TRY IT YOURSELF

Said one man: "I do not know why I cannot make my boys go to church."
"Do you go yourself?" said the other.

"Not often; business and one thing or another interferes, these days."

"Well, say nothing to the boys, but start going again yourself, and see what the result will be."

Later, the father said, one of the boys dropped in, and finding his father, he told the other boys, and the next Sunday several came, and now the pew is full every Sunday.

Ringling Bros. Coming This Way

World's Biggest Circus and Spectacle "Cinderella" Announced for Early Date.

Announcement is made that on Monday and Tuesday, May 29 and 30, Ringling Bros. circus will give afternoon and night performances in Detroit.

The famous showmen are this season presenting an all new and wonderful program. The tremendous fairland spectacle, "Cinderella," will appeal to both young and old. More than 1,000 persons take part in it. It is easily the biggest spectacle Ringling Bros. have ever staged and its glorious "Ballet of the Fairies," with 300 dancing girls, is in itself worth going many miles to see. Following "Cinderella," 400 arctic artists appear in the main tent program. Because of the great European war the Ringling Bros. have secured a number of circus performers never before seen in America. An entire trained animal show has been made a part of the main tent program this season. The menagerie now numbers 1000 wild animals. The elephants, including "Big Bingo," the earth's largest pachyderm, have been increased to 41 and almost 800 horses are carried. There will be 60 clowns and a big free three-mile street parade show day morning.

Motor Tax Held Legal

On Saturday last the supreme court of the state of Michigan, by a vote of 5 to 3, handed down a decision affirming the validity of the new automobile tax law. Auto owners throughout the state, as well as motor car manufacturers have been anxiously waiting to see what the supreme court were going to do with this law. Those who have been waiting to see what the outcome would be will have to get a license now as soon as possible. The license money will be divided equally between the state and the county from which it is received. This will provide a large sum which should be used only for road building and repairing purposes.

The famous Blackie Daw of fiction was outdone near here last week, when a stranger halted at the farm of Martin Ottmer in Superior township and gave out the news that he was looking for a good farm. This listened good to the Ottmers, and after the stranger expressed his interest in the place, he asked for permission to make a thorough inventory of the stock, equipment, supplies, etc. The inventory consumed several days, and all of this time the would-be investor lived on the best the good housewife could cook. After completing the inventory, he left and has not been seen since.

Don't break the fish laws, or the game laws will get you. Not only must the fisherman take along a tape measure to ensure not keeping a fish under the regulation length, but an adding machine is an actual necessity in his kit, or he may be caught with more of the Bony tribe in his possession than the law states is proper and just. Not only the above must be looked after, but a speaking acquaintance with the denizens of the deep should be cultivated in order that only the proper species should be retained, in case luck attended the sportsmen.

The Woman's Literary Club

The Woman's Literary club met at the home of Mrs. R. E. Cooper last Friday afternoon. About thirty members were present. Roll call was responded to by giving items of interest in regard to suffrage. The following interesting papers were given: "The Immigrant and How He Develops"—Françoise Keller, a paper prepared by Mrs. Frank Shastuck, was read by Mrs. F. F. Bennett; "The Immigrant and How He Develops" was also given by Mrs. Louis Ellinger; "Work of the Early Congress" Mrs. Edward Tighe; "What's New in Science," a paper prepared by Mrs. Leon Christwell and Mrs. O. M. Rockwell, was read by the latter. A solo by Mrs. R. E. Cooper, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Louis Thomas, concluded the program. SENTINELS ON BOTH SIDES

Holland Can Flood Great Area at First Signs of Invasion—Difficult to Cross the Border—Writer Describes Some Scenes of the War.

Maastricht, Holland.—They tell you in this town that they have almost forgotten that there is a war. Perhaps they have, for it has swept past them and nobody expects it to come back. The potteries and breweries, which are the principal factors in the town's prosperity, are running full time and making money; business is good enough to all appearances, and the walls are plastered with the advertisements of innumerable moving picture houses where French war movies are listed side by side with detective dramas filmed in Los Angeles.

But Maastricht, saw and heard enough of the war in those first few days. Little more than a mile to the west is the Belgian frontier; 20 miles on the other side is the German frontier; 20 miles to the southwest is Liege. The town lies almost at the extremity of South Limburg—the bottle-shaped southward projection of Holland that runs down for some 30 miles before joining to the rest of the country by a neck that at one point is hardly two miles wide. And while its people may have forgotten that there is a war now, it will be a long time before they forget those first days of August, 1914.

The Germans were coming west through Belgium—everybody knew that. Nobody felt sure that they might not find it more convenient to overrun South Limburg on the way; and the Dutch army, hastily mobilized the last day of July, was digging in along the frontier, while a few miles up the Meuse, on that range of hills which borders the river at Liege as it does at Maastricht, General Lemans and his Belgians were sitting behind fortifications that everybody thought were impregnable and waiting for the Germans.

During those days while the people in Maastricht, as in Liege, were waiting to see whether the war was coming their way, there passed through the town 5,000 German civilians expelled from their homes in Belgium at the beginning of the war, and already Belgians who thought that Dutch territory would be safer than their own were beginning to move into the town and district of Maastricht.

Rumors that Germans crossed Limburg, of course, was not invaded. A legend persists that some German troops did cross the narrow neck of the bottle, but nobody has ever found any proofs. From Aachen, where the advance troops had been hurriedly gathered together, General von Emmich's army started west toward the Liege forts. At Verviers and elsewhere they skirmished with the Belgian outposts. Then they came to Vise, a village less than four miles from the Dutch frontier and little more than ten from Maastricht.

The people of this town, who tell you that they hardly know now that there is a war, could see the smoke when Vise was burned—burned so thoroughly that the people who live along the border will tell you there is not a house left standing. That day there poured across the border a swarm of refugees of a different sort, the precursors of many others in the day that followed—what was left of women and children of Vise, who had seen 200 of their men shot down in the streets, and scores of others made prisoner and started on their way to Germany.

Maastricht heard the roar of the battle at Liege, when the Germans, trying to rush the hills without adequate artillery support, were driven back with the loss of 10,000 or 12,000 men, according to local estimates, and when for two or three days an excited world thought that the terrible German army had been stopped just over the threshold. And then one morning every window in the Dutch border city rattled with the deep roar of a new kind of gun, firing at Liege from just south of the frontier line. The new howitzers had arrived, and the Liege forts were blown to pieces one by one.

10,000 Refugees in City.

Ten thousand refugees were in Maastricht before Liege fell—10,000 strangers in a town of less than 40,000. Most of them had money, and, as hotels and pensions were overflowed, the natives drove a thriving business for a while taking in boarders. But eventually most of the Belgians moved on to Rotterdam, or Amsterdam, or The Hague, or England, and those few who remained, running out of money, went to work in the factories that were just coming back to life and were absorbed in the routine of the town. They left behind them stories of German atrocities that have affected sentiment in Maastricht to a degree that may be indicated by the

NEW PATROL BOAT ON SPEED TRIAL

Patrol boat No. 2 on her speed trials in Lynn bay, making an average of 24 miles an hour. The trials were pronounced satisfactory under the direction of Stewart Davis, who is commander of the Volunteer Patrol squadron. The No. 2 is the first of the fleet of four now under way. These new type patrol boats are 40 feet over all, 8 feet 8 inches beam, and 3 feet draft, fitted with 135-horse-power engines.

There are not many soldiers left in this part of Belgium, but those who are left are as businesslike as the men in the trenches.

Only two or three of them are in sight here at Smeermas—the sentinels, and one or two others a little distance away, pacing along a high barbed wire fence. This fence is the Belgian frontier—the first fence built along the border when the Germans began their policy of keeping the Belgians at home. When they found that despite constant patrolling this barrier was insufficient they built a second barbed wire fence all along the 150 miles of frontier, 500 yards behind the first one—closely woven wire this time, high enough to make it difficult even to throw letters over, and charged with electricity. That fence is studded from Maastricht to the sea with carcasses of dogs, rabbits, chickens and cows.

And latterly the Germans have begun the construction of still another fence exactly like this one, but 500 yards farther back. The fences are constantly patrolled, and at night there are searchlights. It is getting pretty hard to get into or out of Belgium.

The taxi trucks back through the town and out again toward the south. After passing another double barrier of earthen embankments and an inquisitive sentry just outside the city limits you run along a road that follows the river perhaps 200 yards on the right, down through the cleft between the double veil, a little village where the Dutch troops acting as the frontier guards against smuggling on the much-traveled route are quartered, and then on down the road toward Vise.

Ruins of Vise in Distance.

The ruins of Vise are down yonder, beyond the mist-clad woods, and it is hardly more than a quarter of an hour's run to Liege. But it is the frontier; the driver shrugs his shoulders: "Weiter kann man nicht." And as you turn back you pass a line of high covered carts filled with loaves of bread—bread made from American flour, sent across the frontier by the Belgian Relief commission.

Until quite recently it was almost as hard to get to Maastricht as to get into Belgium. The Dutch garrison was a strong one, and the hourly inspection of passports and special permits. But repeated protests by Dutch business men had its effect, and the reduction of the garrison removed much of the military need for restrictions; so that today travel in the southern tip of the Netherlands is as easy as it is in Westchester.

Only a single regiment is left in Maastricht. The old bridge across the Meuse is guarded day and night, and beside its parapets lie chevau-de-frise, tangled with barbed wire, and heaps of steel rails, ready to be thrown into place and block the bridge on five minutes notice. But the plant of the Dutch general staff do not contemplate any attempt to defend South Limburg in the event—which is every day regarded as less likely—of an attack from Germany. The Zuyder Zee dikes would be blown up and a great stretch flooded clear across the country. Behind the area to be flooded, almost to the center of Holland, is Utrecht, fortified almost as strongly as the cities of the Vosges. Here the Dutch would make their first stand. Behind that still another area to be flooded, and then a third, extending the submerged district up to the fortifications of Amsterdam, which would be the last refuge of the Dutch army, as Antwerp was of the Belgian. Anything east of Utrecht would be only outpost fighting; but the barbed wire entanglements that are almost a constant feature of the landscape, and the marching soldiers that can be seen at almost any glance from the car window, indicate how sharp that fighting might be.

When women take a hand and start a preparedness wave all their own, then shall it become universal. On the free rifle range at Winthrop, Md., women flocked in great numbers recently, all enthused over the opportunity to learn how to defend their country. An unusual sight it was to see a small wispy of a woman handling a rifle almost as big as herself with determination enough to want to learn how to handle it. The woman in the picture is Mrs. B. M. Botto, and she was as steady a shot as there was in the camp.

Health for Sick Women

For Forty Years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Has Been Woman's Most Reliable Medicine—Here is More Proof.

To women who are suffering from some form of woman's special ills, and have a constant fear of breaking down, the three following letters ought to bring hope:—

North Cranston, Wis.—"When I was 16 years old I got married and at 18 years I gave birth to twins and it left me with very poor health. I could not walk across the floor without having to sit down to rest and it was hard for me to keep about and do my work. I went to a doctor and he told me I had a displacement and it would have to be operated. This frightened me so much that I did not know what to do. Having heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I thought I would give it a trial and it made me as well as ever. I cannot say enough in favor of the Pinkham remedies."—Mrs. MARY ABRAHAM, North Cranston, Wis.

Testimony from Oklahoma.

Lawton, Okla.—"When I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I seemed to be good for nothing. I tired easily and had headaches much of the time and was irregular. I took it again before my little child was born and it did me a wonderful amount of good at that time. I never fail to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to ailing women because it has done so much for me."—Mrs. A. L. McCABLAND, 509 HAVE ST., LAWTON, OKLA.

From a Grateful Massachusetts Woman.

Roxbury, Mass.—"I was suffering from inflammation and was examined by a physician who found that my trouble was caused by a displacement. My symptoms were bearing down pains, backache, and sluggish liver. I tried several kinds of medicine; then I was asked to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has cured me and I am pleased to be in my usual good health by using it and highly recommend it."—Mrs. B. M. OSGOOD, 1 HAYNES PARK, ROXBURY, MASS.

"If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence."

A Famous Physician's Wonderful Discovery

After a series of careful experiments kidneys are damaged the blood is filled with poisonous waste matter, which settles in the feet, ankles and wrists; or under the eyes in bag-like formations. It is just as necessary to keep the kidneys acting properly as to keep the bowels active.

The very best possible way to take care of yourself is to take a glass of hot water before meals and an "Anuric" tablet. In this way it is readily dissolved with the food, picked up by the blood and finally reaches the kidneys, where it has a tonic effect in rebuilding those organs.

Step into the drug store and ask for a 60-cent package of "Anuric," or send Dr. Pierce for free trial pack. "Anuric"—many times more potent than lithia, eliminates a dropsical condition, often caused by disordered kidneys. Naturally when the

MUST NOT BECOME MACHINE

Many Reasons Why Too Much Devotion to Habit is Bad for Individual Worker.

This force of habit is a good thing. It makes for one to do a great deal of routine work with practically no exertion. Once the pattern is made, little attention is required. The brain acts almost automatically, moving hands and feet as may be necessary to accomplish the desired action.

But habit can be injurious, too. And by this I don't mean bad habits. I mean that the habit can be much overdone, and that when this happens inclusive and originality die. You become little more than a machine, and though you may get through your allotted work perfectly, you are yourself fading out as an individual, losing interest in existence.

You girls whose work is pretty much all routine want to take care that habit doesn't make an end of you. A certain amount of routine labor is restful, and good for you. But keep from letting yourself sink into a day in and day out routine that requires practically no thought, hardly any attention. If your work tends to that sort of thing make yourself do it in new ways, watch out for short cuts, bring your mind to bear on all its details, try to seek better ways of doing what you are busy over. And if your work is really hopeless, then escape from habit as much as possible the rest of your time. Don't so much as go home the same way every day in the week, vary your amusements, take up some study on the side. Refuse at all hazards to atrophy your mind by falling into the unchanging habit of doing everything the same way, and thinking of everything the same way.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

RATHER SPOILED THE EFFECT

Lawyer's Eloquent Address Nullified When His Opponent Related a Little Fable.

A barrister who was possessed of an unusually loud voice was making an eloquent address to a jury. His case was fairly strong, and his trumpet tones made the rafters ring. The jury looked thoughtful and much impressed.

The opposing barrister had a face like a hatchet and a thin, low voice. He began: "As I listened to the thunderous appeals of my learned opponent I recalled a fable. A lion and an ass entered into a compact to slay the beasts of the field and share the spoils. The ass was to go into the thicket and bray and frighten the animals out, while the lion was to lie in wait and kill the fugitives. Well, the ass sought the darkest part of the jungle, and, lifting up his awful voice, brayed and brayed and brayed. The ass was intoxicated with his own up-bray and thought he'd return to see what the lion thought of it. He found the lion pale in the face and trembling. "What do you think of that for braying?" said the ass. "Don't you think I scared them?" "Scared them?" repeated the lion in an agitated tone. "Why, you'd have scared me if I didn't know you were a jackass!"

As He Saw the Play.

"Oh, do tell me something about the play last night. They say that climax at the close of the third act was simply grand," she said.

"Yes, I am inclined to think it was very good," he replied, without any marked degree of enthusiasm.

"Can't you describe it to me," she continued, beaming radiantly.

"Why," explained he, "the heroine came stealthily on the stage and knelt, dagger in hand, behind a clump of blue ribbons. The hero emerged from a large bunch of lilacs and as soon as she perceived him she fell upon him, stabbed him twice, and sank half-conscious into a very handsome algrette. This may sound a trifle queer, but the lady in front of me came in late for the performance and became so intensely interested that she forgot to remove her hat, and that's how it looked to me."

BIBLE STUDENTS Another new chapter for Sunday. This time the "work of harvest." Just closing the chapter "time of harvest." There is a difference between the time of harvest and the work of harvest. How many know that the different ages of the bible each close with a harvest? So it is. The people of the harvest of the Jewish age were likened to "wheat and chaff." Math. 3:12. Of our present gospel age harvest to "wheat and tares." Math. 13:25-40. (Wheat to be gathered into a safe granary condition, the heavenly kingdom; tares into bundles to be burned with trouble, many of them for future use after the dross has been burned away). Also the Golden age just dawning is to close with a harvest, during which "Satan will be loosed for a little season." The people here are likened to wheat and good tares. Math. 24:32. This final harvest of earth will witness the complete separation of all that is evil from all that is good. Satan will be destroyed and all that are evil with him "and there will be no more curse." In other words a clean universe. How grand!

Nitric Acid Needed. Since the outbreak of the world war the need of an added abundance of nitrogen has become doubly apparent. Nitric acid goes into the making of munitions; the manufacture of nitroglycerin, dynamite, gun cotton, smokeless powder and trinitrotoluol are absolutely dependent upon fixed nitrogen. Many synthetic medicines would be denied to humanity but for the metamorphosing powers of nitrogen, and for the millions that have been stricken by its violence hundreds of thousands have been helped back to health and strength through this same element in its beneficent moods.

LETTER FROM STATE CAPITOL

NOW BUILDING OF GOOD ROADS MAY GO ON RAPIDLY AS THE MONEY IS IN SIGHT.

THE SCHOLAR AND EXPERT

Good Roads, Forest Fires, Prohibition, Dress, Crops, Wages and Other Matters That Make Talking Themes in Lansing.

[By Gurd M. Hayes.]

Lansing—Through money made available by the new automobile tax law which was declared constitutional in an opinion rendered by the supreme court Michigan will become one of the foremost states in the union in the matter of highway construction. From the sale of 98,000 automobile licenses, the state has collected so far this year approximately $1,225,000, all of which will now be turned over to the state and county highway funds and must be used only for the construction and maintenance of highways. Secretary of State Vaughan is of the opinion that at least $2,000,000 will be received this year from the sale of automobile licenses and as the number of automobiles in Michigan is increasing yearly the state will have millions of dollars for the construction of good roads in years to come. Work in the highway department for the season has not been started as it was deemed advisable to wait and see what the court did with the money which belonged to it under the Newell Smith law.

Work which was started last fall on both state road and township roads, which the state has to pay a reward, was finished this spring, despite the uncertainty of the financial result. The balance due on these road contracts will be the first to come out of the state highway fund when that department finally gets control of it. The counties and the amounts they will receive on this first payment are as follows: Benzie, $740; Berrien, $26,553; Calhoun, $590; Cass, $928; Crawford, $3,179; Dickinson, $1,986; Eaton, $1,033; Grand Traverse, $750; Gratiot, $1,800; Hillsdale, $346; Huron, $5,549; Ingham, $248; Isabella, $1,092; Kalamazoo, $258; Kent, $3,252; Keweenaw, $9,272; Lapeer, $250; Leelanau, $1,540; Livingston, $1,719; Luce, $671; Macomb, $1,464; Mecosta, $379; Menominee, $3,325; Midland, $2,877; Missaukee, $380; Newaygo, $200; Oakland, $3,298; Oceana, $1,931; Ogemaw, $1,322; Osceola, $1,306; Ottawa, $2,194; Saginaw, $3,400; Sanilac, $1,600; Shiawassee, $998; St. Clair, $6,726; St. Joseph, $600; Tuscola, $3,891; Van Buren, $5,877; Wayne, $14,773; Westford, $7,215. Total, $137,565.

Forest Fire Prevention. When Professor Lovejoy of the University of Michigan, attacked Michigan officials for not stopping forest fires, he, perhaps, did not realize that he was going to bring down about his head the wrath of those in state departments charged with fire prevention and forest protection.

When the members of that public domain commission read that Professor Lovejoy had said they should be charged with the fires and that he was willing to take a contract to prevent them for 2 cents an acre, well, they smiled. Auditor General Fuller, a member of the commission, and chairman of its finance committee, took the professor's financial statement and stated emphatically that he was willing to contract with him for 2 cents an acre if he could produce the goods.

A. C. Carton, secretary of the public domain commission, said he was surprised at Professor Lovejoy's statement, and declared that if every state official in every state should be sent to prison for life, forest fires would not be prevented. "The matter of forest protection is one of education and is a part of the duty of the individual, who believes in good government," said Mr. Carton.

"When the camper realizes that his duty is to put out every fire before he leaves it; when the railroad companies realize that when timber is destroyed they will not have it to haul; when the lumbermen and manufacturers realize that the destruction of growing timber by fire will shorten the life of their operations, then we will have reached a point where the loss from fire can be reduced to a minimum. "Even then we will have fires in our forests, just as we have fires in our cities."

Politics and Prohibition. Although state wide prohibition will be one of the main issues before the voters of Michigan next November, the various political parties are making efforts to prevent the wet and dry proposition from being injected into the campaigns this year, and in two state conventions held this year prohibition has not been mentioned. It was not expected that the republican state convention would endorse or condemn prohibition. For years the republican leaders have agreed that the effect of making prohibition a political proposition could be seen in the decay of the regular prohibition party. When the party chiefs of the G. O. P. met in Lansing May 3, prohibition was mentioned only in the hotel corridors. When the national progressives held their state convention at Jackson there was every reason to believe that a plank would be adopted placing the delegates on record in favor of state wide prohibition. Once before in state convention the progressives of Michigan went on record for prohibition and equal suffrage, but this year the resolutions adopted were silent on the question of prohibition. No one in state political circles entertains the belief that the democrats of Michigan will pay any attention to the liquor question this fall. Governor Ferris has stated that while he was strongly in favor of local option, he did not regard state wide prohibition favorably for the reason that he did not believe it could be enforced. Many other democratic leaders share the governor's view, and furthermore, they agree with the republicans, that prohibition is a question that should be divorced from politics as much as possible. In disregarding the prohibition amendment the leaders of the three political parties are not antagonizing the officials of the Michigan Anti-Saloon league who are directing the state wide prohibition fight. In fact, officers of the league have declared they do not want the endorsement of any political organization, as they are of the opinion that such an endorsement would do more harm than good, unless all parties declared boldly for their propaganda.

HAPPENINGS in the BIG CITIES

How They Make Street Cars Stop in Chicago

CHICAGO.—John rested his weight on one foot, banged a hollow dinner pail against his knee, and watched a Cottage Grove car sail insolently by, belching with the human-loop sardine. John wanted to get home, and there was lots of room in a supperless stomach to permit his resentment against the company to expand.

John was shortly joined by Joes, Jims, Harrys, Williams, Horaces, Toms, et al., to the number of 200, and they banged their dinner pails and watched car after car snort past Ninety-third and Cottage Grove without even a tactful hesitation. They had observed the phenomenon for so many evenings that it had almost become a quaint old custom. It may have been possibly the trolley pole which suggested the ensuing bit of land-piracy, or the dinner-pail bouncers picked out one car, pulled off the trolley pole and swarmed aboard with curses instead of outlasses between their teeth. "Man, woman and child, babes in arms, wend wert over the plank with their clammy, useless transfers clasped in hand."

When the passengers had been emptied from the car the raiders broke windows, tore up seats, and completely wrecked the vehicle. A call sent in by the crew brought police, but the crowd dispersed at the bluecoats' approach and no arrests were made.

The protest was effective. The car company switched cars from branch lines to carry the bad bouncers home. Most of the party which held up the car are workmen employed at plants and shops near this corner, who live in Pullman, West Pullman and Roseland. They have made many complaints of the inadequate service, the police declare, and scores of them during the rush hour have been forced to wait an hour or more for a car.

Puppies Are Guests of a Great New York Hotel

NEW YORK.—With the hum of mighty drivewheels for their lullabys and grimy engine-room workers for their nurses, seven motherless puppies are being credited to strong young doghood in the subbasement of one of New York's greatest hotels. On the diet which was devised, along with the feeding apparatus, by the chief engineer of the hotel, they are growing fat and playful.

Up in the hotel kitchen, nearer the level of the earth than the deeply hidden engine room, highly paid chefs each day prepare the milk which the puppies suckle three times every 24 hours. It is diluted and sweetened and then heated to the proper temperature before it is poured into seven carefully scalded bottles that are placed in the rack from which the pups are fed.

Each bottle has a rubber tube and the conventional nipple, only in this case the nipple is the thinnest which could be found. The seven little pups, packed close together in a row, eat regularly at nine in the morning and at one and half-past four o'clock in the afternoon.

The dogs are the offspring of the chief engineer's fox terriers, Nifty and Dot. Dot, the mother, died less than two weeks after the pups were born, and the chief engineer faced the problem of either drowning the dogs or raising them. The idea of drowning them never seriously entered the chief engineer's head, for he loves dogs, and he had seen the marking on the pups and knew of what breed they were.

So he sat himself in his big chair and thought for a long time; after which he called on the chefs in the kitchen and talked persuasively. The result was the nursery in the subbasement, where the great machinery which heats, lights and maintains the hostelry has its being. The pups have never been to the surface of the earth yet, but they are getting frisk and fat despite that.

Social Usage Course in New York University

NEW YORK.—At last a college is meeting the real needs of the age. The classics may be forgotten, but New York university has a course in social usage and etiquette. Arthur H. Nason, assistant professor of English, is the instructor. He is a tall, courteous person, with a very neat Van Dyke beard, and evidently well qualified to give such a course. He assured a reporter that the course is not official. But it may become such in time. He said a group of medical preparatory students wanted it for purely professional purposes. A doctor must know how to get along with his patients, you know. "How many students have you?" was asked.

"Fifteen or twenty, depending on the weather and the ball game," was the smiling response. "And just what do you study?" "We're very practical. The first time we studied 'Usages in Public.' Last time it was 'The Bachelor as Guest.' Next time we will take up 'The Bachelor as Host.'"

The professor was very uncommunicative as to just what topics came under these heads. "Usages in Public," it was explained, covered "how to act on the street or in the theater." Possibly it includes a careful study of the various methods of removing one's hat when meeting a woman on the street. Should it be lifted, or should it be lowered with a graceful sweep? Then there is that vexed question of just when it is proper to take a girl's arm, and how much of it one should take.

The subject of "The Bachelor as Guest" would naturally involve such topics as: What to say when you have spilled soup on the table; how to manage spaghetti when your hostess is watching you; the propriety of gnawing a chop while holding it in your fingers; how to eat grapefruit without squirting the juice, and "The Proper Remarks to Make When Viewing the Infant Child of a Relative."

Shreveport Treasure Hunter Keeps on Digging

SHREVEPORT, LA.—Having discovered evidence of what he believes is buried treasure or a gold mine on a piece of ground on Fairland avenue owned by Dr. J. M. Comery in the most exclusive residence district of the city, a Shreveport contractor named Farmer spent all day and part of a night digging in the plot for hidden wealth. Farmer claims he was led to the spot by a divining rod, and he further maintains that his divining rod hasn't played him false, because it leads him to the exact spot every time he moves.

Farmer, with the assistance of three negro helpers, labored far into the night in search of the treasure or mine, or whatever it is, and spadeful after spadeful of dirt had been removed without results. Late bulletins from the scene indicated that no treasure had been disclosed as yet, though the hole measured four feet deep and as many feet in width when the search was concluded temporarily.

Shreveport is too far inland to have been the haunt of Captain Kidd or any other of our well-known pirates, and the next best guess is that it is a gold mine. Farmer won't quit until he is convinced to his own satisfaction that his divining rod has pulled a "bone" or that there is really a treasure at the spot.

Der Kampf um Verdun konzentrierte sich wiederum auf Hügel 304, südwestlich vom "Loren Mann". Hügel, genau westlich von der nach Westen zeigenden Spitze der Maas-Schleife nördlich von Verdun. Es ist, wie wiederholt hervorgehoben, die wichtigste französische Stellung in diesem Terrain. Sie hat den Angriff der Deutschen auf die Bahn Linie Verdun - Paris bisher erfolgreich verhindert.

Der Kampf ist zum Wettkampf zwischen den beiden Völkern geworden, und nach französischem Gehörnis, waren die Deutschen auch in dieser Beziehung erfolgreich. Sie zwangen die Franzosen zum Rückzug. Deutschereis hat man wieder einmal abgewartet, bis die Franzosen sich in vergeblichen oder doch nur wenig erfolgreichen Gegenangriffen erschöpft hatten und zur Herausziehung neuer Truppenteile, die noch nicht schlachternprobt sind, gezwungen worden waren. Es ist nichts als eine Wiederholung der seit dem ersten Angriff auf Verdun befolgten Taktik.

In engster Verbindung mit den Ereignissen an der westlichen Front stehen die Verhandlungen im englischen Parlament.

Sir Herbert Asquith hat sich wieder einmal in voller Größe gezeigt, im Fall des künftigen Fußes, dem nun einmal nicht beigefallen ist. Trotzdem er sich vor Monaten auf Ehrenwort verpflichtet hat, niemals ein allgemeines Wehrpflichtgesetz in Vorschlag zu bringen, hat er dies dennoch getan. Es ist möglich und sogar höchstwahrscheinlich, daß Sir Herbert diese bei den Briten verhängte Vorlage zu einem ganz bestimmten Zweck eingereicht hat, nämlich nicht nur, um die allgemeine Wehrpflicht durchzuführen, sondern in erster Linie, um die Leute im Parlament mit anderen Dingen zu beschäftigen. Diesen Zweck hat der schlaue Politiker erreicht. Der Regierung wurden faum Vorwürfe wegen der irischen Lage und der Niederlage in Ruat-el-Amara gemacht. Am gleichen Tage, an dem Ruat-el-Amara fiel und die irische Revolution als beendet zu betrachten war, verteidigte Sir Herbert die Wehrpflicht, die allgemeine Wehrpflicht einzuführen, und am folgenden Tage lag die Vorlage vor dem Hause.

Das Kabinett hatte sich unter Asquiths Führung mit einer bewundernswerten Eleganz aus einer der schwierigsten Lage gezogen, in der es sich je befunden.

Dem Parlament stellte Asquith mit, daß die britische Armee nunmehr aus 83 Divisionen bestünde und zwar einschließlich der Marine- und Uebersee- Divisionen. Indem ist in diese Aufstellung nicht eingeschlossen. Sir Herbert hat in diesem Falle die Wahrheit gesprochen, aber nicht die ganze. Er vermag nämlich anzuführen, daß die britischen Divisionen nicht vollständig sind. Jede Division sollte 18,750 Mann zählen, eine Gesamtstärke für England von 1,456,350 Mann. Nach einem Bericht der "London Times", der kürzlich in dieser Spalte zitiert wurde, fehlen aber wenigstens 10 Prozent, was die Gesamtstärke auf 1,300,000 Mann reduzieren würde. Von diesen haben 25 Divisionen England ausgehende, vermaßen sie verlassen und werden sie in Anbetracht der irischen Lage und möglicher Einfallstriche nie verlassen können. Andere 18 Divisionen sind, wie die "Times" gleichfalls feststellte, auf Indien, Afrika, Ägypten und Saloniki verteilt, so daß für die westliche Front noch 40 Divisionen, etwa 600,000 bis 700,000 Mann übrig bleibt.

Von nicht minder großem Interesse sind die deutschen Verhältnisse bis zum 1. Mai. Eine überzählige Verteilung wurde in der "London Times" von dem als zuverlässig bekannt gemordenen Militärfachrittel "Wielles Writches" veröffentlicht. Die folgenden Zahlen dürften mit Ausnahme kleiner Uebertreibungen beim Unterschätzen richtig sein.

Die deutschen Gesamtverluste bis zum 1. April betragen danach 2,730,917 Mann. Von diesen wurden in der Schlacht getötet oder erlagen den erkrankten Wunden 642,531 Mann, 38,906 — ein außerordentlich geringer Prozentsatz — erlagen Krankheiten, 129,981 sind Gefangene und 203,597 werden berrnnt und sind größtenteils auch gefangen. Die Zahl der Schwerverwundeten beträgt 272,585, die der Leichtverwundeten 988,827. "Wielles Writches" schätzte daraus auf einen absoluten Gesamtverlust von 1,450,000 Mann, eine Zahl, die angesichts der außerordentlich großen Zahl von Gefangenen im Deutschen Heere wahrscheinlich um einige Hunderttausende zu hoch gerät.

Sicher ist, daß diese Verluste durch die Rekrutierungen im Jahre 1914, 1915 und 1916 vollständig ersetzt werden können.

Höhe der Kriegsverluste sollen festgestellt werden.

SIGNALS IN THE OPEN RAILROAD SPEED MANIA DEAD

Even the Twentieth Century Limited is Running on a Slower Schedule Now.

Experts Advocate Their Transference to Cab. Engineers All Too Frequently, Through No Fault of Theirs, Fall to Meet Correctly the Signs Meant for Their Guidance.

As a matter of justice to the operating officers of our great railroad systems the public should be made more familiar with the block signal problem for the prevention of collisions. If they were better informed there would be less unfair criticism, is the point made in a communication to the New York Times.

The recent fatal wreck on the New York Central line in Ohio and the one that preceded it a few weeks ago on the New Haven line both occurred on railroads that have spent enormous sums of money to provide modern signal systems to prevent just such catastrophes. They not only are entitled to credit for keeping up to date in providing these safety precautions, but the public should also appreciate the fact that the railroad world has been searching diligently for years for a method of eliminating the human element so far as possible in the operation of these safety devices.

For years many minds have been working, and many are still working, to develop a block system that would place the signals in the cab of the locomotive instead of alongside of the track, where the engineer often fails correctly to interpret them because of fog or storm or of some mental or physical failure of his own.

They have also, through their signal engineers and inventors generally, been trying to find an automatic train-stop that would be safe and reliable, and which would provide a "service application" instead of an "emergency application" of the brakes.

It took many years to develop the automatic brake and the automatic stop block system to its present state of efficiency, and it is only a matter, perhaps, of a short time until American inventive genius will transfer to Austria-Hungary in 1910 and another in 1911, and three sent to Spain in 1913, no exports of steam locomotives to the continent are revealed by the official statistics of the United States for the half decade ending June 30, 1914. In the twelve months following that date, however—a period practically coincident with the first year of the present European war—31 American-made locomotives were shipped to France, nine to Greece, ten to Serbia, and five to European Russia. Twenty steam locomotives were exported to Asiatic Russia in the same period.

In 1913, our banner year, the world took 662, or $6,442,674 worth. Now that the war is on both belligerents and neutrals look to Uncle Sam even for more. One firm alone has received an order for 25 large freight locomotives for Spain, and 15 passenger locomotives for Serbia.

Canadian Railroad Mileage. The annual report of the Dominion of Canada controller of railroad statistics for the fiscal year 1914, recently made public, states that the aggregate of railway mileage officially reported as being in operation on June 30, 1914, was 89,795, or 1,492 miles more than on the corresponding date of 1913. The capitalization of Canadian roads increased by $276,990,069 during the year, and is now nearing the $2,000,000,000 mark; the exact figure being $1,808,820,761.

ONE HUNDRED LEAVE THE FARM

OPPORTUNITY FOR THE BOYS WHO LIVE ON FARMS OPENS ITS ARMS TO THEM

BEGINNING GREAT WORK NOW

The Michigan Agricultural College Broadens its Field of Work to Reach the Greatest Number.

East Lansing—One hundred farm boys of Michigan will leave their farms in July. The above fact does not alarm the "Stay-on-the-Farm" advocates, however, because the hundred boys are going to the second annual Farm Boys Camp at the Michigan Agricultural College. While city boys are pitching their tents in the country, these lads will pitch their tents on the campus of Michigan's greatest center of agricultural education at East Lansing.

The experiment was first made last summer when 39 boys from 23 counties came for the first Farm Boys' Camp. The Camp was so successful, that provision will be made to accommodate one hundred boys this year.

The Farm Boys' Camp is more than a mere camp; it is a combination of School and Camp. It is a movement to give farm boys a taste of agricultural while they are still in their teens—at the age when they usually have strong tendencies to make their vocational choices. Each morning is spent at real hard study of farm problems. No books are used; the College farm and the College livestock constitute the laboratory where these boys will do their studying.

The afternoon is devoted to games, lessons in swimming and various other recreational activities. In the evening the boys gather around the campfire to listen to the leader's talks, tell stories and sing songs. There will be a leader for each group of ten boys. These leaders are teachers of agriculture in the High Schools of Michigan.

This is but another of the many innovations to be included in M. A. C.'s growing summer school which is under the supervision of Dean E. H. Ryder.

The Camp begins on July 10th and lasts ten days. Boys who are members of the Agricultural Clubs, superintended by the College are eligible and the age limits are from 12 to 16 years.

Creating a New Profession.

The new movement in rural life is creating a new profession, or, perhaps it should be said that it is regenerating an old profession, for since the beginning of the Boys' and Girls' Club movement, rural teachers and other rural leaders have been compelled to acquire a new training. They can no longer continue to merely "Keep School"; their communities are demanding some practical results in the nature of home projects connected with school work.

Last year there were 5000 boys and girls in Michigan organized into various kinds of clubs for the purpose of carrying on home project work. The number is increasing at a rapid rate. The demand for teachers, for teachers and other leaders who are equipped to direct these clubs.

The summer sessions at the Michigan Agricultural College will attempt to meet these demands for new training. A special school of instruction for club leaders will be conducted at East Lansing from July 17th to July 22nd. Those who attend this special school will be taught how to demonstrate the new cold-pack method of canning. Instruction will be given in the methods of conducting corn clubs, potato clubs, bean clubs, gardening clubs, poultry clubs, garment-making clubs, etc. The demonstrations and classes will be under the supervision of those who have charge of the club work in Michigan, assisted by one member from the department at Washington.

Dean E. H. Ryder of the Summer School announces that this special school of instruction for club leaders is to be conducted without cost to those who attend. The only expense will be for board. Ten dollars will be sufficient to permit anyone to take advantage of this special school for community builders.
