FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

REV. S. CONGER HATHAWAY, A. M., PASTOR

ARE YOU A REASON—OR AN EXCUSE?

Does somebody say that they go to church because of you, or do they use you as an excuse; that they would go if you would? In every home there is either a reason or an excuse. Which are you?

Who wants to be an excuse for anything? Especially such a thing as keeping someone away from the house of God? Wouldn't you feel better, you "excuse," if you were a "reason" instead?

PLYMOUTH SCHOOLS NEED MORE ROOM

The Plymouth Public Schools are badly congested with practically no way to relieve the congestion except through building. It is an accepted fact by all authorities on School Administration that the largest number which should be placed in any lower grade room is forty, while the rooms in the first six grades, which were designed to care for forty pupils, have the following number of pupils:

Kindergarten—Forenoon, 39; Afternoon, 44.
First and Second grade room, 49.
Second grade room, 52.
Third grade room, 49.
Third and Fourth grade room, 40.
Fourth grade room, 42.
Fourth and Fifth grade room, 48.
Fifth grade room, 48.
Sixth grade room, 71.

A survey of these grades, using the P. M. railroad as a division line in order to determine the number north of the railroad, and the number south of the railroad, shows the relative number from each side to be as follows:

SCHOOL CENSUS BY LOCALITY
North of P. M. tracks—
Kindergarten 31
First Grade 36
Second Grade 29
Third Grade 30
Fourth Grade 22
Fifth Grade 33
Sixth Grade 27
Seventh Grade 24
Eighth Grade 26

South of P. M. tracks—
Kindergarten 53
First Grade 48
Second Grade 44
Third Grade 39
Fourth Grade 40
Fifth Grade 64
Sixth Grade 43
Seventh Grade 49
Eighth Grade 28

From the above data it would seem practical, at this time, to construct a Ward school north of the P. M. tracks in order that the same might be available at the beginning of school in 1924. With the added facilities for travel between Plymouth and Detroit, which will soon be completed, it would be well for us at this time to make preparations for the future. While the building of a new school house will entail the expenditure of money it will probably prevent, in a large degree, much of the loss which we are now getting in the efficiency of our school system due to over-crowding. The problem is nowhere as acute in the fall and spring while it is possible to open wide the windows, but as cold weather comes on and we must depend upon forced ventilation, it is then that the impure air in overcrowded rooms makes the best effort for children impossible.

Be sure to think this problem over, talk it over with your neighbors, and be present at the school meeting October 4th.

MRS. A. D. MACHAM PASSES AWAY

Mrs. A. D. Macham passed away at her home, corner of Blunk avenue and Williams street, last Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, after a long illness. Mrs. Macham had resided in Plymouth for the past seven years, and by her cheery manner and optimistic spirit, had won a large circle of friends and acquaintances, who sincerely regret her passing. She was a member of the First Presbyterian church of Plymouth and the Order of the Eastern Star.

A short service was held from the home, Tuesday morning at ten o'clock, Rev. S. Conger Hathaway officiating. The remains were taken to Holloway, Mich., her old home, where funeral services were held from the Presbyterian church, and were largely attended. The interment was made in the family lot in Raisin cemetery.

Jennie Rector was born at Delta, Ohio, June 15th, 1853. She was married to Allen D. Macham, January 17, 1877. She is survived by her husband, two daughters, Mrs. L. B. Samsen of Plymouth and Mrs. B. E. Giles of Ypsilanti, and three grandchildren, besides other distant relatives.

DEATH OF MRS. ROBERT BIRCH

Mrs. Robert Birch, for many years a resident of Plymouth, passed away at her home last week, Thursday, September 20th, after a long illness. Mrs. Birch was highly esteemed by all who knew her. The funeral services were held from her late home, Sunday afternoon, Rev. H. E. Sayles officiating. Interment in Riverside cemetery.

Anna Richard was born in Berne, Switzerland, July 18th, 1846, where she spent the early years of her childhood. When eleven years of age, she came with her parents to this country, living in Rochester, N. Y., and later in Fairport, N. Y. Here, on October 27th, 1887, she was united in marriage with Robert Birch. To them, one daughter, Anna, was born. About one year after her marriage, they moved to Plymouth, Michigan, where she resided until her death.

At an early age she became a Christian, and identified herself with the church. Upon coming to Plymouth, she joined the Baptist church of this place, where she remained a true and faithful member, and a regular attendant, as long as her health permitted.

She bore her suffering patiently and uncomplainingly, thoughtful always for those who so lovingly cared for her. Her interests were few outside her church and home, but those who knew her best, loved her for her kindness to everyone.

Surviving her are a husband, three daughters, Mrs. James Baughn of Stevensville, Ont.; Mrs. H. S. Shattuck and Mrs. Howard Richard of Plymouth; three sons, Winfield and David of this place, and Albert of Wayne; twenty-eight grandchildren and eleven great grandchildren; two sisters, Mrs. John Fishbeck of Penfield, N. Y., and Mrs. Henry Knobel of Rochester, N. Y.; two brothers, A. J. Richard of Fairport, N. Y., and W. F. Richard of Washington, D. C.; also nieces and nephews.

WILLIAMS-ROOT WEDDING

A pretty home wedding took place last Wednesday afternoon, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. Root on the Ann Arbor road, west of Plymouth, when, in the presence of about twenty-five relatives and guests, their daughter, Mable Charlotte, was united in marriage to Fay R. Williams of Lansing.

The house was prettily decorated with flowers, blue and gold being the dominant colors. At four o'clock, Mrs. Sadie Stuart of Cherry Hill sang, "O Promise Me," after which the wedding march was played, and the bridal party took their places before a bank of feathery green, where the bride's pastor, Rev. S. Conger Hathaway, read the Presbyterian ring service.

The bride was prettily dressed in a beaded gown of white canton crepe. She wore a wreath of orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of cream roses. The bridesmaid, Mrs. Henry Root, nee Luella Truesdell, was gowned in blue satin and carried a bouquet of pink carnations and roses. Henry Root attended the groom as best man.

After the ceremony, the guests repaired to the dining room, where a bountiful three-course luncheon was served. Among those who attended were: Mr. and Mrs. William Cuffman of Romeo; Mr. and Mrs. John Root, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Root, Mrs. Carman Root, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Holcomb and daughter, Margaret, of Plymouth township; Mrs. Earnest Bradner and Miss Sattie Blanchard of Sacramento, California; Mrs. Sadie Stuart of Cherry Hill; Mr. and Mrs. Bud Sheppo of Farmington; Miss Alta Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Thomas and Rev. and Mrs. S. Conger Hathaway of Plymouth.

Many pretty and useful gifts were received by the bride, who is popular in Plymouth's younger set, having graduated from Plymouth High school in the class of 1919. After a short wedding tour they will make their home in Lansing, where the groom is employed in the postoffice department of the civil service. They will be at home to their friends in West Lansing, after October 1st. A large circle of friends and acquaintances join in wishing the newly married couple happiness and joy.

IT DOESN'T PAY

Not being a newspaper editor, you have no means of knowing, but every now and then in the life of every editor he encounters someone who wants him to know that he should, as spokesman in his community, rip this or that person or this or that party up the back. And nine times out of ten the gentleman who wants the "ripping" done is making the suggestion through personal reasons and to satisfy a personal grudge.

There are people of that type who expect the editor of a weekly paper to be a regular literary prize fighter. They seem to think that the newspaper man should be forever running around with a chip on his shoulder, daring anybody to knock it off. It is true that up to a certain point this ripping is good, but it can easily be carried to extremes. To kill a mosquito, slap him, but be careful not to use a sledge hammer.

Personally, we've found out that sugar draws more flies than vinegar, and that a kind word accomplishes far more than a kick. We know that some things come up in Plymouth from time to time that deserve pretty stern words. But it has been our observation that good, ordinary horse-sense always prevails in the end, and everything is adjusted satisfactorily, more so than if we started in to agitate and lined our citizens up one against the other. Roasting through the paper isn't always the best way to right a wrong. Saying means things about the fellow who disagrees with you won't smooth things out. And that's why we don't indulge in it, and why we urge others not to.

PRESIDENT PROCLAIMS OCTOBER 9, "FIRE" DAY.

A proclamation setting aside October 9, the anniversary of the Chicago fire as National Fire Prevention Day was signed Tuesday by President Coolidge. It declared that special attention must be given to fire prevention methods if fire losses are to be brought within limits where they do not constitute a reflection on national efficiency.

Coincidentally, the chamber of commerce of the United States, acting for local chambers throughout the country, announced that it had drawn up a campaign program for fire prevention week, October 7 to 13 providing for co-ordinated local study of fire problems in every aspect.

BAR ALL INDIANS

British Clubs Refuse to Admit Wealthy Natives.

Even a Millionaire Merchant or a Maharaja is Never Permitted to Enter Sacred Precincts.

I suddenly wondered if any Indian had ever been invited to the yacht club (Bombay). I knew, of course, that no Indian ever had; but my undefined and very casual thought was that the great Indian political offensive might have broken down at least some of the outer works of British social exclusiveness.

It has, too, as a matter of fact; but a Britisher would never picture his club as an outer works; he would think of it rather as an inner citadel. I recalled that I was somewhat shocked when I learned that no member of this club could invite an Indian into it for however brief an interval, or for any purpose whatsoever; and it made no difference what rank or plentiful lack of it the Indian might have either.

He might be a millionaire merchant or a maharaja, he might be a distinguished citizen prominent in any one of the learned professions; he might be a celebrated author or eminent scientist of some sort—India produces a considerable number of all such men; or he might be just an ordinary Indian gentleman.

Nevertheless he could not enter the sacred precincts of the Englishman's club. And it is said that this fact—a fact repeated all over India wherever there is an Englishman's club—and that which it denotes as being fundamental in the British character have done more to undermine the British imperial structure in India than all the alleged economic and political injustices combined.

To an Englishman, an Indian, no matter who he may be, is and always has been, not an Indian but a native; and though the high caste Indian resents being referred to as a native more bitterly than he resents anything else on earth, the average Englishman in India—with exceptions, to be sure—goes on thinking of Indians merely as natives, and referring to them as such not only in conversations in which Indians participate but in the press as well, and even in their more serious writings about India.—Eleanor Franklin Egan in the Saturday Evening Post.

General Sherman Showed Pique. General Sherman, when making a tour of inspection of the military establishments of Europe, came to Constantinople and brought to the minister (George H. Baker, the noted playwright, 1871), Frederick Grant, just out of West Point, who came as an aid to General Sherman, and who was a very attractive young man of twenty-one. The sultan, hearing that the president's son was coming, conceived of the event as a visit from the crown prince of the United States, and he insisted upon considering General Sherman in the light of a caretaker to the young sovereign.

On one occasion the sultan was taking the air on the Bosphorus and his boat passed that of the visiting party. The sultan at that time never spoke to any one, but his gaze was in itself a salute, and he fixed that gaze unmistakably upon Lieutenant Grant.

When the boat passed, Grant turned impulsively to Sherman and cried out: "He spoke to me! I saw him!" Sherman was disgusted. "Yes, he did," he growled, "and I'd like to spank you!" —Scribner's Magazine.

Big and Little. Former Vice President Marshall on his return from Europe said to a New York reporter:

"Big men are little men. Lloyd George is little, Poincare is little. Our Whistler was little, Napoleon was little. Mark Twain, Jay Gould—but the list is endless.

"I heard a story in London about one of these big little men who had a very tall, stout son. He took his son to Boodle's club one day and introduced him proudly to old Lord Exe. "Old Lord Exe looked from the big son to the little father.

"Ho," he said, "a block off the old chip, eh?"

What College Did for Him. Educational sharps claim that college life makes a man more alert mentally. The proposition is that you don't go to college to absorb a mass of general information—you go there to learn to think.

A couple of magnates were having an argument about it. To end it, one of them sent to the outer office for a college graduate in his employ. They asked him to state frankly if college life had made him a quicker thinker.

"Yes," said he, without hesitation. "the two years I spent on second base did me a world of good." —Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

A Soft Spot. Mrs. N. Parker—"Ave you taken a constitutional, Granny?"

Old Lady (who has a confirmed habit of appropriating other people's property)—"You mind your own business; I ain't taken nothing belonging to you.

Economies. "Why were you separated from your husband in Paris?"

"I thought it would be a saving," replied the artist, "to get my gowns and my divorce on the same trip."

SCHOOL NOTES

The grade notes were furnished by Alta Hamill, and those for the High school, by Ralph Burch.

Queer Craft Is Found on No Other Waters in World. Traveler Describes the Felucca as Egypt's Floating Crockery Shop—Crew of Two Men.

What a felucca of the Nile is, and what she carries, is thus described by an English traveler in Egypt, writing from Cairo: Her huge canvas sail billowing from the curved yard, forging on her way like some freak swallow with one white wing, a felucca sweeps down the Nile with the combined speed of the wind and a swift current.

But such a ship never sailed on any sea or on the waters of any river save the Nile. Her mast and sail supply her only visible connection with navigation. She looks like a floating crate, and such, indeed, she is.

Somewhere under the mountain of her cargo she has a hull of sorts. But she is piled, yards high, into a redoubt of pink and brown earthenware jars, and hundreds of similar pots, slung in nets, yards deep, on either side of her bulwarks, float her so high in the air that her keel can hardly touch the water.

The felucca is Egypt's floating crockery shop. She is on her way to Lower Egypt, bearing to Cairo and to scores of villages along the banks of the Nile the broad, cone-ended jars wherein water is carried, on the heads of felloh women, from river and well.

Her "home port" is Kena, nearly 400 miles up the Nile, which from its possession of a peculiar variety of clay has been for centuries the home to Egypt of the potter and his hand-work.

The broad-based, narrow-mouthed water-jar, or bulas—whose name comes from the village near Kena where it is made—is shaped not to stand, but to balance, on a woman's head. It is familiar in all pictures of Egypt.

But the bulas is not the only product of Kena's clay, though it is the chief item of native catering for natives. The custom of upper-class Egyptians and Europeans is secured by a species of clay vase, round-bodied and narrow-necked, which Egyptians called a kulleh and we, in felicitous ignorance, a "cooler."

It deserves its name, and the absorbent properties of its clay make it one of the best of natural filters. Stand one kulleh on top of another, put your water in the upper one, set the whole erection in a draught and drink from the water that has filtered through to the lower jar is the recipe for a thirst-quencher, perfectly pure and of a coolness which can be appreciated only by summer exiles in the East.

A Handy Man to Have Round. Theodore N. Vall was a versatile man. He had been telegraph operator, baseball player, farmer and mail clerk. He could cook, too. Once when driving with Mrs. Vall, says his biographer, Mr. Albert Bigelow Paine, he stopped at a farmhouse and asked the farmer's wife to give them some dinner. She set out a pie and some cheese; they were all she had ready, she said, but he might look about.

Thereupon Mr. Vall went out into the barnyard, chased and caught a chicken, found some tomatoes and other vegetables in the garden and prepared the chicken in elaborate style with gravy and fixings; he attended to everything without assistance. It was a fine meal, and when they were ready to go he paid the farmer's wife liberally for it.

"Well," said the woman, "I should think your wife would always be afraid of losing you!" "Why so?" "Because you're such a good man round the house."—Youth's Companion.

Hopeful Comparisons. "I'm glad Henrietta has learned to take such an intelligent interest in public affairs," remarked Mr. Meek-ton. "Doesn't it take her mind off her home?" "Once in a while. It has served to show her that the judgment of a whole lot of men is just as liable to be mistaken as mine is."

Incentive to Industry. "Your boy Josh is very fond of the motion picture." "Yes," replied Farmer Cornstossel. "And I won't say they haven't been a helpful influence. There have been times this summer when I don't believe Josh would have worked at all if he hadn't needed the money to buy tickets to the show."

All Lived to Celebrate. Six people married at the same time and in the same place celebrated their golden wedding at Petton, near Chester-le-Street, England, last month. All six were married at a triple wedding service on May 31, 1873, at the local parish church.

And Probably the Cat Escaped. A dog chasing a cat was responsible for a $50,000 fire in a Glasgow garage. The animals upset a blow-lamp. Twelve cars and part of the garage were destroyed.

At the National encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic held at Milwaukee recently, the Michigan fife and drum corps won first prize, a handsome silver cup, presented by the newspapers of that city. Frank Perrin of Northville, is a member of the corps, and was present at the encampment.

After the opening of the service, Rev. and Mrs. Sayles, Mr. and Mrs. John Williams, Olivias Williams and Alton Sayles gave brief reports of the Wayne Baptist Association which met with the First Baptist church of Ypsilanti, September 18 and 19. Wednesday evening nine of our young people came over to the banquet and Rally, fifteen in all registered.
 The solo was sung by Alton Sayles. Olivias Williams played the offertory on his saxophone, accompanied by Mrs. Sayles on the piano.
 The B. Y. P. U. had a good attendance, and was led by Miss Florence Cline. The social which was to have been held Wednesday evening, is postponed one week.
 A get together meeting of all the members of the Baptist church and congregation is set for the first part of October, the date will be announced next week.
 The death of Mrs. Robert Birch takes another name from the record book of the Plymouth Baptist church. We shall miss her face in our audience, where it was so often seen. The church extends sympathy to the family in this hour of sorrow. This makes six who have been called away from us during this year, and the church feels the loss very much.
 Quite a number of the Baptist young people are away to school this year—Miss Fannie Grainger and Miss Theo Swegles at Ypsilanti; Olivias Williams at Detroit, and Duane Sayles at Kalamazoo. The church wishes them great success.
 No Substitute Offered
 Say what you will about the drug-gist offering something "just as good" because it pays a better profit, the fact still stands that ninety-nine out of a hundred druggists recommend Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy, when the best medicine for diarrhoea is asked for, and do so because they know from what their customers say of it, that it can be depended upon.—Advertisement.

PIG LITTERS REACH GOAL OF TON WEIGHT

R ENTRIES IN UNIQUE STATE SWINE CONTEST QUALIFY FOR TOP HONORS, TOTALING 2,000 POUNDS.

Four single litters of pigs, all born in Michigan only last spring, have reached in six months the surprising total weight of a ton, and have thus qualified for top honors in the Michigan Ton Litter Club, started last spring and supervised by extension men from the animal husbandry department at the Michigan Agricultural College.
 These four are the first to reach the 2,000 pound goal set by the club, but others are expected to reach the required total before the contest closes the middle of November. Litters in the contest were farrowed last spring, and have been weighed and checked under direction of college specialists in charge of the contest.
 Three different breeds and one "crossbred" lot are represented in the four litters already checked, in nine Poland China pigs in one litter weighed in at a total of 2,060 pounds. Ten Duroc Jerseys totaled 2,341 pounds; eleven Chester Whites reached 2,278; while a litter of twelve Poland China and Duroc Jersey crossbreds top the contest so far with a total litter weight of 2,536 pounds. This gives the pigs in these litters an average weight of above 220 pounds each.
 "It is not hard," says V. A. Freeman of the M. A. C. animal husbandry staff, manager of the Ton Litter Contest, "to raise a few pigs which will weigh 220 pounds at six months of age, but it takes good breeding, feeding and management to have one sow raise nine or more pigs, and have all of them gain fast enough so that they average above 220 pounds at that age."

AS YOU MAKE IT

Household work is hard and never-ending; or, it is easy, pleasant and quickly dispatched—as you choose to make it.

The electric washer gives freedom from the toil and stress of wash-day; the electric ironer cuts out half the time and labor of the old way; the electric dish-washer cleans, rinses and dries in five minutes; the electric vacuum cleaner keeps the house neat and clean with slight effort.

If you are building a new home, or planning improvements in your present abode, be sure to have plenty of "convenience outlets" (sockets in wall or floor) for the proper use of such appliances. Call upon us for further information—glad to advise you.

 THE UNIVERSAL CAR

New Sedan

Changes featured in the new Ford Sedan make it a better looking, roomier car.

A higher radiator with a trim apron at its base lends dignity to the hood. The higher hood and enlarged cowl curving gracefully to the dash give a stylish sweep to its body lines, and afford additional leg room for occupants of the front seat.

All body fittings—window regulators, door grips, door latch levers, door lock, dome light—are finished in nickel. The upholstery carries a fine dark line on a soft brown background that does not easily show dust or dirt. Silk window curtains to harmonize with the three rear windows enhance the style of the car and add to the comfort of its passengers. See the new Sedan and other new Ford body styles at our showrooms.

THE THEATRE

"THE HUNTRESS"

In "The Huntress," a First National picture which is the feature of the program at the Penniman Allen theatre, Saturday, September 29th, Colleen Moore has, without doubt, one of the most delightful roles of her whole screen career.

In this picture the winsome young star plays the part of a vivacious care-free white girl, who has been reared as an Indian. She learns that she is white and then "fun begins," when she decides to win a white husband.

She kidnaps a bashful city youth, who has come into the country prospecting. Her efforts to hold him and finally to win him, naturally create a series of highly humorous and at times dramatic situations.

The picture is most unique and will precipitate a rapid departure from the ordinary run of plays.

"FAIR LADY"

The element of mystery in the new Rex Beach picture "Fair Lady," was put to a severe and novel test before it was finally turned over to United Artists Corporation for release and the wide difference of opinion of experts on the solution of the mystery was taken as positive proof that the public will not be able positively to anticipate the ending of this screen drama until the very last scenes. "Fair Lady" will be seen at the Penniman Allen theatre next Sunday, September 30.

When the production was completed it was shown privately to an audience composed of officials from the United Artists, the chauffeurs employed by the officials, and studio mechanics and clerks. None of those invited to the private showing were acquainted with the story of "Fair Lady." This was made a point in issuing invitations because Whitman Bennett, the producer, and Rex Beach, the author, as well as Dorothy Farnum, who prepared the script, were anxious to get an impartial opinion of the mystifying elements of the picture. When six reels of the picture had been run off the lights were turned on and the spectators were asked "which of the characters in the story was the villain." A tally of the various conjectures showed that every member of the cast was suspected of being the guilty party. Then the seventh reel was shown and the audience was let into the secret.

It speaks well for the entertainment value of the picture. It is very unusual when a production can go so near to its completion without disclosing some hint of its ultimate ending.

NEWBURG

The church was well filled with old time friends of Rev. and Mrs. George Davey, Sunday last. Mr. Davey spoke feelingly of the time spent as a lad, when he attended service in the Newburg church, preaching a splendid sermon, his theme being "My Role in the Kingdom Drama." He also performed the rite of baptism for two little children, Ruth Ellen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Roediger, who were former parishioners of Rev. Davey at Southfield, and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Arrheim's little son, William John. It will be glad to have Mr. Davey preach here again. They have the best wishes of their many friends at Newburg. Election of officers in the Sunday-school next Sabbath. All come and give our new pastor a hearty welcome.

OLD WOOD SHIPS OF NAVY

Tennessee Was Equipped With Both Sails and Steam—Veteran Seamen Mistrusted New Inventions.

His 46 years in the service were spent during the navy's transitional times. When he entered the Naval Academy all of our war vessels were wooden sailing ships; his midshipman's cruises were made aboard the Constellation—she was so low between decks that only a half-grown boy could stand erect; so badly ventilated through her tiny portholes that one's mouth tasted like a copper penny in the morning—but, oh, the satisfying beauty of those old full-rigged sailing ships! The admiral's thoughts went yearningly back to the memory of the towering, sun-drenched, white sails and colorful old hulls coming up like gulls across the horizon line over the rim of the world; the ultimate perfection of grace, symmetry and romance.

"The navy's always been conservative!" decided the admiral, affectionately remembering the old-time commanders who, through wide and varied experience, had come to have a ripe knowledge and respect for the ways of the wind, and who entertained neither interest nor enthusiasm where innovations were concerned. Steam did not intrigue them; they mistrusted it and took grudging chances with this new motive power; sails were retained as a guaranty of sanity and safety long after the use of steam had progressed far beyond the experimental stage. . . . The admiral chuckled, recalling the old Tennessee—which carried just enough coal to steam out of port; then, at the harbor's mouth, dumped the fires and hoisted her faithful sails, as did all the vessels of that early fleet—Rappahannock, Boston, Galena, Philadelphia, Yantic, Quinnebog, Swatara—the admiral named them over to himself like a well-beloved rosary, and exulted in the precious memory of those gallant years when sails were still spread, adventure still flourished and fighting men still looked their adversaries in the eyes—instead of shooting impersonally at them from 12 miles away!

"I've lived too long!" decided the admiral with grimness; then smiled ruefully at the sudden remembrance of his first cruise aboard the Bear; detailed to search around Alaska for Greely's missing ship.—Harriet Welles in Scribner's.

Seeking the Sun God's Home.

Carnac (in Brittany) was probably to the western continent of Europe what Stonehenge was to the British Isles. There is at that place, in fact, a focus and concentration of the megalithic works left by the Celtic fore-runners in their prehistoric migration which, starting in Asia, moved across northern Africa, over Mediterranean waters, into Spain, and along the shores of the Atlantic, constantly striving westward to find the resting place of their god, the sun, but ever baffled by the impassable ocean, and so forced northward, until the effort died out in Scandinavia. Their long sojourn near these shores covered at least 2,000 years. The weapons and implements placed in the sepulchers lose their rough but serviceable character and appear in polished but merely native forms, often in soft or valuable stone.—National Geographic Magazine.

An Old-Timer Revived.

An English sailor, who had been in a concert hall, was descending upon an oratorio which had given him great pleasure:

A listening shipmate asked: "I say, Bill, what's a horatorio?" "Do you mean to say you don't know what a horatorio is?"

"Not me."

"Well, then, I'll tell you. If I was to say to you, 'Ere, Bill, give me that 'andspike,' that wouldn't be a horatorio. But if I was to say, 'Bill, Bill, give me, give me, give me that 'and, give me that 'and, 'andspike, spike, spike, Bill, give me that, that 'and, 'andspike, 'and, 'andspike, 'and, 'andspike, spike, spike, spike, Bill, give me that 'andspike,' why that would be a horatorio."—Musical Record.

No Time to Grow.

The dismissive office boy had worked hard for a "salary" of $5 a week. He was a subdued little chap, fatigued and quiet. Finally, however, he gathered up enough courage to ask for an increase.

"How much more would you like?" inquired his employer.

"Well," answered the lad, "I don't think $2 more a week would be too much."

"You are a small boy to be earning $7 a week."

"I suppose I am," he replied. "I know I'm small for my age, but, to tell the truth, since I've worked here I've been so busy I haven't had time to grow."—From the New York Sun.

Logical.

A teacher of music in a public school was trying to impress upon her pupils the meaning of "f" and "ff" in a song that they were about to learn. After explaining the first sign, she said: "Now, children, what do you say—if 'f' means 'forte,' what does 'ff' mean?" "Eighty!" shouted one enthusiastic pupil.—Youth's Companion.

There Was a Reason.

Young Wife—I cooked this dinner for you all by myself and you've never said a word about it.

Hub—I would have, dearest, but you know I never like to complain.—From the Boston Transcript.

ANCIENT ARTS OF THE AZTECS

Birth of New Designs Was Largely Influenced by the Spanish Conquerors.

Since the great conquests of Peru and Mexico and the lesser expeditions into Central America and our Southwest, all objects made by the natives are more than likely to have a divided, artistic origin. In museums very careful distinction is made between pre-Columbian and post-Columbian arts.

This is in no sense proof of inferiority of native creative power, but rather indicates the high status of all artistic expression in these favored regions since artisanship had arisen to a point where adaptation of exotic ideas was within the scope of both mental and physical powers. Only peoples dominated by iron superstitions in regard to the significance of design remain unaffected through contact. Only peoples lacking in technical skill refuse to copy.

In the account of his first voyage to Hispaniola which Columbus sent back to the court of Ferdinand and Isabella, there is mention of the native arts and a deep satisfaction at the wealth and culture of these new lands. It was sure proof to the Genoese dreamer that he had found the road to the fabulous Indies. It cannot be doubted that Spanish arts and Spanish customs and attributes were to these natives as deep a matter of interest. But the insular population was neither large nor vigorous enough to profit by the lesson. They were soon absorbed or destroyed in the first development of the islands. For this reason we have no record of Spanish influence here. The rapacious and ignorant cruelty of the first gold miners, the introduction of negro slaves, submerged the simple native population beyond all chance of redemption.

When, however, Cortez landed on the coast of Mexico, in the year 1501, the native arts of the Aztec showed Spanish influence. There is a tradition that a runner carried to the court of Montezuma a naively drawn sketch of his great and mysterious ships. The meeting of Cortez and Montezuma later in the same year, is illustrated in the Codex Rios, and as a companion picture Alvarado, his fiery lieutenant, is shown slaughtering the Aztec nobles in the temple enclosure. It was natural enough that the superior military accomplishments of the Spaniards should make a strong impression on the Aztec mind, themselves a warrior race of no mean distinction. It is natural enough that our own histories should follow this savage example.—Arts and Decoration.

Regular People.

"I received what I regard as a real compliment the other day," said Whoozls in the smoker of the 8:14 out of Summit. "You know we're boarding up in the hills for the summer at a farmhouse that accommodates about twenty guests. The season being young yet we're the only persons in the house and have our meals with the landlady and her husband. The other night at dinner she remarked to my wife and myself:

"Wait until the summer boarders begin to arrive. Then you'll have some good laughs. They're a scream."

"At this point I protested laughingly: 'Hey!' I said, 'better be careful. Remember we're summer boarders.'"

"Oh," was the complimentary reply, 'but you all don't seem like summer boarders at all—you seem like regular people.'"—New York Sun and Globe.

Poor Little Babies.

Java has a population of 38,000,000. It would be impossible for that enormously fertile island to accommodate such a population if it increased normally. It is kept within limits only by the fact that 50 per cent of the babies die before they are five years old. Bubonic plague kills them and people take few precautions to check it. Polymyia still flourishes there. The sultan's son, the crown prince of Solo, who is an educated man and speaks English, and a number of European languages, has two wives, and his father, the sultan, has many more.

Hound's Astonishing Litter.

Dido, a hound owned by a director of the Virginia Fox Hunters' association, is believed to have established a world's record when she gave birth to a litter of 26 pups. The local dogmen declare this to be ten more than the previous record. Mother and pups are doing well. Dido is regarded as one of the best foxhounds in the Virginia.

Swallowed Dinner Fork.

Waiting for her breakfast, a nine-year-old Chicago girl began playing with a full-sized dinner fork. She put the fork, handle-first, into her mouth and accidentally swallowed it. She was taken to a hospital, where the fork was located by X-rays. The resident medical officer performed an operation and took the fork (which was 7 1/2 inches long) from the stomach.

Peculiar Golf Stroke.

A golf ball driven by a professional, bounced off a hedge and lodged on top of a narrow boundary wood fence. It remained perfectly balanced, and the crowd of golfers saw the ball played off the fence and holed in seven hits.

We were glad to have so many members of the Methodist church with us, last Sunday, during the absence of their pastor.

The church has sustained the loss by death of another faithful member, Mrs. A. D. Macham. We shall miss her quiet, optimistic spirit and her smile of good cheer. May our "God of all comfort" sustain the members of her bereaved family.

The fourth annual meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the Synod of Michigan will be held in the Ypsilanti church, October 3 and 4. A fund of ten thousand dollars is being raised in honor of Miss Jennie Dean of Detroit, who was the first missionary sent out to Persia. The fund will be used for a building to be erected on that mission field. Plymouth people will be especially anxious to contribute a share because of the fact that Miss Dean, a sister of the late Lafayette Dean, was a former resident of Plymouth and is well known in the community.

COMPARE

The Maximum of Proved vs. Many Extravagant Claims of Superiority

INTEGRITY SERVICE

SO many announcements of new model cars contain extravagant claims for the same superlatives that it is puzzling to the buyer to know which value is real and which is only a claim. This year the issue has been confused by the introduction of mechanical changes, some of which have been rushed into production while still in the experimental stage—and then immediately given wide publicity.

Important considerations have been overlooked and great stress placed upon unimportant details.

But the man who intends to buy a motor car need not let this confusion or this glamour of publicity lead him to make a mistake or risk satisfaction in his purchase. The automobiles themselves are available for comparison. See and be convinced. Riding is believing.

As an aid to intelligent buying we offer the following suggestions:

Place the 1924 model Studebaker Light-Six Touring Car at $995 alongside any car you may select as belonging in the same class. Every car looks well in the picture—most cars make a good impression in their own show windows. The Studebaker Light-Six looks a winner alongside the best-looking competitor you can find. And it's larger, more substantial, roomier, more comfortable looking—and is more comfortable.

Compare the top. Look inside and out. The Studebaker top is sturdily built. Has four stout cross bows. Top material is same as is so satisfactorily used in the Big-Six. Notice the fit, feel the quality. The rear curtain is one-piece—has no seams—with a large rectangular window bound by an enameled moulding.

Compare the body. Studebaker has a roomy, substantial, carefully made body—all-steel even to its framework, which permits a finish in baked enamel. A depressed belt line runs around the body and through the hood and radiator, adding to its distinctive appearance.

Compare the one-piece, rain-proof windshield, with built-in cowl lamps, with the ordinary two-piece windshield with rubber strip that leaks in every rain and always obstructs the driver's vision. Notice the large cowl ventilator that is quickly operated by merely moving the regulator backward or forward.

Compare the Studebaker door trimmings and fittings with the door fittings of other cars. Notice that the door pocket flaps have weights to hold them in position. Man-sized door handles and latches, positive-action door locks that catch with a snap and stay closed. Heavy hinges properly located and proportioned. Highest grade trimming material instead of painted cardboard. Fastening nails concealed.

Compare the aluminum-bound linoleum that is neatly fitted and fastened to the floor boards of this 1924 Studebaker Light-Six with the rubber mats that cover the cheap, loosely-fitted floor boards in many other cars.

Compare the cheap robe rail (sometimes hemp rope covered with imitation leather) with the Studebaker nickel-plated rail. Compare the forty-cent footrest with the comfortable, carpet-covered footrest, supported by polished aluminum brackets, in the Studebaker.

These comparisons are of features that can be seen. There are many more down under the surface that could be mentioned, such as the machining of all surfaces of the crankshaft and connecting rods of the Light-Six motor. This is largely responsible for the practical absence of vibration in the Studebaker Light-Six. This is an exclusive Studebaker practice on cars at this price.

If competition is so far inferior in its visible parts, it is a certainty that the hidden parts which really determine the satisfaction of a car will be equally inferior.

The Studebaker chassis is as far superior to any other motor car chassis in its price field as Studebaker upholstery is to other upholstery, as the Studebaker body is to any other motor car body in its price field.

Come in and see the Light-Six. Test its performance and comfort yourself. Again—Riding is believing.

DELIGHT IN HEADS

Barbaric Custom Still Observed by Ecuador Savages.

Feats Follow Quest of the Enemy in the Forests by Quarrelsome and Vengeful Jibaros.

Head hunters still dominate the forests of Eastern Ecuador. The Jibaro Indians, one of the world's most quarrelsome and vengeful people, are the subject of a study recently completed by Rafael Karsten, under the auspices of the bureau of American ethnology of the Smithsonian institution here, the results of which have been published.

The Jibaros, no doubt, at present are the most warlike of all the Indian tribes of South America. The blood feuds within the tribes, and the wars of extermination among different tribes, are continuous. Their religious and social life is bound closely to the taking of human heads.

The education of the boys aims at making them brave and skillful warriors. When a Jibaro has enemies upon whom he himself has been unable to take revenge, he tries to awaken and maintain hatred of them among his sons by discourses directed at them every day. This is repeated every morning when the father gets up.

The large community houses, in which the Jibaro families live, are surrounded by death traps. These consist of holes in the ground large enough for a full-grown man to fall into. At the bottom are three pointed sticks, erect. At the surface the hole is covered with small sticks and leaves, which makes it impossible for the enemy, moving along in the darkness, to discover. When he falls his feet are transfixed by the sticks.

Another death trap is described as follows: Across the path along which the enemy is expected to come a blackened string is stretched the height of a man's chest. At the free where one end of the string is fastened a charged and cocked rifle is tied. The end of the string is brought in such connection with the trigger of the rifle that when the enemy coming along in the darkness, gives it a push the shot is discharged and is likely to hit him in the chest. At any rate the house is warned by the discharge.

A man's social standing among the Jibaros depends on how many men he has killed. A youth is in the "cuckoo class" among them until he has secured at least one human head.

Each family lives by itself. They resent even a loose tribal organization which would impose some bounds upon them. The government of Ecuador long ago has given up all efforts to rule these choleric and unruly people. The slightest family disagreement is considered cause for war. Every Jibaro who dies, no matter what the cause, is considered to have been bewitched, and the medicine men, whose prestige depends upon the number of wars they can start, have little trouble in tracing the incantation to some member of a neighboring tribe, thus giving an excuse for further head hunting.

Oil From Beechnuts.
Measures were taken by the minister of agriculture in Holland not long ago to increase the supply of edible oils in that country by making full use of the domestic beechnut crop. It is estimated that between 2,000 and 2,500 metric tons of these nuts may be collected if every effort be made, and that from this amount of raw nuts 300,000 to 400,000 kilos of oil may be obtained. This would afford a valuable addition to the stocks of edible oils in the Netherlands.

Owners of private lands from which beechnuts are gathered receive compensation at the rate of 5 per cent of the sums paid to the gatherers, and they also enjoy the right to enjoy cattle cake, prepared from the pulp of the nuts from their property at 50 florins per 100 kilos.

Big Sum for a "Pee Pod"
One thousand dollars was paid recently for an interesting curio in the shape of a pee pod carved out of pear wood. About two and a half inches long, and an inch and a half wide, the "pod" opens on a hinge to disclose two wonderful sixteenth century carvings. One represents Joseph and Potiphar's wife, and the other the Judgment of Paris.

Liner's Wireless Eye.
The latest in wireless direction finders has just been installed on the Cunard liner Mauretania. With this device it is possible to ascertain in a few seconds a ship's bearing towards any one land wireless station. If touch is secured with two or more stations, the exact position of the vessel is found by cross-bearing. The value of such a direction-finder in thick or hazy weather is obvious.

Reciprocity Between Hemispheres.
"Columbus came from the old world to put America on the map."
"Yea," replied Senator Sordani. "And now America is expected to return the favor and see if it can't do something to prevent Europe from sliding off the map."

Doubtful.
"Isn't it splendid," said Mrs. Jibson, "that the war is over?"
"It might be, dear," sighed Mr. J., "but I still have to argue with the landlord about an increase in rent."

A Pronounced Success
The uniform success that has attended the use of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy in the relief and cure of bowel complaints, both for children and adults, has brought it into almost universal use, so that it is practically without a rival and as everyone who has used it knows, is it without an equal.

M. A. C. TO CONTINUE DAIRY-ALFALFA WORK

NEW COUNTIES LISTED FOR INTENSIVE CAMPAIGNS DURING COMING SEASON.

Intensive local campaigns in the interest of better farming, known as "dairy and alfalfa" drives, will be carried out in several counties of the state during the coming winter by the extension division of the Michigan Agricultural College.

Many counties have been covered by these drives during the past two years, and the results of the work in generally improved farming practices in the districts reached have been so satisfactory that the college authorities have just announced a continuation of the campaigns.

During the course of one of these drives, which usually take two weeks, every farmer in a county has the chance to see at least one of the demonstrations and to hear the college specialists discuss the subjects without having to go more than two or three miles. This is accomplished by having as many as 80 local or so-called "barn-yard" meetings in sections scattered all over the country.

Formation of cow testing and better sire associations and increased alfalfa acreage are direct results which have followed the intensive campaigns already held; while a better understanding of the value of alfalfa as a Michigan forage crop, and of improved dairy practices in general, is said to result from the campaign meetings.

Several counties have asked for the drives during the coming months, according to Director Baldwin, and an itinerary for the season will be announced in the near future. Specialists from the college dairy and farm crops department work in conjunction with the local county agricultural agents in handling the campaign meetings.

Today's Reflections

We can remember the time when Plymouth people referred to coal as "black diamonds" when it only cost $3 a ton.

Repeating a story won't do very much harm—unless you get into the gossip class by adding a little more to it.

There isn't much danger in the carpenters of this country turning Bolsheviks when they find out that carpenters in Russia are making only 50c a day.

A worried look on a Plymouth man's face doesn't always indicate family trouble. Maybe he has one weak tire and he is trying to figure out how long it will hold up.

The label on your paper tells how your subscription stands.

Some Plymouth men's idea of a truly helpful wife is one who is always willing to cut the weeds around the house and garden.

Many a man who started in to climb to the top of the ladder thinks he is doing pretty well to hold on when he's only half way up.

Some people around Plymouth are anxious to earn money—and a lot of others are merely anxious to get it.

The fellow most likely to make farming pay, is the farmer himself. He has always worked out his own problems right and he's pretty apt to do it now.

An eastern physician says life will soon be lengthened 20 years. Then they must be going to quit making automobiles.

There's time enough for the U. S. to think of cancelling those European debts when her European creditors show some disposition to think of cancelling war.

When a Plymouth man returns home from a vacation, he usually finds he has been missed from work—a frog would be missed out of the Pacific ocean.

With a whole lot of people the living wage doesn't mean as much these days as the flivving wage.

Another thing you've possibly noticed—a horse-trader didn't have any things to lie about as an auto trader.

Now that long skirts have come in style again, a girl once more will be taken at her "face" value.

Europe reports a heavy demand for American currency. We've noted the same kind of a demand right here in this community.

Dark Rings Under Eyes

For the relief of dark rings and blood shot eyes there is nothing better than simple camphor, witchhazel, hydrastis, etc., as mixed in Lavoptik eye wash. The quick action is surprising. Eye cup free. Pinckney's Pharmacy.—Advertisement.

COLLIER NEAR DEATH IN WATER FIGHT SCENE

PLUNGE AFTER DAREDEVIL BANDIT ESCAPING WITH MAIL POUCH GIVES NEW THRILL.

One of the most realistic fights in a river is contained in "Loyal Lives," a picturization of the romance of the United States Mail, which will be shown at the Penniman Allen theatre on Wednesday and Thursday, October 3 and 4.

The scene is one that will bring shudders to spectators, so realistic is it. William Collier, Jr., and an actor who played the part of a train robber, barely escaped drowning in South River, near Perth Amboy, N. J., during the filming of this dangerous scene.

Collier, who plays the part of Terrence, son of a letter carrier, is making his first run as a railway mail clerk, when two daredevil bandits clamber down from the roof of the moving train and get into the mail coach. The other mail clerks are overcome. Collier succeeds in felling one of the bandits. As the train swings over the bridge, the remaining bandit seizes a registered mail pouch. Collier grabs him and a terrific battle for possession of the mail pouch follows. Both fall off the moving train thirty feet into the water. Here the fighting for the sack continued desperately.

For twenty minutes the cameramen kept shooting this scene. Filming was suddenly halted when it was seen that the daredevil, exhausted by his struggles with Collier, was about to go down. It was all Collier could do to hold up the man, until a boat could reach them. Both men were pulled exhausted from the water.

"And they say a film star's life is easy," muttered Collier when he was brought to the shore.

"Loyal Lives" is a Whitman Bennett production distributed by Vitagraph and is the first screen play to introduce, as a new hero, the letter carrier. It is an intensely human as well as dramatic masterpiece.

Enemy Within the Gates. Carolyn's aunts were visiting her from the west and mother wished her to make the most of their short stay. Therefore, when any of Carolyn's playmates called, mother would send them home, saying kindly but firmly, "Carolyn is busy entertaining her aunts."

One little neighbor boy by the name of Philip was more persistent than the rest and came again and again, only to be told Carolyn was getting ready to go out with her aunts, or Carolyn was busy entertaining them. One day, however, when mother and aunts were upstairs, busily engaged, they were convulsed to hear this in Carolyn's little voice from the kitchen, "O, mother, come, quick. Philip has got in the house."
