FRANK T. NEWTON NOMINATED FOR MARSHAL OFFICE

YPSILANTI MAN TO RECEIVE HIGH GOVERNMENT POST.

Ypsilanti friends of Frank T. Newton, for years one of the leading figures in Washtenaw politics, are today congratulating him on his nomination to be United States marshal for the eastern district of Michigan. President Harding yesterday announced that he had nominated Mr. Newton to the office.

Although it has been generally conceded for several months that Mr. Newton would be the next U. S. marshal for this district, there was nothing definite in the matter until despatches from Washington announced his nomination today.

Mr. Newton is one of the best known residents of the county and a valued citizen of Ypsilanti, having lived either in the city or its vicinity practically all his life. His service as sheriff of Washtenaw county has prepared him for the work he will have to do.

Mr. Newton was born in Superior township, north of Ypsilanti, Sept. 30, 1867. He was for seven years a teacher in the district schools of Wayne, and for five years lived in Lansing, where he was special agent for a life insurance company. The remainder of his life has been spent in Washtenaw county.—Daily Ypsilantian Press, Friday, June 2.

Mr. Newton has many friends in Plymouth and vicinity, who will be pleased to learn of his nomination.

JUNIORS BANQUET SENIORS

Last Tuesday evening the Juniors gave their annual banquet to the Seniors in the High school auditorium, or as the program put it: Wag-Um-Tongue-Pow-Wow of Fighting Braves and Soft-talk Maidens in the Pale-Face Listen Lodge during the Pleasant Moon of Strawberries.

Toastmaster—Heap-Think Bartlett. Welcome—O Wise-Mouth Seniors. Soft-Talk Maidens—Mind-Um-Squaw Williams. Fighting Braves—Chase-Um-Chief Kiely.

Wailing Lamentations—Screech-Owl Patterson. Pow-Wows—Jump-the-Mud-Holes Shattuck.

Tom-Tom Noises—Nimble-Finger Schrader. The Owl Face Satchems—Indian-Scalper Wisely.

War Whoop—Croak-Um-Bull-Frogs Millard, Richwine, Strasen and Williams.

Farewell, O Wisdom-Seekers—Shake-Um-Hand Streng.

The banquet served by the Methodist Ladies' Aid society, was cleverly revealed under these captions:

Jumping-Jaw-Feast
Tribal-Mix-Up Noise Makers
Jerked-Fowl-Meat
Riced-Sinew-Builders
Green-of-the-Field
Bouncing Maize Balls

Tongue-Ticklers—War-Paint Salad
Frozen-Tropical-Juices Demon-Food
Fire-Water

Savored-Fruit-of-the-Vine

The place cards were gold colored paper wiggams, and the Indian atmosphere was carried out in the kettle with electric lights, covered with red paper used as a center-piece. The flowers were daisies and buttercups, to represent the gold in the Senior colors. Candles softened the lighting effect. The plans for the banquet and the toasts were original, and a credit to the Juniors and their patronesses.

ALUMNI REUNION

The annual reunion of the P. H. S. Alumni and reception to the class of '22, will be in the form of a six o'clock dinner in the High school auditorium, Friday, June 23. Members are requested to get tickets in advance or notify the officers if coming. Arthur Whipple of Detroit, will be toastmaster. Tickets will be obtainable at Jolliffe's, Conner's, Plymouth Mail and Plymouth United Savings Bank.

Will Honold of Adamsville, Ohio, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wheeler.

Do not fail to hear the lecture, Friday evening, at Penniman-Allen theatre.—Advertisement.

DEATH OF FORMER RESIDENT

The following article was taken from the Detroit News, Thursday, June 1st:

"Dr. Scott Hodge, 7621 Third avenue, homeopathic physician in Detroit for 25 years, died Wednesday of pneumonia. Besides several professional societies, Dr. Hodge was a member of the Masons, Detroit Athletic Club, Detroit Yacht Club, Fel-lowcraft Club and Detroit Power Boat Association. Two children, John Scott, seven years old, and Betty Anne, two years old, survive him. Mrs. Hodge died a year ago."

Dr. Hodge's boyhood was spent on a farm east of town. He was a former pupil of the Plymouth High school, and was a member of the 1896 graduating class.

LOCAL TRACK TEAM AT LANSING

A portion of the Plymouth High School track team journeyed to Lansing last Thursday night to compete in the State Interscholastic on Friday and Saturday of last week. As far as a team showing was concerned, the trip was a failure, but the individual showing proved that Plymouth High will be a strong contender at the Four Square League meet.

Stevens showed well as usual, winning the half mile in good time. Sutherland finished a close fifth in the mile, losing fourth place by a foot. He should win at Dearborn this Friday.

Kenyon proved that with a little more practice in the hurdles, broad jump and high jump, will be expected to win points at all meets. Williams did not get into the finals in either the 100-yard or 220-yard dash, but showed that with hard practice, he will make them step some to beat him.

Bartlett was running a nice race in the low hurdles when he tripped and fell on the cinder track. He was up like a flash and running even with the others, only to lose out again when he tripped over a hurdle, taking one of the worst spills on the track during the meet. Injuries may keep him out of the meet this week, where he would have a good chance of winning an event.

WILL OPEN RESTAURANT AND LUNCH ROOM

We wish to announce the opening in the very near future of the Plymouth Hotel restaurant and lunch room, under the able management of Arch W. Mathewson, a restaurant man of wide experience and well known to the traveling public. He started in the kitchen as a dishwasher, and by working and remembering what he saw and learned, has now become one of the best known authorities on food and service in the central and western states. Mr. Mathewson was state inspector of foods in Indiana, with Herbert Hoover, afterward with the Prince of India on his tour of the United States; then went with the Rock Island R. R. as traveling chef. The people of this community are indeed fortunate in having a man of his experience in their midst. He plans to remodel the entire downstairs of the hotel, the lobby or office to be made into an up-to-date quick service lunch counter. There is to be a large archway entrance between the lunch room and the general dining room, which will be refurbished in mahogany, with full linen service, Rogers silver, individual lights on each table, with rose silk shades, which will lend a feeling of privacy and hominess. There will be no confusion or noise, even the dishes are removed on rubber-tired service wagons. He plans to specialize on parties, banquets and special Sunday dinners.

WHITE-ENGLAND

Miss Grace White, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred White of this place, and Robert England, son of Mr. and Mrs. George England, also of this place, were quietly married in Detroit, May 24, 1922. They will reside with the bride's parents for the time being.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Chambers were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Holloway in Detroit.

COMMISSION FIX VILLAGE TAX RATE

The village commission met in regular session Monday evening. Aside from the routine business transacted, the commission accepted the tax roll of the village assessor and fixed the tax rate for 1922 at ten mills. The rate last year was nine mills. The real estate valuation for 1922 is $2,952,530; personal, $625,205, or a total of $3,577,735. This is an increase of $158,330 over the 1921 valuation.

The commission also passed resolutions authorizing the issuing of the following bonds for the Starkweather avenue improvements:

General paving bonds, voted May 9th, $10,000.

Special assessment sanitary sewer bonds, $3,600.

Special assessment pavement bonds, $14,440.

The last two are to cover four-fifths of the assessed portion of the cost of pavement and sewer. The special assessments are divided into five annual installments, one of which being due and payable now, does not need to be bonded for, there remains the other four installments which have to be taken care of by bonding.

TRACK MEET AT DEARBORN

The Four Square Track and Field meet is to be held at Dearborn this week, Friday, commencing at 10:00 o'clock sharp. The meet this year will be larger and better than ever before as there are six teams competing: Redford, Farmington, Northville, Wayne, Dearborn and Plymouth. One of the new features on the program are the events for the girls. Each school is expected to enter a girls team, the winner of which receives a silver cup. There are five events for the girls, 50-yard dash, standing broad jump, 8-lb. shot put, base ball throw and relay.

Following are some of the probable entrants in the boys' meet: Capt. Stevens, Sutherland, Bartlett, Kenyon, Williams, Cline, Chappel, Seger, Trimble, Holcomb, Strasser, Redden, Huston, Sayles, Reiman, Pierce and Trux.

It is hoped that a large number of rooters from Plymouth will attend the meet and help the boys and girls in trying to bring home the cup.

Tickets are on sale at the High school and by students for 25 cents. Students 15 cents.

We need your support.

ODD FELLOWS ANNUAL MEMORIAL SERVICE

The annual memorial service for the local I. O. O. F. and Rebekah lodges will be held next Sunday evening at St. John's Episcopal church at 7:30. Members are requested to meet at the lodge room at 7:00 o'clock. Franklin L. Gibson will preach the sermon, taking as his text, Luke 10:30-37. Everybody come.

The Challenge to the College Man

"THERE is a great need in the ministry for vigorous men who understand human life, and who have the courage to apply the teachings of their religion to the vital problems of life.

"There is a distinct need for men in journalism who understand the vital problems of modern society. Men of broad sympathies and journalistic ability may rise to positions in which they can exert, as did Jacob Riis, a wonderful influence for social betterment.

"There is a pressing need for educated men in industry—men like John Mitchell. Leaders are needed who have a knowledge of economics and sociology, and who can deal courteously and convincingly with employers and legislatures.

"In the medical profession no man is reputable who patents any instrument, device or drug. He is expected to give what he discovers, as soon as its value is demonstrated, freely to the world. Lord Lister discovered the value of antiseptics. He might have made himself wealthy keeping his discovery a secret, but he gave it to the world and thus enabled physicians to save thousands of lives.

"None but the serviceable man can rightfully be called successful. A college education is largely a gift. Students pay only a small proportion of its cost. The man who uses his college education for selfish ends is not even playing fair. The most successful college men are those who go out from college to give their lives to the struggle against the social evils which threaten the nation."

THE SWIMMING SEASON

A New York boy who didn't know a thing about swimming took a chance the other day by jumping into a deep river, simply because some of his companions called him a "sissy" and dared him to jump in. They pulled his lifeless body out of the water. He had proved that he wasn't afraid to take a dare—but it cost him his life.

It is better sometimes to let people call you names than to go blundering into something that your better judgment tells you is unsafe. Kiddies in this section have again reached the swimming season, when dangers are greater than in any other time of their careers. They will have their leisure hours, lots of them, and they will spend a good part of their time in the water. Anxious mothers will continue to pass out the age old warning about being careful, and watching out for deep holes in the creek or river or lake—but the boys will go right on bantering each other and taking chances, just as boys have ever done since the days of old Adam.

Look at the number of boys who have either lost their lives or become cripples for life simply because they didn't want to take a dare. We wish every boy in Plymouth could understand that there are worse things than being called a "sissy," than being laughed at for refusing to risk a foolish dare. Being crippled for life is far worse. Going through life with one leg gone because another boy dared you to hop a train; living with one eye because another boy dared you to do something which would endanger your eyesight—all that is a million times worse than being laughed at or called names. If you don't believe it, ask any man who went through the same thing—and every man has.

METHODIST NOTES

Miss Lorena Terry, who is home from attending the Kansas City Training school, spoke at the Sunday-school hour, last Sunday.

Miss Ione Bird led the Epworth League in a religious track meet, last Sunday night at the 6:30 service.

Those who can furnish autos for the Missionary Society picnic to be held at the home of Mrs. Hanchett, near Perrinsville, next Wednesday, June 14th, are asked to notify Mrs. Charles Bovee, phone 200R.

The official board will hold its session next Tuesday night at the parsonage.

Next Sunday morning at 10:00 the Sunday-school will hold its Children's Day program. Along with some songs and a few recitations, a pageant will be presented, expressing the spirit and purpose of Children's Day. The collection that day will go to the Children's Day Fund, which is used entirely for the purpose of helping worthy young people to get a college education.

A baptismal service will also be held at the Children's Day program. Any parents who desire to have their children baptized, the pastor will be glad to perform the service at that time.

Mid-week prayer service Thursday evening at 7:30.

The annual picnic of the Detroit Methodist Preachers and their families will be held this year together with the Flint District Methodist preachers and their families at Lake Orion next Monday, the 12th.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Kahri and family and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Krumm and family of Farmington, spent last Sunday at Orchard Lake and Pontiac.

HOUGH SCHOOL REUNION

One of the most pleasant gatherings ever held in this neighborhood, was the reunion of old-time pupils, residents and teachers of School District No. 1, of Canton, held on the lawn of the old Anderson homestead, now owned by Henry Anderson's youngest daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Hix, Saturday, June 3rd.

The weather was ideal, and at 10:30, the guests began coming. At noon a pot-luck dinner was spread on tables under the beautiful maples on the lawn, at which between two and three hundred people were served. Following the dinner, a short program by the pupils and residents of the district was presented by the George Newkirk of Detroit, who as Mattie Collins of Wayne, was a teacher forty years ago in the district, told in a very interesting manner of her experiences as a teacher at that time, mentioning many humorous incidents, which were recalled and enjoyed by old-time residents. Charles Pitcher of Plymouth, told of his school-boy days in the school that was standing there at that time, seventy years ago, and a brief history of the school and the way it was conducted in those days, written by Mr. Pitcher's daughter, Mrs. Winn Hubbell, was read by Mrs. Tillotson.

Several letters of regret were read by E. C. Hough, which will be published next week.

Among the former teachers present were: Mrs. Elizabeth Murray Safford, Miss Alice Mack Fishlock, Mrs. Ella Anderson Robinson, Miss Hazel Reddeman and Miss Gladys Passage of Plymouth; Mrs. Kirby Fox Sessions of Northville; Mrs. Hazel Huffman Hawthorne of Ypsilanti; Mrs. Carrie Rash Carleton of Wayne, and Mrs. Mattie Collins Newkirk of Detroit.

The day was so much enjoyed by all those present, that plans are now being made for a bigger and if possible, a better reunion at some future date.

LOCAL NEWS

Many from Plymouth will attend the track meet at Dearborn tomorrow.

Harry Birch is building a new house on South Main street. G. B. Crumie has the contract.

Mr. and Mrs. George Griffin, Miss Mildred Prosser and Glenn Griffin spent Sunday in Toledo with Mrs. Griffin's sister, Mrs. Henry Englehart.

Miss Alta Hamill will appear in a recital given by the dramatic art department of the Detroit Institute of Musical Art, Saturday evening, at McClellister hall, Detroit. Miss Hamill will give several readings and have a part in a one act play.

A special meeting of the Order of the Eastern Star will be held in Masonic hall, next Tuesday evening, June 13th, for the purpose of initiating candidates. Refreshments will be served after the work, and all members of the order are welcome.

The following girls of the Harmonic Club, chaperoned by Miss Czarina Penney, enjoyed a trip to Bob-Lo, Saturday: Julia Wilcox, Ida Bennett, Lyla Patten, Katherine Rengert, Janette Whipple, Marian and Elizabeth Beyer, Eva Brown, Juanita Coe and Helen Fish.

The annual picnic of the Woman's Club will be held at the home of Mrs. Carman Root on Ann Arbor road, next Friday, June 16th. A pot-luck dinner will be served at one o'clock, and all members of the club are urged to attend. All who will furnish automobiles for transportation, and all who have not a way provided, will please notify either Mrs. Harry Shattuck or Mrs. Coello Hamilton.

The lecture, "Millions Now Living Will Never Die," brings the thought of life, liberty and happiness to all.—Advertisement.

CALLS HALT ON OLD JOKES

Writer Thinks It Time That Some of the Well-Worn Witticisms Were Scrapped.

Correspondent in one of the papers makes a strenuous protest against humorists constantly using jokes that have grown whiskers.

"Why," says he, "do they always refer to live, alert, progressive Philadelphia as sleepy town?"

Really, we can't tell. Last time we were there we didn't get to bed all night. The Pen and Pencil club never closes.

"What fat man," asks the correspondent, "ever searches for a collar button? What man ever gets down on his knees to propose to a bobbed-haired girl?" and he concludes, "the average mother-in-law is no more troublesome than any other individual."

And he's right. All these old-time jokes should be scrapped; but the task will take some time.

You see, it's this way. When the man who writes jokes comes to the office in the morning with a headache or indigestion, or a touch of the grip, he doesn't feel very funny; indeed, he doesn't. But he has to get out his stuff, and he can land on something about Philadelphia or mother-in-law, etc., and can give it a new twist, he grabs it, so as to save time and anguish for himself.

He shouldn't do this, of course; but he is only human like the rest of us, and, on the level, it's no cinch inventing new jokes. Most joke writers grow bald early, and there's a reason.

And there is no rest for a joke writer. When he's off duty, he starts to think of jokes for the next day, and sometimes when his thinking apparatus is not in good working order, he is liable to find something on the old collar button or the man on bend-knees proposing to a flapper, and being unable to arise on account of rheumatism, until assisted by her father, who hates him, and gives him the grand rush.

We are still in favor of letting the whiskered jokes rest forever, but it will take time before they are permanently eliminated.—Brooklyn Standard-Union.

The Home Board.

A queer notion seems to be current that the table exists to feed people. It exists to feed people, but far more to gather the members of a household together three times a day; to acquaint them with each other by revealing little intimate traits of character; to furnish a court in which may be impartially discussed problems of family, community and nation; to be a glowing center in the family life about which choice memories will ever linger.

In the decorative effect of the table ready for a meal, every item is important. The character of the table itself, the linen, the china, the silver, the food, its service, are all important. The artistry of a thing is inherent in the original idea; is concerned with every phase of its expression. A table ready for service may be a complete design with nothing on the table but the food and the furnishings necessary to serve the food effectively. Such a table was recently seen in a modern home. The table, large enough for a luncheon for two, was a sturdy design, with which the warm gray-linen table-runner blended; the quaint tea-set and the forceful pattern of the dishes made an excellent setting for the food.—April Decorator.

Two Rivals in Love

By DOROTHY WHITCOMB

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union

"What's the trouble, Lester?"

"Oh, nothing that money won't cure."

"You'd find it an infallible medicine, you think?"

"I know it," declared Lester Martin and proceeded on his way grumpy and dolorous.

Neal Dorman glanced almost pityingly after his friend. In a way they were rivals in love. That is, both visited weekly the same young lady, Miss Viola Morse, though on different evenings. Young Dorman was thrifty and steady, and he sometimes fancied that Viola rather admired those qualities. On the contrary Martin was always in debt, always grumbling at his hard fate and always living beyond his means.

A wonderful stroke of "good luck," as he termed it, came to him that very afternoon. As he was passing the one office building of the town a figure at an upper window halted him. It was Mr. Snow, the lawyer.

"Sit down, Mr. Martin," invited Mr. Snow. "I have heard from your grandfather," continued the attorney. "As you know, in your behalf I have tried to interest him as a relative and at least start you in some small business."

"Yes, yes," commented Martin rapidly, his eyes glowing with eagerness as he noticed a fluttering check pinned to the document in the lawyer's hand.

"He sends you one thousand dollars. He says he started in business on one-half that amount. He does not encourage me to believe that he will do anything further for you, but, I presume your success or failure, would be a test as to that."

"So the mean old hunk has loosened up at last, has he?" rulled Lester.

"I'm going to do things up brown," he secretly boasted. "I'll give Viola the time of her life. Old Morse has a neat plum of a fortune and she's a stake worth playing for."

The foolish young man did what many a callow youth similarly circumstanced had done before him. There were new suits of clothes, some gorgeous neckties, a diamond pin and a removal from his former modest living quarters to a suite in the principal hotel of the place.

A note came for Viola one morning inviting her to drive over to a theater party at a nearby city in "my new sport car." and Martin alluded to the high social standing of some of the others who would make up the party.

"Martin was very much put out to receive a courteous but definite reply to the effect that Viola had a previous engagement.

That evening Viola did indeed keep an engagement—a village musicale, and Neal Dorman saw her home and his excellent company somewhat stoned for what Viola had missed.

For a week Martin sulked and did not come near the Morse home. One afternoon he drove up to the place in his elegant car. It was one he had leased for a month, but he did not tell that.

It was a pleasant enough drive, although Martin rather disgusted her with his boasting of all the money he was spending. Just as they were passing a bridge the car turned over.

"Oh, dear—take care," warned Viola. Martin leaped free of the vehicle. This upset, spilling Viola to the ground. A cry of pain came from Viola's lips.

"Hurt?" inquired Martin. "I fear my ankle is sprained. Oh, Mr. Martin, I feel so faint! won't you try to get me home to mother?"

"Why, Miss Morse!" cried an anxious voice, and running a wheelbarrow filled with bags before him Neal Dorman appeared on the scene. "I saw the accident. Tell me—are you injured?"

Viola explained weakly and pleaded to be taken home. In a trice Dorman had arranged the empty bags upon the wheelbarrow.

"It may not be very comfortable," he explained.

"Never mind that, I am in such pain I want to see mother."

Neal's heart beat mightily as, tramping feeling that dainty form to the barrow, Viola's soft hands clasped his neck.

He called at the Morse home the next morning to learn good news the moment he opened the garden gate Viola was seated upon the porch conversing with her mother, therefore improved. These words floated to the ears of the blameless listener!

"After yesterday's experience with Mr. Martin, mother, of course never before that, still no, for—I love another."

And, ceasing his mind about to solve this riddle of love, Neal Dorman guessed it out that he was a favored one, indeed.

He found it out to a surety before he parted with Viola that morning.

There were no further remittances for Martin when that first thousand had been dissipated. Wedding bells were ringing the evening he slipped away from town in debt and out of sorts, but they did not chime for him.

No Doubt

"Miss Plain says you told her she was pretty. How does your conscience stand the strain?"

"Oh, I told her the truth."

"The truth? You don't really mean to say you think—"

"Of course not. I told her she was as pretty as she could be. That's safe.—American Legion Weekly.

The Home of the Soul

In olden times, it was believed that the seat of the soul was the stomach, most likely for the reason that a man is never so completely used up as when his stomach is out of order. For the cure of ordinary stomach troubles, there is nothing quite so prompt and satisfactory as Chamberlain's Tablets. They strengthen the stomach and enable it to perform its functions naturally. Give them a trial. They only cost a quarter.—Advertisement.

FOR EAST IS EAST

This Chinaman Couldn't Understand "Foreign Devils."

His Description of Feast About as humorous as if it Had Been Written With That Idea.

An old man, who declared he had been to Shanghai, told how the foreigners there feasted, according to "A Fortnight on a Cargo Boat," by William L. Hall, in Asia Magazine. Men and women all sat together at a long table. The table wore white cloths and was covered with fine linens and foreign chopsticks. A man would not sit by his own wife, but chose to sit by the wife of some other man. The men all drank wine out of foreign wine cups and before they drank they all stood up and held their cups out to the women. Some of the women had small wine cups and drank with the men. Some of the men smoked tobacco that was rolled into long tubes and others had their tobacco in rolls of white paper.

His cousin was working at the Inn and he was invited into the kitchen, where they were washing the bowls and chopsticks. When the wine cups were brought in he tasted some of the wine that was left in the bottom of the cups. Soon after tasting the wine he forgot all about where he was and tried to go out into the street alone. He could not tell whether his feet were trying to climb up his body or his head was trying to bite his feet.

When the feast was eaten the men and women went into another room, where some foreign men were making a noise on all sorts of foreign frames. When the men made the noise all the people jumped up and ran about the floor. When the noise stopped they always stopped, too, and then they would stand still and hit their hands together. Then the women would grab the arms of the men and they would all walk around the room, talking and laughing, until the noise began again. Some of the women had forgotten part of their clothing, but—so his cousin told him—they did it on purpose to please the men. When the noise was not going, or some of the men were not running about the floor with the women, they would go into another room and drink wine at a long, high table. The men were always in a hurry to drink when they were at that high table; for they would pick up a glass, open their mouths and try to throw the wine down their throats.

When everybody was tired of running about the floor each man picked out his own wife and they went away in foreign cars. Some of the men, who had no wives, kept drinking the wine and burning the tobacco tubes until it was almost time for the city gates to open. Then they went off down the road, holding to one another's arms and all trying to sing a foreign song.

Where Radio is Popular.

Observation from an elevated train shows that few blocks on which are homes or tenements lack wireless aeriols, according to the New York Sun.

Third avenue especially is marked by radio. Wires run from poles on one roof to poles on another, from chimneys and cornices and all sorts of places where there seems a good location for the feelers that catch the messages from the air and carry them down to the receiving instruments. Aerials are of all types, one, two, four and five strands, clumsily made some of them, others apparently the work of experts. Some are so small that one wonders how they ever attract a wireless message or telephone program. In any event it would seem that apartment house landlords once opposed to allowing tenants to erect aeriols on the roofs have been won over.

Men's Styles.

Advance fashion notes from London say that trousers for the well-dressed man are to be cuffless this fall, and add that suspenders are coming back. Those men who never felt perfectly safe with a belt will be glad of the latter note. A good many more will say farewell to trouser cuffs without regret. They were always foolish.

About the suspenders there is a diversity of opinion. Certain types of the human radish, called man, notably that one shaped like a lath with long-growing hips, will cheerfully throw away the belt and go back to the "galuses" of his boyhood. That is an old institution that innumerable generations of men have persisted in sustaining, because although the blue arch of the wide heaven might fall, hitched up by suspenders their pants wouldn't.

A Comparison Urged.

"Is that you, John?" asked Mrs. Dubwaite over the telephone.

"Yes," said Dubwaite. "What's the nature of the touch?"

"Is your fashionable stenographer there?"

"Yes. What about her?"

"Nothing. Just look her over and then see if you can't come home to your own wife in a cheerful frame of mind. I've just bought myself a new outfit."

And They Reformed.

Young Lady—Do you object to a girl using a little paint and powder?
Old Gentleman—No, not at all. And yet I can't forget that not such a very long time ago red Indians were considered savage because they painted themselves.—London Answers.

Why Suffer from Rheumatism?

Do you know that nine out of every ten cases of rheumatism are simply rheumatism of the muscles or chronic rheumatism, neither of which require any internal treatment? The pain may be relieved by applying Chamberlain's Liniment, which makes sleep and rest possible, and that certainly means a great deal to anyone afflicted with rheumatism.—Advertisement.

NUTRITION

BY IVA M. CHURCH
Red Cross Nutritional Worker for Wayne County

Constipation

Constipation is a disease of modern life, a product of inactivity, faulty habits of eating and a diet of too little bulk.

In the selection of such a diet the two important facts to be remembered are that the food must be coarse and rough as possible, and that all sorts of fats are very valuable in promoting ease of evacuation. We may choose then from the following:

Vegetables—All vegetables are good. Raw celery, coleslaw, all vegetable salads, cooked cauliflower, turnips, asparagus, carrots, onions, spinach, parsnips, and all beans. A good rule is for people with symptoms of this disease to have a double portion of vegetables.

Meat—Fat meats are best (unless it is important to keep down the weight).

Apples (raw one often being taken at bed-time); oranges and grapefruit (eating sections and inner peeling of oranges); pears, and melons, as well as all fruit salads. Dried fruits of all kinds, (especially prunes and figs), dates, raisins; all berries (except blackberries, which are constipating).

Cereals—Cereals from which the bran has not been removed, such as rolled or cut oats and wheat, whole wheat and bran bread. When still more bulk is needed bran itself may be mixed with the cereal in soup, or may be used in bread, muffins or biscuits.

Fats—Of all sorts, animal, vegetable and mineral (unless it is important to keep down weight), as well as all kinds of nuts.

Water—Drink one cup of water before breakfast and six to eight cups during the day.

Finally, habit plays a large part in normal intestinal movement, as in other digestive processes. If the normal warning is disregarded, it soon becomes ineffective and recalling it becomes more and more difficult. Taking food into the stomach at once excites intestinal movement, and particularly at breakfast time. Thus the "no breakfast" habit may mean the loss of much needed impulse.

SCHOOL NOTES

The following pupils in the A first and B second grades were neither absent nor tardy during the month of May: Melvin Blunk, Mary Jane Hamilton, Chester Janes, Alice Lee, Russell Micol, Marion Taylor, Jean Weeks, Marion Gust, Delbert Holtz, Evelyn Stanley, Phila Ferguson, Richard Nash and Grant Miller.

The University inspector, Prof. J. Raleigh Nelson, visited the High school, Monday.

The losing side in the English 10 spelling contest gives a picnic for the winners.

The physics class visited Dr. Champe's office last week, in order to study the x-ray machine.

On Wednesday, June 7th, the Aggie Club closed its first year with a business meeting, at which the secretary reported 35 names on the roll. In looking back over the year, we believe we have accomplished in part that for which the club was formed, to promote interest in the agricultural course, to create a bond of friendship between the out of town students, and help them to take part in the social life of the school.

The first we have accomplished by having speakers, such as Prof. French, Prof. Walpole, Prof. Grover from M. A. C., and the county club leaders, Miss Rogers and Mr. Ross; by showing slides emphasizing different kinds of agricultural work, and by training teams for all kinds of judging work.

We have taken part in social work, by having "box socials," "weenie" parties and noon feeds. The social committee is to be praised for the banquet given to the parents by the club, and for the excellent manner in which the County Club members were fed. As to the friendships formed, you should notice some of the new acquaintances which have sprung up since the club started. The meetings each week have brought these students in closer contact, and we feel really acquainted, instead of nearly strangers. The program committee has also been very active in supplying two meetings a month, besides a special meeting given in honor of those taking the eighth grade examinations and supplying a part of a "range" program. Some of the accomplishments of the club members may be judged at the Northville fair and the capturing of the French Trophy Cup for stock judging at M. A. C. The other judging teams finished among the first five of the 27 places in grain and stock judging.

The Club feels that without the help of the faculty and especially the work of Mr. Holcomb, it would never have accomplished what it has.

With the hope that next fall will see the Aggie Club larger and stronger even than this year.

EPISCOPAL NOTES

There was a very fair congregation last Sunday morning, to welcome Mr. and Mrs. Hausman. Martin Hausman, who is attached to the Y. M. C. A., preached a most impressive sermon, taking as his subject, "The Ascension." Mrs. Hausman sang the solo during the offertory. We were also glad to welcome three new pupils in our church school, last Sunday morning.

Next Sunday morning, the Rev. Harry Midworth, rector of the Church of Our Savior in Detroit, and late missionary of St. John's, Plymouth, will be with us, and will celebrate the holy communion. We hope there will be a large congregation to welcome Rev. Midworth.

It will be Odd Fellows Sunday, next Sunday evening, and the members of the local I. O. O. F. and Rebekah lodges will attend their annual memorial service in a body at our mission church. The service will be at 7:30, and Franklin L. Gibson will preach from the text, Luke 10:30-37, taking as his subject, "Friendship, Love and Truth"—"A certain man went down from Jerusalem to Jericho."

On account of the funeral of the late Mrs. Mable Gottschalk, last Wednesday, the meeting of the Ladies' Guild was put off until this week, when they met at the home of Mrs. George Wilcox.

It was good to see our old friend, Warren Thomas, in Plymouth, last week. Mr. and Mrs. Warren Thomas are earnest and faithful workers of the church, and two of the few remaining organizers of our present mission of St. John's, Plymouth.

Mr. Thomas was treasurer of the mission from 1912 to 1916, and Mrs. Thomas was a faithful and conscientious member of the Ladies' Guild during that time. They left Plymouth in 1916, and went to Bad Axe, where they were also active members of the church until last week. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas are going to locate again in or near Detroit, and we trust it will be our good fortune to have these very good friends living among us again.

Mrs. D. Murphy and Mrs. William Henry attended the second annual convention of the House of Church Women held at St. Paul's church, Jackson. They were entertained at the home of Mrs. Murphy's nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Gannon of Jackson. Mrs. Murphy was sent as a delegate to represent St. John's Mission, Plymouth.

COMMISSIONER'S NOTICE

In the matter of the estate of Clinton James Knapp, deceased.

We, the undersigned, having been appointed by the Probate Court for the County of Wayne, State of Michigan, Commissioners to receive, examine and adjust all claims and demands of all persons against said deceased, do hereby give notice that we will meet at the store of Fred Dibble at Plymouth, Michigan, in said County, on Monday, the 31st day of July, A. D. 1922, and on Saturday, the 30th day of September, A. D. 1922, at 10 o'clock a. m. of each of said days, for the purpose of examining and allowing said claims, and that four months from the 31st day of May, A. D. 1922, were allowed by said Court for creditors to present their claims to us for examination and allowance.

Dated, May 31, 1922.

FRED DIBBLE,
WILLIAM CONNER,
Commissioners.

BAPTIST NOTES

Sunday was a good day at the Baptist church, and the spirit of worship seemed to be in the congregation. The decorations are worthy of mention. The duet by Mrs. Grainger and Miss Smith was enjoyed by all.

During Sunday-school hour much of the time was used in drilling in music, songs to be sung at Children's Day exercises, next Sunday evening, and to which all are invited. Come and enjoy an evening with the children. The program promises to be a good one.

The delegates from the Sunday-school to the Wayne association was the Grainger family.

Miss Sarah Daly and Edith Holcomb led the B. Y. P. U. on Sunday evening. Subject, "Forming Friendships." Many expressed their opinion on the subject, and thought young people ought to use care in the selection of friends.

Miss Ester Estep and Madeline Shackleton were chosen as delegates to the meeting at Howell, last Wednesday. The entire evening was given to the young people. The banquet was at 6:30. Rev. Morgan Williams of Lansing, was toastmaster.

The music committee of the church are receiving money to purchase a piano for use in the church.

Crossings Cautiously

American Railroads, will for the next four months, try to educate the people against their own folly. Too many accidents at railroad crossings—or even on the railroad tracks where the victim is usually a trespasser—are occurring. Teachers, preachers, business men and women, generally, are asked to use their influence in having these simple precautions followed:

1. Do not walk on railroad tracks or bridges.
2. Do not allow children to play around railroad tracks or stations.
3. Do not crawl under or between cars.
4. Before crossing tracks at crossings, STOP, LOOK and LISTEN to see if a train is coming, and after a train has passed make sure no other trains are approaching in either direction.
5. Do not crawl under crossing gates after they are down. Stop until train passes.
6. Do not allow children to play around turn-tables, cranes, cars, or other railroad property.
7. Use the streets and highways instead of the railroad tracks in going to or from work.

"millions now living will never die"—Judge Rutherford

"MILLIONS NOW LIVING WILL NEVER DIE!"

In less than a year this proclamation has found its way into thirty languages and the message is being heralded to millions of people in thousands of cities in every land of the earth. "Millions now living will never die!" "Who ever heard of such a thing? Preposterous," you will say. So said the scoffers to Noah: they had never seen rain—but the flood came on time. "Millions now living will never die," but will enjoy unending human life on the earth and ascend a highway of righteousness to full perfection of body, of mind, of character, in company with their loved ones returned from the grave. When the kingdom of God is fully established mankind will have no more fear of sickness or accident, old age or death; no more dread of loss of home, or loved ones or, livelihood; no more sorrow or tears.

"MILLIONS NOW LIVING WILL NEVER DIE!"

You may be one of them! Go! Hear the proof of these most marvelous tidings. Testimony upon testimony, evidence upon evidence, Biblical, historical, scientific—appealing to your reason as well as to your heart—will be presented without cost in the lecture by Sidney Morton of New York.

This lecture has comforted multitudes bereaved by the world war, epidemics and attending sorrows. So great has been the demand that it has been amplified and published in book form, including 500 Scriptural proof texts. Those unable to hear the lecture may have a copy by sending 25 cents to I. B. Paint Creates Prosperity

SAVE THE SURFACE AND YOU SAVE ALL

The "run down" house (there is one near you) is fast going to ruin merely because the owner unwisely neglects to keep it protected with paint.

It costs more not to paint than to paint. Paint saves the surface and protects the building from sun, rain, frost and varying weather conditions that bring destruction.

Prosperity demands the protection of all exposed surfaces with good paint.

ACME QUALITY HOUSE PAINT

gives lasting protection and beauty.

It costs less because it takes less and lasts longer.

Call at our store and let us show you color samples and assist you in selecting the proper color combinations that will make your house appear to the best advantage.

Dorothy's Odd Audience
By MALCOLM BROWN

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

The wonderful afternoon had at last arrived. Dorothy Clifford was to make her debut as a pianist at Claridge hall, and Eustace, her fiance was to be there.

Claridge hall was not the finest hall in the city. It was, however, one of the leading centers of music.

Dorothy had been educating herself as a pianist for seven years. She had many teachers, too. She had hoped to make music her life career. But many a girl who dreams of a life career surrenders it when the right man comes along. And with Eustace to care for, the piano had become a less valued friend.

"Still, Eustace," she had said, "I can play once in a while at first, even after we are married, and make a few extra dollars. Don't you think so?"

Eustace had been dubious, but Dorothy's father was emphatically in agreement with her.

"You're going to give that piano recital, anyway, Dorothy," he said.

Dorothy's father was not very worldly wise, but anyway, he had his will. And so the fateful afternoon arrived.

When Dorothy arrived with her father and Eustace and saw the placards in front of the building her heart gave little throbs of pride. "Dorothy Clifford," they announced, in great black letters, under her picture. "Dorothy Clifford," and then, in smaller letters, "gives her pianoforte recital in Claridge hall"—the last words very big again—"on Friday next at 2:30."

Eustace squeezed her hand and her father twisted his white mustache and stroled along as proud as a king.

"Room 4, Miss Clifford," they told her inside. So Dorothy had to say good-by to her father and sweetheart and hurry round to the musicians' entrance. She walked up and down corridors for Claridge hall is quite a large place—and at last found room 4. "They are waiting for you," said an old gentleman at the stage entrance—a little curly, Dorothy thought. The house was full.

Dorothy walked forward toward the grand piano, which, rather oddly, she thought, occupied a corner of the stage instead of the center, such a salvo of hand-clapping broke forth that the tears came into her eyes.

She could hardly see to read the music that she unrolled and placed upon the stand.

The first part consisted of a Chopin nocturne. Dorothy sat down and struck the opening chords.

At first she was timid. It was her first appearance in public, and the presence of these strangers disconcerted her a little, but before she had played half a dozen bars she had forgotten where she was in the joy of playing, and, before she knew it, the piece was ended. Dorothy got up and bowed.

To her amazement there was not a single hand-clap.

Not one person out of that vast audience had been sufficiently impressed to applaud. There was not a whisper. They sat in their seats in stony silence.

Dorothy controlled herself with difficulty. She went slowly out through the stage exit. She would not go back. She would go home, she—

"Dorothy! Where have you been?"

It was Eustace, Eustace standing at her side. She tried to hide the tears that filled her eyes.

"Dorothy! That's the wrong room. That's Number 3. We have been waiting for you a quarter of an hour. The audience is getting impatient."

The absurdity of the mistake sent the girl into a reaction of hysterical laughter. To whom had she been playing, then? She would not yield now; she would go on the right stage and play her part. Otherwise—well, her father would have to pay back the box office receipts, and that would mean three or four hundred dollars, at least. Mechanically she entered Number 4.

And as she entered just as hearty a round of applause greeted her as before. But when she ended the house went wild with enthusiasm. "Encore!" they yelled. They called her back three times in each of the first two parts and six times at the end. And, as the papers said next day, Dorothy had "arrived."

"Who—who were they, Eustace," she asked, at the first opportunity.

Eustace threw back his head and laughed.

"Dorothy," he said, "your first public concert was given before the National Association of Deaf-Mutes."

Thrifty Birds.

The large eagle owl often gathers a large quantity of food (including hares and rabbits, poultry and pigeons) for his mate and offspring; and the peasants have been known to utilize him as Elijah his ravens. There is an old tale that the ptarmigan makes stores of berries and buds beneath the snow, but there is no doubt that at least two species of woodpeckers store acorns, sticking them firmly into holes which are bored for the purpose in the tree stems. This is all the more interesting, if it be true, that what the woodpecker really eats is not the acorn, but a kind of grub that develops inside it.

His Sole Attraction.

ORIGIN OF GOLF

Scotch Shepherd Said to Have Originated the Game.

With His Crook as a Braaiis and Stone for a Ball He Made the Circuit of the Links.

Six hundred years and more ago an old shepherd in Scotland grew tired of doing nothing all day but look after his sheep so he amused himself by knocking a stone about with his crook. It interested him to see how far he could knock that little stone and how he could best get it out when it fell into grassy hollows or among other stones. He chose as round a stone as possible and put a distinguishing mark upon it.

One day he mentioned this pastime to the shepherd in the next field, who tried it, too. Then they made some of the places more difficult and measured off definite points and goals. At night, on their homeward way they would swap yarns. They measured off their holes in a circle, because in that way they could keep watch over their sheep, and they marked their holes with a tag of wool attached to a stake. Soon all the shepherds of the neighborhood were following their example.

This, says the Christian Science Monitor, is one version of the origin of golf. It was the game of shepherds in the beginning; but we find it the game of kings as well. We have an account of the train of James VI of Scotland and I of England playing on English soil. The first match on record was when the duke of York, afterward James II of England, and an Edinburgh shoemaker defended Scotland's claim against two English noblemen. Shortly after this match became more common, with prizes of clubs with silver bands, 12 balls or a simple medal.

By Scottish laws we can trace the history of the game from very early times. In 1458 the Scottish parliament enacted that "because golf diverts attention from archery, it must be cried down," and it seems to have been necessary to renew many times a law that golf must not be played on Sunday.

With a praiseworthy eye to economy, James I in 1618, disturbed because "no small quantities of gold and silver are transported yearly out of his highness' kingdom of Scotland for buying of golf balls," conferred a monopoly of golf ball manufacture upon James Melville for 21 years, but added that he must not charge more than four shillings. This same King James appointed William Myne, Bower Burgess of Edinburgh, club maker to his highness "during all the days of his lifetime."

The implements early became as good as those of today, with the exception of the balls. The first real balls were of leather, stuffed with feathers; then they were made of gutta percha with a smooth surface. It was soon discovered, however, that indentations were an aid to rotations, and the balls were hammered with the chisel end of a hammer. Later, of course, the indentations were made in the mold.

As far as records show, golf was first known in America in New York, but tradition states it was played on the Pacific coast by a band of old sea captains in the sixteenth century.

When women began to play is not known, but times have changed since the following quotation was true: "Men play the game, the boys the clubs convey, and lovely woman gives the prize away."

THE NIGHT GARDEN.

In order to have a garden really fascinating and glowing at night—in the darkness or in the moonlight—quantities of white flowers should be used.

As night comes on the haunting, gay-colored flowers fade into the darkness and become part of it, while the pure white flowers stand forth gloriously against the background of night.

White varieties of tulips, iris, peonies, sweet alyssum, roses, lilies, foxgloves, hollyhocks, dahlias, cimicifuga, anemones, and Japanese anemones will give a wonderful night effect in the garden from April until November. The most satisfactory white shrubs are white lilies, spiraea, dentzas, Japanese snowballs, hydrangeas, and altheas.

Big Forest Travel.

In 1920 more than 4,000,000 people visited their 152 national forests for recreation. But one feature not generally known, says the American Forestry association, is the fact that each year there are serious losses from two causes. The first loss is through forest fires started by careless campers. It aggregates millions of dollars annually. The more serious is actual life loss due to the lack of sanitary necessities in forest camp grounds. The federal government has never appropriated a dollar for such work. Forester Greeley is asking for $10,000 for this purpose.

Little Known Fish.

Recent ocean discoveries indicate that there are many kinds of deep sea fish still uncaught. It is said that there are 600 kinds of fish to be found off the coast of Florida, and a great aquarium is to be opened soon at Miami for their study.

No Repeater.

She—You don't love me as much as you used to.

Mr. Homebuilder Do You Know Why?

The grain in the siding and finish of some houses stands out, while it doesn't in that of others.

Why some hardwood flooring "cups" after a little wear;

Why some windows rattle after a little while and let in cold drafts; Why some roofs always seem to have a new leak;

Why some houses seem to deteriorate much quicker than others.

We will tell you why without obligation.

Being able to answer the above questions and advise prospective builders how to avoid such defects in building is A PART OF OUR BUSINESS.

We guarantee our service and the quality of the products we handle. Let us help you put longer life in your buildings.

The Home-Coming

By JUSTIN WESTWOOD
Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

Amy was coming home. Adela March was standing at the farmhouse door, waiting for her. It was twelve years since the sisters had met, and both were elderly women.

As Adela waited for her, her mind went far back into the past. She was a girl of twenty-four again. Amy was two years younger. That had been thirty years ago, when their father, the old squire, was living. They had been the principal family of the village—now a town—inhabited by a miscellany of foreigners who worked in the mills. Everything had changed and that night had changed the whole future of each of the sisters.

They had both been in love with Tom Leeecraft, and, as was the way in those dim times, which we now call the Victorian Era, each of them would rather have died than have admitted the fact of loving before being asked. Tom had a good practice as a lawyer in the village; he was a suitable match for either. At first he had seemed to prefer Adela; but then Amy came home, and everything was different.

Just as Adela had refused to let Tom know that she cared, when he was hot on the chase of her, so now she refused by any least sign to show how much she suffered. She watched Tom and Amy sitting together at nights upon the porch. She would show no bitterness, but she withdrew into herself.

She tried her hardest not to let Tom know that she felt the change in him, but he knew. He acted diffidently toward her. They were embarrassed in each other's presence. Amy, too, who had at first confided her love in Adela, now grew strangely silent. It was like a lowering thunderstorm in the house. Thunderstorms break.

Only the old squire knew nothing of it, absorbed as he was in his farm and crops, and local politics.

There came a certain night—a hot, thunderous summer night when the atmospheric conditions seemed reflected in their souls. The storm would break soon. It was pitch dark, so that Adela, from the lighted sitting room, could hardly make out Tom's and Amy's forms as they sat on the porch together.

Adela went out. Amy had left Tom's side. Adela strolled in the garden, thinking bitterly that it was impossible to bear it much longer. Either Tom must ask Amy to be his wife or she must go away. The scent of the roses was heart-breaking.

Suddenly she saw Tom's dim figure in the way. He drew her into his arms. "I love you! I love you!" he was whispering. "Darling, will you marry me?"

She gathered all her strength and fled. She fled to Amy. She told her.

"Tom asked me," she said. "He thought I was you. I ran away. You must go to him and tell him 'yes.' But first, swear to me that never, so long as you live, shall Tom know he asked me by mistake in the dark."

Amy sobbed on her sister's shoulder. She promised readily. Adela went to bed. In the morning Tom went into the squire's room and asked for Amy's hand.

And so—they were married. They went away West. Two or three times since then they had been home. They had prospered. Tom had died. It was a simple little story.

The fly was crawling up the hill. Adela waited. It drew up at the door. Amy stepped out—a middle-aged, wrinkled woman. The sisters clasped each other in their arms.

Over the railing Adela said: "You must stay here for always, Amy. Your noisiness and mine will keep us both steady. And you're all I've got. I want you for the rest of my life. We've seen so little of each other."

Amy turned and faced her, a light of resolution on her face. "Adela, I must tell you something," she said in a choked voice. "After I've told you you can decide whether you want me."

"Yes?" asked Adela calmly, though her heart was pulsing furiously. "It's about Tom?" she asked.

Amy nodded. "I never knew, and I was not to blame. I learned it at the last, when he was delirious. He called for you all the time. He never knew he had told me."

Adela stirred the pot. "Go on," she said quietly.

"He—loved you. You know that night in the garden? It was not a mistake. It was you all the time he wanted, not me at all."

"When I went to him next morning and made him think he had kissed me and asked me by mistake in the darkness, even then he kept control of himself. I did not guess that it was you. And he was very good to me all the years of our life together. It was only at the last I knew."

The hammering in her sister's pulses sounded like the swing of some infernal mechanism that had caught her up and carried her away. Life—what might it have been? But everything was clear, and—and it was peaceful in the decline of life to know that her love had been answered.

"Well, it can't be helped," she answered briskly. "Let's go and have supper."

The first lunacy laws in England were made in the reign of Edward III.

Recommends Chamberlain's Tablets
"Chamberlain's Tablets have been used by my husband and myself off and on for the past five years. When my husband goes away from home he always takes a bottle of them along with him. Whenever I have that heavy feeling after eating, or feel dull and played out, I take one or two of Chamberlain's Tablets and they fix me up fine," writes Mrs. Newton, Westland, Minn., N. Y. These tablets when troubled with constipation or indigestion, and they will do you good.—Advertisement.

AROUND ABOUT US

Contracts have been let for a new school building at Farmington.

Howell fair will be Aug. 29 to Sept. 1, inclusive, and will feature a night show this year.

The community house and Masonic Temple projects have been merged at Holly with about $40,000 pledged.

The new bath house at Cenuqua Shores, Walled Lake, has been opened to the public. The new building is commodious and convenient, and is the largest building of its kind in Oakland county.

W. A. Downs is one of the most extensive raisers of poultry in this section of the state. At his hatchery near Washington, on Monday, 10,000 chicks were hatched. This number is repeated every week, he having an incubator of 30,000 capacity.—Rochester Clarion.

Royal Oak has appropriated $1,000 for the support of its local band. The money will be used to employ musicians living outside of Royal Oak while the local men give their time and services. Concerts are to be given weekly during the summer.—Royal Oak Tribune.

The program of the Washtenaw county fair, September 19 to 23, is full of good things. The daily events include band concerts, the Chay Hing Lee troupe of oriental acrobats, trained dogs and monkeys, fireworks every night, a woman's congress, daily free moving picture shows, 75 entries in the circuit races, and a children's day.

The contract for the building of eight miles of gravel road on M 65 north from Brighton has been let to the Reading Contracting Co., of Detroit, subject to the approval of the state commission. The company will start work immediately with two gangs of workers. This leg of the road will complete a good road through Brighton from Ann Arbor to Flint, and is likely to send a great deal more travel through town.—Brighton Argus.

Essex Lodge, F. & A. M., of Essex, Ont., paid a fraternal visit to the lodge at Plymouth on Thursday. The visitors motored over to Northville, and were pleasantly entertained at the Sanatorium. American and British flags were used in the decorations in honor of our Canadian friends, and under the direction of Mr. Maybury souvenirs were presented each guest. Mr. Maybury left nothing undone which would in any way add to the pleasure of their short stay at the institution.—Northville Record.

Wednesday afternoon, County Clerk Jay T. Fray, issued his ninth thousand automobile license. Something like $125,000 has been sent to Lansing, of which half will be returned to the county later. Before the year closes, there will have been issued over 10,000 licenses here, but that will not be all the auto licenses issued for which Washtenaw county will receive credit. Many Ann Arbor people either sent to Lansing for licenses or obtained one in Detroit.—Washtenaw Post.

Today's Reflections

There are some remarkable boys in Plymouth, but we have yet to hear of one who voluntarily washes his ears.

The average bachelor acts as if he's eternally afraid some woman will slip up behind him and marry him when he's not looking.

In buying liquor, it's wise to believe everything the bootlegger does not say about it.

The Plymouth man who is always looking backward can see where he has been, but not where he's going.

FOR RENT—Large house, near Plymouth on Golden road, Buena Vista Farms. Phone O. D. Peck, 259-F2. 20tf

FOR SALE—A mahogany upright piano. Very cheap. 845 Mill street, George W. Springer. 20tf

It's a pretty good idea to remember that a woman can't make a fool of a man unless he helps her out a little bit.

The "obey" is being taken out of marriage rites. Some take it out of the prohibition law also.

We've also noticed that the average Plymouth man doesn't worry as much over what he makes as he does over what he gets.

Every June bride knows that cut glass makes a fine wedding present, but a poor engagement ring.

Many of us can remember when a woman could have worn a pair of short hose without the whole world knowing about it.

Some of the roads around Plymouth still look to a motorist as though they had been built for airplane traffic.

Ford is going to build 5400 cars a day. It's only a matter of time until you won't be able to find anybody home on Sunday.

Just at this time, it's hard to tell which is the most unpopular, the Plymouth man who throws stones at your dog or the one who lets his chickens roam your garden.

Maybe the reason some Plymouth men don't kiss their wives oftener after marriage is because they're too busy kissing their spare change good-bye.

School Graduation

is one of the happiest moments in life for the student, and a time when parents are justly proud of their sons and daughters over their hard-earned pleasure and success.

It is only natural that the occasion should be one of happiness and gift-giving.

We would suggest that you look over our line of new goods just received, which we have selected for this particular occasion.

FOR THE YOUNG LADY STUDENT

we have Bracelet Watches, Set Rings, Gold and Silver Mesh Bags, Combination Bead and Chain Necklaces, with bracelets and earrings to match; Bar Pins, with and without stones; Conklin's Pens or Eversharp Pencils with ring tops, which are very useful and fashionable, especially when worn on a gold chain or silk neck ribbon.

FOR YOUNG MEN

New patterns in Watches and Chains, Knives, Rings, Cuff Links, Belts and Buckles, Pocket Combs, Bill Fold, Collar Pins, Tie Pins, or a Conklin Pen or Pencil, which like his diploma would be a part of his equipment for future years.
