FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

REV. S. CONGER HATHAWAY, A. M., PASTOR

LOYALTY

During the war we heard much about loyalty. The man who was not out and out for his country was looked upon with suspicion. The man who is not wholeheartedly for home and family and for the institutions safeguarding them is also regarded as disloyal. Your attendance at Church is an expression of loyalty.

ARE YOU LOYAL?

VETERANS MEET HERE IN REUNION

THE FORTY-THIRD ANNUAL REUNION OF SIXTEENTH MICHIGAN INFANTRY HELD HERE THURSDAY, AUGUST 16TH.

The forty-third annual reunion of the survivors of the Sixteenth Michigan Volunteer Infantry was held in Plymouth, last week Thursday, August 16th, with only eight veterans of the gallant old regiment present. Those registered at headquarters, established in the village hall were: Lucius Sanborn and wife, Thomas Davey and wife, Ira G. Ormsbee, John H. Wells, Joseph Baker, Charles E. Pitcher, John B. Opfer, John Wilkinson and wife.

At the business meeting held during the afternoon, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President—Lucius Sanborn. Vice President—John Wilkinson. Sec.—Thomas Davey. Committee on Arrangements—John H. Wells, Charles Nisbett.

It was voted to hold the next reunion at Pontiac in August, between the 20th and 24th, 1924.

Secretary Thomas Davey reported the following deaths of comrades during the past year: William Gray, Chauncey Bunyea, William P. Nisbett, Franklin B. Abbott, Ebenezer N. Lowrey, John G. Berry, Lorenzo Bayley.

At six o'clock the veterans and invited guests partook of a three-course banquet in the dining room of the Methodist church, served by the ladies of the Missionary society. After the banquet, Rev. D. D. Nagle made an address of welcome to the veterans of the Sixteenth, whom Plymouth is always delighted to honor. Mrs. D. D. Nagle rendered a beautiful vocal solo; Miss Muriel Bovee gave a humorous reading; Mrs. Charles Bovee, a patriotic reading and responded to an encore, and Mrs. Scott of Flint, gave several humorous readings. Remarks were also made by K. W. Hillmer, member of the village commission. After some war time reminiscences by the veterans, the reunion of 1923 was brought to a close.

ANNUAL WAYNE COUNTY PICNIC

GRANGE AND FARM BUREAU INVITE ALL TO ELIZABETH PARK AUGUST 25TH.

Plans for the annual Wayne county picnic are developing nicely, and the Grange and Farm Bureau are looking for a large attendance.

The speaker, M. L. Noon of Jackson, vice president of the Michigan State Farm Bureau, is an authority on agricultural co-operation and has a very pleasing way of presenting the subject. If you have heard Mr. Noon you will want to hear him again—if you have not heard him—this is your opportunity.

The Flat Rock Grange and East Nankin Farmers' Club base ball teams promise a real exhibition in that line.

Mr. Wagner, County Boys' and Girls' Club leader, promises the youngsters a regular time in their races and games.

Last, but not least—will be the horseshoe pitching contest for the championship of the county. A fine set of horseshoes is offered to the winner.

Everyone is invited to bring a basket dinner, and spend the day with these organizations.

WILL REMODEL CHURCH BUILDING

ST. PETER'S EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN CHURCH WILL MAKE EXTENSIVE IMPROVEMENTS IN CHURCH BUILDING.

St. Peter's Evangelical Lutheran church will make some extensive improvements in the church building in the next few weeks. An addition, 16x48 feet, will be built on the east side of the present building. This is to be provided with a niche for the pulpit and altar. On the west side of the addition there will be a large window with appropriate design. The entire interior of the church is to be remodeled. New seats, altar and pulpit will be provided. In the basement there will be a large dining room, kitchen, lavatories for both men and women, and the heating plant.

When the work of remodeling is completed, St. Peter's Evangelical Lutheran church will be a modern church edifice, and a credit to its members and the village as well. It is expected that the improvements will be completed and the church ready for the observance of its 40th anniversary, about the middle of November. The architect is A. Dohman of Redford.

RURAL MAIL BOXES TO BE PAINTED BY THE PATRONS.

The special attention of postmasters at offices where rural delivery routes are in operation is invited to the need for improving the appearance of mail boxes on these routes. These boxes at the present time, as a rule, present a very unsatisfactory appearance due to the fact that the galvanized or aluminum finish has worn off on account of exposure to the elements to such an extent that the base metal has been exposed and in many cases has rusted. It is the purpose of the department to improve the general appearance of rural mail boxes throughout the country, so that they may be a credit not only to the Postal Service but to the community through which the rural delivery route operates.

It is desirable that the boxes be painted white with the name of the head of family or families receiving mail in the box on both sides of the box in neat black letters one inch in height; also that the painting be done at least once each year. It is requested also that the posts or supports to which the boxes are attached be painted white. This will improve not only the appearance of the boxes but will add materially to the life of the boxes and posts.

Postmaster Hill of the local office has just recently returned from a visit in Indiana, and he says that he saw many mail boxes and posts painted as above described in that state, and that it makes a wonderful improvement in their looks as one rides along the highway.

THE MINORITY REPORT

Many Years Ago the Prophet Isaiah Made This Remark:

"WHO HATH BELIEVED OUR REPORT?"

and declared his faith in "Salvation Through Christ," instead of entangling alliances, and dependence on strength of arms, or even the moral character of the people.

WAS HE RIGHT?

Isaiah was practically alone in his declaration then, but has time and experience proved the truth of his statement?

IS CHRIST THE ONLY HOPE OF THIS WORLD?

If so, why do not more people follow him, and put his teachings into actual practice? Why do not so-called Christian nations apply his teachings to their problems? Is Christ really coming into the life of this world today? Hear the discussion of these questions and topic, Sunday evening at 8:00 o'clock, at the

"DOG DAYS"

What has become of the old-fashioned Plymouth boy who used to stay out of the swimming hole along about this time of year because of the terrible stories of affliction and death his folks used to connect with "dog days"? Education and enlightenment have established the fact that "dog days," coming about this time each year, bring no special form of evil to the world. But many of us can remember when people took the matter seriously and when, though great was the temptation, boys absolutely refused to enter the water of their favorite swimming hole. We never found out who invented the "dog days" story. But we have since supposed it was some ingenious mother who had to use extreme measures to get a little stove wood cut. But whoever was responsible for it was certainly no friend of boys. And when we think of the days we were kept out of a swimming hole by threats of dire results from "dog day" poisons, we are certainly not going to start in now to urge that a monument be built to their memory.

WHO SAID "POOR" INDIAN

The American Indian, who only a few years ago seemed doomed to extinction, not only has refused to become extinct but actually, under the favorable conditions provided by the United States government, has been able to make increases in his numbers. There are about 341,000 of them in this country at present, which represents an increase of approximately 13,000 in ten years. And their death rate has been growing smaller year by year. The Indian is no longer poor unless he cares to be. Government statistics show a number of them to be immensely rich, due to the fact that the lands which they were endowed by the government have yielded oil in tremendous quantities. But even without oil the Indian has been able to accumulate and add to property year by year. Today they own $35,000,000 worth of livestock, including more than one million sheep, 250,000 head of cattle and about the same number of horses and mules. So, thinking it over, isn't it about time we ceased referring to him as the "poor Indian."

WRITING NEWS

The sort of newspaper that would be published if everybody in Plymouth edited it would be something wonderful, but it wouldn't be the kind of paper that very many would subscribe for. The newspaper business is perhaps the most competitive of any in existence. Men who make up newspapers must have the mass of people in mind every minute. No paper can live by catering to a chosen few.

There is not in any community enough business to support a large newspaper devoted wholly to what we commonly call the "highbrow class." The "highbrows" are a vague class, but are generally supposed to be the type of citizens who take no interest in any subject except one concerning things that would be discussed at a meeting of a college faculty, or a fine arts convention or a meeting of clergymen of the larger churches of the nation.

A writer made himself unpopular sometime ago by saying that as far as he had observed most of the criticism of his work had come from that class of people who never buy books, but who are keen for borrowing them and picking them to pieces. It might be said that some of those who are keenest in their criticism of the newspaper are the ones who do not pay their money for it, and do not help the editor to meet his financial obligations. No, the newspaper edited by everybody would not be a success. But it is possible, with the co-operation of a majority of the people in a community to get out a newspaper that will please a good many and be worth a great deal in building up a town. And that's the kind of a newspaper program we are seeking to carry out.

Three acres of ground space have been secured for staging the big exhibit. On this there will be two great tents, 240x60 feet, which will house the large exhibits, and they will be so arranged that visitors will pass along inside from one to the other in such order that they may fully enjoy and understand the nature of the display and its significance.

In addition to these tents there will be an especially interesting display at the company's pavilion where the Ford band will appear in daily concerts. Another tent will provide rest room facilities and a special tent will be devoted exclusively to the showing of motion pictures. The Ford Hospital and Trade School will be represented in still another exhibit and the Ford railroad, the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton, will have one of its big engines on a specially constructed track.

All together the Ford Motor Company's display this year will be well worth seeing, and residents of Plymouth, who plan to visit the Fair are especially invited by the Plymouth Motor Sales Co., local Ford dealers, to include in their tour of the grounds the Ford Exhibit, assuring them of an enjoyable time.

DISTRICT SUNDAY-SCHOOLS' FIRST ANNUAL PICNIC

FREE CHURCH AND DIXBORO WELL REPRESENTED, SALEM CHURCHES GIVE PROGRAM.

Several hundred people representing the fifteen Sunday-schools of the Northeast District of Washtenaw county Sunday-school association last week Thursday gathered at the Island at Ann Arbor for the first annual picnic which the district group has held.

Two churches in this vicinity are included in the Northeast group, Free Church and Dixboro, and both were well represented, about twenty going from both Sunday schools.

Kenneth Sturges and Harris Morgan of Free Church and Earl Quackenbush and Floyd Crocker of Dixboro, were the committee in charge of distributing ice cream at the basket dinner served at noon.

The afternoon was a social one with only a short program given. Pres. Whitney of the district spoke briefly, Miss Rowbacher of the Congregational church of Salem, gave readings and a ladies' quartet furnished music selections. Mrs. Poppinger presided. The Salem churches provided the entire program except short addresses by the president and H. L. Thornton, Ann Arbor, county secretary.

Playground instructors from the Ypsilanti Normal, took charge of the sports of the afternoon. Group games were held and a series of races and stunts enjoyed.

So successful was this first picnic which the district has undertaken that it was unanimously decided to hold a second picnic next year, the Island at Ann Arbor again chosen as the meeting place.

THE THEATRE

"THE SNOW BRIDE"

A village situated at the foot of a mountain, the sides of which are covered with a mass of ice and snow, is about as safe as a similar village reposing at the base of an active volcano. Any minute a great mass of frozen matter may come tumbling down the mountain side and destroy the village and its inhabitants.

Such is the precarious position of the village of La Paix in the Paramount picture, "The Snow Bride," starring Alice Brady and coming to the Penniman Allen theatre on Saturday, August 25th. By some miracle of Providence this little town has been spared for over a century from destruction by the glacial torrents of the North country, but as a climax to this thrilling picture, the entire mountain side is brought down in a storm that lasts for days. When it is over the inhabitants emerge from the nearby woods where they have taken shelter to find that La Paix is no more. Not a thing lives under that blanket of snow.

There are two persons who are made happy by this, however. They are Annette Leroux and Andre Porel, the two leading characters of "The Snow Bride," portrayed by Alice Brady and Maurice B. Flynn respectively. For to them it means the ending of an old life and the dawn of a new one in the country farther north.

This production was directed by Henry Kolker, who made "Disraeli" and "Drums of Fate." Sonya La-vien wrote the scenario from the original story by Julie Herne and herself.

"THE MAN FROM GLENGARRY"

One of the essential things in a successful motion picture is to have a real story as a basis to work from. In this very important attribute the Ernest Shipman production, "The Man from Glengarry," which comes to the Penniman Allen theatre on Sunday, August 26th, takes first rank, as it is based on one of the most popular and widely read books that have ever been published, Ralph Connor's famous novel of the same name.

Adapted by Faith Green and directed by Henry McRae, it is a faithful reproduction and realistic screen presentation of the work of the celebrated author. All the action, thrills and atmosphere of the lumber camps immortalized by Mr. Connor have been embodied in the screen version.

The story deals with a feud between rival lumber camps and the resulting complications and struggle, which reaches a dramatic conclusion in a breath-taking battle in mid-stream. In addition to plenty of thrills and action there is a logical plot and a love interest which is replete with surprises and grips the attention from beginning to the final reel.

The photography is of an exceptional character, and the majestic settings and scenic effects filmed on the actual location made famous in the original novel, supply a realistic and true-to-life touch.

Warner P. Richmond in the title role gives a convincing portrayal of Randal MacDonald. Anders Randolph fits in perfectly in the character of Big MacDonald. Other members of an excellent cast are Marian Swayne, Pauline Garon, E. L. Fernandez, Harlan Knight, Jack Newton, Frank Badgley, William Colvin and Marion Lloyd.

NORTHVILLE WAYNE COUNTY FAIR

It is not too early to scratch your initials on the prize pumpkin or to put the blankets on the cattle you expect to take to Northville, September 25th.

The board of directors is sparing no money or energy to make this year's fair eclipse all previous attempts, but they cannot do it alone. If you have not a catalogue, write the secretary for one.

RALPH CARR,
County Agricultural Agent.

EVOLUTION OF STEAM ENGINE SHOWN BY MODELS ON "SERVICE-PROGRESS SPECIAL"

From an old silhouette of the De Witt-Clinton taken in 1831. This was the first train to operate in New York State and, mounted on flat cars, is exhibited on the Service-Progress Special tour of Michigan.

The "Service-Progress Special," of the New York Central Lines, which is a transportation museum with the DeWitt-Clinton Train of 1831, Engine "999," the Warther Working Engine Models, several cars of railroad exhibits and moving pictures started on its trip through Ohio, New York, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Michigan and Illinois from Cleveland June 18th. Thousands have visited the train in New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio. In Michigan sixty-eight stops will be made commencing at Monroe August 15th.

By the end of October the "Service-Progress Special" will have toured 12,000 miles of the New York Central Lines System.

The train is being operated upon requests made to President A. H. Smith, of the New York Central Lines, by Master S. J. Lowell, of the National Grange and President O. F. Bradford, of the American Farm Bureau Federation, that authentic facts on transportation be placed before the agricultural population of the United States.

President Smith, in pursuance of his long established practice of discussing questions of railroad policy openly and frankly with the public, acquiesced and at once ordered the Agricultural Department of the New York Central Lines to organize the "Service-Progress Special."

One feature to make the "Special" the greatest railroad exhibition train ever operated is five reels of moving pictures illustrating the interdependence of the railroads and the farmers. These pictures are from scenarios written by Charles Frederick Carter, author of "When Railroads Were New." They show the handling of farm products and will be shown on a large screen at night stops.

Locomotive engineers and railroad officials who have seen the Warther Working Engine Models, which are hand-made of wood, ivory and bone and which form an important part of the motive power exhibit, have pronounced these models to be the greatest miniature engines ever made.

These models are the product of 28 years' work on the part of Ernest Warther, of Dover, Ohio, who is now with the train to explain his work, and are on public exhibition for the first time.

One coach is all devoted to exhibits showing the relation of agriculture and railroading.

Not the least interesting of the exhibits is one special car devoted to the increase of Federal, State and local government in this country. This exhibit is called "Mrs. Jarley's Tax Works," in which the growth of taxation is portrayed by many models.

1924 MODEL

THE STUDEBAKER LIGHT-SIX FIVE-PASSENGER TOURING CAR $995

130,000 Owners Know the Value of this Studebaker

Every unit in the new 1924 Studebaker Light-Six Touring Car has proved its dependability in public use.

There are refinements and improvements, of course, but the underlying principles of design and construction which have made enthusiasts of 130,000 purchasers of this model in three years' time, are not radically changed.

In our opinion, the 1924 Light-Six stands out as the greatest value and closest approach to mechanical perfection in moderate priced cars yet produced.

It is practically free from vibration. Studebaker accomplishes this largely by machining the crankshaft and connecting rods on all surfaces. This requires 61 precision operations. It is an exclusive Studebaker practice on cars at this price—and is found only on a few other cars—and they're priced above $2500.

Absence of vibration prolongs car life, causes slower depreciation, reduces the cost of operation and adds to the enjoyment of driving.

The Light-Six motor embodies the most advanced design known to automobile construction. It represents an achievement in the manufacture of quality cars in big volume.

Aside from its mechanical excellence, the Light-Six is handsome in design, extremely comfortable, sturdy and economical to operate just as it is in initial cost. It is powerful, speedy, has a pick-up range that is seldom taxed and never exhausted, is easy to handle, and convenient to park.

Its enameled all-steel body, one-piece, rain-proof windshield, ten-inch cushions upholstered in genuine leather, and cowl lamps are among many features heretofore to be had only in higher priced cars.

For 71 years the name Studebaker has stood for unflinching integrity, quality and value.

New all-steel body of striking beauty. One-piece, rain-proof windshield with attractive cool lights set in base. Quick-action cowl ventilator. Door curtains, bound on three sides by steel rods, open with doors. Removable upholstery in tonneau. Door pocket flaps with weights hold them in shape. Upholstered in genuine leather. Large rectangular window in rear curtain. Thief-proof transmission lock. Standard non-skid cord tires, front and rear.

ALLOW MACHINERY TO DECAY

American Farmers Declared to Be Delinquent in Their Treatment of Agricultural Implements.

America's annual loss, due to the rusting steel and iron implements, machinery, and tools, amounts to the astounding total of $600,000,000. A large percentage of this loss is suffered by farmers, whose machinery on the whole is flagrantly abused by exposure to the weather.

Those who get the best results from the use of implements, machines, and tools keep them clean, oiled, and rust free. Where these factory products are properly taken care of one commonly observes the preservative effect of paint on buildings, gates, and other steel, iron, or wooden improvements. Paint is a form of cheap and profitable insurance against rust and decay.

Some critics of American agricultural machinery say that it is not nearly so durable as corresponding European machinery. The allegation is unwarranted. Our machinery does not wear out in service; it rusts out in the field and barn lot.

We do not adequately appreciate the durability and efficiency of lumber because as a whole we are not economical and intelligent enough to use paint. We can never obtain prices for farm products that will make prosperous the thousands of farmers who cooperate with the weather in impeding and destroying their own property.

Farmers who do not protect their equipment from rust and decay do not require to follow their political counselors to Wall Street to locate "predatory interests," while rust is ravaging their property at home.—Breder's Gazette.

Rats Summoned to Trial.

There are many instances on record where animals have been tried as criminals. Bulls and pigs accused of killing a man or child, have been brought up in court and tried like any other ordinary murderer. According to the usual procedure, after a jury had found such an animal guilty it would be hanged or beheaded. When flies or locusts had damaged crops and vineyards the pests were sometimes formally and solemnly cursed from church pulpits. One of the oldest of such prosecutions dealt with rats which had been doing damage in hay stacks and barns. The farmers of the district approached a local dignitary on the subject, and the latter agreed that the rats should be punished if found guilty, but that first, in common fairness, they should be tried. Notices were posted on barns in the district summoning the rats to appear in court to stand trial. When they did not appear the lawyer who had been engaged for their defense got up and pleaded that his clients being unable to read notices ought to have been separately warned by the police to appear. He also pointed out that in any case they could not have attended the court, the roads being so infested with cats as to be quite unsafe for any decent rat to travel on. Eventually the case was dismissed.

Dark-Hued School of Literature.

Is it the reaction against sugar-coated fiction that has brought into print so many recent novels that portray the uncouth, even the vile side of human nature? Some critics and essayists say it is. There was so much of the gentle namby-pambyism, that the revolting younger generation of writers, always ready for rebellion, seemed to cry with one voice, "We'll show you!"

And they have shown us, not altogether to our liking, either. As we have said before, while one is impartial enough to admit that a spade should be called a spade, one doesn't want to talk about nothing but spades.

Life and people are made up of brightness and darkness. While the earlier writers may have erred in showing only the "oh, happy day" kind of existence under the demand that every tale should end in "then they lived happily ever after," the life that is utterly unreal and even morbid is equally unreal.

As our standards of taste still maintain that one villain is enough in a play, so we think that one or, at most two, are enough in a novel. We don't want them all to be horrors of iniquity. The world isn't so.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Royal Heads Preserved.

The head of the late Czar Nicholas of Russia and those of his family who met death with him at Ekaterinburg at the hands of the revolutionists are being preserved in alcohol in the Kremlin at Moscow, according to Captain Firmin, chief of staff of the Russian refugee fleet anchored at the Mariveles quarantine station, near Manila. Captain Firmin who served with Admiral Kolchak's anti-Bolshevik army in Siberia, asserted that documents captured by Kolchak troops at Ekaterinburg revealed that the heads of the murdered members of the Russian royal families were cut off and preserved in alcohol and the trunks of the bodies burned.

With a Provision.

Supremely happy because they had just become engaged, a sailor and his girl sat contentedly hand in hand in the gallery of a music hall.

"Bill," she whispered, giving his hand a little squeeze, "I am all-in-all to you, and you are all-in-all to me. Will it always be so?"

"Yes," answered Bill, promptly. "All my life, from now till the second of June, and from the third of November till—till death. In the time between, the dates mentioned I shall be yachting in the Mediterranean."

Biliousness and Constipation

"For years I was troubled with biliousness and constipation, which made life miserable for me. My appetite failed me. I lost my usual force and vitality. Pepsin preparations and cathartics only made matter worse. I do not know where I should have today had I not tried Chamberlain's Tablets. The tablets relieve the ill feeling at once, strengthen the digestive functions, help the system to do its work naturally," writes Mrs. Rosa Peck, Birmingham, Ala.—Advertisement.

A Coward of Conscience

By ELLA SAUNDERS

(© 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

MRS. ELMIRA LOWNDES was left alone in the large house. Her husband had gone to New York on business; her son Robert was at college; her daughter Nellie had taken the car to visit friends.

Alone, except for Betty Smith, a distant cousin and maid of all work, Nellie was a gaunt, harsh-featured woman whom Mrs. Lowndes had taken under her protection after her uncle died.

Mrs. Lowndes was stock-taking. Not of her ample worldly wealth, but of those immaterial things that count for still more in the end.

She went upstairs and, raising a board in the floor of her bedroom, took out a tin box. Inside it was a parchment. On the parchment was written a will. It was the will of her cousin Hiram, Betty's uncle, and it devised the house in which Mrs. Lowndes was living, and the wealth which Mrs. Lowndes enjoyed, to "his dear niece Betty."

Mrs. Lowndes had found it a year or two after the proving of the former will, made when the old man and Betty had quarreled, which left her everything.

And if she published it, she would step down into obscure poverty, Robert would leave college, the daughter would go out to work, and Jim, her husband, who only played at business, would have to set to work in earnest.

Betty had lived with her uncle and kept house for him for years. When his death robbed her of her protector, she found she was left penniless. Mrs. Lowndes had employed her.

After Mrs. Lowndes found the will she treated Betty almost as a daughter. Yes, the girl certainly had nothing to complain of!

This and other sophistries entered into their old contention with Mrs. Lowndes's conscience. After all, the girl had never known luxury; was it right that Robert's career should be destroyed, and four people reduced to penury, for the sake of this piece of parchment, signed by a querulous old man who didn't know his mind?

Nevertheless, Mrs. Lowndes had never destroyed the will. Dimly she felt that so long as it was in existence she had the chance of amending her ways. There was always the possibility of reparation.

And she had the New England conscience. Some day, when Robert was established, and she had put something by—then she would let Betty find the will.

Coming downstairs she slipped and fell, injuring her spine.

She awoke to consciousness a week later in a darkened room, with her family gathered at her bedside. She read her hopeless case in their faces. She sent for the clergyman and in weak tones confided the truth to him. Then she closed her eyes and settled herself for death.

Eight days later a very much improved and very resentful Mrs. Lowndes sat up in bed to receive the lawyer who had been sent for at her urging.

She had told no one but Rev. Mr. Samphire, and he was the soul of discretion. Nevertheless she had insisted that he should summon the lawyer.

Under her pillow she had the will. And, as the devil, when he got well, the devil a monk would be, bitterly and vehemently she regretted the insane folly that had induced her to make that confession.

Bob's career ruined, her husband and her daughter and herself, living in wretched poverty—all because of that uneasy conscience of hers.

She could hardly bear to look at any of them. As for Betty, she had made the girl's life miserable ever since her recovery began.

"Mr. Eames is here, Elmira," said the woman thimble, coming into the room.

"You'll call me Mrs. Lowndes. I don't have familiarities from servants!" snapped Elmira.

Betty withdrew, the picture of surprise and injury. A moment later the lawyer entered the room.

"Mr. Samphire told you?"

"Yes, Mrs. Lowndes. Of course we must proceed carefully. We cannot risk a suit at law, not to speak of criminal proceedings. Let me look at that will."

"Oh, save me what you can!" begged the wretched woman.

Mr. Eames glanced at it and handed it back with a smile. "That will be invalid," he said. "It isn't witnessed."

Betty tapped at the door. "Did you want some tea, Mrs. Lowndes?" she asked.

"Tea? No! Betty, do forgive me, darling, I—I was unstrung, I guess," said Mrs. Elmira Lowndes.

Fought to the Death.

A thrilling duel to the death in the air above the Alps between a large royal eagle and a stoat was witnessed at Engelberg, Switzerland, by several Alpine guides. The eagle had snapped up the stoat from the ground and soared to a great height, when it was noticed that the bird was in trouble. It flew in circles while attempting to peck at the victim in its talons. The stoat had evidently released its head, and was biting into the flesh of the eagle. Suddenly the wings of the eagle collapsed, and the two fell into the snow dead. When the guides discovered the bodies they found that the stoat had destroyed a vital organ of the eagle, and had won the aerial duel, but at the cost of its life.

The Truth About Gasoline Prices

THE Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has announced an immediate reduction in the price of gasoline of 6.6c per gallon applicable throughout the entire territory in which it does business.

It asserts that the retail prices thus made are below the cost of production and distribution.

The Governor of the State of South Dakota, buying distress gasoline below cost of production, and charging against the State no adequate cost of distribution, is selling gasoline to the public in the State of South Dakota at 16c per gallon.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana), operating on its established policy that the customers who purchase its goods should never be compelled to pay a higher price than that fixed and maintained by any competitor, quality and service being duly considered, has met this price.

Other State Executives and Officers of municipalities, with entire propriety, have suggested that any prices made in their States. Competitors in other states and communities over the territory, also buying distress gasoline below cost of production, have also cut the prices hitherto established and maintained, in substantial amounts.

In establishing the above price, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is not endeavoring to injure any of its competitors in any way.

It deprecates the stand taken by some of its competitors that the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is endeavoring, by reason of meeting these cuts in price and these demands for lower prices, to put its competitors out of business.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) does not wish to put any competitor out of business because it feels that competitors are necessary to the successful conduct of its business. It will welcome a change of attitude on the part of all parties concerned resulting in a reasonable price for gasoline which will enable not only it but all of its competitors to enjoy a reasonable profit.

It recognizes that the majority of its competitors are fine business men, entitled to the fairest treatment both by the public and by this Company.

The present situation is an exact parallel to one where the butcher, the grocer, the druggist, the dry goods and shoe merchants and every other retailer would be forced to sell at less than the wares cost.

How long would it last? What would a condition like this do to all of us—if it persisted and spread?

We want no monopoly—seek none. We want your trade—but only on the basis of quality and service—not as the result of impossible prices.

We want competition—you want us to have it. It makes the scales of business balance.

These are not idle words. They mean just what they say.

REDUCTION IN PRICES BY WILLYS-OVERLAND

NOTIFICATION OF CUT IN WILLYS-OVERLAND LINE SURPASSES MOTOR INDUSTRY.

John N. Willys, President of the Willys-Overland Company, Toledo, Ohio, today caused a furor in automobile circles by his announcement of immediate price reductions and great improvements in the 1923 Willys-Overland lines.

This action embracing a drop in price on the Willys-Knight touring car and roadster models from $1235 to $1175, F. O. B. factory, and on the Willys-Knight Coupe-Sedan from $1555 to $1500, came as a distinct surprise to the automobile industry and motoring public in view of the advance in price made by not a few manufacturers in announcing their 1924 models.

The new values in Willys-Knight and Overland cars are the direct result of the wonderful sales and production records made by the Willys-Overland Company this year, eclipsing any previous period in its history, which determined the officials of the company to share with the public the appreciable saving in costs made possible by an enormous increase in business.

Mr. Willys added that in every detail all the advantages of the Willys-Knight car have been retained, while improvements have been added, making this car, powered with the famous Willys-Knight sleeve valve motor, a bigger value than ever before.

This announcement has great significance because it marks a new valuation record for automotive products in the face of a generally rising market in raw materials.

At the end of the year, the inventory showed 40 hens, 55 pullets, 10 cockerels and two cocks. During the year her flock produced 1,865 dozen eggs. The value of the eggs sold and used in the farm home amounted to $711.76. Income from the poultry, including hens used for home meat, baby chicks, broilers, old hens and cockerels sold, amounted to $1,190.36. Cost of feed and other items were $197.50, leaving a net income of $928.86, which does not include the value of the stock on hand.—Ypsilanti Record.

POULTRY CULLING DEMONSTRATIONS.

The county agricultural agent would be glad to hear from anyone in the various communities who is interested in learning how to cull the flocks for egg production, and also willing to house and feed as well as they are able under their conditions.

There are a number of demonstrations already planned, and we would be glad to have more. This work will be done during September and early October, before the hens go into winter quarters.

RALPH CARR,
County Agricultural Agent.

One Dollar Saved Represents Ten Dollars Earned.

The average man does not save to exceed ten per cent of his earnings. He must spend nine dollars in living expenses for every dollar saved. That being the case he can not be too careful about unnecessary expenses. Very often a few cents properly invested, like buying seeds for his garden, will save several dollars outlay later on. It is the same in buying Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy. It costs but a few cents, and a bottle of it in the house often saves a doctor's bill of several dollars.—Advertisement.

Today's Reflections

You don't see children wearing copper-toed shoes any more. Fancy suggesting such a thing to present-day kids.

Winking is said to be good for the eyesight. Maybe it is, if her sweet-heart doesn't happen to be nearby.

Plymouth married people would do well to remember that neighbors always know more about you than they let on like they do.

One nice use for the surplus of which there is in the country would be turn it into fried chicken.

A policeman's auto was stolen in Chicago. He wasn't in it—that's how it comes they didn't get him, too.

After an editor has had 25 years experience daring him to print it doesn't have much effect on him either one way or the other.

We heard a Plymouth man say yesterday that about the only kind of callers he has is the kind to whom he says, often before they are through stating their business, "Well, how much is it?"

After a man gets into a hole, it's surprising how many people could have told him what path he might have taken in order to avoid it.

It seems that no one has had time to figure out how many pedestrians can be run over to the gallon of gasoline.

Some day there may be a League For Leaving the President Alone. Why should every Tom, Dick and Harry that goes to Washington insist upon shaking hands with the chief executive?

Folks differ as to the result of some crops around Plymouth, but goodness knows the week crop hasn't been a failure.

That which is called "what the people want" is often merely something which they take because they can't get anything better.

The Other Woman

By JUSTIN WENTWOOD

(© 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

MARY DANE had long suspected the other woman's existence. Her husband and she had settled down into a life of mutual tolerance, but they were very little to each other. They had learned to bear and forbear; each went his own way; there were no longer the violent quarrels of early days.

Nevertheless, the discovery of her existence came as a great shock to her. So Henry, who had long ceased to care for her, had another woman, to whom he confided the secrets of his aspirations, whom he went to see, who had succeeded to her own place in his affections.

When she learned about her a blind rage flared up in her heart. Mary understood then how women can kill their rivals in love.

She did not go to see her with the purpose of killing her. She was consumed with insatiable curiosity to find out what qualifications this woman could have that made her preferable to herself. Mixed with this feeling was a new, strange sense of pity for Henry that was almost like the reawakening of love.

It was in a small apartment uptown Henry was not keeping her in any splendor, she thought, as she rang the bell.

Nor was there a maid. "Mrs. Carruthers?" she asked with a voice that she tried to keep steady.

"I am Helen Carruthers."

"I am Mary Dane."

"Won't you come in?"

Mary looked at the other with surprise when she entered. She had looked for some golden-haired siren not this rather plain-looking woman only a year or two younger than herself, with dark hair slightly streaked with gray, who stood facing her.

"Sit down, won't you?"

Mary Dane wondered why she sat down. "I have only just learned of you. I came to see what you were like. How long has this—been going on?"

"Henry and I have known each other about five years."

"Five years!" Mary gasped. It was five years since they had adjusted things—ceased quarreling.

"What does he see in you?"

"He tells me of things. We talk over affairs."

"His business?"

"Yes."

"Me? I suppose he abuses me to you?"

"He always speaks of you with the highest respect and affection."

"You can't expect me to believe that."

"Why not?"

"I am his wife, whom he has thrown over for you."

"My dear, listen to me. He hasn't thrown you over. He cares for you in a way in which he will never care for me. If there were any time when he had to choose between us he would choose you. Have you ever tried to be his companion—to share his life?"

"I've been more to him than he's deserved," said Mary, trying to keep back the tears. "I'm going to divorce him of course."

Helen Carruthers shrugged her shoulders. "I was very lonely before he came into my life," she said. "We met and we cared for each other. I have often asked him to give me up for your sake, but he has refused. What more can I do?"

"You—you've offered that?"

The other nodded. "I'm trying to make the best of things," she said. "I'm fond of Henry, but he's no hero to me. If I were to give him up you know he would fall into the clutches of somebody else, some mercenary person. I have never allowed him to spend his money on me. How will you benefit either himself or you by obtaining a divorce?"

"It's—it's unbearable. It's the shame and humiliation of it."

"My part isn't so bright, Mrs. Dane," said Helen, as the tears came into her eyes. "But I want to do my best for Henry. Won't you let me give you a cup of tea?"

And Mary Dane, who had gone there feeling murderous, found herself drinking tea with the rival who had stolen her husband from her.

How odd life was! And how hard upon women! She had gone there overcome with pity for Henry and indignation against the woman who had seduced him; she left with sympathy and pity for Helen Carruthers and a veiled, yet half-maternal, contempt for Henry.

How true that! No, she would just let things go on. That was the way of life. And she would never let him know that she had found out anything.

Canada's "Reversing Falls."

One of the show places of Canada are the famous "Reversing Falls," in the province of New Brunswick, at the mouth of the St. John river, although they are really not "falls" in the ordinary acceptance of the term. The "falls" result from the narrow and shallow outlet through which the tide, which rises with great rapidity, and to an altitude of 28 feet, has to pass. The outlet is not sufficiently broad or deep to admit the tidal waters with their rise; hence a fall inward is produced during the flow. At the ebb the tide recedes faster than the outlet of the river can admit of the escape of water accumulated within the inner basin, hence a fall outward.

The falls are passable four times in 24 hours, about 15 minutes at each time, when steamers, sailing vessels and rafts, pass up or down.
