THE FOOT-PATH TO PEACE

"To be glad of life because it gives you the chance to love and to work and play and to look up at the stars. To be satisfied with your possessions, but not contented with yourself until you have made the best of them. To despise nothing in the world except falsehood and meanness, and to fear nothing except cowardice. To be governed by your admirations rather than by your disgusts; to covet nothing that is your neighbor's except his kindness of heart and gentleness of manners. To think seldom of your enemies, often of your friends, and every day of Christ; and to spend as much time as you can, with body and with spirit, in God's out-of-doors. These are little guide-posts on the footpath to peace."

—Henry van Dyke.

PLYMOUTH CHAUTAUQUA OPENS NEXT MONDAY

Two Big Double Programs of Entertainment, Inspiration, Music and Fun Each Day for Five Days, July 10, 11, 12, 13, 14.

The Mutual Morgan Chautauqua, which opens in Plymouth next Monday, July 10th, promises to be one of the best chautauquas that Plymouth has ever had. The sale of tickets is now on, and many are availing themselves of purchasing season tickets, which are on sale at the following places: Gayde Bros., Drake Sisters, O. F. Beyer, Dye Restaurant, O. P. Martin, C. Whipple, A. M. Johnson, Russell Bakery, Hillmer Laundry, E. T. Cope, S. D. Strong, Village Hall, C. E. Hadley, G. A. Smith, Paul Nash, H. J. Fisher, H. E. Sayles, W. Wood, Roy Fisher, William Raffel, B. J. Holcomb.

Attractive illustrated programs have been distributed about town, but if anyone has failed to receive one they can be had at any of the places where tickets are on sale. The program that is to be presented is sure to please the most exacting. The big headliner is Harold Bell Wright's masterpiece, "The Shepherd of the Hills." This alone is worth the price of the season ticket. Other big numbers are: Landis Brass Quartette, Hammond's Gypsies, Morrison Girls' Orchestra and Intermountain Artists. The lectures are worked in with the musical numbers in such a way as to produce a delightful and attractive program, which will be an inspiration for all who attend.

The big tent will be pitched in the park at the rear of the Presbyterian church, which is conveniently located for all. The price of season tickets is $2.00 for adults and $1.00 for children. Single admissions are 75c for adults and 50c for children the first evening. All other afternoons and evenings, adults 50c, and children, 25c. No war tax.

DIXBORO CHURCH WEDDING SCENE

MISS ORRELL GALPIN WEDS INDIANAPOLIS MAN AT DIXBORO.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in Dixboro church, the first in its history—when Orrell Galpin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burton L. Galpin, was united in marriage to Howard Shaw of Indianapolis, Indiana, on Wednesday evening, June 29th. The church was prettily decorated with roses, marguerites and green. The bride was attended by the groom's sister, Miss Helen Shaw as maid of honor, and Miss Emily Freeman. Dorr Gunnell of Lansing, attended the groom as best man, and Verne Shaw and Ivan Galpin acted as ushers. The ring bearer was little Miss Rogers of Jackson, and Master Springer of Detroit, and little Harriet Shankland of Ann Arbor, carried flowers. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. L. Moon of Ann Arbor. Edward Smith of Detroit, sang, "O, Perfect Love," with Mrs. Morris Galpin at the piano.

A reception was given following the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, attended by about one hundred guests from Lansing, Detroit, Ann Arbor, Jackson and Plymouth, and the immediate vicinity. The presents were many and beautiful. The happy couple will make their home in Indianapolis, where Mr. Shaw has a position with the American Radiator Co. The bride, who has been a teacher in the Plymouth schools for the past two years, has many friends in Plymouth, who extend congratulations. Mr. and Mrs. Linus Galpin and daughter, Naomi, and Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Hearn and daughter, Miss Aleta Hearn of Plymouth, attended the wedding.

DEATH OF MRS. CAROLINE SEITING

Mrs. Caroline Seiting, for many years a resident of Phoenix Mills, passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. George T. Smith, of Redford, Friday afternoon, June 30th. The deceased had been sick for more than three years, and during that time had been a great sufferer.

The funeral services were held from Schrader Bros. Funeral Home, Monday afternoon at two o'clock. Rev. Ridley, pastor of an Episcopal church of Detroit, conducted the services. Burial in Riverside cemetery.

Caroline Webber was born in Prussia, Germany, in 1849, and when twenty-two years of age came to this country. Soon after, she was united in marriage to August Seiting, who preceded her to the higher life in 1894. Two daughters were born to this union, Mrs. Mary Smith of Redford, and Mrs. Anna Anderson of Kalkaska, Mich., both of whom survive her. She also leaves one sister in this country, Mrs. Minnie Wollgast of this place, besides many other more distant relatives and friends. The deceased lived her entire married life at Phoenix Mills until two years ago on account of illness, she went to the home of her daughter at Redford.

A GOOD SHOWING

On another page of this paper will be found a statement of the business of the Plymouth Home Building Association for the six months ending June 30, 1922. The report shows an increase of $15,000 over the last statement, which is a steady and healthy growth. The association has financed the building of thirty-four homes in Plymouth during the two years of its existence, besides paying the stockholders five per cent on their stock. This is a splendid showing indeed for an institution only two years old.

THE ANNUAL SCHOOL MEETING

WILL BE HELD AT HIGH SCHOOL AUDITORIUM, MONDAY EVENING, JULY 10TH

The annual school meeting for school district No. 1, Fr., which includes Plymouth village, is called for Monday evening, July 10th at 7:00 o'clock. The annual school meeting is one of great importance to the taxpayers of the district, and a wholesome interest should be manifested in the affairs of the largest institution we have in the village. Besides the usual routine business to be transacted, there are two members of the board to be elected this year. Remember, it is your school and you must pay for it. Attend the meeting and have your say with the rest.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Dickerson of Chicago, visited the former's brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dickerson on Harvey street, the first of the week. Mrs. Dickerson's sister, Mrs. Grace Gehring of Detroit, was also their guest the Fourth.

11 Nights Without Sleep

It is safe to say that the amount of sleep lost by trying to sleep in hot, poorly ventilated bedrooms will easily average an hour per night during the summer months. Assuming that eight hours constitutes a night's sleep, the amount of sleep lost during June, July and August amount to more than eleven nights.

WORKING HOURS
We don't like the constant effort on the part of labor movements to seek five-day weeks and six-hour days. In the first place, this is too short a time to get much accomplished. Nobody gets anything done without working hard and long at it. We have always felt, and we believe most people around Plymouth will agree with us that working five days a week and loafing two days is a wrong proportion. It engenders too much laxity, and we see how a man working under such a program goes back to work, half-forgetting about the kind of job he had, and to bring himself down to work again like he does after a vacation.
We believe it takes at least six days a week for a man to handle any job well, and how a man can put in six hours we never could understand. Eight hours work forms proper division of the day and even eight hours fit by very quickly to the person who is actually and vitally concerned about his work. So we believe that all workers should work full time to get the most of it for themselves and for the ones for whom they are working.
Nobody works for himself. He is working for other folks. And unless a person is interested and doing service over a good many hours a day for at least six days a week, he can hardly expect to render enough service to the other people for them to pay him very well. Personally, we think the movement for a five-day week and a six-hour day is all bunk, and we can't see any merit in it either for the workers or the world in general.

A BILLION DOLLAR GARDEN
We count wheat and cotton as principal crops, and yet, in 1921, they both together were barely equal in value to the vegetables grown on farms in the United States. If we add the truck grown on city and town lots to the "garden sass" grown on farms we find a total just equal to that of the national corn crop. Not all of these vegetables were sold, of course, but perhaps as great a proportion of them as of the corn produced found their way to a direct cash market. So far as that is concerned, the poultry products for the last census year—1919—were more than a billion dollars in value, and the dairy products nearly a billion and a half. Residents of Plymouth and community will find these figures interesting, because they show how extremely important the garden and the poultry yard are to all this nation, as well as to the rest of the world.

EPISCOPAL NOTES

For the next two or three Sundays Franklin L. Gibson will be away on vacation, but the services will be in charge of a layman supplied by Detroit, during his absence. Our members are asked to try to be present as many as possible at these services, and visitors will be welcome.

The young members for camp "O-AT-KA" left Detroit, Monday, by the Steamer Tashmo for Port Huron for a two weeks' camp there under the charge of Rev. H. C. McCurdy, rector of Birmingham; Rev. Harry Robinson and Franklin L. Gibson, assistant directors. George Merryweather and J. Tracy are two of the boys who have gone to join the camp from Plymouth. From the program and the rules and regulations laid out for each day's camp, it looks that the boys are going to have a great time.

PRESBYTERIAN NOTES

Perrin Hauk, Allen Giles, Clinton Goyer, Merrill Draper and Francis Hathaway attended the swimming party at Ann Arbor, last Friday, given for W. R. Shaw's and the pastor's classes. After the swim, a hot-dog supper was enjoyed (the best ever, some thought) and the party visited the pastor's rooms at 413 Fifth street, the Michigan Union Building, (more refreshments in the "tap room"), and the University Library. Ask Merrill how to run the "dummy service", he ought to know. Several of the boys got lost in the stack room; but were located before closing time. Some party.

More than 200 cities of the United States are now carrying on week day religious instructions. The daily vacation Bible school was used last year by more than 800 Presbyterian churches to increase the number of hours of religious instruction offered to their children. A large percentage of these offered as much time as their Sunday-schools gave during the entire year.

Our next service will be August sixth.

Today's Reflections

Not content with taxing everything else, now comes the politician to tax our patience.

The average Plymouth boy would not care to be president in the summer time, for if he was president he couldn't take off his shoes and go barefooted.

It sure would be fine for mother if she could collect time-and-a-half for overtime.

It would be nice to change places with a fish during these hot months, for no matter how fast a fish swims he never sweats.

Some Plymouth men are judged by the company they keep and others by the kind of printed matter they use.

We don't care how short the women wear their skirts, but we can lick the fellow who decreed that men should not eat in his shirt sleeves.

Too many men seem to think that the tree of liberty is a good place for them to feather their nest.

We agree with the Plymouth man who declared in our presence yesterday that the worst thing about money is there isn't enough of it.

The world owes us a living—but it pays on the installment plan.

"What will become of our young people?" wails an Ohio editor. We suppose they'll grow old and worry about the young people, too.

There will always be arguments, and one of them will always be as to which is the hottest, a corset or a pair of trousers.

The buyer is the one who demands Come On Down. And it stands for Come On Down.

The Plymouth citizen who never was able to carry a tune can go right on singing now and explain that it's jazz.

After giving the subject thought we have reached the conclusion that the reason Eve didn't bob her hair was because she had no competition.

As an incentive to industry, enterprise and thrift, a Plymouth man that we know says there isn't anything that can beat twins.

METHODIST NOTES

Weather permitting, our Sunday evening services this month will be held on the lawn in front of the church.

The following were in attendance at the State Epworth League Institute at Albion, last week: Miss Mary Hill, Miss Nellie Huger, Miss Margaret Huger, Glenn Mitchell, Lloyd Lundy and Mr. and Mrs. Nagle. A splendid time is reported by all. Over 860 were enrolled in the study classes.

Next Sunday evening at the 7:30 hour, reports of the Institute will be given by those who stayed the week through. Some of the special songs there will be used in the song service.

A large number of the Methodist ministers of the state are gathering at Albion this week for a summer school in theology. A minister from one of the largest churches in London, who is in this country for the summer, is to be one of the chief speakers and lecturers. The local pastor will attend for a few days.

The mid-week prayer service is held on Thursday night at 7:30.

Do not forget to purchase your tickets for the Chautauqua early. A fine program including music, entertainment and lectures is the outline. If you believe in things worth-while, and the things that are most beneficial for the individual and for the community, and above all for the children, then you will attend the Chautauqua next week, and boost for it.

LIVONIA LUTHERAN CHURCH

There will be no services at the Livonia Lutheran church on Sunday, July 9th, as the pastor expects to attend the session of the Synod at Bay City, Mich. Mrs. Enfield's Man

By CLARA DELAFIELD

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union

"Free?" asked Mrs. Enfield tartly. "Believe me, Mrs. Reames, I never knew what freedom meant before. All my life I've worked for me—first for my old father, who was a regular tyrant, and then for Jim Enfield."

"Why, I couldn't call my soul my own so long as that man was in the house. It was cooking and cleaning, and darning his socks—he was as helpless as a baby, for all his viciousness—and cross words all the time. And then he went and left me."

"You poor thing," said her visitor. "But that's what we women have to put up with."

"He left me," sobbed Mrs. Enfield, "and that poor child there"—she pointed to her daughter Gladys, aged fifteen—"and wrote a letter saying he was tired of my tongue-lashing, and was never coming back. Me that had shaved for him! Me that couldn't call my soul my own while he was in the house!"

"I suppose there's no danger of his ever coming back after all these months, is there?" asked the visitor. Mrs. Enfield's voice rose into a shrill scream. "Come back? Well, I'd just like to see him try it!" she answered. "I'd give him a tongue-lashing, as he had the impudence to call it. I'd let him know whether he could treat us that way or not, going off and abandoning us, and leaving me to work for our living."

"Suppose he came back rich?" suggested the other. "Rich? Jim Enfield rich? That man couldn't save a penny even if he was man enough to get a job! But if it was to happen, I'd throw his money in his face. Never shall Jim Enfield set foot inside my doors again, rich or poor!"

"That's the way to talk, ma," said Gladys. "We're better off without a great hulking man to support."

"You hold your tongue, Glad," answered her mother sharply. "It's quite true what you say, but it ain't for you to abuse your father."

Gladys tossed her head. "Anyway, when I see what he's done to you, ma, capturing your young love and then wrecking it, it makes me feel sore," she answered.

In spite of her attitude, Jane Enfield knew that there were times when she missed the presence of a man in the house. As a husband, Jim Enfield had been beneath contempt, but as a man he had his virtues. He could drive in nails and hammer things; he could fix taps and do odd jobs.

But Jim Enfield should never enter her home again. "Not if he crawled in dying on his hindered knees, Gladys," she said. "I'm just living for the day when he comes back. Tongue-lashing? Huh!"

A few days later, when Mrs. Enfield was preparing supper, Gladys rushed in, wild with excitement. "What d'you think, ma?" she asked. "Father's been seen in town!"

"Huh?" said Jane Enfield. "Let him try to come here, that's all! Glad, if he tries to force his way in, you run for the policeman. And I'll—"

she looked about her and snatched up a rolling-pin. "I guess I'm woman enough to hand him what he deserves," she said.

Suddenly rather uncertain footsteps were heard outside. They looked at one another and shivered. And then there came a tapping at the kitchen door. After a few moments of hesitation Gladys went and opened it.

Jim Enfield came in. He wore a very shabby suit of clothes, a battered hat was on the back of his head, and he glanced rather sheepishly from his wife to his daughter.

Then he advanced slowly and uncertainly, glancing askance at the rolling-pin in Jane Enfield's hand, and threw himself into a chair.

"Well, here we are again!" he said. "Had a mighty rough time, Jane, old girl! Been on the tramp six weeks since I lost my last job, and nearly dead. Guess I'll have to lay up for a spell before starting out to look for a job again."

"Hello, Glad! How's the school coming along? My, you're growing quite a big girl now, ain't you? Come and give your daddy a kiss!"

Gladys, advancing as if hypnotized, suddenly flung her arms around her father's neck and imprinted a succession of fervid kisses on his cheeks. Then she drew back and looked at her mother.

"Well? What are you staring at me like that for?" demanded Jane Enfield. "Hurry out to the corner store and get some ham for your father. And get a lettuce and a bottle of pickles—the kind he likes. You ought to know if any one does. Jim, I'll run upstairs and fix things up a bit. Watch the kettle and see it doesn't boil over."

She ran to him and put her head down on his shoulder. "You must rest up a while before looking for work, Jim," she said. "Poor boy, you must have had a rough time, Gladys!" She stopped the girl as she was going out of the door. "Go and get your father's slippers first, and then hurry to the store. My, Jim!" she continued. "It feels good to have a man in the house again!"

Diplomacy. "When Mrs. Peckton lays down the law, do you acquiesce?"

"Yes," said Mr. Peckton, slyly, "as the diplomats do."

"Eh?"

"In principle."

TO URGE FOREST PRESERVATION

Engineers Plan National Campaign to Save Trees.

FOREST FIRES CHIEF MENACE

North Carolina Forest Service Recommends Strengthening of Forest Fire Laws to Include Protective Measures by Railroads and Lumbermen and Largely Increased Appropriations for Fire Prevention and State Policy for Acquiring Forests and Parks.

A national program of reforestation, to be pushed by the government, engineering societies, universities, railroads, farmers' organizations, boy scouts and moving picture interests is being planned by the American Engineering Council of the Federated Engineering societies, the council announced at New York.

A forestry committee of the council, headed by Charles H. MacDowell of Chicago, is in active charge of the movement, under direction of the president of the council, Dean Mortimer E. Cooley of the engineering department, University of Michigan.

The committee already has received reports from most states regarding existing forest conditions, with recommendations for meeting the problems of forest protection and extension in those states. Many of these reports, it is said, regard this a critical period in the development of a national policy of reforestation.

Talia Romance of Forest. The United States forest service and the engineering council have taken steps to inform the public regarding the utility of forests. The forest service has prepared a scenario depicting the romance of the forest, as a medium for giving this information. That part of the plans affecting the moving picture industry will be laid before Will H. Hays, it was explained.

Among the reports of forest conditions in various states were those showing that in Maine, Massachusetts and many other states the chief problem was that of forest fires.

The North Carolina forest service recommended the strengthening of forest fire laws to include protective measures by railroads, lumbermen, etc., largely increased appropriations for fire protection; state policy for acquiring forests and parks, for supplying nursery trees and for education and publicity in forestry; increased federal appropriation for cooperation with states, purchase of lands for national forests and for investigations of forest and wood using problems.

New York, Michigan and several other states recommended reforestation by planting of proper trees. Many states had problems of excessive grazing, and urged protection for small trees.

Urged Protection of Trees. The American Engineering Council's committee is obtaining exact data on the extent of the national forest land. Reports from state foresters thus far received show the following figures: California, 13,500,000 acres; Georgia, 20,000,000; Idaho, 23,000,000; Indiana, 1,540,000; Iowa, 2,500,000; Kansas, 1,051,000; Maine, 13,000,000; Maryland, 2,228,000; Massachusetts, 1,000,000; Michigan, 15,000,000; Minnesota, 26,000,000; Missouri, 10,000,000; New York, 12,000,000; North Carolina, 20,000,000; Ohio, 3,200,000; Oregon, 18,775,000; Washington, 11,800,000.

Air Forces Most Successful in Recent African Uprising.

Airplanes did more to strike terror into the insurgent Hottentots in the recent uprising forces, says the Cape Town correspondent of the Cape Argus. The airmen were successful both in spotting the enemy and finding the government's patrols.

Airplanes discovered one body of Hottentots in the mountain gorges, where they sat warming themselves by a fire shortly after dawn. The airmen dropped bombs and opened machine gun fire on them. Scores were killed, and the others fled in all directions, yet ten of them could have held the plateau against an army.

The Butt of the Jokers

By ANNE WHITFIELD

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union

Harold Straker seemed naturally cut out for a butt from his earliest days. Boys in the village school found that he could be sent for a pint of pigeon's milk or given impossible errands on April Fool's day. He rang up "Mr. Fish" at the state fisheries, and got New York on long distance for "Mr. Lyons," to find it was the zoo.

Only one person seemed to have faith in him. That was Zoe Graves.

"Harold, I do wish you didn't fool so often," she said when they were about fourteen. "You're such a nice boy, Harold, and it's just a shame, the way you trust everybody."

But Harold went on biting, even after he had entered the local office of the National Oil company which meant, in a way, an assured future, even though he was only getting twenty dollars a week.

Some of the boys were jealous of Harold—especially Percy Spender, who was a rival for Zoe. And there were times when Zoe lost patience with Harold.

"Harold, can't you see that they're tormenting you?" she asked earnestly. "You believe everything—everything!"

"But when they said Jim Barton's child was dying, some one had to ride for the doctor," pleaded Harold.

"And how about Miss Foraker?" demanded Zoe. "Why did you go to the drug store on that impossible errand?"

"But Percy said she must have that salve immediately, Zoe."

"Yes, but what salve? Tulp salve. Two-hip salve, for an old maid! Oh, Harold, you're hopeless. I'm afraid!" said Zoe mournfully.

After that Harold knew that she saw more of Percy than she had done before. Even a devoted girl gets annoyed at a butt sometimes.

Harold was planning a visit to New York—his first—for which he had saved up fifty dollars. It was his week's holiday. The day before he left Spender came to him.

"Of course you intend to pay your respects to Mr. Cottoner," he said.

"Mr. Cottoner?" gasped Harold. "Why, he wouldn't see me!"

"He'll be extremely angry if he learns you've been in New York without seeing him," said Percy. "Don't you see, Harold, what a chance it is to get him to make Spoonville the northern state center for oil distribution? He expects the local men to come and talk things over with him. Why, I've drafted a letter for you to announce your visit!"

Harold read the typescript. It was a blatant announcement to Mr. Cottoner, the octogenarian head of the company, that he, Harold Straker, intended to pay a visit to New York for the purpose of discussing local affairs, and would call on him at his country home at Millwell Hills at a certain hour on the following Tuesday morning.

"A more powerful engine, a few minor alterations, and the Berliners expect to have a machine to carry them any place under all conditions. Landing places on roofs and small open spaces will permit the operating of the helicopter in everyday use."

The body of the helicopter is somewhat similar to an airplane. In the front on either side are the lifting propellers, 14 feet long. These operate in opposite directions and are driven by means of a revolving motor in front of the driver's seat. The forward motion is accomplished by means of a small tilting propeller in the rear of the fuselage.

If the tilting propeller is inclined to an angle of 15 degrees there is a loss in lifting power of a little less than three per cent. This, however, gives a horizontal push of 25 per cent of the lifting power. The engine is 110 horsepower.

Harold was aroused. It had been his own pet scheme, and the subject of ridicule in the office. Now he had his chance at last. Forgetting his fears, he poured forth his views: how Spoonville was linked up with so many neighboring cities by trolley and railroad; but a short pipe line branch—he drew a diagram on Cottoner's immaculate blotting pad—would connect up with the southern reservoir. All the while Cottoner watched his face with growing eagerness. When Harold had ended he burst out:

"You're the right sort! I like your nerve! I wish all my men were like you! It's my own plan, and you've said it word for word! I was looking for a man, you're appointed head of the district in a hundred weeks. That's enough! I know a good man when I see him! You'll get your letter of appointment tomorrow!"

Harold went home dazed. He went straight to Zoe's house. Percy was there, sitting on the sofa beside her.

"Why, here's Harold!" he exclaimed. "Well, well, and how did Cottoner receive you, Harold?"

Harold saw the blush of indignation on Zoe's face.

"Fine, Percy," he answered enthusiastically. "The scheme's gone through, and I'm to be manager at a hundred per. I'm so grateful to you fellows."

"Stop!" Zoe was on her feet. "Is that true, Harold? Do you mean that you saw Mr. Cottoner, and—"

"Sure it's true," answered Harold. And, with success, the bigger, submerged part of him came to the surface. "As true as that we're engaged. Haven't you told Percy?"

"N—no, not yet," faltered Zoe, blushing still deeper. "I—I was waiting for you to, Harold, dearest."

If you have anything to sell, a liner in the Mail will bring you a buyer.

CHAUTAUQUA OPENS WITH THIS GREAT PLAY

"THE SHEPHERD OF THE HILLS" is Harold Bell Wright's most popular novel, staged with his approval. The homely humor of "Preachin' Bill" is enlarged upon and the strong personality of the "Shepherd" made even more impressive in the play. Little "Pete" excites the deep sympathy of the audience from his first word to his last revealing narrative, while "Sammy" with her perplexing heart problems holds the wrapt attention of the audience. The other more rugged mountaineer characters are given their full share of honors and applause. It is an ambitious effort to attempt an elaborate play as this on a Chautauqua stage, but the difficulties are successfully overcome.

HELICOPTER IS VIEWED BY U. S. NAVAL EXPERTS

Airplane Remains Stationary in Air and Then Speeds Around Course.

Under scrutiny of experts from the Navy department the helicopter, invented by Emil Berliner and his son, successfully underwent a series of trials near College Park, Md. Rising steadily to a height of seven feet, the helicopter, operated by Henry Berliner, poised in the air, motionless. Its motion was neither forward nor backward, and the operator was apparently able to make it rise, fall or remain steadfast, at will.

Three times was the experiment tried. Then, not content with having shown the main features of the craft, Berliner drove it around the half-mile course. The big craft circled the track several times and then came to rest at the feet of a crowd of on-lookers.

Commander J. C. Hunsaker, in charge of the naval experts, refused to comment on the experiment in advance of his official report to his superiors.

Twenty years the elder Berliner has striven to complete his invention. He gave up the work and his son took up where the father had left off. The fundamental principles as they had been worked out by the senior Berliner were correct, and the son completed minor details standing in the way of a successful helicopter.

A more powerful engine, a few minor alterations, and the Berliners expect to have a machine to carry them any place under all conditions. Landing places on roofs and small open spaces will permit the operating of the helicopter in everyday use.

The body of the helicopter is somewhat similar to an airplane. In the front on either side are the lifting propellers, 14 feet long. These operate in opposite directions and are driven by means of a revolving motor in front of the driver's seat. The forward motion is accomplished by means of a small tilting propeller in the rear of the fuselage.

If the tilting propeller is inclined to an angle of 15 degrees there is a loss in lifting power of a little less than three per cent. This, however, gives a horizontal push of 25 per cent of the lifting power. The engine is 110 horsepower.

SEND UP BALLOON TO DETERMINE WEATHER

Twice daily the United States weather bureau sends up rubber balloons filled with hydrogen gas 13 times lighter than air, as a means of determining weather conditions. One minute after the balloon is released, readings are taken by means of a theodolite and repeated at minute intervals until the balloon is lost from view. This procedure takes place at 32 other stations throughout the United States, and the readings are telegraphed to the Washington office, the navy broadcasting the consolidated report by radio. Photograph shows Nelson Hoss, William C. Halnes, sending up the balloon as their daily routine.

"International Roads."

FREEMAN HAMMOND is one of the cleverest young impersonators on the American platform. His make-up numbers are true to life, and the dramatic sketches by the company are of absorbing interest. The musical numbers, both vocal and violin, are highly entertaining. Second day of Chautauqua, afternoon and evening.

DR. W. L. MELLINGER, who speaks both afternoon and evening of the last day of the Chautauqua, is a man highly recommended. He is to speak in the afternoon on "Gringo and Greaser"—a lecture based on his several years of residence in Mexico. This subject is especially important at this time. His evening lecture—"International Roads, or Freedom of the Seas"—is even more timely. "It sounds too heavy and dry," do you say? You will not think so when you hear it. On the contrary, you will likely say it is the best lecture you have ever heard. By the use of a big chart, with which he makes clear his subject, even the children from the grammar school will understand and appreciate this lecture.

BESS GERHART MORRISON, famous reader and story teller, will never be forgotten after hearing her. She appears with her own orchestra company on the fourth day, afternoon and evening. Many are looking forward to this as the greatest day of our Chautauqua. The afternoon program will consist of popular selections by the orchestra and some of the stories that have made her famous. In the evening Mrs. Morrison will deliver a stirring message from her experience in the movies behind the footlights in New York. The orchestra will give the prelude concert and will also appear at intervals during Mrs. Morrison's recital.

THE MORRISON GIRLS ORCHESTRAL COMPANY was organized by Bess Gearhart Morrison herself and the program she has selected for them is of music the people love to hear. All are young women of refinement and excellent training. They possess the true Chautauqua spirit and will please by their personality and fine playing and singing.

LETTER FROM A FORMER RESIDENT

We have received the following interesting letter from Mrs. H. C. Hager, which will be of interest to the many Plymouth friends of Mr. and Mrs. Hager.

There is a grand old landmark in the Casa Grande valley, which is named thus, owing to its top being perfectly flat, and resembling very much a housewife's table. Very few have ever reached its extreme height. We were told it was an impossible feat, and laughed at our ambition, but we were determined to try.

It is a distance of thirty miles from the town of Casa Grande, and a drive of twenty miles from our homestead in the desert. We started the evening before and arrived at the camping place just at dusk. There is a spring of water here, which an enterprising settler had blasted by means of dynamite from the rocky fissure in the mountain, so that what had been merely a trickle, before, now gave him ample supply for cattle in the hills.

Here we cooked supper, made coffee and visited for an hour; then retired, as we planned a very early start. Starting at Table-Top from a distance, one gets the idea that all there is to do is to walk straight to its washes, smaller mountains and ravines. Just as the first rays of the rising sun streaked the eastern sky the next morning, we strapped our canteens and sandwiches to our backs and started. At five o'clock we were traversing a regular scenic highway along a wide gravelly wash, first having had to climb over three fair-sized hills. On either side of us rose creek walls of gigantic rock, which later gave place to irregular boulders of reddish color. In some of these toward the top, bees had made their homes. We noticed several swarms as we went along, and at the risk of being stung, we examined one cave-hole, which contained a rich store of honey; but as we had no means of taking or carrying it, we left the bees in possession.

As the wash grew narrower, it became rougher traveling. Huge slabs of rocks were scattered here and there, and small boulders were piled loosely on top of each other; some were worn smooth, as though a torrent of water had rushed over them. Ironwood and Palo Verde trees grew out from the fissures, their bare twisted rocks resembling snakes crawling over stones. It seemed incredible they should live and thrive on bare rocks.

A short distance beyond this we came to what appeared to be a natural channel. It was very narrow; the sides were of light greyish color, and through the center of them and also at the top, was a long, irregular notched streak of pinkish hue. The floor was of light granite, no sand at all, while above it towered the sloping sides of two mountains. I felt as though we had stumbled on a ruined temple of some ancient race. The formation of some of the rocks resembled pillars and queer twisted objects. However we had no time to linger here, as the peak of old Table-Top was beckoning in the distance. We came out finally from the wash, on top of a ridge of hills, which led to the last ravine separating us from our goal. Here we cut stout sticks from the center of a dead giant cactus, which helped us wend our way in climbing over the last bunch of hills, and were of great assistance later. The last one was reached at 7:30, two and one-half hours since leaving camp, and we rested a while. As we sat there, and gazed across the deep ravine to the foot of Table Mountain, and then up to its peak, it did indeed seem inaccessible, and our hearts almost failed us. The top appeared to be about 2,000 feet high, and its sides were so steep and rugged, that only goats could find the trail.

"Oh, gosh, let's go back," said Mr. Hager. "Do you think we can make it?" asked our friend, Mr. Helley. "Surest thing you know," answered I, "we have come this far, and we will not be beaten. It reminds me of the old poem, 'Excelsior,' but at the present time this seems to fit our case."

"As we the frowning height espied, Attempt not to climb," was loudly cried, but still ambition faintly sighed, "Excelsior."

So we began to study the best means of approach. The ravine ended on the south side and it was possible to commence the ascent at that end. After resting a little longer, we began the long, arduous climb to the top, slipping, sliding, hanging on for dear life to a boulder, while trying to find the next foothold. When we found a convenient ledge, we rested to get our breath. Then one of us would shout, "Come on, Excelsior, (higher, yet higher), and the climb was resumed. Finally we thought the top was in sight, but a huge straight rock stared us in the face, with no visible means of scaling it, and it looked as though we were to fall after all. After examining the surface of the mountain to the right and left, we discovered a possible way of going round the obstacle, by hanging to a palo verde tree, but it was a tight place, as the small rocks were loose and slid out from under us, to go rolling down a thousand feet below. We got across in safety, but were sadly disappointed when we got round that big rock, to find the top was yet far above our heads. The climbing got more and more difficult too, but we were bound to win out after getting so near, so we put on another spurt of energy and finally reached the heights, and sank down with a "glory, hallelujah," at the foot of the huge pile of stones, and the iron cross, which marks the highest government survey point on Table Mountain.

And what a reward was ours: We seemed to have stepped into some fairy garden by mistake. The top was perfectly flat for about twenty acres, then gradually sloped off toward the west. A riotous mass of yellow and red cactus blossoms met our eyes, and many tall spiked plants, somewhat resembling the century plant, were also in bloom. Tall rank grass grew there, but no trees to obstruct the view of the surrounding country. For miles beautiful valleys and mountains stretched out to the distance, and a delightful breeze cooled our hot faces as we rested, enjoying the wonderful panorama. It had taken exactly two hours to accomplish the climb, and by this time we were all hungry, so the sandwiches were unpacked, and never did food taste sweeter than when eaten in such a unique spot.

After allowing a full hour's rest, we commenced the return journey. As we looked down from such a dizzy height we all felt it was "a long long trail" back to camp, and to confess the truth, the three of us felt a trifle wobbly in the knees going down. But our surami sticks helped us wonderfully in the descent, by digging them into the loose rocks and earth to prevent slipping. One false step, and we may have reached the bottom sooner than we bargained for. However, with the exception of a few bruises caused by knocking against projecting rocks, we arrived at the base of the mountain in safety, and considerably elated at having attained our ambition.

Then we began the weary tramp back to camp, over the hills, and through the long gullies, where no air was circulating. The sun was at full power, and before the last two miles were covered, our water gave out, which was a serious proposition on a hot day. We chewed gum, which helped a little, but our tongues were swollen and almost cleaving to the soles of our shoes before camp was reached. Personally I was gasping for breath, and could readily imagine the sufferings of anyone caught out in the desert without water. We all staggered into camp and made haste to the well, and the cooling liquid never tasted so sweet as then.

Aside from these few minor discomforts, we thoroughly enjoyed the trip. We rested in camp until six in the evening, then ate a hearty lunch, and as we piled into the car and headed for Casa Grande, we looked back and gave one last yell toward old Table-Top Mountain, "Excelsior!"

BIG NEW FEATURES ADDED TO COLOSSUS

RINGLING BROS. AND BARNUM & BAILEY BRING ENTIRE SHIPLOAD OF NOVELTIES FROM EUROPE.

Made even more tremendous than in 1921, by the recent addition of many more trained-wild animal displays and the purchase of Europe's biggest horse show, Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey combined will exhibit at Detroit, Monday and Tuesday, July 17 and 18.

All who glance over the cable news or who read the magazines must have noted the many contracts entered into by the Ringling Brothers for foreign talent last winter. A special ship was chartered this spring to bring the hundreds of human performers, trained animal acts and equine displays to America. More than a million persons saw the mammoth new circus of 1922 during the weeks that it exhibited in Madison Square Garden, New York. Now this marvelous exhibition is touring the country aboard five great railroad trains. It is a third bigger than the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey show of last season. It is ten times larger than any circus now on tour.

Big as is this wonder circus of 1922—with its more than twenty trained wild-animal displays in steel arenas; fully 150 wonderfully schooled trick horses, 700 men and women performers, 100 clowns, and scores of features—the price of admission is no more than before. And though the trained animal numbers and the immense horse show were circuses in themselves while touring Europe, they are not offered as separate attractions by the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey combined shows. Instead all are on one gigantic program. Everything is in one mammoth main tent. One ticket admits to all and includes admission to the tremendous double menagerie. There are more than a thousand animals in the zoo of this circus and these include a tiny baby hippopotamus only recently born, and accompanied by its three-ton mother. Another remarkable zoological feature is an armored rhinoceros, the only one known to exist and for which the Ringling's recently refused an offer of $30,000.

A Splendid Medicine for the Stomach and Liver
"Chamberlain's Tablets for the stomach and liver are splendid. I never tire of telling my friends and neighbors of their qualities," writes Mrs. Wm. Vollmer, Eastwood, N. Y. When bilious, constipated or troubled with indigestion give them a trial. They will do you good.—Advertisement.

Biliousness and Constipation
"For years I was troubled with biliousness and constipation, which made life miserable for me. My appetite failed me. I lost my usual force and vitality. Pepsin preparations and cathartics only made matters worse. I do not know where I should have been today had I not tried Chamberlain's Tablets. The tablets relieve the ill feeling at once, strengthen the digestive functions, helping the system to do its work naturally," writes Mrs. Bona Potts, Birmingham, Ala.—Advertisement.

STATE FAIR EXECUTIVE BODY

Heading the executive committee of the Michigan State Fair, which has general charge of the business of the exposition between regular meetings of the board of managers, is John S. Haggerty.

Chairman Haggerty, a former president of the Michigan Agricultural Society, has been a member of the fair board for years. When the fair came under the jurisdiction of the state, Mr. Haggerty was one of the first men named to the board by the governor.

Oscar Webber, prominent Detroit merchant, Thomas E. Newton, a former fair president and well known packer, Charles T. Prescott, Tawas City, and Clarke L. Brody, of Lansing, are associated with Mr. Haggerty on the executive committee.

The function of this committee is to advise and counsel with G. W. Dickinson, secretary-manager of the state fair, and much of the fair's success can be attributed to the support these men have given the fair executive.

Mr. Haggerty was president from 1916 until 1921, succeeding D. D. Aiken of Flint, in that capacity. Mr. Webber's appointment to the board in 1921 for four years is attributed to his ability as a shrewd business man and the fact he is one of Michigan's best known pure-bred livestock breeders. He heads the Michigan Art Institute, which has been an interesting part of the annual exhibitions since its origin.

In 1913 and 1912, Thomas E. Newton was president of the fair. Mr. Newton is the member in charge of the new coliseum. Charles T. Prescott was elected to the fair board in 1918. Governor Groesbeck appointed him again in 1921 for three years. He is in charge of the horse department.

Clarke L. Brody, manager of the Michigan farm bureau, is serving a two-year term on the fair board. He will head the agricultural department this year.

MUD VOLCANOES NEAR SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

Bulletin Issued by National Geographic Society Explains Just What They Are.

Recent eruption of mud volcanoes in the edge of Mexico near the southern California line, reported from El Centro, California, has introduced these "little brothers of Vesuvius" to some persons for the first time, and may have left the impression that this portion of the country is subject to major volcanic outbreaks. A bulletin issued from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic Society explains just what mud volcanoes are and tells something of their wide distribution around the world.

"The term 'volcano' is in a way a misnomer for these little mounds of boiling mud—a fact that is recognized sometimes by calling them 'mud geysers,'" says the bulletin. "Most of them, in the matter of size, bear to true volcanoes the relation of the proverbial molehill to the mountain. And while 'volcano,' with the picture that it brings up of demolished and buried cities, naturally inspires something of awe, 'mud volcanoes,' when they are not wildly interesting natural phenomena, are little more than nuisances.

"Like geysers, mud volcanoes are usually found in regions that have been subject to true volcanic action within recent geologic times. But this is not always true; and recent in this sense may mean many thousands of years. In the case of geysers, water gathers in fissures, a portion of whose walls are hot, steam forms after a time and the column of water is expelled. In the case of mud volcanoes, a much smaller quantity of water is involved. It is usually turned completely into steam which forces its way through the material and forms hot mud. In typical mud volcanoes, the soft mud is forced out with little violence through the top of a small mound and flows down over the sides. Occasionally, however, a heavy column of mud traps the steam for a considerable period, which is ended by a geyser-like eruption that may throw the soft material and chunks of the hardened cone high in the air.

"Mud volcanoes are much more common than geysers. The only places in which geysers exist in appreciable numbers are the Yellowstone National Park—the largest and most important geyser region in the world—Iceland, the Malay archipelago, and the North Island of New Zealand. But mud volcanoes are scattered around the world. To the eastward they are first encountered in Iceland. In Europe they are found in Sicily, the mainland of Italy and the Russian Crimea; in Asia they occur at Baku, on islands in the Bay of Bengal and on the Malay Archipelago; farther east they are found in New Zealand. In the Western Hemisphere they are found in Colombia, in the Yellowstone Park, just south of the Mexican-California line in the delta of the Colorado river, and a few miles to the north of the eastern shore of the Salton sea, in the Imperial valley."

LOSES $4,000 GEMS IN SHOE

Jewels Disappear When Shoes Are Taken to Repair Shop.

When Dr. Gustave P. Hoffman of 14 Kingman road, South Orange, N. J., remarked casually to his wife that he had taken a pair of old shoes to the repair shop, both he and his wife received the shock of their lives.

Mrs. Hoffman—as soon as she was able—told him that the day before she had put her entire collection of gems, diamonds worth $4,000, in the toe of one of the shoes. Both Doctor Hoffman and his wife hurried out to the repair shop. Anthony Palermi, proprietor, said nothing had been found in the shoes. The police are investigating.
