when the news was received here of the sad death of Mrs. Clarissa Frisbie, wife of the late Charles A. Frisbie, which occurred at the Methodist Old People's Home at Chelsea that morning. Mrs. Frisbie was a lady highly esteemed and greatly beloved by the people of this village, where she had resided for so many years. The remains were brought here Monday afternoon and taken to the home of Mrs. Kate Allen, where the funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The spacious rooms of the Allen home were filled with friends of Mrs. Frisbie. Mrs. R. E. Cooper sang two beautiful numbers and the services were in charge of Rev. Joseph Dutton, pastor of the local Methodist church of which organization Mrs. Frisbie was a devoted member. Her floral offerings were many and beautiful. The W. C. T. U. of which the deceased was an honored member, attended the services in a body. The interment took place in Riverside cemetery.

Clarissa H. Bryant was born in Rochester, N. Y., March 31st, 1842, and died at Chelsea, Mich., April 7, 1916, aged 74 years. She was married to Charles Frisbie in 1870. The greater part of her life was spent in Plymouth, Michigan. Prior to her marriage she taught school in the vicinity of Plymouth, and after her marriage she was superintendent of the Plymouth school for many years, she was brought into very close relationship with all the educational work of the village. Mrs. Frisbie's finest energy was expended in the work of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of which organization she was one of the earliest and most devoted members. She stood by the side of Mrs. Jennie Voorhies for years in enthusiastic labor in the interest of this great reform movement. She mourned greatly the death of Mrs. Voorhies; but she did not realize the loss by Frisbie until she was placed in the casket just a few days before her death. Her husband's books were all given to the Plymouth school library, and of course were lost with the building.

In character Mrs. Frisbie was very lovable. To her nearest friends she sometimes confided the secret of her serenity, "I pray every day of my life that I may be pleasant to live with." She was a favorite with everybody. She was always smiling, gentle and tender in every way, her friends cannot easily overstate their admiration for her. Her home was always a place of hospitality, and there her happiest days were spent. Since the death of Mr. Frisbie she was subject at times to a depression of spirits. At such times she would say, "How I long for the touch of the vanished hand. But undimmed are the memories of her cheerfulness and her radiant smile." The last eight years of her life were spent in the Methodist Old People's Home in Chelsea where she always enjoyed participating in the religious services of the Home on Sabbath days and other special occasions. Mrs. Frisbie's religious nature was supplemented by a keen sense of right and wrong. If she had a conviction that a thing was right she was not easily moved. She leaves one son Edward, who is in the far west; one brother, George Bryant of Waterford, and a niece, Mrs. Frank Johnson, and several cousins.

Bakewell-Ashton

A quiet but very pretty wedding was celebrated at 7 o'clock last Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eben Ashton on the East Plymouth road, when their eldest daughter, Anna was united in marriage to G. Alfred Bakewell, also of East Plymouth. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Frank C. Waters of Eastford. The bride wore a beautiful gown of silk-embroidered white surmounting trimmed with lace and white tulle, and carried a spray of large pink sweethearts. Her bridesmaid, Miss Alice Ashton, wore a white tulle dress trimmed with pink. Christopher Bakewell, cousin of the bridegroom, acted as best man. Sidney Bakewell, also a cousin, played appropriate music. The wedding party consisted of the bride, bridesmaid, best man, groom, groom's best man, and two flower girls. The wedding party was accompanied to the church by the bride's mother, Mrs. Eben Ashton, and her father, Mr. Eben Ashton, and her brothers, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ashton, and her sisters, Mrs. J. H. Smith and Mrs. J. H. Smith. The wedding party was accompanied to the church by the bride's mother, Mrs. Eben Ashton, and her father, Mr. Eben Ashton, and her brothers, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ashton, and her sisters, Mrs. J. H. ### A New Live Organization for Plymouth

At a meeting of the vegetable growers of this vicinity held at the Grange hall Saturday evening, April 8th, they were formed the Plymouth Vegetable Grower's Association. This organization will in the near future affiliate with the Michigan State Vegetable Grower's Association, thereby showing their alertness, because they will be the first vegetable organization of the state to ask for such an affiliation. The officers of this association say that the fruit industry of the state amounts to about $12,579,764, while the vegetable industry amounts to about $27,265,073; therefore they feel that the state and federal departments should give a greater assistance to such a valuable industry as they represent, and they expect to accomplish much along this line.

The officers elected at this meeting for the ensuing year are: President—Harry C. Robinson; Vice President—William Sutherland; Sec. -Treas.—George C. Ravlier; Trustees to serve one year—Harry Shattuck; Trustees to serve two years—James Gates and Clair Penny.

As the above meeting this association adopted the Jumbo Glass 2 1/2 pound baskets as their standard package for packing and selling tomatoes for this year. This association is the first vegetable organization in the state to take such a stand, and they feel that once this basket is properly introduced, it will impress all good buyers that the tomatoes in these baskets come from Plymouth.

This organization is also working to secure a county agent for Wayne county and they have secured some very substantial assistance in this effort and the officers say that no doubt that in less than a year's time Wayne county will have a good live county agricultural agent. The Grangers and other farm organizations will no doubt heartily cooperate in this movement.

Plymouth Will Have Poultry Show

At a meeting of the poultry fanciers of this village and vicinity held Wednesday evening, it was decided to organize a poultry and pet stock association and hold a show something during the early part of next winter. Another meeting to perfect an organization will be held in the council chamber Tuesday evening, April 25. Everybody interested in this matter is cordially invited to attend this meeting. Judging from the enthusiasm manifested by those present at the meeting Wednesday evening, there is a bright prospect for a good live organization here and a big show next winter.

Married—April 6, Thursday evening, at the residence of Rev. Quarrington, pastor of the 14th Avenue Baptist church, Wilbert K. Leonard to Miss Lillian T. Rank, adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Jackson, formerly of Plymouth.

SYNOPSIS.

Alan Wayne is sent away from Red Hill, his home, by his uncle, J. Y., as a moral reformer. Alan returns after a year in a tangle of short affairs to find his home in a state of confusion. Judge Henley defends Alan in his business with his employers. Alan and Alice meet at sea, homeward bound, and start a flirtation. At home, Nancy Sterling asks Alan to go away from her. Alan is taken to task by Gerry, her husband, for his conduct with Alan and defies him. Gerry, as he thinks, sees Alan and Alan explains, drops everything and goes to Pernambuco. Alan leaves Alan on the train and goes home. Gerry leaves Pernambuco and goes to Pernambuco. On a shipwrecked trip he meets a native girl. The judge falls to trace Gerry. A baby is born to Alan. The native girl takes Gerry to her home and shows him the ruined plantation she is mistress of. Gerry marries her. At Maple house Collingford tells how he met Alan—Tan Per Cent Wayne—building a bridge in Africa.

CHAPTER XII—Continued.

The next morning, with Clem as a cicerone, Collingford went over to the firm to pay his respects to Alan. They found her under the trees. "How do you do?" said Alan. "The Honorable Percy, isn't it?" "What a memory you have for names," said Collingford, laughing. "May I sit down?" "Do," said Alan. She was perched in the middle of a garden seat. On each side of her were piled various stuffs and all the paraphernalia of the sewing circle. Collingford sat down before her and stared. Clem had gone off in search of game more to her taste. Alan seemed to him very small. He felt the change in her before she could fix in what it lay. She seemed still and restful in spite of her flying saucers. Spiritually still. Her eyes, glancing at him between stitches, were amused and grave at the same time.

"Doll's clothes?" said Collingford, waving at a beribboned morsel. "No," said Alan. Collingford stared a little longer and then he broke out with, "Look here, what have you done with her? Over there, the young Mrs. Lansing—spice, devilry, scintillation and wit—blinding. Over here, Mrs. Gerry—demure and industrious. Don't tell me you have gone in for the Quaker pose, but please tell me which is the goddess; you now or the other one."

Alan laughed. "I'm just me now, minus the devilry and all that. Come, I'll show you what I've done with it." They threaded the trees and came upon a mighty bower, half sun, half shade, where in the midst of a nurse and Clem and many toys a baby was enthroned on a rug. "There you are," said Alan. "There's my spice, devilry, scintillation and wit all done into one roly-poly."

"Well, I'm blown," said Collingford, advancing cautiously to the young monarch. "Do you want me to—to feel him or say anything about his looks? I'll have to think a minute if you do."

"Booby," said Alan, "come away." But Collingford seemed fascinated. He squatted on the rug and poked the monarch's ribs. Nurse, mother and Clem flew to the rescue, but to their amusement the monarch did not believe. He appropriated Collingford's fingers. "I wonder if he'd mind if I called him a 'young 'un,'" soliloquized the attacking giant. Then he pulled the baby's leg. "When he grows up tell him I was the first man to pull his leg. My word, he hasn't a bone in his body, not even a tooth."

"Silly," said Alan. "Of course not." "What are you staring at him that way for?" said Alan. "Can a baby make you think? A penny for them." "I was just thinking," said Collingford gravely, "that a baby is positively the only thing I've never eaten."

A horrified silence greeted his remark. The nurse was the first to recover. She strode forward, gathered up the baby and marched away. Alan and Clem fixed their eyes on Collingford. He slowly withered and drew back. Then the judge and Mrs. Lansing came out to them. Collingford was introduced. Mrs. Lansing turned to Alan. "Have you asked Mr. Collingford to stay to lunch?" The judge has asked himself.

"No, mother," said Alan. "I'm afraid we couldn't give Honorable Percy anything new to eat. He says—"

Mystery is always more dangerous than truth: it gives such a lead to imagination.

So one told him and Collingford listened, interested. At the end he said nothing. Alan looked at his thoughtful face. "What do you think isn't there a chance? Don't you think he's probably—probably alive?"

The judge was not there to hear the meek appeal of faith for comfort. Collingford met Alan's eyes frankly. "If I were you," he said, "I would probably believe as you do. I've met too many dead men in Piccadilly looking unconvincingly well ever to say that a man is dead because he's disappeared. Then there's the other side of it. Bodsky says a man is never dead while there's anybody left that loves him."

"The judge told me about Bodsky. He's the man that said there had been lots of murderers he'd like to take to his club. He must be worth while. I'd like to talk to him."

"I don't suppose," said Collingford absently, "that Bodsky has talked to a woman since he killed his mistress." Alan started and looked up from her work. "Don't you think you had better come back—and bring the talk back with you?"

It was Collingford's turn to start. "I beg your pardon?" he said. "You are right. I was in another world. Only you mustn't get a wrong impression. Everybody says it was an accident—except Bodsky. He has never said anything."

Alan Wayne had been away for a year. He had not returned from Montreal but had gone one from there to work in South America and, later, to Africa.

He had been in town for several days when he met the judge one afternoon in November on the avenue. "Judge," he said without preamble, "what's this I hear about Gerry disappearing?"

"It's true," said the judge and added grimly, "he disappeared the day you went to Montreal." Alan colored and his face turned grave. "I am sorry," he said. "I didn't know it."

"Sorry for what?" asked the judge, but Alan refused the opening and the judge hardly regretted it. They were not in tune and he felt it. His heart was heavy over Alan for his own sake. He had killed himself from that which should have been dearer to him than his heart's desire. The judge wondered if he realized it. "You're not going out to Red Hill?" he asked, trying to make the question casual.

Alan glanced at him sharply. What was the judge after? "No," he said after a pause. "I shall not break the communal coma of Red Hill for some time. I'm off again. McDale & McDale have loaned me to Elliman's. I've become a sort of poobah on construction in Africa. They get a premium for lending me."

Alan's speech habitually drew except for an occasional retort that came like the crack of a whip. The judge looked him over curiously. Alan's dress was almost too refined. His person was as well cared for as a woman's. Every detail about him was a studied negation of work, utility, service. The judge thought of Collingford's story and wondered.

They walked in silence for some time and then Alan took his leave. The judge followed his erect figure with solemn eyes. Alan had deteriorated. One cannot be the fly in the amber of more than one woman's memory without clouding one's own soul, and a clouded soul has its peculiar circumambulation which the clean can feel.

If Alan did not go to the Hill, the Hill, in certain measure, came to Alan. The next afternoon found the captain once more established in his chair in a window at the club with Alan beside him. The captain had not changed. His hair was in the same state of white insubordination, his eyes bulged in the same old way, and he still puffed when he talked. His garb was identical and awakened the usual interest in the passing gamin.

"You'll never grow old, sir," said Alan. "Old?" said the captain. "Huh, I grew old before you were born." The captain spoke with pride. He straightened his bullet head and poised a tot of whiskey with a steady hand. "What did I tell you?" he said into space. "How's that, sir?"

"What did I tell you?" repeated the captain swinging around his eyes, "about women?" Alan hummed absently. He had no recollection for the old man. He sat calmly silent.

The captain talked too. "That's right," he said with a surprising touch of cheer. "Bull. Every body's got a soul at the grip of the old. What you need, young man, is a touch of the whip and you're going to get it."

And then the old man revealed a surprising proof of man's adaptability to his environment. He was certain to have missed you, he said. I shall bring you with me, I hope, and I'll tell him to you the day a strave.

There is no stronger proof of man's adaptability than his adaptability to his environment. He was certain to have missed you, he said. I shall bring you with me, I hope, and I'll tell him to you the day a strave.

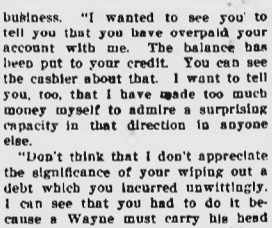

Dear Clem: We are all two people. Uncle J. Y. cut his other half off about thirty years ago and left it behind. The judge has his other half locked up in a closet. He has never let it out at all. And so on, with every one of us. This sounds very funny to you now, but some day you will understand what I mean. I am two people too. The half of me that knows you and loves you and Red Hill and that you love has been away longer than the rest of me. He only got back twenty minutes ago, and it is too late for him to come and see you because he and the rest of me are off tomorrow on another trip. But he wants you to know that he is certainly sorry to have missed you. Next time I shall bring him with me, I hope, and I'll tell him to you the day a strave.

"Doll's Clothes" Said Collingford.

"What's This I Hear About Gerry Disappearing?"

"You Shall Not Let in the River."

Alan left the captain and presented himself at the downtown offices of J. Wayne & Co. They were expecting him and he was shown in to his uncle immediately, to the exasperation of several pompous, waiting clerks. It was the first time that uncle and nephew had been face to face since their memorable interview at Maple House.

J. Y. Wayne was aging. He had lived hard and showed it, but there was no weakness in his age and he met Alan without compromise. He nodded toward a chair but did not offer his hand. When he spoke his voice was low and modulated to the tone of

Seen and Heard in Michigan

Hillsdale.—A woman tramp has taken up her headquarters on railroad property near the western city limits. Grand Rapids.—Gilbert Bettes, nearly five years old, a resident of Grand Rapids for half a century, died here.

Manistee.—After more than 45 years in business in Manistee, James Henderson has retired on account of ill health. Chelsea.—Mrs. Clara Frisbie, seventy, inmate of the old people's home here, committed suicide by hanging herself to the bedpost in her room.

Eaton Rapids.—Plowing for spring crops on the high ground has been started in this section. The general farming activities here will be record breaking.

Ann Arbor.—Mrs. Christine Reimold, aged seventy-six years, wife of a well-known Freedom township farmer, died here. Three sons and four daughters survive.

Albion.—Four hundred and fifty muskrats, valued at $217, trapped in ten days, is the record made by two Albion trappers, Frank Hoyt and Fred Courtright.

Howell.—George Glecker, aged ninety-two years, one of Livingston county's pioneers, died at the home of his son, Charles, on the latter's farm near Oak Grove village.

Albion.—Andrew Emmons, sixty-eight, music dealer here for twenty-five years, former city alderman and member of board of county supervisors, died at his home.

Cheboygan.—The house built by H. L. Koehler of Detroit, at East Mullet lake and used by him for 35 years as a summer home, but sold several years ago, was destroyed by fire.

Hillsdale.—Mrs. Harriett Terpening Purdy, aged ninety-six years, died at the home of her son, Orlando Vaughn, on the farm where she first settled in Reading township in 1843.

Traverse City.—Byron Oliver of Provenant has started suit in the circuit court here for $5,000 damages for injuries suffered in a wreck on the Pere Marquette near Grant a year ago.

Vassar.—Rev. John E. Platt, a Baptist minister, aged seventy-one years, died here of dropsy. His sister, aged eighty-five years, who had kept house for him, died two weeks ago. He was ordained at Allegan.

IN WESTERN CANADA

"He Who Will and Does Work Will Not Want"

Very few farmers cultivate the habit of keeping careful accounts of their receipts and expenditures, showing at the end of the year a balance, either for or against. The farmer of Western Canada is no exception to this. It is felt if more careful book-keeping were resorted to there that much better results would be obtained and shown.

There is the case of the Crowfoot Farming Co. of Crowfoot, Alberta. It has just issued a certified statement of its operations for the years 1912, 1913, 1914 and 1915. This Company has had for the past few years about 1300 acres in wheat and between 200 and 250 in oats. The total operating and general expenses for 1912, including interest at 8% and depreciation at 15%, were $12,587, for 1913 $17,506, for 1914 $18,729, and for 1915 $29,864.43.

Expense per acre of land in crop was $7.80 in 1912, $11.57 in 1913, $11.70 in 1914, and $17.87 in 1915. Total receipts were $15,531 in 1912, $30,661 in 1913, $31,589.87 in 1914, and $62,520.29 in 1915. The percentage earned upon capital invested was 6 1/2% in 1912, 30% in 1913, 23 1/3 in 1914, and 60% in 1915, in which year it paid a cash dividend of 58%.

The Company's statement shows that the average dates of finishing seeding was April 20th; the average date commenced cutting was August 16th.—Advertisement.

SALTS IF BACKACHY OR KIDNEYS TROUBLE YOU. Eat Less Meat if Your Kidneys Aren't Acting Right or If Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells, your stomach sour, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, causes no injury and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.—Adv.

Plymouth Schools

Resume Work

In this column last week we spoke of the great difficulty of conducting the high school in the Grange hall on account of the lack of class room, but owing to the generosity of the citizens of Pythias it was not necessary to try the experiment. The school authorities have been greatly gratified by the ready response made to their needs by the citizens, churches, and other organizations that have come to the rescue in various respects during the week of organization that followed the fire, and it remained for the K. P.'s to place the keystone of this arch of public spirit and generosity in the shape of a gift of nearly their entire plant for the use of the high school, thus providing convenient classrooms for all the classes. The pupils and teachers of the high school wish heretofore to tender their thanks to this lodge, and also to all individuals or societies, who have loaned chairs, tables, books, and other necessities. The teachers and pupils of the high school are greatly indebted to the accommodations so generously provided.

This little town has become a Mecca for architects and book men; all of which means business for school board and superintendent. Book men are our best friends these days for they have given us as high as 40% discount on texts to replace those burned. The sale still continues at the general office, as a number of the orders were delayed, one of greatly needed texts, having gone to Plymouth, Wis.

The high school chorus will not meet for the rest of the year, as it was found impossible to arrange the program so that it would not make an extra trip to the school for a goodly number of students; the year's credit will be given, however.

Formality somewhat delayed brings a note of encouragement to the High school when most needed. Last fall, after the University inspector so thoroughly investigated our school, he recommended that we be placed, not only upon the University list for three years (the longest period possible), but also that we be able to look back to the "North Central Association." Graduates from the schools on this list are admitted to all universities without examination, except to the few like Harvard that examine all candidates for admission. A letter confirmed this recommendation, but the report of the president of the committee was received just in time to be read at the mass meeting held Monday morning.

The loss of the old building with its associations falls heavily upon all, but upon none so heavily as upon the Seniors. The last year in H. S. is the one a student should be able to look back to his best and happiest year, for it is the one that in memory comes to stand for all that H. S. meant for him. Our Seniors feel the change deeply, but they are rising to the needs of the hour with a loyalty to the school that is inspiring. It is going to be a hard year for students, and their credits under the new conditions of study, and the danger of lowering the standard of scholarship must be constantly guarded against; owing to these facts the Seniors have decided to sacrifice their class night play that has become the custom here since 1913, in order to save the immense amount of time, that would have to be expended, for study, thus maintaining the standard of the school. This is the greater sacrifice, in that they have an unusually clever play nearing completion, in which the members of the class were to appear in the costumes of their occupations, and in the midst of new world conditions; ten years after their graduation. A more complete account of the plot and characters will appear in the Annual, "The Plythean." The Seniors are going to give their best efforts to preserving this for the sake of the present. The business managers are soon to canvass the town for financial backing, and we hope that everyone will be interested in seeing this creditable achievement continued.

The contractors have commenced the work of completing the cement road where the work was left off last fall between Plymouth and Michigan avenue through Canton township. It will not be very long before this road will be completed and Plymouth will have a cement roadway to the city of Detroit.

The village of Wayne is going to comply with the state law relating to the providing of a public convenience station in villages. Besides the installation of toilets, wash rooms, etc., a rest room will be included in the building which will be centrally located and convenient for the public. Plymouth might well follow Wayne's example in this respect.

The Perkins family—J. W. Perkins, Peter Perkins and Hazel Perkins, great-grandchildren of the late George Perkins, have taken over the management of the Northville Record. F. S. Neal has retired from the active management for a time at least, but still retains his interest in the concern, which he has owned for 28 years. Mr. J. W. Perkins has been connected with the office for the past twenty years and is thoroughly familiar with every branch of the business, a first-class printer, a genial all-around good fellow and will give the people of Northville the same splendid paper they have always had. The Mail extends to Mr. Perkins and his associates our best wishes for their success.

A Unique Publicity Stunt, But a Good One

Manager Will Thompson of the Alseum Theater has evolved another "new one." He will have photographs taken of the business section of the village, showing each merchant's place of business. That is going to cost him something, but he does not particularly mind that as long as he can get some active co-operation from the business men along the business streets. The picture will be painted on the street scene in the new theatre, and it is up to the business men which street will be represented. It will not be practicable or desirable to use these pictures as announcements slides showing every street. Therefore he has decided using only the two streets that give him the best showing on the screen and the most direct financial support in taking part in this idea.

Of course, another suggestion is to theatre curtain that Mr. Thompson might be induced to put on with the names and business of local merchants. These curtains are costly and pay but a small return, but we are sure that if the merchants meet Mr. Thompson half way he will consider the introduction of modern pictorial publicity certain in the new theatre.

Death of H. W. Hughes at Waterford

Herbert W. Hughes passed away at his home at Waterford last Friday, after an illness of several months. The deceased was 64 years of age and was born and passed his entire life on the farm home where he died. He is survived by his wife and three daughters, Mrs. Chas. Waterman of Waterford, Mrs. Frank McGraw of this place and Miss Sadie Hughes of Detroit. The funeral services were held from the family residence on Monday afternoon, Rev. Dutton, pastor of the M. E. church, conducted the services in the cemetery at the Waterford cemetery. The family have the sympathy of many friends in their bereavement. The out of town friends who attended the funeral were: Miss Sadie Hughes and Glen Wald of Detroit; Mrs. L. A. Brigham and daughter, Mrs. Geo. Waterman of Mt. Pleasant; Walter Riggs of Reed City; John Hughes and mother, Mrs. Ellen Hughes of Owosso; Mrs. E. L. Briggs of Ionia; Mrs. Jane Hughes of Oxford; Mrs. Bert Rea of Kenion, Ohio, and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Brigham of Bay City.

Safe Medicine for Children.

"Is it safe?" is the first question to be considered when buying cough medicine for children. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has long been a favorite with mothers of young children as it contains no opium or other narcotic, and may be given to a child as confidently as to an adult. It is pleasant to take, too, which is of great importance when a medicine must be given to young children. This remedy is most effective in relieving coughs, colds and croup. Obtainable everywhere.—Adv't.

BUSINESS IS BASED ON CONFIDENCE

A Theory Put Into Practice by Well Known Business Man

J. C. BRADY

"A druggist has many opportunities to make lasting friends of his customers," said Mr. J. C. Brady, popular Rexell Pharmacist of Fall River, Mass. "The very nature of his business draws their confidence for little helpful suggestions on the matter of health. Many people have thanked me for recommending Rexell Ordinaries as the best relief for constipation and its resultant ills. Put up in dainty candy tablet form, they are pleasant to the taste and make an ideal laxative for the home—for men, women and children alike."

Special Meeting of Council

There will be a special meeting of the common council at the council chambers this evening, Friday. Several officials from the engineering department of the State Board of Health will be present at this meeting to discuss some matters pertaining to a sewerage system, etc. in this village. Another matter that will be brought before the meeting is a proposition made by the Dairy Mfg. Co. relative to having a portion of Union street from Main street to their factory and a portion of Depot street paralleling their property on that street. Every citizen is cordially invited to attend this meeting, as well as all other sessions of the council.

Harry C. Robinson, President.

Notice To The Public!

Having disposed of my hotel property and business in Plymouth, I desire to express my thanks and appreciation for the patronage and good will that has been extended to me by my friends and patrons during the years I have conducted the business here. For the benefit of those who may be entertaining an idea in their minds that the sale of the property was a fake, I wish to state that it is an absolutely bonafide sale and that the same can be verified by call at the Plymouth Union Grocery Bank. Very Respectfully,
Grant Hartman

Foreign

The fiftieth anniversary of the entrance of Field Marshal von Hindenburg of Germany into military service is made the occasion of many tributes to the famous soldier.

Stephen Dragomir, Greek minister of finance, has resigned his portfolio, says a Reuters dispatch to London from Athens. He is succeeded by D. G. Karamanlis, minister of justice and commerce.

Diese Abteilung ist für die Familienglieder, welche am liebsten Deutsch lesen.

Vom Schauplatz des europäischen Völkerrkrieges.

Bei dem Angriff auf die Nordfront von Verdun mit der sich daran anschließende Entwidlung tritt der abtätigliche Wechsel in der Tätigkeit der einzelnen Massen hervor. Artilleriefeuer folgt auf die Anlage der Batterien und die mannigfachen Vorkehrungen für die Zerstörung der Geschütze, und dann, wenn die feindlichen Linien erschüttert sind, nimmt die Infanterie sie im Sturm, und das Spiel beginnt aufs neue.

Die Griechen haben bereits die Folgen für ihre unverantwortliche Souveränität auf eigenen Leib in fühlbarster Weise zu verspüren. Nicht allein, daß sich die Alliierten in rücksichtsloser Weise als Herren der besetzten Gebiete des neutralen (1) Landes betragen, das Land ist jetzt derart zum Schauplatz des Krieges geworden, indem Salomiti furchig den ersten Versuch von Fliegern der Zentralmächte zu befragen hatte. Dabei sind über 200 Alliierte Soldaten getötet, 27 Eisenbahn-Waggons mit Munition und zahlreiche militärische Baracken zerstört worden. Natürlich ist es ganz selbstverständlich, daß auch Privatpersonen beschädigt und Zivilpersonen verletzt oder getötet wurden. Die Alliierten Presse hat sich allgemöhrlich dem Gebrauch gemäß natürlich diese Gelegenheit nicht entgehen lassen, sondern ist mit Goldstücken ins Geschrei gegangen, um die Welt, besonders die griechische Bevölkerung wegen der deutschen Barbaren, dieses neuen Aktes des Völkerrrechtsbruches wegen anzuhängen.

Die Griechen jedoch sind klug genug, nun sich selbst ein richtiges Urteil zu bilden und die infamen Lügen und Verleumdungen der Alliierten zu durchschauen. Der Giftspieß der Verleumdung und Hetze schnell darum auf die Alliierten zurück, indem die öffentliche Meinung im Lande der Balkan in schärfer Weise sich gegen die fremden Eindringlinge kehrt, welche Salomiti widerrechtlich in diese gefährliche Lage gebracht haben, indem sie daselbst ihr militärisches Hauptquartier errichteten. Die Weigerung der Entente Regierungen, den angeordneten Schäden zu ersetzen, hat das Gefühl der Bitterkeit nur erhöht. Doch damit ist nicht geholfen. Die Erkenntnis kommt leider zu spät. Griechenland, welches sich im Anfang, wenn auch mangelhaft, Bedenken dagegen sprechen, mit Leichtigkeit hätte der andringlichen unermühten Wähe erwehren können wird jedenfalls nicht eher wieder Herr im eigenen Haus, als bis die Alliierten Händelriebe durch die Zentralmächte hinausgeworfen werden.

Daß die Engländer sich die größte Mühe geben, Amerikaner als Schutzengel auf ihre Munitionskisten zu engagieren und sie im Notfall sogar zwingensfalls solche zu jüngeren, geht aus den nachfolgenden Depeschen hervor: St. John, New Brunswick. Der bisher amerikanische Konsul Gilder erklart, daß der vom britischen Amerikaner "Cap. Point" gereizte Zerstörer wahrscheinlich Joseph Gleason von Boston sei. Dieser habe sich bei der letzten Reise an ihn gewendet, um seine Munitionskisten zu erlangen, aber der Kapitän habe sich weigert, ihn freizugeben. Der Konsul konnte nicht für den Mann tun und dieser mußte die Reise mitmachen.

New London, Conn. Kapitän Southworth von England, der hier amerikanische Seeleute zu hohen Löhnen anwirbt, erklärte einem Berichterstatter des hiesigen "Telegraph" ganz offen, daß sie gebraucht würden, um auf englischen Schiffen von New York abzuholen, damit Amerika eventuell in einen Krieg mit Deutschland verwickelt werde. Auch würde er Bürger mit guter Reputation als Passagiere, denen billige Überfahrt versprochen wird.

San Francisco. Auf der deutschen Maritima- oder Kadronen-Infanterie im Stillen Meer, in der Mitte zwischen Hawaii und den Philippinen, haben sich die Japaner heimlich niedergelassen, erzählt der von einer Forschungsreise nach Korea heimkehrende Anthropologe Prof. Frederick Starr von der Chicagoer Universität. Japan beabsichtigt nicht, diese Inseln wieder aufzugeben. Ein ausgezeichneter Postdampfer - Vertreter, Telegraph und Kabelstationen sind eingerichtet worden. Waffenhalt streifen japanische Booten als Angestellter in die neue Kolonie. In ganz Japan herrscht das Spektakelgeschrei. 1,000 neue Millionen sind entstanden. Dr. Starr erfuhr auch von angeblichen Geschäften und anderen Beziehungen Japans mit Japan. Prof. Starr betont, die Japaner behandeln ihn mit ausgezeichneter Freundschaft. Sie betrachten die Ber. Staaten als einen Freund, der zu sehr auf Selbstbedienen erpicht sei, um Krieg zu führen oder sich ernstlich an Streitigkeiten beteiligen zu lassen.

Salomiti von deutschen Fliegern angegriffen.

Es ist eine Suszession in army circles on the border that the story of Villa's death is a cleverly concocted scheme of the wily bandit himself to throw the American troops off his trail long enough to give him a chance to get out of their reach.

PANCHO VILLA REPORTED DEAD?

MANY OF THE NATIVES REFER TO HIS EXACT BURIAL SPOT.

"TOO GOOD TO BE TRUE"

There is a suspicion in army circles on the border that the story of Villa's death is a cleverly concocted scheme of the wily bandit himself to throw the American troops off his trail long enough to give him a chance to get out of their reach.

IS REPORTED DEAD.

The fact that nobody has seen Villa personally since his rout at the hands of the American cavalry forces at San Geronimo two weeks ago, two days following the receipt of his wounds, added strength to the report of his death and burial.

There is no doubt the report is general throughout the region where the American forces are now seeking Villa that he is dead. His exact burial spot is referred to by many of the natives in the vicinity of Satevo, who say that his grave is located near Santa Ana, 20 miles southwest of Satevo, General Pershing's latest advanced base.

American aerial scouts have been ordered to the scene to attempt to locate the grave.

HUGE ORDERS FOR COPPER

Great Britain and the Allies Buy 200,000 Tons.

New York—Tuesday was the last day on which Great Britain and her allies could exercise their options on copper for delivery during the current year. In consequence, the British government, in her own and the others' behalf, has closed contracts within the last week for around 400,000,000 pounds of the metal, for which it paid about 27 cents a pound. All of this copper must be delivered by the end of 1916.

GIRL COULD NOT WORK

How She Was Relieved from Pain by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Tamton, Mass.—"I had pains in both sides and when my periods came I had to stay at home from work and suffer for a long time. One day a woman came to our house and asked my mother why I was suffering. Mother told her that I suffered every month and she said, 'Why don't you buy a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?'" My mother bought it and the next month I was so well that I worked all the month without staying at home a day. I am in good health now and have told lots of girls about it."—Miss CLARICE MOORE, 22 Russell Street, Tamton, Mass.

Thousands of girls suffer in silence every month rather than consult a physician. If girls who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, headache, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or indigestion would take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a safe and pure remedy made from roots and herbs, much suffering might be avoided.

PROVEN SWAMP-ROOT AIDS WEAK KIDNEYS

The symptoms of kidney and bladder troubles are often very distressing and leave the system in a run-down condition. The kidneys seem to suffer most, as almost every victim complains of lame back and urinary troubles which should not be neglected, as these danger signals often lead to dangerous kidney troubles.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, which soothes and strengthens the kidneys in a splendid kidney, liver and bladder remedy, and, being an herbal compound, has a gentle healing effect on the kidneys, which is almost immediately noticed in most cases by those who use it.

A trial will convince anyone who may be in need of it. Better get a bottle from your nearest drug store, and start treatment at once. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

Comes From Hell, but Finds Milwaukee Livelier

MILWAUKEE.—He was a short man, mild mannered, and had a pleasant smile, but he got the clerk's goat at the Hotel Maryland when he registered, "Paul M. Fredericks, Hell."

"You hadn't do that," protested the clerk. "Don't pull that hell stuff here."

"But that's where I come from," spoke Fredericks. "Hell's in North Dakota."

"Tell us some more," Fredericks was asked by Manager F. B. Sweeney. "Well, Hell (sometimes spelled Hell) is 60 miles from Paradise," explained Fredericks, "and we have some fine country. You see you go to Hell on the N. P., on the Mott branch, seven miles east of Elgin. Paradise is inland, and the only way that you can get there is by stage, and you can only go to Paradise three times a week from Morristown, S. D. Both of the towns are in Morton county, in southwestern North Dakota."

"How large are the towns?" asked one of the auditors. "We've got it all over Paradise; Hell's more than twice as large," replied Fredericks. "In 1910 they had almost equalled, but in the last two years Hell has grown fast, and if things keep up as they now are we will have a big place some day."

"Why, we have three churches in Hell now, while they have only one in Paradise."

"Bill Hell is postmaster at Hell and Dick Hell does most of the driving; he has a fine livery business."

"Over in Paradise there is not much doing. They have a woman handle the mails there, Eva Weirlich."

"Do you like Milwaukee?" Fredericks was asked. "Well, yes; Milwaukee is livelier than Hell and much larger. I think I'll stay a while."

In Woman's Realm

Individual Style of Coiffure Means Much to Woman—Old Styles of Hairdressing Are Revived—Quaint and Picturesque Costume for the Bride's Attendants.

It is the manner of dressing her hair more than by any other means, that a woman can establish distinction—an individual style in her appearance. In this one particular she can afford to be independent of fashions and adopt for herself whatever is best suited to her. But in her coiffure, as in everything else she likes a change and she may experiment with any of the new incoming styles in hair dressing in the chance of improving her appearance or by way of variety. Along with the revival of old styles in apparel have come revivals of hairdressing from by-gone periods. The hair coiled or puffed on top of the head, with short curls at each side of the face, is one arrangement that is in the experimental stage. In another the hair is combed to the top of the crown and tied there with narrow ribbon formed into a bow and ends. The hair is turned into a long upstanding puff or loop. The most promising of coiffures recently shown calls for wavy hair parted at one side and arranged in coils at the back of the crown. Three short curls are placed at one side on a level with the lobe of the ear. There are no styles in which the ears are uncovered, although in some a glimpse of

IN THE BRIDAL PROCESSION.

It is permitted, just enough to display a jewel. The coiffure pictured is a familiar style of the type most fashionable and is shown as developed for evening. The hair is marcelled and coiled across the back of the head just above the nape of the neck. Three short curls are pinned in below the coil. An arrangement of the hair in a short French twist at the back surmounted by one long puff suggests the return of the psyché knot. The front hair is loosely waved and parted at the middle in a very shallow part. This is a graceful style and becoming, which is more than can be said of the most popular of off-the-face coiffures. Even to youthful faces they are somewhat trying and they lend nothing of softness to older ones.

Silk Net is Durable. Silk nets, expensive, of course, but more durable than tulle, come in every color of the rainbow and every shade of the colors. They have less crisp airiness than tulle, but are very lovely, and so soft that they allow great freedom of skirt or dress. Made over chiffon, they must be held out by ermine or by a petticoat, if they are to stand out; but many women show elegance without ermine or petticoat. The velvet collar dress is a new thing with enough silk to hold it on the outer part of the frock to raise the slip from the rank of linings is often used in place of chiffon. A bit of plain color in substantial material is, in fact, introduced upon the outside of many of the finest frocks. Velvet Collar Bands. A band of black velvet forms part of the collar of some of the new frocks and blouses of geometric crepe or chiffon. The velvet serves added to give body to the collar.

The Sinner's Sentence

By VIRGINIA ESTABROOK

(Copyright, 1916, by W. G. Chapman.)

With the skill of an expert boat-woman and a strength born of exercise and practice, Hazel Grey drove the wavel under her control against the shingly beach, leaped out and ran swiftly to the spot where a fellow creature lay in deadly peril. She had sculled the clumsy craft from the little island in the center of the lake and half the distance accomplished had hurried her course, for this is what she noted: A young man tottering over the edge of the bluff 20 feet up from the beach. Either he had slipped in venturing a descent or had been asleep and rolled down the steep slope. In any event the fall had been a bad one, for he lay half submerged by the water, his eyes closed and apparently unconscious.

Hazel lost no time in dragging the half suffocated victim out of the water. He stirred as she did so. She looked troubled and full of pity as she noticed a bruise near his temple. In landing his head had struck a stone. Abruptly he sat up and looked about him in a dazed way. Then a glance at the fair girl brought full intelligence. "Hello!" he ejaculated and arose. Hazel drew back, shy and blushing. He seemed to comprehend what she had done through a glance at the wet streak where his body had been dragged over the sand. He rubbed the abrasion over his brow. His eyes lit up with appreciation and gratitude. "You have worked quick," he observed, and she said simply: "I had to."

"And I owe you my life!" he added, after a brief pause and quite solemnly. "Tell me about it."

But Hazel drew back from exploiting her casual dash in the interests of humanity. "I was sculling over to get some groceries for the camp," she explained briefly. "You see, there are twelve of us, all seminary girls, and we are putting in a week at roughing it."

"Oh, I see," murmured Warner and then he turned sharply, for starting quite beyond him, an expression of vast discomfiture and amazement in her beautiful eyes, Hazel stood rooted with the fluttering gasp: "Now I'm in for it!"

She seemed quite to forget the presence of the stranger. Warner drew to one side to arrange his disheveled attire. An automobile containing a chauffeur and an angry faced, overdressed woman of about forty dashed up to the boat.

"Come here this instant," she commanded Hazel and passing like a child the girl approached the machine. The woman seized her arm and quite pulled her into the car.

"Go on!" she ordered the chauffeur. "But my clothes! What will the girls think?" demurred Hazel. "Clothes. You will wear sackcloth and ashes for the next six months, believe me, you wicked sinner!"

And then the machine and its occupants flashed down the beach, and Dudley Warner had to rub his head and blink his eyes to convince himself that it was not all a dream, so quickly had all happened, so strange the happening.

A youth in an outing suit came straggling down a bluff path. He paused, grinned at Warner and looked excited. "I was too late," he observed. "I saw you tumble, but that spritz was ahead of me."

"Who is she?" asked Warner. "Miss Hazel Grey." "And the lady in the automobile?" "I fancy an aunt, an old maid relative, who has adopted Hazel. I only guess that from what I pick up. You see, Hazel and eleven of her friends are putting in a week's vacation over on Rainbow Island. My fellows have tried to scare them—ghosts, hovering around as sheeted figures and with hollow awesome cries, but you can't scare Hazel. She has stuck it out. Her aunt lives about fifty miles from here. She must have heard of Hazel's last exploit and it scandalized her so she has marched her home in a jiffy."

It took Warner only a day to find out all about Hazel Grey. A young man of wealth, impetuous and ingenious in his nature, he was soon engulfed neck deep in the adventure of his life. He saw the mournful group of girls on the island tearfully abandon their camp, bereft of the soul of their enterprise, their doctory leader. Then Warner went to Wadham and "bung around."

Yes, sentence had been passed on the pretty sinner, and Hazel was indeed among sackcloth and ashes. The residence of Aunt Maria well accorded with her own stern and severe bearing. The old house was prim and uninviting, the grounds surrounded by a high brick wall. Only twice in two days, Warner observed, was Hazel allowed to walk in the garden. He located her room. She slept with the window open. Thereafter for a week, getting up at daylight, Warner secured the faintest, rarest bouquet money could buy, scaled the wall and when Hazel awoke the lovely floral offering lay on the floor. Then a note was enclosed in a cluster of lilies of the valley and Hazel knew the identity of her ardent knight errant.

Love laughs at locksmiths, brick walls and lynx eyed jailers. Now Dudley Warner was making of the grand passion a business, systematic and progressive. It was a delightful two weeks. Four ecstatic secret interviews in a sequestered part of the garden brought two harmonious souls together, and again Hazel "saved" Warner's life by not sending him away hopeless, he declared!

Dudley Warner was a venturesome young man and Hazel a confiding and determined girl. There was a hurried ladder climb over the garden wall one dark evening, an hour's swift dash in an automobile, a return, kisses and promises and the next morning Warner appeared before the dreaded Miss Maria.

He expected "a big row," as he told himself apprehensively. The old warrior of many a verbal battle only stared coldly at him as he began his set speech: "There's an engagement ring, an elopement, a marriage license and a wedding. Hazel has the ring, she's buried out desperately. What sinner's sentence are you going to award me, Miss Treesham?"

And then to his amazement the shrewd spinster smiled—he fancied she chuckled. She never flinched, she never betrayed an emotion except satisfaction supreme. "I admire you unutterably," she said incisively. "I have been studying you at a distance for two weeks. You rise early, that shows no laggard. You scale walls, evidencing activity. You are a model young man. I have taken pains to learn so—therefore, why not? I have watched your every move—I, the lynx eyed—ah! You are a better guardian for Hazel than I—"

"You consent!" cried the astounded Warner. "Don't interrupt me," commanded Miss Maria—"as I said, take Hazel—with my blessing."

"You angel!" raved the enraptured Dudley Warner. "The pleader in criminal cases has some strange experiences," says Sir J. H. A. Macdonald, the late British lord-justice-clerk, in "Life Jottings," and remarks how in the case of a murder, brutal in its character, anger at the deed will cause a jury to reject the clearest evidence that the perpetrator was insane.

"I once defended a case," he says, "and a majority of the jury not only convicted, but added a rider affirming that the prisoner was sane. The man was hopelessly mad. The doctors sent to see him were satisfied of that, and the sentence was not carried out. A crucial test applied was that while one of them put his finger lightly on the pulse, the other suddenly said: 'By the by, Miller, when is it you are to be hanged?' There was not a tremor or a change of countenance or a celebration of the pulse, and, looking up, he said, quite simply, 'I think it's Tuesday week, if I'm not mistaken.'"

Couldn't Fool Buggy. She hailed from a remote country village in England, and had traveled by rail on a visit to friends who resided in a distant town. Whilst entering the railway station for the return journey she found to her dismay that she had lost her handbag, which contained her return ticket and cash. After a fruitless inquiry and search a lady to whom she had spoken of her loss very kindly offered the suggestion that the old dame should wire to her husband at her expense and ask him to telegraph a money order, also telling him the circumstances in which she was placed. She assented to this, and the telegram was sent and duly delivered to the old dame's husband. He tore the mislaid open and read it. "Any answer?" asked the messenger. "No, nor brass neither," said he; "they'll find they nobbut got a noodle this time. They'll not hoodwink me; that baint Mary's writin'. I could tell 'em from hundred."

Working the Oracle. "I wish, John, that I had had more sense when we were engaged," said the wife thoughtfully. "Then I wouldn't have destroyed all the letters you wrote me in the eighteen months of our courtship." The husband smiled in a gratified way. "I knew you would be sorry for that some day," he said. "Indeed I am," was the reply. "I need a little extra money very badly just now, and a man called today to buy old paper. How wasteful we were!" And automatically his hand sought his pocket. A resourceful woman seldom has to ask for money straight out.

Some Class There. The dingy little restaurant was plastered about with menu signs. One with any knowledge of dingy little restaurants could not but reflect that what "bubble and squeak" is to England "beef-stew" is to the United States. One's attention was attracted to two ladies, standing at the green, who were talking of the great war.

"That's a good one," said the first. "I've heard of it before."

Glass of Hot Water Before Breakfast a Splendid Habit

Open stitches of the system each morning and wash away the poisonous, stagnant matter.

Those of us who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when we arise; splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, lame back, can, instead, look and feel as fresh as a daisy always by washing the poisons and toxins from the body with phosphated hot water each morning.

We should drink, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to flush from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

The action of limestone phosphate and hot water on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast and it is said to be but a little while until the roses begin to appear in the cheeks. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at your druggist or from the store, but is sufficient to make anyone who is bothered with biliousness, constipation, stomach trouble or rheumatism a real enthusiast on the subject of internal sanitation. Try it and you are assured that you will look better and feel better in every way shortly.—Adv.

The Man of It. His Wife—John, dear, won't you have another piece of cake? Her Husband—No, thank you; I don't like homemade cake. His Wife—But this isn't home-made. I bought it at the bake shop. Her Husband—I knew there was something about it I didn't like.

SAVED MINISTER'S LIFE.

Rev. W. H. Warner, Route 2, Myersville, Md., writes: My trouble was sciatica. My back was affected and took the form of lumbago. I also had neuralgia, cramps in my muscles, pressure or sharp pain on the top of my head, and nervous dizzy spells. I had other symptoms showing my kidneys were in fault, so I took Dodd's Kidney Pills. They were the means of saving my life. On Feb. 16th, 1916, I write to say that undoubtedly your medicine restored me to perfect health.

Dodd's Kidney Pills, 50c per box at your dealer or Dodd's Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets for indigestion have been proved, 60c per box.—Adv.

Wages and Sanitation. "Pay the worker more and he will live better, and his family will escape much of the danger from disease," said Surgeon General Gorgas of the United States army, in an address to churchmen in Washington.

"In the treatment of tropical diseases," he said, "poverty must always be considered as one of the most important evils to be eradicated. Doubling the wages of workmen in Havana raised them from their former imppecunious state and enabled them to live in more sanitary fashion than before."

"Sanitation is possible only where one is able to make the people understand the necessity of right living," he added. "In my experience I have found that a higher rate of pay is the most effective way of alleviating their former condition."

Women for Police Duty. Spokane's civil service commission, after debating the type of woman that would make the best police officer, seems to have reached no very narrow definitions, the requirements being between five feet and five feet ten inches in height, between twenty-five and thirty-five years in age, and between 115 and 200 pounds in weight, timber line having been boosted to the latter figure to satisfy Commissioner J. M. Corbett, who admits a preference for woman officers of the "large, queenly type."

HANDY HUSBAND

Knew How to Get Part of the Breakfast. "I know one dish I can prepare for breakfast as well as any cook on earth," said my husband one morning when the cook was ill and he had volunteered to help get breakfast. He appeared with his dish and I discovered it was Grape-Nuts which, of course, was easy to prepare for it was perfectly cooked at the factory, but it was a good illustration of the convenience of having Grape-Nuts about.

"We took up Grape-Nuts immediately after returning from a five years' sojourn in a hot country. Our stomachs were in bad condition and we were in poor health generally. "In a day or two we liked Grape-Nuts better than any other kind of food on the table. We both gained steadily in health and strength, and this was caused by Grape-Nuts and Postum."

"A friend of ours had a similar experience. She was nervous all with indigestion and could find nothing to eat that would not give her heartburn and palpitation, especially at night. "She found that a small dish of Grape-Nuts with cream made her a satisfactory supper and gave her a comfortable night's rest. In a short time she gained weight and strength."

Why Constipation Injures.

The bowels are the natural sewerage system of the body. When they become obstructed by constipation a part of the poisonous matter which they should carry off is absorbed into the system, making you feel dull and stupid, and interfering with the digestion and assimilation of food. This condition is quickly relieved by Chamberlain's Tablets. Obtainable everywhere.—Advt.

New Theatre in Plymouth To Be Poured in One Piece

Plymouth's new theatre, designed along modern, sanitary and economic lines will be something that the entire community can well be proud of. Particularly when the fact is taken into consideration that the introduction of the system by which the theatre is to be poured like melted steel, means a new and prosperous era in house building at a very low cost for the people of Plymouth. Footings, foundations, walls, columns and floors, as well as roof will all be cast in one solid piece, making a building that will never crack or warp, and will require no repairs, be free from maintenance, and will endure for centuries.

Entirely Free From Fire Peril

The great danger of fire ever present in all ordinary buildings, whether of brick or stone construction can not be ignored. When it is a matter of life and property damage is the direful consequence. Here by this modern method of unit construction or pouring one floor at a time and everything beneath it in one operation assures the residents of this village a theatre where absolute safety at all times will be had. That is not all either. Cottages, bungalows or any other building will also be erected for anyone that will mean thousands of dollars saved to Plymouth home builders and owners. Tens of millions of dollars worth of concrete buildings are being erected every week in the United States. In Detroit alone, there are several scores of millions worth of these in factories, theaters, office buildings and residences.

What will interest the readers of this paper is a short description of how this is done. Metal plates are used which can be set up and locked into position, making any height of ceiling from the floor, or any thickness wall, or any size of floor slab. In one pouring the stairs, mantels, fire-places, chimneys, closet walls and outer walls are cast along with the floor slabs, beams, columns and girders supporting the building. The forms or metal molds are set up too, in one day, by experienced labor, to the height of one story. This means an entire floor, and all that is required for that floor (and everything beneath it, on the same day or the next morning, the concrete is cast, thus the building resulting is as if it were chiseled out of a solid block.
