TURN ONTO THE ROAD TO CHURCH

Church helps a man from his moral ruts and starts him on the highway of right thinking and right living. The longer one travels in ruts the deeper they become and the more difficult it is to get out of them.

The churches of this community are here to help you out of both social and moral ruts. They provide Christian fellowship and offer the only solution for sin: The gospel of Jesus Christ. No man ever regretted the time he spent in church attendance.

Let us help you out of your ruts—perhaps you will help us out of ours. Come Sunday.

THE ELECTION IN PLYMOUTH

REPUBLICANS CARRY THE TICKET HERE WITH EXCEPTION OF UNITED STATES SENATOR.

The election in Plymouth, Tuesday, passed very quietly, a comparatively light vote was cast in both precincts. PLYMOUTH LOSES CLOSE GAME

LOCAL HIGH TEAM DEFEATED BY DEARBORN 14 TO 6.

PLAY FARMINGTON HERE TODAY (FRIDAY) AT 3:45.

The Rocks played one of their most important foot ball games of the season with Dearborn High school, Wednesday, at Dearborn. This game probably decided the championship of the "Four Square League." Dearborn has two remaining league games to play, one with each, Northville and Farmington. Neither of these teams is expected to be able to down Dearborn, who has a record of three victories in as many starts in the league. Comparing scores of games to date, Plymouth should place a close runner up.

The first half Dearborn succeeded in making a touch down by a series of fine plays combined with end runs. Their second and last touch down also came in the first half when they intercepted a Plymouth pass and ran for a touchdown.

The second half changed and Dearborn was forced to play a defensive game. The Rocks apparently got their eyes adjusted on the yellow jerseys and began rolling them back three times during the last half. Plymouth carried the ball to within the ten yard line only to lose it on downs. Plymouth's touch down came in the last quarter on a pass from the forty-yard line. The score was 14 to 6.

NEW ART SHOP OPENS

The Merz Art Shop, conducted by Chas. Merz and daughter, Olive, opened its doors to the public in the new Voorhies block on Main street, Wednesday afternoon, and many people took the opportunity to visit the new store during the afternoon and evening. The store presents a most attractive appearance with the new and up-to-date fixtures which have been installed. A nice stock of art goods, picture frames, etc., makes the store still more attractive. Each lady and gentleman visiting the store on opening day were given a souvenir as a memento of the occasion.

OPENING DANCE TONIGHT

The opening dance of the season takes place this (Friday) evening, November 10th, at the Penniman Allen auditorium. Finzel's orchestra will furnish the music. Admission, $1.00, tax paid. Ladies free.

He is survived by his wife and two grown daughters, Mrs. Roy Clark of Northville, and Miss Edith Scott of this place. The funeral services will be held from the Schrader Bros. Funeral Home, this (Friday) afternoon at two-thirty o'clock. Rev. H. E. Sayles, pastor of the Baptist church officiating. Burial in Riverside cemetery. The family have the sympathy of Plymouth friends in their affliction. An obituary will be given next week.

Mr. Dayton has the front part of the residence, which provides him with most commodious and convenient offices. There are three rooms, the waiting room and general office, private office and a large library. Mr. Dayton will be pleased to welcome his clients and friends at his new location.

RED CROSS ROLL CALL A SUCCESS IN PLYMOUTH

The Red Cross Roll Call membership campaign, which was carried on in Plymouth last week, ended Saturday night, and as was expected, Plymouth went over the top, in securing her usual quota of memberships, and then some. The total amount will be given when all returns are in. This year there have been a number of liberal givers to the Red Cross fund, aside from the regular memberships. Those who have had the campaign in charge and the ladies who have had charge of the several membership booths during the week, are to be congratulated upon the success of the campaign, and their efforts to help carry on this great work. If there are any yet who would like to take out memberships, they can do so at the Plymouth United Savings Bank or by calling phone 175.

BAILEY-BRINKERHOFF

A pretty home wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Brinkerhoff on Penniman avenue, last Saturday afternoon, November 4th, at four o'clock, when their only daughter, Miss Anna, became the bride of Dallas Bailey of Northville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bailey of Whitehouse, Ohio. Rev. S. Conger Hathaway, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of this place, pronounced the marriage vows in the presence of only the immediate families. The house was prettily decorated with cut flowers, pink and white being the color scheme. After the ceremony, a two course dinner was served, and later in the day the bride and groom left by motor with the groom's parents, for a short visit at the latter's home at Whitehouse, Ohio. The bride is one of Plymouth's well known and popular young ladies. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Bailey will make their home with the bride's parents for the present, but in the spring expect to go to Northville, where the groom is in the employ of the Ford Co. Plymouth friends extend best wishes to the happy couple.

The Spirit of Democracy

Churches like persons have an individuality—a definite spirit. The spirit of the pioneers who laid broad and deep the foundations of Methodism in this section was the spirit of religious democracy. With them every man stood on the same footing before God. This spirit they bequeathed to their successors and is characteristic of our church today. Our doors stand open in genuine friendliness to all who desire to worship God.

TIMES HAVE CHANGED

Isn't it strange what great changes can come within a little space of time. We were talking with a Plymouth man a few days ago, and something was said about the many changes that have taken place since 1900—just 22 years ago. That isn't a very long time, yet he was able to point out many things of interest that have come up in those 22 years, things we knew nothing about before.

For instance he pointed out that 22 years ago we didn't know a thing about parcels post, or radio, and the air was not filled with flying machines. Nobody wore a wrist watch, or swatted the fly, or had appendicitis, and the farmers had to come to town for their mail. Twenty-two years ago there was no such thing as a submarine boat, a hired girl was perfectly satisfied to work for $1.50 a week, the butcher threw in a chunk of liver with the meat order, and a merchant made us a present of a pair of suspenders when we bought a suit of clothes. There wasn't any "listening in" on party line telephones, straw stacks were generally burned instead of baled, nobody heard of Bolshevism, and we were still slashing our face with an old-fashioned, straight back razor.

Yes, sir—twenty-two years bring wonderful changes, and we could go on and enumerate them by the column. We marvel at the wonders that have come in that short space of time. And we can only register amazement and agree that if we move as fast in the next 22 years as we have in the last 22, then we will, as the small boy says, certainly be "going some."

THE AMERICAN APPLE

This has been a wonderful year for the apple. In all parts of the country the crop is abundant, and if the fruit had been gathered and distributed in a scientific way, the American people would have had cheap apples for months to come. Under present conditions a big per cent of the crop is going to waste.

High freight rates and low prices offered producers will have a good deal to do with it.

According to the U. S. census, 136,550,000 bushels of apples were produced, and 98,582,000 bushels sold in 1918. This year the crop is larger. The state of Washington leads all others in production, her crop being one-sixth of the crop harvested in the entire country. New York ranks second with over 14,000,000 bushels; California is third; Oregon is fourth and Idaho in fifth place.

America leads the world in apples produced, as well as in the number of apples wasted. We price apples here in Plymouth, only to find that they are no cheaper because the crop is larger. What this country needs is a market system which will make it profitable to gather every apple produced and make the fruit available for everybody at a reasonable price. Waste deprives the nation of wealth which should be enjoyed and, if there is any truth in the slogan that "an apple a day keeps the doctor away," then we would be a healthier as well as a wealthier people.

IT'S YOUR CHUM

Writing in an eastern paper, C. N. Greig, well known journalist, says: "The home paper is your chum, your pal and your intimate friend; the big city daily is your casual acquaintance; the magazine is your occasional visitor. And when it comes to advice, we trust a chum and intimate friend first, don't we? You may not know it, but the small-town paper not only delivers more friendly and intimate home-influence circulation, but it is trusted far more widely than the big city dailies produced by men so far away that they can't possibly be in touch with your community."

There's advice to remember when you want to sell something—offer it to those who read the home-town paper, because they have long ago learned that they can believe what they see in its columns. It isn't so full of advertising, either, that your message will be buried, as often happens to advertisers in big dailies. If you haven't learned the truth about advertising in your home-town paper, then you haven't learned all you ought to know about successful merchandising.

Rev. F. M. Field of Detroit, formerly of this place, has been suffering the past week, with a broken rib and a badly bruised arm, the result of a fall at his home.

ANNOUNCE DATES FOR M. A. C. FARMERS' WEEK

ANNUAL CONGRESS TO BE HELD FROM JANUARY 29 TO FEBRUARY 2 THIS WINTER—PLAN BIG FEATURES.

Farmers' Week, the annual winter round-up at the Michigan Agricultural College, which has grown during recent years into the state's biggest agricultural conference, will be held from January 29 until February 2, this year, according to announcement made here this week by Ashley M. Berridge, chairman of the committee in charge.

That last year's record attendance of more than 5,000 for the week's meetings will be surpassed this winter, is the prediction of college authorities. More state agricultural associations and groups than ever before are scheduling their annual meetings for East Lansing during Farmers' Week, and all signs point to a huge attendance.

New features in the way of entertainment and instruction are being planned, every effort being made to make the occasion one which will appeal as strongly to those who have attended the gatherings before, as to those who are attending their first Farmers' Week. The old standbys, such as the mile-long agricultural parade, the special farm exhibits, and a speaking program headlining some of the country's leading agricultural authorities, will, of course, be found on the program again.

The Michigan State Farm Bureau will head the list of farm associations, which will meet during Farmers' Week. A dozen other leading state groups have also scheduled their meetings for the same dates, with more expected to follow suit during the next two months.

DAUGHTER SUED IN WILL CASE BY STEPMOTHER

Mrs. Ethel A. Hauss, of Century, Fla., daughter of the late David D. Allen, of Plymouth, who died Aug. 20, 1922, is made defendant in a suit filed in Circuit Court by Mrs. Eliza A. Allen, wife of the deceased, who asks that Mrs. Hauss, who is a daughter of Allen by a former marriage, be compelled to give an accounting of her father's will.

Mrs. Hauss is administratrix of the estate which is estimated in the will to be approximately $35,000. Mrs. Allen charges that undue influence was exerted on her husband by Mrs. Hauss, and that the estate instead of being worth only $35,000, is worth something in the neighborhood of $200,000.

Allen, according to his wife, possessed large stock holdings which, if accounted for, will bring his estate to that amount.—The Detroit News.

WOMAN'S CLUB

A regular meeting of the Woman's Club was held in the club room last Friday afternoon, November 3rd, with two guests and about twenty-five members in attendance. The president, Mrs. George H. Robinson, presided over the business session. Owing to the absence of the recording secretary, Mrs. Coello Hamilton was elected secretary pro tem. One new name was added to membership list.

The subject for next year's study previously presented by the program committee for consideration, was voted on, and the following topic was selected, "A Group of Interesting Days' Travel and Study." Pet Economics and Superstitions was the response to roll call. The program was in charge of the third division with Mrs. John Williams, leader. Mrs. J. T. Chapman rendered two beautiful piano selections as the first number on the program. This was followed by a fine paper on "Better Speech," by Mrs. Asa Whipple. The remainder of the afternoon was given over to the report of the delegates, Mrs. Carmen Root and alternate, Mrs. Louis Hillmer, to State Federation meeting held in Flint last month. Both reports were splendid, and each brought back to the home members many messages of interest from the various speeches heard while there. The program concluded with a vocal solo by Mrs. William Bake, with Mrs. Chapman at the piano.

On motion the club adjourned to meet in the club room, Friday afternoon, November 17th, when Professor R. M. Wenley of the University of Michigan, will speak on, "Present Situation in British Domestic Politics."

hold the idea that you have to have a fortune in order to buy a home in Plymouth. Maybe it is the exception that proves the rule, but that five-room house for $1500 is certainly an exceptional bargain, especially when you realize that there are two lots with it, and that we will consider most any reasonable down payment.

What if it isn't as fancy as some of the Penniman avenue homes, it would be better than paying rent. Get busy before the other fellow beats you to it.

INSECT PESTS LIVE IN GARDEN REFUSE

CLEANING UP VINES AND RUBBISH WILL REDUCE LOSSES FOR NEXT YEAR

Losses in gardens and on truck farms caused by insect pests and diseases can be materially lowered by cleaning up refuse left on the land after crops are harvested, according to Prof. E. P. Lewis of the horticultural department of the Michigan Agricultural College.

Clean culture in the field seed-bed or greenhouse, will greatly reduce the cost of production and also result in a product of better appearance and higher quality.

"After a crop has been harvested," says Lewis, "there is usually a residue which is left in the field, such as cabbage stumps, asparagus tops, celery trimmings, tomato vines, and rejected plants. This refuse affords an ideal place for insects peculiar to the crop to multiply until killing frost, and then to hibernate over winter, insuring injury to similar crops the following year.

"Many fungus and bacterial diseases pass the winter on the crop residue and cause primary infection in the spring.

"As soon as the land crop is harvested the land should be plowed and planted to a suitable cover crop, or to a successful planting. Deep plowing is usually recommended so that the materials will not be brought to the surface by cultivation until the germs and insects have been killed. In badly infested fields the residue should be burned.

"Many insects and disease pests live for a part of their existence on allied plants or weeds which grow in the field or in adjoining fields. Thus the eradication of weeds is an important factor in proper sanitation. The burning of fence rows and grasslands is effective in controlling army worms, chinch bugs, grass-hoppers and plant lice. Any method of breaking up the hiding place of the insect or disease pests will greatly lessen the danger of infection or attack the following year."

LAPHAM'S CORNERS

The box social, which was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rollo Dixon, Saturday evening, was a decided success in every way. It netted nearly $23 for the piano fund. A very pleasant evening was spent in playing games.

George Walker and Arthur Walker have gone to Cadillac, hunting. Helen and Louise Rorabacher were home for the week-end.

Mrs. Coda Savery spent Monday afternoon in Ann Arbor, shopping. Mrs. William Mager and daughter, May, attended the quarterly meeting of the Woman's Missionary society of the Presbyterian church in Ann Arbor, Friday. They were guests of Mrs. Ray Newton. May Mager is spending the week with her sister, Mrs. Ray Newton, in Ann Arbor.

Today's Reflections

There is no excuse these days for the daughter of a coal mine owner remaining single.

It would be a good idea for the young men of Plymouth to keep in mind the fact that all good lookers are not good cooks.

Old winter makes quite a few detours, but he finally lands at the place he started for.

More than one Plymouth man will give three cheers for something he wouldn't give anything else for.

Many an auto owner has discovered that painting a car never takes the knock out of the engine.

As a usual thing the automobile that turns turtle was not going like a turtle.

Nothing tickles a Plymouth man half as much as to run into a cold snap right after he gets a new overcoat.

It now appears that the family skeletons are kept on the front page of the daily papers instead of in closets.

Some people contend that the worm is sure to turn. What if it does—it's just the same on both ends.

It isn't kinship that takes a good many Plymouth men out into the country. Sometimes it's cider.

It has also been our observation that a little loving now and then is relished by the best of men.

Way down south in the land of cotton the crop is fine, but the price is rotten.

You often see two men calling each other liars—and both of them may be telling the truth.

Our advice to the Thanksgiving turkeys of this country is to call a "hunger strike."

One of the hardest things in the world to do is to make a Plymouth boy understand that somebody has to get the neck and gizzard.

By the time a man has saved enough money to afford a wife, these days, he's so old that nobody will have him.

A Little of the History of Plymouth, Michigan

Collected By Mrs. F. A. Dibble, 1922

Note—Anyone who can contribute any additional facts to the foregoing historical sketch of Plymouth, would confer a favor by sending the same to the Mail office.

Previous to the spring of 1825, a few hardy pioneers had penetrated the wilderness west of Detroit, and made settlements in Farmington, Livonia and Nankin. The trail, which only by courtesy could be called a road, extended fifteen or eighteen miles from Detroit to a point on the Rouge, where a little settlement was made and a mill erected by Luther Lincoln, who, a year later, erected one at Plymouth on the same stream.

Beyond this limit of civilization, the way through the woods was marked by blazed trees, and the difficulties of clearing a passage for the wagon were great. The men who had thus set out to subdue wild nature and convert the forest into fields, were young and hardy; full of energy, hopefulness and courage. Teams consisted of oxen which were able to pick their living in the woods. In 1825, William Starkweather made a clearing and erected a log house on the land opposite the hotel, afterwards the Fuller property, now occupied by the Plymouth Motor Sales Co. Most of the first settlers left their families in Detroit while they made a clearing. A few of the first settlers came within ten days of each other. The first white woman to venture into the present limits of Plymouth, was the wife of William Starkweather, and mother of George A. Starkweather, who was born February 20, 1826, and was the first white child born in what is now Plymouth township; but the second in what was then the township of Plymouth, which included Northville.

Oscar Phelps, son of David Phillips, was the first white child born in the old township. The township of Plymouth is well watered by numerous springs, and a branch of the River Rouge passes through the town. The branch is made from two considerable streams; one, the outlet of Walled Lake, and the other from the southwest; they come together in near Northville, forming the main branch of the River Rouge.

Some of the first settlers were: John S. Tibbitts, Roswell Root, John Van Sickle, A. B. Markham, John Miller, Peter and Henry Fralick, Silas Sly, Rufus Thayer, William and Hiram Utley, Lyman Terrill, John Welch, Benajah and Henry Holbrook, Luther Lincoln, John Westfall, David Barber, Samuel Gates, Herman Stowe, Edward Marsden, J. Andrew and Pitts Taffit, Daniel Cody and others.

The first work after making a clearing was to erect a rude cabin of logs; usually containing one room, and that of limited dimensions. The logs were laid one above the other and notched at the corners so as to fit as snugly as possible. The crevices were chinked with mud and wood. The floor was made of such planks as could be split from the out of logs with an axe. The roof was covered with something like barrel staves, split out of oak logs, and were held in place, not by nails, but by having placed upon them long heavy poles which were kept in place by having their ends bound by "withes" or green sapling. The chimneys were built with small sticks and plastered an inch or two deep with mud to protect them from fire. The fire-place occupied nearly one end of the house, and was built of stone. Huge back logs rolled in on skids, blazed a cheerful welcome on winter nights. The cabin had two windows and a door, and the first summer on the clearing, the openings; but in a few months, the windows boasted the dignity of glass, and a door with wooden hangings was added. The logs were very heavy, so on the occasion of a "raising," the neighbors, even 16 or 18 miles away were asked to come on certain days and help. They always came, and these "raisings" were about the only social affairs they had. The housewives made great preparations, and although the fare was simple, the hospitality made up for all lack of variety of food. This plan prevailed for many years; there were always games and sports at the close of the day's work. After the cabin was built a little strip of land was cleared to plant corn and vegetables for the household. The forests were dense, and the trees were large, so the physical labor was great. All supplies had to be hauled from Detroit, and it took a whole week to make the trip. The fertile soil furnished enough to satisfy the appetite. The clothing was all home spun, and the shoemaker made the rounds once a year, and lived with the family while he made up boots and shoes enough to last till his next visit.

The tide of immigration having set in, the town rapidly filled up, and by 1832 the settlement had become quite a village. In fact, in May, 1831, there was not an acre of government land left in town. It was at one time proposed to call the town Pekin, but this name was discarded for a more historical and patriotic name. The name Plymouth was suggested by William Bartow, and for several years town one south was called Plymouth, and town two south was called north Plymouth, until afterwards separately organized and called Canton.

The first township meeting was held at the home of John S. Tibbitts, May 26th, 1827. At this meeting there were forty two votes cast, and by a majority of 2, the extravagant sum of $150.00 was voted to defray the public expenses of the township for one year. The following officers were elected: Supervisor, William Bartow; clerk, Allen Tibbitts; Assessors, Roswell Root, Henry Lyon and E. W. Starkweather; Overseers of the poor, A. B. Markham, Cyrus Cole and Luther Lincoln; Commissioners, G. W. Benton, Rufus Thayer and Benjamin Slocum; Constable, A. Brockfoot. An election for delegates to congress from the territory of Michigan was held July 9, 1827. Thirty votes were cast, twenty-one for Austin Wing and nine for John Biddle.

The first tax levied in the town was on October 2, 1827. Township, $66.10; county, $67.51. It was harder to raise money to pay this tax than it is now, when the tax is many thousands of dollars. An examination of the records shows that the pioneers' ability to transact business with wisdom and dignity was equal to that of their successors of the present day. In the early part of 1827, a meeting was held at the home of John Tibbitts for the purpose of organizing a military company, and Ira M. Hough was chosen captain.

The first blacksmith was Alanson Knickerbocker, and the first brick building in the township was erected by Henry Ward. A. B. Markham made the first hand-power mill, it took two days to make it; it answered very well for grinding corn. Two boys and two women could grind a bushel in not more than an hour. The village of Plymouth was laid out and recorded in 1837, by Henry Holbrook. In 1838, the village had a Presbyterian church, five stores, a wild cat bank known as the Wayne Co. Bank, three taverns and a drug store. The village boasted two hotels—one, Union Hall, kept by Peter Fralick, was extensively patronized, being the stage headquarters. The stage route was known as the Detroit-Ann Arbor road, and there were a great many travelers. As many as eight four-horse stages passed through the village daily, and a crowd of teamsters spent the night at the hotels.

There were but few Indians in the neighborhood, and they were of the seedy vagabond variety, who never dreamed of taking a scalp, and cared for nothing so much as to eat, and plenty of firewater on which to get tipsy. By far the most dangerous foes were the bears and wolves, which were very abundant. The wolves would finish a flock of sheep in one night.

About the only industry for several years was the grist mill and saw mill. The first grist and saw mill was built in 1825, by Luther Lincoln, on land now owned by Gilman Seal. At one time there were grist mills and six saw mills in the township of Plymouth, all run by water power, and all doing a thriving business.

The Plymouth Flour Mill was built in 1845, by Henry B. Holbrook. It changed hands several times. In 1879, it was purchased by David B. Wilcox, and after his death in 1902, when his sons, John and George Wilcox, operated it till sold to Henry Ford in 1920, and was torn down in 1921. February 16, 1869, the boiler in the May and Hendricks Saw Mill and Rake Factory on Main street, located on land where Wm. Hoyt's residence now stands, blew up, injuring Abram Marsden and Henry Childs were killed and Peter Micol severely injured. The explosion occurred in the middle of the day, while most of the men were in the woods cutting logs. The first postoffice was known for some years as Plymouth Corners, and Gideon Benton was the first postmaster. The Wild Cat Bank was known as the Wayne County Bank, and issued notes to the value of $45,000, with not one dollar paid in.

On May 5, 1856, fire started in Root's Hotel on the corner of Ann Arbor and Main streets, burning nearly all the buildings of the entire block on the west side of Main street, loss, $60,000. Among the buildings destroyed were Kellogg's drug store, J. W. Root's hotel, John Knickerbocker shoe store, the postoffice, J. Scattergood's dry goods store, G. Lauffer's shoe store, Fralick & Crosby, dry goods store, H. Weeks, tailor shop. The two brick buildings at the north end of the block were saved. In 1893 another fire destroyed the building from corner of Penningman avenue to the hotel.

The first general store was opened by Timothy Lyon in 1828. It was located a little north of the present hotel. Frisbee Chubb and Levi Bishop were early storekeepers. The village was incorporated by act of March 15, 1867, and ten days after the first village election was held at the hotel of Thomas Whipple, known as the Adams House; 129 votes cast, and the first president of the village was Bethuel Nowell.

An edition of the Wayne County Review of Wayne, for Plymouth, with O. S. Howard as editor, was issued in December, 1878, by J. H. Steers. In September, 1887, it was succeeded by the Plymouth Mail, issued at Plymouth.

Amity Hall, seating about five hundred, was completed in 1869. It was located over two stores on Main street, about three stores south of Penningman avenue.

The First National Bank of Plymouth, was organized November 18, 1871, with E. J. Penningman, president, and C. H. Bennett, cashier; capital stock, $50,000. With these gentlemen, and about twenty-five others as stockholders, this bank was re-organized in November, 1891, and called the First National Exchange Bank; George Starkweather, president; Oscar Fraser, cashier. The Plymouth National Bank was organized December 12, 1883, with capital stock, $50,000. About fifty stockholders, T. C. Sherwood, president. Re-organized May 13, 1890, as Plymouth Savings Bank. The First National Exchange Bank and the Plymouth Savings Bank were consolidated in 1908, under the name of the Plymouth United Savings Bank with C. A. Fisher, president, and E. K. Bennett, cashier. A Branch Bank in north village, on the corner of Liberty street and Starkweather avenue was opened in the spring of 1915.

The Plymouth Iron Windmill Co. was organized in 1882, with a cash capital of $30,000, for the manufacture of "Hamilton Iron Windmills. The company afterwards re-organized under the name of the Plymouth Air Rife Company, and began the manufacture of the "Daisy" air rifles. From this modest beginning has grown the present business of the Daisy Mfg. Co.

The Markham Mfg. Co. was originally formed for the manufacture of tanks and cisterns of all kinds. In August, 1887, Mr. Markham procured a patent on a toy rifle. The Markham Air Rife Co. was organized in March, 1888. Over 90 per cent of all the air rifles are made by these two companies.

The Plymouth Fair Association organized April, 1886; stock company; capital $1200; T. C. Sherwood, president; Dr. J. M. Collier, secretary; L. C. Hough, treasurer. In 1888, C. B. Crosby was secretary. First fair, September, 1888.

Plymouth Telephone Co. incorporated April 13, 1900. Lines started September, 1900, with sixty-five subscribers. In June, 1891, it was voted to hold an election to bond the town for $30,000 for a water system. In February, 1892, Sheehan & Dunn, contractors, were engaged to lay water pipes from springs, 4 1/2 miles north and west of Plymouth. First $20,000. The water has a fall of 108 feet, gravity system. The (D. U. R.) Detroit, Plymouth & Northville Railway ordinance was to the effect that a line should be built and put in operation before August 1, 1898.

The right to run the proposed Detroit & Howell Railway through the corporate limits was granted October 24, 1897. Some time before 1874, this road was extended and became the Detroit, Lansing & Lake Michigan. The Detroit, Lansing & Grand Rapids R. R. was voted on in March, 1910.

On July 10, 1872, it was voted that the toll bridge, across from George VanDeCar's, be done away with. The gas ordinance was voted on March, 1914. The Detroit Edison Company purchased the old electric light plant in the summer of 1916. Boulevard lights installed on Main from Mill street, down south Main, from Penningman to Harvey; around the park in front of the school house, in fall of 1921. On Liberty street.

Plymouth Rock Lodge, No. 47, organized January 10, 1851. Tonquah Lodge, No. 32, I. O. O. F., organized December 21, 1847. Population of Plymouth in 1870 was 969; in 1880, 1025; in 1922, 3000.

Riverside cemetery was established by ordinance, February 3, 1880. It consisted of twenty acres, and cost $1,000.00. The question of a cemetery in north village came up in 1844, and about one acre of land was purchased, July 30, 1845, for $75.00. A cemetery society was formed, a constitution adopted, and the first twelve members of the society gave their joint deed for the land. Several payments were made, the last being in April, 1847. The society was known as the Plymouth Village Cemetery society, and anyone buying a lot became a member of the society, and was entitled to vote. The lowest price of lots was $3.00. There were 120 lots in all. Henry Colton was the first sexton. If the lots were not paid for after a certain time, the dead were removed to the public lots. June 20, 1891, it was voted to turn the grounds over to the common council of the village of Plymouth. The society could no longer maintain itself. Most of the bodies were removed to Riverside, as were also the bodies from the Presbyterian cemetery.

The Penningman Allen theatre and auditorium, built by Mrs. Kate E. Allen, in memory of her father, E. J. Penningman, and her husband, W. O. Allen, were opened Friday evening, November 22, 1918, with a benefit for the Y. M. C.

Main street was paved in 1908, while F. F. Bennett was president of the village. Penningman avenue from Main to Harvey and Liberty from Starkweather to Mill street, were paved in the fall of 1914. The soldiers' monument, located in Kellogg park, facing Main street, was a gift from Harry E. Bradner, July 1, 1917. Unveiled, Sunday, September 9, 1917. W. C. T. U. was organized May 7, 1874, at the home of Mrs. Mary Davis.

Plymouth Improvement Association was organized October, 1910. Chamber of Commerce, 1921.

Waterford, between Plymouth and Northville, was founded by two brothers by the name of Ramsdell, in 1837. It was planned to make Waterford an ideal place for working people. It was laid out with wide streets and parks. There was a tannery; a foundry; making farm implements; a tin and blind factory. The postoffice was called Mead's Mills. There was a large flouring mill run by three brothers by the name of Mead. This mill turned out 200 barrels of flour a day. All transportation was by wagon. There were three cooper shops where barrels were made, and these shops, with the farmers bringing wheat to the mill made Waterford a busy place. Then one of the old-fashioned saw mills, run by water power, was built. There was no church at Waterford. Industry grew to large proportions, and Waterford promised to be one of the largest towns in Michigan. But calamity struck it. The mill caught fire and burned with all its contents, including several thousand bushels of wheat and considerable flour. After this, a much larger mill was built, the largest in the state at that time, propelled by an immense wheel 18 feet in diameter. The completion of this mill was celebrated with a grand ball given in the packing room, which was very large. It was attended by several hundred people, and was an event long remembered. After about five or six years, this second mill of five stories burned to the ground. This sealed the doom of Waterford, and Plymouth and Northville drew the workmen away, and one by one the shops were closed, and now Waterford is just a four corners.

The settlers of Plymouth were mostly New Englanders, or of New England descent, who had enjoyed the advantages of and fully appreciated common school education. As soon as the first rude wants of life were provided for, a school was established. The school was a rough log cabin, the same as the settlers' dwellings. Seats of hewn slabs with pegs for legs and without backs.

The first school house built in Plymouth was in 1830. It was built of logs, and was located on the Shattuck hill about opposite the entrance to Riverside cemetery. In the early days, a log school was located on lands now owned by William Pfeiffer, and one on what is known as the Marcus Miller farm, now owned by William Wernick; one on the J. C. Petkarian's farm; also one on Golden street on the John Van Inwagen farm, now owned by Frank Palmer. This last was known as the Rutland district. One known as the Bradner school was located on land adjoining the Charles Bradner farm. Among the teachers of the Bradner school were: I. L. C. M. and Sarah Shattuck, Nancy Dean, Christiana Miller and Zerah Burr; while among the pupils are found the names: LeMay, Bradner, Chaffee, Sanford, Cramer, Burr and Turley. Some of the early teachers of the Rutland school were: Mary and Lucena Falkner, Kate and John Clayton, Carolina Hackett. Among the pupils:

Van Inwagen, Westfall, James Adams, McNulty, Moore and J. Clayton families. The log school on the J. C. Petkarian farm was known as the Red school house. Some of the teachers were: Darius Boughton, O. D. Power, L. K. Hough, Orrin Hough, John Elliott and John Ramsdell, Margaret Clayton, Juliette Wernick, Henrietta Hart, Clementina Steele, Sarah Shattuck and Cordelia Brearley. Among the pupils special names as Shattuck, Whipple, Sly, Barker, Bennett, Waterman, Crawford, Newman, Jackson, Elliott, Williams and Snell.

CHEVROLET SERVICE STATION
REPRESENTATIVES AND SALES-MEN HELD MEETING.

A meeting of the service station representatives and salesmen of Chevrolets in this community, was held at the office of the Allison-Bachelor Motor Sales, Chevrolet dealers, 331 Main street, Plymouth, Monday evening. They were addressed by E. S. Cowan, direct factory representative of the Chevrolet Motor Company.

Mr. Cowan, who is in personal touch with the sales and service of automobiles all over the country, gave a very enthusiastic talk on the advance and growth of the Chevrolet Motor Company, and the position they hold in the automobile world today. In 1921 the Chevrolet was seventh in production of cars sold, while today they are first in production of a car, fully equipped, quality, value, style and economic transportation. He says nothing compares with the Chevrolet.

The Company has recently added 5,000 Sales and Service stations, 10,000 Sales and Service stations in all, to keep pace with the rapid demand for the increased volume of business.

Every one at the meeting had a real interesting time and felt it was so valuable, that it was planned to hold similar meetings regularly.

NEW SYSTEM FOR PAYING TAXES HERE

Township treasurer, Russell Wingard, has inaugurated a new system for the payment of taxes this fall. Mr. Wingard will mail out to every taxpayer within a few days, a statement showing the amount of their taxes. When paying taxes these statements should be returned with check or when payment is made to the treasurer on collection days. The new system does away with the taxpayer having to go to the treasurer on collection days to find out the amount of his taxes, but on receiving the statement, a check for the same can be sent by mail if he so wishes, instead of waiting until one of the days set for the regular collections; and the taxpayer will in return, receive his receipt for the same. This system is in operation in Detroit and many other places, and is found to be most satisfactory.

EPISCOPAL NOTES

As there was no service on "All Saints Day," last week, appropriate hymns were sung for All Saints Day and a special sermon was preached last Sunday, by Franklin L. Gibson. His discourse was most impressive. His subject was, "Standing before Christ," taking as his text Rev. 20:12, and reference was made to those loved ones who have passed away since last All Saints Day. There was a good congregation, and we were pleased to welcome visitors, members from St. Paul's cathedral, Detroit.

There was quite a large turnout of the church-school, last Sunday. The pupils are most interested in their new lessons, and eager to learn. We welcomed another new teacher, Mrs. Bert Willis, who will take another class of the younger pupils, as it was found necessary to divide Mrs. Jennings' class.

The parish conference committee met in the church, last Friday evening. Preliminary plans were made for carrying out the campaign, and Sidney Sizemore has been appointed chairman. They meet every week, Thursdays, until the end of November.

It will be noticed that Mr. Gibson's office hour in the vestry of the church will in the future be every Thursday, 4:00 to 5:00 o'clock. It has been found necessary to change the original time to above time, as Mr. Gibson has been appointed one of the teachers of religious education in the Plymouth schools, every Tuesday and Thursday. During Mr. Gibson's office hours, he will be pleased to see anyone for consultation who wish to meet him.

The pupils of the church-school sure had a fine time last Friday evening, when they met by invitation of Mrs. George Wilcox, at her home on Penniman avenue for a social evening. There were games, story telling and acting, finishing up with refreshments. The party broke up at quite a late hour, and the children were taken to their homes in automobiles, but before leaving they expressed their appreciation of the very happy time they had spent, by giving three cheers for Mr. and Mrs. George Wilcox.

A box has been placed on the inside of the church door for the purpose of receiving communications, such as notices, requests, suggestions, etc., intended for the missionary, secretary, treasurer, superintendent of church-school or president of Ladies' Guild. Any communications placed in this box on Sundays will be attended to during the week.

If you have anything to sell, a liner in the Mail will bring you a buyer.

CITY OF SORROW

Smyrna Has Been Ravaged by Many Conquerors.

Place of Consequence Even in the Stone Age—Tamerlane Vainly Sought to Destroy It.

By SELBY F. MAXWELL

There is a legend among the Mohammedans that God has promised that Smyrna shall never be destroyed. They have abundant reason for such a belief.

Smyrna is one of the oldest cities in the world. It has withstood the ravages of time and peoples and has endured where whole empires have crumbled and are forgotten.

Smyrna was a considerable place in the Stone Age. Its original people were Semites of the Mediterranean strain, the small dark south Europeans of today.

Before 1500 B. C. the place passed under the rule of the Minoan emperors of Crete. Its civilization remained Cretan until the coming of the Greeks, who introduced the use of iron.

Homer was familiar with Smyrna and is thought to have spent some time there. Homer lived about 8,000 years ago, but to him Smyrna was still an ancient Greek city.

The place was conquered by the Aeolians, one of the first waves of Greek immigration to sweep that country. It was the Aeolians who gave the city its present name. The ancient Greeks were a blond people. They came from the Baltic slope of Europe, particularly from what is now Silesia and Bohemia.

Ionian Greeks followed the Aeolians about 700 B. C. Then came Aruian peoples from the uplands of Asia Minor, the Lydians, who were related to the Hittites. When Lydia fell to the empire of the Medes and the Persians, Smyrna fell with it, and was ravaged. Alexander the Great attempted to restore the city when he rose to power.

There then passed a succession of Grecian, Roman, and Byzantine masters, without, however, affecting the lives of the native peoples. The blond Greek type gradually diminished, whether from the climate or from intermarriage with the natives is not certain.

About the year 1000 A. D. a new ethnic element burst in. Turks from Central Asia appeared on the Aegean shores. The Turks are distantly related to the dark peoples who live in the uplands of central Europe. Their homeland, called Tartary, or Turkestan, extends from the Caspian sea to the Lena. They came first as marauders, later as conquerors.

In 1402 Smyrna was taken by Tamerlane, khan of the Mongols, a yellow people from north China. He burned the city, massacred the people, and to make sure that there would be no rise he filled up the harbor and destroyed the springs of water round about. After the death of Tamerlane the Turks regained control. They restored the harbor and rebuilt the city once more.

There are three main religions in the city, Greek and Aruian Christians and Moslems. These sects, however, mean nothing in an ethnic way. It would mean as much in this country to imply that Republicans and Democrats are anthropologically different; in both countries these distinctions are political rather than racial.

Rats Exterminate Themselves.
Director George Jenkinson of the Manchester Zoological gardens pronounced Great Britain's "rat week," when efforts were made to decimate the rats responsible for the destruction of $140,000,000 worth of food annually, to be a great mistake. The male rat, the bold rover, is the one caught by poison, and the death of males only improves living conditions for the survivors. Four male and six female rats will, under favorable conditions, increase to large proportions in a period of two years. Doctor Jenkinson's suggestion is to upset the numerical proportions between the sexes and leave the males to destroy their own kind; he would forbid the poisoning of rats, but would take them alive in traps, kill the females, and turn the males loose. He claims to have followed this method for years with success.—Scientific American.

Social Amenity.
The Woman recently dropped into a restaurant for tea. Being the rush time, she was shown to a table where a young-looking woman and a little girl about five years old were sitting. The Woman smiled at the child, then began looking at the menu, when she heard the childish voice say, "Please, won't you tell me your name?" The Woman did so and the little girl joyfully said, "This is my mother, Mrs. B.—. Now you've been introduced, let's talk."

Down on the Farm.
Summer Boarder—Ald does the splendor of a sunset mean nothing—nothing to you?
Hired Man—You betcher sweet life it does, missus! It means I kin on hitch an' go home.—Life.

Musical Taste.
"Do you like the summer boarders?" "No," answered Farmer Cornntossel. "Now that the smart, up-to-date city folks are gone we'll get a chance to play a little something besides jazz on the phonograph."

A Timely Suggestion
This is the season of the year when the prudent and careful housewife replenishes her supply of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is almost sure to be needed before the winter is over, and results are much more prompt and satisfactory when it is kept at hand and given as soon as the first indication of a cold appears, and before it has become settled in the system. There is no danger in giving it to children as it contains no opium or other harmful drug.—Advertisement.

FORTY-THREE MILES OF NEW ROAD BUILT IN 1922.

The annual report of the Wayne county board of road commissioners just published, contains a lot of interesting data regarding the thoroughfares of the county, especially the reference made to the work that has been accomplished during the past year. A total of 43 miles of new cement highways have been constructed during 1922, and a whole lot of grading, widening and the erection of new bridges preparatory to the work for next year has been accomplished, says the Free Press.

Road building and widening at almost every point on the map of Wayne county, with or without financial assistance by the federal and state governments, and construction of bridges, bridgeheads and grade separations, form the topic of the bulk of the 112-page report just made public.

Apart from the actual work of building and improving highways, however, the commissioners point to the success of their policy of giving Wayne county travelers not only the most convenient and lasting, but also the most beautiful roads in the country.

In contrast with the policy of earlier road building in the county, the present commission is striving to apply the principle that "the appearance of our roadsides is becoming of more interest to the traveling public as well as of value to property owners" than was the case of a few years ago.

Have Planted Trees
"In view of this," says the report, "we have been planting and maintaining trees as a mark of progress, which has not been attained by any other county."

Last spring, according to the report, 2,200 American elms and Norway maples, which after many experiments have been found to be most suitable for shade and for Wayne county soil, were planted on the Seven Mile road, over a stretch of 12 miles, from Livernois avenue west to Livonia township and from Conner's Creek road east to beyond Gratiot road.

In their scheme of planting roadside trees the commissioners aim at an artistic lack of uniformity along the roads lying farther from Detroit, where clumps of trees at varying intervals are believed to be more pleasing to the aesthetic sense of a wayfarer than the uniformly spaced trees lining city streets.

Announce Big Program
A considerable planting program is announced for this fall, when about 4,300 trees will be used on Telegraph road, from Flat Rock to Dearborn, and on Seven Mile road westward through Northville, including Fishery road. Most of this planting will be of the "informal" kind, and pines will be used when sand hills are encountered. A new feature in beautifying Wayne county roads will be the proposed low shrub triangles at road intersections.

Forty-Three Miles of New Roads.
The new roads built during the year cover a total length of more than 43 miles, all this representing highways of the approved concrete sort, while more than 15 miles of road have been widened to 20 feet or more, most of this work being done on north and south highways.

"When the car, coal and cement shortage compelled us to cut down our construction activities early in August," the commissioners explain, "we immediately started the work of grading and building culverts and drainage structures for our 1923 road building program."

Among the roads completed up to September 15th are Telegraph road, Cherry Hill road, Fishery road, the Two-Way road on Oakwood boulevard, the Waltz and Willow roads, Phoenix road, Wayne road north and Farmington road, and Southfield and Town-line roads. Many of these thoroughfares now extend to the Wayne county line, where they link up with highways running far and wide over Michigan.

Among the recommendations made in the report is the levy of a one-half mill county road tax, which would represent 50 cents on each $1,000 of the equalized assessed valuation of the county. This tax, if levied, would permit the road commissioners to continue their improvement program on roads which they urge should be taken over by the county, including parts of Sunnyside road, St. Cosme road, the Middle-Belt road, known as the Jim Ruff road, Allen road and Telegraph road extension, a total length of about 45 miles.

Have U. S. Agreements.
For most of the proposed improvement work the board has entered into agreements with the federal government and the state highway department, which will jointly pay 75 per cent of the cost.

Other roads which the county is advised to take over in the immediate future and which will be improved on federal aid basis are: Five-Mile road for a distance of 17 miles westward from the city limits, and Plymouth road over the 5-mile stretch to the county line.

Does Watch Keep Good Time?
 If it does not you should have it attended to
 To get good time from any watch it should have all the old oil and dirt cleaned out and then oiled with good fresh watch oil, every 18 months.
 If you should drop your watch have it examined—if a jewel should be cracked it will wear the pivot and cause more expense when you finally have to have it looked after. Get an estimate of the cost of the repairs before leaving your watch, it may save considerable hard feelings to all concerned.
