OUR EASTER PROBLEM

Where shall we put all the people that will want to attend Church next Sunday morning? That is our problem. You see, the new choir will fill the front and will need aisle-room for their processional and recessional. Their relatives will want one hundred fifty seats, their friends five times that number; and then there are a host of acquaintances, strangers and visitors. However, it is a problem that we expect to solve.

RESERVE APRIL 4 FOR "THE WOMANLESS WEDDING," TO BE GIVEN IN THE HIGH SCHOOL AUDITORIUM UNDER AUSPICES OF THE YOUNG LADIES CHOIR CHAPTER.

Our Chamber of Commerce

Almost every week in making our rounds about town, we are asked, "What is the Chamber of Commerce and what good can it accomplish for Plymouth?"

Now that is a fair question and it deserves a fair and honest answer. The Chamber of Commerce in Plymouth is an association of citizens banded together to develop the best interests of the community and promote the general welfare of the people who live here. Every citizen is eligible to membership, and all are welcome. All have equal privileges and responsibilities. It is a community organization, and the only aim is to help the people who live in the community, and make it a better place in which to live.

The only axe to grind is the community axe, and of course the more people there are to take a turn at the grindstone, the sharper the axe will be. There is much in that old saying, "In unity there is strength," for we all know that nothing worth while is ever accomplished without co-operation, unless people get together on a common ground with mutual interests and pull together.

Many things are needed in Plymouth, and we will have many perplexing problems to face for the next few years, at least. Upon some of these things will depend the future growth and prosperity of the village. We need a spirit of unanimity—that is, the ability and willingness to get together, agree upon our most important needs, then go after them and get them with a united effort, regardless of small petty likes and dislikes of each other.

This is our home town, full of splendid possibilities. It will be what we make it, and what we make it will depend in a large measure upon our willingness to lay aside our personal prejudice and inactivity, and pull together to make Plymouth the best town possible, the pride of the people who live here and an example of community development and co-operation to those who live elsewhere.

Let us make our Chamber of Commerce a real community co-operative association, where we work together shoulder to shoulder for the upbuilding of the business, industrial and civic interests of the community and the common welfare of our home town. Come on into the Chamber of Commerce, folks, and let's all boost together and watch Plymouth grow.

WOMAN'S CLUB

A regular meeting of the Woman's Club was held last Friday afternoon in the club room, with fifty members and guests in attendance. The president, Mrs. George H. Robinson, presided over the business meeting, which was followed by the program prepared by Division XI, with Mrs. J. R. Rauch, leader.

Several vocal selections by Mrs. Earl Stevens of Detroit, and Miss Ruth Shattuck added greatly to the program, as also did two readings by Ruth Hamilton, "The Modern Doctor" and "Flinnigan to Flinnigan." During the afternoon, two papers were given, "Civil Service Reforms," by Mrs. E. R. Daggert, and "Capital Punishment," by Mrs. D. F. Murray. The program closed with readings from Strickland W. Gillilan, by Mrs. Harry Shattuck.

This (Friday) afternoon, an illustrated lecture, "Along Nature's Highways and By-ways," will be given in the club room at three o'clock by Gordon E. VanLoon of Highland Park. Guests are welcome.

MARIONETTES

Marionettes, or puppets as they are sometimes called, are mechanical dolls operated by strings, and capable of almost every human action as well as many surprising tricks. They present their plays on a stage perfectly proportioned to their size, with every detail of properties and settings carefully worked out. Since the operators are hidden from sight, the spectator receives the illusion of human characters, yet with an added naive charm that only the marionette possesses.

The ancient art of puppet play stretches back to the remote shadowland of the past. Marionettes were known to ancient Greece and Rome; they flourished in the Orient, where shadow and puppet play exist at the present time; and they flourished in Europe during the middle ages, a great source of entertainment to the masses. Even among the American Indians, articulated dolls were used during ceremonial dances. Recently puppets were introduced into this country very successfully by Tony Sarg, and at the present time their vogue is spreading with amazing rapidity throughout the United States.

Realizing the unusually entertaining qualities of these creatures, "The Puppeters," students in the University of Michigan, have prepared a delightful production, which they will present in Plymouth, under the auspices of the Senior Class on Wednesday evening, April 11, for an evening performance. This entertainment presents something new to local audiences. We understand that it is being presented in Birmingham, Royal Oak, Wayne, and that both the Normal College and the Little Playhouse in Ypsilanti, are presenting it.

MRS. CELICIA VERKERK PASSES AWAY

Mrs. Celicia Verkerk passed away at her home, Monday morning, March 26th, after a few days' illness, aged 70 years. Her husband, William Verkerk, passed away several years ago. Mrs. Verkerk had lived in this vicinity for many years, and was highly esteemed by all who knew her. She leaves one son, Claude Verkerk, five brothers and five sisters to mourn their loss. The funeral was held from her late home, Thursday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock, Rev. D. D. Nagle officiating. Interment in Riverside cemetery.

ELECTION NEXT MONDAY

The biennial election occurs next Monday, April 2nd, at which time the following officers are to be voted for: Two Justices of the Supreme Court, two Regents of the University of Michigan, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Member of the State Board of Education, two members of the State Board of Agriculture, Circuit Judges, County Auditor and County School Commissioner and township officers.

THE SCREAM OF THE SEASON IN PLYMOUTH.

If you have ever laughed you never will have laughed, as you will laugh if you witness "The Womanless Wedding" at the High school auditorium, Wednesday, April 4th, curtain rising at 8:00 o'clock sharp, and falling on the closing scene promptly at 10 o'clock. You will have two hours of real fun. The program is under the auspices of the Choir Chapter of the Presbyterian church, whose motto is, "Better music in Plymouth."

Come see who is who. All the world loves a lover. The modest blushing bride and the gallant romantic groom on this occasion will hold your attention to the last. Of no less interest will be the gilded sweetheart of the groom, and her betrothal to her lawyer, who secures a bail of $5,000 for her wounded heart, and then straightway weds his client. You must hear Milly Galagher's exposition of love. Many of us have never known what it is or from whence it comes, but Milly has made one of the great discoveries of the age. There will be three scenes. The prologue by the ladies, the wedding scene and the reception by the men. The cast numbers forty-five people. Admission—Children, 25c; adults, 35c. Tickets at Gayde Bros., Draper's, Whipple's, and Merz's. The committee is very sorry if any were inconvenienced, last Friday, on account of the error in the date. We hope you will excuse it.

FIREMEN WILL GIVE DANCE

The Plymouth Fire Department will give a dancing party at the Penniman Allen auditorium, Friday evening, April 6th. Good music will be in attendance. Bill, $1.00. Spectators, 25c. Give the firemen a boost. They deserve it.

"WHEN KNIGHTHOOD WAS IN FLOWER"

ROYAL BARGE FOR MARION DAVIES IN GREAT PHOTOPLAY.

STAR MAKES IMPOSING ENTRANCE IN "WHEN KNIGHTHOOD WAS IN FLOWER."

Marion Davies as Princess Mary Tudor in "When Knighthood Was in Flower," Cosmopolitan's splendid picture for Paramount of Charles Major's romance of Merrie England in the days of Bluff King Hal, which comes to the Penniman Allen theatre, next Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, April 1, 2 and 3, has an entrance befitting her title and estate. The sister of King Henry VIII has just reached her sixteenth birthday, and a fete in her honor is given at Hampton Court, the palace built by Cardinal Wolsey and presented to the King. This is one of the show places of England preserved to this day. Along the winding reaches of the river comes a splendid state barge, rowed by twelve oarsmen, and with two men at the massive steering oar. The barge bears the Tudor coat of arms in brilliant colors, and was adorned with ropes of roses, draped gracefully from stem to stern. Seated on a raised dais, whose silken canopy is also decked with ropes of flowers and fluttering streamers, appears the beautiful English Princess, the fairest flower of the Tudor family, surrounded by her court.

This scene was filmed at Ladder Rock, near Bridgeport, Conn., where this beautiful estate is open to the public as a park, but the owner closed it on this occasion so that the Cosmopolitan company could work undisturbed. The only request made was that the state barge of Princess Mary should be left on the little river, where the children who visit the park daily could enjoy it as an object lesson in English history. The barge was built at Bridgeport at a cost of several thousand dollars.

NEW VILLAGE COMMISSION MEETS; J. W. HENDERSON RE-ELECTED PRESIDENT.

At a meeting of the village commission, held Monday evening, the members of the old commission closed up the business of the past year, and the newly elected commissioners took their seats. J. W. Henderson was re-elected president of the commission for the ensuing year. Mr. Henderson has served the village most efficiently in this capacity for the past year, and his re-election to this important office is but a just recognition of his splendid services of the past year. The new commission is composed of the following members: President J. W. Henderson; Commissioners E. R. Daggert, George Wilcox, Karl W. Hillmer, R. R. Parrott.

Modern - Cleaning

[ELECTRIC]

Old-fashioned cleaning day, with its upset rooms, its tiresome rug beating and sweeping, is a task all women shun.

Modern housecleaning—with the Electric Vacuum Cleaner—is simple and pleasant.

Rugs, carpets, draperies, curtains and upholstered furniture are cleaned with a new degree of thoroughness without moving them from their usual place.

And it is sanitary because there is no scattered, germ-laden dust, as with other cleaning methods.

Chief of Police Springer and local officers made a raid on the restaurant conducted by John Liacaks, just east of the Pere Marquette depot, last week Friday morning. A search of the premises was made, and a little over a gallon of liquor was found. Liacaks and his clerk, George Demos, were placed under arrest, and were taken before Justice Phoebe Patterson on a charge of violating the prohibition law. They pleaded not guilty, waived examination and were bound over to the circuit court, with bail fixed at $1,000 each.

THE RIGHT IDEA

We talked a few days ago with a citizen of Plymouth who was making preparations to paint his house. "It could go another year without it," he said; "but a coat now will be worth more than it will later on because it will do more good, and besides a nicely painted, neatly appearing house will sell quicker and bring a better return than one that has been allowed to grow shabby for the lack of a little paint." There's something worth thinking over, and especially right at this season when everyone in town ought to be doing something to brighten up and improve his property. Think of what the result will be if you should want to sell and the house needs paint, the fence needs fixing or the walks about it are in poor condition. Maybe you haven't any idea of selling. Well, even then you are losing money if you neglect improvements that are going to be absolutely necessary later on, but which can be made much cheaper now. Any way you look at it, the man who keeps his property improved and in good order has an edge on the fellow who lets his run down, and who puts off until next month or next year the things he knows ought to be done right now.

WISE OLD CRUSOE

Robinson Crusoe was both a pioneer and a successful advertiser. It is true there were no newspapers at that time, but he knew the value and necessity of attracting attention to his important business, and he knew that without the support of others his venture would be a failure. He also believed in changing his "copy" often, so that when his first flag (a shirt) was whipped to pieces by the wind and weather, Crusoe put another garment to the pole, and kept at it until he got what he wanted—a ship to take him to civilization and safety. Now suppose he had stopped with the failure of his first flag, as some merchants do with one advertisement, on the plea that "advertising doesn't pay." Crusoe would have returned to dust and it would have been scattered upon the waters and lost. In other words, use your local newspaper regularly and systematically and you'll get what you want and what you are entitled to.

GRANDMOTHER'S SHAWL

Fashions in women's wraps have once more completed their journey around the circle, so a well-known Plymouth woman tells us, and shawls are to become popular with the fair sex. The fashion comes back with the styles worn by our grandmothers, practically unchanged, the "Paisley's" and the "Queen Victoria's" to be in favor. And every color from the rich black embroidered shawl to the gay crocheted ones will prevail.

This will be good news for our women folks, for stored away in the attic, in many an old trunk or chest or drawers, is a shawl that at one time was the pride and admiration of some fair member of the family. Out they will come now, with tender memories clinging about them, and once more they will serve the purpose for which they were intended before smart tailors and coat manufacturers persuaded the fair sex that the shawl was "out of date."

Personally, we welcome the return of the shawl, and we believe our men readers will join with us in the belief that nothing ever placed about the shoulders of our women folks was prettier than a shawl. Certainly nothing could be more comfortable, or give more genuine service. So, to the thousands of women who cannot afford costly furs, and who cannot see wherein furs were ever intended for warm weather wear, the new style—the return of the shawl—will be welcome news.

LIFE IN RANGES

Scientist Asserts Many Mountains Are Alive.

Those on Pacific Coast, and a Large Belt in Africa, Constantly Growing, He Says.

Dr. Bailey Willis, professor of geology, Stanford university, has sailed for Chile, where he will examine the effects of recent earthquakes. He goes as the representative of the Carnegie Institution, Washington.

The mountains are "alive," according to Doctor Willis, in many places. Along the Atlantic coast they are "dead," but around the Pacific and in a great belt which reaches across Africa the mountains are growing.

Doctor Willis explains that in their growth large masses comprising many thousand cubic miles of rock are pressed together. When the strain of this pressure is too great they slip and the earthquake occurs.

"This is the modern theory of earthquakes," Doctor Willis said. "It was developed through studies of the great earthquake of 1906 which caused the fire that destroyed San Francisco, and it has been demonstrated by many minor earthquakes that have occurred since then.

"We often speak of an earthquake plane as a fracture, but it is not really a break. It is the surface between two great masses which never have been united, but which for ages have been slipping past each other, and where this plane comes out to the surface of the earth we have a line which is sometimes called an earthquake rift.

"The greatest of these rifts in the United States extends through the coast ranges of California for a distance of 600 miles. It passes just west of San Francisco to the east of Los Angeles and disappears in the Gulf of California. Along the San Andreas rift, as it is called, earthquakes have occurred at different times in different sections. The most recent was the quake of 1906, which covered a stretch of 150 miles with San Francisco near the center. South of that stretch for some three hundred miles there has been no movement since 1857, when there was a severe shock, the mark of which may be traced across the desert plains like an irrigation ditch. Still further south there have been several recent shocks, but none of great violence, although there is evidence of considerable activity in the section east and south of Los Angeles.

"In view of the fact that we can thus locate certain lines along which earthquakes have occurred, we are able to speak of live earthquake rifts as we speak of live volcanoes. We know by the form of the volcano or by the occurrence of eruptions within historical time that it is potentially or actually active, and much the same may be said of earthquake rifts.

"They are lines of special danger on which no dam or schoolhouse or skyscraper should be located. They should also be avoided, as far as possible, by railroad lines, bridges, aqueducts and other public works, and yet it happens that they often run through valleys where such work is suggested by the conditions of the ground. As long as we remain ignorant of their position, we run the risk of inviting destruction, but it is not difficult by proper studies to locate the lines of danger on a map and to make the information public for the benefit of engineers and others."

New Style in Blur.
For the last 20 years Topeka young women have been overworking the superlatives in conversation. Most everything is "wonderful" or "awful," or they are just "crazy" about it. Now it seems the conversational style is changing.

A Topeka girl recently visited Kansas City friends and a certain wedding came up for discussion. The Topeka girl asked, "Wasn't it an awfully swell wedding?"

"No, no," said the Kansas City girl, "it was swell, but it wasn't too swell."

"Didn't the bride look too sweet for anything?" asked the Topeka girl.

"Yes," said the K. C. girl, "but not too sweet."

"Wasn't that a lovely dress she wore?" added the Topeka girl.

"It was a pretty dress," said the Kansas City girl, "but not too pretty. If you know what I mean."—Topeka Capital.

Farm Athletics.

"What were you at college, son?" asked Mr. Cobble.

"Quarterback, father. And if I do say it myself, one of the best ever."

"Well, I don't doubt that what you learned about quarterbacking will be useful to you in after life, but your education won't be complete until you are able to do team work with me and the hired man."—Birmingham Age Herald.

This Tip Was Easy.

The acme of flattery was achieved in a Detroit barber shop this week, when the baldest man in the city asked for a haircut. After trimming the sparse region back of the ears, the barber deftly and solicitously snipped his shears over all the gills (ending barren area). The bald man beamed at the subtle compliment and generously tipped the barber.—Detroit News.

Desperately in Love

By MYRA CURTIS LANE

(©, 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

Harry and Myrtle had met at a small dance at the house of a mutual friend. Both were young and impressionable, and they fell in love with each other instantaneously. Harry saw her home and went back to his boarding house walking on air.

Myrtle fell asleep about four o'clock in the morning after thinking of Harry for four hours and forty minutes.

When they met next day they knew that they were head over ears in love with each other. So they became engaged.

Harry had a pretty good position, both were in the same set, and their friends all said it was a good match.

How they laughed at those friends. "If any one suspected how much we care for each other they—what would they do?" asked Harry.

"Die, I should think," said Myrtle. She clung to Harry's arm happily. "It's so wonderful," she said, "looking at all these staid old married couples around us, who don't really care for each other the least bit, and thinking that we, by some miracle, have solved the problem of happiness."

Harry agreed. When he saw Myrtle in the street his heart started pounding. He thought of her all day long. They were desperately in love.

Then they had a quarrel. It was about which loved the other more. During its progress Harry felt the world dissolve beneath his feet. When Myrtle went away with her head in the air and a tear-stained face he felt that the only thing against suicide didn't end everything. He rushed round to Myrtle's house ten minutes later and they were reconciled with tears and embraces.

It was after the fourth or fifth quarrel that Harry discovered, to his horror, that the edge had worn off his rapture.

It was a terrible discovery, for they were to be married within the month. He was still awfully in love with Myrtle, only somehow things weren't exactly the same as it had been. His heart still beat furiously when he saw Myrtle in the street, but he no longer felt that suffocating feeling.

Poor little Myrtle. Of course she didn't guess. He must keep it from her at all costs. Now, he was simply in love with Myrtle. Before, he had been a sort of perambulatory lunatic, dreaming of her all day and all night.

He hid his change of feeling like a hero. But the romance had gone out of the thing. Myrtle had become just an ordinary girl. And then one day, about two weeks before the date set for their marriage, an astonishing thing happened.

They were walking in the country, and a long silence had fallen between them, and suddenly Myrtle said:

"Harry, I've been thinking we'd better not be married."

He gave a gasp. "What? What do you mean, Myrtle? Don't you—don't you care any longer?"

"Yes, Harry, dear, I do care still, but—not in the same way. I—oh, it sounds dreadful to say so, but things have—have changed somehow. Now I'm only just—just fond of you."

"Myrtle!" He took her by the arm. "How long has this happened? What made you change?"

She was beginning to cry softly. "I—I don't know, Harry. I—I am fond of you, fonder than I can ever be of any one in my life. But it isn't the same. Don't you feel it isn't the same?"

"I suppose it isn't quite the same," Harry admitted.

"Then you don't care for me any more. I suspected that was it. Then of course I shall release you, Harry."

His pride flared up. "Very well, Myrtle," he answered; and they went on in silence.

Presently he said: "I suppose if we had married we should have become just like these people around us that we used to laugh at. I suppose they once—it sounds incredible, but—went through the same process as we."

"I suppose so," said Myrtle drearily.

After a while Harry said: "Myrtle, if ever you goes through all this, why do people get married at all?"

"I don't know," sobbed Myrtle.

And it was just then that some gate in Harry's understanding opened. Suddenly he caught Myrtle in his arms and kissed her.

"Harry, you mustn't—now."

"Myrtle, darling, I've got it."

"Got what?"

"Don't you see, if it's inevitable, it's the—the memory of the past people live on, when they're fond of each other, and they keep falling in love again and again. Myrtle, what fools we've been. I'm going to marry you. I—why, I love you just the same as before now."

Suddenly the old light leaped into her eyes again. "Why—why— Oh dear, I see it now. Why, we've never ceased loving each other at all, have we?"

Secret Diplomacy.
Neverwed—How do you manage to keep your wife's relatives from pestering you with visits?

Longwood—Don't tell my wife. I pay the cook $2 a week extra to go on strike every time we have company overnight.

METHODIST NOTES

Good Friday service tonight at 7:30. Good singing and special singing. Sermon, "The Divine Friendship."
Sun-rise service Easter Sunday at 7:30. All are invited. Meeting in charge of the Epworth League.
Easter service of worship at 10:00. And the Easter cantata by the quartette at 7:30. This is a most beautiful rendition of the Easter story. You will want to hear it.
The new pipe organ has been shipped, but too late to be installed for Easter Sunday, for which we are very sorry. The dedication services will be further announced next week. They will be held either April 8 or 15.
Pledges that were made on the new pipe organ, state that 50 per cent is due March 30th, which is this week Friday. The treasurer, E. V. Jolliffe, would be pleased to receive the amount due at this time. The pledge can be paid in full if so desired.
Up to date, $3279 in cash and pledges have been received on our new organ, leaving a balance of $571 to be raised. The treasurer of the fund, E. V. Jolliffe, or the pastor, would be glad to receive further cash or pledges.

According to the usual custom, all who so desire, are privileged to furnish flowers for the church for Easter Sunday, in memory of loved ones. This is a very beautiful arrangement, indeed, and adds to the attractiveness of the services.
Official board meets at the parsonage, next Tuesday afternoon at 7:30.
Company B of the Ladies' Aid society meets with Mrs. B. Fisher on Williams street, next Wednesday afternoon at 2:30; Company C with Mrs. J. D. McLaren on Union street. Please bring "tools" for sewing.
Mid-week service next Thursday night, 7:30.
Our Sunday-school folks are asked to come to the Easter service at 10:00 o'clock next Sunday morning.
Our Easter offering this year is to be used to apply on our church debt. Bring a tithe of your income for this Passion Week, and put it into this special field of endeavor for Christ.
Send your news item to the Mail office.

PRESBYTERIAN NOTES

The pastor goes to Battle Creek, next Sunday afternoon, to officiate at a wedding. There will be no evening service at the church.
A Weddingless Woman is tragical; a Womanless Wedding is comical, and you may enjoy it next Wednesday night at the High school auditorium; but as no ticketless man will be admitted, see that you come provided.
After the Womanless Wedding comes The Broom-Handle Route and The Covenant Choir—a trio worthy of your trial.
Hear the new choir next Sunday morning at the special Easter service. Some wag erased "mage" from our sign last week, so that it read, "Rum Sale at the Presbyterian church." It was discovered and remedied in time to prevent a raid.
The pastor explained last Sunday, that fifteen minutes spent each day at morning, noon and night (forty-five minutes a day) would enable even a slow reader to finish the Bible in three months. Many are going to try it, and will adopt this slogan, "Read the Bible Through by the First of July."
After Easter, the pastor will preach a series of sermons suggested by the local advertisers in the Plymouth Mail. There was not an ad in the paper last week that did not suggest to his mind some bible verse, incident or theme. Cut out any advertisement next week, and send it to him for trial. He will either use it as a sermon source, or relate it to some bible passage. See if you can "stump him."

BAPTIST NOTES

The sermon last Sunday morning was David's last plea to his people to "Conserve themselves to the Lord."
Miss Alta Hamill and Miss Fannie Grainger sang a beautiful duet, and Mr. Trimbal sang the offertory. Many of the congregation, who have been kept at home because of sickness, were able to come again.
The young people have been drilling and getting ready for Easter. Mr. and Mrs. Westfall have been hindered in the practice on account of his sickness, but he is better and everything promises to be in good shape for Sunday evening. The B. Y. P. U., who are to put on the program, want to make it entertaining and instructive. Everyone is invited to attend all services.
The pastor will preach in the morning, next Sunday, on, "The Resurrection." Special music will be sung for the occasion. After the sermon the ordinance of baptism will be administered.

W. C. T. U.

There was a large attendance at the meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, held at the home of Mrs. S. L. Bennett, March 29. The talk by the state president, Mrs. E. L. Calkins, was very interesting. She impressed upon the women the importance of voting, and urged them, especially, to attend the caucus, and do their part toward getting the names of good men and women upon the ticket. She also urged the importance of a re-election of all officers who have capably and conscientiously performed their duties in the past. The program of the day was omitted in order to give the extra time to the speaker.
By a vote of the members it was decided that the Union furnish milk, for this semester, for three of the school children whose parents are unable to provide for them.
The annual meeting will occur the last Thursday in April, at the home of Mrs. Phoebe Patterson and Mrs. Clara Patterson Todd.

Henry Priebe was home from Detroit to spend the week-end with his family.
"Little Prince," the property of Carl Kuhl, must have thought that Carl was taking too much time, last Tuesday morning, to eat his breakfast, so he started out alone to deliver the milk to the station at Cherry Hill. He had been hitched to the milk buggy and driven up to the house, but left standing without being tied. When Carl had finished his breakfast, he went out to go with the milk, but found the buggy gone. On answering a frantic appeal at the phone, found that Harry Morgan had stopped Prince and tied him until Carl could get there. TRIBUTE TO DOG

Splendid Animal Well Worth His Epitaph.

Went to Death in Clutch of Grizzly, but Succeeded in Saving Life of His Owner.

BEAR PAW MIKE
THE GAMEDOG THAT EVER LIVED

What a splendid tribute to poor old Mike, a man's dog with the heart of a lion! It was his master, a guide named Jake, that composed the epitaph, and we don't doubt that he wrote it with tears in his eyes, for, says Mr. Edward Ferguson in Outing, the dog gave his life to save his master from an infuriated grizzly.

Jake and the dog had traveled perhaps half the cut in Boxwood canyon one bitterly cold day when a male grizzly ambled round in front of them. On one side of the trail the wall of the canyon rose 200 feet, on the other side of the trail was a sheer drop of 500 feet. The bear was less than 30 feet away. Stopping short, he looked at the man and the dog and growled ominously.

Jake lifted his gun and pulled the trigger. Nothing happened. He attempted to throw another cartridge into the chamber, but the mechanism refused to work. Then he knew; the action was frozen!

The bear hesitated only an instant before he charged, but in that brief time Mike jumped to meet him and tore open his cheek; then in a flash he slipped round him and made a vicious slash at his flanks. The bear turned, but as he did so Mike scrambled between him and the cliff, and again attacked his flanks. Once more the bear turned, and once more Mike dodged him, barely escaping. The bear was now between the man and the dog.

Jake, who had finally freed the mechanism of his rifle, stepped forward to be sure of his shot, slipped and fell heavily to one knee. The fall knocked the rifle from his hands, and he saw it disappear over the edge of the trail. For a moment he could hardly breathe. Then he scrambled to his feet. "Get him, Mike, get him!" he yelled.

At the sound of his voice the bear, which now was infuriated, turned to attack him. But Mike shot by him and took his stand in front of his master. Then the grizzly reared and started for both of them.

"Mike!" Jake shouted. The dog hunched himself and sprang; his paws landed on the bear's chest, and his mouth closed over the creature's lower jaw. The impact threw the grizzly off his balance, and with his paws closed in a crushing grip round the dog's body he toppled over on his side.

Jake closed his eyes. Dog and bear rolled over twice; but with all his fast-ebbing strength the dying dog tried to tighten his grip. The second lunging roll brought them to the edge of the trail; the snow crumpled under their weight, and dog and bear, still locked in their death grips, crashed to the rocks below. Mike had saved his master's life.

Airplanes Guided by Radio.
Guidance by radio is as useful to airplanes as to ships. When Alcock, the Englishman, was about ready to hop off from the banks of Newfoundland, for what proved to be the first successful non-stop transatlantic flight, the question was asked where he expected to land on the other side of the sea. The reply was, "Clifden, Ireland." The aircraft disappeared, and the world awaited news. Throughout the flight no word came back from the ether over the Atlantic, as had been expected. The radio was listening instead of talking, keeping its radio compass pointed in the direction of the powerful wireless signals sent out from Clifden, on the Irish coast. So true was the guiding influence of radio that in 16 hours and 20 minutes after the machine left the Canadian shore it flew directly over the lofty wireless towers at Clifden. The Atlantic had been crossed for the first time by a non-stop airplane, guided through clouds, fog and darkness by radio.

Confirmed by Wire.
On a decidedly hot afternoon I was lounging about the house in comfortable but unrepresentable array. The bell rang. I did not answer it, hoping the caller would think I was not at home.

A few minutes later I went to the telephone and found that a particular friend was calling, one whom I would not antagonize for worlds.

"When did you get home?" she asked.

Unthinkingly I exclaimed: "Why, I haven't been out of the house all afternoon!"

"That's strange," she said frigidly. And the next few moments of confused explanation were the most embarrassing I can remember.—Chicago Tribune.

Something Like That.
It was Tommy's turn to read aloud. He came to the sentence, "Silence reigned in the house."

"Now," said the teacher, "can you describe silence?"

Tommy thought for a minute, and then said, eagerly: "Yes, teacher, I know; it's what you don't hear when you listen."

And They Were Married

By ELLA SAUNDERS

(© 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

Malsie and Jim were to be married in the most informal manner in the world. They had secured their license, and he was to call for her at her boarding house and go with her to the minister's house. They had nobody but themselves to think about, and even the boarding house people did not know why Malsie was leaving.

He met her at the door (the trunk and suitcase had already been sent on). Malsie kissed him furtively. "Why, Jim, how pale you look!"

"I guess I didn't sleep very well, Malsie. Why, your eyes look as if you have been crying!"

"Nonsense, Jim!" She spoke with some acerbity. "Well, you needn't quarrel with me just an hour before we're married."

"Oh, I don't want to marry you if you can abuse me on our marriage morning!"

He took her by the arm. "Come along little girl. I guess it's a bit of a strain on both of us, isn't it?"

She let him lead her from the house and he called a taxi.

Malsie turned to Jim when they were inside. "What did you mean by saying it was a strain?" she demanded. "If that's the spirit in which you're entering on"—she gulped—"your life with me, I'm sure I don't want to marry you anyway. Elida Carruthers always warned me against marrying you. She said I couldn't be happy with a man with such a temper as yours."

"Elida's an old cat. Just because she can't get married herself—" "She can! So there! She's had heaps of offers, but she's never found the man who was worthy of her."

"Good God, worthy of Elida!" "I won't sit here and have you abuse my friends, Jim." She began crying. "I do think you might be a little more considerate with me when you know how upset I am," she said.

Jim patted her arm. "Dear girl, I'm so sorry," he answered. "Let's try not to quarrel and only think of the happiness in store for us."

They kissed. Peace reigned. The taxi stopped. The minister himself opened the door. He showed them into the parlor. Jim felt as if here waiting to see the dentist.

Malsie had recovered and was her cool, dignified self when the minister returned, bringing in his cook and son as witnesses.

They stood up side by side. Jim kept glancing at Malsie, and he saw that she was glancing at him out of the tail of her eye. He felt as if he were standing by a stranger. And he was conscious of an overwhelming desire to make a dash for freedom.

The door of the parlor was open. In three bounds he could reach it. He could be out of the house before they quite knew what he was doing. Should he dare? Eternal bondage otherwise!

He only stood still beside Malsie, however, and listened to the minister droning on.

The sweet came out upon his forehead. He loved Malsie, and yet—no yet, he seemed to be trapped against his will, like a wild beast.

"I will!" They were married. And suddenly everything had grown clear. He saw Malsie, looking very pale, smiling at him. The pastor was handing her the marriage certificate. As long as he lived—as long as they both lived—caught

They went out of the house together, very shy, very silent. Jim called a taxi. He ordered the man to drive to the station. They were going to one of the beaches for their honeymoon.

In the taxi he took Malsie's hand in his. It lay there mechanical, cold and lifeless. With an effort he turned to her.

"Malsie, don't you love me? Was it all a hideous blunder? Ought I to release you?"

Her eyes were brimming with tears. "Jim—you don't care for me. I've always known it."

"I've always cared. But it was so horrible—this morning—your quarrel with me—"

"It was you who quarreled with me. I suppose I was a little irritable, but I'd passed such a dreadfully anxious night, wondering if I had made a mistake and you didn't really care—"

"Malsie, that's what I did. I wasn't sure you really loved me. Do you?" "Do you love me, Jim?"

"With all my heart, darling." "Oh, Jim, of course, of course. I do."

He drew her into his arms, and she nestled there, sublimely contented. Presently she raised her face and smiled. "Jim, dear, I guess it was only the excitement of getting married," she said.

Unsectarianism.

In a Western town a man who had come into possession of a considerable fortune decided to erect a large office building. During his discussion of the plans with an architect, the latter said:

"As to the floors, now. You would want them in mosaic patterns, I presume?"

"I don't know about that," replied the other dubiously. "I ain't got any prejudice against Moses as a man, and he certainly knew a good deal about law, but when it comes to having floors, it kind of seems to me I'd rather have 'em unsectarian like. Don't it strike you that way?"—Harper's Magazine.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy Nothing So Good for a Cough or Cold "Everyone who has used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy speaks well of it," writes Edward P. Miller, Abbotts-town, Pa. "People who once use this preparation are seldom attacked, and any other it is essential to always have on hand to break up a cold.—Advertisement."

A Plymouth man never knows what he can do until he tries. And then he is often sorry that he tried.

REAL - LIFE SHEIK

Unlike Fascinating Figure in Novels, Traveler Says.

Almost Universal Type Ragged Guit-tone With a Remarkable Lack of Romantic Trappings.

A new light is shed on the so-called fascinating sheiks as described by numerous authors in recent novels, by Dailyuple Belgrave, a former member of the frontier districts administration of Egypt, in an interesting article written in the London Daily Mail.

"I have just returned to England after spending seven years in Egypt, Palestine and the Sudan, where sheiks are frequently found," he writes. "During that time I met and was well acquainted with more sheiks than I can easily remember, but not one among them all was like the typical 'sheik' of the modern novel.

"Certainly some of them were handsome enough. I remember one in particular who ruled a district on the borders of Egypt and the Sudan. He was as fine a man as I ever have seen, but he was practically black, and the 'sheiks' of fiction are usually 'faintly tanned' and 'scarcely darker than an Italian.'

"Perhaps Mahdi Abdul Nebl, whose home was an oasis in the Libyan desert, was in appearance more the required type, but then his manners left much to be desired, and his behavior at a meal, which would consist probably of the larger half of a sheep, was neither romantic nor attractive.

"In my experience the usual Arab sheik was elderly, a pronounced 'beaver' and only moderately clean.

"His surroundings, too, would appear very disappointing to the reader of the 'sheik' type of story. One would expect wonderful camps in the desert, huge silken-hung tents furnished with priceless rugs and sumptuous divans heaped with futuristic colored cushions.

"I have camped in the desert with real sheiks from whose wealth one would expect every luxury, but their camps were very like those of the ordinary Bedouin, and one met just as many objectionable insects as in the tents of the common Arabs.

"I think the nearest approach to the sheik of fiction among my acquaintance was a certain Hassan, a very splendid individual who called himself 'Sheik Hassan' and lived in the neighborhood of Shepherd's hotel, in Cairo. He spoke English perfectly, wore won derful Eastern robes, and I really believe he took as his model the hero of one of the stories I read.

"But, unfortunately, Hassan had no experience of the desert; he was born and bred in Cairo, and his occupation was that of a guide who showed tourists round the pyramids and took them out to see the Sphinx by moonlight!"

Hattie Ely's Death Recalled.

The much more romantic career of Hattie Ely is recalled by the death in France of that other American beauty of half a century ago, Mrs. Hughes Hallett, "Glad" writes in the Philadelphia Inquirer.

In her day and prime, Hattie Ely, daughter of a Philadelphia clergyman, outshone as a dazzler of men this other Philadelphia girl whose grandfather was a Hessian officer in the Revolution.

Hattie Ely not only won the casual admiration of grand dukes and princes, but her intrigues, recounted by herself in her autobiography, reached right up to the throne.

As a Philadelphia school girl, Hattie was a wonder. I know men who as boys knew her, and they describe her as the most beautiful woman ever seen in this city.

Her extraordinary beauty made life one succession of adventures. Eloping at an early age with a big, handsome railroad conductor, Hattie quickly discovered that her "fatal face" was a fortune.

She was the sensation of Paris and became the particular favorite of a Russian grand duke. Her book, written in French, was once loaned to me by Samuel Bancroft of Wilmington.

The late "Lou" Megargee left on record a fine pen picture of Hattie Ely, whose dazzling career was waning when he began his as a newspaper man.

Gasoline From German Coal.

Germany has discovered how gasoline may be produced from coal. Experiments have been successful at Mannheim, with a plant capable of dealing with 60 tons per day. The conversion of coal into petroleum is achieved by introducing hydrogen into the coal, thus completely changing its chemical character and converting about 80 per cent into a liquid similar to fuel oil. This oil is transformed into light oils and gasoline, the latter totaling about 40 per cent of the volume of the fuel oil treated, there being also an equal percentage of Diesel engine oil.

Wanted Up-to-Date Santa.

After seeing Santa Claus, his sleigh and reindeer, at one of the large community trees, Betty Ann turned away and said:

"Mother, why doesn't Santa Claus sell those old reindeers and buy a car?"

Dancing Made Easy.

On Willie's return from his first dancing lesson, his Aunt Amelia inquired, "Well, Willie, how did you like your dancing lesson?" "Oh," he replied, "it's easy; all you have to do is turn around and keep wiping your feet."

Today's Reflections

Many people think that living with-in their means is a tame sort of existence.

Plymouth women can tell you that the world hasn't improved much in morals since people gave up croquet and took to jazz dancing.

Some men are always trying to get something for nothing. And the worst feature of it is some of them do.

It's very often the case that the mortgage sticks to an auto longer than the paint.

It might help some if every married man in Plymouth could make as much money as his wife thinks he's worth.

Just about the time we get settled and satisfied with life some fellow comes along and puts a new breakfast food on the market.

Our advice to Plymouth citizens is to be very careful as to what you want. You might get it.

Some fellows never seem to be satisfied until they can get credit at a strictly cash store.

The man who said there's nothing new under the sun, was probably a Plymouth citizen hunting for a pair of socks without holes in them.

Our idea of a sensible style would be to make the legs of trousers big enough to get 'em on over our shoes.

Just think—this country is so poor we eat only about $225,000,000 worth of ice cream and candy each year.

After a Plymouth woman makes up her mind to have her own way, she isn't satisfied unless somebody tries to restrain her.

Many a successful man got his start by having a woman push him along in a go-cart.

You have also doubtless noticed that it isn't always the heaviest taxpayer who has the most money to loan.

Our idea of an optimist is the Plymouth man who can already see the onions peeping up in his garden.

They say the reason there was no card playing on the ark, was because Noah sat on the deck.

A NECESSITY NOW

"Agriculture needs the power and influence of the press," declares A. W. Hopkins, a member of the faculty of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture. And then he adds: "Just as certainly the press needs agriculture. Anyone familiar with the facts will agree that the weekly newspapers of America were never more needed than today, and that their opportunity to do good was never greater. No more serious calamity could happen to a town than the destruction of its weekly newspaper plant. A live community must have a spokesman and a builder, and such a man is the country editor. The modern weekly editor is always seeking to serve and build up his community. The value of a newspaper to a community is fixed by its desire and ability to build and serve. The man who does not subscribe for and co-operate with his home-town paper is openly working against as good a friend as he can ever have."

SCHOOL NOTES

The High school notes were furnished by Dorothy Hinnau, and the grade notes by Avis Blackmore.
To many people the most welcome harbinger of spring are the birds, and so this was an appropriate subject for Miss Allen's talk at the Aggie Club meeting, last week Wednesday night, the first day of spring. She pointed out the law which fails to discriminate between the harmful and beneficial species of hawks, the present law granting a bounty of fifty cents for any killed. Due to the general ignorance of the difference between 30 or 40 species of native sparrows and the English, the sparrow bounty law also promotes wanton destruction. Her own observations and records of bird migration in Michigan formed the remainder of her talk.
During the past week, the horticulture class have utilized two days in practical experience in grafting. Mr. Ross, their teacher, declared that the importance of this work cannot be over estimated. He also intends to have his general science class take up this study of grafting.
The sub-district contest in oratory and diction was held in the High school auditorium, April 6th. Last week preliminaries were held in the school. From the contestants, Alta Hamill was chosen to represent us in oratory, with "America's Challenge," and Muriel Bovee in declamation. Other prize winners were Marion Bennett, second in oratory; Julia Wilcox, second in declamation; and both Bovee and Wilcox in diction.
At the two games at Walled Lake, March 2nd, refereed by B. J. Holcomb, Northville first team girls and second team boys were the victors.
An enjoyable evening was spent by the Girl Scouts at their regular meeting, March 20th, at Dorothy Finlan's. Three girls took their third class test, and two passed the second test. The evening ended with the serving of popcorn and apples.
Ethics, the study of man's duty to his fellowmen, is being studied in connection with Tennyson's Idylls of the King in tenth English.
The number served in the juvenile department of the library increases every month. 1200 have received books during February, and this figure shows an increase of 200 over any previous month.
The senior class have selected their graduation programs.
Because of the abundance of interesting material on the Civil war, the American history class is especially enjoying the study of this period. Wilma Briggs brought up a New York Herald dated April 15, 1865, in which there was a notice of the assassination and death of Abraham Lincoln. It also told of the surrender of Lee.
Because of the picturesqueness of medieval castles and knights, the tenth grade history classes are intensely interested in their study of the feudal period.
The two sections of eighth grade arithmetic are having a contest in rapid calculation. The winning team from each section will compete for the championship of the class.
The girls' section of arithmetic seven, defeated the boys in an addition contest by a score of 8 to 5.
The library has recently received Thomas B. Faton's "Digest of Legal Opinions" in this volume questions arising in the actual experience of banks are answered, and advice is given in the form of an opinion based, in most cases, upon legal authority.
All members of the seventh grade reading classes are being tested for speed in reading and in their ability to comprehend. One set of results has been tabulated, and it was found that in general the most rapid readers did comprehend a great deal more than the slower. The largest number of words read per minute was 590. Regina Lutten was the rapid reader.
Dr. D. E. Seller of Manistiquic, Mich., paid a visit to his daughter, our ninth grade English teacher, last Saturday afternoon and evening.
Mrs. E. P. Bogge of Battle Creek, visited her daughter, Miss Gertrude Boggs, our geometry teacher, last Thursday, Friday and Saturday.
Some of the High school girls have finished making summer dresses, blouses and skirts.
Two exciting basket ball games were played here Tuesday, March 20, between Redford's and Plymouth's second teams. The home team boys won by a score of 25 to 11. Redford girls won, the final score being 16 to 11.
Through "Current Events," a condensed weekly paper, the eighth grade history pupils are discussing current topics and are especially interested in what is being done in our state legislature.
If you could have had a peek at our basket ball girls, last Thursday, while they were eating a five-pound box of candy donated by Hovey, you surely would have thought the girls enjoyed it. It was prettily decorated in colors, blue and white.
Section 1 High school girls physical training have started Indian Clubs; they are now having elementary swinging, taking them in combination with fast movements.
The eighth grade English classes have completed Edward Everett Hale's story, "The Man Without a Country."
People rarely realize how many of our English words are derived from Latin, but the beginning Latin and Caesar class are having an exciting race in poster work, to emphasize this truth about our vocabulary.
To give a touch of local color, the French class have acquired a French flag, which is about 6 feet long.
In order to encourage outside reading, the senior French class maintain a reading chart. Every time a book is completed and a report given, the member receives a star. Donald Sutherland, Axel Pierce and Mabel Shogren have the greatest number to their credit.
Miss Porter has twenty-one members in her penmanship diploma class. They contemplate finishing in April.
Students who take Type II are required to have a speed of from 30 to 45 words at the end of the year. The two highest at this time are Hedwiga Kasprzycka, writing 47 and Eva Jans 38 words per minute. Students in Type I are required to write from 20 to 35 words per minute, and the two highest are Mable Reddemann, 37, and Madeline Shackleton, 25.
A treat is coming, as the seniors have decided to present a play some time in April.
Work on the Plythean is well under way, as the dummy has been made up, and the various tasks assigned to the staff members. If you wish a copy of our annual, just go to the phone and call 62-F3, as no extra copies are to be printed.

GRADE NOTES

A chart to determine the number of children who eat vegetables, potatoes excepted, for dinner is being used in the grades. Miss Woodworth, the county demonstration agent, showed the value of vegetables in making good blood, by using two solutions, one a blood red color, and the other a pale red.
To encourage the children to be punctual, Mrs. Root of the first grade, has given a present on the honor roll pupils, who have been neither absent nor tardy during the month of April: Harold Burden, Margaret Buzzard, Norval Bovee, William Fracas, Johnny Kuhn, Paul Strickland, Walter Taylor, Harold Strickland.
In the kindergarten, the following have not been tardy nor absent this month: Alice Bakewell, Donald Fongee, Leola Sockow, Adelaide Colby.
The sixth grade sent flowers to Miss Hallahan, who is ill. Her place is being taken by Mrs. Harold Bissell. Mr. Walker gave all the tests before vacation.
Ivanil Alter and Clyde Fallot are new pupils in the sixth grade.
In order to be on the honor roll in spelling in the second grade, each pupil has to hand in a perfect paper each day. Present on the honor roll are: Elva Hill, Rosalind O'Hara, Edvessa Seelye, Herbert Burley, Irene Kovach, Winifred Holcomb, Vera Woods, Ralva Schilling, Grace White, J. D. McLaren, Margaret Cline, Jean Weeks, Russell Micol, Irene Humphries, Alice Lee, Berton Schwab, Woodrow Wilson, Dorothy Wnuk, Blanche Curtis, Lucille Ruthoff. Those who have not missed for the month are: Rosalind O'Hara, Margaret Cline, Russell Micol, Alice Lee, Berton Schwab, Dorothy Wnuk.

EPISCOPAL NOTES

Last Sunday was Palm Sunday and the morning service and the singing of Palm Sunday hymns were bright and impressive. Mr. Gibson's sermon, entitled, "Rejected," from Luke 19:41-42, was very appropriate and helpful. He drew vivid pictures in the minds of the congregation, following Jesus and His disciples along the road from Bethany to Jerusalem, amid the shouts of "Hosanna! Hosanna!" and the waving of palms and olive branches.
Today is Good Friday, and there will be a special evening service in the church at 7:30. The subject of Mr. Gibson's address will be: "The Hill Called Calvary," Luke 23:33. We look for our little mission church to be filled tonight especially, and Mr. Gibson extends a welcome to all.
Next Sunday, Easter day, the morning service will be at 9:00 o'clock with holy communion. The Ven. J. H. Widdifield, archdeacon of Detroit, will have charge of this service, and will preach the Easter sermon. Members and friends of the mission who wish to bring flowers, potted plants, etc., please have them in the church early on Easter morning.

Studebaker
23 SERIES BIG-SIX TOURING CAR $1750
Many people make the mistake of buying a car without enough seating capacity.
Then when they want to take their friends along, the children have to sit on someone's lap, the foot space is all jammed up with luggage, and everybody is crowded and uncomfortable.
The Studebaker Big-Six Touring Car has two comfortable auxiliary seats that fold out of the way. It is a big, roomy five-passenger car except when you need it for seven, and then it's a comfortable, convenient seven-passenger car—something which a five-passenger car can never be. And there is still room for the luggage.
Come in and look at the Big-Six Touring Car. No matter how much you pay we don't believe you can find a more satisfactory car.
Its reliability has been proved in the service of thousands of owners. Correct design, highest quality of materials and precise workmanship are evident throughout every detail of its construction. Equipment is complete—even to an extra disc wheel with cord tire, tube and tire cover and bumpers, front and rear.
The name Studebaker is assurance of satisfaction.

In making the price $6.00
We owe our Men's
"Dial" Oxfords an apology

How would you like to make $1000.00 in a real estate deal, and have your neighbors think you made only enough to paint the house?

That's how these oxfords feel at $6.00. They are worth more and if they could talk—what a reprimand we'd get for holding their social position down to such figures.

Brown Calf—Black Calf—Brown Kid.

The new broad English and the extremely popular French last; also a new combination last for the low instep.

We have scoured the market for the newest effects in Ladies' Fine Footwear, and are showing the most advanced spring styles in Straps—Pumps and Oxfords.

Black Satin Straps—Gray Suede trimmed with Gray Kid—Gray Nu-Buck trimmed with Patent Leather—Brown Calf and Gray Suede Sport Oxfords—Patent Leather Straps and Oxfords—Black Kid, Brown Kid and Brown Calf Oxfords.
