"A DOCTOR QUICK"

What would we do without physicians? Some of us call a doctor when Baby has the slightest cold. Others wait until Sonny falls from the apple tree and breaks a leg. A doctor officiates both at the beginning and the end of life.

But not the wisest physician in all the country round about can tell where life comes from. Those who have thought most deeply have but one answer:

GOD

The man who throughout life permits God to guide him, gets the most out of life in happiness and satisfaction, and puts the most into it.

Learn through regular church attendance what God has for you.

CASS BENTON DIES AT FARM HOME

WAYNE COUNTY TAX EXPERT AND FOR MANY YEARS A PUBLIC OFFICIAL OF THE STATE AND COUNTY.

Cassius R. Benton, one of Wayne county's most prominent citizens, died at his farm home between Plymouth and Northville, on the Plymouth road, early Monday morning, after an illness of nearly a year. He was sixty years of age. The funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon. Interment took place in Riverside cemetery, Plymouth.

We take the following from the Detroit News:

"Cassius R. Benton was born in 1862 on a farm half a mile from Northville, on the Plymouth road, and he lived there all his life. On the same farm his father was born. It was government forest when his grandfather acquired it nearly 90 years ago, the patent for the original transfer being signed by President John Quincy Adams. The first Michigan postoffice west of Dearborn was on the Benton farm, for the location was settled before the founding of Jackson, or Grand Rapids, or Saginaw, or Flint, or any other of the larger cities of the state, Detroit excepted; and nearly a decade before Michigan was admitted to statehood.

LONG PUBLIC LIFE.

"Cass Benton, as he was always known, was educated in the Northville Union District school and at a business college in Detroit. His first public office was highway commissioner of Plymouth township, to which he was elected in 1897. A year later he was elected to the same position in Northville township, which the legislature had recently created. In 1899 he was elected supervisor of Northville township for the first of five consecutive terms. His last term he was the unanimous choice of the Wayne County board of supervisors for its chairman.

"In 1905 he was appointed one of the three members of the first road commission of Wayne county, which started the county's road-building program. The other two members were Henry Ford and Edward N. Hines; the latter a member of the board continuously since.

"Mr. Benton was elected to the legislature for the Northville district in 1894, and was re-elected two years later. In both legislatures in which he served he was one of the House leaders. Not many former members ranked with him as a clear and forceful debater and none surpassed him. When he entered on his second term he resolved not to introduce any bills, but to devote his energies to pressing for passage good bills introduced by others and helping to block their bad ones. He said at the time that there were altogether too many new laws proposed at every session.

FAMED AS TAX EXPERT.

"Mr. Benton was, in 1907, elected president of the State Association of Supervisors; and at about the same period was a member of the Wayne county board of poor commissioners. From 1909 to 1912, he was deputy register of deeds for Wayne county. Then, for two terms, he was Wayne county's one representative in handling the county's assessments before the State Board of Equalization. In 1914, he presented so convincing a case that the state board reduced Wayne's equalization from $928,000.00 to $707,000.00. He made four equalizations of Wayne county in two and a half years and against none of the four did a single member of the 81 supervisors' board of 61 members protest.

"Practically all of Mr. Benton's public activities were along the line of tax matters. He possessed a most accurate and comprehensive knowledge of tax values not only of Wayne county, but of the entire state, and when Gov. Sleeper, in 1917, appointed him a member of the State Tax Commission for a term of six years, the appointment was widely commended.

"Mr. Benton, in 1892, married Miss Sophia L. Lanier, who survives her husband.

Charles Chappell and Arnold Frey are attending the M. A. C. at Lansing, this year.

HAS LEASED THE PENNIMAN ALLEN BUILDING

Harry R. Lush has taken a lease of the Penniman Allen theatre, auditorium and bowling alleys. Mr. Lush will continue the same policies of management that has made the Penniman Allen theatre, bowling alleys and dance auditorium one of the very best conducted amusement places in the county, and which Plymouth can be justly proud of. Nothing but the very best pictures that money can buy have been shown in the past, and Mr. Lush will continue to maintain this same high standard of entertainments in the future, at this popular playhouse.

One of the big numbers that has been booked by Mr. Lush, is Norma Talmadge in "The Eternal Flame." This picture drew great crowds last week at the Capitol theatre, Detroit. This picture comes to the Penniman Allen theatre, October 17-18. There will be no advance in prices, the same Saturday and Sunday prices will prevail.

PLYMOUTH AT THE NORTHVILLE FAIR

FOUR HUNDRED AUTOS WERE IN THE BIG PARADE LAST WEEK THURSDAY; MANY CARS BEAUTIFULLY DECORATED.

Plymouth day at the Northville fair last week Thursday was a great success in every particular. Business in Plymouth was generally suspended at the noon hour—business places and factories closing for a half holiday. The big parade, under the direction of Capt. Edward Denniston and F. D. Schrader, marshals of the day, formed around Kellogg park and promptly at 12:30, the procession got under way for the fair grounds. As the procession passed the depot, a count of the cars in the line was made, and the number counted was 403. On arrival at the fair grounds, the procession was led by the two marshals, mounted on horses. The Plymouth police department with twelve officers in uniform, in command of Chief George W. Springer were next in order. They were followed by the Millard Band, the Plymouth Fire department with the fire truck, and then came the long line of autos with the decorated cars leading. It was a most imposing sight as the gayly decorated cars passed the grandstand on their way around the race track, and the large crowd already in the stand and on the grounds, loudly cheered their approval. Northville people were very appreciative of the splendid showing made by their neighbors of Plymouth and the interest they had shown in making the day the great success that it was, and the fair officials extended every courtesy and attention that made the visit to the fair a most pleasant one for all.

We are not going to try and give a description of the many finely decorated cars that were in the procession, but it was certainly a most creditable showing, indeed. The Chamber of Commerce, under whose auspices the parade was staged, are deserving of much credit for the success in which everything was carried out.

The following business concerns were represented in the parade: Schrader Bros., Central Meat Market, Huston & Co., Conner Hardware Co., Blank & Baker, A. H. Dibble & Son, Blank Bros., Plymouth United Savings Bank, C. G. Draper, Calvin Whipple, Penniman Allen Theatre, Auditorium and Bowling Alleys, R. W. Shingleton, Gayde Bros., Daisy Mfg. Co., Markham Air Rifle Co., Ross & Sutherland, W. T. Pettigill, F. Reiman & Son, A. M. Johnson, C. Heide, Jewell, Blach & McCordie, Beyer Pharmacy, Plymouth Motor Sales Co., George Richwine, Fred Orr, Sanitary Meat Market, J. H. Patterson, G. B. Crumie, Allison-Rachelidor Motor Sales, Eckles & Goldsmith, L. I. Ball, Felix Freydl, Oliver Martin, Hillman & Rathburn, Plymouth Elevator Co., Smith's Cigar Store, Hovey's Candy, Star, Plymouth Auto Supply Co., R. E. Parrott, Charles Hadley, Woodworth's Bazaar, D. A. Holloway, Plymouth Mail.

Represented in the parade were also the public schools, board of education, village commission, village water department, village meter department and G. A. R.

One of the features of the parade that caused much merriment, was the turnout of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Robinson. Mr. Robinson drove a small pony hitched to an old buggy, and both wore costumes to represent a period of many years ago.

PLYMOUTH HIGH

Plymouth defeated Northville at the Northville fair, last Thursday. The game was the first of the season, and marked the start for the "Rocks." The team were quite evenly matched as to weight, but Plymouth was far superior on defense and offense. The game proceeded as follows:

In the third quarter, Stevens made another touchdown by receiving a long pass from Mitchell, and running a race with one of Northville's players.

In the fourth quarter, W. Seger broke up one of Northville's passes, and ran for a touchdown, which spelled victory for Plymouth.

The line-up was as follows:
C.—T. Strasen (Capt.)
R. G.—Williams.
L. G.—Richwine.
R. T.—Sayles.
L. T.—M. Strasen.

NOW SHE CAN VOTE

The political campaign is now warming up all over the country and candidates with outstretched hands go smiling through the land. They stop us in the lanes, and tell us about it in the blacksmith shop. They have been exhibiting themselves at the county fairs and the ice cream socials. They are cheerful and optimistic over their chances—but they are not entirely sure and certain in their eyes. For Ma, as well as Pa, is on the voting list this year; and Sis is going to vote, and her vote counts just as much as Bud's.

And the ladies, heaven bless 'em, are to some extent an unknown quantity to the man who looks for office. Of course he has ladies in his own home, but the chances are he is not entirely sure and certain how they are going to vote. And if he doesn't know what his own womankind may do, how can he guess at the feminine vote in general? Poor candidate! He can't tell just how properly wet or dry he should be. Should he carry a flask on his hip and a rose in his hand? Should he stuff one pocket with cigars, and another with chocolate bonbons? Alas, who is there to tell him! He is up against a new thing and there are no traditions to guide him. He has a shrewd fear that the ladies will not be as easy to string along as the man voter, with whose ways he is more familiar.

The time was when the average Plymouth man smiled if a woman appeared in the midst of a political conversation and appeared to be interested in what was said. But its different, now that she can vote, and no one knows that any better than the fellows who are chasing after an office.

IT WOULD HELP HERE

We believe Plymouth merchants in particular and our citizens in general could profit by following the example of the town of Yuma, Colo. Recently the business men there passed the hat and quickly secured enough money to pay for printing several thousand copies of a little "booster" sheet, which was sent out by citizens in their letters, wrapped in packages of goods sold to rural residents, and broadcasted in many other ways, none of which cost any money. The booster sheet went on to say that Yuma believes in educating its children; believes in trading at home, and always has a welcome hand for the stranger who cares to make the town his home. The fact that Yuma residences are pretty and comfortable, her streets improved and always in good condition, and that taxes are as low as in any other community in the country, all served to interest those into whose hands the little circular fell. It has been a big ad and one that has created a favorable impression. And a few cents from several citizens was sufficient to defray the cost of several thousand copies of it. It has helped Yuma—why wouldn't the same thing help here?

TRIBUTE TO AMERICA

It was a graceful tribute paid to the United States that Sec. Hughes heard recently as he prepared to board a ship for his return to this country from Brazil. A committee of state-men from that country told him: "If the United States determines there shall be no more war, there will be no more war—as you are the most powerful nation in the world." That is a big responsibility, besides being a big compliment. If that is the way Brazil feels about it, it is a hundred to one that her attitude is quite general. How are we going to live up to such a tribute? This is a country where in many instances the man who talks loudest is heard and the rest, no matter what they may have to say, are overlooked. Performance counts more than talk in the world today, and we've got to keep on demonstrating that we are worth the confidence, and entitled to the high compliments that are paid us by such countries as Brazil.

PLYMOUTH WINS IN JUDGING CONTEST

The Northville fair, on Thursday, September 28th, held three student judging contests, open to students from the nearby schools in which agriculture is taught. Teams were entered from Plymouth, Monroe, Howell and Ypsilanti, in the judging of live stock, corn and apples.

In live stock, all competing boys were given twenty minutes to place four Oxford sheep, and give their reasons, as if they were the judge placing them for ribbons. When they were finished, the judge, Mr. Mackay of the M. A. C., gave the correct placings. In the same way the boys then judged Holstein cattle, Duroc-Jersey hogs and Belgian horses.

Meanwhile, the apple judging contestants had been required to name the varieties of apples provided, then to award places with reasons, to four plates each of Snows, Ben Davis and McIntosh Reds.

The corn judges had to place four ten-ear samples of yellow dent corn in one group; another four for the second and for their third group, four samples of white cap dent. The apples were correctly placed by Mr. Flint, and the corn by Mr. Rainey, judges in these departments.

For the school winning first place in stock judging, the Plymouth United Savings Bank offered a 14-inch silver trophy cup, to be the permanent property of the school winning it three years. Plymouth will hold it this year, as their team, composed of Herbert Miller, Carl Ash and Donald Beyer scored a total of 884 points, averaging 737 in each part. Ypsilanti was second, with 801 points or a .668 average, while Howell was a close third, with 777 points, or an average of .648. A medal for individual first place was won by Herbert Miller, and for second by Carl Ash.

In corn and fruit, the Northville Fair Association offered silver trophy cups to the school winning first place this year. The cup was won by a team of three Plymouth girls, Iris Palmer, Clara Hauk and Faith Wolfe, with scores of .891, .850 and .733 respectively, a total of 240 points. Miss Palmer received the medal for highest individual and Miss Hauk for second. Howell's team was second, with 195 points and Ypsilanti's third, with 157.

The corn cup was won by the Monroe team, with averages of 819, 803 and 746, respectively, totaling 473 points; Plymouth second with 423; Howell third with 419, and Ypsilanti fourth with 415 points. The highest individual point winner was from Howell, and second place medal goes to a Monroe boy.

Particular credit for the success of the stock contest is due to Floyd Northrup, who gave his personal attention and help both in planning and carrying out the plans. To the judges, Messrs. Mackay, Flint and Rainey, also, the appreciation of the competing schools is due.

The Fair Association has promised to make these contests a permanent part of the fair and it is hoped that all the schools will be back for another effort next year.

FARM SHORT COURSES FIT ECONOMIC NEEDS

YOUNG MEN TURN TO CONDENSED TRAINING AT M. A. C. WHEN FINANCES BAR FULL COLLEGE COURSE

That special winter short courses in agriculture will be in greater demand than ever before at the Michigan Agricultural College this year, because of the fact that financial conditions have made it impossible for many of the young men of the state to start regular four-year college courses, is the opinion of Dean R. S. Shaw, of the M. A. C. agricultural division.

The short courses, which run for periods not exceeding sixteen weeks for each of two winters, combine a thorough practical education in different phases of agriculture with the advantages of minimum expense and short time of residence study. The special courses are designed especially for men who are unable to take the four-year courses, and are said, to provide an unusually fortunate educational opportunity for those who are held back from regular college work by present industrial conditions. They are open to all men and women of the state over sixteen years of age, whether or not they have completed high school training. At least a grammar school education is considered advisable, however, in order that the training may be most effective.

The sixteen weeks' course in general agriculture opens on October 30 this year. Another course in general agriculture, covering a two year period also, but running for only eight weeks a year, will open on January 1. Other special courses include a twelve weeks' course in Dairy Production and a similar course in Dairy Manufactures, each starting January 1; three eight weeks' courses in Horticulture, Poultry and Farm Engineering, respectively, opening January 1; a two weeks' Market Milk course opening Feb. 26; a two weeks' Ice Cream Making course, March 11; and four one month courses in Truck and Tractor work, the first of which starts on November 27 this year. Information regarding the courses may be had by writing E. B. Hill, director M. A. C. Winter Courses in Agriculture, East Lansing, Mich.

BAPTIST NOTES

Last Sunday was a good day at the First Baptist church. The pastor had been serving two years, and gave his annual sermon. Text, Job 16:19. "Behold my witness is in heaven and my record is on high," and spoke of the things the church is trying to do, and that with cooperation and God's blessing, we may expect the extension of the work of the church.

The Sunday-school rally gave a good tone to the school—a large number present and a generous offering. The program was arranged by Miss Alta Hamill. Mrs. Sarah Bartlett, Miss Alta Hamill and Mrs. Harry Sayles gave readings. Mrs. Beals class gave a class song. Olivia Williams gave a solo, and Misses Annie Grainger and Alta Hamill a duet. Alton Sayles also gave a solo. It was a happy occasion. Everyone was invited to come each Sunday during the year.

The B. Y. P. U. of the Wayne Association will meet here October 17th at 7:30 p. m. The addresses will be given by the president, Mr. Creed, traveling salesman; Rev. Morgan Williams, state director, and Rev. Colman, of Highland Park Baptist church. The Glee Club of the First Baptist church of Pontiac, will be present and assist in the music.

EPISCOPAL NOTES

Next Sunday morning, E. E. Piper will be with us and will give a special address on "Religious Education." Mr. Piper is superintendent of the Diocese Board of Religious Education, and his address will be most interesting and instructive. Mr. Piper will also meet with the church-school after the service, and will hold a conference with the teachers after the school.

All the churches and missions in the diocese are holding parish conferences now to plan and lay out the work of missions and churches for the coming winter months. The conference of St. John's, Plymouth, will take place about the second week in November, and the Ven. Archdeacon Widdifield will be the leader; the exact date will be announced later.

Bishop Charles D. Williams will make his annual visitation to Plymouth about the second week in December, at which time he will also hold a confirmation service. The confirmation class is now being formed, and those who wish to be confirmed are asked to hand in their names at once to Franklin Gibson, or to any member of the vestry.

A special meeting of the vestry was held last Friday evening to consider the advisability of voting a certain sum annually to enable our missioner, Franklin L. Gibson, to devote his whole time to the work of the church. The meeting was presided over by Archdeacon Widdifield, and it was proposed that Mr. Gibson should serve the parish of Plymouth with Wayne. The vestry of Plymouth voted an annual sum agreeable to the archdeacon and the proposition is also being placed before the Wayne vestry by Archdeacon Widdifield, who has every reason to believe that Wayne will also vote on an annual sum. If the proposition is carried through, we hope to have Mr. Gibson a resident of Plymouth.

SCHOOL NOTES

The school notes this week are furnished by Wave Cady.

Plymouth won the foot ball game at Northville fair, last week Thursday, 20 to 0. Yea, team; fight 'em; fight 'em.

Plymouth will play at Royal Oak, this week Friday. Go and help the team win.

Two hundred seventeen were boosters last week.

Foot ball tickets will be on sale this week. Let's all buy one.

Girl's Glee Club is organized, with twenty-six members.

People taking the study of farm crops have taken field trips to select good examples of field corn for the judges.

The girls' apple judging team visited the Simons orchards for the purpose of selecting specimens of apples.

Plymouth High school sent stock, apple and corn judging teams to the Northville fair. The first two won silver cups for the first place. Returns from the corn judging contest are not yet in.

The Aggie Club held its regular meeting, Wednesday noon, with new officers presiding. Six new members were taken in, and there are still other names to be voted on. Mr. Ross was also elected honorary member. A noon day feed was decided on for October 18th, and of course, there were no objections. Last year was the first year the Aggie Club has been in existence.

So far it has proved a great success. English 12 are studying Franklin's Autobiography and the Sketch Book of Irving.

Report cards will be out next Wednesday.

Miss Seller's tenth grade English classes are learning declamations preparatory to a contest.

Maria Hauk, '23, Etha Wiseley, '22, and Louise Spicer, '25, gave demonstrations at the Northville fair. Clara Hauk received first prize on corn flake macaroons and butter scotch, and second on white cake; Etha Wiseley second on drop macaroons; while Louise Spicer received first on graham bread, raisin tea cakes, and second on cocoa drop cakes, chocolate layer cake and hermits.

Sixth grade girls are jumping the rope at present in physical training, and are using the rope jumping rhymes.

Sixth grade English classes are studying the parts of speech.

The following first grade pupils were neither absent nor tardy during the month of September: Sheldon Baker, Daniel Carmichael, Catherine Compton, Evelyn Fisher, Catherine Dunn, Wilbur Kincaid, Johnny Kuhn, Coraline Rathburn, Berthold Lemley, Geneva Robinson, David Mather, Jane Nash, Raymond Pelkey, Lucile Wileiden, Jack Smith.

The following second grade children have not been absent nor tardy during September: Helen Compton, Steve Dudeh, Raymond Ford, Mary Jane Hamilton, Margaret Cline, Alice Lee, Ralva Shilling, Howard Schryer, Gladys Zietach.

Mrs. Guy Weeks was a second grade visitor, last week Wednesday morning.

LIVONIA LUTHERAN CHURCH

There will be no services at the Lutheran church of Livonia Center, next Sunday, October 8, 1922. The pastor preaches at a mission festival at Bay City on that date.

AROUND ABOUT US

Harold Seger has gone to Plymouth to play in the theatre there. He expects to take a night course in the Detroit Conservatory of Music. Harold has music in him and we are glad that he is to have this opportunity.—Brighton Argus.

The village of Redford has enjoyed a building boom the past summer. Several fine new business blocks have been built, a new Masonic temple and church are under construction and many new homes have been erected in that thriving town.

Announcement has been made of the gift of four additional state parks in Oakland county. The donors are Mr. and Mrs. Howard Bloomer of Detroit. The sites are as follows: No. 1 consists of 38 acres on the south side of Middle Straits lake in the township of West Bloomfield. No. 2 is 115 acres just east of the village of Commerce, on the Commerce road and extends to the westerly end of Lower Straits lake. It adjoins the Dodge Bros. park thus making a park tract of 195 acres. No. 3 is 100 acres north of the village of Oakwood. No. 4 is 24 acres of woodland on the northeast side of Grass lake in White Lake township.

The DeGarmo herd of Shorthorn cattle, which has been of high repute among state breeders for half a century, more or less, was closed out this week. Henry Ford was the purchaser taking twenty-four head, which, it is stated, were placed on his estate at Dearborn. This takes the entire herd with the exception of three or four head which are to be taken to the DeGarmo farm at Hickory Ridge. Mr. Ford's collector also took a quantity of old farm tools and small implements of various kinds, long since out of use but kept as relics by Mr. DeGarmo. Mr. Ford's interest in old farm implements and household appliances is well known as shown by his exhibit at the state fair this year.—Milford Times.

PRESBYTERIAN NOTES

Another fine program of music was given last Sunday afternoon at four o'clock. The program was as follows:

Organ Prelude, "Nocturne in D flat," Brooks Day—Miss Evelyn Thomas.

"Saviour Breathe an Evening Blessing"—Choir.

Invocation, with response by Choir. "Son of My Soul"—Hymn by Congregation.

Solo, "Cast Thy Bread on the Waters," Joseph Roecker—C. E. Stevens.

Scripture Reading, Exodus 15:1-21. Duet, "Calm as the Night," Carl Gotze—Mr. and Mrs. Harold Roberts.

Sermon, "The Inspiration of Music," "Jesus, the Very Thought of Thee"—Hymn by Congregation.

The Psalter, Selection 58. "Hark! Ten Thousand Harps"—Hymn by Congregation.

Benediction.

Organ Postlude, "Vexilla Regis," George E. Whiting—Miss Evelyn Thomas.

Miss Ruth G. Payne of Battle Creek, gave a very beautiful solo at the morning service. Next Sunday there will be an anthem by the quartette. Plans are being made for a vested choir of young people for the evening service.

Such singing as we had at Sunday-school, last Sunday, is seldom heard outside of a great convention. Much credit is due to the leader, James Stephens of Detroit. Let us all plan to remain next Sunday to the opening exercises. Singing is healthful.

PERRINSVILLE

The L. A. S. will hold their annual bezaar and chicken-pie supper, Oct. 21st. Everybody welcome.

The Ladies' Aid society will meet with Mrs. Dave McCracken, October 11. Come one, come all.

Rev. William Wise commenced his new year at this place, Sunday. Not many were out to church because he was not expected until next Sunday.

USE THE ELBOWS

Thin People Have a Natural Defensive-Weapon.

Provided by Nature as Protection Against the Aggressions of the Plump, According to Helen.

She was what you might call sylph-like. Or if you prefer the less poetic and more modern term she possessed the popular pencil silhouette. Those of her friends built on more generous lines openly counseled her against the dangers of frail constitutions and mentioned the lurking evils of tuberculosis, indigestion and nervous prostration, says a New York Sun writer.

Secretly in their heart of hearts they admitted they would willingly have endured all three to be able to wear a tuxedo suit with the smartness that was hers.

It was Mabel, she of the generous curves and placid disposition, that finally drew fire.

"Helen," said Mabel as she dipped into the chocolate creams and then dropped a juicy morsel back with a hungry sigh. "I think you ought to put on more weight. It really is sinful for a girl to go around causing as much envy in the hearts of others as you do. Now, when I was up in Boston I got a menu from a hotel that tells what you should eat to get fat and what you should eat to get thin. You can have the 'how to get fat' column if you want it."

The sylphlike one sighed a mournful sigh. "Mabel," she confessed, "you might as well know the truth. I positively gorge on such fattening things as cream, butter sauce, bananas, potatoes and bacon. I naturally prefer string beans, sour salad dressings, lemonade and water ices. But I pass them all up. Because I (long ago got over any desire to be thin."

She arose and began to pace up and down the room in the restless manner peculiar to thin people. Her voice rose to a tremulous pitch.

"Do you know," she demanded indignantly, "what thin people have to suffer? Do you?"

Mabel, who had succumbed to the temptation of the chocolates, shook her head blankly.

"Just take the subway trains and trolley cars that have those little seats built for two persons—two medium-size people. If a little person like me is sitting in one of them, what happens? At the next corner a woman or man who could qualify for Dumping Dora in the circus gets on. And of course, makes for the seat next to the little thin person. You find yourself simply squashed by the weight of the person next to you. A fat person, I have noticed, looks eagerly around for a vacant seat beside a thin person, because they know it's the only way they can ride with any comfort. I have seen them stand rather than take a seat next to an average person or one who rivals their weight."

"Must remember that," said Mabel, temporarily ceasing to munch her chocolate drop. "Never thought of it before."

"Well, if you try it let me warn you that the poor little scrawny person may take preventive measures," said the slender Helen, and there was fire in her eyes as she spoke.

"That said" queried the plump one and her two held out to scorn and doubt.

"You bet it is. Let me demonstrate." The slender one sat down on the couch beside her friend. "Now, when any of these generously proportioned souls plant themselves down beside me in the train and appropriate their half of the seat and three-quarters of mine I simply manage to fold my arms. That makes my elbows stick out. And all thin people have sharp elbows. They need 'em. They are the only weapon of offense and defense the poor things have."

"And most plump people love comfort. So after they have had the elbows of our little thin helpless creature boring into their tender ribs for a few minutes they decide to occupy only their own half of the seat or else find a more comfortable one."

How Better Than Pills
The question has been asked—In what way are Chamberlain's Tablets superior to the ordinary cathartic and liver pills? Our answer is, they are easier and more pleasant to take and their effect is so gentle that one hardly realizes that it is produced by a medicine. They not only move the bowels but improve the appetite and strengthen the digestion.—Advertisement.

DECEIVED BY STABLE SCENT

Probably Green Will Never Know Why He Failed to Make a Firm Friend of Jones.

It was one night that Jones had given over to the whims of his wife and this particular evening she had picked out to visit the Greens on the hill. Now, Jones disliked Green for some reason, but Green insisted on cultivating his friendship for business reasons, so whenever they met Green would saluate low and strive in every way to win the pleasure of his neighbor.

If Jones' lawn looked as if it needed a watering, Green would suggest the use of his horse and go so far as to send his young son over to spray the plot, and if this or that was wrong on the hill, Jones was almost certain to receive some suggestions or assistance from Green.

When the Joneses arrived this evening, every attention was given them, according to a New York Sun writer. The mere allusion to any topic would send Green into spasms of eloquence, and for some reason or other Green picked on the discussion of horses. He ranged on the subject from colts to old mares and from pacers to trotters, and nags were delved into at great length. Histories were recited and the discourse fairly reeked with facts and figures.

Jones for his wife's sake made a good play at being extremely interested and listened intently for several hours. After they had gone Green told his wife, "I guess I got him going. I am certain to win him over now when I present my proposition to him. And do you know how I did it? I recognized the odor of an equestrian about him as soon as he stepped through the door and I talked horses to him all the time. Pretty clever, eh?"

But on their way home Mrs. Jones remarked, "I wonder why Mr. Green persisted in talking horses? Evidently he does not know that you are not interested in animals of any kind."

"I wonder myself why he tried to talk me deaf on that fool subject," mused Jones, "as he stepped on the accelerator and shot his car over a railroad crossing, swearing softly that Green never could interest him in any deal now. 'Unless he happened to get a whiff of that stable-smelling mange cure I'm putting on my scalp to keep my hair in and thought I was a riding master, or something,' he added."

Changes in a Great City.
Long ago, in a little church around the corner, a minister did all the talking, the deacons did the planning and the work, the men with the collection plates gathered up the pennies and the choir headed the war department, writes Katherine Negley in Judge.
The world turned around and around, the city moved a few blocks and times changed.

A motion-picture place bought the church property. The stars were the same type as the minister, the producers took care of the business end, the window cashiers gathered in the pennies and the authors of the plays objected to the changes made in their manuscript.

The city kept moving away, prices soared and times changed even more. Now a garage is on the site. The landlord gets more press notices than any star, and he gets them free; the manager takes care of the details, the mechanics take in the small change and the customers conduct a silent and invisible war on the prices charged.

So the scenery is merely changed and the same types are doing just about the same things.

T. R. in the Barber's Chair.
"I was in the old cabinet room with President Roosevelt one noon in June, 1902, when his barber brought in a skeleton reclining chair," writes H. H. Kohlssat, in the Saturday Evening Post. "Taking off his coat, but not his collar, the President reclined on the chair. The barber lathered his face and began shaving him, but Roosevelt did not stop talking.
"I said, 'He will cut you if you don't stop making faces and talking.' The look the knight of the razor gave me for even suggesting such a thing silenced me."
"Major Loeffler, an appointee of President Grant's, who had guarded the President's door ever since, announced, 'Secretary of State Hay and Mr. Balkes of the British embassy,' Roosevelt said, 'Show them into the library, major; will see them in a few minutes.'
"Without turning his face he said, 'I know what they want. John Hay has brought Balkes to thank me for putting the flag at half-mast on the White House when old Pauncetote died. I didn't do it because he was the British ambassador, but because he was a d—n good fellow.'"

Toletoy's Daughters in Need.
One of the last pleas made to me when I left Russia was for at least one food remittance a month and some small sums of money for two daughters of Toletoy, who are permitted to maintain their father's home in the country as a public museum, but who are continually taking in young literary people and putting them to work around the grounds or in the library without sufficient funds to pay them or adequate food for themselves or their people.
I was informed that it would be foolish to give these ladies much at any one time, as they would use it in the relief and support of others. George Barr Baker writes in Bulletin of the American Relief Administration.

A Remarkable Record
Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has a remarkable record. It has been in use for colds, croup and whooping cough for almost half a century and has constantly grown in favor and popularity as its good qualities become better known. It is the standard and main reliance for these diseases in thousands of homes. The facts that it can always be depended upon and safe and pleasant to take are greatly in its favor when it is wanted for children.—Advertisement.

A COMMUNICATION

Plymouth, Mich., Oct. 3, 1922.

Your letter in last week's issue, to the effect that owing to the abundant crops, children should have an open basket of apples and other fruit to run to at will, is very commendable. Please let me tell you why the most of us do not.

In Detroit two weeks ago, Benton Harbor's best peaches were a glut on the Detroit market at $2.00 per bushel. I drove in the yard of a grower near Plymouth, where there were hundreds of bushels on the trees, and the ground was strewn with windfalls. The price quoted was $3.00 per bushel for the best. Only one auto party out of five that were there at the time I was, bought any peaches. And remember, this man had to buy baskets and truck to Detroit, and with this additional cost of 30c and 40c per bushel, sell in competition with the $2.00 Benton Harbor peaches.

Three or four weeks ago, we were paying 40c a peck out of the stores for potatoes, when they were 50c a bushel nearly all over the state in rural communities. But go to a farmer's house and ask for a bushel of potatoes (and some of them at least) will reason this way; they are 40c a peck at the stores, I will sell you at $1.50 a bushel. Not all farmers are profiteers to be sure, but after a fellow gets bit with store prices or higher, he quits looking around.

Now this same man who asked $1.50 at his door yard will truck say 20 bushels to Detroit at a cost of 25c per bushel and sell at 75c per bushel—net proceeds 50c per bushel. The huxter pays 75c and sells to the wholesaler (one profit). The wholesaler sells to the merchant (two profits.) The merchant pays truckage to Plymouth and adds his profit. It is no wonder the consumer has to pay three times what the farmer really nets from the first selling price.

What's the remedy? A market in Plymouth, the same as Ann Arbor has, where produce can be sold somewhere between what the farmer nets by trucking to Detroit and the actual Detroit market price. And bar anyone selling knowingly above Detroit market prices.

If the Board of Commerce don't want Plymouth to have the name of being the dearest place in Michigan to live in, they better get busy.

A market will not ruin stores' trade. The stores can buy so much cheaper by eliminating the haul to Detroit and back and the two other profits, that they can sell for much less and people will buy more at a reasonable price.

Until a market is established, no doubt it would be of mutual advantage for the farmer to advertise, and the Mail to carry a column headed, "Produce for Sale." Very little will need to be fed to hogs or go to waste if the town people know where it can be bought at a reasonable price. Mr. Farmer, put your prices in your ad. Put a price that you are not ashamed of on top of that bushel of windfalls by the road side. See if it don't sell. It pays to advertise.

Yours truly,
F. W. Hamill.

Today's Reflections

It has about reached the point in this country where only the man with money to burn can afford fire-water.

As a rule every man in Plymouth has plenty to keep his mind occupied, but he can still stop long enough to predict a cold winter.

One of the most dangerous callings in the world is calling the other man a liar.

We have sent Europe twenty-nine billion dollars. If any one man had that much in America he could afford to live at a hotel.

It's a pretty good thing for every boy in Plymouth to understand that the key to success fits the school-house door.

The pessimist puts two and two together and gets 4, but the optimist gets 22.

The world is anxiously waiting for some kind of dependable plan whereby it can reform some of its reformers.

The state of Vermont is advertising for a man to fill the job of calf inspector. In these days of short skirts it oughtn't to be hard to find a man willing to take the place.

It has always been our observation that a man's head swells when he gets stung by a political bee.

The Plymouth man who won't stop at anything gets farther than the man who won't start at anything.

Nothing tickles a dentist more than for some fellow to come along and start up a new candy store.

Here's our latest fashion hint for Plymouth women—Do not wear a taffeta dress when you are scrubbing the kitchen floor.

We see where steel railroad rails have dropped $3 a ton. But that doesn't help the Plymouth family that hasn't cultivated an appetite for steel rails.

It's a wise child who goes out of the room to laugh when the old man mashes his thumb.

The Point of View

By JUSTIN WENTWOOD

(© 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)

"I do wish you wouldn't keep interrupting me, Daisy," said the popular author. "Here I've got to complete this story by twelve o'clock and I can't think of a thing to write about."

"Oh, well, you needn't be so snappy," answered the popular author's pretty young wife. "I'm sure I don't want to trespass upon your valuable time."

She went out and slammed the door. Fired with desperation, the popular author leaped at his typewriter and began:

"It was all over. Their six months of married life had shown each conclusively that they were mismatched. Eric had done everything in his power to conciliate the beautiful creature to whom he had devoted his life, but all was in vain.

"Sometimes, indeed, he wondered if she could possibly be the woman he had loved so blindly, so devotedly, with such consuming passion—"

"Was it really consuming passion?" the popular author demanded of his machine. "Was it not just infatuation?"

And what was going to happen next? He must bring in a third man somehow. But who? How? Where? The popular author's fingers fell from the keys. The plot refused to come.

He looked up angrily as the door opened.

"I'm sure I don't wish to be a nuisance to you, Eric," said Daisy, "but, unless you're prepared to go without meat for supper somebody's got to go to the butcher's. I can't, unless you want the pie to be searched."

"D—n the butcher!" said Eric viciously.

"Well, that's the limit," answered Daisy. "That's the first time you've sworn at me, you monster."

"I didn't swear at you, I swore at the butcher."

"Oh, yes, you may have some particle of decent feeling left in you, but it isn't enough for me. I'm going home to mother, and you can let your old pipe burn," sobbed Daisy, giving the door one of those peculiar slams that impart the greatest amount of sound and vibration and the minimum of damage.

The popular author gritted his teeth and leaped at his typewriter again.

"With such consuming passion, she had turned into a bend, a slave-driver. She had no consideration for his work at all. And now she was going home to her mother."

He knew that he was glad. He had grown tired of her. Her presence drove him mad. He loved her no longer.

Was there another man? He was sure of it. He knew that she was pulling the wool over his eyes, but he laughed inwardly. Let her go—let her go forever.

She came into the room. "Have you anything to say to me, monster, before we part for all time?" she demanded.

"Only that I'll be glad to see the last of you," he answered. "Don't trouble to come back. I'm sailing for Paris tomorrow."

"What are you going to do in Paris?" she queried insistently.

"Forget that you ever existed in the smiles of the beauties of the Gay City," he replied.

"Wretch, that insult constitutes the last word!" she cried, and slammed the door. It was one of those peculiar slams that impart the greatest amount of sound and vi—

The door opened. Daisy came softly in and glided up to the popular author's desk.

"I've telephoned for the meat from Mrs. Higginson's," she said, "and—I'm sorry, dearest. I know I have been horrid to you, but I get so nervous with the housework. Won't you forgive me?"

The popular author turned from his machine. He caught Daisy in his arms and set her down on his knee. They kissed each other. They were very happy.

"I suppose I'll have to go or the pie will burn," said Daisy. "But we mustn't have any more quarrels, must we, darling?"

"Never again," answered the popular author.

"How are you getting on with your story, darling?"

"Oh, fairly well," the popular author answered. "I've just got to change the end a little."

When the door had closed softly behind her the popular author leaped like a demon at the typewriter.

"Forget that you ever existed in the smiles of the beauties of the Gay City," he replied.

She sank, half swooning, at his feet. "Oh, I can't bear it," she pleaded. "Forgive me, and I'll never make you angry again. Take me back, or I shall die!"

He raised her in his arms and put her down on his knee. "Darling, I was only speaking in bitterness," he answered. "There never was anybody but you."

Something Gets Reversed.
"A telephone girl always reminds me of a captured saint."
"Why?"
"There's a continual 'hello' around her head."

New Superior Chevrolet 5-Passenger Sedan
$860 f. o. b. Flint

THE IDEAL ALL-YEAR FAMILY AUTOMOBILE

The Chevrolet New Superior Model Sedan is the most sensational value of 1922 Motoring.

Never before has a car of this quality been offered at so low a price.

In beauty of design, high-grade workmanship and external and internal appointments this Fisher Body Sedan compares favorably with that of any closed car at any price.

To see it is to admire it. To sit within its comfortable, home-like interior is to want it. To realize its wonderful economy is to buy it. It is the most irresistible offering in the world of motoring.

Experience has proved that the closed car is the ideal for every day in the year. It is cool and clean in summer and provides the comfort of home in winter. Its owner is independent of snow, rain or cold. The famous Chevrolet power plant will carry the car through deep snow or soft mud, while the Sedan body protects the passengers from driving rain, flying snow and cold winds. The Chevrolet Sedan is the ideal family car when only one car is owned.

Its low cost makes it possible for families of moderate income to own both an open and a closed Chevrolet for less than the price of some open cars.

So They Were Married

By CLARA DELAFIELD

(C. 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)

"That's Mr. Rathway, cashier of our bank. Well preserved old gentleman, isn't he? That's Emily Rathway. Fine looking young woman! Yes, they were married last year. A very good catch—I mean match, for Emily.

"You see, Jim Bowker had been hanging around Emily for nearly seven years. When they began courting, Jim worked in Wessel's feed store for $18 a week, and Emily was clerking in the department store—Blum's department store; you'll see it on the next corner. Jim and Emily seemed struck by each other, but neither was any sort of catch—I mean match. Emily is rather plain, isn't she, though marriage has improved her. Jim? Oh, he's hanging around somewhere?

"Well, sir, Jim wasn't exactly what you might call a saver, and Emily, she wanted to get married, like any other young woman. It wasn't in any sense a love match, you understand. When folks have been courting for six years, if they aren't married, they never ought to be. But they'd sort of got used to each other, and they honestly meant to get married some day.

"Emily was ready on the drop of the hat. But Jim had never saved a cent, and there got to be some talk about Jim's running around with the youngest Eden girl. People used to twit Emily about it, and naturally she didn't like it. Also they were beginning to wonder how soon she and Jim would get married, and whether it was coming off at all. On February 14 somebody sent Emily a comic valentine—the old-maid kind. That stung. Emily grew rather desperate.

"Well, old Mr. Rathway had been a friend of the family for years. Widower for 20 years, no family, most of the money that exists in our town, etc. A splendid catch. But all the women had long ago stopped setting their caps for him. Couldn't catch him. He was a wily old bird. Jolly as a sandboy, and full of interest in life, and, as I was saying, he'd known Emily since she was a baby.

"And that's where the catch—I mean the match—came in. You see, he was suspicious as sin of all the old maids in town, but Emily—why, she was a baby. Emily was almost like his own child, the way he looked on her. He sure thought he was safe with Emily. Besides, wasn't there Jim Bowker?

"Emily went to him, I'm told, crying, and said Jim was running round with the Eden girl, and what was she to do. Old Mr. Rathway fell for her like a child.

"Do?" he shouted. "Make the darned young cuss jealous, of course. As long as he thinks he can have you whenever he wants you, why naturally he doesn't care to trouble. Make him think you're running round with somebody else."

"Oh, Mr. Rathway, it's all very well to say that," answered Emily, "but you know I couldn't play with a man's heart in that way. Now if it was you—oh, Mr. Rathway, won't you let Jim think it's you?"

"Now maybe she didn't use exactly those words, because there was no third party present to hear. But old Mr. Rathway fell for it—he sure did. And he took Emily to the next church social.

"No end of a stir that made, and the old gentleman began enjoying the fun, and, perhaps, too, he enjoyed having a pretty girl to go about with—fairly pretty, anyway—even at his time of life. Anyway, Emily led him on and led him on, and the next thing was that Joe Blodson caught 'em kissing under the elms.

"My, it run through the village like wildfire. And the next thing was Emily's going to Lawyer Jenks, heart-broken.

"My life's ruined from love for Mr. Rathway, who won't carry out his promise to marry me—she said, or words to that effect.

"Of course Lawyer Jenks was no fool; he knew as much as any one of us, and a little more, but the next thing was a breach-of-promise suit for $25,000.

"Well, old Mr. Rathway wasn't a fool, either. He loved his money, and he knew any jury in Travis county would soak him to the hilt, the old bloodsucker. And then—well, you see, as I was saying, Emily led him on and led him on, so that in the end he came to the conclusion that maybe he'd rather have a pretty young wife than lose $25,000, and be the laughing stock of the town.

"So—they were married last year. Makes him pretty stern, too, they say she does, but she looks after him, and I guess the old gentleman's never regretted the step he took. Of course he doesn't know all the town's wise to the affair.

"Jim? Oh, he's still hanging round Emily, at a respectful distance. Old Mr. Rathway's got hardening of the arteries, and, as Emily's still got a sort of sneaking fondness for Jim—well, maybe it was a quiet way of saving up enough to start them with a home of their own, after all."

The entire living population of the globe, divided into families of five persons each, could be placed in Texas, each family with a home on a half-acre lot, and there would still remain some vacant lots.

How Better Than Pills
The question has been asked—in what way are Chamberlain's Tablets superior to the ordinary cathartic and liver pills? Our answer is, they are easier and more pleasant to take and their effect is so gentle that one hardly realizes that it is produced by a medicine. Thus, they not only cure the bowels but improve the appetite and strengthen the digestion.—Advertisement.

WHY CLAIM WAS NOT VALID

Colored Gentleman Insisted That His Wife Had Obtained Him "Under False Pretenses."

During a recent session of a Kansas Justice's court a negro was summoned before the bar to answer his wife's charge of non-support. He was of that solemn, "intellectual" type which avidly absorbs every high-sounding word without absorbing its meaning.

Several cases were ahead of the negro's and many legal phrases were uttered in his hearing. Plainly he was more interested in these than in his own predicament. Finally, his name was called. He arose with great dignity and advanced to the bar of justice. His wife stood in glaring readiness to accuse him. The justice began to question him.

"Is this woman your wife?"

"Well judge, youah honoh, sub, I'll tell you about dat. You see—"

"Is she your wife?"

"Wwell—no sub."

Following this denial it was necessary for an officer to interpose and save the defendant from his accuser. Finally the Amazonian war cry resolved itself into an intelligible protest to the justice.

"That man's lyn'! I got a s'tif-cate."

"How about that?" demanded the justice sternly. "She says she has a certificate of marriage."

"Yes, sub, I spects she has. But iffen she has here's how come she's got it: One time I went to a party at her house. The refreshments was colder and maybe it had some raisins or something like that in it. I didn't cognize anything I did. Iffen I was married I don't know it, but when my brain clouds rolled away about two days later that woman was callin' me 'husband'."

"Then you claim you are not legally married to her?"

"No, I wouldn't go so far as to claim that, youah honoh, not bein' in full possession of the legal jurisprudence of the case. But this is what I do claim," and he placed the index of his right finger against the palm of his left hand, imitating a lawyer he had observed a few minutes before, "this is what I do claim: I means that woman obtained me under false pretenses."

Ragtime for Penguins.

Captain John Cadwallader, of Vancouver, British Columbia, who has just returned from South Georgia after a two years' hunt for whales, told the writer of a remarkable gramophone concert he gave in the Southern seas, with thousands of penguins as his audience.

"One day," he said, "I took my gramophone into the open and began to play it. There wasn't a penguin in sight, but within a minute of the first record being started hundreds of birds appeared and walked in their slow, stately gait toward me.

"Very soon I had an audience of thousands. Several king or crested penguins sat within a few feet of me, and the ordinary species formed a number of circles. They listened with almost human interest to the music, and the lit of ragtimes sent them shuffling and swaying.

"When my concert was over the penguins rose, bowed gravely as if to express their thanks, and walked off."

Forgot to Remove the Cork.

Bobby, age two, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Brown, of Columbus, Ind., has definite ideas as to just what he likes and does not like, and he can express them clearly for one so young. He is fond of apples, and his mother gives them to him frequently, always careful to pare them and remove the core. Recently he asked for an apple, and his mother peeled one for him but forgot to remove the core.

Bobby took the apple and toddled off to play, but returned in a moment with the apple in his hand. He had not taken a bite of it, and was regarding it with a puzzled and not altogether approving expression.

"Don't you like your apple, Bobby?" questioned his mother. The youngster handed the apple to her, pointed to the stem and replied, "Well, mother, you forgot to take the cork out."—Indianapolis News.

What Happened Next.

Two of us were standing on a street corner holding an unflattering discussion concerning a certain fellow who always hung around us and "batted in" generally.

Enter the object of our talk. Quickly we switched the conversation and, as the fellow was particularly disgusting to me, I soon left.

That evening I called for my friend and, despite his social contortions, which, although I did not understand them, I knew were meant as warnings, I blurted out, "Can you beat how that doggone pest hangs around?"

Consternation and embarrassment are mild words to describe my feelings when put from behind the portiere stepped the "doggone pest."—Chicago Tribune.

A Lapse of Memory.

The different conventions held at Winona Lake make it imperative to use all available sleeping material.

Mrs. P., after filling her cottage to overflowing, remembered an old wooden bedstead that had been stored away. She got it out, and, after cleaning it with coal oil, she decided to make an absolutely clean job of it, so she struck a match to it, expecting the coal oil to burn off.

She stood there, too surprised to utter a sound, as she watched the entire bedstead go up in smoke.—Indianapolis News.

To Gain a Good Reputation.

The way to gain a good reputation is to endeavor to be what you appear. That is precisely the manner in which Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has gained its reputation as a cure for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough. Every little that has ever been put out by the manufacturers has been fully up to the high standard of excellence claimed for it. People have found that it can be depended upon for the relief and cure of these ailments and that it is pleasant and safe to take.—Advertisement.

LAND OF HORROR

Everywhere in Russia Traveler Sees Terrible Sights.

"Kindest Thing You Can Do to a Lot of These People is to Kill Them," Said Railroader.

We had no sooner crossed into Russia than we began to see horrible sights. And this is the truth—I was not expecting it. I thought the horrors were confined to certain areas and that I should have to go and look for them, writes Eleanor Franklin Egan in the Saturday Evening Post.

But there is no area in Russia today that is not horrible; at least there is no area in which horrors are not to be encountered. And though the soviet authorities spare no effort in trying to induce the world to believe that the famine is confined to the Volga valley and that it is due solely to natural causes and causes over which they had no control, there is not a man, woman or child in the country, aside from a favored few within the government circle or who have money enough to pay the fantastic prices that are demanded for food, who is getting enough to eat.

This also is the absolute truth, which nobody who knows the situation will seek to deny.

At every railway station there were seething mobs of the most awful people I had ever seen. They crowded up under the windows of our car and waited a pitiful wall with their hands held out.

I asked our Latvian porter, who spoke both English and Russian, what they were saying, and laughing a brutal laugh, he answered: "They are saying, 'For God's sake give us bread, give us bread!'" He was remembering the Bolshevik invasion of his own country and the ruthlessness of it. He had no sympathy for Russians.

Most of the people were trying to get on the train; they were going somewhere, anywhere, I suppose, away from where they were. There were Red soldiers stationed at each end of all the cars, and only those who had permits to travel were allowed to get aboard; but the others, in uncontrollable masses, struggled for a foothold anywhere.

We had one continual fight to keep them out of our car, but we had to keep them out; our hearts might ache for them, but they had on them one thing we were afraid of—carriers of disease.

We locked our doors, but they kicked against them and beat upon the windows with their fists, making piteous appeals. They clung to the steps and the trucks and crowded together between the cars on the coupling pins. And it was cold, bitter cold. The country was just one vast interminable stretch of blinding white silence; the villages were buried up to their thick thatched eaves in snow; the beards of the men and the nut-finders of the women were hung with icicles; it was all a terrible picture of human suffering.

At one station I stood looking out of a window as the train began to move; it gathered speed; there was a surge forward in the crowd and a frantic shout; then I felt the car under me lift and twist itself with a sickening grind.

One of the young men I was traveling with came up to me quickly, turned me away from the window and said, "Don't look! We ran over a woman. She slipped on the icy step she was trying to hang on to and fell under the wheels!"

The porter, looking just a little bit shaken himself said, "Yes, and she's better off! Kindest thing you can do to a lot of these people is to kill them. We don't often make this run without killing two or three, but it don't seem right that they should nearly always be women."

We killed three before we got to Moscow—all women.

Chances That Dickens Dodged. Utica is a frightful one-night stand and Syracuse looks as if it had been "knocked together," but this time, at least, he reads 40,000 New Yorkers, somehow he keeps his privacy, Stanley T. Williams writes in the North American Review. In the quiet of his room he has his first cocktail, a "Rocky Mountain sneezer," made of brandy, rum and snow. American crudeness on this second journey seems less horrible and funnier. In St. Louis an old man submits a paragraph of the entire book of Job. He wants to read it aloud to Mr. Dickens and get his opinion of it. A letter comes from the south asking for an original epitaph for the tomb of an infant. Another southern lady solicits an autograph copy of the lines by Mrs. Leo Hunter to an "expiring frog." But in these state competitions New Jersey bears the bell. A lady offers to submit a record of all the funny things which have happened in her family during the past 100 years. Out of this material Dickens is to create a novel and share the profits with the storemaid lady. What could be more delightful!

Wives. Henpecked husbands will chuckle at the verdict of a jury, which included five women, at Hackensack, N. J. For a husband sued a rival for $50,000 for alienating his wife's affections. Jury awarded him 8 cents damages. How much is a "lost" wife worth? To one man she might be worth less than 6 cents. To another, her perfect mate, her value would be infinitely in millions. All values are relative.

ALL WORK JOYOUS

Drudgery the Only Real Foundation of Power.

Nature Has Placed the Price Upon Essential to Those Who Would Reach the Heights.

You probably think that you are a drudge and that every other person has leisure, freedom from cares and great general happiness. If not, you are the exception. Everywhere is a certain amount of dissatisfaction at the daily task.

I say blessed be the man who is able to work. Blessed be the daily task! I know that there are times when we get tired, Arthur G. Staples writes in the Lewiston Journal. The back aches, the homeward way seems long, the hill to the house seems steep and hard; but I doubt if you would give it up! You see the shop and the grind and the desk with its many papers to be handled and the typewriter grating at you sardonically like a devil on four stilt! You would like to exchange it for leisure, travel, culture and elegance.

Do you know where you are going if you manfully stand up against these things and really analyze the thing that you call culture? Every fundamental of fine manhood and womanhood comes through work. Call it drudgery if you will; it is disciplinary work that makes men, women and nations. You would like to be educated, skilled in art, a sculptor, a great physician, an eminent lawyer or a judge, a manager of a great business!

It looks easy. Is it? Do you know how many hours of absolute drudgery goes into making culture as we call it? Do you know the years that it takes to make the great surgeon who saves your life and what drudgery there might be in his life if he did not call it joyous and blessed? Where did the lawyer get his right to sit in judgment on the law and the facts? Did it come to him at birth? Did he buy it in a shop? Did he hire it from some one for so many dollars? Not much. He got it from drudgery. He cannot even get it from books; he must get the books into his mind and soul and judgment. How did the college professor get his right to teach? By patient and uncompromising hard work?

Riches! There's a hard one to crack! But what do riches do to many men? There is a young man, for instance, who inherits great wealth and yet who is cursed by it. There is one of them in prison for murder today, on the Pacific coast, who, if he had been at work would have kept out of mischief and leanings toward crime.

Power of application, power of concentration, power of thought, accuracy, perseverance, faith, courage, self-denial, temperance, thoroughness—all of these come from drudgery. Looking about the streets envying the busy man who seems to be well housed and of authority in the town gets you nowhere.

If you want consideration, culture, position, and appreciation, you must work for it and work hard. It means going to work every day, rain or shine, feeling fit or unfit, headache, toothache, backache, anything but limbo or snailpace.

You'd rather be thought well of by the community than to be a cabinet-maker. The most unhappy man whom I know has a great deal of money and a boundless ambition for public appreciation, which he has not been able to obtain through his high office. One of the happiest men that I know of was a purser on a steamboat, who performed his little round of duties as though it were his kingdom.

Who would not be proud to be the best workman in his trade in the town? There is a brick mason of years of service in this city, who used to be called to do fine work and puzzle out problems that others could not. He had the culture of his trade. There is a steamfitter in town who is the most often consulted on difficult problems. There used to be carpenters who stood out as the best workmen. They got satisfaction out of the success far beyond any that money could bring.

The desire to excel is the secret of human progress. The culture of power to do things a little better has bred all invention. The greyhound was bred by selecting individuals who could run faster. They bred the Gordon setter dog to do the special work in the rough country of Scotland. Thus types grow into species and thus species develop power for new species.

We shall get along in this world only by striving. There is no striving except by work. There is no drudgery in constant and honest work. It spells happiness. Idleness spells unhappiness. Rocketeer has worked and drudged harder than the street vagrant and has had a better time at working than in loafing.

Our Gorgeous Movie Palace.

A distinguished Englishman visiting this country was surprised at the gorgeousness of our movie houses and their size. He says London has nothing to compare with them. The English houses are small and insignificant. English investors, he said, would not consider for a moment the investing of so much money in a venture of this character.

To Gain a Good Reputation The way to gain a good reputation is to endeavor to be what you appear. That is precisely the manner in which Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has gained its reputation as a cure for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough. Every bottle that has ever been put out by the manufacturers has been fully up to the high standard of excellence claimed for it. FALL SEASON GOOD TIME TO SEED LAWN

WINTER KILLING OF WEEDS GIVES NEW GRASS BETTER CHANCE, SAYS M. A. C. MAN.

Fall is one of the best seasons of the year to seed a lawn, provided the work is done early enough to give the seed a chance to become developed sufficiently to withstand freezing, according to Prof. C. P. Halligan, head of the M. A. C. Landscape Gardening department. Lawns seeded at this time, between September 15 and the middle of October, are said to develop to better advantage and with less cost of maintenance than spring seeded lawns. This is true because of the fact that any weed seed present in the mixture sown will germinate and the weeds will be destroyed during the winter months. The soil should be well prepared to a depth of a foot or more," says Professor Halligan. "It should then be thoroughly rolled. The surface of the soil should be raised finely to a depth of not more than an inch and the seed sown broadcast by hand in such a manner as to insure uniform distribution. Select a day when the soil is moist and when there is little or no wind. After the seed is sown, the soil may be raked very lightly and then thoroughly rolled.

"Whenever lawns are to be developed under the shade trees, such as maples and oaks, great care should be used and the date of seeding should be made as early as possible in the fall. When seeded late in the fall, the grass is likely to be smothered where large trees drop their leaves, if the leaves are not removed within a day or two after forming a mat. Seed varieties used in the mixture to be sown should be adapted to soil and climatic conditions."

A REAL SURPRISE

Last Wednesday evening as the choir at the First Baptist church were rehearsing, a nice company from the church and congregation marched in quietly and took their seats. The choir had their back to the door and did not know until they were inside of the surprise. They all adjourned to the basement, and after partaking of the pot-luck supper, Frank Hamill gave a very appropriate reading, and presented the bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. Allenbaugh, with a set of silver knives, forks and spoons. Mr. Allenbaugh responded in a very nice speech.

MAIL TEN-CENT GOLF BALL

Would you believe the new ten-cent golf ball could arrive without admitting American origin? Rather not! Did you fancy that with the golf balls available at a dime apiece golfing would remain the same course, crude, rather rough old pastime that it once was? Well, hardly!

Persons who have entertained any such steadfast ideas are blocking the course. Fore! Let these fast ones play through.

In the first place, there need be no more mental hazards. A mental hazard, they say, is a form of moral cowardice—fear of losing the ball. Now, fear of losing the ball is logically the result of those traits of fragility which one unconsciously acquires the moment he undertakes to learn this ancient game of the canny Scot.

It is, therefore, not considered strange if a player, standing on the brink of a rather wide lake or seeking a foothold on the busy bank of a tortuous stream, suddenly begins to quiver and to quake. He is battling with his mental hazard—the fear of losing his ball.

But with a ten-cent ball—why, who'll give a darn?

Another thing—there isn't going to be nearly so much profanity on the links with this ten-cent ball made of scrap rubber. Innocent youngsters who make an honest living caddy need no longer be regarded with reconding onths every time a ball is lost.

"Mister, I've lost it," the kid will chirp simply.

"Very well, sonny," will reply this new-style golfer, maintaining perfect composure. "Take this dime; run buy me a new one."

And besides all this, look what the ball will do for the husband. Now he'll be able to finance the wife to a game of golf every day during the summer, more than likely, and she can lose as many balls as she needs to without bringing the family to the brink of bankruptcy.—Exchange.

Pillings Now Made of Paper.

Pillings for submarine supports are now being made of paper in California. The chief recommendation of which is the fact that they are not subject to attack by the torpede, which ruins wooden piles in a short time. On a long wooden cylinder a long roll of tarred paper with glued edges is wound and covered with cord. Over this another band of paper, much narrower, is wound diagonally like the bandage on a wounded arm. The cylinder is revolved while it is bound with more cord, bit glue being applied continuously. After three layers of paper have been put in place, the wooden cylinder is removed and the paper cylinder is reinforced with a coarse mesh.

A mixture of cement and sand is squirted all over the cylinder, and several cylinders are joined end to end with the same cement so as to make a pile 90 feet long and from 18 to 30 inches in diameter. A square steel head is fitted over the top to receive the shocks of the pile-driver.

CELEBRATED GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Stever are celebrating their golden wedding anniversary this week, having been married fifty years, October fourth, Sunday they entertained at their home, and Wednesday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Stever gave a family dinner in honor of the occasion, children and families, from Detroit, Pontiac and Plymouth, being present. Mr. and Mrs. Stever are well known and respected residents of Plymouth, having come here 46 years ago. It is hoped that they will be with us for many years to come. Fitting remembrances were received from the children and family friends.

WILL ENLARGE RIVERSIDE CEMETERY

Plans are under way for the opening of an addition to Riverside cemetery. The new addition is to be made on land adjacent to the southeast corner of the cemetery, now owned by the village, and will comprise about six acres. Riverside cemetery contains about 1200 burial lots, and of this number about 1,000 lots have been sold, and it will only be a short time, when more lots will be needed. It is estimated that there are about 3,000 graves in Riverside cemetery.

During the past summer the cemetery has presented a very fine appearance at all times, and reflects much credit upon the board of trustees and the superintendent, Leroy Naylor. Several of the old roads have been graded and gravelled. One of the most noticeable improvements that has been made, is the trimming up of the evergreen trees, so that the view about the grounds is now unobstructed. Many people have availed themselves of the opportunity to provide for the perpetual care of their lots, and this plan, just recently inaugurated seems to be working out very well.

A New York newspaper says lawyers and motion picture actors top the list in paying professions, with preachers at the bottom. Editors get so little they aren't even considered.
