RED CROSS RETURNS ARE INCOMPLETE

OPPORTUNITY TO JOIN STILL OPEN.

The Red Cross workers of Plymouth and vicinity, as well as the hundreds of people who believe in and support the organization are to be congratulated upon the fine showing they are making.

Just now the returns from the recent roll call are incomplete, but up to date 561 members have re-enrolled, paying $1.00 each, while $57.00 in additional contributions has been made, bringing the total cash receipts up to $618.

Many have not yet answered the roll call. Many millions of dollars are needed to help disabled soldiers alone; add to this the task of aiding thousands of families of ex-service men, and we can readily see the outstanding appeal. Of course, there are many other causes, which would suffer if the Red Cross were not prepared to meet conditions as they arise. Great catastrophes could be properly handled if an organization like the American Red Cross were not ready for immediate relief.

Leave your name and a dollar at the Plymouth United Savings Bank, and you will have done your part to keep up this great humanitarian work.

NEW LIGHTS ARE TURNED ON

A LARGE AUDIENCE HEARD INTERESTING PROGRAM AT HIGH SCHOOL AUDITORIUM, LAST FRIDAY EVENING.

Shortly after seven o'clock, last Friday evening, Plymouth's new boulevard lighting system was turned on for the first time and the business districts of the village and Main street, which have long been poorly lighted, were made as light as day by the new lights. Without a doubt Plymouth can lay claim to having the best lighted business districts to be found anywhere in the state. Out of the darkness into light, it surely is a great improvement of which every citizen should be proud. There are 94 street lights, distributed on Penniman avenue, Main street, around Kellogg Park, Church street, Liberty street, Starkweather avenue and Central Park. The iron lamp posts are painted a battleship gray and are equipped with a large, well shaped globe, which holds a 600 candle power light. Park lights, 250 candle power.

At 7:30 o'clock a procession, headed by the members of the local police force in uniform, the Millard band, members of the village commission, about 150 members of the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce and citizens formed on Main street and marched to Liberty street and thence to the High school auditorium, where the program of the evening took place. Every seat in the large auditorium was filled, when the assemblage was called to order by Village President, William J. Burrows. After a selection by the band, the invocation was pronounced by Rev. D. D. Nagle. Under the direction of C. H. Rauch and led by a mixed quartette, the audience joined in singing several stirring songs. President Burrows presided over the meeting, introducing each speaker with some appropriate remarks.

George A. Smith, president of the newly organized Plymouth Chamber of Commerce, was the first speaker of the evening. Mr. Smith gave a little outline of what the Chamber of Commerce hoped to accomplish for Plymouth. His remarks were timely and well chosen.

The next speaker was Robert Brown, district manager of the Edison Co., who gave some interesting facts about our new lighting system. The speaker also paid a compliment to the village commission and the village manager on their efforts to secure the best lighting system possible for Plymouth.

Paul W. Voorhies of Detroit, and a former Plymouth citizen, was the last speaker of the evening. Mr. Voorhies took the opportunity to congratulate the village on its new boulevard lights, and the Chamber of Commerce on the splendid representation of that body present. The speaker then gave a splendid talk relating to Armistice Day, also touching on the great disarmament conference now being held at Washington. It was a most interesting and timely address that held the closest attention of his audience.

Following Mr. Voorhies' address, the Millard band rendered several selections that were greatly appreciated by those present, and were a most pleasing feature of the evening's program. The band has certainly reached a high standard of proficiency under the able direction of Frank Millard. The quality of music which they render is high class, and places them in the front ranks of the leading bands of the state. Plymouth can feel justly proud of the Millard band, for there is none better anywhere.

Roy Wheeler will captain the team to be known as the Plymouth Rocks, and W. R. Thornberry is captain of the Indian Games, which will represent Plymouth in the league. The constitution and by-laws of the old Trolley League were adopted, including liberal prizes for high scores, etc. A big banquet at the end of the winter season will be an event to be looked forward to with keen pleasure by the bowlers. ## THE FOOLISH MAN WHO BUILT HIS HOUSE ON THE SAND gave an example in folly which anybody can understand. It isn't so easy, however, to sense the mistake of trying to build the body on foods which lack essential nourishment.

Here, again, is a foundation of sand which gives way when the test comes. Many foods taste good, but lack those needed qualities of nourishment. Thus the appetite is tempted into mistakes that are costly.

And what is true of the body is still more true of the soul. It is tremendously important to choose only the most substantial mental and spiritual foods for ourselves and our children.

For to use anything less than the best is again to build on the sand.

LET US GIVE THANKS!

With the close of a year's harvest, and as we start upon the winter months, when that which we have garnered must stand us in good stead, it is but fitting that we pause for a few moments on the day set aside for that purpose and give thanks to the One who has made our harvest abundant. Plymouth people will not lose sight of the fact that while our country has passed through a year more or less distressing insofar as labor is concerned, we have yet been smiled upon beneficently, and sunshine and rain have afforded us in sufficient quantities and in the proper proportions to make successful the efforts of those whose duties keep them close to the soil. For those who have been idle through no choice of their own, those who have labored in sharing their harvest. And as the clouds roll away and the workers are once again on a normal basis, it will be returned in kind. We should be thankful that drought and tempest has not destroyed, and that we live in a land big enough, and broad enough and brainy enough to keep going even when a part of its people are forced into unemployment.

All over the land there is something to be thankful for, and here at home we have much. From across the seas come the same sad stories of suffering which were being waited to us one year ago. True, conditions show an improvement since arms were laid aside, since swords were beaten back into plowshares. And for this we are thankful. But even when we compare conditions there with our harvest at home, we still have cause for thankfulness. Living always in the hope of a brighter tomorrow, America has gone forward through the year, and today finds herself not only at peace with every other nation, but the center of a great conference out of which may come some suggestion which will do away with wars for all time. Let us be thankful that whatever good may come from such a gathering America is to have the fullest measure of credit, since it was suggested by an American and is being staged on American shores.

So, all in all, one thing measured against another, we have much to be thankful for. Let us, therefore, give those thanks in an appropriate way—and let us not forget to continue strong in our hope that the year to come will bring to our sister nations across the sea even more cause for thankfulness than they have ever had.

HOG-KILLING TIME

Now that Jack Frost has given the air a snappy tang, that the leaves have fallen, and overcoats have been hauled down from their place in the attic, merchants are having calls for salt, pepper, sage and lard cans, at special prices and in large quantities. To every man or woman reared in our large cities and who seldom if ever leave there, this means little or nothing. But to residents of towns like Plymouth it means one of the most interesting seasons of the year—"hog-killing time." Almost any day now the kettles are being brought out, fires built, knives sharpened and all the men and women folk turn out for the slaughter. It is an event, a sort of institution in most of our rural sections, and while there is much work connected with it, there is also considerable sport, since it serves to bring together the men and women, and especially the young men and women of the neighborhood, and they lighten the work by their laughter, their joking and good-natured fun.

There are a good many things city-bred and city-bred people never have an opportunity to enjoy—and hog-killing time is no numbered among them. They do not appreciate, either, the other side of the occasion. They do not realize that hog-killing time means a time of stocking up the larder for the cold winter months, and a certain protection against hunger and worry over a sudden jump in the price of pork or lard.

The turning on of the new boulevard lighting system, last week, marks another progressive step forward in the history of Plymouth.

BEEKEEPERS TO HOLD STATE MEET IN DEC.

ANNUAL ASSOCIATION GATHERING SET FOR LANSING—MARKETING PROBLEMS UP FOR DISCUSSION.

The annual meeting of the Michigan Beekeepers' Association will be held in Lansing on Dec. 1, 2 and 3, according to announcement of R. H. Kelly, secretary of the association, and bee specialist at the Michigan Agricultural college. "A record attendance is expected at this meeting on account of the splendid crop which has prevailed in many portions of the state this year," says Mr. Kelly. "Most of the speakers at the convention will center their remarks around 'marketing.' In view of the fact that this question is of prime interest to bee men at present. The market is lower than it has been for the past two years, and the matter of marketing is unusually important at this time."

A feature of the program will be an address on the "Needs of Co-operative Marketing," by Prof. H. F. Wilson, of the University of Wisconsin. Professor Wilson is considered a national authority on honey marketing questions. George W. Dial, manager of the Michigan Honey Producers' Exchange, is scheduled to discuss various angles of the marketing situation, while half a dozen other nationally known apian specialists will come before the convention during its three-day session.

PLYMOUTH LOSES TO FARMINGTON

PLYMOUTH HIGH HOLDS FARMINGTON TO CLOSE SCORE—7 TO 0—AT FARMINGTON, LAST FRIDAY.

Last Friday, Nov. 11, the Plymouth High school foot ball team made the trip to Farmington for the annual game. The snow was about six inches deep on the field, and as an exhibition of real foot ball the game was hardly worthy of consideration. No dodging was possible; when one player came in contact with another, both went down; footing for linemen or backs was absent. But as a test of the gameness of a team that before the game seemed hopelessly outclassed, the contest has not been equalled in recent years. For the first three quarters of the game, Plymouth held last year's league champions without a score, and indeed battled them on even terms. Line plunges failed Farmington; shift plays failed them; passes dropped incomplete. Every Plymouth man played as if his life depended upon his individual work. On offense, Plymouth, like their opponents, could not maintain a sustained march down the field, and it looked as if the game would end in a scoreless tie.

Just before the end of the game, however, luck came to the aid of Farmington. After being tackled for losses on successive plays, Plymouth with the ball on the 20-yard line attempted to punt. Harger, Farmington's center and the strength of their line, at last managed to break through, blocked the punt, and fell on the ball behind the goal line for a touchdown. Goal was kicked, and the score was 7-0.

In the few minutes that remained, Plymouth made a desperate effort to tie the score, but the time was too short, and while they threatened to reach the goal, the game ended with the ball on the 20-yard line.

The line-up was as follows:
L. E.—Syles
L. T.—M. Strasen, Schoof

TOURING YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK

Noted for more geysers than in all the rest of the world together, boiling springs, mud volcanoes, petrified forests, Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone, large lakes, many large streams and waterfalls, vast wilderness, greatest wild bird and animal preservation in the world, exceptional trout fishing.

As our first camp, Mammoth Hot Springs, was noted principally for hot springs and beautiful mineral terraces, so Old Faithful is noted for its abundant geysers. If we thought it wonderful phenomena to tread on hot earth with its hundreds of hot springs, and constant steam, how much more so to see tons of water thrown one to two hundred fifty feet high, accompanied by steam for a duration of one to three hours. The longer between activities, the longer they play. Geysers exhibit a large variety of characters and action. Some spout at regular intervals, longer or shorter, others are irregular. Some burst upward with immense power, others shoot streams at angles or bubble and foam in action. Geysers occur only at places where the internal heat of the earth approaches close to the surface. Their action is simple. Water from the surface trickling through the cracks in the rocks, or water from subterranean springs collecting in the bottom of the geyser's crater, down among the strata of intense heat, becomes itself intensely heated and gives off steam, which expands and forces upward the cooler water that lies above it. At last the water in the bottom reaches so great an expansion under continued heat, that the less heated water above can no longer weigh it down, so it bursts upward with great violence, rising many feet in the air and continuing to play until practically all of the water has been expelled.

The crater again fills with cool water. The quantity of water supplied, size of crater and amount of heat determine when this process will be repeated.

At Old Faithful, besides the camp are Old Faithful Inn, a general store, bathhouse, and picture shop. There are two side trips which can be taken by auto from this camp: Shoshone Lake and Geyser Basin, via Lone Star Geyser, about twelve miles, and the other to Jackson Hole and Lake, including Lewis Lake and Falls, Teton Mountains, Grand Teton 13,747 feet. Fishing for native and lake trout.

At two p. m. the day of arrival, the government guides took out hiking parties to cover all the points of interest near the camp. These are mostly of the geyser variety. After supper, we hiked about a mile out a road to see the bears come down the mountains to feed on the camp garbage, which is dumped at a certain place. We were a little late, but saw one large bear going back up the mountain. Only three or four had come down. At the next camp, about twenty-five, all kinds, came to feed. The garbage is dumped in a clearing (two or three acres) and a rope across one side and a sign says "Don't go beyond the rope." So all that separates two or three hundred people from 25 hungry bears is a rope and four rods of rough ground. None of the wild animals will attack man unless attacked or cornered. After returning from seeing the bears, we attended the huge bonfire and free out-door entertainment. They had a huge popcorn popper and passed popcorn around free. The speaking and singing was mostly of a comic order and everybody enjoyed it. At 9 p. m., the dance began and lasted until 10 p. m., also free. Although we did not need our coats in the day time, the camp-fire was very agreeable at night and plenty of comforters, which seemed superfluous on arrival, came in real handy. This was the middle of July when these at home were sweltering with the heat.

At 2 p. m. next day, we load up for our next camp, at Yellowstone Lake, called Lake Camp. They called our names and we found we had the same twelve that we had coming in, so we were all acquainted. Two of the party were college boys and good singers, so we could "sing as you go." All we wanted to. Leaving Old Faithful camp, across Firehole Bridge, the first stop of five minutes is at Kepless Cascades. About eight miles out is where the Continental Divide is crossed through Crater Pass at an altitude of 8,240 feet. Here is a little lily-covered "Isa Lake," whose waters in spring-time flow out of both ends, one to the Atlantic and one to the Pacific. The road then turns down the narrow and tortuous corkscrew hill to a little valley at De Lacy Creek, hemmed in by pine covered heights on all sides, a good auto camp site. After leaving De Lacy Creek, the road comes out on Shoshone Point with Shoshone Lake near at hand and the Teton Mountains in the distance. From Shoshone Point the road descends a little and then climbs to the Continental Divide again at an altitude of 8,345 feet. From this point, it pitches rapidly down through dense timber until within one mile of the Thumb of Yellowstone Lake, which is at an altitude of 7,741 feet.

We stop twenty minutes at the Thumb Paint Pots. The guide tells about a tourist who tried to buy a paint brush at a general store, said he was going to paint his auto at the paint pots. These paint pots are not so large as the ones in the lower Geyser Basin, but are more brilliantly colored. We followed the shore of Yellowstone Lake for about five miles. There are two specified auto camps along here. After passing around Thumb Bay, a fine view of Mount Sheridan to the south is had. A little later, the knotted woods on the left are passed. Then rolling table lands with dense pines, then Natural Bridge and five miles more brings us to Lake Camp at 5 p. m. Thirty-five miles from Old Faithful, of mountainous roads in three hours.

Yellowstone Lake has a shore line of over one hundred miles and covers some 86,000 acres. The water temperature is around 45 degrees, so there is no bathing and no bath house at this camp. Unless you like excellent fishing, this camp is a decided disappointment after the wonders of the first two. The usual campfire and entertainment took place after supper, followed by dancing.

Next morning, I arose early and hiked about a mile to the bridge over Yellowstone River at the outlet of the lake, to fish. The man in charge was an eight hour man and not yet on the job, so had to fish off the bridge. Never saw so many large fish in my life. There was one trout to every four square feet as far as one could see, both sides of the ten-rod bridge, but they were fished so much, they were highly educated. I got four hooked and managed to land two of them. Back up in the hills, they say two hours will catch your number, (ten) nice fellows about 18 inches long. Two deer came down on the further end of the bridge, looked around and walked back into the forest.

As we were scheduled to leave for Grand Canyon Camp at 10 a. m., I had to cut my fishing short and hike back for a late breakfast. (To be continued.)

F. W. Hamill.

SEE BIG DEMAND FOR TRAINED COW TESTERS

INCREASE IN COW TEST ASSOCIATIONS CREATES JOBS—GIVE SPECIAL SHORT COURSE AT M. A. C.

Men trained to manage Cow Testing associations in Michigan are going to be in great demand as the number of associations increases in the state, says Prof. O. E. Reed, head of the dairy department at the Michigan Agricultural College. Enough men for four new testing associations were lined up in Allegan county alone, during a recent dairy campaign there, and the spread of the work throughout the state is expected to place a heavy premium upon trained testers.

In an effort to meet the demand, a special two-weeks' short course in Cow Testing and Dairy Barn Management will be given at M. A. C. from December 5 to 16. A number of men who wish to qualify for the official Cow Test positions are expected to enroll at that time.

Other short courses in agriculture, which will open at the college this month, include a four weeks' course in Poultry Husbandry, starting Nov. 28, and a month's course in Truck and Tractor operation, which opens the same day.

Today's Reflections

The rent hog seems to be the one animal that never worries when "hog-killing" time rolls around.

And a lot of fellows never owe any bills for the simple reason that they can't find anyone to trust them.

It is said that potatoes never grow larger than marbles in Greenland. First we knew we'd been buying potatoes from Greenland.

Our advice to Plymouth citizens is to get their Thanksgiving turkey early, and to not let the farmers who own them see you while you are at it.

It has also been our observation that about the only work some office holders do is to work for election.

Everybody has a lot of pretty and sentimental things to say about the dear old farm except the fellows who work on it.

A whole lot of Plymouth neighbors are never going to be bosom friends so long as they can look into each other's back yards.

It's mighty easy to make mistakes, and one way to do is to measure a fellow's success by his chest expansion.

The thing that troubles the country is not only the unemployment of the idle, but the idleness of a good many employed.

In a few days Plymouth citizens will be called upon to be thankful for what they've got. And there are also a lot of things they didn't get that they should be thankful for.

A GOLDEN WEDDING

On Saturday, November 5th, 1921, two of the revered members of the Plymouth Methodist church, celebrated their golden wedding. Northern Michigan's fragrant pine woods sheltered the early days of their wedded life, just after William John Stewart came home from the Southland, where he had been helping " Honest Abe" to set free a few million slaves. The veteran of the Civil War won the affection of Miss Nettie Passage, of Plymouth, and took her north, where the honeysuckle bordered the pathway to the cabin in the woods. The picture of that early cabin is one of the treasures of the household still.

God prospered this couple and honored their prayer and their liberality and hospitality, and their devotion to the church of their choice, and on the above mentioned date, the children, W. O. Stewart, of Detroit, one of the leading members of the West Grand Boulevard church, and their children; Mrs. Lyman B. Lester and her husband, of Freeport, Mich.; Mrs. R. A. Brown, and her husband, of Greenville, Mich., and their children; and two sisters, Mrs. Asa Joy, of Plymouth, and Mrs. Margaret Lee, of Summit, N. J., were among the guests. Rev. Joseph Dutton and Mrs. Dutton, of Birmingham, who, when they first arrived in Plymouth as pastor and family of the local Methodist church, were sheltered for some weeks under the hospitable Stewart roof, were also present, sort of foster-children of the family. In the afternoon other guests arrived to extend congratulations. The above named group did full justice to such a wedding dinner as seldom is cooked by a negro mammy of the Southland, or lumber-woods chef of the far north, but gets done to a turn in lower Michigan where the particular brand of chicken crows that was used on that occasion.

During the sumptuous banquet, the son, W. O. Stewart, as spokesman for the children, arose to present to the honored parents a delicately embossed box, containing a card on which was fastened in a row, five wonderful pieces of gold, worth ten dollars each; signifying that fifty golden milestones had been passed in the career of this worthy couple. Other gifts were presented by friends.

The good health of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart would suggest that many more wedding anniversaries may yet be enjoyed by them. That, indeed, is the hope of the many Plymouth, and other people who are fortunate enough to call these good Michigan Methodists friends. Mr. and Mrs. Stewart will spend the winter in Florida, and will be at home to their friends in the spring in Plymouth. —Joseph Dutton.

Baptist Notes

The meetings last week were very well attended and all enjoy Evangelist Currey. He is giving us the straight gospel in a very simple and yet convincing way. Sunday morning he spoke on, "Type Men," and he brought out how a christian man was a type unlike others, because they had been with Jesus and learned of Him.

A very large Sunday-school on Sunday, just over the 100 mark. Rev. Currey gave the young people and children a splendid talk on the Sunday-school lesson, urging all to decide for Christ, that Christ might be a guide and helper all through their life that He might help them to aspire to high and holy things, that in life they might aim at things worth while, and that they might not live a selfish life, but live to be a help to others, as Jesus did. Many of the young people came forward, desiring to live a christian life.

Sunday evening was the great address of the series of sermons on, "The American Home." Every person in Plymouth ought to have heard that sermon, for people were thinking fast when the sermon closed. Every father and mother's responsibility stood out clear, how God required them to train their children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord.

The meetings are increasing in interest and attendance. We appreciate the spirit of the churches down town giving up their regular service and attending with us in this revival meeting.

Next Sunday, Rev. Currey expects to close his work here. Come and make the last day the best of the meetings. Every night this week, except Saturday, the meetings continue. The chorus choir has led in the singing, and they are great; also duets, solos and male quartets have been on the program.

Remember the Thanksgiving service at 10:00 a. m. Come and praise God for His goodness this year. Rev. Nagle will be the preacher. Special music is being arranged. The service is at the Baptist church.

The Wayne Simultaneous Evangelistic campaign held a campaign conference at Northville, last Monday. Ten different centers were heard from, and the reports were all encouraging. It was a day of consecration and prayer for the work in this association. Pastors were there from Pontiac, First and Bethany church; Novi, Walled Lake, Wixom, Wayne, Plymouth, Northville, Fowlerville. Rev. Grimwood opened the conference. Rev. Dawkins of Royal Oak, led the devotionals. Rev. Currey took charge of the reports and general order of meeting. The ladies of Northville, gave a nice dinner.

Mr. Currey's subjects for next Sunday are: Morning, "Expansion Through Sacrifice." Evening, "The Challenge of Belief in Jesus."

PARTED BY WAR

Civil Strife Caused Separation of Noted Churchmen.

Missionary Centennial Recalls Affection Between Bishop McIlvaine and Bishop Polk, on Opposing Sides.

A striking memory of Civil War history is awakened in connection with the centenary of the Episcopal Missionary society, falling this year, which centers about two devout bishops of the church. Bishop McIlvaine of Ohio and Bishop Leonidas Polk of Tennessee, life-long friends, whose consciences made them 'enemies' when the war divided the country.

Bishop McIlvaine was the elder of the two and was chaplain at West Point when young Polk, son of the family which gave a President to the United States, arrived at the academy here on a military career. At the end of four years Polk was graduated into the army; but so marked was the influence that McIlvaine had exerted that, a few years later, the chaplain having in the meantime been elevated to the episcopacy, Polk resigned from the army and took clerical orders.

With the passage of the years it fell out that McIlvaine and Polk became identified as leaders in the movement within the church which resulted in the dispatch of missionary bishops into the unsettled areas of the country, and brought about those triumphs which are being acclaimed now in the missionary centennial. Polk was made the first missionary bishop of Arkansas and later first bishop of Louisiana.

Then came the war between the states, which arrayed father against son and brother against brother; and these two devout men of the church did not escape the perplexities of the situation. Bishop McIlvaine answered the call of Lincoln and went to England with Archbishop Hughes, Henry Ward Beecher and Thurlow Weed to exert their influence against British recognition of the Confederacy. Bishop Polk answered the call of Jefferson Davis and became a general in the Confederate army.

Thus actively aligned on opposite sides in the conflict, the stage was set for one of the most dramatic episodes of the war. Back in the West Point days the two men had entered into a solemn compact that when they separated, wherever they might be, they would pray, each for the other by name every Sunday morning. And now, the war fighting in the field for the South, and the other engaged in a delicate diplomatic mission for the North, enemies as to the political principle which was involved, their solemn compact was sacredly carried out until the end came with the death of Bishop Polk at the battle of Pine Mountain.

History tells of the success of the mission to England, of which Bishop McIlvaine was a part.

The kind of soldier Bishop Polk was is related in the general orders issued by Gen. J. E. Johnston, commanding the army of Tennessee on June 14, 1864, the day Polk fell. It read:

"Comrades: You are called to mourn your first captain, your oldest companion-in-arms. Lieut. Gen. Polk fell today at the outpost of his army—the army he raised and commanded. In all of whose trials he shared, to all of whose victories he contributed. In this distinguished leader we have lost the most courteous of gentlemen, the most gallant of soldiers. The Christian, patriot, soldier has neither lived nor died in vain. His example is before you; his mantle rests with you."

There is a striking picture, too, of this warrior-bishop contained in a letter he wrote to his wife less than a month before he fell.

"You will be interested," he wrote, "in hearing that the first night of my arrival with the army I baptized Lieut. Gen. Hood. It was on the eve of an expected battle. The scene was a touching one—he, with one leg, leaning on his crutches, a veteran in the midst of his and my officers and I the officiating minister. His heart was fully in it."

A few nights later he also baptized General Johnston.

Your Home Must be Warm

HOMER
 THE ORIGINAL PATENTED PIPELESS FURNACE

Winter is never so far away, but what cold weather comfort deserves consideration.

No home is comfortable unless it's warm. And no home is comfortably warm until the right kind of heating plant is in the basement.

Comfortable warmth demands more than just something to burn coal in. Stoves, base burners, old-fashioned pipe furnaces and other out-of-date heating makeshifts will not provide that kind of comfort.

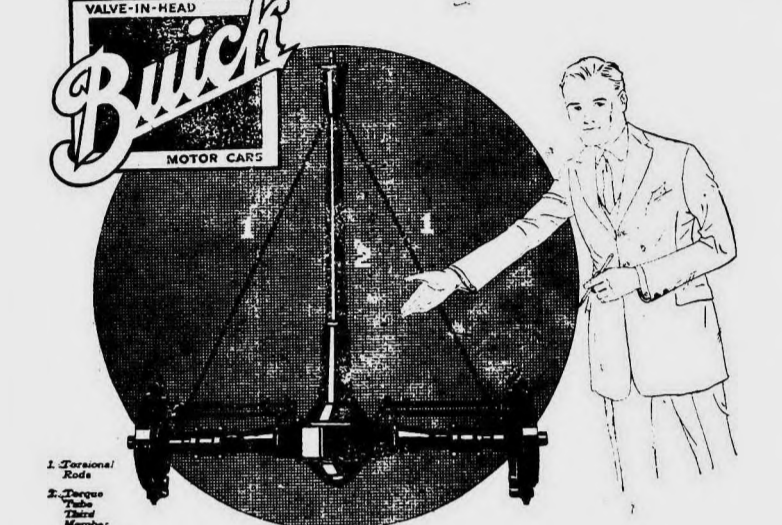

Your home needs a Homer if a comfortable and economical heating system is the result sought. And the same applies to stores, churches, schools and other buildings.

Why a Homer

- Because it operates on the most natural principle of heat travel. Warm air ascends, cooled air descends.
- Because one register is sufficient to allow warm air to circulate throughout the house, without the necessity of pipes.
- Because the heat is uniform. Every owner of a pipe furnace knows that there are always one or two cold registers.
- Because there are no pipes, no flues, no danger, no ashes in the living rooms, no need to maintain a big fire on mild days, no tearing out of walls to install it.
- Because it ventilates while it heats.
- Because it is the original patented pipeless furnace, the most efficient and the lowest priced to install and maintain.

"How soon can we use the phone?" That is the question in thousands of minds when storm rages over the community, downing wires and poles and disrupting service.

Let's talk it over.

The Telephone Company is human. We have our limits. We have difficulties. But the people of the Telephone Company are striving all the time to give service that will command public good will—and never more earnestly than when storm has impaired our service facilities.

Then every available repair man is on the job.

Hours and weather conditions are disregarded.

Not for a minute, night or day, until service is fully restored, do repair men relax their efforts. The job is done as promptly as is humanly possible.

The same earnest effort, we may say without exaggeration, characterizes the people of the Telephone Company at all times in all their relations with the public.

We're doing our level best to satisfy you. Together with public understanding and appreciation of our problems, that spirit is operating steadily toward our fixed goal: "Ideal Telephone Service for Michigan."

URGE STANDARD FRUIT VARIETIES IN STATE

MICHIGAN GROWERS RAISING FAR TOO MANY KINDS OF APPLES, SAYS M. A. C. MAN.

That the reputation of Michigan fruit depends upon standardization on a few varieties that can be grown successfully in the state, is the opinion of W. C. Dutton, horticultural specialist at the Michigan Agricultural college. Fruit growers in Michigan have found that they are growing far too many varieties of apples, and a special committee, composed jointly of men from the State Horticultural society and the horticultural department at M. A. C., is preparing a report upon standard varieties, which will be presented at the annual meeting of the Horticultural Society in Grand Rapids, Dec. 6-8.

"Recent apple shipments totaling sixty cars were made from one point in the state," says Dutton, "eighty varieties being included in the shipment. Growers themselves have found that this is wrong, and an effort will be made to standardize on good varieties—preferably those that can be grown better in Michigan than anywhere else.

"There should be two lists of varieties from which to choose: One for the grower who will raise large quantities of a few varieties and ship in car lots, and one for the grower who sells on a local market and wishes a succession of varieties over the longest possible period. Conditions are so diversified in Michigan, however, that the same varieties cannot be recommended for all parts of the state. Such a list would have to be divided into districts."

Reports given by the special committee at the state meeting of Horticultural society are expected to provide a basis for solving this problem of standardization.

Smith, and little daughter, Barbara, of Flint, several days last week. They came on Thursday to celebrate the eighty-first birthday of their mother and grandmother, Mrs. Louisa Packard.

The bazaar, dinner and supper given by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Presbyterian church in the church basement yesterday, Thursday, Nov. 17th, was well attended considering the weather. Many pretty as well as useful articles were on sale and the vegetable and baked goods booth, also candy booth, attracted as usual. A nice little sum was netted the society.

Some weeks ago we published the amount of taxes to be collected in Plymouth township, the sum aggregating $88,371.79. The apportionment was made by the board of supervisors on the 1916 valuation. The state tax commission, however, boosted the county apportionment by over $2,000,000. The county undertook by court procedure to contest this proposition, but was defeated. Under the new apportionment Plymouth will have to pay $5,000 additional state tax, making the total tax to be collected more than $93,000. Some tax!

The holiday season is approaching, and those who have parcels to send away by parcel post should send them as early as possible in order to avoid the rush that comes in the last few days before Christmas. Parcels should be well wrapped with heavy paper and securely tied with stout cord, and should have the sender's name and address plainly written in the upper left hand corner and the name and address of the addressee in the lower right hand corner, same as a letter should be. If patrons will observe these few instructions, their parcels will reach their destination in good order and in time for Christmas. Patrons may place on parcels the following without extra charge, "Do not Open until Christmas."

A BRAIN STORM
(Thoughts while shoveling snow)
Shovel, shovel, toil and trouble;
Winter winds make labor double
First the furnace; then the walk;
Peel, sometimes, I'd like to balk;
By the open fire-side sitting,
Time is profitably fitting;
When a paralyzing thrill
Sends me out the hod to fill—
Chilled through!
Down I sit again to ponder,
When I see through windows yonder,
Snowflakes falling through the air;
And I'm "called" to work out there.
So I take my "winter spade"
And proceed to lend "first aid"
To my neighbor, floundering town-ward.
While the mercury speeds downward—
Minus two.
After shoveling 'round my acre,
Snowflakes still descending; make her
"Bout as deep as at the first;
Walking still is at its worst.
So I recommence my labor,
For the comfort of my neighbor,
Thinking of the tardy snow plow,
Thoughts that seem to help me no how.
Though true,
While in vain I'm thus progressing,
Suddenly a sound distressing
Causes me to turn about—
"Fire is calling, "Fire is out!"
Shovel, shovel, toil and trouble;
Winter winds make labor double;
First the furnace; then the walk;
Sometimes feel I'd like to balk—
Don't you?
S. CONGER HATHAWAY.

A Timely Suggestion
This is the season of the year when the prudent and careful housewife replenishes her supply of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is almost certain to be needed before the winter is over and the results are much more prompt and satisfactory when it is kept at hand and given as soon as the first indication of a cold appears and before it has become settled in the system. There is no danger in giving it to children as it contains no opium or other harmful drug.—Advertisement.
