The seemingly little bit of cold air that seeps in through the tiny cracks around your doors and windows does more harm than possibly you think. A few cubic inches of cold air can add a great deal to a fuel bill, in addition to creating cold drafts that endanger the health of the family—especially if there are children.

PLYMOUTH RESERVES LOSE TO WAYNE

The Plymouth Reserves lost their first game of the season to the Wayne Reserves at Wayne, Wednesday, November 8th. Wayne won the toss and received. The ball changed hands a few times and then Wayne's short end runs brought it up to five-yard line, but Plymouth held for downs, and Cline punted out of danger. Neither team could score. At the end of the first half, the score was 0 to 0.

In the fourth quarter, Wayne made two touchdowns, one through line-smashing and the other on a long pass, Steinhauer to Hearn. With only five minutes to play, Plymouth worked furiously to score. Quarter-back plunges and a volley of passes advanced the ball to Wayne's thirty-yard line. Then Cline caught one of Wilson's passes for a touchdown, and Wilson kicked goal, making the score 12 to 7. With one minute to play, Wayne chose to receive and before they could be forced to punt, the game ended, 12 to 7 for Wayne.

While the work of Cline and Palmer stood out particularly, the whole team played better than in the game on the home field. At Plymouth they faced all single players, while at Wayne they faced an organized team, which not only outweighed, but out-charged them. On a slippery field, with a ball almost too wet to pass, no better proof of gameness can be given than the final score, made only through perseverance in an attack apparently hopeless. Lester Smith of Albion, who refereed, said: "That was as snappy a game, and as good football as I have seen this year."

FORD EMPLOYEES ENJOY MASQUERADE PARTY

A merry crowd of about one hundred young people from the Highland Park, Ford Motor plant, attended a Harvest Masquerade party at the Penniman Hill, Saturday evening, November 11th, given by the girls employed at the Ford plant at Phoenix. The auditorium was prettily decorated in the season's colors, black and orange crepe paper being festooned from the center of the hall; lanterns covered the electric light globes, while around each post and in the corners were stalks of corn tied loosely and large pumpkins on the floor. The guests were escorted from the car to the hall by a committee of two "en costume." Dancing was the entertainment of the evening and an orchestra composed of employees from the Ford Motor plant furnished excellent music. During the evening, two radio singers from Detroit, entertained the company with songs. A fine buffet lunch was served, the tables being handsomely decorated, the color scheme of orange and black being carried out. A grand march was the opening number on the program and during the evening several prizes were awarded. At the close of the party, the guests returned to Detroit, declaring the evening a most enjoyable one.

Beware!

Beware of the stock salesman who comes to you with pretty promises of big profits.
There are many so-called investments being offered by insistent salesmen. Not a few of these stocks will turn out to be worthless.
Don't rely upon the statements of the salesman. He has a big commission in mind. Go to your banker and ask him what he knows of the company whose stock is offered you.
He will tell you honestly, and if he does not know he will find out for you gladly and without charge. Ask your banker.

The CHURCH in the MIDST

HOW MUCH IS IT WORTH TO YOU?
It keeps alive all the finer elements of human nature; inspires us to subdue all the baser instincts of life; fosters the growth of the soul, that part of our life without which a man is not far removed from the beasts; inculcates all the higher ideals of living; helps us to develop all that is pure, true and noble; creates respect for law and order, and decency; creates a high moral standard for our business, social, industrial and home life; fosters education; is the motive of all progress, etc., etc.
The heathen never progress. Only those parts of the world coming under the influence of Christianity ever progress to any great extent. HOW MUCH ARE YOU INDEBTED TO THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH for living within its pale of influence?

DO YOU ATTEND ANY CHURCH?

A WORD TO THE WISE

We are approaching the holiday season once more, and Christmas will be here before we know it, and before a lot of people are ready for it. Already daily papers and magazines reaching Plymouth, are filled with tempting offers of holiday goods, and already those who are given to buying out of town or patronizing mail order houses are doubtless commencing to send their dollars so far away that they will never come back. In a way our own merchants are largely to blame for a good deal of this money leaving the community. The old habit of waiting until a few days before Christmas to advertise holiday goods—or any other bargains—is the very thing the big city stores and mail order houses enjoy. They take advantage of the situation, start advertising early, and get business right under the nose of the merchant who puts off advertising until the last minute. They get money that could be kept at home if holiday and fall and winter advertising was started earlier by our own merchants, and continued steadily. The mail order men are wise, because they have studied methods pursued by thousands of merchants in our smaller towns. They know that the advertiser who gets to the people first is the one who is going to rake off the cream of the business.

So they start early, keep it up steadily, and win out. There is no good excuse for letting them get away with it this year. But the way to keep them from getting away with it is to start now and advertise fall, winter and holiday goods—and don't stop as long as the people are buying that class of goods.

BETTER TIMES

There can be little doubt that unless some great calamity occurs we are on the way to better times. Roger Babson, perhaps the best posted man in America on business and finance, recently prepared a chart showing that the rise and fall of prosperity is periodical, that good times and bad times alternate according to general law and that the country tends to right itself like a tossing ship. According to this chart there should be in the near future better business for stocks and bonds. It shows that workers are becoming scarcer than work; that railroads are being offered the largest volume of traffic in their history; that postal receipts are steadily increasing in every section of the United States; that Britain's payment of her first fifty million dollar interest installment on her debt to us has strengthened confidence in foreign exchange; that gratifying progress is being made in reducing the danger of a serious coal famine; that favorable manufacturing conditions greatly outnumber unfavorable conditions.

Of course no one expects a repetition of the making and spending that characterized the year 1918. Not a citizen of Plymouth expects or really wants anything like this. But they will welcome, and Babson says they shall soon experience better times than we have had for several years. And he believes prudent buying and prudent selling will hasten such a time.

A FAMILY REUNION

Relatives to the number of eighty gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jolliffe, near Bradgate, Iowa, Friday evening, October 20th, to surprise and honor Mr. and Mrs. Dan Jolliffe and son, Robert, of Plymouth, Michigan, and Mrs. Cerinda McIntyre of St. Thomas, Ontario.

Handshaking and social conversation took up the early part of the evening, followed by a short program of music and recitations by the youngest generation. Then the oldest members of the family were called upon, and although this part was wholly unexpected to them, they responded heartily. Thomas Jolliffe and Mrs. McIntyre sang, "The Church in the Wildwood." Dan Jolliffe gave an oldtime recitation, "The Boy That Could Never Keep Still." John Jolliffe and Mrs. Mary Pringle sang an old, old song of their youth, entitled "The Better Land." Each number was well rendered and greatly appreciated by all.

Bountiful refreshments were served, after which the crowd departed for their homes about midnight, voting the reunion, a genuine "Jollification."

A GREAT TOM MIX PICTURE COMING

A similarity in the lives of Morvich, the great race horse, and of Tony, the famous horse owned by Tom Mix, the Fox star, who has been starred in his own right in a new Mix picture known as "Just Tony" and based on Max Brand's novel "Alcatraz," which comes to the Penniman Allen theatre, Wednesday, November 22.

It will be remembered that when Morvich was a colt he was regarded as the most disappointing piece of horseflesh ever foaled. He had had knees and his owner believed that making a race horse of him was impossible. But the whole world knows that despite bad knees Morvich became a world's champion.

So it was with Tony. He was an undersized, awkward, unattractive little fellow, and when he rambled around the stable yard on his ridiculous legs, everybody laughed at him. Poor little Tony seemed to be of no particular color and of no particular good in the world.

But one day Pat Chrisman, pal of Tom Mix, was scouting for new horses to add to the Mix ranch. He saw Tony and marvelled at the intelligence of the little fellow, who followed Pat around like a dog. Look apples and sugar out of his pocket and untied knots with his teeth. Pat is a horseman and he saw possibilities in Tony.

Pat immediately told Mix to go out and take a look at the youngster. Tom saw all the good points that Pat did and others that Pat didn't see. The result was that Tom bought Tony and became not only his owner, but his idol. He trained the pony himself with the assistance of Chrisman, and now Tony is the most famous horse in pictures and is loved by all Tom's great following of fans. The horse soon outgrew his ugly duckling stage and became a handsome chestnut color, with perfect limbs and a wonderfully intelligent head. Only recently Tony posed as the model for a bronze statue symbolizing the early West.

EPWORTH LEAGUE CONDUCTS WIN-MY-CHUM MEETINGS

In accordance with the annual custom of the Epworth Leagues of the country, the organization of young people connected with the Methodist church, one week is set aside during the year, preferably during the fall, when the Christian young people endeavor to win their chums and friends for the service of Christ. The local chapter of the Epworth League will observe this plan of personal effort next week. In connection with the personal work being done, and as an aid thereto, a meeting is held each night at the Methodist church to which all young people of the community are cordially invited from the age of 14 and on up. A great deal of inspiration is usually brought to the young people through these various efforts.

The program for next week's meetings is as follows: Sunday night, at 6:30, the regular Epworth League devotional meeting, led by D. D. Nagle; Monday night, from 7:00 to 8:00 is Boys' night, Mr. Smith, Supt. of schools, will speak on "Building for Service." Tuesday night is Girls' night, Mrs. Nagle, leader. The remaining nights are for both boys and girls. Wednesday, Prof. Ross, leader; Thursday, T. O. Huckle, of Ypsilanti, District President of the Epworth League, topic, "Recreation for Christ." Friday, Rev. Ralph Brown, pastor of the Saline Methodist church.

On Saturday night at 7:30, there is to be a social gathering for the young folks, in charge of a group of Christian young folks from the University of Michigan. A rousing time is in store for all. On Sunday following, this same team of University folks will have charge of the services of the day. The young people of the various churches and of no church in particular are invited to share in the privileges and inspiration of the week by attending any or all of these meetings announced.

MICHIGAN COW NEARS WORLD'S RECORD MARK

HOLSTEIN-FREISIAN OWNED BY LOEB FARMS OF CHARLEVOIX, PRODUCES 35,000 POUNDS MILK IN A YEAR

Producing 35,339.5 pounds of milk in one year, a Michigan cow has just broken all previous state records and is said to have taken rank as the second highest producer in the world.

The new record holder is Kolrain Marion Finnerne, a Holstein-Freisian owned and developed by the Loeb Farms of Charlevoix. She was seven years old last September, a month before completing her great record. Marion had already made very creditable figures at an earlier age, the recently announced yearly record mark being the culmination of her outstanding production achievements.

Supervision of the record by the Charlevoix cow was handled by inspectors under the staff of the dairy division at the Michigan Agricultural College, and the official figures on her record were released this week by M. H. Gardner, of Delavan, Wisconsin, Superintendent of Advanced Registry for the United States.

Fat contained in the 35,339.5 pounds of milk produced in 365 days ending Oct. 26, 1922, totals 1,022.85 pounds. She freshened at the age of six years, one month and eight days, at the beginning of the test. Twelve supervisors were employed in the conduct of the test, 275 days of which were strictly "official" with a supervisor constantly in attendance.

The record of Kolrain Marion Finnerne ranks her as one of the greatest milk cows of all time, and is considered as a distinct achievement for Michigan dairy interests.

The new school house is progressing rapidly, and will be a great improvement at King's Corners. The new building is much needed, as the school is so large it is necessary to hold two sessions, one in the forenoon and one in the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Parrish called on their daughter, Mrs. L. E. Kaiser and family, near Plymouth, Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Lockhart and son, Kenneth, went to Caro, Mich., Saturday to visit the former's parents. They returned home Sunday evening.

BAPTIST NOTES

Rev. Harold F. Sayles, the evangelist, who is conducting revival meetings in the Baptist church, had charge of all the services last Sunday except the B. Y. P. U., which was led by Gertrude Grainger assisted by Madeline Shackleton. The subject was, "Church Membership."

The Sunday-school hour was spent listening to Mr. Sayles. He used a blackboard to illustrate the simple way to become a Christian. Several expressed a desire to decide for Christ. The pictures have been extra fine, and will be tonight. The subject will be, "The Dance of the Bible."

Sunday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock, there will be given slides covering "Pilgrims Progress." You can't afford to miss it.

The Sunday evening service will be the closing meeting. We want everyone to come, and every Baptist plan to be at these last three services.

Sheila's Return Home

By ANNE WHITFIELD
(© 1912, Western Newspaper Union.)

Dan Connor came home from work. He flung open the door of his shack, switched on the electric light, and at once went to the cot in the corner.

Mrs. Blayds, who looked after little Kittle in the daytime, had just left. Kittle was sitting in her cot as good as gold, playing with the doll Dan had bought her. She looked up at her father.

"Coo-oo-oo," she said.

Dan watched the little mite and laughed again more bitterly. A puzzled look came over the little girl's face.

"Mamma," she whimpered.

"She won't forget!" said Dan. "By and by, Kittle, darling."

He gave her bread and milk and watched her eat it. He beat up the pillow. Kittle was asleep in a moment. There came a tap at the door.

Big Bill Peters came in.

"Hello, Bill!" said Dan. "Speak easy. The kid's asleep."

Big Bill's rumble had never awakened Kittle. There was something very gentle about the big man, despite his size. He sat down on a chair, hanging his hat on the back.

"You'll have to get the child adopted, Dan," he said.

"Tut, man, that's no way to bring up a kid! It's for her sake, I mean, unless your wife—"

Dan raised his hand. "I've heard enough about her," he said.

"You've had no news for three months now?"

"Nor hope I ever will."

Big Bill laid a hand on his shoulder. "You know Sheila and Michael Sullivan had been sweethearts in the old country. He was a black-hearted beast, but just the kind to fascinate a girl like Sheila. She's weak."

"Weak and bad," muttered Dan.

"She's sure to come back. Wouldn't you forgive? For the kid's sake?"

"I'll never have her in my house again, Bill."

"Suppose she wanted to take the kid away?"

"She'll never get her."

"You don't need to worry, Dan," said Big Bill. "She'll never come here again."

"What'dya mean?" Dan stared at him. "You've heard something! She's—she isn't—dead?"

Big Bill nodded. "Go easy, lad," he said. "She died of pneumonia in Chicago. That scoundrel had left her. She was poor. Her last words were about you, asking if you'd forgive. 'Twas Mrs. O'Reilly had the news of it."

Dan began rocking himself back and forth in the chair. "Sheila dead," he muttered. "Poor little Sheila. You're sure, Bill?"

"Dead sure," said Bill. "So you don't have to worry for fear she'll be coming back to you. I wanted to break the news as best I could, seeing as it was me brought you and her together. And do you remember that time you quarreled, you both asked me always to be your friend whatever happened, and to do the best I could for you?"

"Poor little girl," muttered Dan. "I guess I see how she could have fallen for that blackguard, Bill. It makes such a difference when she's dead, don't it?"

"It oughtn't to," said Bill gently. "That's the way we misjudge. Death oughtn't to make no difference. You should have forgiven her in your heart. Women are weak things, Dan, not like us, though we men are weak enough, God knows."

"Maybe I would have gotten over it," admitted Dan. "But it was hard, bitter hard, and I—loved her." A sob choked him. "Poor little Sheila! I wonder if it'd make her feel better to know I've forgiven her."

"Sure," said Big Bill. "That's the spirit, lad. And so the past is past, and you don't have to worry no more."

He got up softly and stretched out his hand.

"Well, so long, Dan," he said.

He opened the door. A blast of cold air rushed in. Some one was standing outside, a woman hooded and cloaked.

"Sheila!"

The cry that broke from Dan's throat was like that of a man in mortal pain.

"Dan," he said in his gentle voice, "you've forgiven the dead. Forgive the living, then, for Kittle's sake!"

Dan raised Sheila's hand to his lips. "Let's both forgive," he stammered, and Big Bill closed the door upon them.

Old Billingsgate.

Billingsgate, England, is principally associated in the public mind with the great fish market—and language.

In the old days when fish was landed at the quayside and women ("fishwives") were largely engaged in the trade, the language, and the fighting, among them were equally bitter. Old prints show how masculine and pugnacious were the women. They swore, and they fought to such purpose that the language of Billingsgate became a by-word.

Billingsgate as a market for fish goes back as early as to the time of Ethelred 979, for it is upon record that he made a law granting exemption to men of Boven who brought wine and large fish to Billingsgate.

How Not to Take Cold

Some persons are subject to frequent colds, while others seldom, if ever, have a cold. You will find that the latter take good care of themselves. They take a shower or a cold sponge bath every day in a warm room, avoid overheated rooms, sleep with a window open or partly open, avoid excesses, over eating, becoming over heated and then chilled and getting the feet wet. Then, when they feel the first indication of a cold, they take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy without delay and it is soon over.

The Free Church Ladies' Aid had a very pleasant meeting, last Thursday, with Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Conklin. The ladies will serve their annual chicken-pie dinner at the church, Thanksgiving day, with a sermon also. Everyone welcome.

PRESBYTERIAN NOTES

Last Sunday we were favored with "The Choir Invisible."

This has been Bazaar Week and the ladies have been unusually busy.

At the Christian Endeavor meeting last Sunday night, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Marian A. Bennett; vice-president, Clinton C. Goyer; secretary, Margaret Goyer, corresponding secretary, Genevieve McCumpha; treasurer, Catherine Learned. Installation of officers will take place next Sunday night.

The members of this church join with others in the community in extending to Charles Merz and his daughter, Olive, best wishes for success in their new business enterprise. Here's a good motto, too: "Not slothful in business; fervent in spirit; serving the Lord."—Romans, 12:11.

Mrs. Louis Hillmer has presented the pastor of the church with a fine filing cabinet, and it is now installed in the study. It is of massive oak, beautifully carved, with fourteen glass and paneled doors, eighteen drawers and one hundred and five pigeon holes. You are invited to call and see it; for it is a specimen of fine cabinet making such as one seldom sees in these days of standardized, machine-made furniture.

PERRINSVILLE GIRL WEDS

One of the prettiest of the fall weddings locally, was solemnized at St. Mary's church Saturday morning, November 4, when Miss Agnes Yuchasz of Perrinsville, was united in marriage to Leo Moore of Wayne. The ceremony was performed in the presence of only a few of the immediate relatives and friends of the couple, the nuptial mass being pronounced by Fr. Connors of St. Mary's church.

The bride was beautifully gown in white georgette and carried a large bouquet of white chrysanthemums. She was attended by Miss Nora Moore who wore a dainty dress of peach colored organdie. Anthony Yuchasz acted as groomsmen.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Moore at the home of the bride's parents at Perrinsville. Both Mr. and Mrs. Moore are among Wayne's most popular younger people, and congratulations are extended by hosts of friends. They will make their home in Wayne.

INDIVIDUALITY

FOUR and one half billion gallons of Gasoline are consumed annually in this country.

MORE than six hundred refineries are engaged in producing Gasoline to meet this enormous demand.

CONSIDER the difference in crude oils—the many methods of refining—the varying degrees of accuracy to which the quality standards of each refinery are held. Does the argument that there is no difference in Gasoline—or that one brand is as good as another—seem logical in the face of these things?

AMERICAN Gasoline refutes the "just as good" argument by its decidedly individual excellence. Summer or winter, warm weather or cold—it starts you off with a smile. A touch on the accelerator and your motor responds immediately. With American Gasoline in the tank, your car gives you all the speed and power the makers intended it to develop, and a gallon carries you farther—but not so far that you can't fill up again with American Gasoline, for you can get it wherever you go.

Old Einstein's Moving Day

By AUSTIN FLEET

(© 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)

"Skinner, I got somep'n'll make your mouth water," said Larry the Blood to his friend. "I remember Einstein, that pawnbroker guy what done us out of about a thousand berries over that little deal we pulled off last July?"

"Tup, what about it?"
"Well, I got in touch with a guy what works for Einstein, and what d'ya think? Old Einstein's got a house full of furniture—antique stuff—upstairs, and his family's away at the seaside, and the place's empty."

"Well, what good'll that do us?"
"Jest this. This guy, Aronson, figgers it's about time to beat it before Einstein gets wise to his pickings, and he's in with us on this play. That furniture of Einstein's all French imported, and it's worth twelve thousand berries—real antiques, no kidding, Skinner."

"Aronson's rented a house in Brooklyn, one of them respectable, old-fashioned parts where half the population's asleep all the time, and the other half just waking up. Aronson's brother has the moving business on East Fourteenth."

"Now here's the game. Aronson comes with us to Einstein's house tomorrow, and we takes the stuff away. The cop there knows Aronson, and he don't know me; he's a green cop from Cork. We takes the stuff out and moves it over to this house in Brooklyn that Aronson's rented in the name of Jones. We leaves it there for two or three months, till the hue and cry's died away. Then it's easy 'nough to wrap it up and ship it to Boston, where we c'n get five or six thousand for it."

"That don't make my mouth water," answered Skinner. "Waiting two or three months don't make no bit with me."

"Aronson's offered to buy it for five thousand down," answered Larry. "How'll twenty-five hundred hit you with this hot weather comin' on and rollin' chairs at Atlantic City?"

"Now you're beginnin' to talk," said Skinner. "Lead me to it."
The plans were made for a few days ahead. At the appointed time Larry and Skinner met Aronson with the van and drove to Einstein's house. Aronson had the key, and there was no difficulty in gaining admission.

They had been at work nearly three hours, and had just succeeded in carrying out an enormous French sideboard.

"Go easy with her, boys," said Aronson. "That bit's worth two thousand berries alone. Mind you don't scrape her."

"Scrape her?" muttered Larry. "I'd like to scrape the guy that made her!"
The van was just large enough to contain the contents of the Einstein home, but at last the job was done. It was packed full, and nothing remained inside the Einstein house but the usual litter of papers, decrepit pails, broken shovels, and rags.

"Giddap, Aronson," muttered Larry, sinking down upon a thousand-dollar rug. "I guess that job's finished."
"Say, I didn't know a guy could raise such a thirist as mine," said Skinner.

"You wait," said Larry cryptically. They drove downtown with their plunder, crawled across the Brooklyn bridge, after passing through several streets about the Heights, Aronson got down and indicated a house at the corner, with drawn shades.

"I got the key," he said. "You wait here, boys, till I see if the coast's clear. Then I'll open the door and wave to you."
"Awright," said Larry weakly.

The two friends had waited about ten minutes when Aronson opened the front door and waved to them. Larry drew the van up to the curb.

"S'all right?" he asked.
"Sure," answered Aronson. "Come in and have a wet one, boys."

The "boys" obeyed the invitation with alacrity, entered the empty house, and went into the bare living room in front.

"Petrified, they stood and stared at him."

Einstein grinned. "You deserve one, boys, for bringing all my stuff over the bridge free," he addressed them. "What d'you think of my new house? Nice little place, what? I want it moved in quick, because the missus is coming home tomorrow."

"You—" said Skinner.
"You—" said Larry.

Fine Tapestries in Rheims Cathedral. In the sixteenth century the weavers of tapestry in Belgium were obliged to mark their work, and this also became the law for Flemish and French weavers. This has enabled us to identify some of the finest of the old productions. Among the most magnificent tapestries of the world were those in the cathedral of Rheims. The tapestries were removed to safety before the destruction of the cathedral.—Exchange.

INN HAS HISTORIC INTEREST

Hostelry on Long Island Sound a Place of Entertainment for Hundreds of Years.

One of the oldest and most distinguished hosteries in the United States is the Canoe Place Inn, between Shinnecock and Peconic bays, on Long Island sound. The charter of this fine, old, rambling, red-brick structure was signed by Queen Anne, but the inn was doing a thriving business years previous to this. An interesting figure is the venerable figurehead of the frigate Ohio, which, after an honorable service, was displaced by the ironclad and finally broken up in the waters which was the cove. One of the most massive of existing figureheads, it was carved in Greece and presented, with much ceremony, to this government. It shows Hercules in impressive pose and was venerated by the Greek donors to possess magic gifts. One of the most valuable sets of registers to be found in this country is to be examined in Canoe Place Inn. Its famous autographs begin in 1659 with the park of Wyandach, grand sachem of the Montauks, and include famous colonial governors, Manhattan, Dutch, Swedish and English, for two hundred years. The inn fell into the hands of the British authorities during the Revolutionary war and provided for the officers under Lord Howe and Sir Henry Clinton—as close an approach to a club as existed in those days in this part of the world.

WORK THAT IS IMMORTAL

Gibbon's "Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire" Long Acknowledged as Masterpiece.

The "Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire" was written by Edward Gibbon (1737-1794); it is universally acknowledged to be one of the greatest masterpieces of historical composition. The first volume was published in 1776, and had an immediate success. The second and third volumes appeared in 1781, and the final publication of the entire work in six volumes took place in 1788. The author's uncompromising hostility to Christianity, however, gave great offense to many readers, and was occasion of several attacks by English divines. Alison, the historian, declared the "Decline and Fall" to be the greatest historical work in existence. Gibbon's profit from the sale of his work was £8,000 ($30,000 normal exchange), that of his publisher, £60,000 ($200,000).
The author says: "It was at Rome, on the fifteenth day of October, 1764, as I sat musing amidst the ruins of the capitol, while the barefooted friars were singing vespers in the temple of Jupiter, that the idea of writing the decline, and fall of the city started to my mind."

That Pesky Mosquito.

Imagination often works as an ally of mosquitoes in causing sleeplessness in summer. When the weary sleeper has tossed about the bed and exhausted himself slapping at the winged tormentor he pulls the sheet over his head and tries again for slumber. The pest may have fled, but in a moment the buzzing sound is heard again.
Half unconscious in sleep the victim holds his breath waiting for the mosquito to alight. The buzzing seems far off, but slowly gets nearer and nearer. Now fully awake he frees his arm from the entangling sheet and prepares to strike. Still the buzzing seems at a distance. He lies awake, every nerve tense, determined to make an end of his foe when it gets near enough.
Still the buzzing goes on. The victim sits up in bed the better to locate its source. Then all of a sudden the clang of a bell proves that he had been listening to the hum of a street car. He turns over and waits for the real mosquito's return.

Hoatzin Remarkable Bird.

Strange and weird as the adult hoatzin may be it is the young birds that really amaze us. For both thumb and forefinger are armed with sharp, recurved claws, better developed than in any other known bird, and, what is more important, they are entirely functional. William Beebe, director of the Tropical Research station in British Guiana, has done more than any other scientist to reveal the secrets of the hoatzin. He has found that this remarkable youngster uses its wing claws to haul itself about the rough nest in which it is hatched, and also to help in climbing about among the branches. Mr. Beebe has also described the strange ability of the naked fledgling to swim under water.

Football With a Golden Text.

Little Earl, aged three, lived near a certain college campus, and he was much excited last fall over the football games. One day he placed a football that had been given him between his sturdy legs and leaned over it as he had seen the center do. Then for a moment he was stumped. He knew that the players called out something before the ball was put into play, but he had no idea what it was. All he could think of was his Sunday school text; so he called out, "Be ye kind to one another—go!" and gave the ball a vigorous punch.—Youth's Companion.

WIN AT POTATO SHOW

STATE EXHIBITS ACCORDED HIGH HONORS AT DULUTH INTERNATIONAL—ALL SECTIONS REPRESENTED.

Potato growers of Michigan, exhibiting at the International Potato Show, held at Duluth, Minnesota, last week, won unusually high honors, according to word just received from J. W. Weston, potato specialist at the Michigan Agricultural College, who attended the big show. Competing against entries from the leading potato growing sections of the entire continent, Michigan men managed to make a clean sweep of prizes in the Russett Rural class, and to score notable victories in other classes as well.
In the Russett Rural field, Ernest Pettifor, of Gaylord, won first place; Brudy Brothers of Wolverine, second; Fran Wyreck, of Alanson; third; Lee Sneathen, Charlevoix, fourth; and W. L. Thomas, of Afton, fifth. In the Certified Seed exhibit, Brudy Brothers won second place with all varieties competing. Joe Yelle, of Sandoz, ranked tenth in the Greeg Mountain class, which was the largest and most hotly contested group in the show.
There were 27 exhibits from Michigan, four of which came from the Upper Peninsula. D. B. Jewell, county agricultural agent in Sheboygan County, was in charge of the state exhibits.

Miner Tells of Miraculous Escape From Death.

An Instrument of Preserving Man From Dreadful End, Animal Was Honored by Community.

This true story of the almost miraculous rescue of a man imprisoned in the shaft of a lead mine was told to the writer, Cora Cole McCullough, by a member of her family. We quote it from Our Deaf Animals (Boston), says the Literary Digest.

Many years ago I was living in Montana. A smelter had been built and it created a demand for silver rock. I owned an interest in a lead mine that had been sunk over thirty feet. Thinking the time had come to make it available, I decided to go there and get some ore and have it tested. I did so, and reached the place just in time to take shelter in the mine from a terrible hail storm. I lighted my candle, went to the bottom, and went to work. I had not been there more than five minutes when I heard a noise that sounded like a cannon. The rock over my head shook, and in a moment the shaft caved in. You can imagine my feelings better than I can describe them, when I found myself buried alive.

I tremble even at this distant day, when I think of that moment. The roof of the shaft was made of rocks, and when they came down they did not pack so tightly, but that air came through. There was nothing I could do to release myself. I knew that if relief did not come from the outside I must perish. No one knew that I had gone there. A road ran past the mouth of the shaft, but it was not traveled much, and I was not likely to attract attention by calling. Nevertheless, I shouted at intervals all day. The following morning I commenced calling again, and all day, whenever I thought I heard a sound, I shouted. When night came again, all hopes of being released were abandoned. I will not dwell on the agonies I endured. The morning of the fourth day of my imprisonment I heard something crawl into my grave.

I lighted my candle and saw a rabbit. There was only one aperture large enough to admit him; I closed it to prevent his escape. I saw in him food to appease my hunger, and my hand was raised to kill him, when a thought occurred to me that prevented the blow from descending.

I had two fishing lines. Their united length would reach the roof. I took off my shirt, tore it into strips, tied them together, and then to the fish line. I then tied the end made out of my shirt around the rabbit's neck and let him out. He soon reached the end of the line, and I knew by the way he was pulling that he was making a desperate effort to escape. Soon the tugging ceased, and as I knew that gnawing was one of a rabbit's accomplishments, I thought he had gnawed himself loose. About three hours afterward I felt the line pull, and some one called. I tried to answer, but the feeble noise I made died away in the cavern. I then pulled the line a little to show that I was still alive. All grew still again, and I knew the person had gone for assistance. Then came the sound of voices. I pulled in the line and it brought me food. It took all the men who worked in the shaft nine hours to reach me.

A very large pine tree that stood near had been the cause of my misfortune. It had been dead a number of years, and the storm had blown it over. The terrible blow it struck the ground had caused the caving in of the shaft. The rabbit had wound the line around a bush and tied himself as short that he was imprisoned outside as securely as I had been inside. He was taken to town, put in a large cage, and supplied with all rabbit delicacies the market afforded. He, however, did not thrive, and the boys, believing he "pined in thought," voted to set him free. He was taken back to his old neighborhood, and liberated. He not only saved my life, but became the benefactor of all the rabbits near, the miners refraining from shooting any, for fear it might be my rabbit.

Lead Poisoning Among Workers.
The report of the United States Public Health Service on this subject is now in press. The danger is chiefly in those handling the glass; the lead is inhaled as dust, the lungs absorb lead from fumes, and there is some absorption through the skin. The use of leadless glass, already established in European factories, would remedy the trouble, but this requires sweeping changes in our manufacturing and firing methods. Scientific American.

A Freshman's Viewpoint.

"I came expecting to recite," wrote one youth, "but was deceived."

"My first impression reminded me of some cartoons, such as 'When a Fuller Needs a Friend' and 'Where Do We Go from Here,'" wrote another, who looked the self-confidence that the first youth had displayed.

His Start.

Client—Very true. It got untied and he tripped, and he received $2,000 from an accident insurance company. Judge.

A Family Reunion.
This is the season of the year when the families and friends assemble to enjoy a good time. It is a time when the old friends and old acquaintances meet and the new friends are made. It is a time when the old and the new are blended together and the best of all worlds is created.

EXPLAINING GRADES IN ARMY

Fanciful and Pretty Tale of the Origin of Insignia Which Denote Military Rank.

Fanciful indeed is the tale woven about the selection and origin of the various marks of army insignia.

The story begins with a two-barred fence, near a group of trees. One of these is a sturdy oak and another a silver poplar, the tree which grows to greatest heights in our forests. Above this tree flies an American eagle. It is night and the stars look down upon the scene.

The first step, or first rank of a commissioned officer is climbing the first bar of the fence, and is denoted by the one bar on a first lieutenant's shoulder. Another step up and the officer has his foot on the second bar of the fence—the two bars surmounted being indicated by the two-bar mark of the captain. The next stage of the climb upward is the branches of the trees, and the rank of major, denoted by the gold oak leaf on the shoulder, has been reached.

In order to go higher the candidate for higher rank must now surmount the tall silver poplar, and when he has done so he is entitled to wear the silver leaf of the lieutenant colonel. The eagle soaring over the treetops indicates the rank of colonel—the silver eagle being worn by officers of that rank. The stars are the highest of all and were reserved as insignia for generals.—Detroit News.

DISPUTE ORIGIN OF CALICHE

Scientists Disagree as to How Rock of Which Chile Has a Monopoly, Came About.

Chile's chief source of revenue, of which the country has virtually a world monopoly, is obtained from the rough rock known locally as caliche. Scientists disagree as to the origin of this valuable mineral, according to a writer in the National Geographic Magazine. Some claim (and Darwin among them) that it had its origin in seaweed of an ancient period. One savant argues that the deposit resulted from nitrogen contained in guano. Others believe in its atmospheric origin, advancing the theory that in a remote age electricity passing through the moist air, by combination, formed nitric acid; this in turn, impregnating the flood waters of Andean streams and coming in contact with the limestone of the rocks, formed nitrate of lime; another step in nature's laboratory brought this nitrate of lime in contact with sulphate of soda, forming the caliche found today.

Iodine, precipitated from the nitrate solution, is the most important by-product of the caliche rock. By agreement among the nitrate establishments, its production is limited to every sixth year, that the market may not be overstocked.

Flour Used in Making Watches

Two barrels of flour are used every week in making watches at a well-known factory, which turns out from 2,000 to 3,000 watches a week. Since a baker uses about three pounds of flour to five loaves of bread, it follows that for every watch the maker uses the equivalent of a third of a loaf. The flour is made into dough and the dough is used to handle screws, rivets and other small parts.

Each man in that part of the business has a lump of dough always at hand, and when he wants to examine a screw he jabs a piece of dough on it. Then, turning it over, he has a good chance to look at it with his watchmaker's microscopic eyeglass. Many of the screws are too minute to pick up easily with the fingers, and many more, though large enough to be picked up, would be so covered by the fingers of the foreman as to be almost hidden from sight.

Taxidermy Now a Fine Art

The fine art of taxidermy, to a level with the other fine arts, thus far is a chapter of unwritten history. It is probable that not more than a score of persons now living know the real story of the Society of American Taxidermists and the revolution that it wrought. It would be utterly inadequate to write of the masterpiece of American taxidermy without setting forth at least an outline of the history that they represent. A few members of the youngest generation of workers, snugly ensconced in some palace of peace and plenty, have talked largely of the "taxidermy school" without mentioning the man who talked in laying the foundations and in erecting half the walls of that "school." I am told that today there are taxidermists who do not like being called anything less than "sculptors."

Fragrance of Flowers

The fragrance of flowers regulates their temperature, says a professor of chemistry at the University of Nevada, at Reno. He bases his belief on recent experiments with the essential oils of certain desert plants. These oils apparently serve as a protection against the extreme heat of noonday and the chill of night.

The vapor of the oils absorbs more heat than ordinary air, he says. Rose oil absorbs thirty-six times as much heat and eucalyptus 252 times as much. By surrounding itself with a layer of such odoriferous air, the plant reduces the amount of heat it absorbs. It is the system and also obtains a sort of blanket to protect it against the chill of night.

A Little of the History of Plymouth, Michigan

Collected By Mrs. F. A. Dibble, 1922

Note—Anyone who can contribute any additional facts to the foregoing historical sketch of Plymouth, would confer a favor by sending the same to the Mail office.

The first frame school house was built on the triangle of ground where the park is, just west of the Kimble residence. Later a large building was erected on Ann Arbor street, just below the Pelham house. One of the early teachers was George Starkweather, who taught there over 80 years ago. The May, Roe and Shaffer families attended this school, also Mary Fralick (Mrs. C. W. Valentine), Emma Packard (Mrs. O. A. Fraser), Ellen Broomfield (Mrs. Ellen Nichols) and Margaret Cramer (Mrs. H. O. Hanford.)

In 1836, William Starkweather erected a rough frame school house near the present corner of Main street and Starkweather avenue. Here a select school was carried on for a long time. Among the instructors were Messrs. Lyon, Chandler and Millet, the latter being a specialist in Greek and Latin. The first frame school house erected in what is known as north village was in 1837, on the lot where Elmer Willett's house now stands on Holbrook avenue. Among the early teachers of this school were: Sarah Jones, Ursula Holbrook, Sarah Shattuck and Rufus Brown. Among the early pupils: The Mason, McCarn, Booth, Chilson and Bentley families, Nelson and Monroe, Stevens, and George and J. C. Peterhans. This school building remained until Union District No. 1 was formed in 1853, and is now the upright of a cottage east of Markham's rifle factory. About 1840, a select school, known as the seminary, was erected on church street by Mr. E. J. Penniman in memory of his first wife, Rev. Joshua Clayton, pastor of the Presbyterian church, who was one of the early teachers; followed by T. T. Lyon, Rufus Chilson, Dr. Mack Mosler, C. A. Frisbee and others. It was in the fall of 1853, that T. T. Lyon, chairman of the Board of School Inspectors, appointed Henry Fralick to notify the qualified voters of District No. 1, of a meeting to be held in the Seminary building on November 2, 1853. In pursuance of this order, Mr. Fralick notified every voter, 131 in number, either personally or by letter. On the afternoon of November 2, 1853, those interested in the school met in the Seminary at Plymouth Corners, as the village was then called, and elected the following officers for the ensuing year: James Adams, Moderator; Henry Fralick, director, and Isaac Hedden, assessor. Among the pioneers who attended this meeting were: Ebenezer Penniman, Isaac Westfall, John Kellogg, Peter and Henry Fralick, Thomas May, Henry Holbrook, William Ledyard, William McNulty, James Moreland, George Starkweather, Joseph Greenley, William Grow, Franklin Adams and J. Scattergood. At this

The Michigan Union of November, says: "A man's automobile is no longer to be considered as his 'castle,' and exempt from search without a search warrant issued by a court. Our state supreme court has so decided in a recent decision on a case from Midland county. Law enforcement officials consider the decision to be of the utmost importance, as an aid in the enforcement of the dry law."

NEWBURG

There was a very good attendance at church, Sunday morning. The church was prettily decorated with flags and chrysanthemums. Rev. Wise gave a fine address on, "The Brotherhood of Man." Miss Anna Youngs presided at the piano, and was assisted in the music by Miss Labock. Miss Wise sang, "Just Before the Battle, Mother," and a violin solo by Rev. Wise's brother. Plans are being made for a Christmas entertainment and tree for the Sunday-school.

Mildred Bennett acted as leader in the Epworth League, Sunday night. Thelma Davey will lead at the next meeting. Election of officers occurred Sunday night, a list of which will appear in next week's issue of the Mail.

The official board meeting of the church, held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Mackinder, last Friday evening, resulted in the following officers being elected: Miss Ada Youngs, secretary; Mrs. M. Eva Smith, treasurer; Mrs. Emma L. Ryder, chairman of the board of stewards; Clark Mackinder, chairman of the board of trustees; Misses Anna and Ada Youngs, music committee; Clyde Smith, usher; Clifford Cochran and Thomas Davey take the offering. Rev. Wise presided at the meeting. Lawrence Holmes has been secured as janitor for the ensuing year.

The L. A. S. held a very pleasant meeting at their hall, last week Wednesday. Thirty-three enjoyed a New England dinner, after which the reports were given. They decided to send $5.00 to the Esther Home for Girls in Detroit. Anyone who will do so, is requested to donate a can of fruit, and clothing that will do for girls sixteen years of age or over. Kindly leave the donations at the home of Mrs. Clark Mackinder. A fine program was given, consisting of a story by Mrs. Emily LeVan; two readings by Mrs. Showers of Mason, and Mrs. M. Eva Smith and several others. Several of the men were out to dinner. The ladies are in hopes that more of them will attend the dinners this winter. The members are trying to see how many subscribers they can get for McCall's Magazine. If they get twenty-two, they will receive $10.00 for their efforts.

The little child of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Conners, who has been in University hospital for several months, died there Monday morning.

Mrs. I. Gunsolly spent over Sunday with her aunt, Mrs. Wight, in Detroit.

Mr. Tucker is moving from Newburg to a farm near Romeo.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. LeVan and mother spent Sunday in Ann Arbor, visiting relatives and friends. Mrs. W. R. LeVan also called on Miss Edith Fickett at the hospital, finding her about the same.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Ryder entertained Rev. Wise and friend, Miss Labock of Detroit; Misses Anna and Ada Youngs and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Ryder for Sunday dinner.

Today's Reflections

We see where Pres. Harding has bought a farm. Making it pay will be a harder job than he's got now.

One of our Plymouth friends who hasn't been married long says he has been promoted to second-assistant head of his house.

Now if Henry Ford will cut another $500 off of his touring cars, he can send us two at once by parcel post.

A Boston woman worth a million dollars has married a janitor. She is a wise woman, if the janitor has any coal.

What you hear on the streets of Plymouth never seems to be as important or as interesting as what you overhear.

Some men remind us of postage stamps; they have to be licked to make them stick to anything.

Twenty years ago we were running to see an auto instead of running to get out of the way of them.
