LABOR DAY AT PRISON FARM

Labor Day was a gala day at the Detroit House of Correction Prison Farm, and everybody there enjoyed the day immensely. Beginning in the morning at 8:30, an athletic program commenced, which continued throughout the day and early evening. The various events consisted of horseshoe pitching contests, both doubles and singles; three-legged race, sack race, wheelbarrow race, potato race, relay race, standing broad jump, running broad jump, etc. Liberal prizes were offered in each event. A ball game between the officers' team and the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce team featured the morning program. It was a closely contested game, and the officers' team won by a score of 4 to 3. The feature of the afternoon was the game between the officers' team and Livonia Center. This was also a closely contested game, and the officers again were the victors by a score of 3 to 2. After the supper hour, two teams made up from among the prisoners played a game of ball, for which a prize was given to the winning team. The day's festivities closed with a boxing contest.

THE OAKLAND COUNTY FAIR

What you see at a fair naturally divides itself into two general classes. There are the exhibits in all the many departments, together with their placards and printed or oral explanations. These are intended to be instructive and educational. Then there are entertainment features—the free acts, the races, the ball games, the music and special amusement stunts. These are intended to furnish entertainment, help swell the crowd, and thus make possible the payment of premiums. It is the aim of the management of the Oakland County Fair to give a well-balanced exhibition of the best possible in both these respects.

The secretary states that loyal boosters in every department have been working hard, and they expect to make the 1922 fair the "biggest and best" the county has ever seen. The fair is strictly on a county community basis. Officers, directors and superintendents work without pay, and every dollar realized from the fair is put back into improvements.

Improvements this year include moving the grand stand back from the track and building additions to double its capacity, building a new band stand and a new judges' stand, building three new stock sheds, canvas topped, 30x24; purchase of 300 new wire coops for poultry and pet stock. Premiums have been increased and boys' and girls' club work will be featured. Besides three ball games and six races, three high-class "free-act" shows will exhibit daily.

The dates of the Oakland County Fair are September 13 to 16 at Milford. The management cordially invites you to attend. You will see many old friends there, and will vote a day or two at the county fair well spent.

HOW A CONGRESSMAN IS MADE

For a quarter of a century Champ Clark of Missouri, was a member of and intimately connected with Congress. He was Democratic Floor Leader for years and was Speaker of the House of Representatives for eight years during the Wilson administration. He knew as much about the practical workings of Congress as any man of his time. In the closing years of his life, he gave his judgment as to how the people of a district can be well represented in Washington. He said:

"A man has to learn to be a representative just as he must learn to be a blacksmith, a carpenter, a farmer, an engineer, a lawyer, or a doctor."

"A poet is born, not made"—says Horace; but Congressmen—that is, useful and influential Congressmen—are made largely by experience and practice.

"It is an unwise performance for any district to change representatives at short intervals. A new Congressman must begin at the foot of the class and spell up."

"The best rule, it seems to me, is for a district to select a man young enough to learn and to grow, with at least fair capacity, industrious, honest, energetic, sober, and courageous and keep him here as long as he discharges his duties faithfully and well. Such a man will gradually rise to high position and influence in the House. His wide acquaintance with members helps him amazingly in doing things."

Our representative in Congress, Mr. Michener, has had a training in Congress that qualifies him for more useful service. He possesses the qualities that Champ Clark stated made a good representative. Would it not be an "unwise performance" for this district to deprive itself and our state of his experience and wide acquaintance in Congress where he is now efficiently serving us?

Congressman Michener is a tireless worker, always on the job, and is ever ready to lend every aid and assistance to his constituents in every matter in which they are interested or is for the best interests or welfare of his district. He has proved himself to be the right man to represent this district in congress, and he will receive a large vote in Plymouth at the coming primary.

Today's Reflections

We used to think that the main idea of colleagues was to fix it so a fellow wouldn't have to work for a living. When a Plymouth man sits out on the front porch with his shoes off, it isn't hard to tell who's boss at his house. When we read of cabbage rotting in the field, it reminds us of the last five-cent cigar we got hold of. We heard a Plymouth man say a few days ago that the reason women have better teeth than men, is because they're in the open more. It's all right to let Europe alone. Then maybe she'll not let outsiders in on her next war. We see in a daily paper the statement that paper money wears out rapidly. Yes, and it also passes out rapidly. And many a Plymouth man with a laugh coming to him doesn't see it until after it is gone. Figures show the use of hair dye is increasing. The old gray hair ain't what it used to be. The Plymouth man who says he's going to "think it over," merely means that he's going to ask his wife. An office seeker always pines for better times for the farmer, but the time he means is the time it takes to go and vote his ticket. A man isn't necessarily bashful simply because he dislikes to meet his obligations. We've always noticed that nothing pleases the average Plymouth man more than to be told that he is working too hard. Maybe they call us the "ultimate consumer," because we ultimately get it in the neck. One Plymouth citizen recently sized it up by declaring that people are like watermelons. You can't tell a good one or a bad one from the outside. If you know of an item of news, phone or send it to the Mail office. Truman Trumbull and Dale Rorabacher spent the week-end with the former's aunt, Mrs. Milward, at Base Lake. The Key That Unlocks the Door to Long Living The men of eighty-five and ninety years of age are not the rotund, well fed, but thin, spare men, who live on a slender diet. Be as careful as he will, however, a man past middle age will occasionally eat too much or of some article of food not suited to his constitution, causing indigestion or constipation, and will need a dose of Chamberlain's Tablets to move his bowels and invigorate his stomach. When this is done, there is no reason why the average man should not live to a ripe old age.—Advertisement.

It's toasted. This one extra process gives a delightful quality that can not be duplicated

AN INTERESTING LETTER

We received the following interesting letter from Mrs. E. L. Riggs, a short time ago, but this is the first opportunity we have had to publish it: 1666 Electric Avenue, Venice, California. August 11, 1922. Dear Plymouth Friends: Thinking perhaps you might enjoy hearing from us, I will try and write a few interesting things for the Plymouth Mail. Will begin by telling you of our trip out here. We left Plymouth on the Pere Marquette on the morning of July 8th, and arrived in Chicago, where we waited five hours for our train on the Burlington. We took a long ride on one of the big motor buses down the Lake Shore drive which is indeed a most beautiful one. Leaving Chicago on the Burlington that night, we came to Denver, where our sleeper was attached to the Denver & Rio Grande, which took us through the Royal Gorge and Grand Canyon of the Arkansas, to Salt Lake City, where we were taken on the Western Pacific through the Feather River Canyon, through to San Francisco. The scenery of this trip through from Chicago to Prisco, surpasses anything I have ever seen, not even excepting the Canadian Pacific. We stopped in San Francisco one day and two nights. While there we went to the Cliff house and all through Golden Gate Park. Then at night we went through Chinatown, which is quite interesting and out of the ordinary. We were very glad to arrive in Venice, where the cool breeze from the ocean is blowing in, and sleep one quiet night with a blanket and one quilt over us. Now here is a fish story which is true, and perhaps some of the Plymouth fishermen will want to come right out here and try their luck after reading the following: What is said to be the largest sea bass landed off the Southern California Coast during the past few years was caught on the barge, Paprika, near Venice, by L. P. Nash. The fish weighed six hundred pounds. Nash landed the fish after one of the most thrilling fights of the season. For nearly three hours Nash battled the fish, finally bringing the big fellow close enough to the barge to let drive four shots, which stopped the fight. According to Venice sportsmen, nearly twenty-five giant sea bass have been landed off Venice, this year. This is said to be a new record for the Southern California coast. Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Hough and family were down here last Saturday, and we enjoyed a visit with them, all going over to the Venice pier in the evening, where we took in all the sights.

Today, we had a card from Mrs. Kenter, who with her husband and daughter are driving through from Plymouth. The card stated they were just leaving Excelsior Springs, Minn., so we look for them to arrive about next week. They stated that everything was all right, and they were enjoying their trip. Last Tuesday night, we went to Hollywood to witness the Pilgrimage play, which was one of the grandest things I ever saw. The scenery is the mountains back of the stage, and the play is given in an open top auditorium, which will seat several thousand people, and is called the Hollywood Bowl. They ran a special train from here right to the auditorium. The play is the life of Christ, and is given quite a ways up the side of the mountain, where the scenery is very fine. I have heard a number of people say it was even ahead of the Passion Play. I think this letter would not be complete without my telling you of our trip over the Santa Monica Canyon on last Armistice Day, where we took part in a motion picture, having read in one of the Los Angeles daily papers that they wanted a crowd for the race scene in Zane Grey's famous novel, "Wildfire," which was to be filmed that day. We started early, so as to get a good piece to park our car, and when we arrived on the San Vincente ranch, where there was a quarter of a mile track, we saw cowboys, Indians and Mexicans galore. So parking our car, we got out and went over to the fence, which divided the race track from the field. First they put on a Rodeo, which was all kinds of stunts done by the cowboys, such as throwing a lariat and roping horses. One cowboy roped seven horses all at one time and all running. Then there was an Indian war dance and many more things to interest the crowd. Finally the director came out on the judges' stand and calling through a megaphone asked everyone near the fence to act as though they had a thousand dollars up on the race when the horses came down the line, which they certainly did. Tod Sloan, the famous jockey, rode in the race, and was a great drawing card for the race track fans that day. After filming the picture, the name was changed to "When Romance Rides," adapted from Zane Grey's famous novel, "Wildfire." We arrived home a few days before the Bathing Girls' Parade, which was most entertaining and new, having never been here when it was given. I presume you have seen it by this time, as it has been in the movies here. Several camera men were there making pictures of it, which we afterward saw in one of the theatres in Los Angeles. School teachers who do not want to marry had better avoid California, as most of them marry soon after coming here. One of the Los Angeles dailies a few nights ago contained a list of over two hundred teachers from the east, who had married out here in the last year. Now girls, don't all come at once, unless you want to marry. Mr. Riggs is feeling pretty good, and he and Charlie have just finished painting the house and garage. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Armstrong were over here from Alhambra a couple of weeks ago, and Irma Armstrong, Black and husband, are to celebrate their wedding on Saturday, September 2nd. We are all invited. Since coming home, we have been over to Glendale, where we called on Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shatuck, who have just bought a home there. We also saw the day of the Bathing Girls' Parade on the ocean front in Venice, Lester VanDeCar and Victor Joliffe. Both are very much pleased with Southern California. The Misses Winifred and Pearl Joliffe have been here to call on us. Every afternoon and evening, a free band concert is given over on

PLYMOUTH GIRL HAS INTERESTING SUMMER

Sunday, August 13th, closed a very interesting summer work for Miss Nellie Huger of this place, at Buckhannon, West Virginia. Miss Huger has been assistant field secretary for the Chicago Training School, of which she is a graduate, and also has been sent as a representative of the Central Epworth League office, Chicago, to state Epworth League institutes and conventions. Her duties have been to teach classes in methods, assist with the music and give addresses upon Epworth League methods, life service work and social hygiene. While in Lancaster, Ohio, Miss Huger sang to an audience of four thousand people. George R. Stewart, the southern orator, was the speaker. One year ago in the same building, she sang for five thousand people, before whom William Jennings Bryan spoke. The audiences that Miss Huger addressed in Wisconsin, Ohio, Kentucky, and West Virginia numbered from three to five hundred people. About one hundred young people have come for private conferences regarding their life problems and work, and very often these interviews have resulted in decisions for home or foreign missionary work. While in Kentucky, Dr. David Jemison, grand chaplain of the Kappa Sigma Pi Fraternity became interested in Miss Huger's work and recommended that she be admitted to the Phi Beta Pi, an international sorority. Dr. Jemison asked Miss Huger to consider representing the Pi movement abroad. This was refused because of previously deciding upon a future work.

Miss Huger has accepted a position for one year on the Parish City Missionary Staff of Detroit, under Bishop Henderson. She will work in the capacity of a home missionary deaconess, having charge of the social, evangelistic and educational interests of the Polish and German young people. A number of pleasant occasions have been planned for her short stay at home, showing that friends and townspeople are back of her in her efforts to do good in the world.

THE BAD START

THE average man is so constituted that a certain amount of discouragement is necessary to progress.

That is why nobody should worry about a bad start.

Get a good one if you can, of course. It will help. But remember if your start was bad, that so was the start of almost every other man who ever attained a place of any importance in the world.

General Grant got a bad start in his studies at West Point, and did so poorly in the army that he resigned.

At the outbreak of the war between the states in America, he had settled down to the business of running a yard and tannery in an obscure Illinois town.

His biographer says that he was utterly discouraged. But he wasn't. He knew that somewhere in him was a very great ability. And when he got into the war, as all young Americans on both sides did, ambition awoke in him.

Everybody knows the rest of the story.

Lloyd George is one of the few conspicuous figures in the world today who proceeded from success to success after he once got his start.

The start itself was extremely bad. It would have discouraged most men.

However, determination triumphed over poverty and lack of opportunity. The world knows the rest of that story, too.

It stands to reason that if you never have to use your muscles you will always be a weakling. And you can only use your muscles in overcoming something, whether it is a job, or your own natural inertia.

Neither can you develop your mental possibilities without overcoming obstacles, and to the poor in spirit all obstacles are discouragements.

Don't feel blue about a bad start. It ought to make you determined to atone for it, and in atoning for it you will gain strength and character.

WHY?
DO BIRDS SING

WHAT we call the "song" of the bird—the melodious sounds which it makes with its throat—is really the courtship or love-making of the male bird which seeks in this manner to attract his mate and to make himself more pleasing in her eyes.

This love-making goes on from early in the spring until after the eggs of the mother-bird have been hatched, but in the great majority of cases, it ceases as soon as the young birds have pecked their way out of the shell.

In the case of the nightingale—renowned as the greatest of singers—the male chorus his mate with the sound of his voice all during the period when he is courting her, during the time the nest is being built and even after the eggs have been laid. As soon as the little nightingales emerge from their shells, the song of the father changes to a hoarse guttural croak, as if he were anxious and alarmed over the safety of his offspring. But—and here is the proof of the fact that the song of the bird is synonymous with courtship—if the nest and the little nightingales destroyed, the father once more commences to sing, as gloriously as before, and continues this until a new family is born.

The process of singing is, of course, the same as with a human being. The vocal muscles are expanded and contracted and the waves of air passing over the delicate membranes produce the harmony. But, unlike human beings, the great majority of birds do not have to be taught to sing.

EPISCOPAL NOTES

It was a very happy service last Sunday at St. John's in which the congregation heartily joined. The Missioner, Franklin Gibson, was at his best and certainly preached one of the most inspiring and helpful sermons one could wish to hear. The hymns also were well chosen and they were heartily sung by all the congregation.

Much anxiety is felt over the failing health of little Billy Henry, who is now under the doctor's care. He was remembered in our closing prayers on Sunday and we know that his schoolmates will remember him too, in their daily prayers, and ask God to spare him and bring him back to health and strength, that he may be a "living witness unto him," and a faithful soldier in the Master's service. Little Billy is one of the brightest, most attentive and one of the most promising in the church school, always anxious to learn and to remember what is taught him each Sunday by his teachers.

After the service last Sunday, the church-school teachers met together with the superintendent and planned out the course of lessons for each class for the coming year. The school will meet again next Sunday, at 11:30, immediately after the morning service, after the long summer vacation and will now meet each Sunday at 11:30. The superintendent wants every pupil to be present and to try and bring one more pupil who does not attend any other Sunday-school. And pupils, don't forget our old motto which we adopted more than a year ago, "I am third."

Miss Katherine Schmidt's bible class will also resume next Sunday, and each Sunday after the morning service. Miss Schmidt will commence a very interesting course entitled, "Bible Lessons on Christian Duty," a splendid and helpful course for Christian and every day life. Miss Schmidt wishes more women of the congregation, and the men, too, to join this class, indeed any adult outside our church who are anxious for a good helpful Bible course, are heartily invited to join this Bible class. Miss Schmidt welcomes them. The time is each Sunday, 11:30, at the church.

Franklin Gibson, our missioner, has issued his monthly letter and schedule of services for the month of September, and he wishes that any member who has not received this letter, would let him know. As he says in his letter, we have done well in the past, but in renewing activities this month, now that the warm weather is nearly over, we must press to even greater things, we must earnestly and prayerfully face the future with all its needs and difficulties and opportunities. Not only must each one of us give ourselves whole-heartedly and completely to the service of Jesus Christ, that is not sufficient as it was illustrated by Mr. Gibson in his sermon last Sunday, but we must pray and work for our little church that it may be used of God in the bringing of souls into His kingdom and so make the church a real use in this community of Plymouth.

PRESBYTERIAN NOTES

Specifications are out for the new garage and "prophet's chamber."

The new silk pongee curtains which the ladies have hung in the windows of the lecture room of the church are a decided improvement. Call and see them.

The first meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary was held last Wednesday in the church parlors. The ladies of Northville furnished the program. James Stevens of Detroit; C. E. Stevens, of Ann Arbor and C. R. Foster of Battle Creek, served as an impromptu choir at Sunday-school last Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Roberts, of Royal Oak, sang at the morning service, in other words our music was all "from abroad."

At a meeting of the Session last Friday night, Elder J. R. Rauch was chosen commissioner to Detroit Presbytery and the Synod of Michigan.

October 1st will be observed as Rally Day in all the organizations of the church. Specific plans for Sunday-school Rally will not be made until the superintendent's return.

The bulletin board has been given a coat of varnish and is bright and shining. A hymn board has been hung in the choir loft for the benefit of the choir.

A Man and His Mirth

By ANNE WHITFIELD

(C. 1922, by Western Newspaper Union.)

The sealing boats were coming into Grand bay. Four months they had been at sea, hunting the harps and hoods all the way up the rocky, ice-bound shore of Labrador. They were coming in laden with pelts.

Old Henri Bedard counted them through his glasses from the top of the cliff. Twenty—that was right. No, only nineteen? Was it nineteen or twenty? If it were nineteen that meant tragedy, never far from those sealers' lives. He could not discern clearly, and went on counting.

Along the shore, and by the edge of the tiny pier, those who had stayed at home shook their heads at one another.

"What will Georges Racine do when he learns that his brother Pierre has married the girl he was engaged to?" "Will he try to kill him?" "Hey, they are very well matched, that pair. It would be bull against bull."

Marie Racine, the bride, who had turned from the one brother to the other after her first lover's departure on the sealing voyage sat at the door of her cottage, trembling. She loved her husband, but she had always been terribly afraid of Georges. That was why she had got engaged to him. Georges had demanded that they be engaged, and she had not had the strength to refuse him. Besides, Georges had dominated her, as he dominated every one in the port, by his mental and physical prowess.

What would Georges do? The watchers pictured his elemental wrath, the furious fight that would ensue, though it would be too late. Too late to unjoin those who the priest had joined. But Marie trembled.

"Take thy revolver or thy knife, dear Pierre," she begged. "But not to hurt him, only to protect myself."

"Ho, I am not afraid of Georges!" boasted Pierre, as he swaggered out of his cottage toward the wharf. "I am as good a man as he is—better, else thou hadst not married me—eh, little Marie?"

He kissed her noisily.

"Perhaps that plan is better," sobbed the bride. "But it will be terrible to face him."

"Ho, there will be no need for thee to face him!" answered her husband. "If he be as much as casts a black look at thee or me I shall hammer him into pulped wood with my fists."

Marie looked in admiration after the stalwart figure of her husband as he swaggered along the sandy road toward the pier. He passed toward the pierhead, and the crowd, watching the boats, turned their heads and said:

"Here comes Pierre Racine."

"What will happen when they meet? Would it not be better to send for the cure?"

"No, let them fight it out."

"Suppose they kill each other?"

"That can hardly be. If they have knives, we must disarm them. Bad blood gets worse by keeping; let them fight it out and be friends."

"That they will never be. Both brothers loved the girl almost to madness."

They listened to Pierre, who was boasting, perhaps because he was secretly uneasy, and wished to keep up his spirits. "Friends, I have nothing but my fists, but I married my wife fairly, and I'll hold her! If my brother Georges so much as casts a black look at me, I'll hammer him into pulped wood."

They looked at him in admiration. There was no one in the village could stand up to either Georges or Pierre.

Pierre roared with laughter. "It will be amusing to watch his face when he learns," he said. "And I shall tell him. I shall say, 'Eh, Georges, dost thou remember the little Marie to whom thou wast engaged? Well?' he replies, 'And now she is married.' 'Married! Show me the dog—' 'It is I, Georges.' That is all. And, as I said, it will be amusing to watch his face."

The sealing boats were quite near now. They came on with the sun shining on their canvas sails, forming in line as they moved up the harbor, each toward its place on the side of the pier. Foremost came the vessel of old Henri Bedard's son, and there was old Henri, waiting to meet it.

The sails came down, the ships were almost alongside. Voices exchanged hullo. Pierre Racine stood near the head of the pier, scanning to find his brother's ship.

"Eh," croaked old Henri, "there are nineteen of you, not twenty. Who is missing?"

"Eh, yes, to pulped wood, if he interferes with me. I shall tell him," Pierre declaimed among his cronies.

Some one was shouting, "Eh!" The crowd suddenly grew silent. "Georges Racine's ship. Lost in the ice. Georges and his boy." Eh, there would be no fight after all. It was lucky Georges had not left Marie a widow.

Pierre stopped in the midst of his bragging and stumbled homeward. It was almost as if Georges had bested him after all.

Strategic Sentiment.
"When Josh went to school," remarked Farmer Cornstassel, "I gave him a fountain pen and made him promise to use it every time he wrote to us dear old folks at home."

"That was nice and sentimental." "Kind of practical, too. That fountain pen'll be wore out in a week or so, an' then Josh is goin' to find it slow an' troublesome to write home for more funds."—Washington Star.

No Substitute Offered
Say what you will about druggists offering something "just as good" because it pays better profit, the fact still stands that ninety-nine out of a hundred druggists recommend Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy, when the best medicine for diarrhoea is asked for, and do so because they know from what their customers say of it, that it can be depended upon.—Advertisement.

BIRDS AND CAT SPLIT HOUSE

Hitherto Bosom Friends Proclaim Feud at a Time When Only Kind-Hearted Feeling Should Prevail.

There is a feud still only a few weeks old, out in one of the Westchester towns that promises to develop into a vendetta as intense and deadly as anything that Breathitt county ever produced. The pity of the feud is that no one would ever have predicted it; no one took steps to forestall it.

The Bixbys and the Judds have been neighbors for more than six months and until recently relations had been friendly between the two families. Bixby and Judd come out from the city on the same train three or four nights a week and until last week took part in the best game of pitch in the commuters' league. Mrs. Bixby and Mrs. Judd were neighborly about such things as a little vinegar or enough olive oil for a French dressing.

But that is all over now. Bixby and Judd pass each other with laboriously achieved unconcern. There are no more informal visits from house to house. The Bixbys are talking seriously about selling their house, even at a sacrifice, that they may get into a more congenial atmosphere. The Judds are letting it be known that the neighborhood is in some ways an unpleasant one.

Love of nature really started it all. The Bixbys were unaware of the fact that Mrs. Judd was a bird lover. It is not always easy to identify a professional bird lover. Very often they give every indication of being normal persons. It is only when the annual migration starts that the bird lovers give themselves away.

That was when Mrs. Judd revealed her true character. As soon as the first robins appeared in the neighborhood she began to take the trouble of the birds to heart. It was a large order to worry about all the birds in town, but Mrs. Judd was conscientious.

There was Felix, for instance. Felix is the Bixby cat, a great tawny cat, highly decorative but not particularly respectable, and not familiar enough with bird lore to know that he shouldn't catch robins. He had been doing it for a long time; he did it one bright morning on the lawn in front of the Judd house.

Mrs. Judd went to the telephone. She called Mrs. Bixby. There were a few remarks, progressively icy. A complete silence. The feud began.

Felix, however, merely sat in the sun and cleaned up after his meal.

Life on Mars?
Mrs. our nearest neighbor, will be at the nearest possible point to us—85,000,000 miles—in 1924; but this year it got within 42,000,000 miles of the world.

On June 15, and the astronomers of the world eagerly trained their telescopes upon it. They did not discover much that they did not know before. They discerned masses of glistening white at the poles, which most of them think are composed of snow and ice, though some of them consider the patches to be a deposit of crystallized carbonic-acid gas. They also saw arcs of green, which may be seas. The same authority adds that the atmosphere appears to be so thin that living beings, if they exist on Mars, must be quite unlike anything that we know on earth.—Youth's Companion.

Gobelin Tapestries.
The Austrian government recently offered a collection of tapestries, chiefly Gobelins, as security for an American loan of $15,000,000. Gobelin tapestries, the most valuable, are still being made in Paris, says the Monitor Magazine.

Sixty master weavers are employed at the Gobelin looms, where in the days of Louis XIV 300 worked on tapestries for Sun King. The building is on the site of the medieval dye works of Philibert and Jean Gobelin.

Tapestries are now woven for French public buildings. Pieces that sold for $100 a century ago bring thousands today.

A Guilty Conscience.
"The spirit of your departed wife would like to speak to you," said the medium.

"You needn't bother about bringing us face to face, ma'am," replied the client in some trepidation. "Just say I'm well and I hope she's the same. You might add that I miss her something dreadful."

"I'll deliver your message."

"Thanks, ma'am. And if you don't mind, I'll just pay the fee and be on my way. Maggie's been dead two years and during that time I'm afraid I've done things she wouldn't approve of."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Italians Are Exploiting India.
The Italians are looking to India for a possible field of trade expansion. There have been recently established in that country six scholarships open for young men of good commercial preparation to be sent for a year's experience on the staff of business firms already established in India.

The Difference.
Crawford—The taiser is said to have received a million for his book of memoirs.

Crabshaw—No wonder he stopped sawing wood and saying nothing.—New York Sun.

Free to Brag of It.
Mr. Bucks—Yes, I've had a rather prosperous career. During the war I made my money out of lend.

Mr. Fewrox—Gee! And got away with it! Most men get locked up for making lend dollars.

The Ideal Purgative
As a purgative, Chamberlain's Tablets are the exact thing required. Strong enough for the most robust, mild enough for children. They cause an agreeable movement of the bowels without any of that terrible griping. They are easy and pleasant to take and agreeable in effect.—Advertisement.

Possibly the reason taxes are not reduced, is because public officials fear the people couldn't recover from the shock.

A "Four" That Sets a New Standard
The 1923 Buick Four Touring—$885

In beauty of appearance, dependability and economy of operation the Buick four-cylinder, five-passenger Touring has established an entirely new standard for four-cylinder cars.

Its low body with its clean, straight lines, accentuated by the high radiator and straight hood, give it a long, racy appearance that is new to cars of its class. Massive crown fenders add to this distinction, as do the snug-fitting, shapely top and the handsome drum-type head and cowl lamps.

And with this beauty has come a new riding comfort. The seats are deep and low with full leg room in both compartments. The steering column has been changed in position to increase driving ease and the gear shift lever has been raised to meet the driver's hand. A transmission lock, a windshield adjustable from the inside, and a transmission-driven speedometer likewise are among the many new refinements of this model.

Material changes also have been made in motor, chassis and body construction which contribute still further to the wonderful performance record characteristic of Buick cars for twenty years.

Distinctive Head Lamps
Drum-type head light and parking lamps are among the new refinements of all 1923 Buick models, both four and six.

The Buick Line for 1923 comprises fourteen models: Four—2 Pass. Roadster, $805; 5 Pass. Touring, $885; 5 Pass. Coupe, $1175; 5 Pass. Sedan, $1395; 6 Pass. Touring Sedan, $1325; Sixes—2 Pass. Roadster, $1175; 5 Pass. Touring, $1195; 5 Pass. Touring Sedan, $1395; 5 Pass. Sedan, $1595; 4 Pass. Coupe, $1395; 7 Pass. Touring, $1375; 5 Pass. Sedan, $2195; Sport Roadster, $1055; Sport Touring, $1175; Prices f. o. b. Flint. Ask about the G. M. A. C. Purchase Plan, which provides for Deferred Payments.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Johanna Maass, nee Lips-teuer, was born in Wolow, Ger-many, on the 29th of November, 1859. In her infancy, she was bap-tized and later confirmed in the Lutheran faith. In early youth, she left the old country, immigrating to America and coming to Redford, Michigan. On the 14th of January, 1883, she was united in marriage with Charles Maass, also of Redford, at Dearborn, Michigan. The first three years of their married life were spent in Redford. She then moved to Livonia township with her hus-band, where they resided all these years, until this spring they came to Plymouth to spend their remain-ing days. The deceased became ill with pneumonia and after a short illness of about one week, departed this life on Friday morning, Septem-ber first, at the age of 62 years, 9 months and 2 days. She leaves to mourn their loss, her husband, Charles Maass, one son, William, a brother, Herman, and a sister, Mrs. Ida Gau, as well as a large number of other relatives and friends.

The deceased was a member of the Lutheran church during her whole life, being a member of St. Paul's Lutheran church of Livonia, for the last 14 years. As such she made diligent use of the means of Grace, the Word, and Sacraments. Through faith in the Saviour Jesus Christ, whom these Means of Grace bring to us, we hope she now enjoys what here she believed. With this, as our comfort, she was laid to rest in Riverside cemetery to await the great day of Resurrec-tion. Interment took place on Tues-day afternoon, September 5th, from the home on Farmer street, and Schrader Bros. Funeral Home, Rev. Oscar J. Peters, Pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church of Livonia Center, officiating.

LIVONIA LUTHERAN CHURCH
There will be no services in the Lutheran church at Livonia Center, on Sunday, September 10th, as the pastor preaches at the Mission field at Clarenceville, in the afternoon.

PROSECUTOR VOORHIES ESTABLISHES TRAFFIC DEPARTMENT.

Paul W. Voorhies, Prosecuting At-torney, has expressed his eagerness to further the present campaign for safer highways in Wayne county by establishing in the Prosecuting At-torney's office a traffic department un-der the immediate direction of Assistant Prosecutor John V. Brennan. This is the first time that a distinct department of that office dealing exclusively with traffic acci-dents has ever been established, and it is confidently expected that it will result in bringing to justice automo-bile drivers who are criminally neg-ligent, and who operate their vehicles without respect for the lives and safety of others. A thorough inves-tigation of every serious traffic ac-cident will be made by Mr. Brennan, and in cases where the facts show sufficient evidence on the part of the driver prosecutions for manslaughter, negligent homicide or reckless driv-ing will be instituted.

"An automobile in the hands of a reckless driver becomes a dangerous weapon," said Mr. Voorhies, "and I am determined to use the full power of the prosecuting attorney's office to rid the highways of this county of those motorists who constantly threaten the lives of others. I am confident that the new traffic depart-ment of this office under Mr. Bren-nan's direction, will show results in putting respect for the law into the hearts of automobile drivers."

Mr. Voorhies is a candidate for re-election at the primaries to be held September 12th, having served as prosecuting attorney since January 1st, 1921. His experience as former assistant prosecuting attorney and chief assistant prosecuting attorney, cover a period of six years. He was born and raised in Plymouth, and has practiced law in Wayne county for over twenty years.

WOMEN THE CHIEF WORKERS

In Welsh Community That Was Founded by Flemings, Gentle Sex Shoulders Life's Responsibilities.

About twenty miles up the marvel-ous harbor of Milford, in Wales, is a little village tucked away in a creek. Here live and die a small settlement of people whose ancestors were Flemish.

In the reign of Henry II, a band of weavers was sent over from Flanders and installed in Haverfordwest castle. They were engaged to make cloth for the robes of the land.

In the castle they toiled for many years until at last, either tired of work or forgotten by their employers, they left the dreary prison fortress and settled in a small tract of land about eight miles away.

Although many years have passed, the people still keep the customs of their forefathers. The women's dress is but a slight variation of the dress worn by the Welsh in the olden days.

The women do all the important work. It is no unusual thing to see the women in the courtyard of their villages preparing the culm (a mixture of clay and coal used for fuel in Pem-broke-shire and the man lounging against the wall of the house.

In all things, the woman shoulders the responsibilities of life. Before the marriage, the bride-to-be prepares for the struggle of living. Her trade de-pends upon the possession of a small rowing boat.

To get together sufficient money to buy one, she brews many casks of beer. All her friends are invited to her home to drink the beer, for which they pay. The stancher the friend, the larger the quantity bought. When the beer is sold the boat is bought and the wedding feast is prepared.

Then comes the hard daily round for the girl. Every morning she goes out in the boat and returns with a load of shrimps and cockles. These are put into pans which are strapped on the sides of a donkey. With another pannier on her back and a small basket on her arm she trudges into the nearest town, where she hawks her wares from door to door.

How the husband spends his day is secret history! It is hoped that like a dutiful man he prepares the dinner for his tired wife. Perhaps the vege-tables and a piece of bacon, which complete the evening meal, are the result of his day's work.—Buffalo Ex-press.
