11 Nights Without Sleep

It is safe to say that the amount of sleep lost by trying to sleep in hot, poorly ventilated bedrooms will easily average an hour per night during the summer months. Assuming that eight hours constitutes a night's sleep, the amount of sleep lost during June, July and August amount to more than eleven nights.

THINK OF IT!

With sleep such an important factor in keeping healthy to yourself and children to lose so much of it?

IS IT FAIR

A sleeping porch costs but little, will help you to get a full night's rest every night and will add a great deal to the money value of your home. It's an investment that can't be beat. Let us give you an estimate.

YOUR MISSION ON EARTH

"You did not come into this world by chance, you were not born by accident. You all came charged with a mission to use your best efforts to extend the frontier of your Master's Kingdom by purifying your own hearts and leavening for good the hearts of all who come within the sphere of your influence. Your business here is not to enjoy yourselves in those fleeting pleasures which perish in the using; but rather to do your best to fit yourselves and others for the new heavens and new earth, which God has prepared for those who love Him."

—From "The Life Here and Hereafter," Canon McColl.

PLYMOUTH ORGANIZED FOR SALVATION ARMY APPEAL

MONDAY, JULY 17TH IS THE DAY SET FOR RAISING $300 IN PLYMOUTH FOR THE SALVATION ARMY WORK.

At a recent meeting of the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors, it was voted to sponsor the annual appeal of the Salvation Army and to appoint a local committee. Capt. G. K. Hook of the Detroit headquarters of the Salvation Army, was present, and explained the plan of the campaign to the directors. The amount to be raised in Plymouth has been set at three hundred dollars.

In the past it has been the policy of the Salvation Army to send its own representatives out to do the soliciting, but this plan has been abandoned, and the money is now raised by local committees in the various cities and towns throughout the state.

The day set for the drive in Plymouth is Monday, July 17th. Capt. Hook will come to Plymouth on this day and assist in the soliciting. The Salvation Army is one of the greatest organizations in the world for doing good. It's one desire is to be in a position at all times to render service; to be able to go to the need and not wait for the need to come to it; to have its hands kept free to administer "to the man or woman who may be down but not out." Not one penny is asked for that is not needed. The Salvation Army is not asking for itself, but for the poor, the sick, the lowly.

Remember the date for the appeal in Plymouth is for Monday, July 17th, one day only, and it is to be hoped that there will be a most generous response in this most worthy movement. People in the nearby vicinity of Plymouth, who may desire to give something, can send their contributions to the Plymouth United Savings Bank, and they will see that the money is credited to the fund to be raised here for the Salvation Army.

Figures are more convincing than words, and below is given the record of the welfare and relief work done by the Salvation Army in Michigan in 1921:

Number of families visited	16,085
Number of persons interviewed, advised	23,008
Number of persons given medical aid	1,180
Number of persons given meals, not including Xmas or Thanksgiving	41,307
Number of persons given free transportation	810
Number of tons of coal given	53 1/2
Number of cords of wood given	266
Number of garments given	30,337
Number of pairs of shoes given	4,276
Number of persons given free lodging not including Working Men's or Women's Hotel	1,872
Number of hours spent in visitation—visitation done in interest of evangelistic work as well as relief	46,552
Number of applicants for employment	9,282
Number of men supplied with work	1,379
Number of women supplied with work	1,420
Number of men sent to Army institutions	330
Number of women sent to Army institutions	114
Number of children given summer outings	1,917
Number of mothers given summer outings	344
Number of families relieved by any means	10,213
Number of Christmas dinners given	64,075
Number of Thanksgiving dinners given	18,465
Number of children given toys at Xmas	766
Number of persons given relief in any form (Total)	91,956
Number of girls received in Grand Rapids Rescue Home	132
Number of Girls received in Detroit Rescue Home	176
Number of children received in Detroit Children's Home	29

Number of children temporarily assisted, Detroit Home ..... 104
Number of children received at Summer Fresh Air Camp ..... 520

PLYMOUTH WILL HAVE A TOURIST CAMP

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce and the Village Commission, Wednesday evening, arrangements were completed whereby a tourist camp will be located on the flats near Riverside cemetery, on land owned by the village. This is an ideal location for a tourist camp and also can be used by the people of the village as a picnic ground. Work will be commenced at once to put the grounds in proper shape, and by next week everything will be in readiness for the tourist who is seeking a camping place for the night. Drinking water will be provided by driving a well; a fireplace will be built, and several toilets installed. Entrance to the grounds can either be made on Mill street or on East Ann Arbor street. The Chamber of Commerce will place signs at each entrance way, and every effort will be made to advertise the fact far and wide that Plymouth has a tourist camp and tourists are most cordially invited to make use of it.

THE ANNUAL SCHOOL MEETING

There was a very good attendance at the annual school meeting of District No. 1, Fr., at the High school auditorium, last Monday evening. President J. W. Henderson of the school board, called the meeting to order, and E. V. Jolliffe, the secretary of the board, read the minutes of the last annual meeting and the financial statement for the year just closed, also the budget of expenditures for the ensuing year.

The budget calls for a total of $58,990. Of this sum $40,000 is to be raised by tax. There is now a cash balance of $6,428.95 in the treasury. The balance of the sum is made up from the estimated amounts to be received from the state primary fund, foreign tuition and state agricultural fund. In 1921, the amount raised by direct tax was $45,360, $5,360 more than for 1922.

In the election of two trustees to fill the places of J. W. Henderson and E. V. Jolliffe, whose terms of office had expired, both gentlemen were re-elected to succeed themselves.

In the election for a trustee to fill the place of Mr. Henderson, the vote was as follows: Total number of votes cast, 68. J. W. Henderson, 39; Dr. W. G. Jennings, 27; scattering 2. In the election of a trustee to succeed Mr. Jolliffe, the vote was as follows: Total number of votes cast was 73. E. V. Jolliffe, 39; Dr. W. G. Jennings, 28; Oliver Goldsmith, 5; scattering 1.

The annual financial statement in detail will appear in the Mail next week.

Mrs. William Petz and children are visiting at Rogers City, Mich.

Mrs. Louis Hillmer has gone to Indiana, where she will visit her son, Max.

Miss Elizabeth Beyer has gone to Toledo for a few weeks' visit with friends.

The thimble party given by the Lutheran Ladies Aid society at the home of Mrs. William Amrhein on the Plymouth road, last Wednesday afternoon, was greatly enjoyed by all who attended. A social afternoon was enjoyed and a fine pot-luck supper was served on the lawn.

BAPTIST CHURCH

The Ladies' Aid society will hold an ice cream social on the lawn of the church, Wednesday evening, July 19th. The Millard band will furnish music.—Advertisement.

VOORHIES DECIDES TO RUN, AFTER ALL

PROSECUTOR RECONSIDERS, WON'T RESUME PRIVATE PRACTICE.

Paul W. Voorhies Tuesday announced his candidacy for re-election as prosecuting attorney of Wayne county. Although several weeks ago he decided to return to private practice at the end of his present term, he reconsidered recently, upon the urging of friends, and Tuesday authorized them to begin circulation of Republican primary petitions in his behalf, he said.

The prosecutor left Tuesday for New York to confer with John C. Thompson, bond expert, on matters connected with the proposed issue of $1,000,000 in bonds for the erection of a county home for the feeble-minded and $900,000 in bonds for additional hospital facilities at Eloise. Both of these proposed bond issues will be submitted to the electorate in November.

Voorhies' platform is one of law enforcement in co-operation with all law-enforcing agencies in the county. He is standing on the record made by his office since the beginning of the present term, nearly two years ago.

Prior to his election as prosecutor, Voorhies served six and one-half years in the prosecutor's office during the terms of Hugh Shepherd, the late Allen H. Frazer, and as chief assistant under the late Charles H. Janowski. He was unsuccessful in the 1919 primary as a candidate for circuit judge. Soon after he entered the law firm of Goodenough, Voorhies, Long & Ryan, with offices in the Hammond building. He is still a member of this firm.—Detroit Free Press.

Mr. Voorhies' many Plymouth friends will be pleased to learn that he is again to be a candidate for this important county office. Mr. Voorhies has made one of the best prosecutors Wayne county has ever had.

THE CHAUTAUQUA

The Mutual Morgan Chautauqua, which opened in Plymouth, last Monday afternoon, has been well attended, and every number that has been presented has been excellent. The opening number, Harold Bell Wright's masterpiece, "The Shepherd of the Hills," was one of the best entertainments ever given in Plymouth. The last number on the Chautauqua takes place this afternoon and evening. The Intermountain Artists will give a recital and Doctor W. L. Mellinger will lecture on "Gringo and Greaser," in the afternoon. In the evening the Intermountain Artists and Doctor Mellinger will again appear, and there will also take place the Junior program given by local children.

The Little Church on Main Street

Excerpts from article by Dr. Frank Crane in Current Opinion:

The adoption of an amendment to the Constitution of the United States prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors, marks what is perhaps the most radical change that has ever taken place in the history of a nation.

This is a social phenomenon that needs explanation. It is one that cannot be pooh-poohed. It cannot be sneered down as a passing gust of mob-mania. Mob-manias do not get themselves written down in the Constitution of the United States. AND THE EXPLANATION IS THE POWER OF THE LITTLE CHURCH ON MAIN STREET. The one wholly American institution in America IS THE LITTLE CHURCH ON MAIN STREET. It is the one institution among us that is level with the people, that speaks the mind and conscience of the people, that is, in short, of the people, by the people, and for the people.

In every town of the United States, and in almost every country township, the center of conscience and the dynamo of social conviction is the Little Church.

And it is the same clear and ruthless conscience which has written the Prohibition Amendment into the Constitution.

Finds $500 In Mattress

Up in Minnesota a man named Falk, recently found $500 in a mattress.

He had hidden it himself eleven years ago, but failed to find it until the mattress was discarded.

Falk all but lost his five hundred dollars, and did lose eleven years' interest. Had his money been in a good bank for the eleven years, he would have had half again as much today.

He who hides money loses interest and is apt to lose his principal. Deposit your dollars in this strong bank.

A QUESTION ANSWERED

We have talked with a good many merchants in the past, and among them we have struck several who frankly stated that they started to advertise once but it didn't pay as they figured it would, so they became discouraged and quit. Always they've asked the reason, and always it was hard to make them understand, to convince them exactly why their advertising failed. But now comes Herbert Casson, well-known writer and publicity expert, with an article in an eastern magazine which seems to answer the question. He says:
"The man who runs an ad, no matter how convincing it is, and then stops the salesmanship in the store, isn't going to get his money's worth from the advertisement. Neither is the man who runs one ad, who makes a sudden loud noise and then drops into dead silence. That kind of man sends his advertising up like a sky rocket—it is seen for a moment and forgotten. The wise advertiser follows up the first ad with another and then still more and, like a lighthouse his ads stand there to guide the public, and their light can be seen all the time. You have to tell some people a fact two or three times before they believe it.
"After all, advertising is only sowing the seed. After the soil and the sun and rain have done their best, then comes the harvesting. You must reap, and stack, and thresh, and bag and sell. And also you must remember that the other man will get the business if you don't ask for it."

AFTER THE RECKLESS

Virginia is trying out a new law, and one that is going to be watched with close interest. It provides that every autoist, on approaching a railroad crossing outside the corporate limits of a town or city, must come to a full stop not less than ten feet nor more than 100 feet from the nearest rail. Failure to observe this law is punishable by a fine of $10, and the money so collected goes into the treasury of the county in which the fine was assessed. We believe auto drivers around Plymouth are as careful as are to be found anywhere, and yet many of them take unnecessary chances at railroad crossings. They will not all endorse the Virginia law, of course, because it means stopping and starting the auto more often than they are now compelled to do. But we believe that those who realize that it is better to stop for a minute than to get ground up and stop forever will care that the law seems to possess a considerable merit.

On another page of this paper will be found the report of the Plymouth United Savings Bank. The totals show a substantial increase over the figures of the last statement. Plymouth has one of the strongest banks in Wayne county, and its business is steadily growing.

The Detroit House of Correction board has placed Edw. Denniston in full control of all construction work now at the prison farm. The captain reports work on the new two million dollar prison building at a standstill at the present time, owing to some misunderstanding as to the price the state is to pay for the "keep" of state prisoners.

The Misses Marian Rogers and Louise Spicer and L. W. Ross drove to East Lansing, Monday, to attend the annual meeting of the Boys' and Girls' Club. They were accompanied by fourteen Wayne county boys and girls who won county or state championships in club work during the past year. Champions from Canton Club were Theo Swegles, Clara Hawk and Ruth Wilkins. The party will return Friday.

There was an interesting game of ball played last Sunday afternoon, between a nine selected from "long term" men from the Detroit House of Correction and a nine picked from the "farm colony" at the House of Correction farm, and Capt. Denniston felt greatly elated at the proficiency of his boys. The score was a close one, but stood at 11 to 10 in favor of the "farmers." Several city people were present, including President Oakman of the prison board. There will be other ball games, and Supt. Denniston hopes his boys may win their full share. They have a very fair ball park at the "farm."

C. OF C. TWILIGHT BASE BALL

Despite the occasional showers of Monday evening, Wood's Indians met Rambo's All-Stars for the second time this season, and took the game with a score of 21 to 10. Frank says, "Had the weather not been so threatening, my scheduled team would have been on hand to defeat the Indians; as it was, I had to substitute, consequently the loss of another game."

Tuesday night Rathburn's Braves were credited with another victory from Shattuck's Farmers, the score being 14 to 7. This leaves another opening for the Braves to show their speed against the Indians, next Monday.

Don't forget the ice cream social at the Worden church tonight (Friday). A program is being arranged. Everyone invited to attend.

William Clay of Detroit, spent the Fourth at William Smith's.

Most everybody from this vicinity spent the Fourth at Northville.

The girls of the Worden church have organized a choir, which meets every Thursday afternoon at 2:30. May Mager was elected president; Jane Ann Sweet, secretary; Velma

Nelson, treasurer. A cordial invitation is extended to all girls of the neighborhood, who have no other church home, to join.

Miss Hazel Owenshire of Detroit, is visiting her cousin, Miss Velma Nelson.

Miss Mable Clinesmith spent the past week in Detroit and Royal Oak.

Theodore Sietoff, Jr., spent the week-end at home.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Sloggart and family of Milan, spent a few days last week with Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Wilson and family.

Ray Newton and wife spent the week-end at home.

Miss Winifred Thompson of Ypsilanti, was home for the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Coda Savery and family spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Ira Savery in Dixboro.

Mrs. Peter Sallot and children have gone to Pearl Beach for a three weeks' vacation.

BAPTIST NOTES

July 2nd, the pastor was unable to fill his pulpit on account of a severe attack of lumbago, and has been confined to his room most of the time the past week. Rev. Clayton of South Dakota, filled the pulpit with credit acceptance. He is a son-in-law of Rev. Grimwood, pastor of the Northville Baptist church.

Sunday, July 9th, Rev. Sayles was back to his pulpit, and while obliged to walk with a cane, spoke both morning and evening. The decorations were splendid, the number of ferns making it very attractive.

The prayer meeting was very well attended last week, and some of the members are placing themselves as a committee, inviting others to the meeting for prayer on Thursday evening. This is worth-while.

On account of the Chautauqua program for this week, the prayer meeting was taken up

EPISCOPAL NOTES

H. M. Rugg came out from Detroit, last Sunday, and had charge of the morning service. Owing to so many of our people being away visiting and on vacation the congregation was small, but we were pleased to welcome visitors from other denominations. Mr. Rugg is a layman attached to St. John's church, Detroit, and is devoting his spare time to the work of the church. Next Sunday the service will be in charge of another layman, supplied by the diocese of Detroit. Come and join in our service.

George W. Dickinson Looks Forward to Greatest Better Babies Show.

Geo. W. Dickinson

How to make the home and its surroundings more agreeable and worth while, will be the purpose of the Michigan Art Institute, a fixture of the Michigan State Fair, Detroit, September 1 to 10, says George W. Dickinson, secretary and manager.

Oscar Webber, of Detroit, will be the member in charge of the fine, decorative and industrial arts department. He will have as an assistant H. M. Kurtzworth, associate director of the Kansas City, Mo., art institute.

Art with Mr. Dickinson, has grown to be a hobby and, he contends it is not the quantity of things one has in a home, but the quality and the manner in which one places what he has.

Place a few plants properly about your home, with the correct coloring, and you will obtain a far more beautiful result than if you piled in a hundred varieties without respect to arrangement, says Mr. Dickinson. At the fair this year, several demonstrations of how to do this, are promised.

"When an artist builds a structure of any kind he gives respect to quality and not quantity," Mr. Dickinson asserts. "Then, when he completes it, he is reasonably sure the structure is going to appeal to the layman as well as the artists.

"Life is not all dollars and cents. Our producing power is not the greatest importance. If we have a home we love, we can see the finer side of life. Naturally, we absorb a spirit of kindness for others.

"Art builds up a community. Try placing well, a few pictures in your home. Even the arrangement of your furnishings may alter the position from which you view your happiness."

While Mr. Dickinson pays particular attention to this division of the fair and realizes it means much to the farmer to have a nice home, he is fond of children and does not neglect to see they come in for due consideration at the fair.

To him, better babies is a mighty important subject and he is intent on making the fair play an important role in the development of them.

The father and mother should take just as much care in the raising of a baby as the good farmer does in the raising of his thoroughbred stock, he contends.

"Give the baby the best environment possible" says Mr. Dickinson. "Be sure your baby grows up with the right type of associates."

"What this country needs most of all is clean, intelligent, perfect babies."

"Babies need much open air, free country in which to romp and exercise. They need care. Care, that is the secret of better babies."

Mothers bringing their babies to the contest at the State Fair will receive valuable information from the judges in charge.

Today's Reflections

The Plymouth man who doesn't know what he is talking about, takes very little pains to conceal it.

That race horse called, "Good Times," would probably attract more attention and be more popular if it was called, "Time-And-A-Half."

They are establishing many new saw mills and cutting thousands of trees in Russia, which probably means more new issues of paper money.

Here's another summer, and the Plymouth man who said last season that he'd never let another year go by without learning to swim hasn't been near the water.

There's one cut that takes longer to heal than any other—and that is a wage cut.

What we've never been able to understand about civilized man is why he cuts down trees to build a city, and then plants trees to build a park.

The best advice we can give to any citizen of Plymouth is to so live that you won't have to ask to have it kept out of the paper.

The bad man whose victims once were counted by the notches on his gun now counts the dents in his fender.

We note a tendency on the part of several neighboring editors to grow poetic. For instance, we find in an exchange this truthful little rhyme: "I can remember, my little son, when coal was selling for three dollars a ton."

It doesn't take the average Plymouth citizen long to find out that a vacation would be much more enjoyable if the old pocketbook could enjoy a rest, too.

With so many married women throughout the country running for office we can't see how politics is going to get rid of the bosses.

The Millard-band of Plymouth, have kindly consented to give one of their popular concerts, Thursday evening, July 20, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Holmes, three miles east of Plymouth on Plymouth road. Ice cream, lemonade and home-made candy will be on sale. The social will be under the auspices of the L. A. S. Ladies are requested to bring cake, also furnish candy. Everyone cordially invited to come and enjoy the music and social time.

The school meeting held in the Gleaner hall, Monday evening, was well attended. The officers for the ensuing year are as follows: Levi Clemens, director; Charles Duryee, moderator; C. Donald Ryder, treasurer.

Mrs. L. Clemens spent from last Wednesday until Monday with her sister in Detroit.

Miss Chaum of Detroit, and Mrs. Hattie Ostrander were over Sunday guests of Mrs. Mark Joy.

Mrs. Day Dickerson and son, William of Farmington, called at C. E. Ryder's and W. R. LeVan's, last Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. LeVan were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Rambo at Union Lake, over Sunday.

Ten masons are now employed on the Newburg school house.

There is quite a colony of good roads men located at Stark now. Work is progressing on the two bridges on the Wayne road.

Vivian Smith of Plymouth, is spending the week with her aunt, Mrs. Donald Ryder.

Clyde Smith spent several days this week with his cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Schroder, at Cass Lake, fishing and picking huckleberries.

Edwin Norris and lady friend of Detroit, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Mackinder.

Those from here who attended the play, "The Shepherd of the Hills," on the opening night of the Chautauqua, were delighted with it.

One may travel a good many miles and not find a prettier place than the village of Plymouth. Very few have the parks and the lighting system, which make it so attractive.

Miss Harriet Casterline of Flint, who is attending the summer school at Ypsilanti, called at the Ryder homestead, last Sunday.

Robert Reed of Eaton Rapids, is visiting his brothers, Ben and Jake. It has been twenty-five years since he has been here and finds many changes.

Both are Buick

One has Four Cylinders—the other has Six

The Buick nameplate on the radiator of a car is the mark of merit. Whether the car has four cylinders or six is of secondary importance. The vital fact is that it's a Buick.

The new Buick Four is the ideal automobile for the motorist requiring a light economical car, yet having all the speed, power and sturdiness of larger and costlier cars.

The Buick Six, perfectly appointed, with all the flexibility and smoothness of the six cylinder car at its best, has earned its position among motor cars as the Standard of Comparison.

Both the Buick Four and the Buick Six have the famous Valve-in-Head motor, the same important chassis units, the same handsome body lines. Both are the product of the Buick organization with all its resources, its engineering talent, its wealth of ripe experience.

Choosing between the Four and the Six is simply a matter of size and price. Both are Buick.

Edward Clodd's Vision

By ERNEST LEVINE

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

Edward Clodd had been dead for some time, but how long he did not know. He had always thought that death was the end of everything; and he had been so surprised to find himself alive after the mortal change that that absorbed nearly all his impressions.

He was in his own home. If he had strength to rise, he did not know how to exercise it. There he was, wandering about the rooms of his big house, and nobody took the faintest notice of him.

He had screamed, threatened, shouted, and his loudest cries made no impression on any one. He had shaken his wife violently by the arm, and she had walked through him as if he were not there.

It was dreadful to find himself a cipher where he had been the master, but it was worse to see the general joy at his disappearance. Milly had ceased to care for him for years; she had been suppressed by him, but she was rapidly picking up her personality. In spite of her widow's weeds, there was an atmosphere of relief, almost of gaiety.

He had thought that, if there was a heaven, his good deeds would carry him there. He had been a cantankerous old man, but he had done good as well as had. Joan he had turned out of his home for marrying young Saunders—but that was a father's right, and he had warned her first. Harold had been a good boy; he had left him all his money after his wife's death. Milly he had provided for suitably.

Harold must regret his passing, surely. Swift as the thought, he was transported to Harold's home. Harold was sitting with his wife, Dora; they were talking of him.

"It's a lucky thing the old man kicked the bucket when he did," Harold was saying. "I don't mind telling you now, Dora, I was up against it for fair. I lost my job last month—didn't tell you. If he'd known he'd have cut me off like Joan."

"Why?"
 "Well—never mind why. A little trouble. Now we'll make the money fly, oh, old girl? A car for you, and we'll hit the high spots. Yes, it's the best thing that could have happened to us!"

Edward Clodd crept away. He had realized the boy. He felt crushed, humiliated, heartbroken. Who was there who cared?
 "Ah, there was Sadie, the little stenographer, who had been with him eight years. He had lent her two hundred dollars when her mother was ill. Surely she would remember—wouldn't she?"

Instantly he found himself in his office. There was another man in his chair—Simmons, his secretary, whom he had trusted with everything. Simmons and he had been excellent friends. He had been interested in Simmons, had picked him out of the rack of clerks.

"Yep, he was a good manager," Simmons was saying, "but too cranky for me. Between you and me, Sadie, I'd already arranged to go to Wither- spoon's. They jumped at me with my knowledge of the business. In a year's time we'd have put old Clodd on the blink. I'm sorry the old boy died before I got the chance to get back at him."

"What had he done to you?"
 "Done? Kept me down to a miserable five thousand a year. Kept me here staying for him after hours. I had my knife into him, and he'd have found it out if he'd lived."

"He sure was a mean old skinflint," answered the stenographer. "Say, you remember that time my mother was sick? He lent me two hundred dollars—and made me pay it back. Stopped my salary, two dollars a week! I'm glad he's dead!"

Clodd crept away. If ever he had been bitter in life, he was more bitter in death. Those whom he had helped and trusted had gone back on him. What about his enemies?
 Joan! In his bitterness of spirit he resolved to visit her. Listen to what she was saying. How she must hate him!

Instantly he found her, but not in her poor little home. She was kneeling somewhere, but the room had grown misty, and he could not see anything except Joan's white face and tearful eyes.

"Daddy," he heard her say, "dear daddy, if only you could hear me! I love you! I understand you so well. I knew that underneath all the bitterness and disappointment you loved me. And I loved you, daddy! Can you hear me? I loved you!"

The sudden rush of answering love in Clodd's heart was like a cleansing flood. He groaned in spirit. If only he had known! If only there yet were time!

"Daddy! Can't you hear me?"
 Clodd opened his eyes. His room, his own room swam round him. He saw the amazement on Joan's face. She screamed.

"He's come to himself! Mother, quick! Daddy's alive! The doctor said he'd live if ever he came through the crisis!"

"Joan!" whispered Clodd feebly.
 Very weakly he put his arm about her as she knelt beside him.

Back to Love's Country

By ELLA SAUNDERS

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

Lottie was thirty-three, the eldest of a line of brothers and sisters. Ranging in order next these were: Belle, twenty-six, blonde, and inclining to stoniness; Mary, twenty-four, dark and spirituelle, whatever that is; Dolly, twenty-one and vivacious; then came three boys and the youngest sister Lucy, aged twelve.

They lived in an uptown flat. It was not in the rich part of the town. It was not in the poor part. It was in that part that is so maddening in its monotony, where rows and rows of cheap apartment houses extend for miles facing each other across a dusty street.

Her father was a commercial traveler, who seldom came home. Her mother was a shrewish old woman, who ruled her family with a lashing tongue.

There had been a time—ten years before—when Lottie had sweethearts, like the other girls. But the cares of the family had devolved chiefly on her, and for five years she had been herself growing older and more faded. Now she was the household drudge, a fixture, she thought bitterly.

The man across the hall, who rented a room from Mrs. Paxton, seemed to have seen that. He was about her own age, and had stopped to exchange a few words with her now and again. Lottie had come to welcome this little respite in her monotonous lot.

"I'm going back to God's country," Miss Harting, he had said the week before, with a smile on his boyish face. "The Northwest where a man can stretch his limbs and breathe. I've had enough of city life. I've bought a ranch."

All the while he spoke her heart cried passionately, "Take me with you! I'll slave for you as I've slaved here. Only give me freedom too, a little love, a caress..."

She had not seen him for a week. She did not expect to see him again. She thought of all this bitterly, but without repining, as she busied herself about the apartment. It was in a sense a gala night for her, for it was the first time in months that she found herself alone. Only those who live ceaselessly in the company of others know what solitude means.

All the others, down to Lucy, had gone to Coney for the evening.

"Somebody's got to stay home to mind the place," said Mrs. Harting. "I guess it's you, Lottie. You're too old to get any amusement out of the beach."

Lottie guessed it was she. And some one had to stay to do the innumerable things that were required. There was the week's darning, the beans to be put on to soak, Belle's and Mary's room to be turned out.

A tap at the door startled her. Visitors were very few and far between at the Hartings' apartment. The girls met their beaux outside. There was not room for courting.

Lottie opened the door timidly, and her heart almost stopped beating as she saw the man across the hall standing outside.

"Oh, good evening," she said timidly.

"May-I come in?" he asked, his blue eyes lighting up with a smile.

Lottie admitted him and gave him a chair, but he did not sit down; he only stood and smiled at her.

"You the only one left?" he asked.

"Yes, they've gone to the beach," she answered, painfully conscious of her apron and the broom beside the sofa.

"You must have a pretty hard time here," he said gently.

Lottie's eyes filled with tears; she felt ashamed and mortified by the sighs that were forced from her. She wept uncontrolably.

She felt his hand upon her shoulder. She looked up out of her swimming eyes at him.

"I've thought that for a long time," he said. "I—I'm sorry. I'm leaving to-night, and just came in to say good-by."

"G-good-by," she whispered faintly.

"Miss Harting, I—I want to say something more. Won't you leave all this behind you and come with me? Come West with me, where there won't be anything of this. Do you suppose I haven't seen how you're treated here?" he added with sudden passion.

"No, I know what you're going to say. You've got to look after your family. Well, you've had a long spell of it, as far as I can see. It's time some one else took up the burden."

"No, dear, I won't give you time to think. Just come! Come as you are. I'm going—now. And I want you. Will you come? I love you! Will you come—now?"

And suddenly his arms were round her, and their lips met. And, side by side, they went down the stairs into a brighter land—love's country.

State Fair Apiary Exhibit To Establish New Record

G. W. Dickinson Promises Fine Educational Program In This Department.

How to raise 20 swarms of bees, ranging from 25,000 to 50,000 bees to a swarm, from two original swarms, will be shown at the Michigan State Fair, Detroit, September 1 to 10, is the promise of George W. Dickinson, secretary and manager.

Mr. Dickinson, whose father once operated one of the most extensive apiaries in the state on his farm in Sanilac county where the present fair manager was born, speaks out of years of practical experience when he talks about bees. His father imported the now famous Italian bee into Michigan.

"This year the Michigan State Fair will present the most intelligent exhibition of the best way of developing apary interests that can be found at any similar exposition in the country," Mr. Dickinson says.

"We intend to show how 20 swarms of bees can be raised from two separate swarms or how to multiply a swarm 10 times a year and get more honey.

"There will also be a complete exhibition of every apparatus imaginable for separating honey from the comb. Remember, there is nothing palatable about the comb. It is clean, yes, but the farmer is after the honey.

"A few swarms of bees, properly cared for, on a farm will provide more than enough honey for one farmer. The farmer must be careful, of course, that worms do not destroy his bees; careful also they do not die from lack of attention. If he safeguards his bees he will find them quite a benefit.

"Nature provided the bee and man improved it. There still are possibilities for improvement and the State Fair will endeavor to present clearly these possibilities."

E. H. Tyrell, of Detroit, will be superintendent of the apary department.

Of interest to the women of the state is the news the woman's department this year will be widened in scope. More and fancier exhibitions will be included. Nothing that has been made prior to the last fair will be displayed. D. J. Healy, of Detroit, will superintend the department.

The ruling against machine made fancy articles will stand this year, Mr. Dickinson says.

Buck Johnson, the Lifer

By HUBERT RAY

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

"Buck" Johnson was at large. His absence from the penitentiary was discovered half an hour after the mail carrier had brought the evening mail. He had snapped his chain, climbed a fourteen-foot wall, broken through the stockade and made his getaway into the forest.

"Buck" Johnson was a lifer—a dangerous man. He stood six feet high and had a body like a barrel. He had been sent up five years before for killing another negro. He claimed the man had attacked his wife, but nobody cared anything about that; law had to be preserved. All the same, the warden always felt sorry for the pretty little mulatto woman who came periodically to see her husband. That was unusual for a negro. One would have expected her to have taken up with some one else long ago.

Perhaps it was because of the kid she sometimes brought with her. The child had been illing of late, not expected to live, in fact, and Johnson had written a desperate, half-literate letter to the governor, begging to be allowed to go and see the child before it died. Of course no answer came. Who was going to trouble about a negro's letter? It was after that that Johnson became desperate. He attacked a guard in the turpentine convey, and had to be chained. Now he had gone.

Of course he had struck for his home, twelve miles across the swamps. Negroes never had any sense; they were like foxes making for their earths. Bloodhounds were quickly upon the trail.

However, Johnson had had an hour's start, and he had a fair chance of making the distance before he was caught. That he would be caught, no one doubted. There was a posse of four armed guards with the warden, and they were instructed to shoot Buck Johnson if he showed fight.

Buck Johnson made his way straight as a line toward his home. The country was a wilderness of pine and palmetto. Here and there were mangrove swamps, in which he sank waist high. He pushed through impenetrable undergrowth, heedless of the scratches and tears. He was caked with blood and mud, he looked hardly a human being. A desperate man, bent only on seeing his child before it died.

What remnant of decent feeling survived in Johnson's heart? How could a black man care about his child? The warden wondered as the hounds sniffed up the trail. It was hard to keep up with them, and it was not very long before the distant baying reached the fugitive.

Buck Johnson scrambled on. He looked now like a gigantic ape; all the clothing was torn away from the upper part of his body and he was panting like a hayed stag. Ever nearer came the sound of the bloodhounds.

He plunged into Big Swamp. He fought his way through an almost impenetrable bed of mud, struggling through it waist high. The warden and posse, knowing the trail he was taking, had left the hounds to follow, confident of picking him up by a circuit around the morass.

Johnson was just struggling out of the other end of the swamp when he saw the first hound dash upon the treacherous surface. Instantly it was gone. The edge of the lake loomed. He and the pursuers. Baffled, the hounds set up a melancholy howl. As Johnson reached the far end, he saw the warden and his men, not a quarter of a mile distant, through the trees.

The echo of a shout reached him; bullets began to fly. Buck Johnson fell like a deer. His right arm dropped to his side, paralyzed. A bullet nipped his cheek. Then he had evaded the pursuers and gone crashing through the palmetto tangles. And at last, as he topped a rise, he saw the tiny home settlement in the distance, and his cabin among the negro shacks that composed it.

He went more slowly, gasping, and giddy from his wound. At the top of the rise he saw his pursuers in the valley beneath. Another volley whined about him. He ran on—on, on, on, hidden for a few moments by the elevation behind him. This was his but. He burst inside. There sat Lily, watching the child upon the bed. She rose up with a cry and flung her arms about his neck. Buck Johnson knelt down.

"She's sleeping! The doctor says she'll live. The fever's gone!"

Buck Johnson heard that much, but he could not understand the rest of Lily's excited exclamations. He was kneeling down, staring into the child's face.

The warden stood in the doorway. Lily was waving a paper in front of him. "Listen! Listen!"

"Come, Buck!" said the warden. Buck Johnson rose up, resigned.

"Eh, what's that?" cried the warden. "What? What? When did you get this?"

"This afternoon. See, it's a pardon! The governor's pardoned him!"

Buck heard it all vaguely. He did not understand why the rifles were grounded, why the warden was gripping his hand.

"It's all right, Buck! Come back tomorrow. Glad that's only a grace. Sorry we had to shoot him, ma'am. How's the kid? Fine! This is a big day for you, Buck! Come on, boys; leave them together. Guess black folks has their feelings, same as us!"

Biliousness and Constipation

"For years I was troubled with biliousness and constipation, which made life miserable for me. My appetite failed me. I lost my usual force and vitality. Pepsin preparations and cathartics only made matters worse. I do not know where I should have been today had I not tried Chamberlain's Tablets. The tablets relieve the ill feeling at once, strengthen the digestive functions, helping the system to do its work naturally," writes Mrs. Rosa Potts, Birmingham, Ala.—Advertisement.

AROUND ABOUT US

Royal Oak has a boys' band with thirty-five members.

Ypsilanti's new hotel, now in course of construction, is to be called, "The Huron."

The Northville-Detroit picnic will be held in Northville this year, on Saturday, July 22.

Two thousand three hundred and sixty-three students are registered at the Ypsilanti Normal College for the summer school session.

That Royal Oak is growing some is evidenced by the fact that the city is now paying one-sixth of the Oakland county taxes.

Plans are being made to organize a base ball team at Redford. Local merchants are going to back the new team. That is the right kind of a spirit.

A natural peat bed in Chelsea is about to be developed and commercialized. W. H. Freuslauf, a graduate of the University of Berlin, has arrived to take charge of the plant.

Work of grading the Redford-Livonia town line road from the county line south to the Plymouth road is going forward at a good pace. It is expected that the road will be paved next year.

The village of Wayne will vote on the proposition of bonding for $100,000 to provide sewers, and a site for a sewerage disposal plant. Plymouth will have to take a similar action before very long.

Fred Neil, 17 years old, son of Richard Neil, was killed when he fell while trying to cross the Pere Marquette tracks in front of a freight train at Northville Saturday morning. He caught his foot in the tracks and was killed instantly.

Robert Beals, on Wednesday evening, asked the Board of Commerce in promoting the erection of a 65-room, modern hotel building in Dearborn. He proposed that the board secure a site, against which bonds would be issued for building purposes. A lot on the corner of Michigan avenue and Porter street has been offered for a site for the proposed building.—Dearborn Press.

Max W. Buek, as guardian of the William Will's estate, closed the deal Monday whereby the old Woodruff mill east of town passes into the hands of William Ford. Mr. Ford assured Mr. Buek that the water power there would be developed soon. A recent survey of the place showed that it will be possible to develop at least one hundred horsepower. It is gratifying to see this historic property pass into the hands of those who are likely to make such good use of it.—Brighton Argus.

George A. Walters, deputy police commissioner, formally announced Saturday that he would be a Republican candidate for sheriff at the primary election, September 12. Mr. Walters has been secretary of the Detroit police department for 12 years with six different administrations. He is recognized nationally as an authority on traffic regulation, and is the father of public safety campaigns in Detroit. He is a graduate of the Detroit College of Law, was a newspaper reporter and printer. Mr. Walters was once vice-consul-general for the United States to the central part of China, and is a Spanish-American war veteran.

Wonderful transformations are taking place at Island Lake and Governor Groesbeck's assertion that the state park at that place would be the finest in the state is going to be made true. The old summer military school building has been made over into a Casino with a fine, large two-story screened porch on the lake side. Boat houses have been built and dozens of boats are on the water for rent to visitors. A hotel has been opened and the park can easily take care of from ten to fifteen thousand people at a time. The beaches are fine for bathing and are patronized freely. The park is easily accessible from Grand River road, and the Grand Rapids branch of the Pere Marquette railroad has a station there. From appearances the park is destined to become a popular place not only for tourists but for Detroit people who go for a day's outing.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Anna Sophia Mau, nee Bauman, daughter of Christian Bauman and Wilhelmine Bauman, nee Lemke, was born in Germany on the 31st of January, 1836. In her infancy she was baptized and later confirmed in the Lutheran faith. In the year 1861, she was united in marriage with August Mau, who together with her only son have preceded the mother into eternity. In the year 1864, the deceased emigrated with her husband to America, coming to Livonia. Here in Livonia she resided with the exception of three years in Southfield, until about twenty-five years ago. She then removed to Redford to her daughter, Mrs. William Houghton, on Grand River avenue. After a sojourn of four years she again moved to Livonia with her husband for five years. The aged couple, then again moved to their daughter's, Mrs. William Houghton, where the remaining years of their lives were spent. Mrs. Anna Mau passed away Wednesday morning, July 5, 1922, at the home of her daughter at the age of 86 years, 5 months and 5 days. She leaves to mourn her, one daughter, Mrs. Wm. Houghton of Redford; one brother, Christian Bauman of Detroit; a daughter-in-law, six grandchildren, three great grandchildren and a large number of other relatives and friends.

The deceased had been a member of St. Paul's Lutheran church of Livonia Center, almost from the beginning, and remained a member for nearly fifty years. Even after removing to Redford, she would not sever her connections with the church at Livonia. Funeral services were held from the home of her daughter and the Lutheran church at Livonia Center on Friday afternoon, July 7, with interment in the Livonia Center cemetery, Rev. Oscar J. Peters officiating.

Fair Transportation Heads

William H. Oliver, Kent county farmer, who will have charge of the Poultry department at the Michigan State Fair, Detroit September 1 to 10, has been selected as chairman of the transportation committee, G. W. Dickinson, secretary-manager, announced.

The transportation committee, besides Mr. Oliver, will be made up of Robert Barney, of Traverse City, and Robert N. Wallace, of Saginaw. This department will be supervised by Mr. Barney, who is a fruit grower in northern Michigan. He was named on the fair board this year.

Mr. Oliver is keenly interested in making the poultry and pet stock department of the exposition one of the most predominating. He has framed definite plans to accomplish this and is viewed as one of the State Fair's valuable men.

The task of supervising the machinery exhibitions, in addition to serving with the transportation committee, has fallen to Mr. Wallace. He is a three-year man on the board, and has two years to serve.

TEN TIMES BIGGEST CIRCUS HERE SOON

WORLD'S GREATEST AMUSEMENT INSTITUTION, RINGLING BROS. AND BARNUM & BAILEY HEADED THIS WAY.

Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Day draws near and with it will come a vast circus of "ten thousand wonders" to exhibit in Detroit, July 17 and 18.

This mammoth amusement enterprise of 1922 has been officially recorded as "America's ten times greatest circus." It is a third bigger than it was in 1921. For, in addition to the many innovations offered then, the present season's program numbers ten more trained wild-animal displays—making twenty in all—and the most superb trained horse acts that Europe has produced.

The wild-animal and equine displays of 1921 were introduced merely that the Ringling Brothers might judge of their popularity. So enthusiastically were these numbers received that the famous showmen immediately arranged for the purchase of the world's finest acts of this kind. An entire equine circus was bought outright and brought to this country last winter. And while the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey agents were securing this and the trained tiger, polar bear, lion, leopard and jaguar, groups, they had orders to engage the foremost men and women performers of the European capitals. And these stars from city and jungle are to be seen with this wondrous circus of 1922. Everything, including the great double menagerie of more than a thousand animals and exhibiting such rarities as a mite of a baby hippopotamus and its three-ton mother, is to be seen for the price of one admission ticket. And by "everything" is meant not only the wild animal and equine displays, but the entire circus. More than 700 men and women, embracing the world's foremost acrobatic stars, take part. There are 100 clowns. Aside from the ferocious beasts, the program includes forty trained elephants. There are five companies of trained seals, many dogs, bears, monkeys, pigs and pigeons. It is the biggest circus program the world has ever seen, given under the largest tent.

One Dollar Saved Represents Ten Dollars Earned

The average man does not save to exceed ten per cent of his earnings. He must spend nine dollars in living expenses for every dollar saved. That being the case he cannot be too careful about unnecessary expenses. Very often a few cents properly invested, like buying seeds for his garden, will save several dollars outlay later on. It is the same in buying Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy. It costs but a few cents, and a bottle of it in the house often saves a doctor's bill of several dollars.

LIVONIA WEED NOTICE

To owners, possessors or occupiers of land, or any person or persons, firm or corporation having charge of any lands in this state: Notice is hereby given that all noxious weeds growing on any land in the township of Livonia, county of Wayne, or within the limits of any highway passing by or through such lands, must be cut down and destroyed on or before the 20th day of July, 1922. Failure to comply with this notice on or before the date mentioned of within ten days thereafter, shall make the parties so failing liable for the cost of cutting same and an additional levy of ten per cent of such cost, to be levied against the property in the same manner as other taxes are levied and collected.

Dated, July 10, 1922.

Highway Commissioner of the Township of Livonia, County of Wayne.

Wife Versus Novelist

By ANNE WHITFIELD

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union

It was the discovery of Cynthia's letter in Bob's pocket that was Dorothy's storm signal. At first she cried; then she sat down to think things over.

Bob was her husband, a well-known novelist, and they had been married three years. Dorothy always remembered her conversation with Bob when he asked her to marry him.

"Bob, dear, won't you get tired of me? I can work for you and make you comfortable, but I can't share your mind."

And Bob answered: "You can give me everything I want, darling. I don't want a literary wife. Why, we'd never stop wrangling. Fancy having a wife who would want to read her plots to one every evening!"

So they were married, and they were very happy for months. But gradually her housework began to monopolize her attention more and more; then Bob made a bit with his book, and literary people began coming out to the house in the suburbs. Dorothy was never at her best with these. She did not know what they were talking about and it all seemed absurd to her.

Cynthia's letter was not anything really to cry over. Just a friendly little note; only Dorothy had heard Bob mention her and, being a woman, she knew.

That was why she thought things over. Then, very resolutely, she went to Bob.

"Why don't you ask some friends down here for the week-ends?" she asked. "It isn't much more work for me, and I know you need companionship."

"By George, do you mean that?" he asked. "Let me see, there's Harvey Trelawney and Cynthia Murray—you'd like Cynthia. She's the author of 'Toto All Men' you know."

It was Cynthia who came, and Dorothy stazed her up in a moment. It was a woman's intuition. Cynthia also sized up Dorothy. It was war to the knife between them in a moment, and Cynthia contemptuously anticipated an easy victory.

Dorothy cried a little the next morning when Bob took Cynthia for a long walk to show her the river from the bluff. They returned flushed from their exercise. Dorothy was flushed from the kitchen.

And that evening Bob and Cynthia sat over the fire, discussing art and beauty, while Dorothy cleared away the dinner things and washed them, and fitted in and out, arranging things, and sat down for a little and went away—to cry and powder her nose.

When she returned, about eleven, Cynthia was reading Bob her manuscript, and Bob wore a slightly worried expression.

The next day was Saturday and Dorothy was preparing a big dinner. Dorothy loved cooking, and she had a shrewd idea that it was almost as important as knowing the difference between realism and romanticism. She stuffed the chickens and she made the pies, and out of the corners of her pretty eyes she heard Bob and Cynthia having a terrible quarrel over the question of construction and characterization. When she cried in the dinner, not but triumphant, Bob and Cynthia were talking in opposite corners of the room, like schoolchildren.

After dinner, which was a somewhat straggled affair, Cynthia put forth all her efforts to win the day. "Won't you take me for a row on the river, Bob?" she asked.

Bob looked at Dorothy, who answered: "Oh, yes, do go with Cynthia, Bob, and show her the sights. I've got a lot of washing up to do, and after that I'll take my chance at a nap."

Bob growled acquiescence and they soon set off. Dorothy, watching from the garden, saw Cynthia deliberately slip her arm through Bob's, and from the set of her shoulders she knew that Cynthia knew that she was watching her.

It was an anxious afternoon for Dorothy, and she got very little sleep, for she knew that the issue was being fought out on the river that afternoon.

When they came home Bob was rigidly polite, and Cynthia was very quiet.

"Think I'll go to bed early," said Bob that evening.

"I'm tired, too," said Cynthia, yawning. "Good-night, my dear," she said, as she kissed Dorothy. "I'm glad you've got him and not I," she whispered.

Upstairs Bob turned to Dorothy. "Thank heaven she's off by the morning," he growled. "I've had four hours of that d-d manuscript of hers this afternoon. Say, Dorothy, I don't know what stroke of luck gave you to me—I don't deserve you; but thank heaven you're not an authoress."

Fortunes Spent on Easter Eggs.
During the second French empire, the Easter egg reached its zenith of costliness and beauty, remarks the "Way of the World" columnist of the London Morning Post and it was quite the thing to spend as much as 20,000 francs on a single specimen. The most costly egg on record is said to be that presented by Napoleon III to the empress at the Easter of 1852. This truly imperial present took the form of a necklace of exquisite and flawless pearls valued at $20,000 ($100,000), inclosed in a golden egg, so which the word "Eggsuite" flashed in brilliant.

MEAL PLANNING

Perhaps as easy a way as any to select the right foods is to group them according to their use in the body. This, too, may aid in summarizing and obtaining a better and clearer understanding of what has previously been written.

Group 1.—Fruits and vegetables, such as apples, bananas, berries, oranges, grapefruit, melons, spinach, lettuce, celery, all greens, turnips, tomatoes, cabbage, green beans, green peas, green corn, potatoes and root vegetables. Without these the food would be lacking in mineral substances needed for building the body and keeping it in good working condition, in vitamins, and in acids, which give flavor, prevent constipation and serve other useful purposes.

Group 2.—Meats and meat substitute, or protein-rich foods: Milk (whole, skim and buttermilk), meats, poultry, fish, or the meat substitutes, as eggs, cheese, dried legumes (beans, peas, lentils, peanuts), and some of the nuts. These are sources of important body building material.

Group 3.—Cereal grains and their products: Flour, meal, breakfast foods, bread, crackers, macaroni, rye, barley, rice and oats. These foods are depended upon to furnish "fuel" energy, and if made from the whole grain, mineral and vitamins. Vitamin B is found so near the germ that it is likely to be lost if the germ is removed. The mineral substances are found chiefly in the germ and in the outer coatings of the grain. For this reason whole wheat breads are preferable to the white breads.

Group 4.—The sugar foods, including granulated, pulverized, brown and maple sugar, molasses, honey, syrups, candy, preserves, jellies, jam and marmalades. These foods can be depended upon for "flavor" and flavor, but not for protein, vitamins, or minerals, therefore they are not as essential as the former groups.

Group 5.—The fat foods: Butter, oil, lard, suet, other table and cooking fats, cream, bacon, salt pork, chocolate and rich, oily nuts. These too, are sources of "fuel" and valued for their flavor. Some foods, especially cream and butter, furnish vitamin A and are particularly desirable when the diet is low in green vegetables or when skim milk is drunk.

Some housekeepers prefer to do a certain amount of "balancing" as they go along and to serve at least one food from each group at every meal, but this is not necessary. For instance there is no objection to an adult taking a breakfast of toast, butter and coffee, tea, or cocoa, chiefly groups 3 and 5, providing enough fruits, vegetables, and protein foods are supplied later in the day. Again, a meal may contain representatives of all the food groups and be so out of proportion as not to be a well balanced meal. For example, a meal is likely to supply far more protein than is needed, provided it includes meat and custard dessert, which is made from milk and eggs. Or again, a meal that includes no meat course, but has in its place very pretty ears she heard Bob and Cynthia having a terrible quarrel over the question of construction and characterization. When she cried in the dinner, not but triumphant, Bob and Cynthia were talking in opposite corners of the room, like schoolchildren.

After dinner, which was a somewhat straggled affair, Cynthia put forth all her efforts to win the day. "Won't you take me for a row on the river, Bob?" she asked.

During the second French empire, the Easter egg reached its zenith of costliness and beauty, remarks the "Way of the World" columnist of the London Morning Post and it was quite the thing to spend as much as 20,000 francs on a single specimen. The most costly egg on record is said to be that presented by Napoleon III to the empress at the Easter of 1852. This truly imperial present took the form of a necklace of exquisite and flawless pearls valued at $20,000 ($100,000), inclosed in a golden egg, so which the word "Eggsuite" flashed in brilliant.

LETTER OF APPRECIATION

The Class of 1922 have received the following letter from the Board of Education:
Plymouth, Mich., July 11, 1922.
Miss Margaret Streng,
President, Class 1922,
Plymouth, Michigan.

Dear Miss Streng:
The Board of Education desires, through you, to express its sincere appreciation and the appreciation of the school district to the Class of 1922 for the splendid memorial which you have left. Not only does the beautiful case afford a fine housing for the various trophies, but it is highly ornamental, and will, we are sure, always leave in our minds a very kindly feeling toward the Class of 1922.

Very sincerely,
THE BOARD OF EDUCATION,
E. V. Jolliffe, Secretary.

SPEED LIMIT IS FIXED IN ANY MICHIGAN CITY

The speed limit on Main street in any Michigan village or city is 15 miles an hour.
This was decided June 23 in an opinion sent to Colonel Roy C. Vandercreek, head of the state department of public safety, by Merlin Wiley, attorney general.
A number of complaints have been received to the effect that village officials, in their zeal to make of main street a haven of safety, have placarded their streets with signs limiting the speed to less than that prescribed by the state law.

The attorney general holds that the state law, which provides for 15 miles an hour on business streets, 20 miles in residential sections, and 35 miles on country highways, stands, except in city parks.—Ypsilanti Record.

FIRST LAW IS HOSPITALITY

Arabs Will Quarrel Over the Privilege of Entertaining a Visitor—Strict Rule of Etiquette.

Although most Arabs are Bedouins or nomads, many of this ancient race live in towns. To the traveler unused to the swaying and almost "mal de mer" inducing motion of the camel—for this is the mode of locomotion in Arabia—it is a great relief to come to one of these dingy yet picturesque towns.

With a sigh of relief the careworn and dust-covered voyager crosses the dry desert and passes through the city walls. All Arabian towns have walls and turrets. The traveler wonders what the great standpipe is, rising high above the houses, and if by chance there might be some industry connected with it. But on inquiring he finds that it is the watch tower—a remnant of the Middle Ages when only spears and lances were used in warfare. Today the tower would fall quickly if it were hit by the shell from a five-pound gun.

To visit in one of the Arabian houses is indeed a great pleasure, for the Arabs are most hospitable, and treat their guests royally, asserts Temple Manning in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. In fact, the whole town will squabble over the privilege of entertaining a visitor.

No mention of the length of a visitor's stay or where he is going is alluded to—this would be the height of ill manners. For this handsome and bold race are gallant and courteous to the last degree, and some of their forms of conduct are difficult for the Westerner to adopt.

Although it is fascinating to live as a guest of an Arabian family, it is really difficult, and one must be on his guard if he cares to be invited again.

The main room in every Arabian house is the coffee room. Here is where the men meet at all hours and talk and drink the Arabian coffee, which is so strong that it is apt to keep the guest awake all night.

There is no furnishing in the room save rugs, and is very careful not to let his foot stick out in front of him. For in an Arabian house feet are to be used, but never seen.

If you should visit in this land of "A Thousand and One Nights," be sure to tuck your feet under you, no matter how uncomfortable, because if you don't you will be considered had-mannered and will not be asked to call again!

Queer Cargoes.

The oddest cargo recorded was probably that carried lately by a British steamer bound for Morocco.

It consisted of some two million gallons of water. To carry that amount of water a distance of 15,000 miles sounds too absurd, but the matter becomes clearer when we are told that the water was specially purified drinking water for the use of the Spanish troops fighting the rebels in Morocco.

Another cargo sent to Spain consisted of an immense quantity of bank notes. There were several millions of these, most of them of small value. It is testimonial to British printing that Spain gave such an order, and is due to the fact that notes printed in Spain have been so largely counterfeited.

A master stevedore, working at the Albert docks, London, recently received compensation for being hit on the head by a bundle of old horse-shoes which were being loaded into a stevedore's hold.

In court the judge asked the reason for sending old horse-shoes out of the country. Counsel told him that they were being sent to China, where they were made into spades, a purpose for which they were specially suitable.

Slave.

The word "slave," in the sense in which it was used in America until the proclamation by President Lincoln that abolished it, was originally the name of a great branch of the human race. That branch was the Slavs, among whom the Russians, the Poles and the Czechs are numbered.

In the early wars between the Germans and the Slavs, the Slavic captives were used much as the negroes were used in parts of America prior to the Civil war. Hence a bondman was designated as a "Slav" or slave by the Germanic conquerors.

By way of an offset to this contemptible designation of the Slav as "slaves," it is only fair to point out that the Slavs trace the derivation of their race name to "slava," or glory.—Chicago Journal.
