INDECISION

Dr. John Timothy Stone, speaking at the Lake Geneva Student conference said: "I was back to my Alma Mater this year and while talking with some fellows of my class, I asked: 'Where is so and so?' 'In a sanitarium,' was the reply. 'What is the matter?' 'Negativism.' 'He was never able to come to a decision in his college days, and the older he grew the more did indecision become dominant in his character. Hopeless negativism is the result.' Indecision in regard to the Christian life becomes so binding that negativism sets in and it becomes much more difficult to decide for Jesus Christ.

Do Not Put This Matter Off. Decide Now.

This subject deserves consideration and meditation. Come and hear a further discussion of INDECISION next Sunday night. Decide now to attend.

In buying a horse, you are mighty careful in looking him over that you may be reasonably sure of getting full value for your money. You do not take the owner's word for the horse's age—not that you feel he is trying to deceive you, but because you like to see for yourself—so you look at the horse's teeth. You feel his shoulders, his hind quarters and down his legs. You have him trotted down the yard for a hundred yards or so and back to watch his gait. Then as soon as he is stopped you listen to his breathing to learn if his "wind" is all right.

The horse looks good. You ask the price. If it is twenty-five, forty or fifty dollars under normal prices, you shake your head and walk away. Instantly you have decided that a good looking animal like that offered at such a price is a good one for you to let alone. There is something wrong about the horse that you haven't been able to discover that is causing the owner to sell him. Buy a Manure Spreader as you would a horse.

City Manager of Jackson Will Speak Here Sunday

The citizens of Plymouth are going to have an opportunity to learn something about the manager type of government, next Sunday afternoon, when G. C. Cummins, city manager of Jackson, Mich., will talk to them at a public meeting to be held at the village hall, at 3 o'clock. There is a feeling among many of our citizens and taxpayers that the manager type of government would be the right thing for Plymouth, and the idea of having Mr. Cummins here next Sunday and Prof. Reeves of the U. of M. a week from next Sunday is for the purpose of giving our citizens an opportunity to learn something of the workings of this type of municipal government and its advantages from an economic standpoint. Mr. Cummins has been very successful in his work at Jackson, and the citizens of that city are more than satisfied with the manager system. Every man and woman in Plymouth is invited to come out next Sunday afternoon at the village hall at 3 o'clock and hear the city manager of Jackson speak on this subject.

Will Soon Commence Work on New Plant

E. E. Foster of Detroit, was in town yesterday. Mr. Foster is the gentleman who recently purchased the Singer farm just east of the village limits. He tells the Mail that his business in Detroit has outgrown its housing capacity and it is up to him to seek a new location and he believes Plymouth is the point for him to locate. The P. M. will put a sidetrack in for him and just as soon as the weather permits a large, commodious building will be erected for a chemical laboratory. Skilled labor is employed and several families will require housing, which Mr. Foster intends to provide on his place. His business will be a valuable addition to Plymouth, and we hope it may grow to large proportions.

Mr. Muscat of the Pronovost Torsion Spring Wheel Co., has been in Plymouth this week looking after the interests of his company. Mr. Muscat showed a representative of the Mail some photographs of the wheel which will be manufactured here, and it certainly looks like a good thing when it comes to tire expense and a tire trouble eliminator. The price of the Pronovost wheel, with the tire ready to put on the car is $37.50 per wheel or $150 for a set of four wheels. The wheel is manufactured for all makes and models of cars and trucks. There is a great market waiting for such a wheel and the company already have many orders on their books and more coming in every day. The Pronovost Torsion Spring Wheels are sold direct to the automobile owner. The company have a small amount of stock left which they are offering the citizens of Plymouth, an opportunity of purchasing if they so desire.

A Musical Prodigy

Many towns no larger than ours boast of their musical prodigies but as yet, we have to hear of one where the animals are so musically inclined that they care to be on the job all of the time, but such however is the case here, for last Monday, when Clarence Stevens of Ann Arbor, tuned the piano in the village hall, he removed from the interior a mouse nest which gave evidence of having recently been occupied. He also found a box of tacks in the piano.

The Webb resolution proposing a national prohibition constitutional amendment was reported to the house with a majority committee report in its favor and a minority report opposing it.

Apprehension over the Cuban situation was increased at Washington by receipt of dispatches from Santiago stating that the situation in the west of Cuba is critical and threatening. Business throughout that region has been paralyzed; there are no mails and trains are not operating.

With the arrival of American warships at Santiago and Havana it became known at Washington conditions in the island are most menacing and the United States may be forced to intervene to save the government.

SUPREME COURT RULES ON PRIMARY

WHEN ONLY ONE CANDIDATE HAS FILED A PETITION ELECTION IS UNNECESSARY.

NOMINATION IS AUTOMATIC

Question Was Raised By Calhoun Judge and Is Now Sustained By Supreme Court.

(From Our Special Correspondent.)

The supreme court has ruled that in counties where only one candidate files a petition for an office there shall be no primary.

When the county clerk certifies to the election commission that the time for filing petitions closed with only one petition filed for an office, the one name for the office will automatically go on the ticket for the general election, according to the ruling.

The question was raised by Circuit Judge Walter H. North of the Calhoun circuit court. Judge North was the only one who filed a petition for circuit judge and after the time for filing petitions closed he asked the county clerk to certify his name to the election board as the only man regularly nominated. The county clerk, relying on the ruling of former Attorney General Grant Fellows, refused and mandamus was asked. Judge Charles B. Collingwood of Igham county sat in the case and sustained Judge North. The supreme court's ruling sustains Judge Collingwood.

The opinion was written by Justice Bird, and he says that it was plainly the intention of the legislature in the primary act to abolish the primary where there was no opposition to one man for the nomination on all the tickets.

This will automatically put on the ticket for the general election the name of this one candidate for the office and the primary for such an office will be dispensed with.

Degree of Dryness Up to Voters.

Whether Michigan shall be "bone dry" or whether she shall be moistened with limited shipments will be decided by the people of the state at the spring election, April 1.

This unlooked for decision was made by the sub-committee of the joint house and senate liquor committee. The voters of the state can decide for themselves whether the state is to be bone dry or moist.

Whether a majority of the people of Michigan voted last November merely to wipe out the saloons and still enjoy a limited use of liquor by means of importation, or whether they voted for the absolute death of liquor has been an issue in the legislature since the assembly of that body. The subject has been discussed almost continuously and the claims have been sharply defined. Petitions from supporters of both sides signed by thousands of petitioners, have been received almost daily. Members have had piles of letters on the subject. Churches and church organizations, ministers and dry workers and leaders have written and petitioned on both sides. The result has been that instead of throwing light on the people's attitude, the agitation has merely defined the issue.

The defeat of a "bone dry" constitutional amendment will in no wise effect the standing of the prohibition amendment adopted last November. This will continue in force. If a "bone dry" amendment is passed by the people, it will merely add, in effect, a prohibition on shipping liquor into the state or having liquor in one's possession.

Presidential Primary Law Repealed. The house made last week notable in its record by passing the bill to repeal the presidential preference primary law, passed at the special sessions in 1913. After some "kidding" over the race last spring between William Alden Smith and Henry Ford, the house voted 77 to 7 for the repeal.

Salary Raises Sidetracked. The senate has sidetracked the proposal to amend the constitution so as to provide for $5,000 salaries for the secretary of state, auditor general and state treasurer. The senators believed that if they submitted it the people would vote it down.

Other Proposed Laws. Rep. Leighton proposes in another bill that witness fees be raised so that those witnesses testifying in courts of record be paid $2 a day and witnesses in justice courts be paid $3 a day.

Rep. Deuel has introduced a bill authorizing county boards of supervisors in counties owning their own fair grounds to make appropriations for the construction and maintenance of buildings, fences and driveways on the grounds.

Rep. Person has introduced a bill to compel railroads to move freight trains that carry livestock at a rate of at least ten miles an hour. Rep. Woodrow, in another bill, wants it provided that a village may have a special census, taken when it wishes to incorporate as a city.

Rep. Hallett wants the state to have a board of three men to keep track of the plumbers of the state, register them and examine applicants for plumbing work to see that they are competent.

Senator DeLand has introduced a bill to raise from $45,000 a year to $69,000 a year the appropriation for carrying on the work of the state accident board, which administers the workmen's compensation and employer's liability laws. A deficiency appropriation of $3,500 also is asked for this department.

Special Message on Budget System.

Gov. Albert E. Sleeper and the members of the legislature still have to come to an agreement as to how Michigan is going to acquire a budget system for its financial affairs.

With the senate holding the DeLand-Roberts budget bill in committee and the house holding in another committee Rep. Foot's bill for a budget commission to study the subject, Gov. Sleeper has come out in favor of a thorough study of the budget problem and the passage of a law creating such a system, based on the report of investigators. He has sent in a special message to both houses urging that a commission of inquiry be named.

Many of the legislators are of the opinion that they are just as competent now to pass a bill providing a budget as they would be after hearing from an investigating commission on the subject.

The governor has obtained from Auditor General Fuller, who handles most of the state's financial matters, a statement which backs up the governor's position and has incorporated it in his message to the legislature on the subject. In his statement, Mr. Fuller says:

"I am in favor of adopting any policy or system that would in any way reduce the cost of the government of the state and not impair or interfere with the proper performance of the several necessary functions of government, and it may be that the budget system will reduce the amount expended each year, but as a budget system would materially change the present system of maintaining the state institutions, departments, boards and commissions, it will be necessary to amend or repeal several of the existing laws before a budget system will be operative.

"The budget system would necessarily include a provision that funds be drawn from the state treasury and should remain in the treasury until such time as they were needed for the payment of claims. A clause in the law to the effect that funds should remain in the treasury until needed would not be sufficient without specifically conferring upon some official the authority to determine the necessity for drawing the funds. If the funds were drawn from the treasury as the law now provides, the object of the budget system would be defeated; therefore it will be necessary to amend or repeal the present accounting laws of the state.

"Michigan has outgrown the system of appropriating money which was adopted in the infancy of the state and which has been continued. It is not a businesslike proposition to deposit state funds in the treasuries of the state institutions. There should be but one state treasury and the funds of the state should remain in the treasury until it is necessary to pay claims against the state, and it would be advisable to adopt a budget system in order that the present method of expending state funds may be placed on a business basis. But before the budget system becomes a part of our fiscal policy I would suggest that the system in force in other states be investigated and the operation of same be noted so that the defects, if any, may be avoided in the law that may be adopted in Michigan.

"I believe that a committee should be appointed to make a thorough examination of the budget system in force in other states and to report to the legislature at this or next session; and it would also be advisable to have a committee examine the present laws with a view to removing the legal obstacles from the path of the budget system that may be adopted.

These views are thoroughly indorsed by the governor in his remarks appended to the letter of the auditor general, the message of the governor concluding:

"I therefore recommend that legislation be passed by the legislature for the appointment of a commission to be composed of men of high standing and ability, and who are not members of the legislature to examine thoroughly into the matters I have herein indicated and to report if practicable during the present session of the legislature, and if not, previous to the next session of the legislature."

Would Curtail "Bargain" Sales. Merchants of the "fly by night" variety are to be exiled from Michigan if a bill introduced by Rep. Warner, of Ionia, becomes law. The bill requires that any one conducting a bankrupt sale, damage sale, closing out sale or any of the other bargain varieties of sales, must obtain a license from the city or village clerk. In the license application information must be given as to the reason for the sale, and an inventory, as well as the name of the person or firm from whom the goods were purchased, date of delivery, etc. False statements would make the offender liable to a five-year prison term.

The public domain commission seeks in its appropriation bill to have $162,500 a year allowed to it, instead of $150,000 a year, as formerly. The bill also aims to remove the necessity of placing on sale agricultural lands within forest reserves.

The Glass bill, allowing husbands to inherit one-third of their wife's real estate, was pigeonholed, as was the Blinn measure, abrogating the common law disability of women to bind themselves jointly with their husbands.

The state highway department appropriation bill asks for a total of $600,000 in 1918 and $700,000 in 1919. The state geological department's appropriation bill asks for $35,000.

Gov. Sleeper has appointed Dr. Guy L. Kiefer, former health officer of Detroit, and Dr. William F. English, of Saginaw, to membership on the state board of health. Herbert H. Hoffman, of Sault Ste. Marie, has been appointed to the state board of pharmacy. Edwin L. Keyser, of Pontiac, has been named to the board of the Pontiac state hospital.

WOMEN START FOOD RIOTS IN NEW YORK

THOUSANDS STORM-CITY HALL DEMANDING RELIEF FROM HIGH PRICES.

NO IMMEDIATE RELIEF SEEN

Commissioner of Weights and Measures Predicts That Food Conditions Will Get Worse.

New York—Hunger riots, led by women carrying wailing babies, raged in half a dozen sections of New York Tuesday.

Continued increases in the cost of foodstuffs aroused the anger of want-patched mothers, and processions of women and marched through sections of the east side and the Bronx, overturning push carts and demanding relief from high prices.

The city hall was stormed by 2,000 of the infuriated women amid cries of "We want bread." There were shouts for Mayor Mitchell, policemen's faces were scratched and their coats torn, and a mounted squad was necessary to disperse the rioters.

Joseph Hartigan, Mayor Mitchell's commissioner of weights and measures, predicted that food conditions in the city will get worse. He intimated that official measures to cope with the situation have failed and declared that the one remedy in sight now was through a committee of produce dealers who will deal with conditions in a large, patriotic way.

Not since the 1913 riots of the unemployed have there been riots of such pronounced degree. It is the high cost of living—the tremendous increase in price of necessities—that is at the bottom of the trouble, and the most significant fact is that the rioting is the work of women alone.

Dealers said that within a year the wholesale price of potatoes had risen from $3.25 to $9 for a sack of 165 pounds and the price of onions since December 11, 1916, from $3 to $15.50 for 100 pounds.

GOOD ROADS CLUB FORMED

Monroe County Men Form Organization to Develop Roads in County.

Monroe—There has been formed in Monroe county an automobile club, including in its membership many prominent men of that county. At the organization meeting held in Temperance, more than 150 interested motorists were present. Predictions have been made that the membership will total 500 within 90 days.

One of the prime objects of the new club, which is to be known as the Monroe County Automobile club, is the development of good roads in that county, especially the Detroit-Monroe-Toledo highway. The club officers plan to co-operate with the board of county road commissioners and aid in every way possible to complete the Toledo road. They predict that this will be done within the present year. Other roads radiating from Monroe to Ypsilanti and other towns will be developed with the assistance of the club according to present plans.

SUSPECTS BOUNTY FRAUDS

Game Warden Believes Wolves Were Killed in Minnesota.

Marquette—What is believed to be a wholesale scheme to defraud the state and counties in the upper peninsula by shipping wolf hides from Minnesota, where no marks are made on the hides when a bounty is paid, and collecting bounties in Michigan, is being investigated by the state fish, game and forest fire commissioner's department.

During the last few weeks, officers say, bounties on nine wolves have been collected in Delta county and eight in Schoolcraft county, while 16 hides were presented at Newberry, in Luce county, and aroused the suspicions of the county clerk. Game wardens do not believe that any of the wolves were killed in Michigan.

The bounty on a wolf is $25, of which the state pays half and the county in which it is killed pays half.

ITEMS OF INTEREST

Hastings—Friend Soules, 84 years old, whose bravery at the siege of Petersburg in the First Michigan Sharpshooters won him a promotion from private to lieutenant, was buried Saturday. He was wounded several times during the Civil war.

"Dry" candidates for village president and councilmen have entered the campaign for election in April and if elected declare they will refuse to permit the operation of saloons. A bitter contest by "wet" candidates for president and councilmen has already been started.

Paw Paw—Upon the finding of an old lease dated nearly 99 years ago depends the possession by Michigan heirs to the estate of a strip of property on the outskirts of St. Louis, Mo. The lease is valued at $9,000,000. The lease was last seen 50 years ago, when it was in the custody of Judge Broughton, then circuit judge of Van Buren county. Now as the time for the lease to expire draws near the document cannot be found among the records of the county. Several Paw Paw and Decatur men are heirs.

RAILROAD EXTENSION IN REGION OF IMPORTANCE.

Presented Big Problem for Engineers and Cost Much Money, but Will Open Up Immense Reserves of Timber.

No railroad development in the Northwest in the last decade has opened up greater possibilities for the rapid development of that part of the state than the recent completion of a $13,000,000 extension into the Coos Bay country of southwestern Oregon.

Despite these handicaps, the towns of Marshfield and North Bend, occupying positions similar to San Francisco on San Francisco bay, grew rapidly in population and prosperity.

So promising was this great territory that the railroad company, the Southern Pacific, decided to stretch its lines to the bay and end the isolation that had existed for so many years.

But modern railroad engineering balks at nothing, even removing mountains when necessary. Owing to the lay of the land, the surveyors and engineers decided that the easiest way was to run the spur directly west from Eugene to about 50 miles and turn southwest, gradually approaching the coast and nearly reaching it at Coos Bay.

The exact distance between Eugene and Marshfield by rail is 121.6 miles. To construct the new extension, it was necessary to build many tunnels and bridges, besides the roadbed.

The time required for the trip between Portland and the Coos Bay country was cut down perceptibly by the extension. Another significant feature of the extension is that of the freight movement.

Not Asking Much. "Have you no desire to lift yourself above your fellows?" "None whatever," answered the plain citizen. "There's so much property in this country that I merely want to own an automobile so I will be on a level with my fellows."

Little Things in Railroad.

It is the little things in railroad, as in every other business, that make profit or loss. Who would think of the stopping and starting of trains as being an important item of expense to a railroad? President Willard of the B. & O. has figured that it costs an average of $1.60 to stop a passenger train.

Highest Bridge in America.

The highest bridge in America is the Pacific railroad bridge over the Rio Grande river, 26 miles west of San Jose, in Costa Rica. The base of the rails is 840 feet above the surface of the water and the main span of the arch is 448 feet 8 1/2 inches.

A MINISTER'S CONFESSION

Rev. W. H. Warner, Myrtleville, Md., writes: "My trouble was sciatica. My back was affected and took the form of lumbago. I also had neuralgia, cramps in my muscles, pressure or sharp pain on the top of my head, and nervous dizzy spells. I had other symptoms showing my kidneys were at fault, so I took Dodd's Kidney Pills. They were the means of saving my life. I wrote to say that your medicine restored me to perfect health." Be sure and get "DODD'S," the name with the three D's for diseased, disordered, deranged kidneys; just as Rev. Warner did, no similarity named article will do.—Adv.

FOR POULTRYMEN

- Here are some good poultryer's mottoes: Plan your work, then work your plan. Stop guessing—know. Do it now. Trap nest, leg band, keep accounts, records, have system. Tricks make perfection, and perfection is no trick. The colder the day the more corn feed. Many holes, many colds.

WORM INFESTED HORSES.

Animals Thus Affected Soon Get Out of Condition. Many horses get out of condition or fail to make gains during the winter months because they are infested with worms. This is especially true of colts. Horses suffering from worms generally have a good appetite, but apparently benefit little from the food eaten. There may be no symptoms which point conclusively to worms, but this trouble is so common that if the colts and horses are not doing as well as they should for the feed given, a worm remedy may prove of decided value. In treating horses for worms Dr. L. S. Backus of the Missouri College of Agriculture suggests it is well to keep in mind that the drug is meant for the worm rather than the horse and should therefore be given in as concentrated a form as possible. To insure this little or no bulky food should be fed during the course of treatment, and as the parasites are stupefied by worm remedies rather than killed the animal's bowels should be kept in an active condition so that the stupefied worms may be passed out before they regain their vitality. A well salted bran mash once a day will generally insure such an action. The following formula is a worm remedy which is also of value as a tonic: Powdered nux vomica, two ounces; powdered gentian root, four ounces; powdered areas nut, six ounces; sodium chloride (common salt), four ounces; arsenious acid, two drams. Mix. Give a heaping teaspoonful to every 250 pounds weight every morning and evening for about ten days. The medicine may be mixed with ground feed or sprinkled over oats or corn which has been dampened.

If, therefore, you are planning to purchase a Ford car, we advise you to place your order and take delivery now. Immediate orders will have prompt attention. GAYDE BROS. A new world's record for all breeds for butterfat production in the seven-day division was established by the pure-bred Holstein-Friesian cow, Segis Fayne Johanna 114656, in a test ending January 8, 1917. This remarkable cow produced 60.68 pounds of butter in seven consecutive days, and the official test was conducted by supervisors from the New York State Agricultural College, Ithaca, N. Y. About Constipation. Certain articles of diet tend to check the movements of the bowels. The most common of these are cheese, tea and boiled milk. On the other hand raw fruits, especially apples and bananas, also graham bread and whole wheat bread promote a movement of the bowels. When the bowels are badly constipated, however, the sure way is to take one or two of Chamberlain's Tablets immediately after supper. -Advt. Probate Notice. STATE OF MICHIGAN, county of Wayne. "I have used Foley Kidney Pills for backache, the result of catching cold which settled in my back. Foley Kidney Pills always give me prompt relief and I can cheerfully recommend them." The reason Foley Kidney Pills act so satisfactorily is because they neutralize and dissolve the poisonous waste matter that remains in the blood because the kidneys are not doing their work properly in filtering and carrying out from the system uric acid and other poisons. Relief usually follows in a few days and such symptoms as pain in the sides or back, stiff joints, sore muscles, rheumatism, too frequent action of the bladder, and frequent other painful and annoying ailments disappear. Foley Kidney Pills contain no harmful ingredients. They are made as well as quick acting. For Sale at Rockwell's Pharmacy. Subscribe for the Mail today. Only $1.00 per year. Mogul Tractors Won Grand Prizes at the San Francisco and the San Diego Expositions, 1915

Why did the Mogul Tractors win? Because they are common sense and practical small farm tractors. When the judges—impartial, well qualified, practical, keen business men as they were—awarded the prizes to our Mogul Tractors, did it because the Mogul Tractors produce the most economical farm power. The speaker, Rev. F. M. Field, not only paid a high tribute to the "Father of Our Country," whose birthday we celebrate this week, but made a careful analysis of the religious life of Washington, showing that in his personal religious life he was an "old fashioned" Christian believer, and in that iron age of infidelity when Paine and Voltaire were laughing Christianity out of court, Washington went right on believing, praying, reading his Bible and going to church. The stage was decorated in the national colors and with a draped picture of Washington by officers of the G. A. R. Post.

Sells the Champion Cream Separator THE NEW DE LAVAL

The worth of a separator depends very largely upon its bowl. A separator bowl must be scientifically designed, properly constructed and perfectly balanced or it will not only lose some cream to begin with, but will soon get out of balance and lose a great deal more cream, besides wearing out the bearings and gears in a short time. That is why the average life of a cheap separator is only two or three years.

The bowl of the NEW De Laval is self-centering

The new De Laval bowl is so constructed and so balanced upon its detached spindle that it will run true and do perfect work even after the machine has been in use for a long time.

The De Laval bowl has always been noted for its close fitting and its ability to handle all conditions, but the new De Laval patented milk distributing device, together with the larger disc, makes the new De Laval bowl an even closer thickness than the old one and gives considerably greater capacity into the bowl.

Come in and see one of the new machines.

You can pay your taxes now.

SEVEN YEARS AGO AND TO-DAY

Then He Had 6 Mules, $660 Cash and Some Equity—Today He Has $20,000 and Owns 2 Sections of Land.

The story of the wealth of Western Canada cannot be told too often; the truth will bear repeating. And in telling of it is hoped that advantage will be taken of the great opportunities that Western Canada offers by those who are today struggling for a mere existence, by those who are occupying lands, high in price and high in rentals.

From grain, live stock and dairying in 1910, there was a return from the three Prairie Provinces of $258,000,000, or an increase of four million dollars over 1915, and 118 million dollars over 1914.

A prominent Trust Company says: Some of our contract holders have paid off their purchase money on lands bought a year ago out of this year's crop, and what one man can do another can do.

Thousands of Southern Alberta farmers harvested an average of 40 to 50 bushels of No. 1 wheat to the acre. These farmers have more real money to spend than any other people on the American Continent.

Johnston of Bladsworth, Sask. left Johnson County, Kansas, seven years ago. When he left he had $600 in cash, six mules, some settler's effects and an equity in some prairie land.

Mr. Johnston tells his story: "In my seven years' residence in Saskatchewan, I have raised seven good crops the value of this year's crop alone being Twenty thousand dollars. I now own two Sections of improved land, 17 horses and mules, 40 cattle, a large steam thrasher and a full line of farm machinery."

We have made five trips to Kansas, one trip to the Pacific Coast and return. We have enjoyed the society of a class of people than whom none better can be found. The climate is healthful and invigorating. The soil is fertile and productive, well adapted for the production of the best quality and large yields of all cereals and vegetables, wild and tame grasses. It is an excellent stock country."

The question of taxes is one that carries with it considerable weight. Coming from a man like Mr. Johnston the same weight should be given the answer. He says: "The tax system especially commends itself to me as being simple, reasonable and just. All direct taxes are levied on the land at its appraised market value, exclusive of improvements thereon. No tax on personal property. This tends to discourage the holding of lands by speculators who prevent its cultivation or improvement, hoping to realize profits from the enhanced value of their holdings due to the industrial activities of the bona fide settlers. It tends to encourage the settlers to year substantial improvements upon their land without paying a penalty in the form of taxation therefor. It encourages the raising of live stock and the possession of other personal property necessary to the development of the country."

"The laws are well and economically administered. Citizens of the Dominion vote on election of members of parliament and members of the Provincial assembly, while on questions of local improvements and school matters, the franchise is exercised by ratepayers, irrespective of citizenship. The people are enterprising, school facilities are good. Taxation, just and reasonable. Military service voluntary. Patriotic fervor unexpressed, law and order the rule, and crime the rare exception. It is the land of banks, schools, telephones, grain elevators, brood, fertile acres, good climate, good citizenship and abounding in opportunities for the industrious man or woman of good morals. In short, the land of promise and fulfillment, I know of no better anywhere."

Every mother realizes, after giving her children California Syrup of Figs that this is their ideal laxative, because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without griping.

CHAPTER III.—Continued. Only a week—and love was one of the things he had to give up, with others. Not, of course, that he was in love with Sidney then. But he had been desperately lonely, and for all her practical clearheadedness, she was going out to earn her living, and he would stay to make it possible. But no lot of all this was in his voice.

"I shall stay, of course," he said gravely. "—This is the nearest thing to home that I've known for a long time. I want you to know that."

"You are very good to me," said Sidney. When she rose, K. Le Moyne sprang to his feet.

Anna had noticed that he always rose when she entered his room—with fresh towels on Katie's day out, for instance—and she liked him for it. Years ago the men she had known had shown this courtesy to their women; but the Street regarded such things as affectation.

"I wonder if you would do me another favor? I'm afraid you'll take, to avoid me, if I keep on."

"I don't think you need fear that."

"This stupid story about Joe Drummond—I'm not saying I never marry him, but I'm certainly not engaged. Now and then, when you are taking your evening walks, if you would ask me to walk with you—"

"I can't imagine anything pleasant; but I wish you'd explain just how—"

Sidney smiled at him. As he stood on the lowest step their eyes were almost level.

"If I walk with you they'll know I'm not engaged to Joe," she said, with engaging directness.

The house was quiet. He waited in the lower hall until she had reached the top of the staircase. For some curious reason, in the time to come, that was the way Sidney always remembered K. Le Moyne—standing in the little hall, one hand upstretched to shut off the gas overhead, and his eyes on hers above.

"Good night," said K. Le Moyne. And all the things he had put out of his life were in his voice.

CHAPTER IV.

On the morning after Sidney had invited K. Le Moyne to take her to walk, Max Wilson came down to breakfast rather late. Doctor Ed had breakfasted an hour before, and had already attended, with much profanity on the part of the patient, to a boil on the back of Mr. Rosenfeld's neck.

"Better change your laundry," cheerfully advised Doctor Ed, cutting a strip of adhesive plaster. "Your neck's irritated from your white collars."

Rosenfeld eyed him suspiciously, but, possessing a sense of humor also, he grinned.

"It ain't my everyday things that bother me," he replied. "It's my blanket-blank dress suit. But if a man wants to be tony—" to advertise one's inferiority to the world. His sphere of the Street and the neighborhood was his own. To give it all up and become his younger brother's assistant—even if it meant, as it would, better hours and more money—would be to submerge his identity. He could not bring himself to do it.

"I guess I'll stay where I am," he said. "They know me around here, and I know them. By the way, will you leave this envelope at Mrs. McKee's? Maggie Rosenfeld is ironing there today. It's for her."

Max took the envelope absently. "You'll go on here to the end of your day, working for a pittance," he objected. "Inside of ten years there'll be no general practitioners; then where will you be?"

"I'll manage somehow," said the brother placidly. "I guess there'll always be a few that can pay my prices better than what you specialists ask."

Max laughed with genuine amusement. "I dare say, if this is the way you let them pay your prices."

He held out the envelope, and the older man colored.

Very proud of Doctor Max was his brother, unselfishly proud, of his skill, of his handsome person, of his easy good manners; very humble, too, of his own knowledge and experience. If he ever suspected any lack of finer fiber in Max, he put the thought away. Probably he was too rigid himself.

Max was young, a hard worker. He had a right to play hard.

He prepared his black bag for the day's calls—stethoscope, thermometer, eye-cup, bandages, case of small vials, a lump of absorbent cotton in a hot overfresh towel; in the bottom, a heterogeneous collection of instruments, a roll of adhesive plaster, a bottle or two of sugar-of-milk tablets for the children, a dog collar that had belonged to a dead collie, and had got in the bag in some curious fashion and there remained.

He prepared the bag a little nervously, while Max ate. He felt that modern methods and the best usage might not have approved of the bag. On his way out he paused at the dining-room door.

"Are you going to the hospital?" "Operating at four—wish you could come in."

"I'm afraid not, Max. I've promised Sidney Page to speak about her to you. She wants to enter the training school."

"Too young," said Max briefly. "She can't be over sixteen."

"She's eighteen."

"Well, even eighteen. Do you think any girl of that age is responsible enough to have life and death put in her hands? Besides, although I haven't noticed her lately, she used to be a pretty little thing. There is no use slipping up the wards with a lot of ornaments; it keeps the internes all stewed up."

"Since when," asked Doctor Ed mildly, "have you found good looks in a girl a handicap?"

In the end they compromised. Max would see Sidney at his office. It would be better than having her run across the Street—would put things on the right footing. For, if he did have her admitted, she would have to learn at once that he was no longer "Doctor Max"; that, as a matter of fact, he was now staff, and entitled to much dignity, to speech without contradiction or argument, to clean towels, and a deferential interne at his elbow.

Down the clean steps went Doctor Max that morning, a big man, almost as tall as K. Le Moyne, eager of life, strong and a bit reckless, not fine perhaps, but not evil. He had the same zest of living as Sidney, but with this difference—the girl stood ready to give herself to life; he knew that life would come to him. All-dominating male was Doctor Max, as he stepped into his car and made his way to his office. Here were people who believed in him, from the middle-aged nurse in her prim uniform to the row of patients sitting stiffly around the walls of the waiting room. Doctor Max drew a long breath. This was the real thing—work and plenty of it, a chance to show the other men what he could do, a battle to win! No humanitarianism was he, but a fighter—each day he came to his office with the same battle lust.

The office nurse had her back to him. When she turned, he faced an agreeable surprise. Instead of Miss Simpson, he faced a young and attractive girl, faintly familiar.

"We tried to get you by telephone," she explained. "I am from the hospital. Miss Simpson's father died this morning, and she knew you would have to have someone. I was just starting for my vacation, so they sent me."

she placed freshly-sterilized instruments on a glass table. "You are almost a foreign type, Miss Harrison. Last year, in a London ball, I saw a blonde Spanish girl who looked like you."

"My mother was a Spaniard," she did not look up.

Where Miss Simpson was in the habit of jumping through the morning in flat, heavy shoes, Miss Harrison's small heels beat a busy tattoo on the tiled floor. With the rustling of her starched dress, the sound was essentially feminine, almost insistent. When he had time to notice it, it annoyed him that he did not find it annoying.

Once, as she passed him a history, he deliberately placed his fine hand over her fingers and smiled into her eyes. It was play for him; it lightened the day's work.

Sidney was in the waiting room. There had been no tedium in the morning's waiting. Like all imaginative people, she had the gift of dramatizing herself. She was seeing herself in white from head to foot, like this efficient young woman who came now and then to the waiting-room door.

"Doctor Wilson will see you now."

She followed Miss Harrison into the consulting room. Doctor Max—not the gloved and batted Doctor Max of the Street, but a new person, one she had never known—stood in his white office, tall, dark-eyed, dark-haired, competent, holding out his long, immaculate surgeon's hand and smiling down at her.

What reason do you think K. Le Moyne has for needing to keep away from Doctor Max—does Le Moyne seem to you to be some kind of a crook?

LOST TIME IN QUAKER CITY

Calculations of Man From National Capital Caused Shock to Native Philadelphians.

After stewing for 15 minutes in a telephone booth the man from Washington is served. He is a member of congress.

"There is service for you!" he faltered weakly. "I came to Philadelphia on business and I wanted to get a bit of information from your automobile club about roads and to find out from the Reading if a certain train stops at West Conshohocken. Those two calls—neither line was reported busy—just ate up 15 minutes of my all too short life, reduced my weight at least a pound through perspiration and set back my temper a mile."

"Then this mathematical man from the national capital assailed the slowness of our telephone service.

"Those two calls were worth just five minutes. At home they would have taken no longer. So I was robbed of ten minutes."

"I figure out that if only one-half the people in Philadelphia call on the phone but once every month your population wastes in a year 225 years of time."

The conclusion was so appalling that I now hesitate to pick up a telephone. —Girard, in Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Popularity. The definition of popularity as given by a salesman in a large music shop is one that may be applied to other things besides songs.

"This is a popular song?" asked a young woman, holding up a sheet of music brilliantly decorated in red and green.

STOLE $500,000 DIES IN POVERTY

Famous Burglar Supported at End by Society He Had Preyed Upon.

FEARED IN HIS DAY

Detectives Who Have Guarded Banks in the East Fifty Years Always Regarded Noble as Man Without Equal.

New York.—Dan Noble, famous international burglar, who once had $500,000 as his share of a gigantic robbery, has just died here at the age of eighty-two years, a pauper, supported by the society he preyed on, and has been buried by relatives who are respected members of the community.

In his day he was feared by bankers and watched by detectives. Since his release from Auburn, December 19, 1890, he had been "good." He went to that prison in 1897 to finish a sentence imposed on him March 3, 1871. In January, 1873, he escaped from Auburn and during the succeeding years led the police of two continents a most perplexing chase, excepting when in prison in England and France.

Detectives who in the last fifty years have been guarding banks always regarded Dan Noble as a man without an equal. He never participated in "small games."

First Big Robbery. One of his first big robberies was of the Royal Insurance company in Wall street in 1868. Negotiable bonds and other property of the value of $1,700,000 were stolen. Frank Knapp and Jimmie Griffin, two well-known characters of that day, were his confederates, and all escaped to Canada. Being arrested there Noble was released on bail. In this way $75,000 went away from them.

The three struck together, and each was supposed to have at that time $500,000 in cash, obtained by disposing of the proceeds of the robbery. They went to Elmira, where Noble tried to become an honest real estate man, but one of his pals, who disliked his pals, filed complaint against him, alleging he had brought stolen property into Chemung county.

This led to his arrest and sentence to Auburn, from which he escaped. "Jim" Hope, who engineered the Manhattan bank robbery, and other well-known crooks escaped with him.

The next the police learned of Noble was when he became active in London. He joined Johnny Miller, Joe Chapman and Jack Phillips in circulating apartments money. He went to Paris, too, where he was concerned in a diamond robbery and sentenced to five years in a French prison, but escaped. Then he returned to England, where he was born. There he was arrested for forgery.

Friends Work "Pull." He was sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment. He worked a "pull," through American friends, who interceded, and said he was dying in prison. This brought his release in 1895.

In 1897 he returned to New York and was arrested, charged with passing a worthless check on the Fourth National bank. Later he was identified by a former keeper of Auburn as the escaped convict.

The last public record of the police have of him was in 1907, when he was a complainant in the West Side court, where he charged a woman with stealing his dog. He said he had merely allowed her to keep the dog for him and she refused to give it up.

Noble then dropped from sight until a well-known politician of this city heard of his plight and used his influence to have him committed to the New York farm colony.

Soup Came Near Causing a Riot. South Duquesne, Pa.—Papi Borychyn came near causing a riot here when his wife served soup for the third day in succession. He was quelled by two policemen and later attempted to hang himself in his cell.

Fled Kidnaped Boy After 7 Years. Mitchell, Ind.—Detectives have located the seven-year-old son of William Abraham in a spy camp near Baltimore, Md. The boy was kidnaped June 1, 1910.

Feel Achy All Over?

To ache all over in damp weather, or after taking a cold, is natural, and often indicates kidney weakness. Uric acid causes many queer aches, pains and disorders of the organs. Well kidneys keep uric acid down. Tired, sleep, nervous people would do well to try Doan's Kidney Pills. They stimulate the kidneys to activity and so help clear the blood of irritating poisons.

Morning I had to have help in getting out of bed, as my sharp pains drove through the small of my back. My head ached and I had terrible dizzy spells. Nothing did me any good until I used Doan's Kidney Pills. They removed the trouble and I haven't been bothered for a long time."

Rose From the Brickyard. Dr. Frederick A. Hall, newly appointed chancellor of Washington university, rose to the academic head of the institution after the manner which has marked many successful careers in this country. Where other men overcome difficulties of humble birth and circumstance and rose to high positions in the business world, he has done the same thing in the scholastic world.

He started work in a brickyard, battled his way to an education, and through that became the head of Washington university. At the age of twelve he started out to paddle his own canoe and three years later moved from New Jersey to Illinois, where he worked on a farm. The struggle was a hard one, but he won.

Many Carriers of Infection. The infection-carrier is developing into a somewhat serious addition to our health problems. The New York health department knew of only half a dozen typhoid carriers up to 1915, but five were added in that year, while 1916 brought the total up to 35 and now a systematic effort has begun to make the list complete. The number is proving so large and the menace as great that national and state registration of all chronic carriers may be undertaken. A fourth of New York's typhoid carriers have been food handlers and these have been required to take up occupations where they would be less likely to spread disease—a change not without some hardship. In one instance a prosperous confectioner was obliged to begin anew at a trade yielding at first not enough to support his family.

He Brightened Up. A newlyweds was standing in a doorway in Nashville, Tenn., sobbing piteously, in expectation of getting rid of his papers to some charitably inclined person unmed to his stereotyped tale of a sick mother and nothing to eat in the house.

The editor of the big daily he carried, unknown to the boy, happened along.

"Get out in the street and cry out what's in the paper, instead of whining there in that corner!" he called out.

"Huh!" answered the boy, "there's nautin' in it!"

A FRIEND'S ADVICE

Woman Saved From a Serious Surgical Operation.

Louisville, Ky.—"For four years I suffered from female troubles, headaches, and nervousness. I could not sleep, had no appetite and it hurt me to walk. Good Resulting From War.

Carlisle has said somewhere that civilization rides on a gun carriage. So does the genius of public health. The Spanish war initiated through its medical officers, another war—the one with yellow fever. The battle against typhoid was waged more vigorously and systematically in the American army than anywhere else. The building of the Panama canal, largely for naval purposes, completed the conquest of both yellow fever and typhoid. The number of lives which have been saved by these two victories of science undoubtedly exceeds many times all the losses of the present war.

Fight U-Boats With Nets and Motorboats

DIRIGIBLES AS SEA SCOUTS

All Ports Protected by Netting—Mine Sweepers Win Little Glory and Less Publicity, but Are Most Important Factor.

By EDGAR ANSEL MOWSER.

(Correspondence of the Chicago Daily News.)

Italian Coast.—What can the allies do against the submarine menace? A great deal in such small landlocked waters as the Adriatic, the Aegean and the Tyrrhenian seas, less in the open Atlantic. But in the Adriatic particularly many devices can be profitably employed. The most important of these is doubtless the wire submarine net. All ports are now protected by netting which can be opened and shut to permit the passage of ships. Hence submarines have become chary of entering an enemy port, preferring to wait just outside or block the channel by a row of mines. In consequence mine sweepers have become a necessity and hardly a port but harbors which often fall victim to their task, becoming aware of a mine only as their keel strikes it and amid the thunder of death, win little glory and less publicity. They are among the unheralded heroes, the housemaids of naval warfare.

Fight to Destroy Each Other.

In such a case it becomes a question of head work between the captain of the submarine and the captain of the torpedo boat, the one striving to elude, the other to draw near. Usually, needless to say, the submarine wins. If, however, the torpedo boat outguesses the submarine and foresees the spot where the latter will emerge, a most curious conflict ensues. "The submarine," to quote Sig. Giordani again, "disappears, comes into sight farther away, disappears, reappears, seeking a convenient spot for launching the torpedo that will rid it of its oppressor. The torpedo boat must follow it ever more closely, watching the torpedo's departure and maneuvering nimbly to avoid it and cut off the enemy."

NEW ZEALANDERS ARE REAL HEROES

Malcolm Ross, War Correspondent, Tells of Work of Doctors and Nurses.

SAVE LIVES UNDER GUN FIRE

Stretcher Bearers Work Day and Night Without Food or Sleep—Describe Brilliant Deeds in Battle of Somme.

London.—An interesting article written by Malcolm Ross, war correspondent with the New Zealand forces, and dealing with the work of the New Zealand medical corps on the Somme, has been issued by Sir Thomas Mackenzie, high commissioner for New Zealand. The following are extracts: "No account of the fighting on the Somme would be complete without reference to the splendid work done by the New Zealand medical corps. It was on September 13 that the corps 'took over' from the English division a German dugout at a place known to us as Flat Iron Copse the advance dressing station was established. It was all the time under shell fire. Two of the orderlies were killed on the first afternoon. Several bearers were killed in the vicinity of Thistle Alley, another station. Others were wounded. One night both doctors and men worked for hours in their gas helmets, and that is not an easy job.

Battle Was Raging Near By.

"Two thousand yards away was Fiers, about which the battle raged for some time. From there the bearers had to carry uphill over sodden ground through a fairly heavy barrage of 5.9 high explosives and shrapnel. It was a long and difficult job, but rain or shine they never ceased their efforts. In many cases it took six bearers five hours to bring a wounded man from the relay post 500 yards south of Fiers. A medical officer and 12 men were sent out there. The post was no success. There it was that Major Martin and Captain Boyle were killed. They were splendid fellows, and very brave. "During the whole of the first week the Germans kept up their barrage with a view to preventing transport and troops getting up to Fiers, but during the whole of the fighting not a single man ever hesitated to go forward when required.

GIRL SENDS PAJAMAS TO KING

California Student Makes Them of Pink Silk With Twelve Yards of Tasting.

Berkeley, Cal.—While East bay society girls were busily engaged in sewing shirts and knitting socks for soldiers, eighteen-year-old Mary Sutcliffe, a Berkeley high school girl, occupied her spare moments in making a pair of pink silk pajamas for King George of England.

times, I believe, a submarine in immersion has been struck and destroyed by a bomb cleverly dropped from an airplane. Scouting for submarines from the air is so fruitful that almost every day squadrons of aviators fly out operations on regular patrol duty. The Italians are fortunate in possessing a new type of fast seaplane, with a dolphin shaped body, said to be superior in power, carrying and climbing capacity to the Austrian Loehner, employed by the Italians up till now, and to our own Curtiss, of which the Loehner is said to be an imitation. The new type, in body identical with the one employed by the French and British, is constructed in Italy and equipped with an Italian motor.

Dirigibles as Sea Scouts.

The most useful of all constructions for sea scouting is the dirigible balloon. For this one purpose the Zeppelin has not proved a failure. Italy is fairly well equipped with semirigid balloons similar to the French type and almost every day one or more of them may be seen gliding over the sea. What they accomplish I do not know.

Captive balloons are sometimes hoisted over the shore for observation purposes. Such are the principal weapons used by Italy against submarines. How the struggle is progressing, whether amelioration of means is counterbalanced by improvement in submarine construction, only the future, in all likelihood the immediate future, will tell. Today both sides are losing heavily. Sometimes the submarine is its own undoing. Despite its terrible offensive powers the submarine has remained, in the words of Luther Bradley, "a delicate little thing." More than once during this war a submarine emerging beside a ship at night and launching a torpedo, has been sunk by upheaval in the water caused by the explosion. The submarine dare not approach too near its victim, and, for this reason, many steamers escape. Sometimes in the dark commanders of submarines become confused and overestimate distance. This statement seems the more credible if we reflect that in torpedo practice the United States navy has found that a single explosion often kills the fish for 400 or 500 yards on all sides. To be sunk by one's own torpedo seems a sad fate, but not unfitting those who preach ruthless warfare.

Credit is due the allies on one score: Whereas the submarine was known and developed before the war, the ant submarine craft, nets, bombs and the like, all had to be brought into being. In this work, as in every other branch of the war it has been my privilege to investigate, Italy is playing its part well.

he was shot in the arm, but even then he picked up his stretcher and wanted to carry on, and would have done so were it not for the fact that a doctor had ordered him away. He now proudly wears the ribbon of the military medal.

"Owing to the casualties in the New Zealand medical corps, orders were given by the army corps that regimental officers and other officers and bearers were to go out only at night. So far as I could see, there was no very laudable intention of carrying out that order.

"The New Zealanders saved their consciences by counting day as night. In this way they got one long night of 24 hours. In other words, they went right through the night and day; many instances of bravery and untiring devotion to duty in the big event might be given.

"There were men who day and night went out under shell and machine gun fire, time and again, and at great risk of their own lives saved the lives of many wounded who otherwise would have died or been killed. Some of them worked continuously collecting wounded under fire for 20 hours at a stretch. But there is no need to multiply instances. Our stretcher bearers earned undying fame in Gallipoli. The Somme enhanced the luster of their laurels.

"The work of the doctors from beginning to end was magnificent. They do not say much about it themselves, but those of us who saw something of it can estimate it at its true value, and the estimate is very high.

"At all the advanced dressing stations and aid posts they were under fire, but they stuck to their work day and night, with a heroism worthy of the best traditions of British doctors. Three out of our small band lost their lives on the Somme."

Uric Acid!

Ever since the discovery of Scheele in 1776 that uric acid was found within the body—most eminent physicians agree that rheumatism is caused by it; also many distressing symptoms as headache, pain in back, stomach distress, swollen feet and ankles, gout, etc.

It was Dr. Pierce of the Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., who discovered a new agent called Anuric, a harmless remedy that if taken before meals will carry off the uric acid from the system and in this way the pains and aches, the creaky joints and all the distressing symptoms of rheumatism and other maladies disappear. You can easily prove this yourself, by obtaining Anuric at almost any drug store, or send Dr. Pierce 10c for trial package. Try it and be convinced that Anuric is many times more active than lithia and eliminates uric acid as hot water melts sugar.
