A thrilling mystery story about a man who lost his courage and the girl who helped him to find it again

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

IF A GIRL discovered on the day of her wedding that the young man about to become her husband was a rake and that he had despoiled one girl and broken her heart...

The Trend of the Story. Mr. K. LeMoine becomes a roomer at the Page home, where Sidney, her mother, Anna, and her old maid aunt, Harriet, a dressmaker, reside...

CHAPTER X—Continued. She got up quickly, and, trailing her long satin train across the floor, bolted the door. Then from inside her cottage she brought out and held to Sidney a letter. "Special delivery. Read it."

It was very short; Sidney read it at a glance! Ask your future husband if he knows a girl at 213 Avenue C.

Three months before, the Avenue would have meant nothing to Sidney. Now she knew. Christine, more sophisticated, had always known.

CHAPTER XI. The supper at the White Springs hotel had not been the last supper Carlotta Harrison and Max Wilson had taken together.

During that entire vacation he never saw her in anything more elaborate than the simplest of white dresses modestly open at the throat, sleeves rolled up to show her satin arms.

"I feel such an idiot when I am with you," she said. "I wanted to know a little more about the things you do."

"I thought so; I had heard you speak of the house. Your brother was standing on the steps."

His eyes looked past Carlotta into distance. "Sidney Page was one of the bridesmaids," he said irrelevantly. "She was leveler than the bride."

There was no true comradeship between the two men; but there was beginning to be constant association, and lately a certain amount of friction.

Sidney came off night duty the middle of November. The night duty had been a time of comparative peace to Carlotta. There were no evenings when Doctor Max could bring Sidney back to the hospital in his car.

Sidney's half-days at his car were occasions for agonies of jealousy on Carlotta's part. On such an occasion, a month after the wedding, she could not contain herself.

She made her first friendly overture of many days to Sidney the following day. They met in the locker room in the basement where the street clothing for the ward patients was kept.

OLD BELIEFS ENDURE

Contact With Civilization Falls to Eradicate Ancient Superstitions Among Indians of the Northwest.

Pendleton, Ore.—Ancient superstitions of Northwest Indians have not been eradicated by contact with civilization.

All Indians of the Northwest tribes at one time were believers in animism—that is, they endowed all animals and inanimate things with souls or spirits.

Cast Evil Spell Over Chief. Old Chief No Shirt believed Shel-low-he-tammy, through his "weyekin," had cast an evil spell over the chief.

The medicine man is thought to have superior ability in the control of his "weyekin" and in getting its assistance. He evokes the aid of his "weyekin" by tom-toms and other weird means.

PAINS SHARP AND STABBING

Woman Thought She Would Die. Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Ogdensburg, Wis.—"I suffered from female troubles which caused piercing pains like a knife through my back and side. I finally lost all my strength so I had to go to bed. The doctor advised an operation but I would not listen to it. I thought of what I had read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and tried it. The first bottle brought great relief and six bottles have entirely cured me. All women who have female trouble of any kind should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

DO NOT CROSS YOUR LEGS

William Muldoon, the Famous Physical Instructor, Also Condemned Mouth Breathing.

"Every time a man crosses his legs
he gives his heart that much extra work to do," said William Muldoon. "You know what happens to a stream of water when you squeeze the garden hose."

This widely known physical instructor attached great importance to proper breathing. He told me of the trouble he had in making John L. Sullivan breathe properly, as he dwelt on the harm that numbers of Americans do themselves (witness the prevalence of catarrhal affections) by the bad habit of mouth breathing.

"Keep your mouths shut. Breathe through your nostrils," he said.

If the nostrils are stopped up he explained how they may be made to function properly by simple cleansing ablu-tions, and he insists that these be performed regularly.

"We need filtered air just as we need filtered water, and the nose is our filter. You boys want to remember that."

Eucalyptus Leaves.

Eucalyptus are evergreens, which shed their bark but not their leaves, but they are not shade trees. The leaves are placed in inclined rather than in horizontal positions, and the passage of light is but little obstructed.
For this reason, smaller trees and bushes and grass grow underneath, and the woods in places assume the appearance of a jungle from which arise the towering shafts of trees. It is interesting to note that primitive types of eucalyptus, as well as the young or more modern types, have horizontal leaves, pointing to a time in the geologic past when the climate was more congenial and no precautions to conserve moisture need be taken.—National Geographic Magazine.

Drug Store Latin.

In one of the southern prohibition states a physician had occasion to order some whisky for a patient. It so happened that the whisky reached the express office on Sunday morning. The doctor sent for the package, and the express agent returned the reply that the whisky could not be delivered on Sunday. Thereupon the doctor sent word that the whisky was for a very sick patient and must be had at once.
The agent sent a reply that if the doctor would write a prescription for the whisky he could get it. The doctor wrote upon his prescription blank:
"Sic semper tyranni," and the whisky was promptly delivered.—Medical Constipation and indigestion

These are twin evils. Persons suffering from indigestion are often troubled with constipation. Mr. Rob. Allison, Mattoon, Ill., writes that when she first moved to Mattoon she was a great sufferer from indigestion and constipation.
Food distressed her and there was a feeling like a heavy weight pressing on her stomach and chest. She did not rest well at night and felt worn out a good part of the time. One bottle of Chamberlain's Tablets corrected this trouble so that she has since felt like a different person.—Adv.

PRESIDENT TELLS CONGRESS STATE OF WAR WITH GERMANY EXISTS

Wilson in Special Message Asks Lawmakers to Accept Gage of Battle With Kaiser—No Quarrel With Other Central Powers.

WANTS 500,000 MEN AND UNIVERSAL SERVICE

Declares Neutrality Is No Longer Feasible or Desirable and Urges Practical Co-Operation With Allies, Including Troops and Liberal Financial Credits.

Washington, April 3.—President Wilson appeared before the special session of congress which convened Monday and made what is probably the most important address heard by the legislative body of the United States since the Civil war.

Advices Energetic Measures

"I advise that the congress declare the recent course of the imperial German government to be in fact nothing less than war against the United States; that it formally accept the status of belligerent which has thus been thrust upon it; and that it take immediate steps not only to put the country in a more thorough state of defense, but also to exert all its power and employ all its resources to bring the government of the German empire to terms and end the war."

The president advocated "co-operation and counsel in action with the governments now at war with Germany and the extension of the most liberal credits to them."

He advocated a greatly augmented navy and an additional army of 500,000 men with additions as needed.

Text of the Message.

Gentlemen of the Congress: I have called the congress into extraordinary session because there are serious, very serious, choices of policy to be made, and made immediately, which it was neither right nor constitutionally permissible that I should assume the responsibility of making.

On the third of February last I officially laid before you the extraordinary announcement of the Imperial German government that on and after the first day of February it was its purpose to put aside all restraints of law or of humanity and use its submarines to sink every vessel that sought to approach either the ports of Great Britain and Ireland or the western coasts of Europe or any of the ports controlled by the enemies of Germany within the Mediterranean.

The new policy has swept every restriction aside. Vessels of every kind, whatever their flag, their character, their cargo, their destination, their errand, have been ruthlessly sent to the bottom without warning and without thought of help or mercy for those on board, the vessels of friendly neutrals along with those of belligerents, even hospital ships and ships carrying relief to the sorely bereaved and stricken people of Belgium.

"I was for a little while unable to believe that such things would in fact be done by any government that had hitherto subscribed to the humane practices of civilized nations. International law had its origin in the attempt to set up some law which would be respected and observed upon the seas, where no nation had right of dominion and where lay the free highways of the world."

By painful stage after stage law has been built up with meager enough results. Indeed, after all was accomplished, but always with a clear view, at least, of what the heart and conscience of mankind demanded. This minimum of right the German government has swept aside under the plea of retaliation and necessity and because it had no weapons which it could use at sea except those which it is impossible to employ as it is employing without throwing to the winds all scruples of humanity or of respect for the understandings that were supposed to underlie the intercourse of the world. I am not now thinking of the property involved, immense and serious as that is, but only of the wanton and wholesale destruction of the lives of noncombatants, men, women and children, engaged in pursuits which have always, even in the darkest periods of modern history, been deemed innocent and legitimate. Property can be paid for; the lives of peaceful and innocent people cannot be.

It is a war against all nations. American lives taken in ways which it has stirred us very deeply to learn of, but the ships and people of other neutral and friendly nations have been sunk and overwhelmed in the waters in the same way. There has been no discrimination. The challenge is to all mankind. Each nation must decide for itself how it will meet it. The choice we make for ourselves must be made with a meditation of counsel and a temperateness of judgment befitting our character and motives as a nation. We must not be excited feeling away. Our motive will not be revenge or the victorious assertion of the physical might of the nation, but only the vindication of right, of human right, of which we are only a single champion.

When I addressed the congress on the 23rd of February I thought that it would suffice to assert our neutral rights with arms, our right to use these as against unlawful interference with our right to keep our people safe against unlawful violence. But armed neutrality, it now appears, is impracticable. Because submarines are in effect outlaws when used as the German submarines have been used against merchant shipping, it is impossible to defend ships against their attacks, as the law of nations has assumed more merchantmen would defend themselves against privateers or cruise ships, visible craft giving chase upon the open sea.

It is common prudence in such circumstances, grim necessity, indeed, to endeavor to destroy them before they have shown their own intention. They must be dealt with upon sight, if dealt with at all. The German government denies the right of neutrals to use arms at all within the areas of the sea which it has proscribed, even in the defense of rights which no modern publicist has ever before questioned their right to defend. The intimation is conveyed that the armed guards which we have placed upon our merchant ships will be treated as beyond the pale of law and subject to be dealt with as pirates would be. Armed neutrality is ineffectual enough at best; in such circumstances and in the face of such pretensions it is worse than ineffectual. It is likely only to produce what it was meant to prevent; it is practically certain to draw us into the war without either the rights or the effectiveness of belligerents. There is one choice we cannot make, we are incapable of making. We will not choose the path of submission and suffer the most sacred rights of our nation and our people to be ignored or violated. The wrongs against which we now array ourselves are no common wrongs; they cut to the very roots of human life.

Asks Significant Action.

With a profound sense of the solemn and even tragical character of the step I am taking and of the grave responsibilities which it involves, but in unhesitating obedience to what I deem my constitutional duty, I advise that the congress declare the recent course of the Imperial German government to be in fact nothing less than war against the United States; that it formally accept the status of belligerent which has thus been thrust upon it; and that it take immediate steps not only to put the country in a more thorough state of defense, but also to exert all its power and employ all its resources to bring the government of the German empire to terms and end the war.

What this will involve is clear. It will involve the utmost practicable co-operation in counsel and action with the governments now at war with Germany, and as incident to that the extension to the government of the most liberal financial credits in order that our resources may so far as possible be added to theirs. It will involve the mobilization of all the material resources of the country to supply the materials of war and serve the incidental needs of the nation in the most abundant and yet the most economical and efficient way possible. It will involve the immediate full equipment of the navy in all respects, but particularly in supplying it with the best means of dealing with the enemy's submarines. It will involve the immediate addition to the armed forces of the United States already provided for by law in case of war at least five hundred thousand men, who should, in my opinion, be chosen upon the principle of universal liability to service, and also the authorization of substantial additional increments of equal force so soon as they may be needed and can be handled in training. It will involve, also, of course, the granting of adequate credits to the government, sustained, I hope, so far as they can equitably be sustained by the present generation, by well-conceived taxation.

I say sustained so far as may be equitable by taxation, because it seems to me that it would be most unwise to base the credits which will now be necessary entirely on money borrowed. It is our duty, I most respectfully urge, to protect our people so far as we may against the serious hardships and evils which would be likely to arise out of the inflation which would be produced by vast loans.

Supply Allies.

In carrying out the measures by which these things are to be accomplished, we should keep constantly in mind the wisdom of interfering as little as possible in our own preparation and in the equipment of our own military forces with the duty—for it will be a practical duty—of supplying the nations already at war with Germany with the materials which they can obtain only from us or by our assistance. They are in the field and we should help them in every way to be effective.

I shall take the liberty of suggesting, through the several executive departments of the government for the consideration of your committee, measures for the accomplishment of the several objects I have mentioned. I hope it will be your pleasure to deal with them as having been framed after very careful thought by the branch of the government upon which the responsibility of conducting the war and safeguarding the nation will most directly fall.

Country Filled With Spies.

One of the things that has served to convince me that the Prussian autocracy was not and could never be our friend is that from the very outset of the present war it has filled our unsuspecting communities and even our offices of government with spies and set criminal intrigues everywhere afoot against our national unity of counsel, our peace within and without, our industries and our commerce.

Indeed, it is now evident that its spies were here even before the war began; and it is unhappily not a matter of conjecture but a fact proved in our courts of justice that the intrigues which have, more than once come perilously near to disturbing the peace and dislocating the industries of the country have been carried on at the instigation, with the special, and even under the personal direction of official agents of the Imperial government accredited to the government of the United States. Even in checking these things and trying to expiate them we have sought to put the most generous interpretation possible upon them because we knew that their source lay, not in any hostile feeling or purpose of the German people towards us (who were no doubt as ignorant of them as we ourselves were), but only in the selfish designs of a government that did what it pleased and told its people nothing.

Proof of Enmity.

But they have played their part in serving to convince us at least that that government entertains no real friendship for us and means to act against our peace and security at its convenience. That it means to stir up enemies against us at our very doors the intercepted note to the German minister at Mexico City is eloquent evidence.

We are accepting this challenge of hostile purpose because we know that in such a government, following such methods, we can never have a friend; and that in the presence of its organized power, always lying in wait to accomplish we know not what purpose, there can be no assured security for the democratic governments of the world.

Accept Gauge of Battle.

We are now about to accept gauge of battle with this natural foe to liberty and shall if necessary spend the whole force of the nation to check and nullify its pretensions and its power. We are glad, now that we see the facts with no veil of false pretense about them, to fight thus for the freedom of the world and for the liberation of its people, the German people included; for the rights of nations, great and small, and the privilege of men everywhere to choose their way of life and of obedience. The world must be made safe for democracy. Its peace must be planted upon the tested foundations of political liberty. We have no selfish ends to serve. We desire no conquest, no dominion. We seek no indemnities for ourselves, no material compensation for the sacrifices we shall freely make. We are but one of the champions of the rights of mankind. We shall have been satisfied when those rights have been made as secure as the faith and the freedom of nations can make them.

Disclaims Selfish Objects.

Just because we fight without rancor and without selfish object, seeking nothing for ourselves but what we wish to share with all free peoples, we shall, I feel confident, conduct our operations as belligerents without passion and ourselves observe with proud punctilio the principles of right and of fair play we profess to be fighting for.

I have said nothing of the governments allied with the imperial government of Germany, because they have not made war upon us or challenged us to defend our right and our honor. The Austro-Hungarian government has, indeed, showed its unqualified endorsement and acceptance of the reckless and lawless submarine warfare adopted now without disguise by the Imperial German government, and it has therefore not been possible for this government to receive Count Tarnowski, the ambassador recently accredited to this government by the imperial and royal government of Austria-Hungary; but that government has not actually engaged in warfare against citizens of the United States on the seas, and I take the liberty, for the present at least, of postponing a discussion of our relations with the authorities at Vienna.

No Enmity Toward German People.

It will be all the easier for us to conduct ourselves as belligerents in a high spirit of right and fairness because we act without animus, not in enmity towards a people with the desire to bring any injury or disadvantage upon them, but only in armed opposition to an irresponsible government which has thrown aside all considerations of humanity and of right and is running amuck. We are, let me say again, the sincere friends of the German people, and shall desire nothing so much as the early re-establishment of intimate relations of mutual advantage between us—however hard it may be for them, for the time being, to believe that this is spoken from our hearts.

It is a distressing and oppressive duty, gentlemen of the congress, which I have performed in thus addressing you. There are, it may be, many months of fiery trial and sacrifice ahead of us. It is a fearful thing to lead this great, peaceful country into war, into the most terrible and disastrous of all wars, civilization itself seeming to be in the balance.

Put Right Over Peace.

But the right is more precious than peace, and we shall fight for the things which we have always carried nearest our hearts—for democracy, for the right of those who submit to their own government, for the rights and liberties of small nations, for a universal dominion of right by which we shall bring peace and safety to all nations and make the world itself at last free.

To such a task we can dedicate our lives and our fortunes, everything that we are and everything that we have, with the pride of those who know that the day has come when America is privileged to spend her blood and her might for the principles that gave her birth and happiness and the peace which she has treasured. God helping her, she can do no other.

RE-ELECT CLARK SPEAKER OF HOUSE

MISSOURI MAN NOMINATED BY AN INDEPENDENT REPUBLICAN MEMBER—TAKES 50 MINUTES.

DEFEATED MANN OF ILLINOIS

Vote stood Clark, 217; Mann, 205; Legroot, 2; Gillette, 2, and Two Recorded as Present But Not Voting.

Washington—Champ Clark of Missouri was elected speaker of the house of representatives of the Sixty-fifth session in a session of the house that was marked with sensation almost from the outset. The speaker defeated James R. Mann, of Illinois.

CHAMP CLARK

Mr. Clark received 217 votes against 205 for Representative Mann, the Republican choice for speaker, who not only failed to receive an independent vote but lost support of five of his party colleagues. Four hundred and twenty-nine members were present.

All Democrats voted for Mr. Clark and were joined by Representatives Schall, Progressive, Minnesota; Martin, Progressive, Louisiana; London, Socialist, New York, and Randall, Prohibitionist, California.

Mann Loses Republicans.

The five Republicans who did not support Mr. Mann were Representatives Gardner, Massachusetts, who voted for Representative Lenroot, of Wisconsin; Gray, New Jersey and Dallinger, of Massachusetts, who voted for Representative Gillett, of Massachusetts, and Haskell, New York and James, Michigan, who voted "present." Representative Fuller, independent, Massachusetts, voted for Representative Lenroot.

To the surprise of Republicans, Representative Schall placed Mr. Clark in nomination. For a time it was thought that he had done so by inadvertence, but later it developed he had acted through prearrangement with Democratic leaders.

He asked permission to address the house just after the first roll call and then after declaring the international situation demanded united support of President Wilson, aroused tremendous cheering by announcing that although with his sightless eyes he could be of no use on the battlefield he could at least support the president by casting a vote for Champ Clark.

Representative Green, of Massachusetts, presented Mr. Mann's name and Representative Lenroot, of Wisconsin, the Progressive-Republican leader, seconded it. There were no other nominations and in just an hour and forty minutes after the house was convened Mr. Clark, as he had promised, was declared elected and was escorted to the chair by a committee headed by Mr. Mann. In a brief address the speaker pleaded for united action in the present crisis.

Clark Sees Difficult Work.

"I am profoundly grateful to the house for my fourth election to the speakership; also to the distinguished gentleman from Illinois, Mr. Mann, for the cordial, generous and splendid manner in which he introduced me," the speaker said.

"I appreciate that it will be difficult to discharge the duties of speaker in this house. I will use my utmost endeavor to be fair and I invoke the aid of all members in so doing. Politics find no place in this house when the welfare and the common defense of the nation are at stake. Let all the ends we aim at be our country's." After his speech Speaker Clark said:

"Gentlemen, I am ready to take the oath of office and request that it be administered by Representative Talbot of Maryland."

First Mint in America.

When the Spaniards landed in what is now the Republic of Mexico they found themselves in an Indian state having many of the institutions of civilization. One of these was a mint operated by the Aztecs, counting flat copper pieces of an odd shape. These were called siccipilli, and two pieces of lesser denomination were known as the zontle and oloti. Cucuo beans served the purpose of small change, 20 beans equalling the value of one oloti, 20 oloti making one zontle, and 20 zontle one siccipilli. Following the conquest of the country in 1521 by Cortez, the Spaniards set out to establish a stable system of government and finance for the new colony. So they took over the Aztecs' mint and remodeled it to suit their own purposes. They also sought out every possible source of gold and other valuable metals.

Publicity's Golden Mean.

No financial institution can afford to sacrifice its character or wully its name by adopting the methods of the charlatan or the faker, yet between the ordinarily accepted sense of the word, ignity and its antithesis there is a path sufficiently broad to accommodate the message of any institution and carry distinction in the telling. The purpose of publicity is not notoriety or charlatanism—it is educational, purposeful—clean and a mighty force for conservative development. It is to carry your message to those who need your service, need your advice, your counsel or your wares. A successful advertising campaign is merely the lengthened shadow of an idea. An idea which carries to the minds of the public the character of your service or the quality of your wares. It is not sufficient to tell the public that you exist. You must tell them why and for what you exist, the ideals you represent, the service you render.—Pacific Banker.

Glory of the Minority.

What is a minority? The chosen heroes of this earth have been in a minority. There is not a social, political or religious privilege that you enjoy today that was not bought for you by the blood and tears and patient sufferings of the minority. It is the minority that have vindicated humanity in every struggle. It is a minority that have stood in the van of every moral conflict, and advancing that is noble in the history of the world. Minority! If a man stands for the right and the truth, though every man's finger be pointed at him, though every man's tongue be set against him, he is a minority; for God and good are with him, and God and good are for him. —J. B. Hays, in his address against him.—J. B. Hays, in his address against him.

GREAT ACTIVITY AT HARVARD

Hundreds of Students Preparing Themselves to Take Up Duties of Officers in Event of War.

Cambridge, Mass., April 3.—Harvard is probably doing more to prepare for war than any other American university. There are 1,100 men enrolled in the department of military science and tactics. The work makes this by no means what the collegians call a "snop course." Each man must put in five hours of drill and four of instruction every week. In spite of this, the course has the biggest membership of any in the university.

The object is to train men for more than to handle a rifle. The wish is to turn out officers. President Lowell said in an address to "rookies": "On you, as officers, will depend the lives of other men, and it is your duty to become an expert as possible, for the pages of history are thickly strewn with the blunders of commanding officers.

PREPARE FOR WORK IN NAVY

Yale Students in Training to Serve in Motor Boat Patrol—St. Louis Organizations Busy.

New Haven, April 3.—More than a hundred have volunteered for the Yale Naval Training Unit, which is the latest preparedness activity added to the Reserve corps and Aero corps units already established. Plans for immediate work for the motor boat patrol have been adopted, a contribution of $1,000 from a graduate has been made to begin the financing of the undertaking, and a permanent committee chosen to direct the work of training. Several graduates have volunteered their services as instructors.

St. Louis, Mo., April 3.—All civic and national organizations in this city have banded together in a gigantic campaign to enroll 20,000 new members in the St. Louis chapter of the American Red Cross. Recruiting headquarters have been established in all parts of the city.

MINES TO PROTECT NEW YORK

All Possible Precautions Being Taken to Protect the Great Metropolis and Its Harbor.

New York, April 3.—Two enormous mine fields will assist in protecting the port of New York in the event of war with Germany.

States army men, admit this nation has the best harbor mine type in the world.

The coast artillery corps and the corps of engineers have the mine fields all completed save the last detail, the actual laying of the mines. The big spheres are now stored here by the hundreds.

The mine fields are off Sandy Hook—the outpost of the line frequently used southern gate to the city—and off Sandy Point, the northern entrance by way of Long Island Sound.

SECRET SERVICE MEN BUSY

Complete War Census of Long Island Being Taken—Through Classification of Residents Made.

New York, April 3.—Government secret service agents are taking a war census of Long Island, a likely place for a hostile expeditionary force to land for the purpose of attacking the metropolis in case the United States were at war alone against a powerful nation or coalition of nations.

The census has two chief purposes: To list resources that can be made quickly available for defense use, and to locate all hostile, or probably hostile residents or temporary dwellers of the district.

In carrying out the first part of the plans all motortrucks are being inspected and classified and contractors are being asked concerning shovels, picks and other trenching equipment they have on hand. Lumber yards are also being inventoried in a most thorough manner.

HAD A CAPITAL OF $400

In Six Years He Was Well Off

An Alberta farmer, who had borrowed from a loan company, in remitting to them the last payment on his mortgage, decided to give them the history of his experience, on a Manitoba farm. It was that of many another farmer, and for the benefit of those who contemplate a change the liberty is taken of reproducing it.

"I will give you here a brief summary of my experience since coming here six years ago. I was a new hand at farming, my trade being meat-cutting and butchering. My capital was $400, which was a first payment on my quarter section (160 acres). Most of my stock, harness, implements, etc., were bought at sales, all "on time," necessarily. The buildings on the place were about as good as nothing and had either to be rebuilt or replaced entirely. There were 26 acres broken, and very badly farmed, bringing poor returns the first year. After mentioning a number of mishaps, he says: "In spite of all these drawbacks, I have done well. I consider my farm worth $3,500 to $4,000. I have four head of horses, 12 of cattle, over 400 purebred Buff Orpington chickens and 125 turkeys, besides implements, harness, etc., to run my place. I have a well 170 feet deep with an inexhaustible supply of water. The well with pump cost me $400. I have built a 12x12 chicken house and put up nearly $50 worth of poultry fencing; have built root cellars to hold over 3,000 bushels of potatoes and other vegetables. As to income, I raise about ten acres of garden and roots annually which net from $600 to $1,000 total. I generally sell from 20 to 40 tons timothy hay which brings from $6 to $14 per ton. My grain is most all used on the farm except a few hundred bushels sold to the neighbors for seed. My four milk cows bring in from $50 to $80 each (counting calf). Last year 80 hens laid 600 dozen eggs which averaged more than 25 cents a dozen (I always work for winter egg production). The surplus hens were sold in spring, dressed at 81 cent. My turkeys average $2.50 each to fall. By having vegetables to feed my young cattle, the two-year-old steers bring $75 each in spring."—Advertisement.

The Realities of Two Worlds

Here is an interpretation of the meaning of Easter for average men and women by Paul Jenkins: Has this ancient festival ever had any real spiritual significance for you?

TEXT—Jesus saith unto them, come and break your fast. And none of the disciples durst inquire of him, who art thou? knowing that it was the Lord.—John 21:12

UNLESS you remember the circumstances involved in the situation described in the text, its words will seem to you unimportant and meaningless, perhaps utterly absurd as the text of an Easter sermon. But if you remember the circumstances involved, those simple words will describe to you a situation which you can find none more significant, more startling, more dramatic, more thrilling, more glorious, between the first chapter of Matthew and the last chapter of Revelation.

To bring the true situation before you, let me describe a picture of the scene, from the marvelous brush of the French master painter of the Christ, so much of whose lifetime has been given to the production of those wonderful paintings of the life of Christ that have been the delight of the Christian world for more than a decade. And that of the hundreds of canvases that J. James Tissot has delighted to fill with charming, passionate, dramatic and spiritual depictions of movements in the earthly life of the Savior, that which shows the moment described in our text is one of his masterpieces indeed.

The picture makes the hour of the scene to be, as we know that it was, the most charming hour of the loveliest season of the year, just at sunrise of a cloudless day in spring. Beneath the azure sky and clear in the sunrise glow of that hour, the lake of Gallilee shines translucent from turquoise to pearl.

Resting at the water's edge are the two boats, the large and the small, of which we read, simple and clumsy, specimens of the boat builder's craft of that day. Oars, poles, and nets in them tell their use. Upon the pebbles lies a hastily discarded net, still damp and dark from the water, and close by lies the heap of splendid fish, fresh, wet, gleaming and silvery in the sun. The coats of fire glow ruddy in a little heap, and a tiny thread of opal smoke rises straight in the air of the windless dawn. On an outer garment, placed blanket-wise for him, perhaps by the tenderness of a disciple, sits the Lord. In even so simple a pose the noble and commanding presence of his personality is yet unmistakable.

At his right hand he heaped up a dozen flat cakes of the newly baked bread whose luscious brown almost suggests their fragrant aroma. On a simple split stick a fish is spitted, and the Lord holds it in one hand above the coals to brown, with the other hand moving in simple gesture and with uplifted face, as he speaks naturally, familiarly, and with most evident fascination to the spellbound man that squat in oriental fashion facing him across the fire. "Spellbound," did we say? You should see the picture to know what divine power they are held. Motionless as statues, the most of them yawn eagerly, amazedly, passionately forward, their eyes centered on his face as if no looking would ever satisfy the hearts that feed on the joy of seeing him, hearing him, participating in the heavenly marvel of the hour.

Such is the scene. I cannot know just what it means to you. But may I not tell you what it means to me? It has been my privilege, now and again, to sit as friend or guest at the tables of the rich, where the snowy damask gave joy alike to the appreciative eye and the touching hand, where countless silver gleamed, where glass sparkled like the diamonds that it approached in value, and where the daintiest china of France supported fish, flesh and fowl of two continents and two seas. It has been my honor now and again, to sit at the tables of the great, where men of intellect and fame and women of intellect and charm have made an hour unforgettable and have taught one more than a whole university of mere classrooms could do. It has been my profit to sit at banquets where hundreds sat about the tables and listened to the words of heroes, heroes of war and heroes of peace, captains of soldiery and captains of industry, and felt the while they listened, that they were in touch with the men and the forces that move the world. It has been my benefit to sit at least in the homes of the humble, in log cabins and huts, dining off metal plates and plain fare, and there to learn that not circumstances, but characters make men and women. It has been my delight to sit about the fire of the grass, in forests and wildernesses, the campfire at hand and the viands won from stream or forest only by gun or rod. But when I contemplate the circumstances of that morning meal beside the lake of Gallilee and realize the realities that were there present—things, emotions, sights, that surpass words to describe—I know that I had rather have been one of those men that ate the bread the Lord baked, the fish his hands caught and cooked for them, that saw what they saw and heard what they heard, than to have attended any other banquet that wealth ever bought or meat that friendship's tribute!

"Why not?" Tell me, who were there? Tell me whom that group consisted of? "Oh, a group of coarse fishermen, fagged out by a night's work, listening to a chance rabbi who is getting breakfast for them while he talks." Yes; you can make that answer if you have succeeded in wiping Easter day out of your calendar.

Who were there? "Oh, let's see, wasn't that the time when Jesus met his disciples and the miracle of the great draft of fishes occurred?" It was; and that is about the way the average churchgoer (shall I have to say the average Christian?) would answer.

Who was there? Listen! Men were there that had seen the man in their midst die in pain on the horrid cross of a Roman criminal execution, had witnessed his writhings of agony, had seen the sweat of blood, had heard from those very lips at which their eyes now gazed as if enchanted the last scream as the body sank lifeless in the nail-suspended collapse of death. Men sat there who had taken that body down in tears and dismay and in the shock of disillusioned hopes had buried it and gone away feeling as if their universe had tumbled in wreck about their heads, murmuring to one another as they went: "And this is the end of him whom we hoped that it had been he that should have redeemed Israel!" And that man, sat there before them alive! Alive? He had caught fish and made a fire and baked bread and helped them to make one of the great banquets of their fishermen's experience, and now while they sat stunned, amazed, astounded, incapable almost of realizing what had occurred—incapable, as they afterward wrote, of speaking a syllable of inquiry—he calmly served and fed them while he talked to their white faces!

"Oh, impossible, incredible! false, never to be believed! a myth, a lie, a dream, a delusion, a frenzy or fantasy of disappointed, overworked and fabled brains." Yes, and if you can think of any other terms of denial to write against it, set it down! And when you have said and done it all, the plain statement of these men who sat there will challenge you to your face to hear them tell you that it happened, that he was there, that they were there, and he whom they had laid in that sealed-up grave sat in their midst in the same body that they had known, and cooked for them and ate and served them as he chatted the while! God be praised for heaven's sweet simplicity, that it was not in some awful, supernatural shape, "trailing clouds of glory," that he came back to them, but that it was in the shape of the man whom they had known, had lived with, walked with, talked, slept and eaten with—and lo! before their eyes he moved and breathed and walked and ate and talked, the unmistakable and now incredible, but still actual being that he was before! Oh, if you will let these things, these truths, even this simple scene, get into your head and your heart—what an amazing Easter this day would be to you! "Why?" Because, I care not who and what you have been before, if you have never realized the mighty meaning of this simple scene, you may have known a dead Jesus, but you have never known the risen Savior!

We have asked who were there? Let us take a final moment to ask what else was there? There, in that hour, all the mighty realities of the two worlds were gathered; this world and the next, the world that the disciples had known so long and the world of which they were catching faint but dazzling, astounding glimpses as they gazed on him; the world that he had been born in, lived in, worked in, died in—and the world that he was living in at the time that he ate and talked before their eyes!

The realities of this world were there. Labor was there—their of the toll-worn hands, calloused by the wet cords, they of the many a night of fruitless toil, they know what the weariness and uncertainty of labor is as few others know. Hunger was there, the meal that his love prepared to meet their famished bodies, doubly worn with abstinence and disappointment. Death was there, the end of all earth—or why the meal to keep the body going, the labor for one's loved ones, and why the amazement at seeing one over whom the omnipotence of death had no power?

And the realities of the world beyond were there. Life was there—such life as never a soul had dreamed of since Adam cowered beneath his sentence of mortality. The body was there; and now we know why it is called the "Apostle's Creed," that says: "I believe in the resurrection of the body." What other faith, what other verdict, what other creed could they have that saw the nail marks in the hands that served them? Love was there—incarnate in him, who, though already in the life beyond so loved them that he could reward their work-day toil and could prepare for them the food that was affection's tribute to self. And the Christ was there!

Language fails. Words can say no more. But this—all this—is the true Gospel of Easter day.

Easy Identified. A tiny boy stood on the outer edge of the passing gang. His knuckles were in his eyes, and when a woman asked him what was the matter, his answer was synopsized with sob. He had "got lost from his brother and couldn't find him—anywhere."

The woman assured him it would be all right. She would help him to find his brother. What did he look like? And the tiny boy gave her an illuminating clue: "He—he wears long pants."

For Asthmatic Canaries. Never put a damp perch into the cage. If only one set of perches are used, clean them thoroughly with a piece of sandpaper, then wipe off with a dry, soft cloth. This will prevent asthma, which causes the death of hundreds of canaries in the United States every year.

Near Potato Coming.

Enter the imitation potato! It is called the dasheen, is a member of the tuber family and flourishes in Trinidad. Recently the dasheen has been introduced into the South, and it is expected that cultivation of the plant will help to cut down the cost of high living, as represented in the potato. A frostless season of seven months is required to grow the dasheen, which cannot be cultivated farther north than South Carolina. As an article of food it is said to have less water than the potato, and increased protein, starch and sugar. These qualities would be likely to render it even more palatable than the familiar potato, and we may soon be confronted with restaurant bills reading: "Dasheen Lyonnaise" or "Dasheen a la O'Brien."

Teamster's Life Saved.

WRITES LETTER THAT IS WORTH READING VERY CAREFULLY.

Peterston Bros.: I was afflicted with a very severe sore on my leg for years. I am a teamster. I tried all medicines and salves, but without success. I tried doctors, but they failed to cure me. I couldn't sleep for many nights from pain. Doctors said I could not live for more than two years. Finally Peterston's Ointment was recommended to me and by its use the sore was entirely healed. Thankful, yours, William Hesse, West Park, Ohio, Mar. 22, 1915, care F. G. Reitz, Box 99. Peterston says: "I am proud of the above letter and have hundreds of others that tell of wonderful cures of Eczema, Piles and Skin Diseases." Peterston's Ointment is 25 cents at all druggists, and there isn't a broad minded druggist in America that won't praise it. Adv.

A Blow From the Bench.

"Your honor," informed the policeman as he pulled to the prisoner, "he refused to rise while the band played the 'Star-Spangled Banner.'" "I did not recognize the tune," explained the culprit hastily. "Now, my dear man," said the judge sympathetically, "let me whistle it for you, so that hereafter you may distinguish it."

The judge whistled the melody and the prisoner listened intently. When his honor had finished the defendant exclaimed generously: "Your honor, if the band had played the tune as you whistled it, I would not be here today." "Discharged!" interrupted the well-pleased judge. "But the band would," concluded the man in undertone as he hastily retired from the courtroom.—Christian Herald.

More Nature Faking.

Slight Mistake.

One day an old country dame went to visit her son, who was a medical student in a large college. While she was waiting at the door a young man wearing a white coat and apron came out. Going forward to him, she asked in a meek tone: "Are you a student coming out for a doctor?" "No, ma'am," answered the young man; "I'm a painter coming out for a smoke."

APRIL ALWAYS BRINGS the biggest demand of the year—the big Spring demand starts then. May and June only accentuate it.

OBVIOUSLY, it is impossible for any factory to manufacture in those months enough cars to fill the orders that dealers will book in that

IN THE CASE OF THE REO, it has never been possible for us to make enough cars in the winter months to supply the spring rush.

IN FACT, NEVER since the first Reo left the factory has there been a time when it was possible to make enough cars to supply all who wanted Reos.

OF COURSE WE COULD have more nearly caught up with the demand, did not the Reo policy prevent. Were we, in short, willing to sacrifice quality in favor of mere quantity considerations.

FINANCIALLY, REO IS one of the strongest concerns in the world. Among manufacturers the Reo plant is regarded as the "Model Automobile Factory."

SO YOU SEE there's no obstacle in the way of a large quantity production, save that which we have deliberately placed there ourselves.

A phone message or call will bring complete information and a demonstration.

THAT REO POLICY, established at the inception of Reo, has never been changed. Exigencies of the moment influence that plan not at all.

WE REO FOLK are not, never have been, ambitious to make all the automobiles—only the best.

MERE VOLUME does not appeal to us. We covet a reputation that to our way of thinking is far beyond that.

THE QUALITY THAT IS REO is the result of that policy. And it is also the cause of the effect that manifests itself in the form of a constant over-demand—a demand for Reos of all models, that is almost hopelessly in excess of the factory output.

THAT YOU KNOW Reo Quality—that it is splendidly appreciated by motorists generally—is amply evidenced by that very demand.

SO AT THIS TIME, 'twere a waste of words to tell you more of Reo quality.

OUR MESSAGE TO YOU—a suggestion of most vital import at this time—is to delay not another day the selection and ordering of your automobile.

AND IF YOU'VE DECIDED to cease experimenting and buy a Reo see to it that your Reo dealer is advised in the form of an actual order—also you may again be disappointed.

THERE WON'T BE—can't be enough Reos to go 'round. Reports from Reo dealers everywhere tell the same story, sound the same warning.

SO DON'T DELAY—today won't be a minute too soon.
