THE ATHLETIC BANQUET

The event staged in the banquet rooms of the Methodist church on Wednesday evening of this week, was one of the pleasing and worth while social events of the year. Due to the untiring and thoughtful efforts of Karl W. Hillmer, a banquet in honor of the young people of the High school who played on the basket ball teams, and who were members of the debating team and oratorical contests was held, which nearly 150 folks, including the teams, enjoyed. The interest manifest speaks the loyalty on the part of many folks of Plymouth to the interests of clean sport and healthy athletics in the public schools. And the students of the school feel very grateful indeed, for this spirit of co-operation and understanding. The credit for this delightful affair is entirely due to Mr. Hillmer.

After a sumptuous banquet, tastily served by the ladies of Company B of the Methodist church, in a room pleasingly decorated with the High school colors, while the High school orchestra, under the capable direction of Miss Hall, entertained with inspiring music, everything was set for the further enjoyment of a well-prepared program. After a brief introduction of the toastmaster by Rev. D. D. Nagle, Rev. F. M. Field of Detroit, former pastor in Plymouth took charge of the festivities, and with his humorous anecdotes and well-directed remarks, added much to the enjoyment of the occasion. Miss Marian Kiehl gave the first toast on "Basket Ball Girls," which was responded to by the coach, Miss Glendine Hall, on "Girls' Basket Ball." Both were delightful little speeches expressing appreciation for the co-operation of the people who attended the games and helped to make the teams what they were, also aiding in upholding the ideals of the school.

This was followed by a violin solo by Daniel Patterson, which needless to say was vociferously encored. Then came a toast by Donald Sutherland, captain of the boys' basket ball team, on "Basket Ball Boys," responded to by coach Walker, on "Boys' Basket Ball."

After these fine speeches expressing the idealism of clean athletics, and the fine example of the same in the two speakers themselves, we do not wonder that the boys played such splendid games, even though they did not always pile up the winning score. We are more sure than ever that victories are not always expressed by the highest score. May Plymouth give us more such splendid, clean fellows for its athletes, and more of such a type of coaching leadership as we have now.

A piano solo by Mrs. James Honey was especially well-rendered, following which Mrs. Bessie L. Priddy, Dean of Ypsilanti Normal school, was introduced and gave a short talk on the value of community spirit and community understanding, as expressed in such get-together meetings as this proved to be; also emphasizing the importance of recreation as a part of our daily life. It was surely fine and uplifting, and we hope she comes again. A vocal trio composed of Mrs. Bake, Mrs. Man and Mrs. Cassidy sang two pleasing and delightful numbers, and then the real treat of the evening came with an address by Dr. W. D. Henderson of the University. We only wish that more folks could have heard him.

To sum it all up, he emphasized the importance of the next quarter of a century as likely to be the greatest in the history of the world for at least another thousand years, thus bringing to youth a wonderful outlook for their future. The latter part of his address devoted to stressing the advice of the poet to live a kingly life by "laughing heartily, suffering patiently, praying earnestly, laboring joyously, and loving." The evening will long be remembered by those present.

MINSTREL SHOW COMING

The Doughboy Minstrels, under the auspices of the Northville American Legion, will appear at the Penniman Allen theatre, Plymouth, Friday evening, May 4th. This entertainment was recently given with great success at Northville, and Plymouth people are assured of an evening of real pleasure. Seats will go on sale at Pinckney's Pharmacy, Saturday morning, April 28th. All seats reserved. Prices, main floor, 50c; balcony, 35c; boxes, 60c. See program on another page.

"DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS IN ROBIN HOOD"

Plymouth theatre goers will have an opportunity on Sunday and Monday evenings, April 29, 30, and Tuesday evening, May 1, of seeing one of the greatest pictures ever filmed, "Douglas Fairbanks in Robin Hood," which comes to the Penniman Allen theatre on those dates. This picture has had a phenomenal run in all the largest cities in the country, where it is shown in none but the largest theatres. Manager Lush is to be congratulated on bringing this great production to the local theatre. There will be no change in prices, the regular admission, 30c for adults and 15c for children, will prevail. There will be two shows Sunday and Monday nights. First show starts at 6:30, second at 8:45. One show Tuesday night, 7:30.

HASTINGS DEFEATS PLYMOUTH IN DEBATE.

In the most strenuously fought debate of this year's season, the Hastings debating team, upholding the affirmative of the St. Lawrence Waterway question, defeated the Plymouth team on the evening of Friday, April 20th. Though the local team was defeated and thus forfeits its place in the Michigan State Debating League, Plymouth high school still has reason to be proud of its team. Out of one hundred twenty-seven high school teams in the state, the Plymouth team has won its way to a place among the best eight. In the debate at Hastings, all three judges admitted that at the end of the constructive speeches, Plymouth was in the lead. Two judges still gave the decision to Plymouth until Hastings' third rebuttal speech. Both teams were, in the opinion of many in the audience, the strongest high school teams they had ever heard, and Congressman John C. Ketcham, former master of the State Group, said that this was the best high school debate to which he had ever listened.

The judges were Superintendent Erickson of Ypsilanti, Superintendent Conklin of Marshall, and Mr. Harrington, principal of Albion high school.

DEATH OF MRS. LYDIA C. ELDERED

Mrs. Lydia C. Eldred died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Jennie Brown, west of Plymouth, on the Moon farm, Wednesday, April 25th, after a long illness. Deceased was 73 years of age, and has always lived in this vicinity. Her husband, the late George Eldred, passed away about nine years ago. The funeral will be held this (Friday) afternoon at two o'clock, from the home of her daughter, Rev. S. Conger Hathaway officiating. Interment in Kinyon cemetery.

WOMAN'S CLUB

The annual meeting of the Woman's Club of Plymouth was held in the club room last Friday afternoon, April 20th. The president, Mrs. George Robinson presided, and about thirty members were in attendance. The annual reports of officers and standing committees were given, after which the election of officers took place, which resulted as follows: President, Mrs. Charles Humphries; First vice-president, Mrs. Floyd Hillman; second vice-president, Mrs. Roderick Cassidy; recording secretary, Mrs. Charles Rathburn; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Pierre Bennett; treasurer, Mrs. William Bake; three members of Executive Board, Mrs. George Robinson, Mrs. George Wilcox and Mrs. D. F. Murray. The annual club picnic will be held at the home of Mrs. Charles Rathburn, Friday, June 8th.

NEWBURG

There was a good attendance at the church, Sunday last, with forty-four in Sunday-school. Miss Iva Bassett led the League, last Sunday evening. Rev. Wise took Sunday dinner at the home of George Chilson.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Grimm entertained Mr. and Mrs. Donald Ryder, Miss Beulah Ryder and Clyde Smith for dinner, Sunday.

Miss Leona Joy was on the sick list last week.

Mrs. Mary Paddock and daughter, Florence, of Detroit, were guests at the Ryder homestead, Tuesday.

Dr. Oliver, a missionary from India, who has been in this country on a furlough, visited her cousin, Mrs. L. Clemens, over Sunday, as did also her sister, Miss Matherson. Mrs. Clemens went to Windsor, Ontario, Wednesday, to listen to a talk on missions by Dr. Oliver, at the Presbyterian church. She expects to return to India soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ryder and son, Burt, of Salem, called on Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Ryder, Sunday evening.

The Marrow family have moved on what is known as the William Amrhein farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Joy and family called at the home of Mrs. Lydia Joy McNabb in Detroit, to see Mr. Joy's mother, who is somewhat improved.

Misses Zadia Loomis and Gladys Horton are employed in the telephone office in Plymouth.

Mr. Norman has purchased a lot in Plymouth and is building thereon.

Mrs. Minnie Hilliker of Ann Arbor, visited her mother, Mrs. Emily LeVan, Tuesday.

The Parents and Teachers meeting was fairly well attended, Tuesday evening. Mr. Wagner gave an interesting talk on club work among the school children, together with flashlight pictures, showing the work accomplished by the different schools throughout the county. It was well worth seeing. We regret there not being more parents out to see and learn something of their children's work. The fifth grade pupils gave a very interesting sketch on "Truth."

Miss Gladys Horton sang two solos, which were well received. Election of officers resulted in the following officers being re-elected: President, Mrs. Harmon Gates; vice president, Mrs. E. Stevens; treasurer, Miss Hazel Reddeman. Mrs. J. S. Rousseau was elected secretary to succeed Mr. Allenbaugh, as he will be unable to act as secretary for another year.

The entertainment committee are: Mesdames Rousseau, Allen and Thompson. Refreshments were served. The next meeting will be held the second Tuesday in May. A purely business meeting will be held. We very respectfully urge all parents and others interested to attend, as there are some very important matters to take up at this time.

(Signed) Mrs. J. S. Rousseau.

William Gayde has been on the sick list this week.

Mrs. C. Strasen, Cordula Strasen and Mrs. E. C. Drews attended the last Smyphony concert in Detroit, last Friday night.

Co. D of the Methodist Ladies Aid, Mrs. Sutherland's division, meets at the church on Wednesday afternoon. Among other things on the program, several comforters will be tied.

LET'S GET NEIGHBORLY

We see relatives and friends coming and going on visits, and even neighbors running in and out of each other's homes, all cementing closer the bonds of love and friendship, and we wonder why towns don't do a little more of the same thing.

Think, for instance, how much better we'd all feel here in Plymouth, if we'd just shut up shop some fine afternoon, get together all the autos we could muster up, and run over and spend an hour or two in any of the towns nearby. We could let them know, of course, that we were coming, just to look them over and have an hour's friendly chat with them, and they'd welcome the visit with open arms, and throw wide open the gates of their town. They'd have improvements to show us, too, that might furnish us some good suggestions for making our own town better. And the friendly chats and new-formed acquaintanceships such a trip would make would be worth a lot to us in our daily work after we returned home.

There isn't any cause for community jealousy, and there is less cause for one town being jealous of another. We're all trying to make our own town better, but not at the expense of another town. So why can't we be a little more neighborly and a little more helpful? Why can't we agree upon some afternoon, now that spring is here, when we can close up for an hour and run out in one big, merry family party and call on our neighbors. Think it over, talk it over, and let us put it through at an early date.

BETTER START EARLY

The time to keep disease-carrying flies out of the house is before they get in. And in view of the fact that but a few weeks will elapse until these pesky creatures will be coming down on Plymouth in swarms, a suggestion along this line is most timely. Put up the screens or the mosquito bar now, instead of putting it off until the house is so full of flies that you are forced to do it in self-protection. You've time, too, to mend any breaks there may be in the screening, or to give them a good coat of paint if it will improve the appearance. But start this work early, and let us see if we can't, by giving the housefly the hardest battle he ever had, keep down the amount of sickness in our community the coming summer. Let's try to make this the healthiest summer we have ever had in the history of this community.

THE AUTO OUTPUT

At the rate motor cars are being turned out in this country it looks like it won't be long until every person who has the slightest wish for one will have the wish gratified. During the month of March, according to figures just made public, 300,000 cars and trucks were sold. If this record keeps up there will be purchased for the first quarter of the year—4923, no less than 816,772 cars and trucks, as compared with 386,195 during a similar period last year. Some enthusiastic follower of the auto business has stated that by 1932 there will be no less than 24,000,000 autos in this country. We are rapidly getting to be a nation that travels on pneumatic tires. Already we have more motor cars than any half-dozen other nations in the world combined, and we haven't even approached the point where we can linger in the belief that we have reached somewhere near the climax of production and sale.

The Illusion Was Shattered

By MYRA CURTIS LANE

(© 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

The bugbear was named Cyrus Bannock, and he was forty-five. It was twenty years since Nell Raymond had seen him, a slim youth with appealing blue eyes that had shot their shy glances into her heart. It had been a desperate love affair.

Now here she was, a responsible, married woman of forty, in a sort of way contented with life, and with a husband above reproach. But—they had been married fifteen years.

And after fifteen years of married life not very much romance survives, even in the best regulated families.

Jim knew all about Cyrus. "Nonsense, my dear," he said, "you don't suppose I'm afraid I can't hold you, do you? I bet he's a fat whale of a fellow, about as romantic as a prize ox."

Nell looked at him appealingly. She had cherished that dream of youth through all the years of married life. She was happy with Jim, but there had never been an atom of romance about Jim. And every woman has a secret place for romance within her heart.

Often and often she had sobbed in lonely nights when she had lain awake, listening to her husband breathing, and wondering what her life might have been with Cyrus.

They had read poetry together and discussed beautiful things. Their life was to have been one grand romantic rapture. She was only twenty, and Cyrus twenty-five.

Then came the bitter quarrel, the parting, and—later she had married Jim.

Now Ella Wayland had written her that an "old beau" of hers, Cyrus Bannock, was to be a guest at her party, and that he was anxious to meet her again. And she was afraid to meet him.

And Jim simply laughed at her. In the end she agreed to go. If Jim chose to make light of such a tragic situation—all right. Let him take the responsibility.

Cyrus wasn't a "whale of a fellow." He seemed hardly to have changed. When he held Nell's hand and looked into her eyes she felt an absurd fluttering at her heart.

All through the dinner she lived in a dream, conscious all the while of Cyrus' eyes on hers. She wondered whether he thought her old. She was hardly able to reply to the remarks of her dinner partner. All the old romance of the past was stirred up again.

She felt the old spell, and she knew that if Cyrus asked her she would run away with him to the world's end. She glanced at him, not unmingled with contempt, at Jim, seated opposite her, blandly unconscious of her feelings. Well, she had warned Jim. It was upon Jim's own head.

Afterward, in the drawing room, she sat absurdly aloof, frightened at the depth of emotion that held her. Presently the men came in. Cyrus made his way to her side.

"It's good to meet you after all these years," he said.

"Yes," she answered mechanically.

"What have you been doing, Cyrus?"

"Oh, doing pretty well," he answered.

"I've got a little factory of my own. I'm in a fair way to become rich."

"What are you manufacturing?"

"What did she care? She had to say something."

"Soap-bolling," answered Cyrus.

"Soap-bolling?"

"Sure thing. There's more money in soap than in almost anything. You and your husband ought to run out and see our model village, Nell. We've got four miles of concrete walks—"

Was it a dream? She was aware that her look was imploring.

"Yep, we little thought in the old days that I'd make good like that," said Cyrus. "But say, Nell, you haven't forgotten those times, have you? You've always been in my thoughts—"

He was trying to flirt with her, a cheap sort of flirtation. She was digging desperately for the old Cyrus and not finding him. The room was swimming around her. She saw her husband coming toward her.

"By heck," remarked Jim, on their way home, "if I'd known what a bully fellow that was I'd have been a bit more anxious. Say, you ought to have heard some of those yarns he spun us. Had the whole table in a roar. What did you think of him, Nell?"

"I think, on the whole, I prefer you, dear," answered Nell calmly. And she knew that the illusion of the past was shattered beyond repair.

The Short Cut.

An ambitious young man went to a university professor and said: "Sir, I desire a course of training which will fit me to become the superintendent of a great railway system. How much will such a course cost, and how long will it take?"

"Young man," replied the professor, "such a course would cost you $20,000 and require 20 years of your time. But, on the other hand, by spending $300 of your money and three months of your time you may be elected to congress. Once there you will feel yourself competent to direct not one, but all the great rail road systems of our country."

Sweeping Statements.

"I am extremely unhygienic," said the old-fashioned voluminous skirt.

"I gather as much," replied the evening gown, "with the long train"—Life.

Indigestion and Constipation

"Prior to using Chamberlain's Tablets, I suffered dreadfully from indigestion. Nothing I ate agreed with me and I lost flesh and ran down in health. Chamberlain's Tablets strengthened my digestion and cured me of constipation," writes Mrs. George Stroup, Solway, N. Y.—Advertisement.

PLYMOUTH HIGH WINS AGAIN

It was not a mere coincidence that the "Rocks" won at Northville last Friday, but a desire for a victory which would be the first in many years. The "Rocks" carried through this desire, winning with a score of 15-5, which made the team feel repaid for their efforts.

Robert Taylor, who showed remarkable ability in last week's game, started pitching for the "Rocks," but did not show up to last week's record because of his sore arm. Kastell was the pitcher for Northville's entire game. Neither team scored during the first inning.

Doyle Rowland pitched the third and fourth innings. He showed exceptional pitching during the fourth, striking out three men on Northville's team.

The fifth inning was a rally for Plymouth, the "Rocks" playing their best, scoring seven runs, and every man having a chance to bat. Dee Trimble was our next pitcher who came up to the other two before him. The game ended with Plymouth as victors for the first two games of the season, placing the "Rocks" tied for first place in the Four Square League, with Dearborn and Farmington.

Line-up—Hickey, c. f.; Sump, 2d. b.; Trimble, s. s.; Seger, r. f.; Holmes, 3d. b.; Millman, l. f.; Cline, c.; Taylor, pitcher. Substitutions—Rowland for Taylor, Trimble for Rowland, Rowland for Trimble.

The Road to Happiness

You must keep well if you wish to be happy. When constipated take one or two of Chamberlain's Tablets immediately after supper. They cause a gentle movement of the bowels.—Advertisement.

Things could be much worse. If you get restless this spring, just think of the fellows in jail.

We recently heard a Plymouth woman claiming that her sex is smarter than the men. Maybe. But you never heard of a man ordering a shirt that he had to button up the back.

A Columbia river salmon lays 30,000 eggs. Now take this item out in the back yard and read it to the hens.

Maybe, after all, time is money. For that is about all some fellows spend.

We don't care how much luck the average Plymouth man has, he can lose it mighty quick if he doesn't look both ways at a railroad crossing.

Announcing the 1923 Series

The 1923 Series of New Oakland Six-44 models are ready for delivery. They are distinctly new in beauty of line and in refinement of detail, and yet they retain all of the basic high quality of the first Six-44's.

Never before have so many exclusive and valuable features been combined with such high quality construction in a car so reasonably priced. Never has the automobile dollar bought more than it buys in the 1923 Oakland at the recently reduced price of $995.

The powerful, six-cylinder, overhead-valve engine carries the same written, 15,000 mile guarantee. But the performance of this motor is even more remarkable due to a new system of carburation. Other distinct improvements add greatly to car appearance and driving ease.

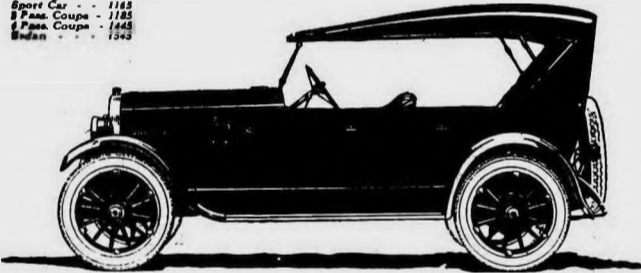

Examine the 1923 Oakland critically. In performance, power, beauty and economy it instantly reveals superior value. Compare it with cars of similar price and you will never be content with one of lesser worth.

When you come in to examine the many new refinements and improvements you will discover two exclusive features of great value to be found in no other car at any price.

The Wire Chief Keeps Your Telephone Working

THE TELEPHONE WIRE CHIEF plays a vital part in your daily existence. His is the responsibility for keeping your telephone working.

He has at his call, linemen, repairmen and installers who are working on wires and equipment constantly. And a word about these workmen. We believe you will find them thoughtful and courteous, always.

Occasionally your telephone troubles are corrected without a visit from the repairman. Perhaps he locates the trouble in equipment or lines outside your home and makes necessary repairs.

Electrical storms, ice, sleet, snow and water are frequent causes of impaired telephone service, and when storms come, telephone men are on the job for days after—often without rest—until service is restored.

The Telephone Wire Chief's first job is to see that telephone service is maintained, so that public safety and convenience may not suffer.

Will you help him with his important task in your service by being patient in time of bad weather or other trouble?

POWER FOR GOOD

Writer Pays Tribute to Irish Schoolmaster.

Has Always Ruled by Love, and Many Men and Women Rise Up to Call Him Blessed.

We often wondered that Thady Sheridan had been able to satisfy the requirements of the board of education for Ireland. But he accomplished it nevertheless and still retains his position as village schoolmaster. He had, however, to submit to several indignities. His picturesque, rose-covered but antiquated schoolhouse was pulled down, and a plain, comfortable building erected in its stead. But far worse! He was compelled to submit to government inspection, he who had taught successfully for 30 years. Fortunately Mr. Kelly, the inspector, is broadminded enough to pass over Thady's ignorance of modern methods and discipline in consideration of the good results he obtains on the whole.

It was rather a shock to him, on coming unexpectedly to the school, to find Thady teaching a class of "infants" with two of the youngest seated on his knees. But his surprise was still greater when, having produced the usual "Punishment Book" and explained that every caning administered to the children must be registered, Thady exclaimed, in genuine astonishment, "Surely, sir, you don't believe I would ever lay a finger on the children."

"Oh, come now, Mr. Sheridan, the boys must need it occasionally."

Thady drew himself up to his full height. "Never! And if ever I found I could not make them do as bidding without punishment I'd resign at once."

So Thady continues to rule entirely and successfully by affection. His frown is sufficient correction; his love is the law of the school. And the children do him credit at examinations, except, it must be admitted, in English composition. That is certainly their weak point.

The inspector on one occasion having carefully explained what "advantages" meant, asked the bigger boys to write an essay on "The Advantages of Country Life," and the following was the best effort that resulted: "There does be many good points in living in the country. Ye can dig your own prates and milk your own goat and eat your own hen's eggs if your mother'll let you. Ye can catch the farmer's asses that are eating the grass, if so be that the farmer doesn't catch you. But the best of it all is ye can 'milk' whenever you like, whileas them poor gossens as lives in towns can't so much as stay away from school for one week without having the 'poiss' after them. Thanks be, I live in the country."

In spite of this, one is glad that Thady is still the village schoolmaster. For his influence for good is strong and continues long after his pupils have left school. In fact, there are many men and women now living in "The Big Snake," as some Irish peasants call Dublin, and others scattered all over the world who testify with gratitude to the loving guidance and training they received from Thady Sheridan.—Christian Science Monitor.

Bird-Banding Association Formed.
In connection with the bird-banding work of the biological survey, United States Department of Agriculture, 1,338 mallards, black ducks and pintails were trapped and banded in November and December at the Saginaw club, Brownings, Ill., by a member of the bureau. A large number of returns from these birds have already been received. The information furnished by the returns regarding the movements of these migratory birds will be of much value to those interested in bird-banding work.

A new inland bird-banding association has been formed in the central states, which co-operate with the biological survey in this work. Particular attention will be given by it to a study of the birds that follow the Mississippi valley flyway.

LIVONIA CENTER

Mr. and Mrs. William Klipple and Mrs. Leora Revard of Detroit, were guests at the Palmer Chilson home, Saturday. Mrs. Revard remained for a more extended visit.

O. E. Chilson of Redford, was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lee, Tuesday night, and called upon other Center friends.

The stork was busy last week and left a son with Mr. and Mrs. John Jasky, and also Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ash, Jr.

The Farmington-Wayne road presents a busy appearance, with the cement mixer and a large force of men at work, laying cement.

Lillie Hayball returned home from Harper hospital, Monday, much improved in health, but still under the doctor's care.

The school is enjoying the use of the new globe, which arrived this week.

The pleasant weather of the past week has been encouraging to the farmers, and the work of sowing oats is the order of the day.

Work on the new house of Mr. and Mrs. Riley Wolfson on the Seven Mile road, is progressing nicely, and it will present a fine appearance when completed.

DANCE

A Hard Times Dance will be given at the Livonia town hall, Saturday evening, April 28th. Good music. Everybody welcome.

PERRINSVILLE

A good social time was had at the home of William Love, Friday evening. Everyone sure enjoyed the curiosity shop, and the neat sum of eighteen dollars was added to the treasury.

Mrs. May Kubik is able to be out again.

Doris Bridge of Plymouth, is visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Bach.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Holmes are the proud parents of a 7½ pound boy. Mr. and Mrs. Zimmel and family and Miss Anna Mogie of Detroit, spent Tuesday evening at John Kubik's.

John Kubik is working in Detroit. Grandma Tait called at Mrs. Cousins' and Mrs. Baehr's, Saturday. All are glad to see her out.

WEST PLYMOUTH

Louis Minehart and son, Charles, were visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Widmaier, Sunday.

Mrs. Mable Stewart of Plymouth, visited Mrs. Clark Hearn, last Friday.

Miss Alma Horten of Marine City, was a week-end guest of Miss Hazel Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Brumbach and Arthur, of Williamston, visited at John Butler's from Thursday until Sunday afternoon.

Miss Marion E. Butler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Butler, and Harold L. Barnes, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Barnes, were married at the home of the bride's parents, last week Thursday. The groom is an employe of the Ford Motor company at Northville, and the bride was formerly a stenographer and bookkeeper in the commissary department of the Detroit House of Correction farm.

Mrs. Don Packard visited her mother, Mrs. Durfee, at Wayne, last Thursday.

R. L. Sackett of Detroit, called at the Butler home, Monday.

SOUTH SALEM

Claude Getty is ill, and under the care of Dr. Peck.

Edward Smith has been chosen juror from Salem township for the May term of court at Ann Arbor.

The Federated Aid held its meeting, yesterday, in the church parlors.

Dwight Ballard of Eaton Rapids, was a week-end guest of Bruce Rorabacher.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Rorabacher were Sunday afternoon callers at Clifford McClumpha's in Canton. Miss Dorothy McClumpha, who has been ill all winter, is now able to drive out.

Theodore and Louis Sieloff were home for the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillips, who come from northern Michigan, have taken the VanVorse farm to work. Mr. Phillips had what might have been a very serious accident, Monday. Harrowing with the tractor, he attached the harrow too closely, and in turning a corner the implement was thrown over the tractor, pinning him fast. He had one leg severely injured.

Mr. and Coda Savery and daughters were Wayne callers, Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Waters of Fowlerville, were dinner guests of Mrs. B. A. Nelson, Thursday.

Mrs. Myrtle Prior of Michigan Center, is here caring for her daughter, Mrs. Walter Curtis.

A dress form was made at the home of Mrs. Golden Bender, for Mrs. Faye Perkins, Saturday. Other ladies present were: Mesdames Ethel Rich, Myrtle Savery and Iva Whittaker.

OUTSTANDING FACTS ABOUT NEW FAIRBANKS PHOTOPLAY

JUST A FEW STATISTICS GIVING AN IDEA OF THE BIGNESS OF "DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS IN ROBIN HOOD," DEPICTING THE ROMANCE AND CHIVALRY OF THE TWELFTH CENTURY.

Something of an idea of the bigness and general scope of Douglas Fairbanks' latest photoplay sensation, "Douglas Fairbanks in Robin Hood" may be gathered from the summary of facts given herewith. For the last word in Fairbanks' super-features, which is coming to the Penniman Allen theatre, next Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, April 29, 30 and May 1, under a United Artists release, a host of engineers, architects, artists and artisans labored for months before ever a camera lens was opened.

Twenty-two experts delved and studied in the necessary research work for accurate designing of the colossal sets.

Libraries the world over were ransacked by these experts for authoritative facts in ascertaining the historical data that all might be presented truthfully to the period.

Hundreds of workmen labored three months to build the sets.

One million feet of approximately thirty-five carloads of lumber were used on their construction.

This lumber, if laid out in board feet, would cover twenty acres of ground; if placed end to end would span a distance of about five hundred miles.

One carload, or about thirty tons, of nails were consumed in erecting the sets.

Two hundred and fifty tons of material went into the castle walls.

More than fifteen acres of studio property are in use for the principal sets.

The king's castle set covers two and one-half acres and is 310 feet in height. The exterior is 620 feet long.

In building the castle 178,000 square feet of wall board, plaster board and button lath were required.

There are eight castle towers. If these towers were water tanks, each would hold 276,000 gallons.

The castle is surrounded by a moat, built from historically correct specifications, broad enough and deep enough to serve as a genuine barrier against the taking of this stronghold.

The royal banquet room in the castle is the largest room in the world, being larger even than the concourse of the Pennsylvania Terminal Station in New York City.

Eleven canvas pavilions were built, each one forty feet in height.

The muslin diffusing system—used to diffuse light—is bigger than the combined "big tops" of the world's greatest circus enterprise.

The camera staff work from a platform built of selected spruce and airplane wire, with an area of forty square feet, weighs only 400 pounds, and can be assembled by four men in seven minutes.

Twenty thousand yards of heavy velvets and rich cloth material were used in making the 2,500 costumes worn by principals, players and extras.

More than one thousand wigs, each made of human hair, are worn by members of the cast.

More than one thousand pairs of shoes were required for the production and but one pair could be made from the hide of one sheep. The entire stock of three tanneries was taken in supplying these hides.

Every weapon carried in the production was made entirely by hand. There are 2,000 spears, 1,500 swords, 2,000 shields and 500 daggers.

Shields and trappings were made for hundreds of horses, all hand-made and hand-sewed.

In making an exact duplicate of the standard used by King Richard I in his crusade to the Holy Lands, 300 pounds of iron were necessary.

An army of 10,000 extra people is being employed in various scenes at various times.

The prodigal use of hand-work on all effects in "Douglas Fairbanks in Robin Hood" is not a careless extravagance, but serves to illustrate the absolute authenticity of the production, for in the period depicted machinery was little used, metals and almost all materials being worked by hand.

EPISCOPAL NOTES

Franklin Gibson's subject last Sunday was, "A Sinner Not Forgotten," from the text Mark 16:7, "Go tell His Disciples, and Peter." Next Sunday Mr. Gibson's subject will be, "From Sin to God," Psalm 51.

The new lessons for the Sunday-school arrived last week, and they were given out last Sunday morning—a different set of lessons for each class according to their grades. Mrs. Murphy, the superintendent, suggests that a meeting of the teachers be held every week, so that the Sunday's lessons may be discussed by the teachers in preparation for the following Sunday session.

The Ladies' Guild will meet next Wednesday, May 2nd, at 2:00 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. Arthur Torre on East Ann Arbor road.

Tonight at St. John's church, Wayne, will be a special service at 8:00 o'clock. The Rev. Robert Woodruff, M. A., rector of St. John's church, Detroit, will speak on, "Spiritual Healing as Taught by the Episcopal Church." The Rev. Woodruff is one of the outstanding speakers in the Episcopal Diocese of Detroit, and quite an authority on this subject, and we know that his address tonight will be most interesting.

Preventative Medicine

The tendency of medical science is toward preventative measures. It is easier and better to prevent than to cure. Pneumonia, one of the most dangerous diseases that medical men have to contend with, often follows a cold or attack of grip. The cold prepares the system for the reception and development of the pneumonia germ. The longer the cold hangs on, the greater the danger. Take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the first indication of a cold appears so as to get rid of it with the least possible delay. It is folly to risk an attack of pneumonia when this remedy may be obtained for a trifle.—Advertisement.

Ford ANNOUNCEMENT

Of Interest to

MILLIONS of FAMILIES

"I will build a car for the multitude" SAID HENRY FORD IN 1903—READ HOW THE FULFILLMENT OF THAT PROPHECY IS NOW MADE POSSIBLE THROUGH THE

Ford Weekly Purchase Plan

For many years it has been Henry Ford's personal ambition to make the Ford the Universal Family Car—to put it within the reach of the millions of people who have never been privileged to enjoy the benefits of motor car ownership.

During the past fifteen years over 7,500,000 Ford cars have been placed in the hands of retail customers—more than a million and a half of them within the past twelve months—and yet there are still millions of families who are hopefully looking forward to the day when they can own a Ford.

And now the way is open.

Under the terms of this plan you can select your Ford car, set aside a small amount each week and you will be surprised how soon you will own it. In the meantime your money will be safely deposited to your credit in the local bank, where it will draw interest.

Think it over. Five dollars will start an account. The whole family can participate in it—father, mother, brothers and sisters each doing a little.

Why not start today? Stop in and talk it over with your local Ford dealer. He will be glad to fully explain the details of the plan and help you get started toward the ownership of a Ford Car.

23 SERIES STUDEBAKER LIGHT-SIX SEDAN $1550

Hidden qualities largely determine the value and life of a closed car.

Beauty of line and finish and refinements are surface indications and important ones. But your satisfaction with a closed car depends to a great degree upon factors that are unseen—the in-built qualities that come from correct design, use of highest grade materials and careful workmanship.

The 23 Series Studebaker Light-Six Sedan is a quality car. It is built to endure—to give lasting satisfaction.

The Sedan body is substantially built. It will last for years and retain its beauty and comfort. Evidence of its hidden goodness lies in the fact that down under the paint and varnish, the pillars, roof rails and supporting members are made from specially selected ash.

Four wide-opening doors make it easy for all passengers to get in or out without inconvenience to each other. A high-grade heater affords summer warmth on cold, damp days. The wide windows give broad vision in every direction.

Studebaker quality is traditional.

Today's Reflections

The average Plymouth citizen knows by this time that trouble is about the only thing you can borrow without gilt-edge security.

About the time it gets warm enough to go on our summer vacation, we'll have to save money to get our winter coat.

The girls are again dressing their hair so their ears show, but they're still refusing to lend their ears to the advice of older people.

We've also gotten around to the point again where it doesn't pay to leave sugar in the bottom of the cup.

A bachelor is a man who wears two pairs of socks at a time to hide the holes in each pair.

After they invent a squirtless orange, maybe someone will come along with some smearless apple butter.

Maybe the reason some of our Plymouth children are lacking in politeness, is because too many woodsheds have been made into garages.

Nowadays a cow-catcher is a thing they put on locomotives to catch automobiles.

With so many vamps running at large our advice to Plymouth women is to be sure they have their husbands fully covered by insurance.

The Way to the Death-Chair

By CHARLES E. BAXTER

(© 1927, Western Newspaper Union.)

They say that a man in mortal agony loses all sense of place, of time, of personality, even. So it was with me. Confronted by imminent death, I had become an automaton, a thing that moved automatically at the gestures of its leaders.

Whom I had killed, and why, had slipped out of my memory as though I remained as pure and unscathed as any citizen of the land. The long months in the death-cell had not only broken my spirit; they had eased up the intolerable burden on my mind. When the time came for me to die I knew that I would pass out without disgracing my honored status as one of the seven who were awaiting the final mercies of the chair.

But what an eternity seemed those few last days! How my mind, recoiling from the prospect of eternity, seemed to have anticipated it by becoming oblivious to time!

I know that I ate and drank and smoked mechanically. I had neither sight nor taste nor hearing. Not much, at any rate. I was dimly aware of the four surrounding walls, and of the periodical entrance of one of the wardens.

"Keep your courage up, old man," he whispered. "It won't be long and it won't be hard. There's many a poor sufferer would be glad to go that way."

Sometimes during the long night of agony that followed I would be aware of the efforts of my fellow-prisoners to console me. They wanted to play checkers with me, calling the moves. A checker-board was marked out on the whitewashed walls of my cell. There was a tiny bit of blackened match with which to mark.

But I paid no attention to them. I was concentrating on bearing up for the ordeal of the morrow. Gradually the friendly calls of encouragement grew more and more faint. At last the prison slept.

I must have slept, for when I awoke I was conscious that the electric light of the interior had been put out. Day was creeping into the cell, my last day upon this friendly earth.

Presently a dismal clanging of doors began to resound through the prison. It was the regular convicts being let out of their cells to work. I cursed the sound; I heard it every day since I had been there.

Footsteps sounded along the flags of the corridor. It was the chief warden and his assistants. There was a man with something behind his back.

"How do?" he remarked, cheerily, extending one hand.

My own hand went out mechanically. Instantly he had slipped a noose about my wrists. I remember how I resented the trick. I was not going to make any difficulty.

I was pinioned. I was being led along the corridor. The death-watch were shouting encouragements to me. "Good boy! Keep up your heart! Now we shall be long!"

All these memories seemed to flash through my mind instantaneously, for I was already in the chair. My trouser leg had been slit. I felt the application of the cold electrode. My head must have been shaved, too, although I did not remember the precise moment at which it was done. And a mask was lifted over my face, so that I could no longer see.

I had already seen, as in a vague and hideous dream, the circle of awed, white faces watching me in the death-house. I had seen, of course, the grisly chair, and the lever whose reversal meant instantaneous death for me. Now I was blind.

I doubt whether there can be any single moment more hideous than the one in which one sits, a perfectly healthy man, awaiting his inevitable doom—that instant that is to hurl his soul into eternity.

I sat and waited. I thought of life. I tried to remember who I was, had been. I was already as good as dead. Oddly enough, I was concerned about the way the cap fitted about my head. I was stifling. I wanted air.

And suddenly the end came. I heard a grinding sound. I felt my body, charged with hundreds of thousands of volts of electricity, strain against the straps. I gasped, flung out my arms.

"Ouch!" cried a familiar voice.

I stared about me wildly. The mask had been removed, and the face of the man confronting me seemed strangely, fiercely familiar.

"That was the toughest molar I ever pulled," my dentist said. "I thought that you were never going under, the way you kicked and thrashed about. Five dollars, please."

Quick Recovery.

Watson entered the private office of Doctor Brighton.

"I am Mr. Watson," he introduced himself. "I have been feeling badly for some time and I want to find out just what the trouble is if I can. Doctor Smith, who moved from the city just a short time ago, told me that I had only a few years to live."

"My dear man, be seated," Doctor Brighton offered. "And I would not let myself be worried over the dire prediction of Doctor Smith. Indeed, I would not trust his word too much if I were you."

"But, doctor," Watson interrupted, "Doctor Smith is the man who advised me to come to see you."

"—as to a diagnosis," Doctor Brighton finished lamely. "On all other matters I consider Doctor Smith perfectly reliable. Indeed, an eminent authority!"—Kansas City Star.

And what has become of the old-fashioned fellow who used to tell us that he "could drink or leave it alone?"

GIANT BIRDS OF THE PAST

Discoveries Have Proved That Enormous Feathered Creatures Once Existed on Earth.

In that long, narrow triangle which forms the southern extremity of South America, and which, since the first visits of Magellan and other early navigators, has been associated in the imagination of many persons with the storms of Cape Horn and the mysteries of Terra del Fuego, geologists have discovered the remains of a class of gigantic birds which, in many respects, differ from all birds that are known ever to have existed elsewhere upon the globe.

These birds, it is believed, could not fly, and their great jaws were so like those of some four-footed beast that when one of them—an under jaw which about 21 inches in length—was exhibited in England, many naturalists would not admit that it had belonged to a bird at all, and asserted that it must be the jaw of some animal resembling a gigantic sloth.

More recent discoveries, however, have proved that no mistake was made in ascribing the jaw in question to a bird. Specimens of entire skulls and of other parts of skeletons have been found in Patagonia, which show that long before the records of human history began, and possibly before man had made his appearance on the earth, such birds inhabited that country.

Their leg bones were proportionate in size and strength to their jaws. They had wings, but naturalists think that these wings, like those of the ostrich, were not used for flight, but simply as an aid in running.

Gigantic flightless birds, some even larger perhaps than those of South America, are known to have lived in other parts of the world, but there are certain peculiarities of structure which separate the extinct Patagonian birds from all others. This gives them a peculiar scientific interest, because it has been found that many of the four-footed animals inhabiting South America in ancient times were unlike those of the other continents.

Such discoveries are as full of meaning to the geologist who is trying to read in the records of nature the history of the globe as are the ancient inscriptions and human remains found in the tombs and caves and temples to students of the early history of man.

Knew His Business.

Waters walked down the street in the early evening, enjoying his cigar. He stopped to look at a window display. A hand touched him on the shoulder. Waters turned around quickly.

"Begging your pardon, mister." It was a human derelict, about to make a "touch."

"What is it?" Waters asked, not unkindly.

"I'm up against it, mister," the man explained. "I haven't any money. Couldn't you help a fellow out with a dollar?"

"Why don't you go to work?" Waters asked.

"There you go with that fool question!" the man exclaimed. "Mister, there are a hundred reasons why! I ain't got time to tell you my life history here tonight. I'm broke and need a dollar."

"You ask for too much," Waters said. "If you had told me you needed a quarter I might have felt like giving it."

The man turned away with a snarl. "If you don't want to give me a dollar, all right, mister," he said, "but don't try to give me any pointers on begging!"—Kansas City Star.

Egypt's Marvels.

Prof. W. M. Flinders Petrie, the veteran archeologist, lecturing on "Ancient Egyptian Workmanship," at King's college, London, the other day, laid stress upon the capabilities and knowledge of the Egyptians as far back as 7000 B. C., as disclosed by the further excavations now being made.

Hand-carved flints, two inches wide and not more than a quarter of an inch thick, he explained, showed an amazing degree of skill—in days thousands of years before the art of reading and writing. A tombstone at least 5,000 years old, both in line and plane was accurate to the 1-7000th part of an inch.

Examples of hand weaving showed that the Egyptians 7,000 years ago could produce material equal to our finest machine-woven cambric of today. About 3,500 years ago they had practically every tool used by modern carpenters.

M. A. C. COW SETS NEW COLLEGE MARK

OFFICIAL SEVEN DAY RECORD OF 731 POUNDS OF MILK GIVES HOLSTEIN NATIONAL HONORS.

With the highest seven day production record held by any state agricultural college or experiment station cow in the country to her credit, Pauline Jane Pontiac, pure bred Holstein-Friesian in the M. A. C. dairy herd, has earned a place in the dairy world hall of fame, and incidentally brought high honor to Michigan.

Pauline produced 731.1 pounds of milk, containing 36.58 pounds of 80 per cent butter, during the seven days of her official test. This is the best of many high records hung up by members of the M. A. C. herd in the past, and also sets a mark for college cows the country over to strive for.

Other members of Pauline's immediate family have been record breakers. She was sired by Pauline Sir Pontiac, M. A. C. Holstein herd sire. Pauline Segis Fayne, another of Sir Pontiac's daughters, produced over 21,000 pounds of milk as a junior two years old, thereby breaking the state record for that age. Still another daughter, Pauline Colantha Fayne, made 19,800 pounds of milk as a junior two year old, and Pauline Fayne Colantha recently checked in 26 pounds of butter in seven days as a junior three year old.

All of which shows that blood will tell, according to J. E. Burnett, of the M. A. C. dairy division, who supervises the record test work of the college herd.

Many a man who thinks that he is embracing an opportunity, discovers later that he was merely hugging a delusion.

Everywhere and Everywhere
the Same

WITH the constantly increasing number of hard roads, the display lines above take on a new and deep significance. You are getting out into the country more—you are motoring greater distances.

You count your day's mileage by the hundreds—before it was by tens.

You are using more gasoline because hard roads permit greater speed.

No Matter Where You Go—

you can get Red Crown Gasoline and you won't have to change the adjustment of your carburetor. This would not hold true with some brands of gasoline sold in restricted areas.

Red Crown is the best, most economical gasoline you can buy. Once you have the right carburetor adjustment you can go and keep going without a sputter—you will have an abundance of sustained pulling power and all the speed your engine can develop.

You will find a Red Crown Service Station every few blocks in the city and every few miles in the country.

Harsh in Their Judgment

By MYRA CURTIS LANE

(©, 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

Grandfather had farmed his land for fifty years. He had been frugal and saved enough to retire on. Every Thanksgiving all the family who could assembled at his house.

There was John, the eldest; Milly, who had married the stockbroker—who generally stayed in town—and Edwin, with his daughter Barbara, Grandfather's favorite.

Barbara and Grandfather always took long walks together when she came to the farm, and they were just such friends and confidants as grandfather and granddaughter often are.

Barbara had had a love affair. Nobody was supposed to mention it to her, because it had turned out unhappily, but Grandfather soon found out all about it as they started along the road toward the woods.

"Oh, don't let's go this way," protested Barbara. "I don't want to see that cross old Mrs. Hayes you're so friendly with."

"Cross, my dear?"

"Well, I don't like the old woman and that nasty house of hers," said Barbara pettishly.

"I'm sure if you knew her you would like her," said Grandfather. "However, each to his taste, my dear. Tell me about John."

"Oh, Grandfather, I'm so unhappy. It's all over for good now, and I shall never, never love again. He behaved so abominably."

"What did he do, Barbara, dear?"

"He—he was carrying on an affair with that Lily Prentiss I told you about all the time I thought he cared for me," sobbed Barbara.

"But what excuse did he have to offer?"

"He—he said he was trying to break it off and hadn't the courage. What an excuse! Of course, I'll never have anything more to do with him, though he's begged me to. I could never trust him again. And the worst of it is that I can never love anybody again. I'm through with love forever. Do you know I am twenty-five, Grandfather?"

"Not quite a patriarch, my dear."

"Oh, but when you've been through an experience like that it sears you, Grandfather. Everybody knows you can't love after twenty-five."

Grandfather said nothing, and they walked through the leafless woods till they came to Mrs. Hayes' new cottage.

"Are we going in?" asked Barbara.

"I—I've just got to give Mrs. Hayes a prescription she wanted for her chickens," Grandfather answered.

Barbara remembered how somebody had told her that Grandfather and Mrs. Hayes had been very fond of each other when they were young. Something had come between them.

The withered old woman opened the door. It was impossible to see how anybody could ever have loved Mrs. Hayes; how she could ever have been beautiful. She had thin, white, struggling locks under her cap, she was bent and angular, her voice was a creak and she was the crossiest thing Barbara had ever seen.

"You know my granddaughter Barbara,"

Mrs. Hayes mumbled something. What a contrast was Grandfather! Fine, tall and rugged, in spite of his two and seventy years.

"I've just come about your ailing chickens, Letty," said Grandfather. "Better let me look at them."

The old woman hobbled off with him. Barbara began to follow them, hesitated, and stopped at the back door. She saw Grandfather give Mrs. Hayes his arm. They went off, passing among the chicken houses. They disappeared, reappeared.

Barbara gave a little gasp. She saw Grandfather stoop and kiss the old woman. She saw Mrs. Hayes' face upturned to his. Then, with his arm about her waist, Grandfather led her back toward the house. He did not remove his arm until he was quite near Barbara.

They walked back through the leafless woods. If Grandfather had spoken Barbara would not have been able to answer him. Something was swelling in her throat, something had touched her so deeply. They were half way home when Grandfather broke the silence.

"You must act as you think best, of course, dear. But you and John are young, and when people are young they are apt to be a little harsh in their judgments. Afterward, sometimes, they regret them."

Grandfather sighed, and there followed a long silence. They were quite near the house when Barbara said: "Grandfather, I'm going to write to John this evening."

Walnut Always Popular. English or Grenoble walnuts are favorite nuts with everybody. The walnut tree came originally from Italy and France, where it has grown for many centuries. The Romans called it "The Nut of Jove," for they thought the fruit was worthy to be set before Jove, their chief god.

The walnut tree was first taken to Britain about five hundred years ago. During the last century there was a great demand for walnut furniture, so a great many trees were cut down and sold. At one time as much as $3,000 was given for a single walnut tree.

The tree grows to a great height and has a very thick trunk covered with gray bark. Its branches are large and spreading; they are sometimes twisted, but the tips of each branch always turn to the sky.

A Farmer Cured of Rheumatism "A man living on a farm near here came in a short time ago completely doubled up with rheumatism. I handed him a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment and told him to use it freely," says C. P. Rayder, Patten Mills, N. Y. "A few days later he walked into the store as straight as a string and handed me a dollar, saying, 'Give me another bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment; I want it in the house all the time for it cured me.'"—Advertisement.

VOLUME OF MAIL

Assistant Postmaster Gives Figures That Stagger.

Probably Few Americans Realize the Extent of the Wonderful Business Transacted by Department.

From the use of the dromedary in biblical times to the swiftly flying mail plane of today, the history of the letter, as a written means of communication between peoples, was traced by Assistant Postmaster General W. Irving Glover in a speech recently to postmasters and postal employees in a postal conference convention at Winston-Salem, N. C.

"On the post office job," he said, "nothing can take the place of the individual. While in many great industries the human equation has been reduced to a minimum, no one has yet invented anything to take the place of a man in the delivery of letters. Today, as a hundred years ago, we are dependent on the nerve and the sense of loyalty of a human being for the punctual delivery of our mail regardless of the weather and everything else."

"The history of the postal service goes back as far as the Sixth century B. C. and may be called the handmaid of civilization and tracing its path from the dispatch bearers of the Assyrian and Roman times to the airplane service of the present day, the postal business has doubled in the last decade while the number of employees has increased only 9 per cent."

"The use of postage stamps is now so common and the mailing of letters so general that it seems as if there never was a time when this practice was unknown. But the stamp itself is comparatively new, while the sending of letters is older than Solomon. The Book of Esther in the Bible tells of how King Ahasuerus, learning from Queen Esther that Haman had ordered the death of all the Jews, commanded Mordecai to call together the scribes and send letters to every province of the kingdom forbidding the massacre."

"The Romans, too, sent their letters by mounted couriers. The courier carried the message about twenty miles when he would come to a 'post,' where another messenger was stationed with a fresh horse. He, in turn, would be relieved by still another courier. Thus by relay after relay the letter was sped on until at last it arrived at its destined 'post,' meaning station or stopping place, and from that word we obtained the word 'post' as found in post office, post card and many similar words."

"In the times of Benjamin Franklin each letter was charged for by the sheet. Instead of by weight, and also for the distance it was carried. Ten cents was charged for one sheet, 20 cents for two sheets, and so on, and for every 50 miles another full fee was added. Envelopes were not used in those days, the letter simply being folded up and sealed."

"And now we come to the staggering figures showing the growth of this great business. In every single hour of the 24 there are mailed 1,400,000 letters and in every day of the 365 of the year 33,800,000 letters slip into the box. To carry this great volume of letters there was sold 14,000,000 postage stamps, 57,000,000 special delivery stamps, 38,000,000 newspaper wrappers, 62,000,000 postage due stamps used on short paid mail matter and 1,000,000,000 postal cards printed and sold, and, all counted, we used and sold 18,000,000,000 units during the last fiscal year. And again, to carry this vast quantity of mail we operate a very large motor-truck service, having in operation today 4,438 motor vehicles, and then in the carrying of this volume of mail by railroad it requires 21,000 railway mail clerks, who cover 215,000 miles daily."

It Grew. Miss M— has been working in the East for more than a year. Her uncle has written repeatedly, asking her to come home on a visit, telling her in every letter that her homecoming would be the occasion for the killing of the fatted calf.

But still she hasn't come. So the other evening he changed the tone of his letter. "If you don't come pretty soon," he wrote, "you won't get to eat veal, for that calf is growing up. And if you wait another year, you'll have to eat it as corned beef."—Indianapolis News.

What Happened. "My nephew, Lester Petty, has been desperately in love with a lady doctor over at Skeedee," stated old Roswell Rasp.

"And I suppose she shook him?" returned an acquaintance.

"No. Her professional knowledge told her that desperate diseases demand desperate remedies, and so they'll be married next Wednesday at high noon."—Kansas City Star.

Reduction. Brown—Met your wife and little daughter today. I remarked to your wife that the child is the very photograph of her mother.

Jones—You might have added photograph as well.—Boston Evening Transcript.

Betterment. "Do you think you are getting better every day?"

"Of course, I do," answered Senator Sorghum. "The only difficulty is in convincing my audiences."

BAPTIST NOTES
Sunday gave us a fair audience.
The pastor's thought was on religion,
"Pure Religion," James 1:27. After the sermon, the pastor gave the right hand of fellowship to several.
The male quartette gave us a splendid selection, Sunday morning. Mr.
Trimble sang the offertory.
Sunday evening the service was unique. Mr. Palmer Hartsough arranged the program. After the opening exercises, he recited one of the Psalms. Then following out the program, he gave eight different readings from the bible, from Elijah's trial on Mount Carmel, and Naaman's cure from leprosy, and closing with John's description of heaven in the Revelations. Alton and Duane Sayles sang between each reading. They were accompanied by Mrs. Sayles at the piano and Elbert Segar on the French horn.
Sunday-school last Sunday was extra large, but it ought to be twice the size every Sunday.
The B. Y. P. U. are planning to go to Walled Lake, May 4th, to attend the district rally. Let all young people of the society be there.
Be sure and listen to Fred Corbett, next Monday evening at the Baptist church. His subject will be "Prohibition and Law Enforcement."

Seats free.

PRESBYTERIAN NOTES

We desire, especially, to thank those who are not of our congregation who assisted in the presentation of our recent entertainments. Let us rocate.

Don't fail to hear the Covenant
Choir next Tuesday evening.
The Week Day Bible school closed their year's work yesterday, with a hike and picnic at Tramps' Hollow.
There have been 107 scholars enrolled during the year.
There have been a large number of new people at the church services recently. Let us all see to it that they are made welcome.

COMMUNITY HAPPENINGS

The first sewing group of the Canton Community Club met for an all-day meeting, Friday, April 20th, at the home of Mrs. Ed. Hauk. Box lunch at noon. Miss Woodworth, the home demonstration agent, was the instructor. The next meeting will be held May 18th, with Mrs. E. W.
Moyer. This is one of ten groups throughout the county under the management of Miss Woodworth, as part of the Farm Bureau activities.
The membership is necessarily limited, but if a sufficient number are interested a second group will be organized at the close of this term. It is hoped the work may be carried out as successfully, as was the nutrition work.

GRANGE NOTES

On account of the busy season, the regular monthly meetings have been ordered held on Friday evening following the first Thursday of each month. An extra effort is being made by the chaplain, Mrs. Frank Hauk, who has the program in charge, for Friday evening, May 4th, at 8:00 o'clock.

The Lily Club was delightfully entertained Tuesday evening at the hall, by Mrs. Ed. Everett and son, Frank.
Mr. and Mrs. Perry Campbell will entertain at a barn dance, Tuesday evening, May 29th. A general good time is store.

GREAT MEN MERELY HUMAN

"Select of the Earth" Really Differ
Very Little From the Rest of Mankind.

Once when a grave ambassador visited an English king he was ushered into a room where he found the king on all fours, his son mounted upon his back and riding him hard. Around the tables, in and out between the chairs, the horse traveled while the gray-haired ambassador cheered the rider on.

Abraham Lincoln carried a load of responsibility and care that might have staggered the bravest man, but in the midst of his sore distress he found time to slip away to spend an hour with Tad, and when his duties called him from home he could still find time to write a note to the child he had left behind—tender little messages breathing fatherly thought and affection.

Our own Roosevelt—there was a man's man, but he found time to fu-ther his children. He knew how to play with them. Remember that story of him playing "hide and seek" in the barn with the pack of youngsters in full cry? He was then President of the United States. There was every reason why he should have cried off from the frolic; he was not as young as he had been; his office was one of tremendous dignity and of such responsibility as to make his life not his own, but a people's trust. Still he played with the children.

Fine object lessons may be learned from a study of the home lives of noted people around the earth.—Columbia Record.

Twanging the Lyre.

The Kansan and the Texan were telling each other of the thoroughgoing, efficient nature of cyclones in their respective states.

Said the Kansan: "Well, sir, it was in 1896 and I was drilling for oil.
Knew it was there, about 2,000 feet down, but I had just got down a thousand and ran out of money. Figured I was busted. Along came a Kansas twister and didn't do a thing but suck the bottom out of that well and bring in a gusher. Hard to believe, but the wells there yet."

Said the Texan: "Sure, I believe it.
That's nothing. During the drought of '37 my cattle in west Texas were dying fast. I set out to drill for water. Got down about a mile and still digging dust. Figured I'd better ride over to town and ask the school teacher how far I could go before I struck China. Well, sir, while I was gone a Texas cyclone came along, took rig, well and all. When I got back there was a take a mile across and spreading fast, and the strange part was that the water was a regular Chinese yellow and just wiggling with cross-eyed tadpoles."—New Or-

M. of each of said days for the purpose of examining and allowing said claims, and that four months from the 19th day of April A. D. 1923, were allowed by said Court for creditors to present their claims to us for examination and allowance.
Dated April 18, 1923.
IRA WILSON,
WILLIAM T. PETTINGILL, Commissioners.

SCHOOL NOTES

GRADE NOTES

A cleanliness contest is being held in the first grade this month. All the pupils who come to school each day with their hands and faces washed, their hair brushed and combed, and a clean waist, get a prize at the end of the month. This prize is given by their teacher, Mrs. Root.
The first grade children are making posters of the spring flowers. As one of the children finds a spring flower he brings it to school, and the teacher helps him to draw a picture of it on his chart.
The children have planted nasturtiums in two of the window boxes in Mrs. Root's room, and this week Mrs. Root expects to get some daffodil bulbs to set in the other two boxes.
Melvin Blunk, Philda Ferguson and J. D. McLaren of the second grade were neither absent nor tardy the last five weeks.
The names on the honor roll for spelling, in the second grade room are: Philip Doerr, Herbert Burley, Roberta Chappel, Winifred Holcomb, Vera Woods, Katherine Mandel, Marguerite Cline, Woodrow Wilson, Russell Micol, Billy Donnelly, Philip Ferguson, Alice Lee, Berton Schwab, Blanche Curtis, Elmer Horvath, Lucille Ruthraff. These children must receive 100 every day in spelling to get their names on the honor roll.
Mrs. Anna Melow visited the third grade last week.
Agnes Kimball from Selkirk, Mich. has just entered the sixth grade.
The seventh and eighth grade cooking class girls are discussing plans of sewing.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The High school notes were furnished by Fannie Grainger; the grade notes by Clara Hauk; the account of the ball game by Dorothy Hinnau; that of the physical training exhibition by Bonnie Mueller, and the advertisements of the carnival by Avis Blackmore.
The advanced sewing class will be very busy for the next two weeks, making costumes to be used in an operetta, which will be given at a later date. The class is also just finishing tying a quilt that they made from waste pieces of material. The quilt will be put in the rest room.
The eighth grade English classes are writing fables and myths.
April 20th the physics classes visited the Detroit Piston Ring Company. The first interesting thing they observed was the packing of the moulds with sand and arranging them so that the molten iron could be easily poured into them. The iron was heated in a large blast furnace, and when this was opened the white hot iron ran into the ladles, from which it was then poured into the moulds. After they were sufficiently cooled the dirt was removed from the moulds and the pistons were then taken out, finished except polishing.
Contestants from ten different High schools in district one, which includes the southeastern part of the state of Michigan, will hold their district contest at Howell, Michigan, next Friday night, April 27. Miss Muriel Bovee, who received first place in the sub-district contest, will represent the Plymouth High school in declamations.
The physical training exhibition has been postponed to May 2nd, on account of sickness.

KING'S CORNERS

The children and grandchildren and other relatives and friends, to the number of thirty-eight, met at the home of Mrs. Josephine Hix, April 22nd, to help celebrate her seventy-fifth birthday. At the noon hour they sat down to a sumptuous dinner prepared by the ladies, to which all did ample justice, after which the ladies spent the afternoon in visiting, while the men and boys engaged in a game of ball. As the day was nearing its close, they departed to their several homes, all wishing Mrs. Hix many more happy returns of the day, which will long be remembered by young and old.
The Helping Hand Society will meet the first Wednesday in May, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Parrish in the afternoon. The word for roll call will be, "Seek."

Mrs. Ash, while on her way home from Hart, Michigan, where she had been to attend the funeral of her father, Mr. Fish, of that place, called on her aunt, Mrs. Josephine Hix.
Robert Rhead of Eaton Rapids, spent several days recently with his brothers, Jacob and Benjamin, at Newburg.
The good road men will begin laying cement to finish up the Wayne road, Monday.
Mrs. James Burns returned to her home at Memphis, Tenn., Monday, after spending the past two weeks with relatives and friends here.
Miss Clarissa Hix spent several days this week as a guest of her sister, Mrs. Walter Schiffe, in Plymouth.
Several of the ladies of the H. H. society met at the home of Mrs. Fred Reiman, Thursday, and quitted a quilt. A pot-luck dinner was served.
Miss Blanche Klatt, who has been sick the past two weeks at the home of her parents, is reported as being better at this writing.
Charles Parrish, Jr., of Ypsilanti, called on his sister, Mrs. L. E. Kaiser and family, Friday.
Mrs. Roy Lane is convalescing from an attack of diphtheria.
Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Jubenville and two sons, Charles and Richard of Royal Oak; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Johnston and little son of North Farmington; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Roediger and daughters of Southfield, were Sunday guests of their sister, Mrs. Lloyd Lockhart and family of this place.
Mrs. Walter Schaufele and sons, Donald and Russell of Plymouth, spent Monday with her mother, Mrs. Mary Hix.

Dizzy Spells Due to Undigested Food

Dizziness and faintness after eating show that your food is not digested and is turning into poison and gas. Simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adlerika expels all poison and gas from BOTH upper and lower bowel. Removes foul decaying food-matter you never thought was in your system which poisoned stomach and made you dizzy and faint. Adlerika is EXCELLENT to guard against appendicitis. METHODIST NOTES

The monthly meeting of the official board will be held next Tuesday evening, at 7:30.
Mrs. Thoma's division of the L. A. S. meets with Mrs. Allison on Amelia street, next Wednesday afternoon.
Mrs. Sutherland's division meets at the church on Thursday afternoon.
The Thursday night folks are a happy lot studying the Epistle to the Hebrews. Some interesting sidelights are brought out in these lessons. Why not plan to come next Thursday night, just for an hour at 7:30.

Now that our church has a new organ, we need a new chorus choir for our Sunday evening services. Anyone who knows anything about music at all, and would like to help the church to have good music, and also would like to have some good times together, and incidentally get some good practice in singing, are asked to meet at the church following the mid-week service on Thursday night, at 8:30, for three quarters of an hour.
The Epworth League Convention and Crusaders' Conference for Ann Arbor District is held at Ann Arbor, this week Friday night and Saturday. It opens with a big banquet at 6:30, with a big feed and a fine program, and continues all day Saturday. Saturday afternoon at 3:30, a pageant entitled "Judah," will be presented by a group of Ypsilanti young folks. This is an exceptional religious pageant which drew a full church both times it was presented at Ypsilanti. Saturday evening at 7:00, a reception is to be held for the Michigan students from all lands, which will include 95 Chinese students who are in attendance at the University.

We heard one Plymouth man say yesterday that no matter what he plants in his garden he can always get chickens out of it.
With the arrival of warmer weather we would caution our readers against eating fast. It sets a bad example for the flies and mosquitoes.

Had Money Enough.

Twenty years ago or so there used to be a story of a negro boy who refused to enter a grip uptown for a traveling salesman. "Give you a quarter," offered the salesman. "I got a quarter, boss." The same little darky, now grown, was encountered by a Kansas City man on a dark street the other night. As there was no one about, the Kansas City man asked the edge of the sidewalk, giving the darky plenty of room. "Ner' mind, mister," the darky answered him. "I ain't gonna hold you up. I got as much money as you have."

Inspiring Interest.

"It took me a long time to get the opposition editor out home to print that extract from my speech," murmured Senator Sargis.

"How did you manage it?"

"Wrote it in a letter addressed to somebody else, but apparently put into the wrong envelope and marked it conspicuously, 'Not for Publication!'"

An Oversight.

Daughter—How do you like my new evening gown, father?

Father—My dear girl; you surely aren't going out with half of your back exposed?

Daughter (looking in mirror)—Oh, it's that stupid dressmaker's fault; she forgot to cut off the other half!

The Coming of Spring

By MYRA CURTIS LANE

(© 1927, Western Newspaper Union.)

"Spring's come, grandfather!" Lucy came flying into the living room, where her grandfather, who had lived with them and helped support them since her father's death, sat reading the paper. "Grandfather, get a move on you! Here's spring!"

Her grandfather looked up and grunted. Her mother, harassed with the cleaning, a turban around her head, looked into the room. "Mother, here's spring!"

"For the land's sake, child, what about it?" her mother grumbled.

"Oh, it's so fine to be alive and feel the spring coming," said Lucy, flying out of the front door.

"That child grows more like a wild thing every day," her mother said.

Her grandfather grumbled and went on reading his newspaper.

Spring certainly was at hand. There was a delicious smell of earthy fragrance in the air. The sunlight streamed in long shafts through the budding trees. And in Mrs. Harris' garden two or three crocuses were lifting up their yellow heads.

Lucy flew down the street, almost butting into Edwards, the iceman.

"Oh, isn't it a glorious spring day, Mr. Edwards?" she said. "Aren't you happy?"

"Well, I guess the warmer it grows the more ice folks will want," said Edwards.

"Oh, Mr. Edwards, aren't you horrified?" exclaimed Lucy.

She ran on past him. Old Mrs. Eames was standing at the door of her cottage, shaking a nut.

"Spring's come, Mrs. Eames!" called Lucy. "Isn't it fine? Why, your apple tree's blossoming!"

"Sakes, child, I've seen plenty of springs before," grumbled old Mrs. Eames.

"Oh, aren't you glad, Mrs. Eames?" asked Lucy, pointing.

"Well, it's a fine thing, Lucy, but you see there's the spring cleaning coming." Mrs. Eames answered, beating out a cloud of dust from the mat.

Lucy turned away and went on. Her old thing! She went down the street a little more slowly. At the next corner she met old Mr. Smith, immaculate in his spats.

"Oh, Mr. Smith, doesn't it feel like spring?" she exclaimed happily.

"I guess it does feel that way," admitted Mr. Smith. "It's going to be terribly hard walking with all the mud and the slush, isn't it?"

"Nasty old man!" thought Lucy. She went on and on and on till she came to the outskirts of the village. A plowman stood with his two horses hitched up.

"Well, it looks like spring, doesn't it?" said Lucy.

"Oh, I guess the old spring's here, sure enough," the plowman grumbled.

"What's aren't you glad?"

"Oh, sure; I guess it'll be all right soon as summer comes. But this here spring's going to mean some mighty hard work in the fields."

Lucy turned back. All her enthusiasm was worn away. Half-way to her house she met little Tommy Dodson, howling.

"Why, what's the matter, Tommy?" she asked, stooping and petting him.

"Boo-hoo! The nasty ole spring's come for good!" howled Tommy.

"What! Don't you like the spring?" asked Lucy.

"Naw, I hates it. Mommer says now there won't be no more skating this year for sure, and I've never used the new skates she gave me for my birthday."

Lucy went on, completely sobered. She didn't care whether it was spring or not. Everybody seemed hateful to her. She had been so happy, too, and there was no response in any one.

She went sadly into the house. When she entered the living room she saw, with amazement, that her grandfather was still sitting in his chair reading the newspaper. All the elation and depression of spirits that she had gone through during the past half-hour had not affected him in the least.

And in the next room she could hear the rhythmic swish-swish of her mother's broom upon the carpet.

Her grandfather looked up. "Hello! What's this? You crying, Lucy?"

She went slowly to him. "Oh, grandfather, I was so happy because spring had come, and everybody hates it."

"Now, see here, Lucy, dear. It isn't the spring, it's just what you put into it. Didn't you know that? It's you, yourself, who can make people happy if you realize the source of power inside you. Just go on being happy and you'll find you'll make old gronches like me happy, too. That's the biggest lesson of life—do you see, Lucy?"

ISBELL EARNS TRACK HONORS

MICHIGAN STAR MAKES HISTORY IN ONE YEAR OF SPORTS COMPETITION.

PLANS TO TRY FOR PLACE ON U. S. OLYMPIC TEAM NEXT YEAR.

We take the following from the Detroit Free Press relative to a former Plymouth boy:

"Though it is his first and last year as a Michigan athlete, Egbert Isbell, star distance runner, will leave an indelible impression at Michigan. He will graduate in June, but expects to return next year for post graduate study.

"By the end of the year, Isbell will have heaped together honors, such as few Michigan students ever collect. It is exceptionally brilliant because he has been at Michigan only two years, the first two years of his college work being done at Albion.

More Than an Athlete

"Isbell has not only starred in athletics, but also in scholarship. It is reported that he has been recommended for Phi Beta Kappa, the highest scholastic award an undergraduate can receive, and he has contributed stories to Whimsies, the campus literary magazine.

"Isbell is preparing himself for educational work, and he has so satisfied his instructors in this line that he has been offered a teaching assistantship next year.

This is one of the reasons why Director Yost may have to discover a new man to coach the distance runners at Michigan. It is known that Isbell was being considered to coach this branch of sports under Coach Farrell, but when the teaching position was offered, Isbell was more attracted by it, as it falls in with his future program of work.

Try for Olympics

"It also appeals to him, as he will thus be able to maintain his amateur standing and be able to try for the Olympic team, for which he has a splendid chance next year.

"In the regular track session, he has been notably successful. The two mile is his specialty, and no one has yet pressed him. His best time was 9:37 against Cornell, but Isbell's ambition for the outdoor season is 9:20, which would mean the establishment of a new Western Conference record.

"Even though Isbell does not accept the coaching position, he may not be altogether out of the direction of Michigan athletics. He was nominated for the Board in Control of Athletics, and may be elected in the coming campus election.
