FATHER AND SON BANQUET

A NOTABLE OCCASION AT METHODIST CHURCH.

The annual Father and Son Banquet, held under the auspices of the Men's Brotherhood of the Methodist church last Tuesday evening, was an event in the lives of the one hundred men and boys who attended. The boys were the guests of their dads, and some were borrowed for the occasion, several men bringing a whole troop.

While the Kenyon orchestra played, dads and sons marched in, and after invocation by Rev. S. C. Hathaway, all "fell to" with a vim to partake of the bountiful repast prepared by the ladies of Mrs. Cook's division of the Methodist Ladies' Aid.

At the conclusion of satisfying their appetites, order was called, and the toastmaster, B. J. Holcomb, was introduced. With much witicism and story telling as well as some serious and thought-provoking statements, the toastmaster proved his right to the position of honor at the helm of affairs. Clifford Cline was the first to respond with a "Partnership" and in a very "fine way" told us how dads and their sons should truly be partners in all their affairs. C. R. Ross then spoke on "C. O. D." very clearly setting forth the responsibility of the dads to see that their sons receive the best possible training in life, the "C. O. D." standing for "Call on Dad." Following this, Mr. Allen and Mr. Nagle sang a duet. The toast, "My Dad," was responded to by Alton Sayles, who expressively told just what dad expects of his son, and how we ought to measure up to his ideal for us.

At this juncture, the toastmaster called on S. D. Strong, chairman of the Boy Scout Court of Honor of Plymouth, who in fitting words, presented Scout William Rambo with a Merit Badge in Pioneering, after which all the Boy Scouts who were present repeated their Scout Oath. Music by the orchestra and the "Conquerors" were ready to settle down again to the big part of the program.

Dr. W. P. Fruit, pastor of Court St. Methodist Church, Flint, was introduced to speak on the topic, "A Sport or Sportsman." And it is certain that every man and boy, before he got through, thoroughly understood the difference. The sport is the fellow who tries to win the game at any cost or means, whether fair or foul. The sportsman is the man who plays the game fair and square, and whether he succeeds in piling up the winning score or not, he has won for himself if he plays a clean game. The speaker applied this to the great game of life, concluding that in order to win this bigger, game, one must play according to the rules which are laid down for us in the Word of God, and we must follow the leadership of the Great Coach, the Man of Galilee. The address was filled with clean, wholesome humor in such fashion that the truth that the speaker was trying to bring out, gripped every man and boy in a manner that he will not soon forget the lesson.

Just before the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Hathaway, a motion was passed requesting the secretary of the Men's Brotherhood to send a telegram of sympathy to J. C. Gill, the president, who is recovering from an operation in Harper hospital.

WILL GIVE SUPPER

The Lutheran Ladies' Aid will give a supper at the Grange Hall Wednesday, February 27th. The proceeds will go toward the furnishings and carpet for the new church. Supper will be served from 5:30 until all are served. Adults 50c, and children 25c.

VILLAGE ELECTION OCCURS MARCH 10TH

Village election is almost at hand, but with only two offices to be filled and only two candidates in the field, little or no interest is being shown in this annual event, which occurs this year on Monday, March 10th. Commissioners Hillmer and Wilcox are candidates to succeed themselves. The commission during the past year has transacted quite a volume of business and some splendid improvements have been made. In the water department fifty-four service connections have been made, and a new 12-inch rock lead has been laid to the well at the springs, besides the ordinary maintenance on mains and pumps.

A fine new public comfort station has been erected and equipped, which is a credit to the village. An addition of 20 acres to the village flats fronting on Plymouth road has been purchased. Tables have been built, toilet facilities have been provided, a good well bored and 1,000 feet of roadway graded and graveled at the tourist camp grounds.

A splendid start was made last summer in beautifying Kellogg Park, by the setting out of 200 shrubs and the laying out of cinder walks.

Fifteen hundred feet of new streets have been graded; 20,000 gallons of road oil was applied, besides considerable adjusting of sidewalks and parkways on the Starkweather avenue pavement.

Nine hundred feet of 15-inch storm sewer, 3,200 feet of 8-inch storm sewer and 250 feet of 6-inch storm sewer were laid, together with 6 brick man-holes and 24 catch basins.

DEATH OF MRS. RACHEL WESTFALL

Mrs. Rachel Westfall, a pioneer resident of this vicinity, passed away at the home of her brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Everett, on Canton street, last Tuesday morning, February 19th. The deceased had been seriously ill at the home of her brother and wife since last fall, but about three weeks ago, was taken to Harper hospital, Detroit, where she underwent a critical operation, as the only chance of prolonging her life and relieving her suffering, but owing to her advanced age, she grew gradually worse, and a week ago, was brought back to her brother's home with no hope of her recovery.

Rachel Everett was born at Deerfield, Summit County, Ohio, February 14, 1843, and when a young child of three and one-half years, came with her parents to Michigan and settled on a farm in Livonia township, where she spent her girlhood days. February 22, 1866, she was united in marriage to Orson Westfall, who preceded her to the higher life four years ago. One daughter was born to this union, Ada Westfall Webber, who was called home August 12, 1910. The death of their only child brought a great sorrow and much sadness into their home from which they never recovered.

During the greater part of their married life, Mr. and Mrs. Westfall resided on a farm a few miles southwest of town, and for several years she was an active worker in the Ladies' Aid of the Free Church, also the Plymouth Grange, and was interested in both organizations as long as her health would permit. For the past few years Mrs. Westfall's home has been on Ann Arbor street. The deceased was one of a family of eight children, but only two brothers survive her, Seneca Everett of Canton township. She also leaves several nieces and nephews.

The funeral services were held from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Everett on Canton Center road, Thursday afternoon at two o'clock. Rev. D. D. Nagle, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church conducting the services. In compliance to a request by Mrs. Westfall, Mrs. Bert Shurt, who sang at Mr. Westfall's funeral four years ago, sang at the services. Burial took place in the family lot in Riverside cemetery.

The O. E. S. will hold a box social at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Melbourn Partridge, Tuesday evening, February 26th. Real sleigh-ride, pretty boxes well filled, and lots of fun. Come and help add to the building fund.

PLYMOUTH WILL HAVE NEW BANK

Plymouth is soon to have a new bank to be known as the People's State Bank. For some time, Mr. J. B. Hubert of Lansing, has been canvassing prospects in the village, and has succeeded in interesting a number of citizens and farmers in this vicinity to take stock in the new concern. Mr. Hubert has had twenty years experience in State and National banks in cities of the size of Plymouth, and he is therefore well qualified as a successful banker. The capital stock of the new bank has been placed at $50,000, and the business will be controlled by local stockholders. A suitable location has been secured, and it is expected operations will begin within a few weeks. Elsewhere will be found a legal notice as provided for by law.

The new bank will add one more business institution to Plymouth, and spells progress for a larger and a better town.

"The history of George Washington is not always a recital of brilliant exploits in the field—the cunning strategy of the commander, nor is it always a narrative of startling movements in the cabinet—the secret diplomacy of the statesman; but it is always the consistent record of a man true to himself, true to his country, true to his God."

WILL ORGANIZE WOMEN'S VOTERS LEAGUE.

The object of the Michigan League of Women Voters shall be to foster education of citizenship in order to increase the effectiveness of women's votes, and further better government. The Michigan League of Women Voters urges every woman to become an enrolled voter, but as an organization it shall be allied with and support no party. No candidates for office shall be endorsed.

On Wednesday, March 5th, at 2:15 p. m. in the Woman's Club room, Plymouth, a meeting will be held for the purpose of organizing a Plymouth League of Women Voters. The present plans include an address by one of the officers of the National League of Women Voters and one of the officers of the Wayne County League. This meeting is part of a country-wide organization that is being carried on by the State and National League.

The League of Women Voters is an everywoman organization and invites all women of voting age to be present at the meeting on Wednesday, March 5th. Miss Lina Duffee will act as temporary district chairman for the purpose of organization.

THE PLYMOUTH LADIES PLEASE WITH PROGRAM.

The Wayne Weekly has the following to say of the recent visit of Plymouth Woman's Club to the Arche Club of that place:
"On the afternoon of February 8, the Plymouth Woman's Club brought a program to Wayne. The Arche Club met with their guests in the congregational church. The meeting was called to order at two o'clock and Mrs. Hossie extended a gracious welcome to the Plymouth Ladies, the president of the Plymouth Club responding. After the singing of 'America' the meeting was turned over to the visiting ladies, who furnished a most charming and instructive afternoon.
The piano duets rendered by Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Tighe were much enjoyed while the Jaques quartette was a real treat. Two very delightful papers were read by Mrs. D. D. Nagle and Mrs. George Smith.
"After the program the Arche Club served a dainty luncheon to their guests, and a pleasant social hour followed."

LIBRARY NEWS

The circulation last Saturday, was 125, the largest Plymouth library has had in one day.
Miss Dawson and Miss Winning of Detroit, visited the library last week Tuesday, bringing with them the cards for the catalog and a whole box of western stories.
The February numbers of St. Nicholas, Ladies Home Journal, Pictorial Review, Atlantic and Century have arrived. The latter contains such articles as, "Is America fit to join the league?" by Francis Hacklett; "Family Letters of Jane Welsh Carlyle;" "The Mexican Renaissance," by Ernest Gruening, and other articles by such writers as M. E. Ravage, Floyd Dell and R. Roland, as well as book reviews, financial investment department and other regular departments.

EPISCOPAL NOTES

Bishop Page paid his first visit to Plymouth, last Sunday evening, and the little church building was crowded—every available seat was occupied. A number of people stood the whole service through at the end of the church, and several had to return home, being unable to gain admittance. The bishop preached a very impressive sermon from Matthew 23:9, 10. During the offering, Miss Pollock, in her usual excellent rendering, sang the solo, which was appreciated by all present. Frank Henderson drove into Detroit to fetch the bishop, and also drove him back again after the service. The congregation appreciate this attention of Frank's.
The Ladies Guild will meet next Wednesday afternoon, the 27th, at the home of Mrs. Sidney Strong on Penniman avenue.
Service next Sunday in the church will be at 10 o'clock. Everybody welcome.
The label on your paper tells how your subscription stands.

THE THEATRE

"THE WHITE ROSE"

Motion picture patrons of England will very likely find in D. W. Griffith's new production "The White Rose," a more or less British effort in view of the fact that the two leading roles are essayed by Ivor Novello and Miss Mae Marsh. The latter has been working in English films for some time before returning to the Griffith banner.

Just before sailing from London to rejoin Mr. Griffith and appear in his new work, Miss Marsh had completed in England two pictures, "Paddy-the-Next-Best-Thing," and another. Novello is well-known on the London stage, in English films and as a writer of songs and musical comedies.

Miss Marsh essays in "The White Rose," a United Artists release booked for Sunday and Monday, February 24 and 25 at the Penniman Allen Theatre, the role of an orphan girl, and Novello will be seen as the son of a wealthy Southern family. Novello's characterization has to do with a youth who is sent into the ministry by his people and far away from the girl he loves.

Particular attention has been paid by Mr. Griffith to the scenic or photographic settings for the episodes of this new work. He traveled all through the southern part of the United States to obtain proper atmosphere, specimens of architecture and tangled old estate gardens that are rare in other sections.
In addition to Mr. Novello and Mae Marsh there will be seen in leading roles Miss Carol Dempster, Charles Emmett Mack, Neil Hamilton, Lucille LaVerne, Porter Strong, Erville Alderson, Herbert Sutch and others.

"RED LIGHTS"

A mystery photoplay of unusual type is Goldwyn's "Red Lights," directed by Clarence G. Badger from the Edward Rose play, "The Bear Car," in which Richard Bennett and Taylor Holmes were starred. In it a half-crazed inventor discovers a means by which he can project his voice by using red lights. He makes use of his discovery to terrify the abducted daughter of his brother who had won the girl both men loved. The girl hears mysterious warnings and threats issuing from balls of red light which hover about her room in the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles and on the Overland Limited on which she is traveling back to her father. The girl escapes death at the hands of Ezra Carson, her uncle, and Kirk Allen, an unscrupulous lawyer, through the intervention of the "crime deflector" whom her lover, John Blake, has engaged to protect her.

The picture contains thrill upon thrill of a most surprising kind. To tell them in advance would take away from one's enjoyment of the film. The melodramatic pseudo-scientific story contains much comedy, but it is through its attacks upon the spines of the audience that it reaches its highest point. Nothing so thrilling, it is stated, has been done in films before. The "crime deflector" is a new sort of detective who prevents crime.

The cast is a most capable one. Raymond Griffith acts the part of the crime deflector, Marie Prevost that of the abducted daughter of a railroad magnate about whom all the mysterious and thrilling events center. Others in the cast are Alice Lake, Johnnie Walker, Dagmar Godowsky, William Worthingham, Frank Elliott, Lionel Belmore, Jean Horsholt, Charles B. Murphy and Charles B. West, not to speak of a gorilla which appears as itself.

"Red Lights" will be seen at the Penniman Allen theatre on Wednesday evening, February 27.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Conklin were in Plymouth Friday, and called on Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Sayles. Mr. Sayles is improving so that he is now able to walk about a little.

Miss Laura Kraft was a Wayne visitor Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry N. Hanson of Detroit, were Sunday afternoon callers at Fred Meyer's.

The L. A. S. meeting, scheduled for February 22nd, at Ed. Lyke's, has been postponed indefinitely because of the injury to Mr. Lyke's son, Ralph.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Kirk and Mrs. Walter Darden of Detroit, were Sunday callers at James Court's.

Carl Kuhl's little driving horse, Prince, was very sick the past week. Dr. Drury of Ypsilanti was called to attend him.

The children of the Free Church school enjoyed a sleigh-ride party to the home of their teacher, Mrs. Meyers, where they had supper and a Valentine box, Thursday evening.

Rev. Priebeard is driving a new coach.

The Willing Workers held a bake sale at the home of Mrs. Henry Martin on Adams Street, Ypsilanti, Saturday afternoon. The proceeds go to benefit their church. Mrs. Arthur Union from here, attended.

Mrs. Wm. Rooke and daughter, Ida, called on Mrs. Peter Furlong Saturday.

R. A. Trowbridge was a Dearborn business visitor Wednesday.

Little Howard Mosher is able to be up and around again. Sunday, he and his older brother, LeRoy, celebrated their 10th and 15th birthdays with a dinner, in which Wm. and Johnny MacFarlane and Charles Trowbridge participated.

Howard, during his illness, has received a lot of post cards and also a lovely plant from the teacher and school children.

Harry Morgan and family visited at James Burrell's at Cherry Hill, Sunday.

Mrs. Frank King spent Sunday night in Ypsilanti, with her sister, Mrs. Miller.

Don't forget the date, February 22nd, and place, the Superior town hall. The box social and dance for the benefit of the Free Church school.

Fred Meyers has had a radio installed lately, and they have heard Pres. Coolidge in one of his addresses.

Walter Linguna and daughter, Marion, of Detroit, were Friday visitors at Fred Zimmerman's.

Mrs. Henry Priebe spent one day last week in Detroit, shopping and calling on friends.

BAPTIST NOTES

Sunday was the last day we expect to worship in the church parlors.

The pastor's morning sermon was "Living in the Presence of God." To be directed, counseled, sustained, surrounded by his presence. A life hid with Christ in God."

The Sunday-school was in good spirit Sunday. The lesson study for the day brought out many questions. It always pays to study the Bible, and see how God deals with men in all ages. The superintendent urged all scholars to be on hand next Sunday, and ask others to come as its a Rally Sunday, and we go back upstairs.

The B. Y. P. U. held their social last Saturday evening, and those who were there had a good time.

The regular meeting on Sunday evening, was well taken care of. The subject was "Sin and its Effect on Character." The topic was well handled from all sides, the illustrations and definitions given about "sin" and "character" being worthy of mentioning. The meeting was in charge of Ira Kingsley's division.

They expect to have some special part in the service next Sunday evening, giving a brief account of the B. Y. P. U. since its organization.

Next Sunday will be re-opening day at the church, after having been closed for some weeks to redecorate and repair seats, place new carpets and other things. Every Baptist in Plymouth is urged to come and enjoy the day. Not only Baptists are invited, but all who will come will receive a hearty welcome. Let's make it a praise and thanksgiving, a day of jubilee. Special music by the choir.

FORD INDUSTRIES EMPLOY 162,792

Henry Ford employs 162,792 men in his major industries, it was announced recently by the Ford Motor company.

Of this number, 121,214 are employed in manufacturing plants in the United States, with the Highland Park plant leading, a total of 68,265 being employed there. Employees in foreign lands total 11,028, and 24,323 are employed in American branches.

An increase of 14,000 more men at the River Rouge plant over last year is reported. There are 41,810 employed there as compared with 28,000 in January in 1923. More than 12,000 are employed in the foundry alone.

On the D. T. & I. railroad, 2,525 are employed, in the coal mines there are 2,282; at the Ford trade school 720, and at the Henry Ford hospital 792.

IN MEMORIAM

In ever loving memory of Private Vernon Henderson, who died in the service of his country, February 19, 1918.

The sweetest of memories is all that is left.

Of a dear son and brother, one of the best; Remembrance is sweet, though sad to recall, He was loved by us and respected by all.

Butterfly Perfume.

It has long been known that many butterflies and moths have scent glands that emit delicate and pleasing odors. A well known example here in America is that of the monarch butterfly. A government naturalist describes the perfume of some of the characteristic English butterflies, which is interestingly likened to the odors of well known English flowers. A distinctive and characteristic perfume is probably selected by each species. That this is so is supported by the records that the moths of the large garden white butterfly diffuse a faint but delicious scent of balsam or lemon, those of the small white Pieris repae shed an aroma of thyme and from the green-veiled white Pieris nani there emanates a faint but delightfully odoriferous perfume resembling that of the lemon verbena. Other butterflies, according to their kind, diffuse other odors, as sweetbrier, honeysuckle and other choice perfumes, which are sometimes so strong as to be perceptible to the blunter senses of mankind.

Bought and Paid For.

Pedro, a Mexican, had been hired to drive a coal wagon in Los Angeles. He made the delivery all right, but after the wagon was empty he went into the kitchen, plumped himself in a chair and refused to budge. Finally the police were called and Pedro was taken to the station and his employer sent for. "What's the idea?" demanded the coal dealer. "Why didn't you come back after you delivered the coal?" "I no know I can come back," wailed Pedro. "I thought I was sold with the coal; you wretched me with it, senior!" —Los Angeles Times.

The American Way.

"In England they run horse races the other way around the track," says the Howard Courier. "But don't laugh at it. That was the old way before America got in. We were the folks who changed the style. Who remembers how the Romans used to run the chariot races? They raced on round tracks before the British did. The famous picture of Ben Hur's chariot race shows him going around the American way."

Fighting With Fame.

"Why do you insist on nibbling around that hook?" said the wise fish "you realize the danger?" "Yes," replied the little fellow, "but we all have a certain appetite for glory. I am willing to take a chance for the sake of being described to that man's friends as the big fish that got away." —Washington Star.

Unexpected Grandeur.

"What do you think about this third year?" "I don't know it was that big!" exclaimed Farmer Comstapel. "How big do you mean?" "Big enough to think about." —Washington Star.

If mothers of Plymouth must teach their boys that money isn't everything, then they should not feel it applied if they take a job in a bank instead of learning to be bankers.

There is a great deal said these days in criticism of the Volstead Act. Has prohibition failed? Would you like to see the legalized liquor traffic and the open saloon back again, making human wrecks by the thousands, causing men to sacrifice the lives of their children if they could but satisfy their desire for drink? If you have been thinking carelessly about this matter be sure you see the "Country Minister" at the High school, March 14th. The third scene of that play may cause you to decide that we had better not go back to the days when we, as a nation, were responsible because we legalized the liquor traffic.

STATE NEWS IN BRIEF

Kalamazoo—Mrs. Mildred C. Driesbach has resigned from the office of city clerk after having been in the employ of the city for more than 18 years.
Port Huron—A new package freight service will be established in the spring on the Great Lakes as a result of completed negotiations announced here. The purchase of three vessels and options on two other ships has also been reported.
Lansing—Twenty-one tuberculosis workers from all parts of Michigan have registered for the three weeks' course of training the first ever attempted in this state, given by the Michigan Tuberculosis association at its office in Lansing.
Waterloo—Urbah Leonard celebratory his nineteenth birthday anniversary recently on the farm where he and his wife have lived 54 years. The event was made the occasion for a belated celebration of the couple's sixty-eighth wedding anniversary.
Lansing—The Democratic state organization has indicated that it plans to name a man and a woman state committeemen from each district and at large in the coming Presidential primary. Heretofore only one committeeman, usually a man has been chosen.
Battle Creek—Allen D. Hart, former municipal judge, died here recently after several years' illness. For many years he was a passenger-conductor on the Grand Trunk and later was yard master. He served two terms as judge and was re-elected though a Democrat, in a Republican city.
Fremont—Physicians from a part of the county meeting here, recently, organized the Nowaygo Medical association and elected the following officers: President, Dr. H. A. Brady, of Nowaygo; vice-president, Dr. Lambert Gerlings, of Fremont; secretary-treasurer, Dr. W. H. Barnum, of Fremont.
Monroe—Miss Lydia Schmeling, Red Cross nurse of Monroe, has just received bronze medal from the Polish Red Cross in recognition of her work in Poland for two years following the war. Miss Schmeling took an active part in the reconstruction work during that period. The medal was received through Mrs. Ina Jasnoska, of Warsaw.
Lansing—The state administrative board sent a request for $55,000 to remodel the industrial building and construct a chapel at the industrial school for boys, to the industrial committee. It has approved a plan submitted by Mayor Donohue, of Lansing, to open Saginaw street through the industrial school grounds to make a more direct route for M-16, the Detroit-Grand Rapids trunk line highway.
Cassopolis—The county board ordered one section of the new Cassopolis Farm Products Co-operative association's warehouse and damaged apples and vines stored in the other two sections. The cold storage plant, containing 30,000 bushels of apples, was saved. The other section, containing 15,000 bushels of apples, was damaged slightly and about 300 bushels of rotting fruit. The total loss is estimated at $20,000.
Lansing Gov. Alex. J. Groesbeck has announced that the so-called "Segregation Plan" has been adopted as an active principle of prison administration in Michigan and that by way of the first step in instituting it, he will order the transfer of inmates from the Lonia and Jackson to the State Prison at Marquette. The transfer will take place, he said, as soon as health conditions have been installed in the Marquette cell block.
Traverse City—A telephone call from Coroner E. B. Minor, recently, that a man was afloat on a cake of ice in Grand Traverse bay sent Officer Harry McGarry and Captain Harry Copeland of the fire department on a dangerous trip through floating ice. The two men saw the victim and set out in a frail boat. Occasionally they could see an arm wave from the ice cake. Just a few minutes before they reached their goal the "man" flew away. He was only a pair of bald eagles.
Grand Rapids—Abandonment of the east and west side power canals, construction of a sluice 200 feet wide to carry off water dammed by the high retaining wall, providing power facilities, and paving of that portion of the river bed vacated by the improvement to provide automobile parking space, has been suggested at a conference of city officials, representatives of the Consumers Power Co., and the owners of the East Side Power Canal Co. A move ment has been inaugurated to eliminate the canals.
Lansing—The state administrative board has requested the public utilities commission to submit a report on the condition of the Detroit, Bay City & Western railway. The company recently asked the state to remit taxes amounting to about $90,000. The attorney general's department investigated and found, it was reported, that there was no assurance that the road would continue in operation even if the taxes were cancelled. A petition therefore was filed in federal court seeking to require payment of the taxes.

Lansing—The state supreme court recently ruled that boards of education are virtually supreme in administering the affairs of the public schools.
Charlotte—The Baptist church was recently destroyed by fire of unknown origin causing a loss, according to estimates, of $6,000. The structure will be rebuilt.
Ann Arbor—Thirty-three members of the scientific faculties of the University of Michigan have been elected to membership in the Junior Research society.
Lansing—In spite of the thinning ranks of the veterans of the Civil war, there were 50 members of the G. A. R. and W. R. C. at their annual meeting here recently.
Lansing—The Rev. H. A. Webster, of Madistone, has accepted a call to the Alpena Baptist Church. He takes the place of the Rev. J. M. Compton, resigned, who has gone to Wayne.
Marshall—Some farmers' wells near here have gone dry as the result of the construction of the Nottawa Creek drain which also lowered the level of several lakes. This drain cost $237,445.
Battle Creek—The veteran bureau's $2,500,000 psychiatric hospital now under construction at Camp Cluster will be ready for occupancy by July 1, has been announced by Captain A. F. Dersheimer, construction quartermaster.
Ann Arbor—Harry D. Hoey, of Youngstown, O., a senior literary student of the University of Michigan has been appointed managing editor of the Michigan Daily official student newspaper, by the board in control of student publications.
Lansing—Despite the fact that Michigan's geological history records the occurrence of numerous earthquakes in this state in the past, no alarm need be felt that any serious disturbance will take place in the future, according to R. A. Smith, state geologist.
Carleton—There are indications of considerable glass rock sand in certain localities in Ash Township, according to reports here that drillers operating for the Ford Motor Co. had struck 67 feet of pure white glass sand rock in a hole. During the drilling a steel casing is used.
Pontiac—Oakland County supervisors called to adopt the ordinance prepared by the board of supervisors of the county road commission which designated State and county trunk highways as through streets and would have compelled all vehicles to stop or enter them. The vote on the measure was 13 to 10 and it required 18 votes, or a majority of the board to pass it.
Flint—Four Michigan veterans have accepted commissions in the officers' reserve corps, according to announcement by the war department. They are Howard R. Coggins, Flint, second lieutenant, field artillery; Ray F. McDonnell, Lansing, first lieutenant, quartermaster corps; Ivan W. Swift, Lansing, second lieutenant, field artillery; James L. Parkhurst, Flint, second lieutenant, infantry.
Ann Arbor—The proposed Michigan Archaeological society, discussed in scientific circles for the last year, was organized at a meeting called recently at Ann Arbor. The purpose of the society, according to professors of the University of Michigan, will be to study and preserve pioneer relics as well as pre-historical specimens left by the Indians and the pre-historic inhabitants of Michigan.
Muskegon—The old spoil-down is to become a feature of the work in the Muskegon grade schools. Miss Marjorie Kline, assistant superintendent of the schools, says she feels that the children of today are good spellers as their parents. She believes that to correct the fault, is by starting the spelling bees "spelling today" in the schools is a mechanical process, says Miss Kline. "The contest will be between classes from the various schools."
Marquette—What probably is a new record for winter motoring in the Upper Peninsula was completed recently when Frank Marlowe, of this city, completed a trip from Ironwood to Marquette, which required two days and a half. The distance is 67 miles. Marlowe encountered snow drifts as high as five feet, but managed to force the car through on its own power. He refused offers of assistance by drivers of horses along the road, but had to make good use of a shovel.
Traverse City—The first official act of Judge Frederick W. Mayne, who retired at the end of last year in favor of Judge Farm C. Gilber in the Thirteenth Judicial Circuit, was to render a decree establishing the water level of Lake Leelanau to be observed by the Leland Power Co., a case which was started in 1903 and which was dragged through numerous hearings and new trials since then. Judge Mayne fixed the maximum and minimum water level one foot and two inches apart.
Detroit—During the last 10 years, the public debt of Michigan State, counties, and municipalities combined, has increased, 503 per cent. It is set forth in figures, issued by the Department of Commerce in 1912. Michigan's total debt was $59,996,825. In the following decade it increased to $361,778,549. The per capita obligation jumped from $20.43 to $94.04. The Government figures show that expenditures of the counties were the chief factor in this increase. The counties piled up their debt burden 727 per cent.

SAYS DOLLAR IS WORTH ONLY 63 CENTS

(Special dispatch by your own druggist)

Financial men say that our dollar today is worth only 63 cents as compared with the dollar of 1913. But today's dollar will still buy you a $1.00 bottle of original Vinol, the world's greatest tonic for those who are weak and rundown. All prices are high these days but if you are weak and easily tired, don't enjoy your food or rest, take a dollar's worth of original Vinol. This wonderful strength-giving tonic has helped millions of run down, discouraged people back to health and happiness. We have the same genuine original Vinol you used to get before the war. Your dollar spent for this wonderful, delicious tonic will be wisely invested. Your health is too precious to gamble with. Get well and stay well—no guarantee every bottle of original Vinol.

SCHOOL NOTES

Grade notes and boys' games were written by Ione Kelley; High school notes and girls' game were written by Dorothy Finlan.

BOYS' GAMES

In spite of poor basket shooting on the part of both teams, Plymouth's second team boys defeated Ypsilanti's second team boys on the home floor last Wednesday, February 13th, by a score of 15 to 6. Hickey and Holcomb, Plymouth's guards, each made six points, and Ambrus, center, one point. Referee—Mr. Coatta.

Score at end of half, 10 to 1. The line-up for Plymouth—Caruthers, I. F.; Grigware, R. F.; Hickey, T. G.; Holmes, I. G.; Ambrus, C. Substitutions—Reiman for Grigware; Grigware for Caruthers; Caruthers for Holcomb; Cummins for Reiman.

Because Northville was tied for first place in the Suburban League, she keenly felt her defeat at the hands of Plymouth's boys here, Friday, February 15, by a score of 17 to 15.

At the beginning, Plymouth forged ahead, and at the end of the half the score was 10 to 4 in our favor. But when the second half started Northville came back with a strong offensive attack, and at the end of the third quarter, Plymouth was only three points in the lead. Northville continued to score, and with two minutes left to play, the score was 15 to 15, each team trying desperately to break the tie. The crowd went wild when Stevens made a long field basket, winning the game for Plymouth. Coach Coatta was well pleased with the work of the team, if they continue at this rate they are bound to finish near the top. Cline made 2 field baskets, Doudt 1, Kenyon 1, and Stevens 2. From the free throws, Cline made 2, Stevens 2, and Doudt 1.

The line-up for Plymouth—Cline, R. F.; Doudt, I. F.; Kenyon, C.; Stevens, T. G.; Holmes, I. G. Referee—Mr. Dickie Michigan State Normal College.

GIRLS' GAME

Success was on our side Friday night, when the home team defeated the Northville team here with a score of 46 to 36. The auditorium was filled, and both teams were well supported. Northville made three baskets during the first quarter. The Plymouth girls were excited at the beginning of the game but managed to have a score of 27 to 19 at the end of the half. The fouls were equally divided, but Northville made more free throw baskets than did Plymouth. The referee was Miss O. Bunts, and the linesman, Mr. Dickie, both from the Michigan State Normal College.

The line-up was as follows—M. Amrhein, F. I. Bird, I. F. G. Bird, J. C. J. England, I. G. Substitutes—White for Amrhein; Hake for Bolton; Caldwell for England.

Up to the present date, Plymouth has first place. Redford, Dearborn and Northville are tied for second place.

GRADE NOTES

Two new pupils, Viola Grabman, Ypsilanti, and Ann Louise Asche, Texas City, entered the third grade.

Because of excellent work, Marian Gust was promoted from 4B to 5B, and Stephen Harvath was promoted from 4A to 5A.

The pupils of this grade are making patriotic books for their February language work.

The 6A pupils are having a spelling contest in which those with perfect lessons are given stars, with a prize at the end of the year.

The Seniors set the example for sleigh-ride parties. The Sophomores enjoyed their sleigh-ride last Monday night. They went as far as Warren avenue, and returned to Marian Beyer's house where they were served with a light lunch. The following night the Juniors went to Newburg where they had use of the hall for the evening. A light lunch was served, and they returned home shivery but happy. The poor Freshmen had their sleigh-ride Thursday night. On their way back from Newburg, a runner broke and they hiked home.

The English 10 class has started the study of the Merchant of Venice. The local Orator and Declamation contest will be held here March 7. Representatives from Plymouth will be chosen at that time.

With four boys entertaining with cross-fire jokes, and a Valentine box, the Aggie Club enjoyed a good time last Wednesday, at their Valentine party.

Thea Peck and Virginia Giles gave Yankee Doodle clog at Salem, last Friday night, as an entertainment for the play, "Star Bright."

Last Saturday funds were solicited by means of tag day, for the furniture and shelving at the Wayne County Library. High school girls gave up part of their Saturday, and by early evening about one hundred and fifty dollars were taken in. The following deserve credit for this showing: Blanche Freeman, Irene Truesdell, Camilla Fisher, Doris Rittenhouse, Elizabeth Simcock, Elsie White, Dorothy Finlan, Helen Fish, Bernice Cline, Bertha Lafae, Ruth Allison, Katherine Wilcox, Hazel Motz, Thelma Swegles, Janette Ozanne, ValDee Caughey, Ilo Hague, Ruth Waterman, Esther Vickery, Dorothy Watson, Barbara Bake, Grace Lee, Mae Beckett, Alice Hathaway, Vern Hoisington, Henrietta Hondorp, Julia Learned.

The Girl Scouts showed their metal when they killed, plucked and dressed the chickens used for their supper at the Presbyterian church last Thursday. The girls gave the supper as part of their scout work, preparing the meal themselves.

GOHAMITE DISCOVERS TWO KINDS OF INDIANS

Easterner Given Big Surprise on Visit to Oklahoma.

Oklahoma has Indians as well as "Injuns." Ben Eastman has learned to his satisfaction. From "Hill ole N' Yawk" came Ben with a line of full clothing samples intended to loosen the purse strings of local Wannabes and delight the eyes of Muskogee "loungers."

Someone had told him about the educational institution for Indians out at Bameo and accordingly, Eastman embarked on a Muskogee car with the firm intention of viewing the "scaly hunting reddin'" at close range and getting some first hand "info."

"How? Heap fine topic," said Eastman by way of introducing himself. As he approached Henry Owe, a swarthy Creek, at the same time pointing to the recently completed Jennetta Barnhart hall.

"Spokum pipe peace," the tender-foot continued as he offered Henry a cigarette.

Henry disdainfully declined the "fag" and reluctantly took Eastman's proffered hand. Finally he said:

"Sir, the language you speak is neither Creek nor Latin. Your words convey no message to me. Just what you are attempting to say, I know not. Please confine your remarks to the English language, if you speak it, and possibly I may be able to understand you."

Abashed but still determined, the disgraced Benjamin made Henry a hurried "an revoir" and started across the campus.

Johnny Beaver was emerging from the dining hall as Eastman appeared. The latter was all set for an hour's conversation.

"A wonderful institution you have here," Eastman informed Johnny in his second attempt to make the acquaintance of an honest-to-goodness red man.

"I'm sure I'd enjoy living here myself. How old are you? How long have you been here? Where do you live? To what tribe do you belong?" Eastman inquired in chronological order.

"Hot like h—l. Want sleep. Nu want pay-woov. You too much want know, Beatum," replied the aggravated Johnny.

All of which probably accounts for Eastman catching the next street car back to Muskogee and his hurried departure for New York.—Daily Oklahoman.

Wild Horses of Argentina.

When the gauchos of Argentina have broken in a wild horse and given it its first lesson in dealing with man, they do not always trouble to take the novice to the stable, knowing that they will easily find it again and capture it when they like; they just let it return to the troop from which it had been taken. The poor beast, after its first introduction, is covered with scars and lacerations, and is often found dead.

An American Duel.

One of the duels that the late James F. Smith is believed to have fought was an American duel, when in the middle of the century, a man with a beard and a few locks to denote which should show himself. A was the angry man, and without a word he rushed into the next apartment to carry out the purpose of self-destruction. It and the second very quickly moved by the tragedy of the situation, remained in listening attitude. At last the pistol was heard and they were shuddering with emotion and remorse, when suddenly in rushed the supposed dead man, triumphantly exclaiming: "Missed by heaven!"

The Poor Fish.

A druggist who had on display an assortment of goldfish in small globes received a call from a very precise lady, who carefully inspected the array and then placed an order. "Do you deliver it?" she asked. "Oh, yes." "Very well. Please deliver the fish and the globe. I will not put you to the trouble of delivering the water, as I have plenty of that at home."

Mythological Characters.

An Englishman said to his chum: "Lend me 5 shillings, old fellow. I am going to a swell masquerade ball tonight. Only mythological characters will be allowed and I must rent a costume." "I guess I can scrape up 5 shillings," admitted his friend. "What character are you going as?" "King Midas."

A Difficult Task.

It was bedtime for four-year-old Jack, but the little fellow wanted to stay up later. His aunt, who tipped the scales at nearly 200 pounds, said: "Why, Jack, think of me—I am ever so much older than you, and I go to bed with the chickens!" Jack looked at her size, and said: "Well, I don't see how you ever got up on the roost!"

TELLS OF RATS ON SHIPS

An Old Salt of the British Navy Writes Interesting Yarn About Rodents and Roaches.

An old salt of the British navy, Paymaster Capt. G. H. A. Willis, has been writing some amusing reminiscences. Like all seamen, he has something to say about the rats and roaches that are an inevitable part of the passenger list of any ship.

The Hibernia, he says, swarmed with cockroaches, a large black variety that I was told had been brought by a ship from the East India station. They gnawed the backs of books and nibbled the edges of razors, much to the annoyance of their owners. Why they nibbled razors I do not know, but was told that the steel assisted their digestive function of towels.

Rats also abounded, as they did in all ships in those days, and used to run across the beams and over the huge reel from which the lamp hung in the masts. The animals were cunning and gave a great deal of trouble by gnawing through pipes in the hope of getting water or by forcing their way into water carafes. Their continual search for water gave us much trouble later on in the Liverpool.

Our ration of both water and that ship was placed in tall cylindrical cans in the after tiler that, duly lit by one lamp. Mornings some cans near the after end were constantly found only half full. They were suspected, and the sentry on the hatchway leading down to the flat was threatened with punishment; but still the water disappeared and always during the middle watch. At last the sentry of that watch was summoned. He promptly called in as a witness a cell prisoner from the tiler flat, who declared that rats in hundreds came to the cans. He said that while one stood on his hind legs with paws against the can, another climbed up, balanced himself on the edge, and, using his long tail as a fishing rod, dipped it in and out of the water, so that the precious fluid trickled from his tail into the mouths of a continuous procession of thirsty rats. The dipping in and out continued till the water was too low to be reached in this manner; then the process was repeated at another can.

On another occasion, in the Hibernia, we wanted to burn some papers in our stove, which had not been used for some time. Scarcely had we lit them when about a dozen rats of all ages and sizes that had taken up their winter quarters inside the stove fled precipitately up the funnel. As the funnel led through the mess port and over the bottom of the accommodation ladder, they fell overboard in a sudden stream into the captain's galley, where in cocked hat and gaiters he was standing off to attend a court-martial. He can hardly have arrived in a judicial frame of mind.—Cornhill Magazine.

Strength of Plywood.

Plywood is made of a variety that has been cut by a machine into thin layers and glued together in such a way that the grain of one layer runs at an angle to the grain of two adjacent layers. The strength of a plywood panel, of two planes, greatly exceeds that of solid wood. With the same wood, by combining them, it is even possible to get greater resistance to stress in all three planes than steel offers, although it is rarely necessary to construct in this way. Ordinary wood used for airplane construction is not required to withstand severe stress in more than two planes. What plywood means to airplane construction is well illustrated in the case of the Haviland machine. Before that method of using wood was invented the best airplane wing weighed 750 ounces and was capable of sustaining a load of only 10 pounds. Since then the plywood rib used on the Haviland machine weighs 512 ounces and will carry a load of 274 pounds.

Prevent Growth of Horns.

Preventing the growth of horns on cattle, says the United States Department of Agriculture, is much more satisfactory than cutting them off later, and is much less painful to the animal. The method of prevention is simple. As soon as the budding horns of the calf can be felt as small "bumps" they may be stopped by clipping off the hair over them and rubbing the spot with a moistened stick of caustic potash, which has been wrapped in paper to protect the hands from burning. The caustic must not be moistened enough so that it will run, for it will remove the hair and cause unnecessary irritation. A spot about the size of a dime directly over the "bump" should be made raw by rubbing with the caustic stick. Calves must be protected from rain to keep the caustic from running over the face.

A New Kind of Loan.

A debtor, on being sued, acknowledged that he had borrowed the money, but declared that the plaintiff knew at the time that it was a Kathleen Mavrousen loan.

"A Kathleen Mavrousen loan?" questioned the magistrate, with a puzzled look.

"That's it, your honor—one of the 'it may be for years, and it may be for ever' sort."

Asked and Answered.

"How much should I get," the poet asked, "for a poem of 100 verses on a big subject?"

And the editor replied: "You ought to get two years and six months."

Sending by "Bottle Post."

A bottle from the hydrographic office, containing a slip of paper on which was recorded the fact that it was dropped from a ship in latitude 12 degrees 7 minutes north, longitude 76 degrees 53 minutes west, which is in the Caribbean sea about 300 miles northeast of Cristobal, was recovered at Galea Island, seven miles northeast of Cristobal. It had traveled 200 miles in 12 days, about one mile an hour.

NEWBURG

The pastor, Rev. Paul Haven, preached a splendid sermon last Sunday, giving the young men and young women such excellent advice on how to make a success of their lives. There were fifty-two in attendance at Sunday-school. Mrs. L. Davey's class of boys is still ahead in the Race to San Francisco. A short program was given by Mrs. Clyde Smith's class.

Gettysburg Address—Charlotte Leonard.

All Honor to Lincoln—Edna Leonard.

My Captain, Lincoln—Edith Schmiede.

Also extracts from a sermon preached by Rev. Seth Reed, who is 101 years old, after the assassination of Lincoln, read by the Sunday-school superintendent, Mrs. Donald Ryder.

There were thirty-two at the Epworth League. Mrs. M. Eva Smith gave an interesting talk on the exhibition of wood carving and weaving done by members of the Passion Players in Detroit, which she saw last week.

Next Sunday evening, there will be two missionary classes, taking up the study of Japan.

There were forty-two in attendance at the L. A. S. meeting held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Geer last week. An unusual number of men were present, and did ample justice to the nice dinner served at noon. Valentines were used as favors. A Lincoln program was given: Singing, "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," a Lincoln story, read by Mrs. Metta Gansolly, and poem by Mrs. Clemens. Some work was accomplished in the way of making stocking dolls.

Mrs. Ryder having charge of the work for a children's booth. Mrs. Mae Stevens was appointed as chairman of the fancy and apron booth.

Mesdames Leavensworth, Hansen and Munroe of Novi, and Mrs. Love of Perrinsville, were visitors. Mrs. Munroe told of the work they were doing, giving some good ideas for earning money in the L. A. S. The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Henry Grimm, Sr., in March.

Mrs. T. Davey entertained her Sunday-school class of boys at her home last Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. C. E. Ryder and Mrs. Clyde Smith called on Mrs. Emily LeVan and Mrs. Sarah Hoisington, last Friday, finding Mrs. Hoisington improving from her burns. Newburg friends extend sympathy.

Harvey and Irma Lenhardt of Detroit, spent the week-end with their aunt, Mrs. Henry Grimm, Sr.

Mrs. M. Eva Smith spent Monday and Tuesday at the home of her cousin, Mrs. Eldred.

METHODIST NOTES

Join the Thursday Night Crowd. Dr. Stair speaks next week on "Training in Worship" in the Sunday-school. The Devotional and Study hour are worth the investment of your time for one night a week.

One week from Friday, March 7, Day of Prayer under auspices of Missionary Society.

Attend church next Sunday in honor of him who is the founder of his country. Topic for Sunday night, "The Man Who Blamed Others."

The Epworth League Mission Study Contest is on in full swing. Don't miss the meeting Sunday night.

'STAR BRIGHT'

A three-act Comedy Drama given by the

Plymouth Dramatic Club

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE

PLYMOUTH FIRE DEPARTMENT

Tuesday Eve., Feb. 26

High School Auditorium

The scenes of this play are laid in Mountdale, a village in the Adirondack region. Lemuel Bright and his wife, the Honor, had two daughters, Star and Sunshine. Star, at the age of sixteen, was induced to elope for a coveted stage career, and as a result was disowned by her father.

The opening scenes of the play take place twelve years later, when the same man who induced Star to elope appeared under an assumed name to tempt Sunshine to leave home. The work of Detective Smith is a feature of the play, as well as Jake and Melinda, who furnish plenty of comedy. Each one of the whole cast plays an important part in making the "Bright home" again happy.

As you travel through Holland you will frequently see windmills so small that you will be inclined to think they are toys. Not so. They are sentinels. With vanes outstretched, they are always in the wind and ready to respond just as soon as they are thrown into gear. This is done by a wooden float resting on the water in the ditch beneath.

The rising water lifts the float, and when it reaches a height which threatens to submerge the surrounding fields the machine is thrown into gear, and its revolving wings warn the farmer to start his pumps and keep them going until his truthfully, by coming to rest, tells him that the danger is past.—National Geographic Magazine.

BEAVER A REAL ENGINEER

A healthy increase in the beaver population of the Yellowstone National park is reported from many quarters. Some of the famous old beaver ponds and lodges have been abandoned, but there is new activity in many areas.

A scientific study of beaver begun in former years was continued this year by Edward R. Warren, naturalist of the Roosevelt wild life forest experiment station at Syracuse, N. Y. He has spent the entire summer in the northeastern section of the park, where beaver are especially active. The beaver in that region are as numerous as natural conditions will permit, and a surplus of population has compelled many of the animals to seek new feeding grounds and build new dams and lodges.

The beaver makes his habitat in proximity to aspen groves. In the vicinity of Camp Roosevelt large groves of these trees have been cut down, the bark used as food and the logs for construction purposes. The beaver has been obliged to abandon a famous series of beaver ponds in Lost Creek beside the Cooke City road.

The increasing beaver population is attributed in part to the reduction in number of coyotes and wolves within the park. These predatory animals, great foes of the antelope and baby elk, have been systematically hunted by rangers during recent winters. Mr. Warren suggests a possibility that the beaver population may eventually reach a point where reduction may be necessary. This could be accomplished by trapping beaver families and sending them to other national parks or regions where the restoration of this valuable American animal is being attempted.

Marvelous engineering work of the beaver is described by Mr. Warren in a publication, "The Life of the Yellowstone Beaver." Beaver use four different types of construction, he writes—dams, lodges, burrows and canals. He regards the canal as in many respects the highest engineering achievement. "To deliberately plan and dig a channel in which to float logs to a pond, and not only that, but to build dams in this channel to hold water to a desired level, is an intelligent act." On Tower creek Mr. Warren found two such canals, one ninety feet long and another 130 feet.

Books by the Million.
Have you ever pondered how many books there are in existence? On the average, 200,000 volumes are published each year throughout the world and, as 8,500,000 books appeared last century, one can obtain a fairly good idea of the size of the world's book shop.

Adding together the number of volumes published in each century since printing was invented, the astonishing total of 60,000,000 is reached. The amount of energy, time, paper and printer's ink which have gone to produce all these books is incalculable.

A great many of these publications are each worth more than $5,000, and the total value of the world's book stocks must run into many millions. Stacked together, they would form a full-sized mountain, the ascent of which would take several hours.

The three largest libraries in the world are the British Museum library, which has 4,000,000 volumes; the Bibliotheque Nationale at Paris, which has 3,000,000, and the Library of Congress at Washington, with just 500,000 less. Thus, among them alone these three great institutions possess 9,500,000 books of all kinds.—London Tit-Bits.

THRILLING TUG OF WAR WITH "GATOR"

English Army Officer Has Narrow Escape From Death.

Crocodiles are extraordinary reptiles; men who have had dealings with them tell almost incredible stories about them. As an example we quote from the Wide World Magazine this extract from an article by Lieut. Col. Gordon Casserly:

One afternoon the column halted by the river as usual and prepared to camp. When the men had cleared the ground and set the pickets they fell out to get their food and rest. A captain, unslung his empty water bottle, went to the river to fill it.

At that spot the bank was perhaps four feet high and rose straight up. It curved in a sharp bend, and the water close in shore was shallow. There was no current near the bank, but only a few yards out the deep and mighty stream swept along like a mill race.

The officer knelt on the bank and, lowering the bottle by its long strap, turned his head to speak to a subadar (native company commander) near him. Half a dozen sepoys, some holding their rifles, were standing close by.

Suddenly out of the still water under the bank came a monstrous head, and like a trout rising to a fly a huge crocodile snapped at the white man's outstretched hand. The great jaws closed on it, and in a twinkling the officer was down in the river!

As he fell the astounded soldiers gasped in horror. Then without hesitation two or three leaped in after him. Standing waist deep, they clutched the captain's body and strove to pull him away from the giant reptile, which was backing out into deeper water.

The Englishman, with his hand in the crocodile's mouth, was too dazed to struggle and submitted passively to be pulled this way and that in the grim tug of war. The native officer snatched a rifle from a man beside him and, jumping into the water, fired at the monster at a yard's range. A sepoy followed his example, but neither man thought of aiming at the eyes, and so their shots had no effect; an old crocodile's hide is impenetrable to bullets except in the throat, the belly and behind the shoulders.

The weight and strength of the brute was too much for the united efforts of the men. In vain they dug their heels into the yielding sand and pulled with all their might and main. Slowly, remorselessly, the officer was drawn farther out; the sepoys clinging to him were dragged with him.

The Englishman seemed doomed. The crocodile was swimming now tail foremost out into the swift-racing flood.

Then a miracle happened! When it seemed that nothing could save the man the strong current caught the monster with full force and swept it away, and by a marvelous stroke of luck the officer's hand was torn from its mouth.

The irregular teeth of a crocodile fortunately do not fit close together. So little injured was the captain that after the doctor had bound up his hand he was able to attend to his duties immediately. When his comrades asked what his feeling had been during the terrible ordeal he said:

"I felt nothing. It was as if my hand had been tied to a railway engine that was slowly dragging me through the water painlessly but irresistibly. The power drawing me was so great that there was no question of struggling against it. I simply went with it, that's all. No, I felt no fear or suffering."

Tons of Apple Pomace Wasted.

Thousands of tons of apple pomace are going to waste annually which might profitably be turned into food for wintering cattle. Studies to determine the food value and best methods of utilizing this by-product from commercial cider and vinegar mills have been made. When the moist apple pomace can be used fresh or ensiled it yields a succulent cattle food comparable with corn silage. The quantity that can be used in this way is limited, however, because of the relatively high cost of transportation for material having such a high water content. Its most profitable utilization depends upon its preservation by dehydration and producing it as a commercial food. In feeding trials with dairy cows dried-apple pomace proved to be a palatable feed and appeared to be equal pound for pound of dry matter to good corn silage. The material was fed wet and replaced the corn silage in a ration including grain and hay.

How He Knew.

An Irishman called at a dairy and asked the dairymaid if he could supply him with a dozen eggs laid by a black hen.

The dairymaid was amazed at the Irishman's strange order, but informed Pat that he could pick them out himself.

FOUR VOLCANOES IN BRITAIN

Along the West Coast of Scotland Are the Remains of the Craters.

Whenever any of the volcanoes of Europe show activity, rumor at once credits Bath with lying in an old crater, says a London writer. The cup-like hollow in which the city is built and the hot springs of the spa give color to the story. "Suppose it broke out again," say people with a little thrill of fearful speculation.

But Bath is not in a crater. She lies in a river valley, just as many another city does. All the same, they have volcanoes in Britain, and, geologically speaking, not so very long ago.

Along the west of Scotland are the remains of four volcanoes of comparatively recent activity. They are in Skye (the Coolin Hills), in Mull, in Mull and on Ardsnachra point, and their lava overlies the lava of former eruptions.

Probably these volcanoes rose to about 10,000 feet or as high as Etna. They are but a third of their old height now, owing to the sinking of the continental shelf that was once Atlantis and to the natural process of wearing down that all hills undergo. But at one time they formed a great smoking range, and that at a time when many of the newer rocks of Britain had already been formed.

All this western region, much of it now under the sea, was volcanic. The strange columnar rocks at the Giant's Causeway, in northern Ireland, and at Staffa tell of the lava flow. If you can imagine the cracks, forming geometrical patterns, that you see on the surface of drying mud, extending many feet down, as, indeed, some cracks in the clay seemed to do in the drought of two years ago, then you can understand how these columns were formed in the cooling rock.

Wherever there is igneous rock it is intrusive. That is, it has been thrust up from beneath through other rocks. This means that there has been volcanic action, and by that action many hills in northern and western Britain were built. The form of Dartmoor suggests a breaking through and spreading out of the granite, and Dartmoor was no doubt an early volcano.

But the four hills already mentioned in the west of Scotland seem to be the volcanoes that were most recently active in Britain. It can be so old that he lived in the Atlantis of which the British Islands are but the surviving hills, then he may have seen these four in eruption; but they are dead enough now.

The tale goes that volcanic activity in the far parts of the world is sometimes reflected in a disturbance of the waters of Loch Ness, among the Scotch lochs; and hereabouts, no doubt, there is a weak point in the crust of the earth; but probably the most adventurous-minded of Britain cannot dare to expect to see eruptions in Britain again.

As he fell the astounded soldiers gasped in horror. Then without hesitation two or three leaped in after him. Standing waist deep, they clutched the captain's body and strove to pull him away from the giant reptile, which was backing out into deeper water.

The Englishman, with his head in the crocodile's mouth, was too dazed to struggle and submitted passively to be pulled this way and that in the grating tug of war. The native officer snatched a rifle from a man beside him and, jumping into the water, fired at the monster at a yard's range. A sepoy followed his example, but neither man thought of aiming at the eyes, and so their shots had no effect; an old crocodile's hide is impenetrable to bullets except in the throat, the belly and behind the shoulders.

The weight and strength of the brute was too much for the united efforts of the men. In vain they dug their heels into the yielding sand and pulled with all their might and main. Slowly, remorselessly, the officer was drawn farther out; the sepoy clinging to him were dragged with him.

The Englishman seemed doomed. The crocodile was swimming now tail foremost out into the swift-racing flood.

Then a miracle happened! When it seemed that nothing could save the man the strong current caught the monster with full force and swept it away, and by a marvelous stroke of luck the officer's hand was torn from its mouth.

The irregular teeth of a crocodile fortunately do not fit close together. So little injured was the captain that after the doctor had bound up his hand he was able to attend to his duties immediately. When his comrades asked what his feeling had been during the terrible ordeal he said:

"I felt nothing. It was as if my hand had been tied to a railway engine that was slowly dragging me through the water painlessly but irresistibly. The power drawing me was so great that there was no question of struggling against it. I simply went with it, that's all. No, I felt no fear or suffering."

Tons of Apple Pomace Wasted.

Thousands of tons of apple pomace are going to waste annually which might profitably be turned into food for wintering cattle. Studies to determine the food value and best methods of utilizing this by-product from commercial cider and vinegar mills have been made. When the moist apple pomace can be used fresh or ensiled it yields a succulent cattle food comparable with corn silage. The quantity that can be used in this way is limited, however, because of the relatively high cost of transportation for material having such a high water content. Its most profitable utilization depends upon its preservation by dehydration and producing it as a commercial food. In feeding trials with dairy cows dried-apple pomace proved to be a palatable feed and appeared to be equal pound for pound of dry matter to good corn silage. The material was fed wet and replaced the corn silage in a ration including grain and hay.

How He Knew.

An Irishman called at a dairy and asked the dairymaid if he could supply him with a dozen eggs laid by a black hen.

The dairymaid was amazed at the Irishman's strange order, but informed Pat that he could pick them out himself.

FOUR VOLCANOES IN BRITAIN

Whenever any of the volcanoes of Europe show activity, rumor at once credits Bath with living in an old crater, says a London writer. The cup-like hollow in which the city is built and the hot springs of the spa give color to the story. "Suppose it broke out again," say people with a little thrill of fearful speculation.
But Bath is not in a crater. She lies in a river valley, just as many an other city does. All the same, they have volcanoes in Britain, and, geologically speaking, not so very long ago.

Along the west of Scotland are the remains of four volcanoes of comparatively recent activity. They are in Skye (the Coolin Hills), in Rum, in Mull and on Ardsnamurcha Point, and their lava overflows the lava of former eruptions.

Probably these volcanoes rose to about 10,000 feet or as high as Etna. They are but a third of their old height now, owing to the sinking of the continental shelf that was once Atlantis and to the natural process of wearing down that all hills undergo. But at one time they formed a great smoking range, and that at a time when many of the newer rocks of Britain had already been formed.

All this western region, much of it now under the sea, was volcanic. The strange columnar rocks at the Giant's Causeway, in northern Ireland, and at Staffa tell of the lava flow. If you can imagine the cracks, forming geometrical patterns, that you see on the surface of drying mud, extending many feet down, as, indeed, some cracks in the clay seemed to do in the drought of two years ago, then you can understand how these columns were formed in the cooling rock.

Wherever there is igneous rock it is intrusive. That is, it has been thrust up from beneath through other rocks. This means that there has been volcanic action, and by that action many hills in northern and western Britain were built. The form of Dartmoor suggests a breaking through and spreading out of the granite, and Dartmoor was no doubt an early volcano.

But the four hills already mentioned in the west of Scotland seem to be the volcanoes that were most recently active in Britain. If man be so old that he lived in the Atlantis of which the British islands are but the surviving hilltops, then he may have seen these four in eruption; but they are dead enough now.

The tale goes that volcanic activity in the far parts of the world is sometimes reflected in a disturbance of the waters of Loch Ness, among the Scotch lochs; and herenabouts, no doubt, there is a weak point in the crust of the earth; but probably the most adventurous-minded of Britain cannot dare to expect to see eruptions in Britain again.

Visit Dentist as Last Resort.
Of all differences between the English and Americans, the main one is—teeth! Our friends in England are just a quarter of a century behind us in dental matters. They are just beginning to have toothbrush drills in the public schools. And even yet the English have miles to go before they catch up with us in dental matters. You see many a young woman there who is good looking until she smiles. Then you see very bad teeth or gaping spaces. Many only go to a dentist as a last resort when the pain is too great. And then they don't have the tooth "stopped," which is English for "filled," but have the offending task yanked out. Good business for the dentists who give gas and also for those who specialize in false teeth.

Use Delicate Sieves for Cement.
The delicate wire sieves used for making tests in the mining and cement industries are finer than silk cloth. A sample of silk dress lining contains 81 threads to the inch, a silk handkerchief has 110 threads and an excellent quality silk dress goods has 187. They are all coarser than the standard testing sieve used to determine the fineness of portland cement, as this sieve has 200 wire threads to the inch, or 40,000 holes to the square inch. In wearing the testing sieves, wire finer than a human hair is used. One mile of this wire is needed to weave one square foot of the 200-mesh sieve.

HOW IT FEELS TO BE CALLED GRANDFATHER

Makes You an Old Man Overnight—Joy Comes Later.

On first becoming a grandfather a man has a distinct feeling of shock, with symptoms of collapse. A grandmother in the first flush of her joyful pride pays no heed to the mournful implications of her new dignity, but a man, transformed in a twinkling into a grandfather, thinks of little else. You have hitherto gone your way, blithely humming to yourself in paraphrase of Holmes, "I'm 40, I'm 40; who says I am more?" perhaps cajoling yourself into thinking that you may even yet make a fortune or write a "best seller" or run successfully for congress. But now a small, wavering, pink finger points at you from the nurse's arms and all your dreams dissolve into a gray mist. You are a convicted grandfather, and no grandfather ever yet set the world on fire. You may think your stars if you can go on doing middling well the tasks that you did quite well ten years ago. You have become an old man overnight.

But it is just in that sad realization that the germ lies of a hitherto unguessed happiness—a happiness beyond the experience of adventurous youth. The halcyon days do not come, however, with the birth of the grandchild. Only when after nearly a year the small morsel of humanity begins to distinguish the different members of the family and to exhibit endearing signs of dawning intelligence does the grandfather discover that he still has a place in the sun. Your own sons and daughters have long since come to take you as a matter of course. They are freer with criticisms than with blishments. You suspect that they often enjoy themselves most when you are not with them. You are necessary to no one. Then some morning you awake to find that you are altogether indispensable to the most important, the most adorable member of the household. Every look and gesture of affection on your part is met with outstretched arms and a smile of rapture. You may be shabby, wrinkled, possessing mere vestiges of the teeth and hair with which nature fitted you out long years ago, but the child is as blind to those defects in you as Titania was to the asinine features of the bewitched Bottom. When you attempt to sing your own children may scurry from the room, but your grandchild will listen to you by the half hour and beg for more—something that even your best beloved never did in the most indulgent hours of courtship. And you have found at last an unwearied listener to your twenty-times-told tales. Is it any wonder, then, that grandfathers are the most doting of relatives, that they find an ineffable charm in the companionship of those little ones who know nothing of politics or literature or sport, yet have such a lively common interest with you in the wonders of the natural world?

Experience may warn you that as the years go by these grandchildren, too, like their parents before them, will become sophisticated, that they will find your songs and stories dull, that they will prefer companions of their own age—the hulking heroes of the football field, the light and airy champions of the tennis court. Nevertheless, for a little while yet they reveal to you a new and kinder earth, with heaven a little closer to it than you had ever dreamed. You may know in your heart that the winter of your discontent is approaching, but for the present you bask in a veritable Indian summer of old age.—Youth's Companion.

Male Sea Horse Rears Young.
While most fishes pay little attention to their offspring, merely depositing their spawn in suitable beds and leaving the young fry to care for itself when the eggs hatch, the seahorse is a devoted and painstaking parent. This fish is provided, in fact, with a pouch similar to that of the kangaroo, and in this pouch the eggs are deposited and remain until hatched, and for some time afterward. However, it is the father fish who possesses this convenient receptacle, and not the mother. Once her eggs have been laid the duties of Madam Hippocampus are at an end. It is her spouse who carries the eggs about with him during their period of incubation and until the babies are strong enough to escape from his capacious pocket, which is situated on the abdomen, at the root of his long curving tail.

The Poor Lion.
It was a small circus and carried but one lion, one tiger, one elephant and so on down the list. After the trainer had put the lion through its paces, an elderly woman appeared at the cage door and remarked: "Aren't you afraid that this ferocious beast will attempt to make a meal of you some day?" "To tell the truth, ma'am," confided the trainer, "if business doesn't improve, I'm afraid I shall have to make a meal of this ferocious beast."

A Clam.
The evening party was over and the hostess said to the young man as he was leaving: "I'm afraid you've had rather a dull evening. Miss X is not a brilliant conversationalist." "Brilliant conversationalist?" he said. "Why, the only thing she could say to me was 'No,' and I had to propose to get even that out of her!"

DEER BLEAT BRINGS PANTHER

Guide Given Surprise When Call Brought Doe and Fawn and Also Cougar.

Capt. Randolph B. Marcy, who spent several years beginning with 1849 in exploring the country along the Canadian river, of the Arkansas and the heads of the Brazos, Trinity and Colorado rivers of Texas, tells of his surprise one day when John Bushman, his interpreter, used a "deer-bleat," and not only called a doe to him but a fawn at the heels of the mother, and behind these a huge panther, relates Faunce Rochester. John bagged the panther instead of the doe. The "bleat," believed to have been originated by the Delaware Indians, resembles somewhat the first joint of a clarinet, the brass reed being scraped very thin and nicely adjusted until it reproduces almost exactly the cry of the fawn. They were used during June and July before the deer were their young. The "bleat" can be heard half a mile, and was used near clumps of trees, or brush, where a doe might be lying. As the doe leaves her young after sucking it and goes aside and makes her bed alone, she assumes her offspring is in danger and hastens to its defense. (Surely a sportsman-like way of securing game unless one be starving.)

But the hunter using the "bleat" did not always have it all his own way, and he, like the little mother, sometimes ran a grave risk. For as the cry more precisely imitates that of the fawn the more likely is the panther, wolf or bear to be deceived and rush in to secure a tender feast. The Indians always attributed the survival of deer in a carnivorous country to the absence of any scent left by a fawn until it is old enough to outrun its enemies. When full grown it will leave a scent much stronger than that of almost any other animal.—Adventure Magazine.

Customs of Chunchu Indians.
High in the Andean mountains of Peru, in South America, live the Chunchu Indians. They regard the moon and stars as evil spirits, and when they are shining they get out their tom-toms of deer skin stretched across a hollow log, and pound until sunrise to drive the evil influence away. They formerly went without clothes, but through the persuasion of the Franciscan monks they wear a single friar-like robe, made alike for both sexes, save a difference in the neck opening. When one of their number falls sick, the witch doctors hide a piece of metal and send the children of the tribe to hunt for it. The unlucky finder is punished as being the cause of the sickness. Their marriage ceremony consists of the groom breaking an earthenware jar on the ground, and the bride gathers up the pieces—a token of her submission. These illiterate Chunchos discovered that a certain mosquito bred malaria, and they palated their arms and faces to prevent this mosquito from biting them and giving them the fever which proved so fatal in that country.

Big Trees of California.
As the largest existing organisms, the big trees of California occupy a place unique among the living things of the world. While they may be exceeded in height by some of Australia's gum trees, as they are exceeded in diameter by the chestnut trees of Sicily, in the matter of actual bulk, they are far greater than either of these. Authentic measurements show that California's big trees have reached a diameter of over 36 feet and heights of more than 350 feet and ages well over 3,000 years. Since they do not suffer from diseases and are not seriously injured either by fire or lightning, and since trees apparently do not die of old age, the usual cause of death among the big trees is by the undermining of the root system through the gradual removal of the soil by water.—Scientific American.

Light Refreshments.
For weeks he had been ill in the hospital. With the beginning of convalescence he called loudly for food, declaring he was being starved. "The doctor says you may have something to eat tomorrow," said the nurse, soothingly. "On the morrow she entered and announced: "Here's your dinner." And she gave him a spoonful of tapioca, adding: "The doctor says that everything else you do must be in the same proportion." "Nurse," he gasped, "I want to do some reading now; please bring me a postage stamp."—Everybody's Magazine.

He Wanted to Know.
Prof. George Herbert Palmer of Harvard college says that the masculine habit of rigid, logical reasoning is contracted very early, and in illustration he tells the following story: "A little boy and girl of my acquaintance were tucked up snug in bed when their mother heard them talking. 'I wonder what we're here for?' asked the little boy. The little girl remembered the lessons that had been taught her and replied, sweetly: 'We are here to help others.' The boy snuffed. 'Then, what are the others here for?'"

Only the Scientific Name.
An enterprising tradesman in southeast London is exhibiting this notice in his windows: "Don't let the tinella pellionella get into your homes. I have the remedy." To inquirers he says: "Oh, that is only the scientific name for moths. Can I sell you some camphor balls?"

A Few Cents Does It.

A splendid vaudeville entertainment was given at the High school auditorium, last week, Thursday evening, by Letty Elizabeth Ains of Plymouth, a recent graduate of the E. B. R. School of Acting of Detroit, assisted by several pupils of that school. The program consisted of character monologues, pantomimes, dancing, sketches, etc. Each number was well given and the entire program pleased the large audience present.

The people of Salem, Michigan, were delightfully entertained in their town hall Friday evening, February 15th, by the play, "Star Bright," given by the "Plymouth Dramatic Club." Every character was a decided "hit." Each actor seemed to be just fitted for his part. To say that any one stood out more prominently than the others would be unfair because all acted their parts well. The mirth provoking scenes were delightfully interspersed with the more serious ones. The ladies of the Federated church, for whose benefit the play was given, as well as all who heard it, say: "Come again."

A CARD

Truly, birthdays have their compensations, if they do act as markers to show the flight of time in human life. Such was Arthur Stevens' thought when there descended upon his eighty-third birthday, February 15th, shower of cards and telephone messages not only surprising, but thrillingly pleasant. Kind friends this little avalanche of good will furnishes the occasion of many happy memories for the remaining days which follow. Thank you all, thank you all very much.

LOCAL NEWS

Miss Eva Griffith was a week-end guest of Miss Etha Wiseley in Ypsilanti.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Fallot of South Salem, are the proud parents of a baby boy, born February 18th.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Mettetal of Detroit, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Griffith and family.

Mrs. Will Holmes returned last Saturday from the University hospital, Ann Arbor, where she underwent an operation for tonsils and adenoids. She is staying at present with her sister, Mrs. Emil Schilling on Union street.

The 500 Club met at the home of Mrs. Paul Wiedman, Tuesday. Mrs. William Gayde received first honors, and Mrs. Earl Mastick the consolation. After luncheon, they departed to meet next Tuesday at Mrs. George Cramer's when a pot-luck dinner will be served.

The three act comedy drama, "Star Bright," presented by the Plymouth Dramatic Club, will be given at the High school auditorium on Tuesday evening, February 26, for the benefit of the Plymouth Fire Department. Everybody should see this splendid entertainment and help boost the treasury of the fire department a little. They deserve your support and patronage. The admission has been placed at 35c and 25c.

The members of the 500 Club were entertained by Mrs. Paul Wiedman at her home on Blunk avenue, last week Thursday. Mrs. William Friedman receiving first honors, and Mrs. Fred Ballen the consolation. Luncheon was served. Valentines were given to all, and the guests departed like a crowd of happy children.

THE GYMNASIUM PROPOSITION LOSES.

The special election called to vote on the proposition of bonding for a gymnasium in School District No. 1, E. C. held at the high school building Wednesday afternoon and evening, brought out a large vote. The result was 299 no and 181 yes. The first time the proposition only lost out by 25 votes.

WOMAN'S CLUB

Enthusiasm is the key-note of the Woman's Club nowadays. At the business session Friday afternoon it was learned that the Leap Year Gazette would be out February 25th, the next regular meeting, and copies would be on sale; that many offers of phonograph records for the old ladies at Eloise, will be accepted by the committee, with Mrs. J. B. Pollock as chairman; that every member should be able to explain the Lucretia Mott Amendment to any person not so informed; that every member should influence some one to get books from the library, and make Plymouth as cultured as the reports of other library centers; that the Wayne County League of Women Voters will become real here in March.

The program was under the leadership of Mrs. C. W. Root, who knows how to give an interesting talk and also rouse the others to give of the best. History of Indian music and interpretations as put forth by Thurlow Linnance, was given by Miss Anna Youngs, and a group of Indian songs were given by the Misses Youngs. Mrs. John Patterson described Indian musical instruments; Mrs. Frank Burrows talked about Indian character; Miss Nellie Biddle read a legend of the Creation of Mackinac Island; Mrs. R. E. Cropper sang, "The Land of the Sky Blue Water." Mrs. Frank Parks read a paper concerning Indian influence, and then explained the splendid exhibition of 36 feet of rope of horse hair for keeping away snakes, panose case, war club, skinning knife, moccasins, Navaho blanket (genuine), saddlebags, pipe of peace, feather worn by Medicine Man, doll and basket from Alaskans. Mrs. E. R. Daggett read a paper on the people and country of Denmark. A rising vote of thanks was given Division IX for the valuable instruction and pleasure, which ought to have been shared by every pupil in our school of history of Michigan.

W. C. T. U.

Mrs. Oliver Loomis is hostess for the next meeting of the W. C. T. U., February 28, at her home on West Ann Arbor street. Leader, Mrs. George Smith. The program will consist of:

A Paper, "Can Prohibition be Enforced?"—Mrs. Coello Hamilton.
"Hidden Hand of the Wet Force"—Mrs. George Robinson.
An Original Story, "Influence,"—Mrs. S. C. Hathaway.
Group singing.

Two Piano Selections—Miss Anna Youngs.

COMMUNITY HAPPENINGS

Next Tuesday at 2:00 p. m., at the home of Mrs. Arthur Huston, will occur the February meeting of the North Canton Home Economics group, when dyeing will be discussed.

On Wednesday evening, February 27th, at the same place, the Canton Community Club will convene. A pot-luck supper and a good program. "Dishes."

OYSTER SUPPER

There will be an oyster supper given by the Grange, at the Grange hall, February 22nd, from 5:00 until 8:00 p. m., followed by dancing and other amusements. Adults, 50c; children, 25c.

MENU

- Oyster Stew
