"FOOTBALL AND LIFE"

Football has become one of our great national games. Some think it a brutal game and there was some reason for this complaint a few years ago. But the game as it is played today is a great game. There are great possibilities in it for the demonstration of skill of body and alertness of brain.

There is a splendid similarity between the game of football and the game of life.

Next Sunday evening the pastor preaches a sermon in which he will endeavor to set forth this similarity.

The members of the High School Football squad will attend this service in a body.

Corner Stone will Be Laid November 20th

Contractor John Patterson and his men have been getting a good start this week on the foundation for the new Methodist church and definite plans are now being made for the laying of the corner stone Monday, November 20th.

Bishop Theodore S. Henderson, resident bishop of Michigan, has promised to be present on that occasion and will make two addresses, one to the young people in the afternoon and a public address in the evening. An interesting program is being prepared for both afternoon and evening, which will be participated in by a number of visiting churches from neighboring cities.

The last services will be held in the tabernacle next Sunday and early next week the temporary structure will be taken down. Rev. Frank M. Field will celebrate the occasion of the farewell to the tabernacle with a special sermon next Sunday morning on "Lessons God Teaches Us by the Tabernacle." Beginning with November 13th, all the usual Sunday services of the Methodist church will be held in the village hall.

The Building Committee made a trip to Detroit on Thursday of last week and selected the face brick to be used in the new church. They inspected several buildings, including one of the new school buildings, in which the brick were used which they finally selected.

The architect, W. E. N. Hunter of Detroit, was in Plymouth on Wednesday of this week, establishing the grade and settling in laying out the building.

C. E. Maynard returned Sunday from Detroit, where he has been taking business and visiting his daughter and son.

Premium Lists For Poultry Show Are Out

The premium lists for the first annual poultry and pet stock show to be given by the Plymouth Poultry and Pet Stock Association, December 5, 6, 7, 8, are now ready for distribution. The booklet contains forty pages besides the cover and gives complete information as to the rules of the show, classification and the special premiums offered by the association and the merchants of Plymouth. The officers of the association feel that the liberal premiums which have been placed upon the various classes of birds are a little more attractive than is generally offered by the smaller shows, and that there will be a large number of foreign exhibitors at the coming show. In fact a number of fanciers in neighboring towns have already signified their intention of making an exhibit at the show. Everybody in Plymouth can assist in making the first poultry and pet stock show ever held in this village a great success by simply being a booster at every opportunity. Anyone desiring a premium list can secure one by writing the secretary, R. S. Todd or applying at the mail office.

Campbell-Shaw

In the presence of 40 guests a very pretty wedding was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Shaw, 404 Philadelphia west, Saturday, Oct. 28, at 5 p. m., when their daughter, Helen Irene, was united in marriage to J. Maurice Campbell. Rev. F. B. Haggard of the Warren Avenue Baptist church performed the ceremony. The bride was attired in a dainty gown of mist gray tulle and Georgette crepe, trimmed with tiny pink rose buds, and carried a bouquet of pink and white roses. She was attended by Miss Marjorie Travis, who wore a fall silk gown, and carried pink roses. The groom was attended by his brother, Eugene R. Campbell, of Chicago. The wedding march was played by Miss Grace Campbell. After the ceremony a reception was held and an elaborate buffet luncheon was served. Among the out-of-town guests were Dr. and Mrs. S. E. Campbell of Plymouth, parents of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Shaw of Fenton and Mrs. Helen Hart of Flint, grandparents of the bride; also Mrs. E. M. Campbell of Edmescon, N. Y., grandmother of the groom. Mr. and Mrs. Campbell will be at home after Nov. 15 at 431 Wilson avenue.—Detroit Tribune.

Eugene Lombard is very ill at his home on East Ann Arbor street.

Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Weed celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary Saturday, November 4th.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Nellie Smith of this place to Guy Dunn of Detroit, which took place in Detroit, Friday, October 27th. Mrs. Dunn is staying with her mother, Mrs. Henry Broadfoot for a short time, but they expect to make their home in Detroit. They have the best wishes of their friends for a happy married life.

Several functions have been given during the past two weeks in honor of Mrs. Myron Beals. Last Saturday evening Mrs. Beals Pearl and Winnie Little and Miss Helen VanDeCar entertained at the former's home on Mill street. About twenty guests were present and Mrs. Beals was presented with a handsome china tea set.

Milton B. Burroughs, 45 years old, a cement contractor of Northville, and well known in Plymouth was killed and his wife badly injured at Grand River avenue and the Wayne county line, late last Saturday night when their car turned turtle. It is thought that Mr. Burroughs attempted to drive past a car standing at the side of the road, and as he drove past the wheels caught in the interurban tracks. Mr. Burroughs had many friends in Plymouth who sincerely regret his untimely death. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon, and a number from here were in attendance.

DRYS WIN STATE; HOME RULE LOST IN RECORD VOTE

UP-STATE GOES HEAVILY AGAINST ALL WET ISSUES

UPPER PENINSULA VOTES DRY

Prohibitionists Jubilant as Counties Rolled Up Majority Exceeding Their Expectations

Detroit—From the moment the returns began to roll in from up the state the prohibition cause took on an aspect of victory that exceeded the expectation of the most ardent of the "drys" as voiced in the campaign. It was evident from early returns that many of the supposedly "wet" strongholds were polling a large number of votes for prohibition. The "wet" vote in the copper counties was a distinct disappointment to the home rule adherents.

Wets Win in Detroit. Wayne county and Detroit particularly was relied upon by the "wets" to register in a whopper vote in favor of home rule and against the prohibition amendment. The small majority received by the wets in Detroit was a surprise to all the campaign managers.

Towns Vote Dry. Grand Rapids went on record for a dry Michigan as did also Battle Creek and Jackson. The first returns to reach the ranks of the "drys" at their headquarters the night of election was the report from Northville. The vote from Northville endorsed prohibition by 426 to 145, while the home rule amendment was defeated 410 to 128.

First returns from Oakland county increased the majority in favor of a dry state. Farmington gave a majority of 200 for prohibition and the majority against home rule was 186. Holly expressed itself for the dry amendment by 218 majority and buried the home rule amendment by 217 votes. The township of Brandon, in Oakland county, went for the dry amendment by 54 and against the liquor interest measure by 113.

REPUBLICAN TICKET WINS IN STATE

ALBERT E. SLEEPER

Returns on governor show that Albert E. Sleeper, republican candidate, carried the state by a slightly larger margin than did Mr. Hughes. Final returns indicated it was an easy election for Lieutenant-Governor Loren D. Dickinson, of Charlotte, to succeed himself.

Governor-elect Albert E. Sleeper, tired from his arduous campaign, and hardly smiling, so weary was he, arrived in Detroit Tuesday night after his election was absolutely assured.

Sleeper Delighted. "I am delighted," he said, "delighted beyond words. I had faith in the republican party and it has been justified both as to our next president and our state ticket. We're all going through. The people of Michigan will find that neither I nor my colleagues on the state ticket will be ungrateful of the honor they have given us, and they will find that we shall carry out our promises of the best government of which we are capable."

MARX ELECTED MAYOR FOR THIRD TERM

Detroit—Oscar B. Marx was elected Tuesday to serve his third term as mayor. His majority over Judge Conroy was 10,000.

PRESIDENTIAL NOMINEES CAST BALLOTS EARLY

Hughes Votes in Laundry at 7 a. m. Wilson in Old Engine House. New York—Charles E. Hughes cast his vote at 7:05 o'clock Tuesday morning in a small laundry at 716 Eighth avenue, almost directly back of the hotel where he made his headquarters during the campaign. His ballot was No. 12. When his attention was called to this, the republican candidate said "12" is his lucky number. "And I was born on Friday, too," he added. Mr. Hughes went to the polls before breakfast. When he saw the weather conditions indicating a clear, cool day, he remarked, "It looks like a good republican day."

RECORD VOTE CAST IN DETROIT

Heaviest Vote Polled in the City's History.

Detroit—By far the heaviest voting in the history of Detroit occurred at Tuesday's election when more than 120,000 ballots were cast, while fully 10,000 more voters were disfranchised, it is estimated, through irregularities in registration, failure to register, and through reluctance to stand in the long lines waiting at most of the precinct booths during the late afternoon and the evening hours.

When the polls closed at 9 o'clock scores of voting booths had long lines of voters waiting outside, but through a late ruling of the election commission, ropes were thrown around the waiting lines, all who had arrived before 9 o'clock being placed within the ropes, and allowed to vote as fast as room could be made for them in the booth. At some of the booths, scores profited by that ruling.

Many Voters Delayed. Insufficient instructions from the election commission, failure of supervisors and inspectors to appear, improper allotment of ballots and other incidents of the sort, caused a marked delay in the voting in a large number of precincts in the city Tuesday.

In the First district, Fourth ward, the delay threatened for a time to disfranchise many voters, who it appeared, would not be able to cast their votes before the polls closed. This ward had a registration of more than 800. Outside the booth a line extended half a block. After the polls opened in this precinct, about an hour and a half after the prescribed time, the voters were handled slowly, it requiring considerable time to give out the ballots.

For some time after the polls were supposed to open confusion reigned in this precinct. The only member of the election board to appear was Thomas G. Crag, registrar. The election commission, it appeared, had not provided inspectors to take the places of the former board, E. F. Riley, William J. Stapleton, A. Y. Ladue, James Stapleton and M. Doyle, who registered three weeks ago because extra clerks and supervisors were refused.

Ballots Were Missing. The election commission was immediately notified and inspectors, clerks and supervisors were obtained. Then when it was announced the scores who were waiting outside could begin voting, it was discovered one form of ballot was missing and in its place was a duplicate ballot. The polls were closed again until the ballots were secured.

Unfamiliarity with their work caused considerable confusion among members of the election board at the opening of the polls in numerous districts. In several precincts the policemen instructed the men on various points until the election commission could be consulted. In several of the districts an inspector or supervisor failed to show up, with the result that the commission was appealed to.

There was little evidence of crooked work. Challengers, with lists of names of those who registered and were under suspicion, stood by. There were a large number of challenges against those registered whose addresses were found inaccurate through the registry department of the United States mails. These men were sworn in and their votes accepted.

NOISY CROWDS GREET DETROIT ELECTION NIGHT

Detroit's election night voice was a squawking, rattling, ringing, shrieking bedlam that rose over streets seething with roisters, and filled with masses watching the screened election returns.

It was a cheerful crowd under its dinning and clamoring surface. It was an earnest crowd, else in its din the human voice added little to the total volume. It was a crowd that rang bells, tooted horns, rattled rattlers and sounded squawkers. Although divided, its attitude was orderly.

When the first returns from New York flickered at late twilight on big canvas screens in the downtown section announcing that Charles Evans Hughes, republican presidential candidate, had carried that state, a crowd of approximately 50,000 election watchers jammed every available inch of space within viewing distance of the screens.

President of Drys Wires "Billy" Sunday.

Predicting the state dry by at least 75,000 and possibly more, Richard H. Scott, president of Michigan Anti-Saloon league, called hearing returns at 2 o'clock this morning. Before he went home he sent this telegram: "William A. Sunday, Winona Lake, Ind. "Returns indicate Michigan gives prohibition amendment 75,000 majority. Home rule defeated by even larger majority. Michigan owes you a debt of gratitude it can never pay. "RICHARD H. SCOTT."

At the same time Grant Hudson, reviewing the result of the election, predicted national prohibition within three years.

GOVERNORS OF THIRTY-FIVE STATES IN WINNERS' LIST

Results of Contests Are Surprise to Many Office Holders.

Robinson, (R). Wisconsin—Emanuel L. Phillip (R).

MARYLAND FOR WILSON BY LARGE PLURALITY Baltimore—President Wilson carried Maryland by a plurality estimated at 16,510, but Congressman David J. Lewis, "father of the parcel post," was defeated in the contest for the United States senatorship by Dr. Joseph I. France, whose estimated plurality was 6,367. Lewis' defeat was attributed largely to the openly expressed hostility of the democratic organization in Baltimore and to the anti-prohibitionists because of his vote in congress for a national prohibition amendment. Baltimore, which gave President Wilson 9,300 plurality, gave Dr. France 9,782 plurality.

Four democratic and two republican congressmen were elected, a republican gain of one. In addition to the five incumbents, Frederick N. Zilman, of Cumberland, republican, was elected from the sixth district, formerly represented by Mr. Lewis.

Prohibition was defeated in seven of the 11 localities in which the proposition was voted upon in the state. Baltimore gave a majority of 43,000 against it. Annapolis rejected it by 500, while Havre De Grace, at which racing is conducted, went "dry" by 23 votes. Hagerstown voted "dry." The budget amendment to the state constitution was adopted by about 90,000 majority.

DEMOCRATS SWEEP STATE OF UTAH

Salt Lake—Woodrow Wilson has carried Utah by about 15,000 plurality. United States Senator George Sutherland, republican, has been defeated by Judge William H. King. Simon Bamberger, democrat, has been elected governor, and the entire democratic state ticket swept the state. Both democratic candidates for congress were elected. Mr. Bamberger is the first democrat and the first non-Mormon to be elected governor of Utah. Glenn Miller, republican state chairman, said: "President Wilson has carried the state by more than 5,000, and the indications are that Senator Sutherland is beaten. We hope to save the governor."

PRESIDENT WINS IN OHIO

Cincinnati—President Wilson appeared to have a good lead in Ohio. His plurality over Mr. Hughes may run over 60,000. All doubt that Mr. Wilson had carried the state was removed Wednesday morning, when the republican state headquarters conceded the state to the president.

WOMEN REAP BIG CROP IN ELECTION; SOCIALISTS ALSO.

Miss Jeanette Rankin, Montana suffragist will be the first woman congress "man." Drys carry Michigan, Nebraska, Montana, South Dakota; Iowa, Maryland, Missouri and probably California. Socialists elect two representatives—Myer London, of New York, and Berger, of Milwaukee, and possibly also Hillquit and Linn in New York. This is the first time more than one socialist has sat in congress. South Dakota grants woman the ballot.

WOMEN REAP BIG CROP IN ELECTION; SOCIALISTS ALSO.

When the president emerged the students again cheered him and called "speech, speech, speech" and professors. At the entrance of the Princeton campus a drummer stood awaiting the president's coming, and as his automobile drove up the drummer beat a tattoo. Almost instantly students appeared from every direction. They swarmed over the campus and rushed toward the voting place. As Mr. Wilson alighted from his automobile the Princeton yell went up with a resounding "Wilson, Wilson, Wilson" at the end. When the president emerged the students again cheered him and called "speech, speech, speech"

LIBRARY USED BY PEOPLE OF STATE

Report Shows Many Books Have Been Circulated.

MAY BE KEPT SIX MONTHS

Schools, Church Societies, Lodges and Other Organizations, Take Advantage of Opportunity Offered at Capital.

Lansing—The Michigan state library comprises many thousand volumes, but the advantages which these books offer to the state outside of the citizens of Lansing, capital employees and members of the legislature are little known to many people.

As a matter of fact, however, during the past 19 months 10,238 books were sent out to 172 towns in the state in the form of traveling libraries. These traveling libraries are sent not only to schools, but to church young people's societies, lodges, clubs and other like organizations.

The state library receives 341 current periodicals and 39 daily newspapers. These are placed in the reading room. Upon a count taken by one of the members of the library staff, during 19 months, it was found that 5,925 people came in to read and that 3,100 were from M. A. C.

A great amount of work has been done along the line of the traveling libraries. Schools, Sunday and day, Epworth leagues, granges, and other associations make regular application for the books. Printed lists are sent out and selection may be made from these. Then the books are sent by freight. The freight charges are paid both ways by the borrower. The library may be kept from three to six months. Every superintendent of schools has the privilege of getting books. These are general libraries.

Of the 232 special libraries sent to the study clubs of the state during the last biennial period, 109 were to women's clubs, 20 to schools, ten to granges and miscellaneous study clubs, and three to factories and stores, totaling in all 6,925 books, 602 pamphlets, 236 clippings. The pamphlets and clippings were circulated during the last year only, as these collections were not started until after the special library work of the first year was practically finished.

Another feature of the work that the library is adopting is that of circulating framed and unframed pictures. The report shows that 4,218 have been sent out in 19 months. The library has made a specialty of lantern cards for the use of colleges and lectures, 700 of which are circulating.

Raps State High Schools.

As a result of examinations required of every freshman entering the Michigan Agricultural college, Prof. W. W. Johnson, head of the department of English, has issued a statement condemning the preparatory work being done in the state high schools.

Professor Johnson maintains that the M. A. C. freshmen are no exception to the general rule, for other colleges are reporting the same difficulty. "Students are being turned out, supposedly ready for college, who cannot spell the ordinary English words, not alone knowing where to use them."

Out of 543 freshmen, 215 were found to be deficient in spelling and 140 in grammar. Fifty-eight of this number were girls.

3,389 Accidents in State.

According to the statistical report of the industrial accident board for October, the total number of accidents reported during the month was 3,389. Of this number 1,541 brought compensation. Of these 467 were fatal, 144 resulted in permanent partial disability, and 1,331 in temporary total disability, exceeding two weeks.

The total sum paid in compensation to injured workmen, or their dependents, was $164,776.67.

Michigan to Get Guard Money.

El Paso, Tex.—Michigan troops have been accepted as part of the National Guard of the United States and are entitled to a portion of the money allowed for the support of such organizations. Word to that effect is contained in official notification to Gen. John P. Kirk and may be considered a compliment to the organization and the state it represents.

Under the law of June 3, 1916, a provision is made that only such states as are efficient shall be entitled to financial assistance from the government in supporting their military units. The war department is made the sole judge of this efficiency, and the standard is so high that only the best will get in under the wire.

FOILS ELOPEMENT OF AGED LOVERS

Maid of 78 and Swain of 92 Are Pursued by Parent With Shotgun.

Beaver Falls, Pa.—Love's young dream was shattered the other day by an irate father with a shotgun.

As Williams was strangled by the angry monogamist the coy maiden fainted. Her father was thoroughly wrapped up in his job, however, and he rained blows on the lover and paid no attention to his daughter's plight.

Looked Like a Railroad Accident.

Then the father dragged home his blushing daughter, who was weeping bitterly.

The elopement had been arranged on the conventional romantic model. Caleb had been aware that Williams was trying to win his daughter and he frowned on the match.

CAPTAIN GOT NEW TROUSERS

Incident That Has More Than a Touch of Comedy Occurred on the Isonzo Front.

How near tragedy and comedy are in the happenings along the battle line is shown by this incident of the fighting on the Isonzo front.

A Caproni fighting aeroplane that had gone from the Italian side was hit by the antiaircraft guns and fell within the Austrian lines.

Captain Ameghino, the captured flyer, was inconceivable, and to an Austrian officer who sympathized with him he said:

"My poor comrade will be buried and I cannot even pay him my last respects—not in this year."

"If that is all," remarked the Austrian, "well soon mend that." And, after obtaining permission, he went up to his Fokker machine and threw a letter into the Italian line, acquainting them with the fact, and requesting "a pair of new trousers for Captain Ameghino."

Sure enough, an hour or so later there was an Italian machine high in the air, and a package dropped that contained a laurel wreath for the dead and a pair of trousers for the living.

David Hard Hit. The late Richard Harding Davis, bluff and hearty, detested a snob, and whenever a snob's head popped up he took a whack at it.

A guest at one of his dinners at Crossroads farm, his estate near New York, made a snobbish remark about a son of the Revolution who had married a chorus girl of great beauty and talent.

Mr. Davis glared at his guest. His ruddy face grew redder. Then he said: "You, my boy, are one of those snobs who think the social scale is life's only reliable weighing machine!"—New York Globe.

Let Contracts for Water System Improvements

The village council met in regular session Monday evening with all the members present. Among the most important matters that were before the council was the opening of the bids and awarding the contracts for the erection of a building in which to house the pumps and motors for the new additions to our water system, and the pumps and motors and the necessary connections pertaining thereto. There were two bidders for the erection of the building. Contractor J. H. Patterson being the lowest bidder, was awarded the contract for $1,185. Charles McIntosh of Detroit, was awarded the contract for the pumps, motors, etc., for $2,050, he being the lowest bidder of the two bids received.

Village Treasurer R. R. Parrott reported a number of delinquent light and water takers that had not responded to the notices that had been sent out to settle these accounts. Water Commissioner Chilson was instructed to turn off the water immediately on all delinquents.

The matter of making arrangements for the blowing of the new electric fire siren, which has been installed on the bell tower at the rear of the village hall, was discussed at some length.

Manager Allman of the Michigan State Telephone Co., was present and explained that the telephone company was not anxious to assume the responsibility of turning in the alarms, but was willing to make any reasonable proposition to his company that the council might suggest. The matter was finally left to the fire committee and Chief Hearn to take the matter up with Manager Allman. A telephone has been placed in each one of the fire houses and firemen calling central to locate fires will be answered from these numbers. Others calling to find out the location of a fire will be answered, "I don't know," by central. This is done to avoid confusion at this time, when everyone wants to know at the same time where the fire is. It is simply impossible for the operator to give this service, which is really not a part of the service, but a courtesy extended by the telephone company. Please bear this in mind whenever there is a fire.

Woman's Literary Club Meet

The Woman's Literary Club met at the home of Mrs. J. H. Patterson last Friday afternoon. About thirty-five members and several visitors were present. The vice president, Mrs. C. H. Bennett, called the meeting to order at the regular order and presided over the business session. It was voted at this time to again send a subscription to the Belgian Relief fund. Former president of the club, Mrs. J. J. Travis of Ann Arbor, was one of the guests of the afternoon, and at the close of the business meeting, Mrs. C. H. Bennett in a pleasing manner and fitting words, presented Mrs. Travis with a silver vase, as a slight token of the love and esteem in which she is held by the members of the club. After a short intermission Mrs. C. L. Wilcox, chairman of the division, took charge of the afternoon's program. A piano solo with encore was rendered by Mrs. L. Thomas, then followed the delegate's report. This was given by the president, Mrs. R. E. Cooper, who returned only a few days ago from the State Federation of Women's Clubs held in Jackson. This report was instructive and interesting. Mrs. Cooper brought back many messages from the work in the various departments and when she had finished, the ladies almost felt that they too, had attended the Federation. The meeting closed with a rising vote of thanks to the delegate for her splendid report. The next meeting will be held Friday afternoon, Nov. 17th, at the home of Mrs. C. L. Wilcox.

HAD NO USE FOR MAHOGANY

When First Introduced into England Workmen Complained of the Hardness of the Wood.

Like the use of a great many of the factors connected with the arts and the sciences, the discovery of the beauty of the grain of mahogany for furniture was accidental, says a London contemporary. The story goes that a certain West Indian captain who had brought back to England some planks of mahogany as ballast, decided to give the wood to his brother, a Doctor Gibbons, then building a house on King street, Covent Garden. But the planks were so hard that the carpenters objected, and the plan for using them fell through.

Some time later Mrs. Gibbons wanted a small box made, and the doctor sent the mahogany to a cabinetmaker. In his turn the cabinetmaker objected to the hardness of the wood, but the doctor persisted so much in his request that the order was finally executed.

The finished box polished so nicely that the doctor ordered a bureau made of the same wood. The cabinetmaker displayed that in his shop window before delivering it. The duchess of Buckingham saw it and begged enough wood from the doctor to have it duplicated, and mahogany furniture soon after came into favor.—Building Age.

Interned Soldiers Gain in Health.

The rapid recovery of patients who are prisoners of war in Switzerland is due to the good air, excellent nursing, and abundant nourishing food furnished them. At a conference of Swiss health officials held at Olten it was stated that the general health conditions of the 12,000 interned British, Belgian, French and German soldiers had so improved that it would be necessary to deal with the question of finding them some occupation. For surgical and orthopedic cases a sanatorium is being fitted up at Lucerne, where men of each nationality will be brought for treatment. The only other exception will be at Leysin, where 800 French and 100 British tubercular patients are being treated. For students among the interned, courses of study are being arranged, and later they will be permitted to enter Swiss universities.

METHODIST
Rev. Frank M. Field, Pastor.
The last services in the tabernacle will be held next Sunday morning and evening, as the tabernacle is to be torn down next week. We are hoping to have routing, well attended services for this farewell to the temporary sanctuary which has housed our services since the misfortune of losing our church. The pastor will preach on "Lessons God Teaches Us by the Tabernacle," at the morning service, 10 o'clock. Five minute story for the boys and girls before the regular sermon, "The Knotted Handkerchief." Sunday-school at 11:20. Epworth League at 6 o'clock. Evening gospel service at 7 o'clock. Sermon on "How a Preacher Made a City Happy." Come and worship with us this last Sunday in the Tabernacle.

BIBLE STUDENTS
Services as usual for Sunday, Nov. 12 at 2 p. m. Ten minute talk by David Birch. Topic, "The Passing of a Great Man." Berean at 3 o'clock, led by A. K. Dolph. Topic, "The Deliverance and Exaltation of the Church," continued. Wednesday and Friday evening meetings as usual. How sad that a great man like William Sunday through lack of proper study and over ambition should be led on and on in his imaginative genius until he persuades himself to believe and teach an abominable error, viz, that the wages of sin is life in torment somewhere. The Bible says with no symbolism attached, "The wages of sin is death," Rom. 6:23. Can a lasting life in torment end in a death?

FORD
THE UNIVERSAL CAR

Three strong reasons urge you to buy the Ford car: First, because of its record of satisfactory service to more than fifteen hundred thousand owners; Second, because of the reliability of the Company which makes it; Third, because of its large radiator and enclosed fan, streamline hood, crown fenders front and rear, black finish, nickel trimmings, it is most attractive in appearance. To these must be added its wonderful economy in operation and maintenance—about two cents a mile; likewise the fact that by reason of its simplicity in construction anyone can operate and care for it. Nine thousand Ford agents make Ford service as universal as the car. Touring Car $360, Runabout $345, Coupelet $505, Town Car $595, Sedan $645—f. o. b. Detroit. On sale at

The Lone Star Ranger

A Romance of the Old Fighting Stock on the Texas Border

By ZANE GREY

SYNOPSIS.

Buck Duane, inheriting blood lust from his father, kills a lion-hearted "bad man" who is bent on killing Duane. To escape the law, Buck goes to the wild country inhabited by outlaws. He has just met one and is invited to form a partnership for better or worse. He accepts. They have trouble at once. Stevens dies from a bullet wound. Buck enters the camp of Bland's gang and wounds an outlaw who tries to kill him.

CHAPTER V.

Duane looked around him for a book or a paper, anything to read; but all the printed matter he could find consisted of a few words on cartridge boxes and an advertisement on the back of a tobacco pouch. There seemed to be nothing for him to do. He had rested; he did not want to lie down any more. He began to walk to and fro from one end of the room to the other. And as he walked he fell into the lately acquired habit of brooding over his misfortune.

Suddenly he straightened up with a jerk. Unconsciously he had drawn his gun. Standing there with the bright, cold weapon in his hand, he looked at it in consternation. How had he come to draw it? It might have come from a subtle sense, scarcely thought of at all, of the late, close and inevitable relation between that weapon and himself. He was amazed to find that, bitter as he had grown of late, the desire to live burned strong in him. Life certainly held no bright prospects for him. Already he had begun to despair of ever getting back to his home. But to give up like a white-hearted coward, to let himself be handcuffed and jailed, to run from a drunken, bragging cowboy, or be shot in cold blood by some border brute who merely wanted to add another notch to his gun—these things were impossible for Duane because there was in him the temper to fight.

In that hour he yielded, only to fate and the spirit within him. Hereafter this gun must be a living part of him. Right then and there he returned to a practice he had long discontinued—the draw. It was now a stern, bitter, deadly business with him. He did not need to fire the gun, for accuracy was a gift and had become assured. Swiftly on the draw, however, could be improved, and he set himself to acquire the limit of speed possible to any man. He stood still in his tracks; he paced the room; he sat down, lay down, put himself in awkward positions; and from every position he practiced throwing his gun—practiced it till he was hot and tired and his arm ached and his hand burned. That practice he determined to keep up every day. It was one thing, at least, that would help pass the weary hours.

Later he went outdoors to the cooler shade of the cottonwoods. From this point he could see a good deal of the valley. Under different circumstances, Duane felt that he would have enjoyed such a beautiful spot. He saw a good many Mexicans, who, of course, were hand and glove with Bland. Also he saw enormous flat-boats, crude of structure, moored along the banks of the river. The Rio Grande rolled away between high bluffs. A cable, sagging deep in the middle, was stretched over the wide yellow stream, and an old scow, evidently used as a ferry, lay anchored on the far shore.

The valley was an ideal retreat for an outlaw band operating on a big scale. Pursuit scarcely need be feared over the broken trails of the Rim Rock. And the open end of the valley could be defended against almost any number of men coming down the river.

Duane must have idled considerable time up on the hill, for when he returned to the shack Euchre was busily engaged around the camp-fire. "Wal, glad to see you ain't so pale about the gills as you was," he said, by the way of greeting. "Pitch in an' we'll soon have grub ready. There's shore one conollin' fact round this here camp."

"What's that?" asked Duane. "Plenty of good juicy beef to eat. An' it doesn't cost a short bit."

"But it costs hard rides and trouble, bad conscience, and life, too, doesn't it?"

"I ain't shore about the bad conscience. Mine never bothered me none. An' as for life, why, that's cheap in Texas."

"Who is Bland?" asked Duane, quickly changing the subject. "What do you know about him?"

"We don't know who he is or where he lives from," replied Euchre. "There's always been somethin' to interest the gang. He must have been a young man when he struck Texas. Now he's middle-aged. I remember how years ago he was soft-spoken an' not rough in talk or act like he is now. Bland ain't likely his right name. He knows a lot. He can doctor you, an' he's shore a knowin' feller with tools. He's the kind that rules men. Outlaws are always ridin' in here to join his gang, an' if it hadn't been for the gamblin' an' gun-play he'd have a thousand men around him."

"How many in his gang now?" "I reckon there's short of a hundred now. The number varies. Then Bland has several small camps up an' down the river. Also he has men back on the cattle-ranges."

"How does he control such a big force?" asked Duane. "Especially when his band's composed of bad men. Luke Stevens said he had no use for Bland. An' I heard once somewhere that Bland was a devil."

"That's it. He is a devil. He's as hard as flint, violent in temper, never made any friends except his right-hand men, Dave Hugg an' Chess Alloway. Bland 'll shoot at a wink. He's killed a lot of fellers, an' some fer nothin'. The reason that outlaws gather round him an' stick is because he's a safe refuge, an' then he's well heeled. Bland is rich. They say he has a hundred thousand pesos hid somewhere, an' lots of gold. But he's free with money. He gambles when he's not off with a shipment of cattle. He throws money around! An' the fact is there's always plenty of money where he is. That's what holds the gang. Dirty, bloody money!"

"It's a wonder he hasn't been killed. All these years on the border!" exclaimed Duane.

"Wal," replied Euchre, dryly, "he's been quicker on the draw than the other fellers who hankered to kill him, that's all."

Euchre's reply rather chilled Duane's interest for the moment. Such remarks always made his mind resolve round facts pertaining to himself.

"Speakin' of this here swift wrist game," went on Euchre, "there's been considerable talk in camp about your throwin' of a gun. I heard Bland say this afternoon—an' he said it serious-like an' speculative—that he'd never seen your equal. All the fellers who seen you meet Bonomer had somethin' to say. An' they all shut up when Bland told who an' what your dad was. Pears to me I once seen your dad in a gun-scripe over at Santone, years ago. Wal, I put my ear in to-day among the fellers, an' I says: "What all you looked gents? Did young Duane budge an' inch when Bonomer roarin' out, blood in his eye? Wasn't he cool an' quiet, steady of lips, an' weren't his eyes readin' Bonomer's mind? An' that lightnin' draw—can't you all see that's a family gift?"

Euchre's narrow eyes twinkled, and he gave the dough he was rolling a slap with his flour-whitened hand. Manifestly he had proclaimed himself a champion and partner of Duane's, with all the pride an' old man could feel in a young one whom he admired.

"Wal," he resumed, presently, "that's your introduction to the border. Buck. An' your card was a high trump. You'll be led severely alone by real gun-fighters an' men like Bland, Alloway, Rugg, an' the bosses of the other gangs. After all, these real men are men, you know, an' unless you cross them they're no more likely to interfere with you than you are with them."

"The only feller who's goin' to put a close eye on you is Benson. He runs the store an' sells drinks. The gang calls him Jackrabbit Benson, because he's always got his eye peeled an' his ears cocked."

"Bland's not here tonight. He left to-day on one of his trips, takin' Alloway an' some others. But his other man, Rugg, he's here. Rugg's the little bow-legged man with half of his face shot off. He's one-eyed. But he can shore see out of the one he's got. An' there's Hardin. You know him? He's got an outlaw gang as big as Bland's."

Euchre went on calling Duane's attention to other men of the band. Any one of them would have been a marked man in a respectable crowd. Here each took his place with more or less distinction, according to the record of his past wild prowess and his present possibilities. Duane, realizing that he was tolerated there, received in careless spirit by this terrible class of outcasts, experienced a feeling of revulsion that amounted almost to horror. Was his being there not an ugly dream? What had he in common with such ruffians? Then in a flash of memory came the painful proof—he was a criminal in sight of Texas law; he, too, was an outcast.

CHAPTER VI.

Next morning Duane found that a moody and deponent spell had fastened on him. Wishing to be alone, he went out and walked a trail leading round the river bluff. He thought and thought. After a while he made out that the trouble with him probably was that he could not resign himself to his fate. He cared vastly more, he discovered, for what he considered honor and integrity than he did for life. He saw that it was bad for him to be alone. But, it appeared, lonely months and perhaps years inevitably must be his.

Another thing puzzled him. In the bright light of day he could not recall the state of mind that was his at twilight or dusk or in the dark night. By day these visitations became to him what they really were—phantoms of his conscience. He could dismiss the thought of them then. He could scarcely remember or believe that this strange feat of fancy or imagination had troubled him, made him sleepless and sick

Buck's future at first appears to him to be unendurable. He wins a sort of distasteful popularity among the outlaws growing out of his dexterity with the pistol. But he loathes these men—all but Euchre, who has some good stuff in him. Then comes to Duane an opportunity to perform a great service—an opportunity to atone for the blood he has shed by helping one who needs help much. Serious complications begin to arise in this installment.

At length he determined to create interest in all that he came across and so forget himself as much as possible. He had an opportunity now to see just what the outlaw's life really was. He meant to force himself to be curious, sympathetic, clear-sighted. And he would stay there in the valley until his possibilities had been exhausted or until circumstances sent him out upon his uncertain way.

When he returned to the shack Euchre was cooking dinner. "Say, Buck, I've news for you," he said; and his tone conveyed either pride in his possession of such news or pride in Duane. "Feller named Bradley rode in this mornin'. He's heard some about you. Told about the hole of spades they put over the bullet-holes in that cowpuncher Bain you plugged. Then there was a rancher shot at a water-hole twenty miles south of Wellston. Reckon you didn't do it?"

"No, I certainly did not," replied Duane.

"Wal, you get the blame. It ain't nothing for a feller to be saddled with gun-play he never made. An', Buck, if you ever get famous, as seems likely, you'll be blamed for many a crime. The border 'll make an outlaw ab' nuder out of you. Wal, that's enough of that. I've more news. You're goin' to be popular."

"Popular? What do you mean?" "I met Bland's wife this mornin'."

She seen you the other day when you rode in. She shore wants to meet you, an' so do some of the other women in camp. They always want to meet the new fellers who've just come in. It's lonesome for women here, an' they like to hear news from the towns."

"Well, Euchre, I don't want to be impolite, but I'd rather not meet any women," rejoined Duane.

"I was afraid you wouldn't. Don't blame you much. Women are hell. I was hopin', though, you might talk a little to that poor lonesome kid."

"What kid?" inquired Duane, in surprise.

"Didn't I tell you about Jennie—the girl Bland's holdin' here?" "No. Tell me now," replied Duane, abruptly.

"Wal, I got it this way. Mebbe it's straight, an' mebbe it ain't. Some years ago Benson made a trip over the river to buy mesel an' other drinks. An' he ran across a gang of greasers with some gringo prisoners. I don't know, but I reckon there was some barterin', perhaps murderin'. Anyway, Benson fetched the girl back. She was starved an' scared half to death. She hadn't been harmed. I reckon she was then about fourteen years old. Bland seen her the kid right off and took her—bought her from Benson. You can gamble Bland didn't do that. From notions of chivalry, Kate Bland's been hard on Jennie, but she's kept Bland an' the other men from treatin' the kid shameful. Late Jennie has grown into an all-fired pretty girl, an' Kate is powerful jealous over her. I can see hell brewin' over there in Bland's cabin. That's why I wish you'd come over with me. You'd get to see Jennie, an' mebbe you could help her. I had a baby girl once, an' if she'd lived she'd be as big as Jennie now, an' I wouldn't want her here in Bland's camp."

"I'll go, Euchre. Take me over," replied Duane. He felt Euchre's eyes upon him. The old outlaw, however, had no more to say.

In the afternoon Euchre set off with Duane, and soon they reached Bland's cabin. Duane remembered it as the one where he had seen the pretty woman watching him ride by. Through the open door Duane caught a glimpse of bright Mexican blankets and rugs.

Euchre knocked upon the side of the door. "Is that you, Euchre?" asked a girl's voice, low, hesitatingly. The tone of it, rather deep and with a note of fear, struck Duane.

"Yes, it's me, Jennie. Where's Mrs. Bland?" answered Euchre. "She went over to Deger's. There's somebody sick," replied the girl.

Euchre turned and whispered something about luck. The snap of the outlaw's eyes was added significance to Duane.

"Jennie, come out or let us come in. Here's the young man I was tellin' you about," Euchre said. "Come out, Jennie, an' mebbe he'll—"

Euchre did not complete his sentence. But what he said was sufficient to bring the girl quickly. She appeared in the doorway with downcast eyes and a stain of red in her white cheek. She had a pretty, sad face and bright hair.

"Don't be bashful, Jennie," said Euchre. "You an' Duane have a chance to talk a little. Now I'll go fetch Mrs. Bland, but I won't be hurryin'."

With that Euchre went away through the cottonwoods.

"I'm glad to meet you, Miss—Miss Jennie," said Duane. "Euchre didn't mention your last name. He asked me to come over to—"

Duane's attempt at pleasantry halted short when Jennie lifted her lashes to look at him. Some kind of a shock went through Duane. Her gray eyes were beautiful, but it had not been beauty that cut short his speech. He seemed to see a tragic struggle between hope and doubt that shone in her piercing gaze. She kept looking, and Duane could not break the silence.

"It was so ordinary moment."

"What did you come here for?" she asked, at last.

"Well—Euchre thought—he wanted me to talk to you, cheer you up a bit," replied Duane, somewhat lamely. The earnest eyes embarrassed him.

"Euchre's embarrased. He's the only person in this awful place who's been good to me. But he's afraid of Bland. He said you were different. Who are you?"

Duane told her.

"You're not a robber or rustler or murderer or some bad man come here to hide?"

"No, I'm not," replied Duane, trying to smile. "I'm on the dodge. You know what that means. I got in a shooting-scrip at home and had to run off. When it blows over I hope to go back."

"Oh, I know what these outlaws are. Yes, you're different." She kept the strained gaze upon him, but hope was kindling, and the hard lines of her youthful face were softening.

Something sweet and warm stirred deep in Duane as he realized the unfortunate girl was experiencing a birth of trust in him. Then the glow began to fade; doubt once more assailed her.

"It can't be. You're only—after me, too, like Bland—like all of them."

Duane's long arms went out and his hands clasped her shoulders. He shook her.

"Look at me—straight in the eye. There are decent men. Haven't you a father—a brother?"

"They're dead—killed by raiders. We lived in Dhamit County. I was carried away," Jennie replied, hurriedly. She put up an appealing hand to him. "Forgive me. I believe—I know you're good. It was only—I live so much in fear—I'm half crazy—I've almost forgotten what good men are like. Mister Duane, you'll help me?"

"Yes, Jennie, I will. Tell me how. What must I do? Have you any plan?"

"Oh, no. But take me away."

"I'll try," said Duane, simply. "That won't be easy, though. Are you watched—kept prisoner?"

"No. I could run off lots of times. But I was afraid. I'd only have fallen into worse hands. Euchre has told me that. Mrs. Bland beats me, half starves me, but she has kept me from her husband and those other dogs. She's been as good as that, and I'm grateful. She hasn't done it for love of me, though. She's always in love. And lately she's growing jealous. I don't hear her fighting with Bland about me. Then I've heard Chess Alloway try to persuade Bland to give me to him. Duane, you must be quick if you'd save me."

"I realize that," replied he, thoughtfully. "I think myself I will be to fool Mrs. Bland. If she suspected me she'd have the whole gang of outlaws on me at once."

"She would that. You've got to be careful—and quick."

"What kind of a woman is she?" inquired Duane.

"She's—she's brazen. I've heard her with her lovers. I get drunk sometimes when Bland's away. She's got a terrible temper. She's vain."

"Wal, Kate, there's a young fellow in camp—rode in here on the dodge. Slickest hand with a gun I've seen for many a day! Magnificent chap. Bigger than any man in the valley. Just a great blue-eyed, sun-burned boy."

"Humph!" exclaimed Duane. "I'm sorry he led you to expect somebody worth seeing."

"But I'm not disappointed," she returned, archly. "Duane, are you going to stay long here in camp?"

"Yes, till I run out of money and have to move. Why?"

Mrs. Bland's face underwent one of the singular changes. The smiles and flushes and glances, all that had been coquettish about her, had lent her a certain attractiveness, almost beauty and youth. But with some powerful emotion she changed and instantly became a woman of discontent, Duane imagined, of deep, violent nature.

"I'll tell you, Duane," she said, earnestly. "I'm sure glad if you mean to bide here awhile. I'm a miserable woman, Duane. I'm an outlaw's wife, and I hate him and the life I have to lead. I'm sick for somebody to talk to. I have no children, thank God! If I had I'd not stay here. I'm sick of this hole. I'm lonely—"

Genuine emotion checked, then halted the hurried speech. She broke down and cried. Duane believed and pitied her.

"I'm sorry for you," he said. "Don't be sorry for me," she said. "That only makes me see the difference between you and me. And zest."

Euchre came up on the porch and awkwardly introduced Duane to Mrs. Bland. She was young, probably not over twenty-five, and not quite so prepossessing at close range. Her eyes were large, rather prominent, and brown in color. Her mouth, too, was large, with the lips full, and she had white teeth.

Duane took her proffered hand and remarked frankly that he was glad to meet her.

Mrs. Bland appeared pleased; and her laugh, which followed, was loud and rather musical.

"Mr. Duane—Buck Duane, Euchre said, didn't he?" she asked.

"Buckley," corrected Duane. "The nickname's not my choosing."

"I'm certainly glad to meet you, Buckley Duane," she said, as she took the seat Duane offered her. "Sorry to have been out. Kid Fuller's lying over at Deger's. You know he was shot last night. He's got fever to-day. When Bland's away I have to nurse all these shot-up boys, and it sure takes my time. Have you been waiting here alone? Didn't see that slattern girl of mine?"

She gave him a sharp glance. The woman had an extraordinary play of feature, Duane thought, and unless she was smiling was not pretty at all.

"I've been alone," replied Duane. "Haven't seen anybody but a sick-looking girl with a bucket. And she ain't here now. I've been waiting here alone?"

"That was Jen," said Mrs. Bland. "She's the kid we keep here. Did Euchre tell you about her?"

"Now that I think of it, he did say something or other."

"What did he tell you about me?" bluntnly asked Mrs. Bland.

"Wal, Kate," replied Euchre, speaking for himself, "you needn't worry none, for I told Buck nothin' but compliments."

Evidently the outlaw's wife liked Euchre, for her keen glance rested with amusement upon him.

"As for Jen, I'll tell you her story some day," went on the woman. "It's a common enough story along this river. Euchre here is a tender-hearted old fool, and Jen has taken him in."

"Wal, seein' as you've got me figured correct," replied Euchre, dryly, "I'll go in an' talk to Jennie, if I may."

"Certainly. Go ahead. Jen calls you her best friend," said Mrs. Bland, amiably. "You're always fetching some Mexican stuff, and that's why, I guess."

When Euchre had shuffled into the house Mrs. Bland turned to Duane with curiosity and interest in her gaze.

"Bland told me about you."

"What did he say?" queried Duane, in pretended alarm.

"Oh, you needn't think he's done you dirt. Bland's not that kind of a man. He said: 'Kate, there's a young fellow in camp—rode in here on the dodge. Slickest hand with a gun I've seen for many a day! Magnificent chap. Bigger than any man in the valley. Just a great blue-eyed, sun-burned boy.'"

GOT HEMLOCK SEED CHEAP

Englishman's Shrewd Scheme for Producing Drug That Commanded Good Price on Market.

Mr. Pickwick's valet and all-around servant, Samuel Weller, whose limited acquaintance with physicians and apothecaries did not hamper his festive imagination in the relation of medical novelties which were heard with wonder and amazement by Mr. Pickwick and his friends, should have had in his repertoire the following from the London Garden: Every autumn a man used to bring to a wholesale drug house in London a quantity of hemlock seed which he sold at half the market price. The curiosity of a member of the house at last becoming aroused he asked the man how he could afford to sell the drug so cheaply. After being promised that nothing would be done to interfere with his business he described his method. Every spring

HISTORIC CRIMES and MYSTERIES

THE MISTAKE OF THE MARQUIS.

HAD Lord Ferraris, who was hanged with a silken rope in 1700, studied the criminal history of his country, he might have thought twice before shooting his servant, which prank brought him to the gallows. Long before his punishment the British courts had decreed that the shooting of servants by noblemen was a capital offense, rather than a misdemeanor.

Science and Crime. Science has secreted once more in the detection of crime. The other day some workmen excavating at Canarsie, L. I., dug up a human skeleton which gave evidence of death by violence.

sports the real thing in high life. He spent money as though he owned a newspaper in America, and before long his creditors were so numerous that he couldn't throw a brick without hitting three of them.

Breathe Deeply. Trouble brings on heart conditions and lung difficulties. It is said, because there is such a lack of fresh air taken into the lungs and the breathing is never deep enough. Therefore to make it a habit to breathe deeply, whether one feels like it or not, is one of the best remedies for the difficulty in hand.

Diseases of Plants. Parasitic diseases affect plants as well as animals, but the problems of immunity of plants have received little attention. From a comparative study of healthy and diseased plants R. W. Thatcher has now brought out the interesting fact that there are two types of resistance or immunity.

more than the blue blood of the marquis could endure. It boiled in his veins. Drawing his sword, he slew the unfortunate servant in his tracks, and then went his way, meditating upon the insolence of the lower classes. His surprise was great when he was arrested and taken to jail.

At first he refused to believe that he was in a serious predicament. When the courts understood the facts of the case, and realized that he was the chief representative of the great house of Paleotti, he would be dismissed with apologies. But when he came to trial the judges didn't seem in any way impressed by his exalted station, and they seemed to hold the ridiculous theory that servants were entitled to the protection of the law as much as other people.

The evidence against him was conclusive, and he didn't deny any of it, and the jury had the execrable taste to find him guilty, and he was sentenced to death. The marquis simply couldn't believe it. Such a miscarriage of justice in a civilized country was an impossibility. The matter must be brought to the attention of the king, who wouldn't stand for such an outrage. It was taken to the king, and there was nothing doing. Even his sister could help him no more. Her influence was exerted in vain.

On the morning of March 17, 1718, the marquis was instructed to prepare for the melancholy journey to Tyburn. The plain people had been assembled there since daybreak to see him suffer, and it wouldn't do to keep them waiting much longer. The condemned man paid no attention to the appeals of the ordinary (chaplain) but spent his time denouncing a country which would put a nobleman to death for the killing of a servant. He pointed out that such things were conducted much better in Italy, where there always was sanctuary for a distinguished man who did not wish to be arrested. He predicted the decline and fall of a government which indorsed such a proceeding as his execution.

Arrived at the gallows, his indignation was doubled when he found that he was to hang with a plebeian murderer. He protested so bitterly that the executioner granted his request to be turned off first, and he had the melancholy satisfaction of dying alone. The marquis was a handsome and talented man, of courtly manners, but so devoted by pride, and so lacking in honesty, that his unfortunate sister was the only true mourner when his unprofitable career came to a close.

Phoney Fortune. "My wife played a great trick on a gypsy the other day." "The fat plumber was the speaker." "What did she do?" asked the thin carpenter. "The gypsy wanted to tell her fortune with some coffee grounds."

"Yes." "And after she was through my wife asked her if the coffee grounds possessed some peculiar charms for fortune telling." "What did the gypsy say?" "She said they did."

"Then what?" "Then my wife gave her the laugh and refused to pay her."

"Why?" "Because the sediment in the cup wasn't coffee grounds at all. We use a substitute."—Youngstown Telegram.

Mid the View. "Do I understand you to say," said the lawyer, looking hard at the principal witness, "that upon hearing a noise in the hall you rose quickly, lit a candle and went to the head of the stairs, that a burglar was at the foot of the stairs, and you did not see him? Are you blind?"

"Must I tell the truth?" stammered the witness, blushing to the roots of his hair. "The whole truth," was the stern reply. "Then," replied the witness, brushing aside his damp, clinging locks and wiping the perspiration from his clammy brow, "my wife was in front of me."

Credit. A rich nabob, ambitious to be known as a good fellow, gave a feast which cost a thousand sequins a plate. "What wicked, wanton waste!" exclaimed the world. "Another nabob, thirsting for glory, went to war. "The brutal, bloody butcher," the world protested.

Strong Drinks Irritate

Strong drinks like beer, whiskey, tea and coffee, irritate the kidneys, and habitual use tends to weaken them. Daily backache, with headache, nervousness, dizzy spells and a rheumatic condition should be taken as a warning of kidney trouble. Cut out, or at least moderate, the stimulant, and use Doan's Kidney Pills. They are fine for weak kidneys. Thousands recommended them.

Health for Sick Women

For Forty Years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Has Been Woman's Most Reliable Medicine—Here is More Proof.

To women who are suffering from some form of woman's special ills, and have a constant fear of breaking down, the three following letters ought to bring hope:—

North Crandon, Wis.—"When I was 16 years old I got married and at 18 years I gave birth to twins and it left me with very poor health. I could not walk across the floor without having to sit down to rest and it was hard for me to keep about and do my work. I went to a doctor and he told me I had a displacement and ulcers, and would have to have an operation. This frightened me so much that I did not know what to do. Having heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I thought I would give it a trial and it made me as well as ever. I cannot say enough in favor of the Pinkham remedies."—Mrs. MATYEE ASBACH, North Crandon, Wis.

Lawton, Okla.—"When I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I seemed to be good for nothing. I tired easily and had headaches much of the time and was irregular. I took it again before my little child was born and it did me a wonderful amount of good at that time. I never fail to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to ailing women because it has done so much for me."—Mrs. A. L. McCASLAND, 509 Have St., Lawton, Okla.

From a Grateful Massachusetts Woman. Roxbury, Mass.—"I was suffering from inflammation and was examined by a physician who found that my trouble was caused by a displacement. My symptoms were bearing down pains, backache, and sluggish liver. I tried several kinds of medicine; then I was asked to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has cured me and I am pleased to be in my usual good health by using it and highly recommend it."—Mrs. R. M. OSOON, 1 Hayes Park, Roxbury, Mass.

The Car that Stands Still Costs Everybody Money To Shippers on the Pere Marquette Railroad: We are doing everything possible to relieve the car shortage. We need your co-operation, in fact, we must have it if we are to be successful in our efforts. There are too many cars on Pere Marquette teamtracks. Many of these cars are now being used as warehouses. Possibly some of you are figuring that the payment of demurrage justifies this. Such, however, is not the fact. We would far rather have the car than the demurrage so that we can get cars to move your neighbor's freight and possibly your own freight when you put in your next order. One of the principal causes of the coal shortage is the shortage of cars due to the inability of carriers to keep cars moving. Please do not under any circumstances keep a car under load, or hold it for loading, a single day longer than is imperatively necessary. Only prompt action on your part will enable us to supply you with cars when you want them. PAUL H. KING, OPERATING MANAGER.

Healthful Summer. Hot weather has a habit of forcing itself on people's attention in a disagreeable way. There is no escaping it. When the thermometer registers above 90 everybody knows it is hot. But there is this comfort: The trouble from hot weather is mostly mere annoyance. There is less sickness in hot weather than in cold. Winter is the time of epidemics. In the summer people live out of doors. They have plenty of fresh air and they keep well. Even babies flourish in the heat if proper attention is given their food. It isn't pleasant to sweeter. But it isn't dangerous. And consider the splendid compensations of the outdoor life!
