ENGINEERS SUBMIT COST ESTIMATES ON WATER SYSTEM IMPROVEMENTS

VILLAGE COMMISSIONERS ACTED FAVORABLY ON THE IMPROVEMENTS AT THEIR MEETING MONDAY EVENING AND THE MATTER WILL GO TO A VOTE OF THE PEOPLE.

ADJOURNED REGULAR MEETING OF THE COMMISSION WILL BE HELD MONDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 11, AT WHICH TIME EVERY CITIZEN IS INVITED TO BE PRESENT.

AMOUNT OF THE BOND ISSUE WILL BE DETERMINED AT THE MEETING OF THE COMMISSION NEXT MONDAY EVENING.

At a regular meeting of the village commission held Monday evening, the engineers who have been working on the plans for the proposed improvements for Plymouth's water system, as mentioned in the Mail last week, submitted a detailed report of the estimated cost of the improvements and additions, that will mean an adequate supply of water for some years to come. The commission acted favorably on the report, and proper steps will be taken at once to bring the matter of a bond issue in a sum sufficient to cover the cost of these improvements to a vote of the people at a special election to be held as soon as possible. The commission will determine the amount of the bond issue at the meeting next Monday evening.

An adjourned regular meeting of the commission will be held at the village hall, next Monday evening, October 11th, at 7:00 o'clock, and the commission wishes that every citizen who desires to do so, be present at this meeting, when the question will be fully discussed, that all may understand just what it is proposed to do. Suggestions will be gladly heard and all questions fully answered. Every citizen should be interested in this matter as it is of vital importance to the safety and future welfare of Plymouth. We give below the report of the engineers as submitted to the commission:

October 1, 1920.
To the President and Commissioners, Plymouth, Michigan.

In conformity with your verbal instructions of September 23d, we submit the attached estimate of cost of making these improvements to the municipal water supply system which we have recommended be immediately carried out.

The recommended improvements include the construction of a large reservoir well to be located near the upper end of the present gravity supply line, and equipped with suitable pumping machinery for raising water and supplying it under pressure to the present gravity line, including that portion of the present gravity line which is now supplied with a 12-inch cast iron line, but leaving the present line intact for gravity flow, constructing a covered masonry reservoir at the site of the present abandoned open reservoir and equipping the same with apparatus by means of which the pumps at the well can be automatically operated and the water level in the reservoir raised and held.

cluded an estimate of its cost for the purpose of your information.

Also, we have included an estimate of the cost of equipping the system with a meter, preferably of the venturi type, with automatic indicating and recording apparatus, located on the 10-inch supply line at the pumping station in the village. While there is no part of the proposed water supply system to which such a measuring device becomes essential, it is looked upon as a thoroughly worthwhile adjunct to the plant. We recommend that it be purchased and installed whenever funds become available.

Very truly yours,
Road & Decker, Engineers.
By A. J. Decker.

TO VOTE YOU MUST REGISTER

BECAUSE YOU HAVE VOTED AT PREVIOUS ELECTIONS DOES NOT COUNT.

There seems to be a misunderstanding on the part of many people regarding this fall's registration. For the benefit of those who are in doubt about the matter, we will say that every voter must register, regardless of whether he has ever voted before or not. So, if you are a voter and want to vote at the coming election in November, see to it that you are properly registered.

Voters may register or re-register by personal application to the township clerk, Miss Lina Durfee, or filing affidavits, such application may be made any day, except Sunday, up to the second Saturday before election. This brings the time limit for you to register, with the clerk or deputy registrars, Saturday, October 23rd. Bear this in mind, whether you have registered or not for any election, and are of voting age, you must register in order to vote.

The regular registration board will be at the village hall, on Saturday, October 9th, and again on Saturday, October 16th, the last regular registration day, to receive the names of those desiring to register.

For the convenience of voters in the north end of the village, the township board has appointed E. N. Passage as a deputy registrar, and persons desiring to register can do so by calling at his office on Starkweather avenue. O. H. Loomis has also been appointed a deputy registrar, and he will be glad to take names for registration.

Miss Lina Durfee, township clerk, reports about 420 persons having registered up to Tuesday of this week. At the spring election of 1919 there were in the neighborhood of 800 votes cast.

Ponzi promised fifty per cent. Some few received the fifty per cent, but many received no interest and lost their principal besides.

When people approach you with a promise of big profits, just remember that it's better to obtain a reasonable rate of interest and have your principal remain secure, than to take a chance at an impossible profit and lose your investment.

BACK TO NORMAL

There isn't a man or woman in Plymouth foolish enough to expect the price of clothing and foodstuffs to drop back to 1914 figures over night. They never expect to see 20c butter and 10c eggs any more. And yet it appears that a decline of a few cents here and a few dollars there, which they have been anticipating, has set in.

The break in the sugar market a few weeks ago seems to have started it, for potatoes have followed it, and from $5 and $7 a bushel last spring, they are now down to as low as $1.50 a bushel in many communities. Declines in meat prices of a few cents on the pound have become general throughout the country, and packers state that as a result of the greatest corn crop in the history of the nation, pork prices are due for a still further decline. Women buyers have noted a fall of a few cents in the price of cotton goods, while clothing prices have actually gone off several dollars on the suit over the same time last year.

Various reasons are given for the declines, and any of them appear acceptable, but the fact that more people are laying away their money now, and have quit buying foolishly that which they did not need seems to be the most plausible reason of all. Manufacturers are heavily stocked, and in most instances with goods they must dispose of at a reasonable profit. They know that the orgy of money-spending is about over, and to realize on their investment they must meet the buyer half way in the matter of fair prices. There is less tendency to hoard, too, than during the war, and that has helped to lower prices. It is the swing of the pendulum back in the other direction, and still further drops may be expected if everyone will buy carefully and only what they actually have to have.

GREETING THE FARMER

How do you greet the farmer when he comes to Plymouth? Is your greeting such that he feels that he is with us, but not of us, or is he made to feel that he is in his town, among his people and with his friends? The making or the marring of this town depends greatly upon your attitude toward the farmer when he favors us with his visits. He is the backbone of the community, and without his aid and encouragement this would be an unsuccessful place in which to do business. We ride out into the country and the farmer extends the hand of fellowship and bids us welcome. When we leave he invites us to come again, and he does so in a sincere and honest manner. But is our welcome and our leaving-taking marked by such sincerity?

We of the town are proud of the farmers of this community, and of their wives and sons and daughters. They are men and women of a high order of intelligence, whose integrity is beyond question and whose thrift and energy and perseverance is transforming the countryside into a hive of industry and wealth. But we fear that we of the town are often forgetful of the great duty that we owe to them for their loyalty and generosity in support of our business enterprises. So let us constantly seek to cultivate a spirit still more friendly and neighborly, and open up our hearts that the farmer may look within. For we are but one big family, with one common interest, and the welfare of one is and always will be the welfare of all.

A Wide-Open Policy

By R. RAY BAKER

(© 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Harley Wentworth tilted back in his swivel chair and stretched luxuriously while he milled with a quiet sort of triumph.
The battle—and a hard tussle it had been—was over, and he was the winner. At the age of twenty-eight he was mayor of Kenton. Precedents had been overthrown, the standstill had been overcome, young blood had come out on top. For the first time in its history this city of 15,000 inhabitants was to have youth at its municipal helm. Only today at the polls the venerable Mr. Black had gone down to a crushing defeat.

Mayor-elect Wentworth heard the doorbell, and presently the housekeeper tapped at the study door and announced that "Mr. Hennison" was a caller. Harley directed that Mr. Hennison be admitted, and soon the person in question, a rotund, florid-faced, squint-eyed individual, whose clothing shouted to the world, but made no pretense of sitting, waddled into the study and flopped into an easy chair near Harley's desk.

"Well, we won," granted Mr. Hennison, helping himself to a cigar from the box on the desk and wrenching off the end with some truck-like yellow teeth and ejecting the amputated portion in the general direction of a wastebasket, which it failed to arrive at by several inches.

"I thought we might as well have a thorough understanding," he said, chewing on his cigar. "You were elected, of course, by the wide-open element. You ran with their support; of course, you know that. The understanding was that if you were elected things was to be thrown open—and I was to operate with protection."

Harley exhaled a heavy cloud of smoke. "There was no understanding—except," he said, "I made no promises, and there was no agreement that things were to be wide open. However—of course, I have the welfare of Kenton at heart—"

"I understand," he granted. "I think that's sufficient. All I wanted was your—your silent assurance, you might say."

Scarcely had Mr. Hennison left when the telephone bell rang. "This is Jean," said a girl's voice. "I want to congratulate you. However, I much prefer to do it in person."

"I'll be right down," Harley assured her, and presently his car stopped before a neat, modest dwelling.

Jean came out on the porch and greeted him, not effusively, but in a manner that left no doubt as to sincerity. "I'm proud of you, Harley," she told him as she ushered him into the living room. "It's a great triumph to beat Mr. Black, who was in office so long. You certainly have great responsibilities on those young shoulders now."

"They're rather broad shoulders," he smiled. "They ought to be able to sustain some pretty heavy burdens."

She seemed to hesitate before sneaking again, and her eyes studied the figure in the rug, while the fingers of her right hand fumbled with a diamond-set ring on the third finger of her left hand.

"Harley, you know I'm very proud of you," she said presently, looking him in the eyes; "but I'm afraid, somehow, I've heard it was the wide-open element that selected you, and I'm afraid—well, you know it may bring a certain kind of prosperity, but think of the suffering in many homes. It is pretty well understood that liquor has been sold lately in spite of the prohibition law, and that there has been some gambling, in spite of Mr. Black's efforts. It seems he hasn't been fully supported by part of his administration in his efforts to enforce the new law. That was bad enough, but if things are allowed to run with a free hand a great many people will suffer for it."

The mayor-elect smiled indulgently. "There, there, girl," he said, with a tinge of patronizing in his tones. "Don't you worry your little head about those things. I'll try to manage things all right. You don't understand politics thoroughly."

"There's party loyalty to be considered, and a number of things. Kenton should grow more rapidly, and it will if given a proper chance. I have an opportunity to make a record for myself, and to do so I must shut out my eyes to certain things. But don't worry. Everything is going to run along smoothly."

"Of course you know best, Harley," she told him, while indignation showed in her eyes. "You with you, anyhow, you know that."

It was rather late when they parted. Harley was tired, and he decided to take a short cut to his home; so two blocks from Jean's residence he turned to the left, instead of heading for the main thoroughfare.

Three blocks along this street he came to a corner on which stood a tall, magnificent-looking house, the only one in evidence being that which crept from behind tightly-drawn blinds.

Harley smiled. "Harley hasn't lost any time in squaring up with," he mused. "He seems to have forgotten all about it."

LIVONIA

The name of all persons desiring to be registered in the city of Livonia, Michigan, should be sent to the City Clerk, Livonia, Michigan.

still at the polls, until the inauguration.

He had not time to pass the house before the figure of a man lurched from the building and crossed the sidewalk into the street, swaying unsteadily and holding up a hand.

Harley stopped. He had to in order to avoid running over the man. The latter staggered around to the door of the car and held out his hand.

"I thought 'twas you, Harley," he said thickly. "I want to offer congratulations."

Harley recognized the interloper with a start. He was Jack Bolton, Jean's brother. He had not seen Jack for some time and had forgotten about him.

"Things going to be fine now, eh, Harley?" the other went on, raising a foot to the running board of the car. "Wide open, eh! That's fine. Put 'er there," and he shook hands again with the mayor elect.

"Thank you for your congratulations," said Harley, as he prepared to start the car. But Jack did not take his leave.

"Just a minute, Harley," he said. "Say—have you—well, you see I just blew all my coin at roulette, in Hennison's there; and I wonder if you'd lend me a twenty so I can go back. Mebbe I'll change. I haven't been able to pick 'em worth a cent. When I put coin on bigs, then up comes—thank good sport, Harley, of man. Just lemme have twenty. I got to win back that coin or—ar—go to jail, that's all. It's the firm's money."

Harley flung open the door of the car. "Jump in," he directed. "I haven't that much with me."

The other obeyed, and shortly after the machine stopped before the home of the mayor-elect and the latter dragged his passenger into the house. By this time Jack was in a stupor, and Harley put him to bed and locked the door on him.

Then the mayor-elect went to his study, and sat in the swivel chair, and smoked three cigars, one after the other, and there was no smile of triumph on his face—only a dark scowl and an expression about the lips as though he had tasted something disagreeable.

Finally, with a decisive click of his teeth, he reached for the telephone. The face of the clock, dimly lighted by a desk lamp, showed the hands at half-past two.

He took down the receiver and gave a number. "Hello, Hennison," Harley called presently. "This is Wentworth. Say, Hennison, you'll have to call that off—that wide-open stuff. I've changed my mind. Go easy; none of that abuse. I said I've changed my mind, and I mean it. I was elected mayor of this city, no matter who elected me. I didn't make any promises, remember that. You've got to shut that place up, and shut it tight. I'm not fooling. What's that? Are you threatening me, Hennison? Be careful. I'm going to be mayor of Kenton, and the town's going to prosper, and it's going to be decent, too. Good-by."

The mayor-elect tilted back in his swivel chair and smiled with a quiet sort of triumph, and he sat there a long time, gazing at the picture of a girl.

ARMY OFFICER NAMED TOWN

Grim Joke Responsible for the Peculiar Appellation Imposed on Livonia, Arizona City.

The several recent newspaper and magazine stories going the rounds of the origin of the name of Tombstone, Ariz., which appellation was adopted from the famous mine which made the discoverer, Ed Schieffelin, a Gold Hill boy, a millionaire, give varied versions.

According to Judge C. B. Watson of Gold Hill, a lifelong friend and adviser of the prospector, the naming of this rich mine came about in the following manner: It was in the late '70s when Generalo, the famous Indian chieftain, was giving United States soldiers a merry chase in the southwest that Schieffelin found some very promising prospects in the Tombstone district, but on account of the Indian warfare and shortage of supplies in this isolated country, he covered his new find and retired to Nevada.

The next spring, with only his mounts and pack outfit, and for the purpose of getting a grubstake, he engaged himself as guide to a detachment of United States cavalry, which was seeking a route into the Indian country beyond Schieffelin's find.

Reaching the diversion point, he left the troopers and, pointing to the distant hills he said, "Out there I expect to find my fortune." The commanding officer replied, saying, "Yes! You'll find your tombstone—ol' Generalo will get you."

So Schieffelin called his bonanza "Tombstone."—Portland Oregonian.

Black Diamonds. Black diamonds have little in common with those more generally worn as ornaments, though both are pure carbon. The black ones are slightly harder than the crystal or gem diamonds, in fact are given the hardest substance known. Black diamonds or carbons are without crystalline form, and are found in irregular pieces ranging in size from half a karat to 500 karats. They are dark gray, black or brownish color, and opaque. The real diamond of the jewelry trade also is pure carbon, but transparent, and crystalline in form. WYTHE COUNTY FAIR
MANY PLYMOUTH PEOPLE VISITED OUR NEIGHBORING TOWN LAST WEEK AND WERE WELL ENTERTAINED.

Many Plymouth people attended the Northville Wayne County Fair last week. The weather was cold and disagreeable the first three days, and the attendance was not up to the record of last year, but Saturday, the weather man handed out an ideal day, and a record breaking crowd was upon the fair grounds. The fair this year was better than ever, and that's saying quite a bit for our neighbors on the north have had some mighty good fairs during the past three years, and the officers of the association are to be congratulated on the splendid fair just closed. There were exceptionally fine exhibits in every department. The poultry and live stock departments had an exceptionally large display that drew the attention of every visitor at the fair. There was a large and very attractive display of fruits and vegetables.

The horse races this year were very good, there being a goodly number of horses entered for the several events. Harry C. Robinson, Plymouth's popular starting judge, officiated as starter to the satisfaction of everybody. Among the free attractions was a balloon ascension and triple parachute drop each day, the Flying LeVans, the ball games, etc. A feature of the evening show was a splendid fireworks display.

Saturday was designated as Detroit Day, the feature attraction of the day being the famous Moslem Patrol and their wonderful band, who gave an exhibition drill.

MICHIGAN GRAINS TO COMPETE AT CHICAGO

STATE GROWERS MAKING EFFORT TO BETTER LAST YEAR'S FINE RECORD AT INTERNATIONAL.

Announcement that the International Hay and Grain show will be held at Chicago again this year, in connection with the International Live Stock show, Nov. 7 to Dec. 4, has caused many Michigan farmers to start preparation of exhibits for the big competition. Hope that state growers will be able to better their splendid record of last year is being expressed by local men, who believe that Michigan grains can lead their classes at the International.

"Michigan was well represented at the Chicago show last year," says A. L. Bibbins, secretary of the Michigan Crop Improvement association, "with the result that state crops won recognition and distinction. This was particularly true in the case of Red Rock wheat and Essex corn, both of which won a large number of prizes in their classes.

"Competition of this kind is valuable for the state, in that it acquaints thousands of people with Michigan's crop production. It is gratifying that we start early in preparing our exhibits. Those who have good quality grain, clover, alfalfa, etc., should make selections of the same in the near future and get ready for the International. Corn growers in particular should make selections early."

Ten thousand dollars in prizes was distributed at the show last year, and a similar amount will be put up this fall. Those who are interested in sending an exhibit to the International should communicate at an early date with A. L. Bibbins, Farm Crops Dept., M. A. C., East Lansing.

Grip
 Grip usually starts just the same as a cold with a watery discharge from the nose. You are much more likely to contract the grip when you have a cold. For that reason, when grip is prevalent, you should go to bed as soon as you feel that you are taking cold, and stay in bed until fully recovered, which should not be long if you take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Three days in bed now is better than three weeks later on.—Advt.

CONQUERED

By MILDRED WHITE.

Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union.

Jack Wallingford stretched his long white-fanned form on the grass, and blinked his handsome eyes toward the ocean. Sunlight lay upon the waters, and nearby was the summer resort hotel. The veranda of this big hotel presented a rainbow appearance, with the variegated color costumes of its guests. Arthur Tanner gazed quizzically into his friend's averted face.

"Going to enjoy it here, Wallie?" he asked.

The young man addressed turned alertly and laughed.

"Waiting words for me to conquer," he replied, motioning toward the assembled girls on the veranda.

"As insufferably conceited as ever, I see," Tanner remarked.

"Merely stating a fact," his friend answered pleasantly. Which upon reflection seemed to be true. Whichever Jack Wallingford went, conquest not only awaited, but sought him out.

Moreover, Wallingford possessed unlimited confidence in his own powers of charming where young women were concerned; and his confidence was never over-rated. Arthur Tanner, looking down upon the smiling complacency of his friend, snorted in disgust.

"I wish," he said bitterly, "that you might be bowled over yourself, just for once, and lose out in the courting game."

Wallie shook his head.

"Can't be done," he said. "I've hoped often—that the girls would let me lose—but they don't."

Suddenly Tanner's disapproving expression gave place to one of amusement. "I'll introduce you to Mary Holly," he said. Wallingford arose, setting his ruffled attire.

"Same Mary being a charmer?" he asked.

But Arthur was already waving the signal of a white handkerchief toward the rainbow group of girls.

"Heavens!" his friend ejaculated. "You'll have the whole bunch over."

"I am not in the habit," Tanner responded with dignity, "of waving to the 'bunch.' Mary Holly understands my signals."

The girl who approached wore simple, ordinary white, and her face, at close view, appeared to be rather displeased than otherwise, at her summons. It was a small, dark face, crowned with quantities of loosely coiled hair.

"What do you want with me?" she demanded.

"Want you to meet Mr. Jack Wallingford," Arthur replied. He gave her an understanding smile. "And help to make his stay interesting." Absently nodding, Mary Holly acknowledged the introduction, and as Arthur Turner departed, she settled herself on the grass, where Wallingford had lately reclined and opened a magazine.

"You don't have to stay with me, you know," she told the winner of hearts, and prepared to become absorbed in her book.

Mary Holly certainly was an unusual girl. He found that out before he had been in her company an hour.

"Good morning," said Mary Holly abruptly—and Mary Holly was gone.

She looked much more attractive at the evening promenade. Wallingford was piqued into asking for a place on her program. The program was well filled, and she gave him place reluctantly, then removed the sting of her reluctance with a smile, and the small, piquant face was for the moment transformed. He sought to bring the radiant smile again, and sometimes succeeded. Also, he found himself returning again and again during the days which followed, to Mary Holly's side. Not that he did not bestow his charming presence elsewhere, Wallie was always the favorite of the rainbow circle, but invariably he returned to the indifferent welcome of the always unexpected Mary. And then one night came the climax: It was quite unpremeditated.

"I love you," said Jack Wallingford, then: "You must know that I love you."

"Of course I do," came the surprising girl's answer.

Wallie gasped.

Calmly, Mary Holly regarded him. "Will you marry me?" she asked.

Wallie choked.

"It's leap year, you know," she quietly reminded him, "and if you will make love—well, there's your responsibility."

From near by came a man's exultant laugh. Arthur Tanner's face appeared above the stone boulder against which the two had been leaning.

"Too really did do it, Mary," he cried. "You certainly are game."

"Mary Holly is my half-sister," he explained to Wallingford. "When I told her about your captivating powers she insisted that she'd teach you a lesson—and by George! from the looks of your face this minute, she has."

But Jack Wallingford, still white and serious of gaze, leaned toward the girl.

"Yes, I will marry you," he said. "It happens to be the truth that I love you. Now, what are you going to do about it?"

The unexpected Mary Holly turned to Tanner.

"You see," she said with a mock sigh, "you cannot beat a conqueror. I am going to marry Wallie."

185 audiences tried it this way

MOST people know that the musical enjoyment which they get out of a phonograph depends upon one thing. That thing is the phonograph's realism.

This picture shows the best way to test a phonograph's realism. Miss Betsy Lane Shepherd, the famous soprano, is standing beside the New Edison, and singing in direct comparison with the New Edison's RE-CREATION of her voice.

185 audiences, aggregating more than 100,000 people, have actually heard this comparison. None could distinguish between her living voice and its RE-CREATION.

This is one of the phenomenal records of realism. The New Edison holds all other records of realism, too, because no other phonograph attempts this comparison-test—or could sustain it.

The NEW EDISON

"The Phonograph with a Soul"

You try it this way

—the way we use in our store!—the Realism Test! Test the New Edison's Realism against the pleasure you know music can bring.

Tell us what kind of voice or instrument gives you truest musical enjoyment. Listen while we play your favorite on the New Edison. The Realism Test will enable you to gauge whether the New Edison's RE-CREATION gives you all of this enjoyment.

This is your test! It will help you determine what the New Edison's Realism means, in terms of your own musical enjoyment.

Ask for it! The "Personal Favorites" Realism Test.

Another thing to ask about is our Budget Plan. It disposes of the money question, in a way that will appeal to your common sense and to your pocketbook.

Choosing the Girls at Central

We cannot afford to be disappointed in the choice of a telephone operator. Upon her efficiency is staked our reputation and the high standard of service which we are trying to give Michigan.

Even during the post-war period when girls were so hard to obtain, we stood by our standards—selecting, carefully, girls into whose personality and character have been built those qualities of cheerfulness, even temperament and physical and mental alertness that will qualify her, after a period of careful training, to become a truly efficient operator.

How wisely we have chosen is reflected, today, in the ever increasing efficiency of the service rendered by these girls—a service which we can now state is fast approaching its pre-war efficiency.

The first unit of Brighton's new automobile factory is already under course of construction.

The Howell Foundry, which was recently organized, will erect a new building, 60x100, at once.

Construction work on 467 modern homes has been finished at Pontiac, under direction of the Modern Housing Corporation.

The Chelsea Tribune, Saline Observer, Brighton Argus and Fowlerville Review have raised their subscription price to $2.00 a year.

The Detroit Housing Corporation has built 700 houses in Detroit during the past six months, and has 90 houses now under construction.

Women of Pontiac propose to erect a $200,000 hotel in that city for women exclusively. Probably it will be known as "The Hen House" or "The Chicken Coop."—South Lyon Herald.

Rev. Sayles has resigned as pastor of the Baptist church and has accepted a call to Plymouth. Everyone is sorry to see them leave the community.—Walled Lake Correspondence, Milford Times.

The 1920 census gives Holly a population of 1,888, a gain of 351; Rochester, 2,549, a gain of 1,033; Milford, 1,088; Farmington, 853, a gain of 289; Birmingham, 3,624, a gain of 2,018; South Lyon, 615.

The new Board of Commerce at Farmington has a membership of 192. This is a fine start and the citizens of Farmington are to be congratulated on their progressive spirit in the forming of an organization of this kind to boost their home town.

"Bill" Sprague, Grand Trunk conductor: "The place to see what the cutting down of help in factories amounts to is on the passenger trains leaving Pontiac. Nearly all are on their way back to the farm or small villages from which the high wartime wages coaxed them." And "Bill" might have added that none of them had saved any of the big wages paid them.—South Lyon Herald.

Wayne county supervisors have adopted resolutions again placing before the voters Nov. 2, the $2,000,000 bond issue for River Rouge bridges. The proposition carried by a large majority at the spring election, but the action was found to be faulty because of unconstitutionality of the 1919 statute. The bonds will be 6 per cent, redeemable in 15 years, payable $15,000 a year.—Michigan Investor.

The Washtenaw county fair closed Saturday after five days of a most successful run. In attendance, attractions and farm and fruit displays, it was vastly better than last year. The success of the fair is so apparent that the officials will go ahead with the new fair grounds, and it is expected that they will have them in shape for holding the fair next year. The management has worked hard to bring the fair up to its present high standard, and with the large attendance this year feel confident that the people of this county want a fair and will patronize it.—Ypsilanti Record.

A five-acre athletic field has been donated to the Dearborn public school by Henry Ford. The field lies on the banks of the Little Rouge and is one of the most desirable sites that could have been selected for the purpose for which it is intended.

Practically the entire machinery of the Fordson tractor plant at Dearborn has been moved to the River Rouge plant and the manufacture of these machines will be carried on from the latter place hereafter. Employees at Dearborn are being given temporary employment until new departments are housed in the Dearborn buildings. It is expected that the Dearborn plant in the near future will be used merely for experimental purposes.—Wayne Weekly.

Occasionally we hear someone kick on this and that and the other thing in their home town. Taxes are too high. The city council pulled a bone head. The merchants are robbing the people. The newspapers are no good. The schools are not what they should be. The harbor charge too much, and all along down the line someone has a kick. Mr. Kicker, did you ever hear of a perfect town? Why not move. Your town is just what you, as an individual, makes it. It can be a good town or it can be a poor town to live in. You are part of it, and it is up to you to make it what you want.—Ypsilanti Record.

PROPER STORAGE SAID VITAL FOR POTATOES

MICHIGAN TUBER CROP RANKS SECOND ONLY TO NEW YORK —CAREFUL HANDLING NECESSARY.

Economical handling and storing of Michigan's vast potato crop is one of the greatest problems facing farmers of the state this year, according to Dr. G. H. Coons, plant pathologist at the Michigan Agricultural College. Crop estimates now available indicate one of the largest potato crops produced in recent years, and Michigan will rank second in quantity only to New York, and second to none in quality.

"Many factors enter into the potato situation," says Dr. Coons, "and one would be rash, indeed, who attempted to advise the farmers whether to hold or sell. It is likely that much of the crop will be held for later delivery, however, and proper handling and storage is particularly vital for this portion of the crop."

"Whether the crop is moved at once or held in storage, the farmer must exercise care in handling, protect from frost, and prevent deterioration. A common fault in the past has been to injure seriously by bruises or wounds in handling. In addition serious loss from rotting arises from warm, moist storage conditions."

"The cardinal principle is to provide ventilation and to keep the suberose cost. The best handling method which developed as a result of last season may be applied to the tubers as well as to the soil. The soil get too warm. The potato, even at the lowest offering of this important fall market, is worthy of careful handling."

PLYMOUTH-NORTHVILLE FOOT BALL GAME

The P. H. S. team played their second foot ball game of the season, last Friday, at the Northville Fair. Playing in typical Thanksgiving day weather, the local boys showed fully 100 per cent improvement over the Dearborn game of the previous week.

After the first quarter in which Northville finally worked across the goal for a touchdown, neither team could gain much on the other. In the second quarter Plymouth worked the ball within five yards of the goal line, only to lose the ball on an intercepted pass. In the third quarter Day managed to intercept a pass and raced across the line for the final score of the game, making it 14-0 for Northville.

In spite of the one-sided score, the teams seemed quite evenly matched, and Coach Holcomb expects to give these fellows a tough tussle when they come to Plymouth for the league game, October 15.

Wilcox and Miller were the most conspicuous men for Plymouth, and Stillwell, Day and Chapman for Northville. While Northville seemed to have more "punch," the Plymouth team seemed to have a smoother machine, and should score more in the long run.

The line-up as follows:
Left End—Doudt, Stevens
Left Tackle—James, Wiley
Center—Strasen
Right Guard—Schoof, James
Right Tackle—Harris, Wilcox
Right End—Walker, Hinnau
Quarter—Freyd
Right Half—Wilcox, Harris
Full Back—Miller

Practically the same team will play the first league game of the season with Wayne at the school grounds, Tuesday, October 12. All come. Admission, 25c.

THE UNITED GUN CLUB HOLD REHEARSED SHOOT

The two days' shoot of the United Gun Club was a great success. There were thirty-six entries on Saturday for the 175 target program, and the Hartford Brothers trophy attracted twenty on Friday. The Hartford Brothers trophy was presented to the members of the Michigan Gun Club League, to be placed in open competition among the amateur shooters of the league, as a handicap trophy. This is a four-win trophy, the permanent holder being obliged to make the winning score on the 25-yard mark. The trophy was hotly contested for, going to Mr. Bauknecht on a shoot of five with Mr. Diederich. The two shooters tied up on the good score of 49 out of 50.

The registered (175 target) shoot on Saturday also showed some excellent scores. Howard Benson of Lansing, was high gun with 163 dead ones. The second place went to a tie between R. Miller and F. Bunt, with 161 apiece to their credit. This honor was not shot off, but rests undecided.

Table with columns: Name, Distance, Score. Includes names like Bauknecht, Diederich, Bunt, Warren, Hills, F., Wesner, Gilderleeve, Larsen, Passage, H., Miller, Mrs. Vogel, Balbernie, Taylor, Stanton, Cox, Hardy, Hall, H., Murray, Patterson.

The result of the registered contest, which was a 175 target program, shot from 16 yards is as follows:

Table with columns: Name, Score. WOMAN'S CLUB HELD FIRST MEETING

The first meeting of the Woman's Club, after the summer vacation, was held in the kindergarten room at the school building, last Friday afternoon, October 2nd. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. D. F. Murray, and although the attendance was not as large as expected, an interesting meeting was held. Current events of the summer was the response given to roll call.

After the business session, Division I, with Mrs. George Wilcox, chairman, took charge of the program. The first number was a piano solo by Miss Anna Young.

Mrs. George Wilcox, chairman of division, then gave a brief talk on the year's work. She spoke of the Christmas bazaar, and suggested that the members commence planning at an early date in order to make it a success.

Two vocal solos, "Ah, 'Tis A Dream" and "The Sweetest Flower that Blooms" by C. B. Hawley, were sweetly sung by Mrs. William Baker with Miss Evelyn Thomas at the piano.

This was followed by greetings from the president, "Our New Outlook." She spoke of the good the club might do in the community and offered several suggestions. Miss she, "One small task achieved means more than a score of orders upon it." The program closed with an original poem written by Mrs. Louis Thomas of Detroit, read by Mrs. Coelo Hamilton.

The members were invited to remain for a social hour, and tea and wafers were served by the social committee, with Mrs. Frank Barrows chairman.

This Friday afternoon, October 8th, Mrs. Clara B. Arthur, past president of the Michigan Equal Suffrage Association, will address the club. Mrs. Arthur will speak on "The Next War." Anyone, who is not a member of the Woman's Club, desiring to hear this lecture, may do so by paying twenty-five cents. This lecture will be given in the kindergarten room at the school building at three o'clock.

Sixty-four were present at the Young People's service at the Presbyterian church, last Sunday evening. Interest in the bible contest is running high. Ask the boys and girls for an attendance ballot and see for yourself.

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Presbyterian church held its regular monthly meeting at the church on Wednesday afternoon. This was followed by a pot-luck supper and mid-week devotionals.

W. J. Burrows and S. Conger Hathaway will represent the Plymouth church at the annual meeting of the Synod of Michigan, to be held in the First Presbyterian church at Bay City, October 12-14. The pastor will leave Monday and visit friends in Detroit and Caro enroute.

Get ready to enjoy the lecture course. The first number will be given November 19.

Rev. S. Conger Hathaway and family enjoyed a motor trip to Pontiac, Tuesday afternoon. They were guests of Mrs. Jennie Chaffee.

OH MY STOMACH

"I had stomach trouble so badly that nothing I ate would digest as it should," said Sadie E. Hamilton, Portland, Me., as she began a remarkable story of the relief she has secured from Argo-Phosphate, the new reconstructive, stomach tonic and system purifier.

"Everything that I ate would lie in my stomach like a lump," she explained. "Gas would form and I would suffer distress all the time. I got so I could hardly keep anything down. Trying to get relief, I had my stomach pumped out, but even this did not help me as I continued just as bad."

"I kept hearing, so much about Argo-Phosphate, that I thought maybe it might help me and I decided to try it. I have taken two bottles and to my surprise I am already feeling fine. I can eat anything and I am not troubled at all."

"I am completely rid of my old stomach trouble. I had for three years and I am certainly glad to endorse Argo-Phosphate because I want others to be helped by this wonderful medicine."

"The spirit of wanting to help others is what makes suffering men and women give these splendid testimonials of Argo-Phosphate," said a local druggist.—Advt.

Today's Reflections

Another day has slipped away from us, and we are left to wonder what they go to do.

When a Plymouth man is accused of something, he is convicted and then he has to pay.

What is going down, but bread doesn't seem to have heard anything about it.

About the time a fellow gets interested in the girl in a corset ad, along comes a new magazine with a better looking one.

Let the teachers around Plymouth be of good cheer. A young man in Virginia, who has been teaching for fifteen years, has just fallen heir to $4,000.

The fact that the mail order houses have cut their prices is the best evidence that people are trading at home.

Maybe if prices would drop a little more, we could get hold of enough money to contribute to the charitable "drives" that are sure to be started up again this winter.

And many a Plymouth man who is whole-souled on the surface won't stand probing.

The old woman who lived in a shoe couldn't solve the housing problem that way now, with leather at its present price.

Villa is to be allowed to settle on a ranch with the distinct understanding that he mustn't raise Cain.

If the truth were known it is probable that a good many Plymouth men have been voting for years as their wives told them to.

The eighteenth amendment covers wine, the nineteenth women, and we hope the twentieth will abolish jazz songs.

In a few weeks now Plymouth citizens will take down their last winter's overcoats and find out how much it cost them during the summer to feed the moths.

The jowlight that gleams in a woman's eyes usually burns a hole in some man's pocketbook.

Every time capital and labor get into a wrangle the public sighs—and reaches for its purse.

The trouble with some Plymouth men is they spend too much time wondering how some other fellow makes a living.

It's safe to bet that the woman who never sheds a tear on account of a man doesn't love him.

SEEMED DESTINED FOR BAR
But Quick-Thinking Lad Disproved Old Adage Concerning "As the Twig is Bent."

It was in the good old days, when the little red schoolhouse frequently resounded with the "thwack" of the birch rod, that the master discovered that some boy of the upper class had committed a fearful crime against the dignity of the master.

"I'll thrash the entire class if some one doesn't tell me who did that!" the teacher threatened, and as the information was not forthcoming, proceeded to keep his word, until but one lad remained.

"If you will tell me who it was, I'll let you off," the teacher then offered.

"All right, sir. It was I," the boy responded promptly.

Such an example of quick thinking might well have indicated that the lad was destined to become the famous lawyer whose name we all know. But it didn't. That lad did not grow up into the man in whose honor we are assembled tonight, etc., etc. The lad, despite all opposition, became a baker, and sells the largest loaf for the money of any shop in his town, and is superintendent of the Methodist Sunday school.

BAN ON FIDO.

The day of the pup who likes to look at the scenery from the running board or tonneau of the family auto is over, so far as trips to the northern part of California are concerned.

For six months no dog may enter or leave Fresno county, says document from the California state board of health. He can't be shipped in by rail and he can't be carried in by auto. Any little dog already there is doomed to a sedentary life for six months at least, for that is the time over which the quarantine will extend. Fido cannot go into the county, nor can he come out.

An outbreak of the rabies is the cause of the ban, and it will be about October before the gates are opened to pet hounds of any description.
