THE ELECTION IN PLYMOUTH

The election last Tuesday resulted in a great landslide for the Republican party. Plymouth Republicans more than held their own in the contest for ballots. There were 1065 ballots cast in the two Plymouth precincts, out of nearly 1400 registered. Six hundred and thirteen were straight Republican tickets and 148 straight Democrat. Socialists cast 26 votes, Prohibitionists, 8, with several other votes scattering.

On the school amendment 499 voted "yes" and 435 "no." The state ticket fell somewhat behind the national ticket, Ferris receiving a number of more votes than Groesbeck. According to reports received, Harding receives nearly 400 electoral votes, carrying every state in the north and west and breaking into the solid south, capturing Tennessee. Both houses of congress will be largely Republican, Senate majority being estimated at 10. Michigan gave Harding nearly 400,000 plurality over Cox, Groesbeck for governor falling about 75,000 votes behind. Every member of the Michigan house and senate will be Republican, and every Republican Congressman in the state was elected.

W. C. T. U. CONVENTION TO BE HELD HERE

The district convention of the W. C. T. U. will be held in Plymouth this year, at the Presbyterian church, next Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 10-11, beginning at 10:30 a. m., Wednesday. Members be sure to come and bring your friends and neighbors with you. It will be worth while, as there has been a good program, arranged for both days. Wednesday evening will be of special interest, as we are to have with us for that night, Mrs. Dora B. Whitney of Benton Harbor, who will speak to us, and the men are also invited to attend. Mrs. Whitney is a very bright, little woman and a splendid speaker, so come and hear her, you will be well repaid. The Ladies Missionary society of the M. E. church have arranged to furnish three meals at the church. Two noon luncheons and dinner Wednesday evening, which will be public to every one at fifty cents each. The other meals will be thirty-five cents each to the delegates attending and members.

The District President, Mrs. Ava Downer of Detroit, will be here and other officers, so let us all turn out and make this convention pleasant, interesting and profitable.

She was attended by a niece of the groom, Miss Mabel Haarn of Wayne, also dressed in georgette crepe, carrying roses. The groom was attended by the brother of the bride, Roy Helm. DEATH OF A GOOD CITIZEN

H. J. DAUGHERTY DIED LAST MONDAY AFTER A FEW DAYS' ILLNESS.

Stricken with a sudden attack of appendicitis on Friday, taken to the hospital at Ann Arbor, Sunday morning for an operation. Sunday afternoon, died Monday evening at 7:30, was the sudden way in which H. J. Daugherty, 1066 North Mill street, was stricken down. Last week Wednesday evening, he was able to attend the Sunday-school banquet at the Methodist church in usual health. The funeral services were held in the Methodist church, Thursday afternoon at two o'clock, Rev. F. M. Field officiating, followed by interment in Riverside cemetery.

Henry J. Daugherty was born in Shiawassee county, February 2, 1862. After completing the work in the district school, he graduated from the High school at Byron, after which he taught school for several years in various districts in Shiawassee and Genesee counties. On November 28, 1894, he was united in marriage to Miss Nina Hastings at her home in Montcalm county by the family pastor, Rev. Mr. LaDue. He had been married previously, but his first wife lived only a few months after their marriage. Mr. and Mrs. Daugherty lived on farms in various localities in Illinois and in Shiawassee, Genesee and Montcalm counties, this state, until they came to Plymouth four years ago in October from Byron.

Mr. Daugherty had been a member of the O. O. F. for 37 years, having become an Odd Fellow at the age of twenty-one. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, having been converted in young manhood, and was an interested participant in the sessions of the Brotherhood class. He was a good man, standing by his convictions, no matter what others said, and was a generous giver to religious and humanitarian causes and was respected by all his acquaintances.

He leaves the widow and four children, Ivan, Ira, Irma and Iva, a brother, John Daugherty of Detroit, and a sister, Mrs. Julia Goodale of Plymouth.

NEWBURG CHURCH HAS OWN PASTOR NOW

REV. F. M. FIELD GAVE FAREWELL SERMON SUNDAY.

The separation of the Plymouth and Newburg Methodist churches after a union of seventy-five years, has been accomplished in the appointment of Rev. Ralph E. Raycraft of Wayne, a licensed local preacher, to the pastorate of the Newburg church, which he will serve in connection with the Perrinsville church, beginning next Sunday.

Rev. Frank M. Field, who has preached at the Newburg church each Sunday afternoon for the past four years, delivered his farewell message there, last Sunday afternoon. Hereafter he will have only the Plymouth church, and will give his undivided attention to this parish. As a remembrance of his happy associations with the Newburg people, Rev. Field has presented to the church a new loose leaf membership record of the most modern type.

JUDGE DUFFEE HONORED ON 70TH ANNIVERSARY

Judge Edgar O. Duffee of Detroit, celebrated his seventy-eighth birthday, last week Thursday, his office at the county building resembling a conservatory, filled with flowers presented by employees of the probate court. Judge Duffee has been in the Probate court for 44 years, the first two of which he was register of the court, and the last 44, judge of probate. Judge Duffee was born in Plymouth, and has many friends here.

Don't forget the dancing party at the Penniman Allen auditorium, next Friday, November 5th.

A HALLOWE'EN PARTY

Plymouth young people are independent of the weather man when it comes to having a good time. Last Monday evening, in spite of the rain, over a hundred Christian Endeavorers gathered at the home of their president, J. Maurice Williams, south of town, and were entertained with the proverbial "Southern hospitality." To say that they had a good time is to put it mildly.

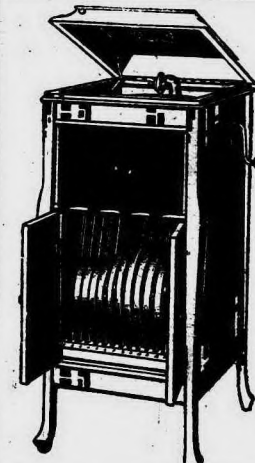

Arriving by auto and truck, the visitors found the premises elaborately decorated in true Halloween style with jack lanterns, bon-fires and witch's cauldrons. A large arena had been enclosed with shocks of corn and was overhung with strings of apples, which dangled temptingly within reach. Lurid lights flared from the hollow-eyed pumpkins which freckled the walls and stuccoed the witch's booths, which were scattered here and there within the enclosure. At one end a stage had been set off and was lighted with kerosene torches set in tubs, which cast a wierd and flickering light upon the scene. Here, under the direction of Miss Genevieve McClumpha, and at the bidding of Miss Ellen Gardiner, ghosts and witches and black cats of the most uncanny sort appeared and disappeared in the best approved mystifying and startling manner. Imps and elves and goblins in fantastic apparel, like the shadowy forms which people a nightmare, flitted about the with on her broom-stick mount, did their stunts and went their wizard ways in the dim smoke of the flambeaux and the misty air of night before an audience grotesque in mask and costume.

Two of the leading spirits of mischief generously (and forcefully) provided a full burnt-cork hirsute appendage for every face not sufficiently disguised. Fortunes were told in a cornstalk booth by a capable and appropriately attired artist in gypsy lore. Games full of noise and action were attempted, and joyfully abandoned when the "cats" appeared. Bushels of tin cups were distributed to be dipped into the pot of steaming cocoa ad libitum. Rosy-cheeked apples, followed by pumpkin pie, doughnuts, marshmallows and popcorn left nothing to be desired, except nice hearty cheers for the host and the players; all of which were vociferously given in a way that would have raised the roof—if there had been any roof to raise.

The spacious home was invaded, and the piano was manipulated to add to the merriment. "Too bad it rained, but we couldn't have had a better time anyhow," was the popular opinion of all who went home in the wet, bedraggled, mask-stained and happy.

Be sure to attend the W. C. T. U. convention next Wednesday, and Thursday at the Presbyterian church.

A box social will be given at the home of William Gyde, one-half mile east of the Kinyon cemetery, Friday evening, November 12, for the benefit of the Kinyon school.

THE FLOOD IS ON
There is genuine cause for alarm in reports from New York that never before in America's history has there been such a flood of immigration as at this time. Of course, we need not be alarmed so long as the new arrivals are coming for the purpose of establishing a home, honoring the laws of the land and living as good and upright citizens. We welcome that kind, and we are mindful of the fact that we are all here as the result of our ancestors having migrated to this country. But the reports are to the effect that a larger per cent of the immigrants than ever before are of the undesirable class, and are coming over because they have heard money is plentiful here and a man doesn't need to do very much work to get it.

At present, of course, these immigrants are stopping in the cities. Eventually, however, they must spread to towns like Plymouth, and it will be up to us to help sift the grain from the chaff. It is not too early to prepare for future emergencies, and the best way is by inculcating a still deeper love of country and a still greater love of home in our children now in school. They are the ones who are really going to have to wrestle with the problem. And we owe it to them to point out to them now, that there is no room in this country for the man who cannot take a solemn oath to lay down his life if necessary for his home and country—the man who holds the United States higher than any other nation on the face of the earth. Talk patriotism, teach it in the schools and preach it in the pulpit. There is the surest weapon we have against a class of citizens we cannot hope to escape, so long as our immigration laws continue as lax as they are at present.

A DAY OF RECKONING
Now and then you come across a Plymouth man or woman who delights in telling you, in a pessimistic way, that there must be a "day of reckoning." He shakes his head when we discuss the prosperity we have been enjoying, and assures us that we will "have to pay for it."
He is like the man who can't enjoy the sunshine for thinking that it is going to rain. He admits that the weather for the most part has been ideal, but he shrugs his shoulders when he thinks of what is going to come upon us in the way of weather to make up for it.

But there is this difference between prosperity and weather. The one is largely of our own making—we can in no wise control the other. It is reasonably certain that we shall not always enjoy our present advantages, that times change from year to year and from period to period. Harvests are not always the same and accidents happen in the best regulated nations. Trades and commerce have a way of being influenced tomorrow by what is going on today. So, while not allowing ourselves to be influenced by the head-shaking pessimist, it is well that we prepare as best we can for anything in the way of disaster that may follow. It is only the part of common sense that we prevent waste in every way we can, that we work while there is work to be done, and that we save something from our daily earnings.
In other words, it is good idea to smile and believe tomorrow is going to be brighter than today—and yet it is the best, to be prepared in the event it doesn't happen to be.

IS THE FARMER GETTING RICH?
Many people, who judge by the amount they pay for vegetables and garden truck imagine the farmer is fast waxing rich. And yet we see in a report from the Department of Agriculture that the average return on farm investments in the past five years has only increased from 4 to 7 per cent, and that few farmers made over $500 a year above the things the farm furnished toward the family living.
We sit here in Plymouth and reflect on the high prices the farmer gets for his products, and never stop to consider the high price he has to pay for whatever he buys. We also forget that labor is scarce and that he has to pay two or three times as much for help now as he did five years ago. And we don't seem to consider that he has to buy clothing and shoes for himself and family, and that he pays the increased price for these the same as the balance of us pay.

What a man makes out of farming is doubtless as variable as what the merchant or manufacturer makes out of his business. It all depends on the man. Farming as well as other business calls for executive ability and foresight, and even these do not win when the weather isn't right. When landlords in town and city are demanding 25 per cent interest on their investment in property there should be no kick if the farmer asks for seven per cent on his.

TO DEPORT GIBRALTAR'S APES

Wild Guardians of the Famous "Rock" Must Go Back to Barbary, Is Edict.

The Barbary apes, guardians of Gibraltar, and the only wild monkeys in Europe, are to be deported from "the Rock." Such is the edict of General Sir H. L. Smith-Dorrien.

It is a tradition that every governor of Gibraltar shall issue at least one order in connection with these animals. Other governors have ordered them to cease stealing fruit, to stay in certain areas, and one kindly ordered them to be maintained at the empire's expense. A garrison order in 1856 forbade any attempt on their lives. In 1863 only three of them were left, but Sir William Codrington sent across to Africa for four young monkeys of the same species, who kept the race alive.

Catching them for deportation will be a difficult task, as they are adepts at swinging down 100-foot precipices. There is one specimen of the tribe in the London zoo. It has been there seventeen years.

THE CAUSE

"Dear me! What is the cause of it?"

PAPER SUITS IN ENGLAND.

Large quantities of paper suits, made in Germany, are being displayed by a British firm of importers at their shop in London, according to the American chamber of commerce in London. These garments are cut in English style, and are said to be of the very best class of paper texture. They can be bought in lots of a thousand for a little over 58 cents each. In one month the British importer took 40,000 of these suits, a large number being re-exported to India and South Africa. The agents who are dealing in these suits say that, by buying under the present rate of exchange, it is possible for a man to purchase a new suit once a week and that, over a period of twelve months, the entire cost would be less than the price of a single west-end suit.

BRITISH PRINCE POPULAR.

Prince Albert, the second son of their British majesties, promises to become as popular as his elder brother, the prince of Wales. As a sailor and airman he did his bit in the war, although, to his chagrin, several breakdowns in health interfered with his duties. Recently he has been called on to attend various public functions, and is reported to have made some excellent speeches. He is the humorist of the royal family, with a particular penchant for sporting stories.

WHAT DOES "SAND" MEAN

SEE WILLIAM S. HART IN WESTERN PICTURE AND LEARN SECRETS.

What is the meaning of the title, "Sand"? which William S. Hart has given to his latest drama for the screen, released by Paramount Art-craft, and now to be seen at the Pen-ninman Allen theatre, Saturday, Nov. 6.

It has a double meaning. Sand—the sand of the desert, wherein the story is laid; Sand—the grit of a man's mental and moral and physical makeup.

And the latter quality is what Mr. Hart displays in this picture which brings him to the adoring public once more in a typical western tale, with holdups, wild riding, love, adventure and excitement as the qualities most prominent in the story.

Mary Thurman is a delightful leading woman. The balance of the cast is excellent and the direction by Lambert Hillyer, who also wrote the scenario, is perfect.

With such a combination, it is safe to say that this picture will afford the most delightful entertainment for those who like red-blooded pictures with plenty of action and plenty of romance.

ARMISTICE DAY PROCLAMATION

[By the Governor]

The eleventh day of November next will be the second anniversary of the signing of the Armistice in the Great War, and, inasmuch as the Michigan Legislature in the session of 1919 passed an act making it the duty of school officers and teachers to have said day observed with appropriate commemorative exercises, it is fitting that the day should not be allowed to pass without attention being called to its significance.

Therefore, I, Albert E. Sleeper, Governor of the State of Michigan, do issue a proclamation and hereby request a proper and appropriate observance, on the part of the people of the state, on Thursday, the eleventh day of November, 1920.

Following the proclamation of President Wilson, I further request that on Sunday, November the fourth, 1920, memorial services be held for our heroic dead, for the soldiers, sailors and marines who gave up their lives in our cause in the World War, and that on this day flags be displayed at half mast.

Given under my hand and the Great seal of the state, this twenty-eighth day of October, in the year one thousand nine hundred and twenty, and of the commonwealth of eighty-four.

ALBERT E. SLEEPER, Governor.

By the Governor:
Coleman C. Vaughn,
Secretary of State.

"I'll never get over it—I'll never get over it! What's the use of trying to cure me?"

Corinne Benton turned her young face to the wall and indulged in another delicious bout of weeping. Doctor Westover sat patiently at her bedside until the storm was over. Then he tried to reason with her.

"I'm older than you are, my child, and my experience has proved that most young people run onto the shoals in their first love affair, and ordinarily they get over it with surprising rapidity.

"As to trying to cure you, you have nothing the matter but a little attack of nerves, and a few months of good hard work will straighten them out; so tomorrow we're going to see about taking a business course. I've talked it all over with your parents and they approve most heartily."

Corinne tried to petrify the doctor with one horrible look, but if he was in the least affected he showed no signs and a minute later gave his patient a hearty handshake and left the room whistling. Indeed, so unimpressed did he appear that the girl began to fear that her features had failed to register the unspeakable disgust she had felt for anyone so hopelessly flippant and heartless. She must be developing facial paralysis, or something, she decided.

"All ready!" said the doctor to Corinne a few days later. "We're going down to start that business course this morning. I have a young protégé that graduates in medicine this June. He'll be needing an efficient girl around the office, so I'll engage you right now for him. Let's get busy."

"You're a perfect brute, and I just hate you!" Corinne found the energy to stamp her foot with emphasis.

"I guess I can bear up under that, too," said the doctor with unruffled good nature.

It was a hard fight, but Westover finally won, and as the days went by Corinne was disgusted to notice the return of color to her cheeks. At any rate she thought she would never get over the love tragedy, even if going out in the open did make her look healthy again—diseased bodies are curable but never a crushed soul! As she improved, Doctor Westover saw less and less of his pretty, impetuous little patient.

"You're looking fine!" he would tell her heartily.

"But I'll never get over it," she would always reply. "I'll never love another man."

The doctor would smile to himself as he passed on, but Corinne knew nothing of this—old folks have a right to keep a few secrets to themselves.

With June came the zealous young Doctor Mann and the girl was duly installed. He was a big six-foot man who dressed well, spoke rapidly and had a lightning smile which he flashed with frequency and impartiality on all living things. He loved life, he loved people and he was possessed of a keen sympathy.

Naturally, the patients did not flock to his doors immediately, and both the young people had plenty of time on their hands. Corinne read a great deal and dabbled at fancywork, but the doctor had read himself almost into a frenzy for six long years and fancywork was not in his line, so things were decidedly slow for him.

"I say, Miss Benton," he exclaimed one morning, appearing from the family office. "It's dull as blazes today. Couldn't we go into my consulting room and have a game of checkers?"

He looked almost sheepish and boyish as he stood before Corinne.

"I guess so," she answered.

"But I'll never forget you," she declared loyally to herself as she glanced at the lightning smile.

They played checkers a great part that summer, those two. To be sure his practice grew steadily, but there were still many hours unfiled, and the young man's mania for checkers came more acute the more he played. It even reached the point where he would get so absorbed that he would fall to keep an ear open for patients in the outer room, and day they kept Mrs. Connington's ery waiting nearly an hour, as testily informed them when they finally appeared.

"My dear madam," the doctor said suavely. "I'm sorry that you had to wait, but we were attending to an important matter."

That same evening—it was late in the then—Doctor Westover ran into his little ex-patient as he went homeward. "Hello there!" he said. "Haven't seen you in a couple of days. How are you getting along, Miss Mann?"

"Oh, all right; but I'll never get over it," she ended in her usual way.

"Forget whom?" asked the doctor.

"You know," replied the girl in injured tones.

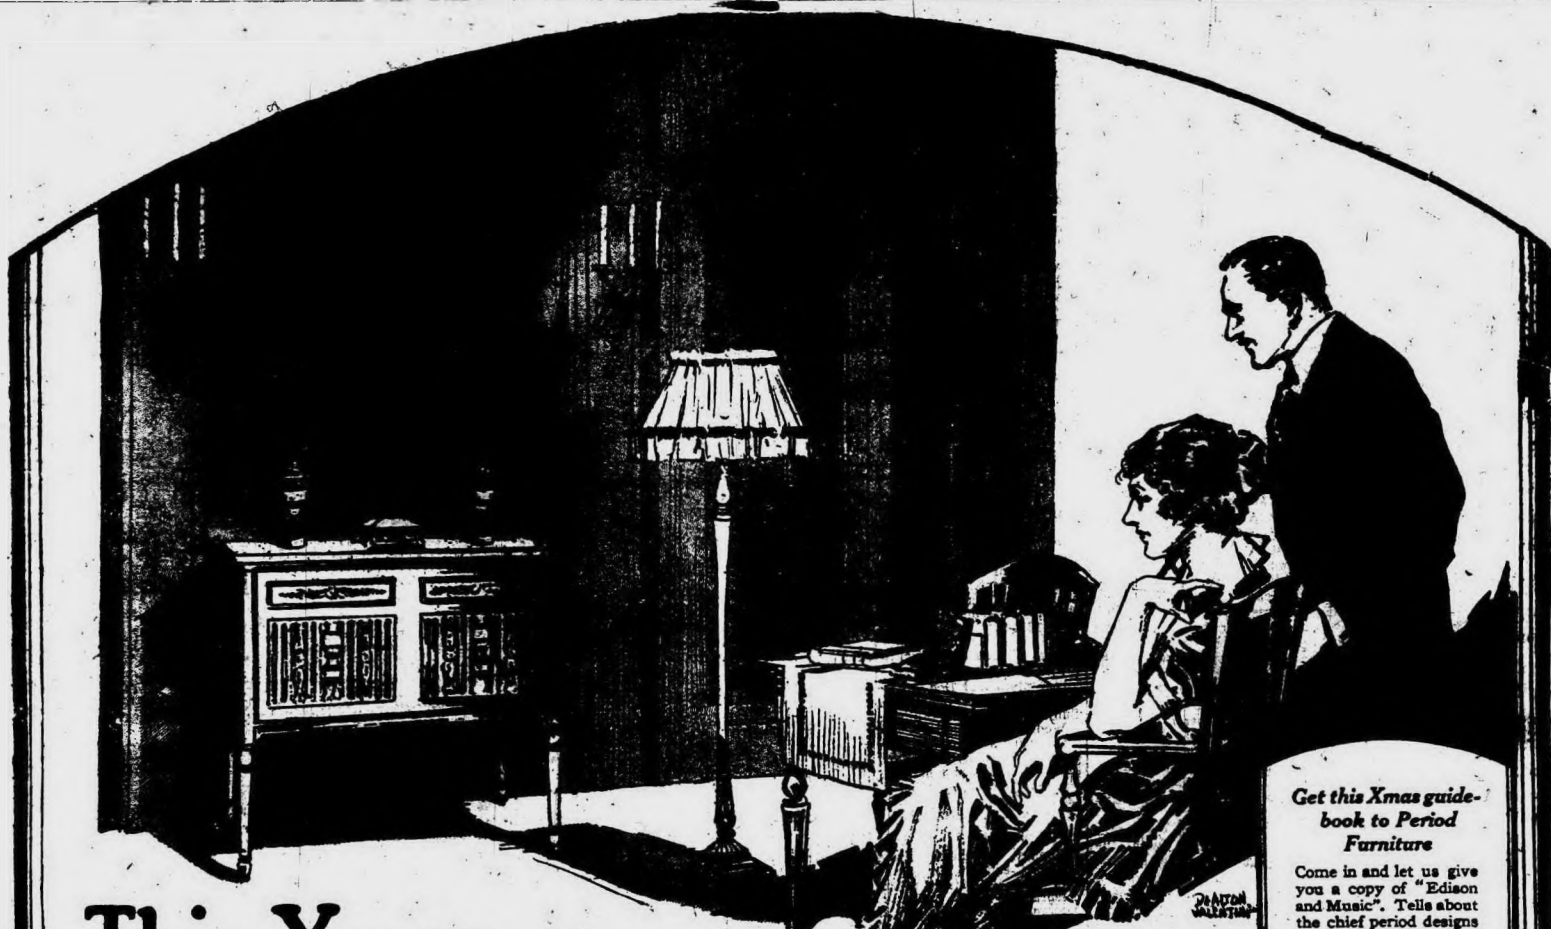

"Oh, that other chap," she said over, appearing to remember a fact—I'll have to give Mann's name because I believe he's been taking care for you, and it'd be a shame to let the poor fellow share the bow."

"No, no! Don't you ever dare claim the girl again!"

"Why not, I'd like to know?"

"Because—because it's your business," she ended evasively.

"Oh, all right," said the doctor, as he smiled to himself.

This Xmas let it be a Furniture Aristocrat

Get this Xmas guide-book to Period Furniture

Come in and let us give you a copy of "Edison and Music". Tells about the chief period designs—what they look like, what they stand for. Pithy descriptions. Beautiful illustrations. Just the information you want.

Let us show you what an exquisite thing a phonograph cabinet can be.

Every New Edison on our floor—no matter what its price—is encased in a genuine period cabinet.

Period Furniture is the world's most exquisite development of furniture. It originated in the 16th, 17th, and 18th Centuries. Europe was ruled by a Gorgeous Aristocracy. Fine living was the ideal of the day. An unparalleled race of artists, architects, and designers built palatial living-places for kings and nobles, and furnished them. The palaces of the nobility became treasure-houses of fine furniture. It was called the "Golden Age of Furniture."

So Mr. Edison had his designers go back into the manor houses of England, the chateaux of France and the castles of Italy. They adapted 17 designs from historic masterpieces. They preserved entire "the character and feeling of the best periods" in these superb phonograph cases for the modern American home.

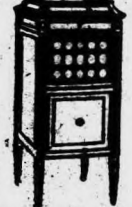

No matter which Edison cabinet you choose, you get both the arts that make your house a cultured home—music perfectly RE-CREATED and furniture of purest period source. What finer gift for all the family?

MONROE BANDITS SPEEDILY CAUGHT BY STATE POLICE

SIX DESPERADOES WHO ROBBED DANFORD BANK ARE ROUNDED UP.

CASH AND RING ARE RECOVERED

It was nine o'clock in the morning and the doors of the Danford Bank of Monroe had just been opened for business. There were a few persons on the street but the majority of the morning trade on getting things into shape for the day's business. A woman who conducts a store in a portion of the building which the bank occupies had just entered the bank and was securing from Cashier Shin the money from her cash drawer, which had been locked up for the night.

Unnoticed, a high-powered motor car had driven up and stopped a few feet from the bank building. Six men leaped from the car and entered the bank. All six men were armed with revolvers. The officials of the bank together with the woman were backed against the wall at the point of guns and the bandits proceeded to help themselves to all available cash and then quickly escaped in their waiting automobile.

Immediately the State Police at South Rockford were notified of the daring robbery. Believing that the bandits were headed for Detroit, Corporal E. S. Masters, who is in charge of the South Rockford detachment, stationed Troopers Winslow and Weaver at the bridge over the Huron river, on the Dixie Highway.

In the meantime a posse was hurriedly formed and one group came upon the automobile which had been abandoned by the bandits when a tire blew out.

The State Police hurried to this point and assisted in throwing a cordon about a cornfield into which it was believed the robbers had fled. The first two to be captured were Vincent Balogna, twenty-four years old, of Hamtramck, and Ray Spencer, twenty-two years old, of Wyandotte. A few minutes later the posse, headed by Corporal Masters, captured Sam Rommard, twenty-four years old, also of Wyandotte.

Three bandits had escaped through the net. Corporal Masters immediately organized another searching party and they began to close in toward Monroe. The remaining three were captured in a marsh two miles north of the town. They gave their names as Vitko Caro, Leo Frango and Bogak Hoagana.

Approximately $3,600 of the money was recovered, together with the diamond ring taken from the cashier.

ORCHARD OWNER TELLS WHY HE WANTS POLICE

Letters continue to pour into the State Police headquarters at East Lansing and into the various detachment headquarters, protesting against any effort to abolish the constabulary. The following letter was received by Captain R. G. Stroppe of the Grand Rapids detachment, and its general trend is much the same as that of all the communications received:

Dear Sir: I have heard that there is a petition being circulated to have the State Police taken out of this section, and I, for one, do not want to see this action taken. I have an orchard, and it sure will need protection during the month of October, as in the past. This orchard has been raided and a lot of fruit stolen and with the present high price of labor and spraying poison, this hurts. I would like to have this bunch cleaned up that has been in the habit of taking fruit from us. Your Mr. Taylor and Mr. Maroney have been very courteous to me in the past, and I look for results from them before the season is over. So you have my reason for wanting protection, and I feel entitled to it. Thanking you, I remain, Yours very truly, L. A. BOYD

TRAVERSE FAIR GUARDED

State Police at the fair held in Traverse City are reported to have rendered excellent service, and in speaking of the work of the troops the Traverse City Record-Eagle has the following paragraph: "State Police at the fair helped in a large degree to preserve the order that was conspicuous this year, and Traverse City was fortunate in having the troops located near here and on hand for fair week. John Moran, who has been in charge of the grounds for many years, stated that he never had such excellent help before as the State Police gave him."

FARMERS ARE PROTECTED

Although no report has been prepared, as yet, it is estimated that some money was saved by the State Police at the fair. It is estimated that some money was saved by the State Police at the fair. It is estimated that some money was saved by the State Police at the fair.

You've also doubtless noticed that while the country is short on many things, we have as many "I-Told-You-Sos" as ever.

SCHOOL NOTES

Elaine Hamilton was sick two days last week. James Stimpson was sick Monday of last week. Juanita Coe and Thelma Pack were second grade visitors, Friday afternoon.

Miss McClumpha's pupils had a Halloween party, Friday afternoon. Many jack-o-lanterns were in evidence. Refreshments were popcorn and apples.

Dorothy Turner has moved to Toledo.

Mrs. Chappell entertained the junior class and their patronesses, Miss Leach and Miss Huston, to a very fine chicken dinner. Decorations were for Halloween.

The public speaking class are having two debates this week: One, "Resolved, 'Senator Harding should be the next president';" the other, "Resolved, Governor Cox should be the next president."

Election for president, governor and congressman were conducted by the seniors in the High school, Tuesday afternoon. The voting was carried out by the grades, each having a separate room in which to cast their ballots. If nothing else was gained by the election, the pupils at least learned how to split a ticket, as the result proved nearly the same for Groesbeck and Ferris. That the High school is as much Republican as the state is shown by the following:

Harding 232 Cox 49 Groesbeck 177 Ferris 104 Michener 234 Moore 47

We've a lot of reasons for being glad the election is over, but the chief one is, we won't be asked to print any more campaign poetry.

PUTS MOUNTAIN LION FIRST

Colorado Physician Declares Its Flesh is the "Finest Eating in the Whole World."

There's another reason for killing a mountain lion.

According to Dr. Walter H. Bailey of Denver, "the finest eating in the whole world."

A mountain lion steak, Dr. Bailey believes, is a piece de resistance for the dinner either of a king or a democrat.

An authority on the subject, one who had tasted every kind of game, fish and fowl in the known world, wrote an article in the American Field two years ago in which he placed mountain lion in a class by itself.

The author, according to Dr. Bailey, gave second place to beaver's tail. Bobcat and muskrat are also highly recommended.

"I have eaten the muskrat and found it just as described," writes the physician, "a very fine dish. Perhaps you will understand better if I tell you that I would be glad to trade any variety of fish, grouse, cottontail or any variety of fish I may be fortunate enough to acquire for a muskrat."

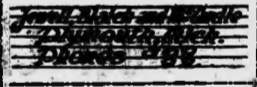

THE EASY WAY

"You recommended that man very highly."
"Yes."
"But he proved to be utterly useless."

Methodist Matters

The Ghost party at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Honeywell on the Ann Arbor road last Friday evening was a most pleasant and successful occasion, there being more than one hundred people present. Elaborate plans had been perfected for the entertainment and the refreshment of the guests and all had a good time. Eight auto loads of folks went out from Plymouth, besides the people from the neighborhood. About $25 was realized for the scholarship fund of the Woman's Missionary society.

Rev. and Mrs. F. M. Field attended the dedication of the new parsonage on the Oak Park Methodist church in Flint last Friday evening. Mr. Field was one of the speakers for the occasion, having been pastor of the church five years of its history.

Next Sunday is Partnership Day in the Sunday-school and as a special feature of the opening exercises, Miss Arlean Newell will tell an interesting story.

The district meeting of preachers of the Detroit district will be held in the church at Ypsilanti, Tuesday and Wednesday, November 16 and 17. Rev. Frank M. Field is on the program the first day with an address on "Evangelistic Possibilities of the Unit System."

The men of the Brotherhood Bible class will be entertained next Tuesday evening at the home of Rev. G. H. Whitney on Ann Arbor street. Committees have just been appointed by the president, F. C. Barrows, and a successful year of work is in prospect. There were 35 men in the class last Sunday.

The latest addition to the list of members of the Plymouth church is the name of Mrs. Louisa Packard, 270 S. Mill street, who is transferred from Lapham's Corners church by the district superintendent, there being no pastor there now. Mrs. Packard has been a faithful member of the church for two-thirds of a century.

The Woman's Missionary society will meet on the church for their regular meeting next Wednesday afternoon at 2:30. Mrs. Charles Bovee will have charge of the program, using a chapter from the year's study book, "The Church and the Community." The ladies will serve meals for the district W. C. T. U. convention Wednesday and Thursday.

The second week of November is set aside for a special Go-To-Prayer Meeting night and all over the state Methodist people will be thronging to the mid-week devotional service in larger numbers than usual. Bishop Henderson has urged the fullest possible observance of this special day for several years with splendid results. Accordingly next Thursday evening will be Go-To-Prayer Meeting night in Plymouth. At that time every member of the church, old and young, is urged to be present. Rev. Field will begin a special study of "The Greatest Letter in the World," at that service, which will continue each Thursday evening for the next eight weeks. The service begins at 7:30.

Last Sunday was Rally Day in the Methodist Sunday-school and the largest number in the history of the school were present. Two hundred American flag stick pins had been provided as souvenirs, but a number in the adult classes had to go without as there were 244 people present in the different classes. A class of 25 boys and girls were promoted from the Primary into the Junior department with Miss Roxie Jones as teacher. They will begin at once on the Junior course of graded lessons on the Book of Genesis. Each child in the Primary department and in the graduating class was given a Little Bo-Peep card on which little sheep are to be pasted each Sunday he is present. A perfect attendance record will help Little Bo-Peep to find all of her thirteen lost sheep in the next three months. At the end of the contest period the children will have these cards to keep.

The Methodist church and the Brotherhood Bible class have lost a faithful member in the death of Brother H. J. Daugherty this week. He and his family have been members here for the past four years, having come from Byron. He was especially interested in the Bible class and was always present when his work permitted. He attended the Sunday-school banquet last week Wednesday evening, but word came Sunday evening that he had been taken to the hospital for an operation for appendicitis, and only lived until Monday evening. The funeral services were held in the church Thursday afternoon. Brother Daugherty had been a faithful member of the church for many years, having been converted while young man. He was an interested worshipper and a generous contributor. He was in Mr. Field's congregation in Flint eleven years ago.

The Epworth League, having four of its members away at college, preparing for special christian work, has the pleasure of a letter from one of them each Sunday evening. Interesting letters have been read to the young people recently from Misses Lovena Terry and Mary Hill in the National Training school at Kansas City and next Sunday evening at the 6:30 meeting, a breezy, newsy letter from Miss Nellie Huger at the Chicago Training school will be read.

The monthly social gathering of the Epworth League young folks will be held this Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Thomas, 492 N. Harvey street. All young people who want to get in with this bunch of christian young folks are invited. Fourteen of the young people are working hard on a home talent play which will startle the natives when it comes off.

Most noteworthy are the financial accomplishments of the Plymouth Methodist church during the past two months. Since the beginning of the fiscal year, Sept. 1st, the offerings to the local church treasury have totaled $708, making possible $2000 furnace in the parsonage and twelve tons of coal in the church without a special appeal for money. A loan of about $50 may be necessary to pay all the bills of the month, but this will soon be taken care of by the regular collections.

A League of Worshipping Children was organized at the Methodist church last Sunday, consisting of seventy-five boys and girls between the ages of five and twelve who are to be regular attendants at the Sunday morning worship. The pastor, Rev. F. M. Field, presided at a special session for the children on "The Little Missionary," a short service story or a special story, presented in the form of a play. The children will have a special button, which will be given out a week from next Sunday, and each member also has a large bunch of grapes in outline upon which is to be placed a purple seal every Sunday if he is present or a green seal if he is absent. The object is to have each bunch of grapes fully ripened at the end of six months and the christian character of the children ripening at the same time, through the influence of the Sunday worship. Miss Ione Bird is registrar of the league and will have the seals for the boys and girls each Sunday morning. A Michigan Christian Advocate in every Methodist home in Plymouth is provided by the action of the Official Board last Monday evening. At the present time about one hundred families are receiving the official paper of Michigan Methodism but the officers of the church feel that every Methodist home should have the information and inspiration of the church paper coming into it every week. Accordingly, every family which is contributing to the church, will be made a subscriber to the Advocate which is published in Detroit, and to meet the cost of publication, each family will be asked to pay five cents each week in his offering envelope in addition to what he has been giving. Those who desire can discharge their obligation for the entire year by paying the subscription price, two dollars, any time before January first. The Plymouth church is among the first in the state to take this forward step.

Today's Reflections

We'd like to impress all Plymouth men with the fact that the harder they work, the less time they have to whine.

Men accuse women of being brainless. But nearly every woman has brains enough to make a fool out of some man.

When a Plymouth man's collar button rolls under the bureau, the dove of peace flies out the window.

And on Sunday a lot of people wear their best clothes and their worst faces.

Prices may be on their way back, but so far we've noticed they're not exceeding the speed limit.

One can never guess what a Plymouth woman is going to buy when she starts for the store. She may only want a spool of thread, but the chances for the sale of a refrigerator or a new phonograph are just as good.

Corn and rye crops are unusually heavy, leading us to believe there's some farmers who haven't heard of the eighteenth amendment.

Now that Plymouth women know how it feels to cast a ballot, we wonder if they'll continue to sharpen their lead pencils with the bread knife.

Maybe the reason the boy stood on the burning deck is there was a coal shortage that year, too.

One swallow doesn't make a summer, but sometimes one lark will bring a fall.

If the Plymouth man is a chronic grumbler nothing makes him as happy as finding a button off his coat when his wife is away.

MUSOLFF-MINEHART

Charming in its simplicity was the pretty autumn wedding of Miss Ella Helen Minehart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Minehart of Northville, to Edward John Musolff of South Lyon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Musolff, Sr. The marriage was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, Wednesday evening, October 20th at 7:30 o'clock, Rev. Charles Strassen of the Lutheran church of Plymouth performing the ceremony in the presence of about seventy relatives and friends. The bride and groom followed by the rest of the bridal party, entered the parlor, where the ceremony took place. Miss Emma Musolff, sister of the groom, was maid of honor, and the Misses Nora and Elma Minehart, cousins of the bride, were bridesmaids. The groom was attended by Charles and Albert Minehart, brother of the bride and Harry Musolff, brother of the groom. The bride wore a veil and was gowned in white georgette crepe, and carried a shower bouquet of pink and white rose buds. The bridesmaids wore pink gowns and carried pink roses. Under an arch of ferns and autumn leaves, the bridal couple knelt on the same bench as did the bride's parents, when they were united in marriage twenty-five years ago. After the wedding, a dainty supper was served. The bride received many valuable and useful gifts from her many friends and relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Musolff, Jr., will make their home in Northville, and a host of good wishes for a long and a happy wedded life go with the young couple.

It is Easy To Imitate Names. The public is constantly being swindled by imitations, counterfeiters and substitutes that assemble in name and appearance Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. It is because the original Foley's is so good, so reliable and so well known that these frauds find sale. Always Has It in His Home. T. J. McColl, Athens, Ga., writes: "We have used Foley's Honey and Tar Compound for several years and find it almost invaluable for coughs and colds, and especially for croup, whooping cough, and influenza. It is a most reliable remedy and is for women, children, and for all other ailments of a people or children."

SPECIAL FEED NEEDED FOR MARKET CHICKENS

DISPOSITION OF CULLS AND BUNTS BIG PROBLEM FOR
POULTRY MEN—M. A. C. GIVES FATTENING RATION.

Profitable disposition of "runts" and birds that are slow to mature is one of the biggest problems facing farmers and poultry men at this time of the year, according to Prof. C. H. Burgess, head of the poultry department at M. A. C. A number of cull hens and cockerels are withdrawn from the flock during October and November, and these also must be put into market condition.

"To meet the problems of the poultry man who must fatten fowls for market," says Professor Burgess, "we offer the following ration to be fed in closed rooms or crates: 100 pounds corn meal; 100 pounds middlings; 100 pounds bran; 100 pounds rolled oats (fine ground oats); 100 pounds meat scrap. The above amount of feed will fatten 200 fowls in fourteen days. Mix the above named mill stuffs with buttermilk or sour milk, to which there has been added a tablespoonful of molasses. Mix to about a pancake batter consistency. Feed in troughs twice daily. During the first week feed sparingly. During the second week add all the fowls will eat in twenty minutes.

THE GREATEST MOTHER IN THE WORLD

You who live in the country. What if you had a child who was sick and who in school seemed dull and unable to learn? You know a great many times a child is not really stupid; it may be its eyes need attention and glasses would correct the trouble so the child could see. Or perhaps it has trouble in hearing. Maybe, the child is a cripple.

That's why the American Red Cross is doing such a splendid work in rural communities through its Public Health program. It is because it feels that if America is to grow up in all good things, it must be through the strength of its citizens.

The children are the material from which this citizenship is to be made, and it is a sacred trust to be given the fullest chance to develop both mentally and physically.

Wouldn't you like to know what the Public Health program of the American Red Cross does? It is divided into four main parts: (a) Public Health. This work is carried on by 12 trained nurses in every township in Wayne county, outside Detroit. Not only do these nurses go into the homes and the schools, but there are permanent clinics established now, in Wyandotte, Wayne, Redford and Grosse Pointe, and it is definitely decided to have a "traveling clinic" which will go to places not now served. At any of these clinics parents can learn how to take care of their children, and they are urged to come, bringing their families with them. You know the old saying, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." Well, that's the very purpose of these clinics. Treatment of eyes and teeth and many other ills is given.

Then there's a clinic to take care of and make strong, crippled children. Can you imagine a finer thing than giving health and strength to a child with a badly defective body? (b) Home-nursing promotes an educational program. Classes are formed in home-nursing and care of the sick, and the aim is to reach every woman in the county through these classes.

(c) What is eaten is a big and very important question to everyone and especially to children. They must have good food and properly cooked, if they are to grow strong. The American Red Cross provides a nutrition specialist for this. She teaches all about the different foods, and their comparative values in building up body waste.

Just to show you how important good food is, last year in the country communities in Wayne county 50 per cent of the children were underweight, because of malnutrition. In one rural school of thirty children, the total underweight was 200 pounds or 6.2-3 pounds per child. This is entirely unnecessary, and it is to correct just such conditions that the work of the nutrition specialist is being done.

(d) Last but not least, children must play. This develops sturdy bodies, and these in turn begot a sound mind. This need is being filled by a trained recreation leader, who is now devoting a day a week in each of the following places: Wayne, Springwells and Belleville. But somewhere the days are not long enough for this very important work, so an evening session is soon to be added.

In addition to the work or recreation, the crippled or defective child has prescribed for it the best sort of corrective exercise by a doctor who is a specialist, and the exercises are carried on by the recreation leader.

In all, the work the American Red Cross is doing, in the rural communities, the hearty co-operation of these communities is of the greatest help.

The Public Health program is but a part of the great work of the American Red Cross, not only in America, but in foreign countries, as well. During the war, the Red Cross was called "The Greatest Mother in the World," and are not its works, proving its full claim!—Adv't.

Serious Results from Colds

Colds not only cause a tremendous financial loss, but are also a serious injury to everyone who contracts them as they lower the vitality and prepare the system for the more serious diseases. It is not at all unusual for people who have serious lung trouble to say, "I had a hard cold last winter." Why not take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and cure your cold while you can.—Adv't.

NEWBURG

Rev. Frank M. Field, who has been pastor of Newburg church for the past four years, preached his farewell sermon, last Sabbath, speaking with a great deal of feeling from the words of St. Paul, Acts 20:32. Mr. and Mrs. Field have many warm friends here who regret the necessity of this change. Mr. Raycraft of Wayne, will preach next Sunday at the usual hour, with Sunday-school afterwards.

The L. A. S. home-coming and bazaar was a decided success. Over 200 people, old and young were in attendance. All the booths were well patronized. After all expenses, $144 was realized. The booths and dining room presented a very pretty appearance, autumn leaves and Halloween colors predominating. It was a pleasure to meet and greet old friends of years gone by. The L. A. S. wish to thank all who so kindly assisted making the fair a success, especially the Plymouth Mail for advertising. There were a number from Plymouth as usual. Those from other places were as follows: Mrs. Fred Ives, Mr. and Mrs. Lockwood, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gunore and family, Mrs. Roy Langs and children, Merritt Leman, Mr. and Mrs. John Paggett, Mr. and Mrs. James Norris and Irving Tuttle, all of Detroit; Mrs. Ina Pickett of Flint; Mrs. Jennie Van Valkenburg, Miss Edith Pickett and aunt; Mrs. Russell, of Northville; Mrs. Crow of Onondaga, Mrs. Chas. The women turned out to cast their first vote for President in large numbers at Livonia Center. It's all right to have some innocent fun on Halloween, but when the boys go to the trouble of moving 300 pound cans of salt into the middle of the road, its going too far and a menace to the traveling public. They should be severely dealt with.

Leigh Ryder has gone up on the AuSable river with a party of hunters to spend a week or ten days.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Clemens and children went to Ann Arbor Sunday to see their two sons, who are attending the U. of M.; also called on a sick friend near Manchester.

ANNE ROSE

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

(©, 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Cortland watched the girl with adoring eyes. He had loved the mother of Anne Rose and she had been denied him, but when he saw that repentence would be made for his lonely life. He was very rich and the years had brought him prominence in the financial world and much social distinction. He was still handsome with fine eyes and slightly graying hair; he was tall and straight and active as a boy. Anne Rose was only twenty and she was wondrously fair—and the poor protegee of a frivolous aunt.

"She's a dear, isn't she, Roddy?" bubbled Mrs. Chaffee, with a nod toward her niece. "Looks a lot like poor Nannie."

"She is Nannie," returned Cortland with dreamy eyes on Anne Rose, while slow red crept into his face and then vanished, leaving him white and tense with suppressed feeling.

"Poor old Roddy," smiled Mrs. Chaffee, patting his coat sleeve, then she added, mischievously: "Why not little Anne Rose?"

"Why not?" he retorted lightly; but the thought made his pulses leap.

Weeks afterward he met Mrs. Wayne. He had known her of old, a selfish, scheming woman, but with a disarming manner that was very fetching. Cortland found himself beside her at a dinner party.

"I haven't seen you in years," she exclaimed; "do come into the library and give me a bit of advice."

"I am always at your service," he said courteously, but he was annoyed—he had wanted to go to Anne Rose as soon as he could get away. Anne Rose was wearing a blazing solitary now.

When they were alone, she dropped into a chair and appealed to him. "It's about my nephew, Hal Brayton—he's as poor as a church mouse, but the poor dear is frightfully in love with that charming little niece of Mrs. Chaffee—Anne Rose Graye."

"Yes?" he asked stiffly.

"The poor things have been in love for ages—and they cannot marry—Hal is wild. She is receiving much attention and he is afraid she might marry—for money. Girls want so much nowadays. I have thought you might use your influence to get him a position."

"So that he may marry Miss Graye?"

"Yes. Young things like that have a right to happiness."

"Of course," he agreed dryly. "I will do the best I can for Hal."

"I knew you would not fail me," she gushed, but as he left the room a hard look crept into her eyes.

Anne Rose stood in the middle of Mrs. Chaffee's drawing room, trembling. She seemed like a dewy, breeze-blown rosebud.

"You startled me, Roderick," she explained, lifting her flower face to his. He did not kiss her. He held her hands tightly and looked over her head toward the dim windows.

"You never told me that you knew Hal Brayton," he said in a strained voice.

"You never asked me." She gave the age-old answer of women in a small, weary voice.

"I heard—thought—that you were engaged—before you met me. You are not marrying me from pity, dear?"

"And—if I were?"

"You could not—I would not let you," he said grimly.

She slowly released her hands from his grasp and stepped back until she leaned against a table. "And suppose—I heard—that you only loved me because I was the shadow of an old love of yours—that you were making obligations to sentiment?" Her voice wavered unceremoniously.

"Well, and suppose I did?" he defied her.

"Ah!" Little gusts of sobs shook her slim shoulder and a rain of tears sprinkled the rose of her cheeks. She drew off the engagement ring and forced it into his reluctant hand.

She brought out a lovers' knot of platinum and gold and put it on her third finger.

"Now," he said bitterly, "you are free, but I love you so much, it will take the rest of my life to tell it; but if you love Hal Brayton I will free you and—I will help you all I can."

The girl lifted questioning eyes. "I do not love Hal Brayton," she denied; "but there always has been—it was a sort of inherited love, I think—fostered by an old miniature that belonged to my mother and which contained your picture—I became a hero worshiper and measured all men by that standard—and that is why," her voice dropped deliciously and her trembling hands went out to him: "that is why it is so easy to love you now!"

The telephone bell tinkled impatiently and stopped from sheer weariness. Mrs. Chaffee, trailing her draperies into the room, paused a moment and then noiselessly disappeared. A candle came in to replenish the fire, but she scurried away.

Cortland had his Anne Rose at last!

"Bamboo Trees Grow Like Magic. The growth of the bamboo is swift. In the morning a shoot appears above the ground, and by nightfall the shoot is water high. On the second day it is as tall as a man, and in less than three weeks the bamboo rods are from 18 to 18 inches in circumference and tower to a height of 80 or 70 feet. There is one grove in Abbeville, La., that towered to 70 feet in 19 days.—Detroit News.
