Why You Should Build Now!

The average man builds one house in a lifetime. It means a considerable outlay of money,—BUT—that house will last twenty-five years or longer, AND the amount of money required to supply the average family with food for the same period will far exceed the cost of the house. So, after all, the HOUSE is NOT the BIG item of living expense.

The new Peoples State Bank of Plymouth, opened its doors to the public last Monday morning, and during the week, the bank has kept open house, and many citizens of Plymouth and vicinity have called and have been shown through the handsome banking rooms by the officials of the new bank. The entire week has been designated as opening week, and souvenirs in the shape of cigars for the gentlemen, carnations for the ladies, and pencils for the boys and girls have been generously given out to those who have called.

The beauty of the bank is enhanced by the many beautiful floral pieces, which have been received from friends and business houses, together with cordial greetings and good wishes for the success and prosperity of the new institution. President and manager, John B. Hubert, and cashier, Floyd Kehrl, and various members of the board of directors have cordially received and welcomed the visitors and were in turn, the recipients of hearty good wishes and congratulations.

At the front of the room is the office of the president, while at the rear is a nicely furnished directors' room. The bank is provided with a fireproof vault, which contains one of the most modern burglar proof safes of the Diebold make. A number of safety deposit boxes have also been provided for rental to customers. The work room back of the counter is provided with the latest bank equipment to facilitate the work.

The exterior of the bank also presents a splendid appearance with its white stone front, and a fine electric sign which overhangs the walk. DEATH OF A PROMINENT CITIZEN

G. B. CRUMBIE PASSED AWAY AT HARPER HOSPITAL MONDAY; FUNERAL SERVICES WERE HELD THURSDAY AFTERNOON.

George Burton Crumie was born at Romulus, July 27, 1873. In 1894, he was united in marriage to Maude Merritt of Salem. For nine years they resided at Northville, but since 1903 they have made Plymouth their home. Thursday, May 22, Mr. Crumie was stricken with pneumonia. Saturday he was taken to Harper hospital, where he died Monday, May 26th, at 12:30 o'clock. The funeral was held Thursday, at 3:00 o'clock, at the Schrader Bros. funeral home. Rev. D. D. Nagle conducted the service, and Ray Van Valkenburg of Northville, sang two beautiful selections. Interment was in Riverside cemetery.

Burt, as everyone called him, held the respect as well as the love of all who were in any way associated with him. His unselfish character and true consideration of others won for him the highest praise from everyone. The splendid homes that he has erected in Plymouth and neighboring towns will serve as a memorial to his untiring efforts, and will remind us of his enviable record in business transactions. Plymouth, indeed, pays tribute to one who, in every sense of the word, was a real man.

To mourn their loss, are left his wife; daughter, Mrs. Earl Ryder; two sons, Goodwin and Merritt; two sisters, Mrs. John Lundy and Mrs. Ernest Martin of Hollywood, California; many relatives, and a multitude of friends. The bereaved family have the deepest sympathy of the entire community.

MANY ATTEND MOCK TRIAL

PLYMOUTH BOOSTS SAFETY CAMPAIGN UNDER COVER OF MOCK TRIAL AT PENNIMAN ALLEN THEATRE, LAST FRIDAY EVENING.

Although the evening was a stormy one, the Penniman Allen theatre was well filled last Friday evening, to hear the mock trial of the million dollar breach of promise case. The trial was staged as a part of Plymouth's Safety Week campaign. Before the opening of the trial, motion pictures, showing how traffic accidents occur, were shown upon the screen. The pictures were very realistic and a splendid object lesson on the part carelessness and thoughtlessness play in traffic accidents.

Miss Marjorie Pollock, with Mrs. Fred Tighe accompanying on the piano, rendered two beautiful solos in her usual pleasing manner.

H. S. Lee, president of the Plymouth Safety Drivers' Club, then introduced Leon J. Van Schoick, supervisor of safety, in Wayne county, who gave a short talk relating to the safety campaign in the county.

Following Mr. Van Schoick's talk, Mr. Harris of the Detroit Safety Drivers' Club, rendered two splendid solos.

The mock trial opened with the introduction of the plaintiff and defendant, attorneys in the case, the judge and court attaches, by Mr. Van Schoick. The jury was drawn from the audience, and the examination of the jurors by the counsel on both sides caused no little merriment. The trial was before Judge Dewitt H. Merriman of the Wayne County Circuit court. The case was based on an alleged breach of contract to marry, the plaintiff charging that the $1,000,000 which she desired to recover as damages was barely sufficient to compensate her for the broken heart which she had suffered when the defendant in the case broke his promise. After hearing the evidence on both sides, the wise jurors of Plymouth returned a verdict in favor of the fair plaintiff, of course. It was a mock trial. All for fun—and all for safety.

During the progress of the trial, several of Plymouth's prominent citizens were "pinched," for imaginary offenses and fined by Judge Merriman, the funds collected going into the treasury of the Plymouth Safety Drivers' Club. Another entertainment in the interests of safety work will be staged here in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Riggs arrived here from Venice, California, Tuesday. They expect to remain in Plymouth.

THE PERFECT TOWN

Not long ago we asked a well-known citizen to write down for us in black and white, just what kind of a town he considers perfect, that our readers might compare it with Plymouth. He has done so, and here is his idea of a perfect town: "It should be a moral town where citizens obey the laws, and a woman can walk the entire length of Main street and feel that the men she passes respect womanhood; a town that forgets individual squabbles and unites for the common good of all; a town with a good public library, churches that are well attended and pastors reasonably paid; a town where nobody has to lock the chicken coop door; where each citizen is made to feel that he is needed in every movement of importance, no matter what his financial standing. The perfect town should have pure water and streets the taxpayers are proud of; a town whose citizens never say 'they' but always 'us'; a town fit to raise children in without blushing for what they may hear on the streets; where the so-called politicians are men chosen from the rank and file, seeking to help the community with no thought of selfish interest; a town with a playground for children, so they won't have to be in the streets, and with public comfort stations for both women and men. It should be a town that grows without knocking a neighboring town, one whose people are always courteous to strangers and one with faith in itself and its ability to get whatever it goes after."

Now read that over carefully and see how near YOU think your town measures up to it. If it doesn't, then ask yourself if there is any way in which you can help to make it measure up.

LET'S BE CONSIDERATE

One thing that keeps life from being far more pleasant is our disregard for the rights and property of others. Where is the Plymouth citizen who can truthfully say, deep down in his heart, that he practices the Golden Rule to the letter, and that he is always as considerate of his neighbor as he would like for his neighbor to be of him? Just now we are hearing occasional complaints of trespassing, and every case is due wholly to thoughtlessness and not to a desire to injure some other person's property. The autoist, out for a Sunday ride with his family, spies along the way flowers, or shrubbery or something that he wants, and a moment later is taking it. Of course, he doesn't class it as stealing; he argues that the owner would give it to him if he could see him to ask for it. So in he goes and out he comes, leaving a trail of destruction behind, and possibly taking something that nature will be long years in replacing if, indeed, she ever does. Building fires on another's land without first asking permission is also inconsiderate of our fellowman. There may be no apparent reason why anyone should object, and yet it isn't right to do so without being sure. Parking your machine in front of another man's place of business or his home may seem perfectly legitimate. But have you stepped first to figure out whether leaving it stand there for several hours, or an entire day, is going to inconvenience him? We can have a much better community and far happier citizens if we'll resolve to be still more considerate of the other fellow. Let's all try it awhile and see if this doesn't prove true.

DEATH AND FUNERAL OF FORMER RESIDENT

We take the following from Seattle, Wash., papers, regarding the death of O. B. Williams, son of Mrs. H. Williams of Plymouth, who died in that city, Friday, May 16th:

Owen B. Williams, Seattle sash and door manufacturer and a well-known clubman, died suddenly last night at 7:00 o'clock in the living room of his residence at 1701 Fourth Ave. N. The manufacturer had been confined to his home by illness for two weeks but his condition was not considered serious. A sudden heart attack is believed to have caused his death. He was 54 years old.

Mr. Williams was born in Plymouth, Mich., in 1870. When he was seventeen years old, he came west to Tacoma, where he worked in a lumber mill and later learned the trade of glazier. In 1889 he started business for himself in Fairhaven, which today is part of Bellingham. In 1902, after a brief experience in placer mining in British Columbia, Mr. Williams came to Seattle and established the paint, sash, glass and door firm which eventually grew to be one of the biggest of its kind on the Pacific Coast.

Mr. Williams was prominent in club life in the city. He was active member of the Arcana Masonic body, Arctic Club, Rainier Golf Club, Automobile Club and Seattle Yacht Club. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Hannah E. Williams, a son, Lloyd, a student at the University of Washington; his mother and two brothers at Plymouth, Mich.; a sister at Claremont, Calif., and a sister in West Virginia.

Last tributes of friends and loyal employees were paid to O. B. Williams, pioneer sash and door manufacturer, yesterday, and his body in a flower banked casket was carried to its final resting place in Mt. Pleasant cemetery.

Services at the Scottish Rite Temple were marked by the impressive solemnity of the Scottish Rite ritual and the Christian Science church, joint services being held.

Bereaved members of his family, more than two hundred of the O. B. Williams Company employees, and scores of close business and personal friends gathered in the temple auditorium to pay their last respects to the deceased manufacturer. Magnificent floral tributes filled every available space.

Williams' many virtues were extolled in a eulogy given by Will H. Barrow, wise master of Rose Croix chapter, Scottish Rite. The Masonic service was in charge of the Scottish Rite funeral team, composed of James H. Begg, E. S. Goodwin, P. J. O'Hara and Charles R. Snider. R. E. Forbes conducted the Christian Science service.

Sidney Homer's "Requiem" words of which were written by Robert Louis Stevenson, "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" and two hymns from the Christian Science hymnal were sung by Magnus Petersen.

Employees of the O. B. Williams Company served as active pallbearers. Honorary pallbearers were Harry Balingier, the Rev. Dr. Major Herman Goetz, Ralph Stacey, George Sylvester and John Seaborn.

METHODIST NOTES

Next Tuesday night the regular Official Board meeting at the parsonage at 7:30. Also a special meeting of the Quarterly Conference is called for the same evening. Every member should be present.

Mid-week service on Thursday evening, at 7:30.

On June 9th, an Epworth League Group Rally here at this church with a banquet. Miss Geraldine Townsend, who has been representing the Michigan Epworth Leagues in China for five years, will be present and will speak.

Our General Conference which closed at Springfield this week, has passed some important legislation which will vitally affect the life of our church and the cause of Christ in the years to come.

We note the appointment of Bishop Nicholson, formerly of the Chicago Area, to the Detroit Area, for this quadrennium. We are sorry to lose our active and able Bishop Henderson, who goes to Cincinnati Area, but rejoice in having such a capable leader as Bishop Nicholson to direct the affairs of the Area. GOTHAM BOASTS UNIQUE FIRE AMBULANCE

The photograph shows the interior of the most complete ambulance that any organization can boast of. It is the property of the New York City Fire department and the gift of Messrs. W. F. and E. J. Kenny, honorary deputy chiefs. The Kenny brothers made this most unique and useful gift in memory of their deceased father who was Battalion Chief Thomas A. Kenny. During the first eleven months the ambulance was in service 1,401 miles had been covered in answer to 92 calls and the treating of 278 cases of smoke narcosis. After every run all equipment is sterilized with the most modern means. Photograph shows the interior of the car with Charles Laury applying the oxone pump to an overcome fire fighter.

LIGHTS USED ON DIFFERENT CARS

Various Little Details Owner Should Know to Save Lamp Troubles.

(By ERWIN GREER, President Greer College of Automotive Engineering, Chicago.)
The lightning bug is brilliant. But it hasn't any mind. For it blunders through existence with its headlight on behind.
Poor lightning bug's headlight is standard equipment, as is his one speed (forward) transmission. Consequently Nature, not he, is to blame. Regardless of his defect the title of my story stands pat. I still maintain that there are headlights on the front of an automobile just as there are light heads behind the steering wheel. To illustrate:

Jones used to buy bulbs for his car which either threw out as much illumination as a glow worm, or burnt out almost immediately. It cost him quite some money before he found that even the ornery little headlight bulb had to be humored exactly as did the engine.

What Jones didn't know was that every car has an individual lighting system of either a six-volt, twelve-volt or eighteen-volt plant; that the manufacturer either connected each lamp socket to two separate wires (double contact base), or used the metal framework of the car for return, running only one wire to each socket (single contact base).

House Lamps Uniform.
Jones thought that motor lamps could be bought as one buys his house lamps. That lamps for home lighting were uniform in certain communities. That both cellar and parlor lights were of the same voltage? He was right about the home lighting, but wrong about his automobile lamps.

One day he ran into an accessory store where the salesman knew his business. This chap passed Jones a few questions that got him all bewildered up:

"What voltage is your battery? Do you want a single or a double contact lamp and what candle power? Or, do you want a B or C lamp?" inquired the salesman.

"I don't know," stammered Jones. "I thought—"
"But you shouldn't guess at an important thing like that," snapped the salesman. "It's fellows like you that buy blindly and then run down the lamp manufacturer simply because you don't know what type lamp is needed. You can't buy any of our lamps until you find out what kind your car should carry."

Jones Acknowledged Mistake.

Jones went home furious. As soon as he quit seeing red he dug up the car's instruction book and started to read it. Interested, he went over to the local library and made a thorough study of motor lamps in general. Then he went back to this salesman and bought his lamps, apologized, thanked him for saving him future money, and installed the new lamps. His lighting troubles have all disappeared. He acknowledges that he was at fault—that he went about his headlight troubles with a light head—and that the manufacturer did make good lamps.

Reader, are you in Jones' predicament, or did you become acquainted with your lamps in time to save money and temper? That salesman sure had the right idea. He woke Jones up and Jones reciprocated by becoming a steady customer.

Force of Sudden Stopping

When a motor car is running 15 miles an hour and is brought to an abrupt stop, the impact is equal to that of a body striking the earth from a height of 15 feet. When a car is running 50 miles per hour and is stopped in its tracks, the impact is equal to that of a 120-foot fall.

The Easier Is the Better Way. Don't poison yourself with calomel every Saturday night, but get a package of Chamberlain's Tablets. Take one or two on going to bed, and the morning will find you feeling good. Gentle and persuasive, they never gripe nor sicken. Only 25 cents. Advertisement.

Rules Insuring Safety

Look out for children.
Drive on the right side of the road: it's just as good as the left.
When making minor repairs, stop the car where it can be seen from both directions.
Warning signs are never put up as ornaments. Always read and obey their messages of caution.
Be sure that "dimmers" really dim. It is dangerous for a motorist to drive into a blinding glare.
Try to help, instead of hindering, the traffic officer. He has a tough job, but is always ready to offer assistance.
Always use discretion, having the car under control at all times and be considerate of pedestrians and other motorists.

Security Against Theft Afforded by Neat Lock

Many small closed cars are not provided with door locks, and the owners do not always want to pay the price demanded for handles of the locking type, or regular pillar locks.

A car of this type may very easily be locked by means of a padlock, however, thus making it a safe place to leave clothing and packages, as well as affording additional protection against car theft. As indicated, the left front door is provided with two flat-iron lock plates, one being screwed in a recess cut in the door edge, the other in the casing, so that the screws are covered when the door is closed. The remaining doors are fitted with simple latches, or sliding bolts, which are fastened before leaving the car. These fittings are inexpensive, and, with a neat padlock of good make, do not detract from the appearance of the car, while adding to its security against theft.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Ordinary Adhesive Tape Will Stop Water Leaks

When water leakage develops between the rubber hose and the outlet from the cylinder jacket, or where the hose joins the radiator pipe, it can be obviated by wrapping the joints with ordinary adhesive tape. The proper method to follow is to remove the clamps, tape the joints and shellac the tape. When the shellac is dry the hose clamps should be replaced. Be sure that the clamp draws up in a perfect circle. If it is out of shape and will not draw up properly it will bunch up the rubber hose so that leakage will begin again before long.

AUTOMOBILE HINTS

Trouble comes when the jay walker meets up with the joy rider.

A collapsible water bucket for filling the radiator should be included in the equipment of every car.

Shellac, as well as graphite, is always helpful for preserving rims, and facilitates the removing of tires.

The horse may be passing out, but it is still a good idea, when approaching a railroad crossing, to whom.

No need in telling a girl her hair looks like a mop—too many of them nowadays don't know what a mop looks like.

Any married woman in Plymouth can tell you that the most uncomfortable day in any home is when the husband is home sick but not sick enough to go to bed.

Many Varieties of Opals; Where They Are Found

There are many varieties of opals, the varieties are divided into a few main groups. The Cacholong is an opaque white or bluish-white variety named after the river Caoh in Szechuan. It has the opalescent glimmer of mother-of-pearl. It is associated with chalcedony and by reason of its porous quality sticks queerly to any tongue that touches it. It is esteemed by the superstitious as the stone of friendship, sincerity, truth.

The float stone is porous and fibrous and floats on water. It is esteemed as a stone that sanctions pledges. Lovers join hands over this stone as it floats in a vessel of water and pledge their vows with great solemnity, it being held that misfortune will dog the footsteps of the faithless.

The girasol, the Mexican fire opal, evanescent and variable, glows of hyacinth and yellow. This is the opal of Scott's "Anne of Geierstein."

Hyalite. A transparent or glassy opal otherwise called Muller's glass. In appearance like clear gum arabic. One of the eye-stones to which old writers attributed magic therapeutic qualities.

Hydrophane. Porous and translucent, developing opalescent tints and gradations of rare delicacy when it has been a little time in water. Otherwise of an opaque white or yellow, unattractive. Known in parts of the United States as magic stone.

Messelite. Found in slate near Paris. Known as liver opal, as it is held to have talismanic virtues in affections of that overworked organ. A concretionary opal, liver-colored.

Opal Jasper. Jasper-like resinous dark red, a ferruginous variety identified by the credulous as the opal of beautiful wisdom.

Rose opal. Found at Quincy, France. Exquisitely soft, rose-colored stone, known as the opal of childhood or of the baby cupid.

Sandstone opal. A siliceous wood-opal of waxy luster, transparent to opaque. It is found in various colors—white, brown, gray, red, blue, green. It has the appearance of petrified wood. Estimated as a tree-growing charm or forest opal.—Frank Morton in Adventure Magazine.

The Patient Postman

Old Peter, the mailman, footsore and weary, had reached the end of his route and was congratulating himself upon having finished in such good time. "Mr. Mallman, Mr. Mallman," came a voice from the last house on the street which could only be reached by climbing a hill of about 300 steps.

"I wonder what she wants?" thought Peter, as he started to climb the steps. "She may have an important letter she wants mailed. More steps, gosh! This sure is hard on an old man, but it is my duty to see what she wants?"

At last he reached the top of the hill and stood puffing before the woman. "Did you have to take an examination to get in the post office?" she said.

"Why, certainly. I had to pass a civil service examination," said Peter. "Oh, that's fine. I guess you are pretty bright then," said she. "Will you tell me how to spell Schenectady?"—Home Sentinel.

Great Seal of England

The great seal of England, of which Lord Haldane again becomes custodian, has had several strange adventures. Besides being stolen and twice thrown into rivers, it was once buried to escape being burned. In 1812 Lord Chancellor Eldon's house took fire, and he promptly rushed away with the great seal, which he buried in the flower garden. On returning, he records in his diary, he was "so enchanted with the pretty sight of the maids, who had turned out of their beds and were handing buckets of water to the fire engine, all in their shifts, and so alarmed for the safety of Lady Eldon," that next morning he could not remember in which flower bed he had buried the seal.

"You never saw," adds Lord Eldon, "anything so ridiculous as the whole family down the walks digging with bits of stick until we found it."—Manchester Guardian.

Wanted to Try It

Bessie was lunching with her mother in a restaurant.

Mother (helping herself to sauce)—You won't like this, dear. It's parsley sauce.

Bessie—Oh, let me have some. I know I should like it.

"Why, dear, you haven't tasted it." "No; but I've read about it in the Bible."

"Where?" "I've been reading about the man who was 'sick of the parsley,' and I want to try it."

Dangerous Handicap

Tommy had sprained his wrist and didn't want to go to school.

"But your wrist is nicely bandaged," urged his mother. "It won't prevent you from attending, classmate."

Still the boy held back. Dad took a hand at this point.

"Now speak up, son," commanded his father. "Let's have the real reason. Why don't you want to go to school with a sprained wrist?"

"Too many boys owe me a licking."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A Futile Hope

Don't Expect Hupmobile Quality in a Car Less Finely Built

You know what a marvel the Hupmobile has been—you know its rugged performance over long periods—you know the high resale value it has always commanded.

The Hupmobile parts shown in the Parts Display and the processes of manufacture described, not only tell why, but they reveal the fallacy of hoping to get Hupmobile qualities in any car less finely built.

The whole question of price and value, money's worth and satisfaction, is bound up in these immensely important exhibits.

Come in and have us show you the Parts Display before you think of buying any car.

EPISCOPAL NOTES

Last Sunday our service was held in the evening. The rector preached a Memorial Day sermon, taking as his subject, "Moral Equivalent of War," and his text from Romans 12:21, "Overcome Evil with Good." Next Wednesday, June 4th, the Ladies' Guild will meet at the home of Mrs. Whitmore on West Ann Arbor street. All members are asked to be present.

Today, Memorial Day, memorial service and exercises will be held in the park in front of the school if the weather should permit, or in the school if unfavorable. The rector, Rev. Frank Copeland has been asked to deliver the Memorial Day address. Church services next Sunday will be held in the morning at 10:00 o'clock. This will be the service of the Holy Communion, and the Sunday-school session immediately after the service. All are welcome.

LIVONIA CENTER LUTHERAN CHURCH

There will be regular services at the Livonia Center Lutheran church on Sunday, June 1st, 1924, in the German language. After the service a short congregational meeting is to be held to elect a delegate and alternate for the bi-ennial session of the Michigan District of the Joint Synod of Wisconsin, Minnesota, Michigan and other states to which our church belongs. This church body convenes in Lansing from the 18th to the 24th of June. The matter of gravelling our driveway will also be discussed, and perhaps decided upon. Sunday-school begins at 1:45, and will be in the English language.

WIXOM BOYS' PROJECT WAS MOST SUCCESSFUL

The following will be of interest to many in Plymouth and vicinity, as the Rucker family were former residents of this community:

"One of the most successful farm boys' projects ever completed in Michigan," in the words of State club leader R. A. Turner, has just been finished by the Wixom Farm Boys' club. Every boy in the club, which has 12 members, completed the five articles required in the handicraft project. First place went to Kenneth Rucker, at a combined meeting of the club with the Wixom Farmers' club on Wednesday.

The club has held regular meetings every two weeks during the past winter. An old summer kitchen at the Rucker home was used for a meeting place, and very simple tools were used. Among the articles made by the boys were bench hooks, bread boards, neck tie racks, broom holders, sleeve ironing boards and bird houses. Mr. Turner acted as judge at the meeting.

That he had told of the work of the club all over the state was another statement made by the state club leader. This was not the first project carried out by the club. Handicraft projects are worked on in the winter while pig and potato projects occupy the time of the boys during the summer. Mr. Turner believes that at least a part of the success of the club, which has been greater than that attained by the many organizations is due to the fact that the leaders are young fellows with push and enthusiasm. Harold C. Rucker and Heath Holden are the young men who have been in charge. Both will go to the M. A. C. next year, and both expect to work their way through.

The club is composed of the following members: Albert Ramsey, Sidney Ramsey, John Healy, Alvin Waterman, Kenneth Rockney and Joseph Keenan of Wixom, and Arthur Price, Perry Holden, Heath Holden, Arthur Buffinger, Grant Buffinger and George Tuck of Milford.

A pot-luck dinner was served at the meeting Wednesday, which was held at the home of Mrs. G. H. Fuller. A discussion and study of the work of the boys was the theme of the Farmers' club for the day. A program followed the dinner, at which time the boys' club put on a stunt which was the feature of the entertainment. Mr. Turner was also on the program for a talk, in which he told of the work of the boys' club over the state, and what relation they had to the department of agriculture.

The Mothers' Day meeting held by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, Thursday, May 22, at the beautiful home of Mrs. Luther Peck, was largely attended.

A very pleasing program had been arranged by Mrs. Fannie Boerr. A community sing led by Mrs. R. A. Cassidy, and Mrs. G. Brown at the piano, consisting of several beautiful old-time favorites, was greatly enjoyed by all. A well written and interesting paper, "Co-operation of the School," with the Parents and Community," was read by Mrs. Wynnan Bartlett; Mrs. Cassidy sang a beautiful solo, "Mother of My Heart;" Mrs. C. H. Bovee gave two fine readings, and pleasing instrumental selections were given by the Misses Hillman and Howell. Refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

The new Year Books were distributed at this meeting, and they surely reflect great credit on the program committee—Mrs. Floyd Hillman, Mrs. O. B. Borch and Mrs. Robert Ross. One amusing feature is a "Smith" program, with the chairman, hostess and all those taking part bearing the name of Smith. The next meeting will be "Flower Mission Day—Lawn Party," June 26, at the home of Mrs. W. S. Thomas, Main street.

SECOND TEAM GAME

By Helen Fish
The second team made another victory certain when they met and defeated Wayne on the home grounds, Thursday, May 22. This makes two defeats of Wayne from Plymouth's second team this season. The score was 18 to 12. The home team will play the first team's return game with Walled Lake, which means hard practice for the boys.
Line-up—Mills, c.; Wilson, p.;

Arnold, 1st b.; Ambrus, 2nd b.; Schromberger, s. s.; Taylor, 3rd b.; Reiman, l. f.; Hickey, c. f.; Millard, r. f. Substitutions—Ash for Arnold, Losey for Reiman, Partridge for Millard, Curtis for Losey.

FIRST TEAM GAME

Although the Plymouth team out-hit their opponents, they were beaten by Redford last Wednesday, by a score of 3 to 2. Redford still has three games to play while Plymouth has two, therefore the championship has not yet been decided. Plymouth now holds second place in the League standing. Due to the rainstorm Friday, the game with Dearborn was postponed until Tuesday.

The Girl Scouts had their farewell hike last Thursday. They cooked their dinner at the tourist camp, after which they presented their captain, Miss Schmid, with an Eastman kodak to take on her trip to France this summer. They played base ball and other games, and returned home tired but happy.

FIRST TEAM GAME

The Plymouth team defeated Dearborn by a score of 6 to 2, last Tuesday. Both teams played well, but Plymouth out-hit their opponents and therefore, won. This year the home team has finished nearer the top than ever before. At the present time, they have second place, with a chance to win the championship should Redford lose a game.
Rowland, for Plymouth, pitched very well, and was well supported.

HOME TALENT PLAY

A GREAT SUCCESS

The High school auditorium was well filled Tuesday evening, when the four act comedy drama, "Rosemary," was presented by local talent, under the direction of Elizabeth L. Aluis. The play was given as a Lutheran benefit. The play deals with the Civil War period, and the story is very interesting from beginning to end. Each one of the characters represented was well taken, and the work of the players not only reflected credit upon themselves, but on their director as well. During the evening Alfred Strasen rendered two clarinet solos, accompanied by Miss Hannah Strasen on the piano, most excellently; and Mr. Parre of Wayne rendered two violin solos, with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Parre, most artistically. Miss Alta Hamill gave two readings in her usual pleasing way.

The following is the cast of characters: Rosemary, from North Carolina—Mrs. W. Westphal
Aunt Hephzibah, a Boston Gentlewoman—Mrs. J. Horan
Cousin Keziah, from Vermont—Mr. W. Westphal
Grandma Enderly—Mrs. Wm. Petz

ers planted certified seed along with equal amounts of bin run seed in adjoining plots. The average for the 13 tests showed an increase of 27.4 bushels in favor of the certified stock.
In Allegan County, similar tests gave the certified tubers a 25.8 bushel increase, while in Benzie County the increase ran 40 bushels per acre in favor of the pedigreed stock.
"These results were obtained without particular attention being given to the crop in the way of improved cultural methods or spraying," says J. W. Weston, potato specialist with the M. A. C. extension staff. "Many similar tests were carried on in Michigan and other states, and all reveal the greatly superior producing ability of good certified seed."
County agricultural agents have been lining up sources of certified seed for their growers, and large acreages of the blue ribbon stock will be planted in the state this year.

USED MANY MODES OF TRANSPORTATION

Suburbanite Has Exciting Time in One Day.

"The younger generation, and probably most of the older people who have gone about to any extent in recent years, take modern traveling facilities as a matter of course and give little or no thought to the marvels of transportation today," reflected the suburbanite, "and most of us go through our daily trips to business and elsewhere so mechanically that we fail to realize fully how remarkably diverse are the present-day means of passenger conveyance."
A man will think nothing nowadays of riding in a variety of vehicles in the course of a single day, from an elevator to a trolley, being carried along the surface of the ground, above it or under the surface, and utilizing several kinds of power. But an experiential man had not had occasion to realize more than most of us do, or than I probably would have otherwise, how wonderfully diverse are the means of travel available to the people of today.
"In one day I rode on the surface of the earth, under the ground and the Hudson river as well, and also new above the earth, being transported in trolleys, electric trains, steam trains, automobiles and an airplane, and employed the advantages of three types of power which play such important parts in the daily life of most of us—electric, gasoline and steam."
"I started out in the morning from my home in northern New Jersey and walked a short distance to a trolley line, then boarded a trolley car in which I was carried, by electric power, over the surface of the ground to a Hudson tube station. There I got on an electric train which transported me along the surface. Later I changed to another which took the through an un-covered depression, sped along a subterranean passage, through a tunnel beneath the Hudson river and to the Pennsylvania station, New York.
"There I changed to another train which traveled underground for a distance, being drawn at first by electric power. Afterward it rose to the surface and the locomotive having been changed, took me the rest of the distance to Mineola, L. I. above the ground—by steam power.
"At the railroad station in Mineola I got in a taxi-cab, which, by still another kind of power—gasoline—transported me to Mitchell field.
"There I hopped off in an airplane which, also using gasoline, of course, bore me back over much of the same route I had followed to the field, with some deviations; soared over the community in which I live—almost above my own house—and then flew back to its starting point.
"Later I returned to my home by the same kind of conveyance I had employed on my trip to the flying transportation facilities available to modern people as if only could have been by such an experience."

Rialto Bridge
The Rialto bridge is a famous marble bridge across the Grand canal in Venice, built by Giovanni da Ponte in 1590. It consists of a single arch, 90 feet wide and 24 feet high, and rests upon 12,000 piles. The name Rialto is derived from Rivo-Rialto, one of the islands on which Venice is built. This island was long the financial and commercial center of the city, and gave its name to the bridge that connects it with the mainland. There was situated the exchange, and it is probably to that building (and not to the bridge) that Shakespeare refers in his comedy of "The Merchant of Venice." "Signor Antonio, many a time and oft, in the Rialto you have rated me about my money and my usances; Still I have borne it with a patient shrew; For suffering is the badge of all our tribe."
Bell Shattered Windows
A church in Cincinnati, Ohio, claims to have the largest bell in America and, next to one in Moscow, the largest one in the world. This bell is 10 feet in diameter and 12 feet high and it weighs 30,000 pounds.
When it was hung a number of years ago its deep tones shattered windows in nearby buildings, and threatened to shake the supporting tower to pieces. Since then no one has dared to ring it. It is sounded by tapping it with a hammer. Sounds thus produced are no louder than those from smaller bells. Ring in the regular manner its tones, in the tone of E-flat, could be heard over a radius of 15 miles.

Michigan and Her Railroads

Since 1920, when the Government returned Railroad operation to private enterprise, service in Michigan has become yearly more dependable—more nearly adequate.

That Service is today the best Michigan has ever enjoyed.

As a result there has come into being between the State's 24 steam Railroads and the public they serve, a spirit of pride and mutual good will.

Geographical isolation has made railroad service a local more than a national problem in both Peninsulas of Michigan. Within the enveloping barriers established by our Great Lakes, Michigan and her Railroads can prosper only by prospering together. State and carriers become thus members of a close community of interest.

Michigan Railroads realize this fact and make it fundamental in all details of management and operation.

The public can also recognize this situation by neighborly co-operation and by insisting that the roads be repaid by receiving, in national and state supervision, the same square deal.

We invite from you any suggestion of more ways in which we can consistently better our service.

NEWBURG

Don't forget the church service at the usual hour, 11:00 a. m., with Sunday-school immediately after. Epworth League at 7:00 p. m. Junior League Wednesday at 4:00 p. m. Prayer meeting Thursday evening. Everyone most cordially invited to attend these services.

There was a full house Sunday afternoon, to listen to the Memorial Day exercises. The church was beautifully decorated with the national colors, potted plants and baskets of flowers, making a pretty setting for those taking part in the exercises, which were as follows:

Invocation by the pastor, Rev. Havens.

Singing—"America." Lincoln's Gettysburg Address—Miss Louise Geney.

Patriotic song by the choir. Flags of a Nation—Miss Mildred Bennett, Miss Iva Bassett and Mrs. Clyde Smith, with a number of girls representing the flags.

A monologue, entitled, "A Vision, When the Band Played," Mrs. Donald Ryder, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Henry Grimm, Jr.

A splendid address was then given by the pastor, Rev. Paul Havens, his theme being, "The Flag That Never Trailed the Dust."

The Patriotic society wishes to thank all who assisted in making their Memorial Day an occasion to honor those who so valiantly fought for the freedom of our country. Only one old soldier of the Civil war was present, Charles Westfall, who was in the 24th Michigan Infantry; also a veteran, John A. Blair, who fought with Custer. We wish to especially thank the Detroit Naval Circle No. 27, for so kindly donating 50 flags to place on the soldiers' graves.

Miss Margaret Clemens spent over Sunday at the parental home, having as her guests the following young ladies from Detroit: Harriet Grace, Bessie Rath, Gladys Easley, Meta Reynolds and Helen Lee.

The stewards of the church met at the home of Mrs. E. Ryder Monday afternoon, and they decided to purchase the electric light fixtures for the parsonage.

Everyone is busy this week setting out tomato plants. Those that were out before the hard frosts of last week did not stand much of a chance.

Last week's item in regard to the new Federal road should have read, that it commences opposite the LeVan orchard on the Plymouth road.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Mackinder were surprised Sunday, when their son, Vernis, drove in to take dinner with them. He had been to Detroit, and got a new Cleveland, and drove back to Grand Rapids the same day.

Mrs. Holmes of Newburg, and Mrs. Arthur of Plymouth, spent the day Monday, in Detroit, shopping. The Turnbulls also spent the day in Detroit, on business.

THE THEATRE

THE MEANEST MAN IN THE WORLD.

Saturday, May 31, the Penniman Allen theatre will offer its patrons the film version of George M. Cohan's famous stage success, "The Meanest Man in the World," a First National release.

Everybody knows George M. Cohan. And everybody knows that anything Cohan is interested in must be good. In the case of "The Meanest Man in the World," Principal Pictures Corporation assures theatre-goers that they will witness a most delightful comedy drama.

The story of "the meanest man in the world" surrounds the business career of a young lawyer who just simply can't be mean. He is too soft-hearted, according to his associates. He finally determines to take the bull by the horns and be "hard-boiled." But does he? Wait and see!

Those whose pleasure it has been to witness private showings of "The Meanest Man in the World" claim it to be one of the outstanding features of the year. There is a laugh in every foot of the six reels and patrons of the Penniman Allen theatre should prepare themselves for one of the finest attractions of the season.

"MADEMOISELLE MIDNIGHT"

With Langorous and beautiful Mexico as a background and a thrilling story of love and intrigue set in it like a jewel, Mae Murray is said to have the best role of her career in "Mademoiselle Midnight," her latest picture, which will come to the Penniman Allen theatre Sunday and Monday, June 1 and 2.

In "Mademoiselle Midnight," Miss Murray plays two character roles—that of a French lady in the court of Napoleon III, and that of a daughter of Mexico, a sensuous famed for beauty, wealth and cleverness.

The supporting cast is made up of many favorites, among them being Monte Blue, Robert McKim, Robert Edeson, John Sainpolis, Otis Harlan, Nigel de Bruiler, Nick de Ruiz and Evelyn Selbie. Robert Z. Leonard directed and personally supervised the picture for Tiffany Productions. It is released by Metro.

The story is about a girl who is afflicted with a curious midnight madness which comes at unexpected moments. Renas de Quiron is the shrewdest daughter of Don Pedro de Quiron, who owns a vast cattle ranch in Mexico. She has inherited her peculiar malady from her grandmother, a lady in the French court of the Second Empire.

Jerry Brent, a young American, meets Renas when he comes to see her father about a plan for friendlier relations between the two countries. They themselves make a good start in that direction.

One night, when Renas and her cousin, Carlos, are attending a gay festa in a nearby town, Manuel, an outlaw leader, raids the ranch to kidnap her and murder her father. Swearing vengeance, Renas goes to Mexico City to live with her father's brother. She is worse off than ever, for the latter is in league with Manuel, and has promised his niece's hand in marriage to the bandit.

In order to break Renas's will, her uncle has her locked in her room under surveillance, and a fake doctor tries to convince her that her mind is affected and needs treatment. When her cousin, Carlos, and the priest who has guarded her in her youth, come to call, the uncle tells them Renas's mind has gone and she cannot be seen.

Carlos communicates with Jerry Brent and the two of them, planning to rescue Renas, discover that the uncle is head of a revolutionary organization which is planning to overthrow the government.

The revolutionists hold a wild party to celebrate their anticipated victory. Renas, escaping from her room, enters into the midst of it. The frenzy of midnight is upon her and she does a mad Saturnalian dance which stirs the bandit, Manuel, to reckless endeavors. In terror she draws a dagger and stabs and wounds him.

Jerry Brent breaks into the party and tries to escape with Renas. They are surrounded by their enemies when Carlos arrives at the head of a cavalry troop. There is a terrific battle in which the revolutionists are routed, and Renas and Jerry Brent are led to church for a midnight wedding.

The picture is divided into a prologue, showing the court of Napoleon III at the time when Maximilian is being sent upon his tragic adventure as Emperor of Mexico, and the main story of modern Mexico.

"THE PERFECT FLAPPER"

It was inevitable that Colleen Moore, who created such a sensation in "Flaming Youth" and "Painted People," both First National pictures, should once again give the screen another portrayal of the modern flapper.

And judging by her remarkable characterization in these pictures it was also inevitable that her next picture be called "The Perfect Flapper," which will be shown at the Penniman Allen theatre, Wednesday, June 4th.

Exceptional attention was given Colleen Moore's forthcoming production because of the astonishing records of this winsome star's previous efforts, and it is said that she rises to still greater heights in "The Perfect Flapper."

A cast of unusual quality was engaged to surround the star. Sydney Chaplin has a role which fits him like a glove and gives him opportunity to inject many laughs into the picture. He will be remembered for his side-splitting characterizations in "Her Temporary Husband" and "The Galloping Fish."

Phyllis Haver scintillates in the role of Gertrude Trayle. Frank Mayo, for years a star in his own right, has a role in Reed Andrews. The part of Aunt Sarah, a kindly soul, who stands by the star in her direst needs, is handled by Lydia Knott.

"The Perfect Flapper" was directed by John Francis Dillon, who also directed Corinne Griffith in "Lilies of the Field," and Colleen Moore in "Flaming Youth." It was adapted by Earl Hudson from "The Mouth of the Dragon," the Ainslee Magazine story by Jessie Henderson.

OUR TRIP TO CHARLOTTE

Tuesday, we left for Charlotte, to attend the 82nd Annual Conference of the Congregational church. We went by way of Ann Arbor, Jackson and Albion, and arrived in Charlotte about 4:00 p. m. Meetings had started in the afternoon. Several hundred ministers and their delegates were assembled in the large church of Charlotte, and had the pleasure to listen to many splendid speeches. Wednesday was Olivet day, and the Rotary Club furnished machines to take the visitors to Olivet College, a distance of ten miles from Charlotte. Lunch was served in the college dining hall. The afternoon meetings were then held in the Olivet Congregational church.

The Olivet Orchestra of 30 students played a fine, under their able director, Pedro Paz. At the close of the meeting, the visitors were shown through the college buildings, and at 4:30, we returned to Charlotte for the evening session.

Thursday, there were meetings all day and the conference was then closed by a banquet and musical program, at the close of which Edgar Guest, who was present, treated the guests to some of his best poems.

Friday found us on our way home through Lansing, Howell, and Pinckney in a pouring rain. Many detours prolonged the trip, but we enjoyed the trip very much.

WILL PLANT "LATE" POTATOES EARLIER

QUALITY OF TUBER CROP CAN BE IMPROVED WITH LONGER SEASON SAYS M. A. C. SPECIALIST.

Earlier planting of "late" potatoes than is practiced by many Michigan farmers would result in a crop of better quality, according to H. C. Moore, extension specialist in potato culture at the Michigan Agricultural College.

Russet Rurals, the variety which is said to make up ninety per cent of the state late potato crop, requires about 130 days of growing season to mature fully. Many growers are trying to raise their crop in 90 days, according to Moore, and the results are not entirely satisfactory.

"Instances of discrimination against Michigan potatoes on the country's markets have been reported," says Moore. "This is frequently due to immaturity and resultant poor condition of the tubers. Jobbers and consumers have sometimes associated this condition with the Russet Rural variety, which makes up the bulk of the state crop, when in reality the trouble was not due to the variety itself.

"While the planting date will vary in different sections of the state, proximity to the Great Lakes and other factors entering in to determine the average date of killing frost in the fall, growers should plan to allow their crop the full necessary growing season.

"The last of May or first ten days in June will be the best planting period in most sections. Many successful growers in the southern part of the state can plant the last of June, but those farther north should not delay their planting this long for best results.

"The earlier planting will, of course, call for additional spraying and cultivation, but the extra cost will be more than offset by the better quality of the crop. Factors governing better quality also go hand-in-hand with increased yield, for more efficient production."

The budget was then laid on the table, according to the charter, until the next regular meeting.

A petition remonstrating against the opening of Gravel avenue through to Main street was received, and on motion, laid on the table.

The petition in favor of opening Gravel avenue, laid on the table at the previous meeting, when brought up for discussion, was on motion, laid on the table until the next meeting.

A verbal petition from Albert Gayde - apis aut sapit oierm m tneozq pus walk on the north side of Farmer street for a distance of about 450 feet west of Starkweather avenue related to proper line was received. This walk, laid in 1913, was by mistake laid mostly on the property side of the street line and is not parallel to the street. On motion, this walk was ordered to be laid properly at village expense this season.

The commission then adjourned.

CARRION BIRDS OF AFRICA ARE GREEDY

Blacken Sky Before Hunter's Bullet Kills Prey.

No description can convey to one who has not seen it anything approaching a full idea of the numbers and prompt efficiency of the buzzards and kites and other carrion birds of Africa.

One shoots a zebra, say, for the safari dinner. Before the echoes of the shot have died, while the zebra yet staggers in his tracks, black dots in the heavens are dropping with folded wings to the spot and from miles around literally hundreds of others, observing the first, are hastening toward the focus of interest.

By the time the men have finished skinning the zebra and cutting out the desirable meat the little group on the plains is surrounded on all sides.

Hundreds of the great birds have gathered on the ground in a close-drawn ring as near as they have dared—sometimes as close as 20 or 30 feet. They hop in ungainly impatience and they all hold their wings half outspread in readiness. Many hundreds of others, whose judgment of the strategic position so advises them, soar in short circles a few score yards overhead.

So many are they that they actually almost obscure the sky and so crowded that when one pauses to listen one can hear the stiff harsh scrape of pinions as they jostle one another. And from all points of the heavens more are eagerly hastening.

The meat distributed, the little band of men withdraws, leaving a carcass stripped of skin and the best of the meat, to be sure, but still a recognizable dead zebra. Then the birds swoop. They drop like plummetts, checking their fall only at the last instant by a spread of the wings; they rise from the circle round about and beat frantically across the little intervening space. The roar of air through the pinion feathers is like a great waterfall.

The place where lies the zebra disappears beneath a heaving, fighting brown mass, tossing like tide rips of the sea. A myriad of those just too late above and crowd and flap and squawk around the periphery. There are generally a few philosophers who realize their tardiness sufficiently to stand to one side in disgruntled disappointment.

And then, while one still looks, the tossing and the heaving die down. The great birds draw suddenly to one side or flap heavily to roost on the nearby trees. Where only a few seconds ago a zebra lay on the plains, now are only the bones of a skeleton, cleaned white and smooth.

It is incredible. The waiting jackals, venturing in at last, must gain only the satisfaction of small—and very little of that.—Saturday Evening Post.

Surprise for Socrates
If Socrates of ancient Greece were to revisit this world and come to America he would see many things that would surprise him very much. They had things similar in Greece in his day.

He would see churches, but they had temples also in Athens. He would see prisons, statehouses, shops, granaries, dwelling houses and the like, but all of these in one form or another they had in Athens.

The thing that would surprise Mr. Socrates would be that building which is usually among the largest and handsomest in every community—the public school.

Of course, they taught school in Socrates' day and had education. But these things were then a privilege; now they are considered duty.

Then education was the luxury of the few; now it is the necessity of the many.—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

Eric's Vanished Colony
Eric the Red, supposed to have been born about 950, was a Norseman and the colonizer of Greenland. He fled from his native country under a charge of homicide and settled in Iceland. Another killing forced him to leave Iceland and he went to Greenland, which had been discovered about a century earlier, but had never been settled. In 985 Eric returned to Norway to recruit colonists for a colony in Greenland. He named the chief town Gardar.

After flourishing for about 400 years the colony completely vanished, and no trace of it has ever been found. Eric's son, Leif Ericsson, is supposed to have landed on the New England coast in about the year 1000.—Detroit News.

Incas Use Coca Leaves When on Long Jaunts

When the Spaniards first came to the highlands of South Africa they found many strange things being done by the couple of million inhabitants who lived all the way from what is now Ecuador to the northern part of Chile. These people smelted copper, wove cloth, built houses of heavy masonry, embalmed dead bodies and used gold for household cooking, eating and drinking vessels. This last was their undoing, for while they put a value on gold only as something to use like any other metal, the Spaniards prized it as we do and went crazy over it.

These people had a large sheep they used for packing, but it was too small for a riding animal and not very swift so all the swift errands were performed by runners. It is said that the Inca king each day ate fresh fish caught from the sea and hurried to him by relays of fast runners. In credible records were made by these men, who had been trained from infancy almost to run.

The high altitude develops huge lung power after generations have been bred in it, but for you and me it makes for short-windedness. But the people who are born and brought up in the rarefied air are short and stocky and with very large lungs. They lived in a country ranging from 10,000 to 14,000 feet high with mountains running up at intervals to over 22,000 feet.

All were—and are yet—inveterate users of coca. This is leaves from the tree of the plant from which cocaine is extracted. For long feats of endurance they took a small package of these leaves and constantly kept a wad of them in their mouths wrapped around a small bit of unslaked lime to free the cocaine and other alkaloids contained in the coca leaves.

One American doctor who investigated the subject and wrote a large book on it and a famous American writer (Doctor Monzans) claim that coca used in this fashion appears to free great reserves of strength and is not attended with the pernicious results following use of the drug cocaine, which has not the balancing chemicals found in the entire leaf. Be that as it may, the Indian runners and packers used and still use this leaf when on their long jaunts.—Adventure Magazine.

Hebrew Language
Owing to the efforts of Ben Yehudah, an enthusiast for Jewish nationalism, the ancient Hebrew is being revived. This language was not spoken even so late as the time of Christ. In those days the inhabitants of Judea spoke Aramaic. For more than forty years Ben Yehudah worked. Besides all his propaganda in the schools, in the press and on the platform he set to work on a tremendous lexicon or thesaurus in ten volumes, almost as great a work as the great Oxford dictionary, on which a corps of English scholars have been at work for a generation. He died with that work uncompleted, but so far advanced that his disciples can readily finish it. Most of the Jews in the Holy Land now speak Hebrew and are proud to call it their "mother tongue." The British government, which holds a mandate over Palestine under the treaty of Versailles, recognizes Hebrew as an official language and publishes a Hebrew copy of all legal governmental papers.

Strindberg's Genius
Genius, in the case of Strindberg, is the capacity for dramatizing infinite pains. There is no major ache, whether of psyche or toe, that does not claim its moment of his enthusiasm. Life, to him, is the panorama of a great and encompassing colic. His tragedy does not so much purge the emotions and leave in its wake the beauty that is ever the residuum of profound sorrow, as constipate hope, and resolution, and human faith. Where Ibsen is the mocking dramatist of tragedy, Strindberg is the tragedian of mocking drama. He looks on the world as a child looks at the skeleton of some prehistoric monster, simultaneously beset by awe and disbelief and seeking relief from its bewilderment in a nervous and unconvincing laughter.—George Jean Nathan in the American Mercury.

Preparedness
Willie was under orders never to go in swimming. And mother meant to see that he obeyed. So one day she became suspicious.

"Willie, your clothes are wet," she said. "You have been in the water again."

"Yes, mother, I went in to save Charlie Jones."

"My noble darling! Did you jump in after him?"

"No, mother. I jumped in first so as to be there when he fell in."—Youth's Companion.

Quality in all and any Furnace is what intelligence is to man. Fertility to Soil, and Perfume to Flowers. It's the one great big necessity to worth and value. No Furnace enters our warehouse unless it possesses this prime essential in a marked degree. Frequently the thing that insures service is hidden in quality. Service shows itself in use, and we produce things to use them.

Let us be your furnace installer, for we will serve you zealously, honorably, and efficiently. The poorest is worthless, even as a gift. Cheapest means poorest. Be guided by these facts, instead of being guided by your hopes.

PLYMOUTH YOUNG MAN HONORED

The Grand Master Counselor of the Grand Chapter, Order of DeMolay, recently elected at the state convention at Grand Rapids, has announced his appointive officers and in making his selections he conferred a great honor upon Fellowship Chapter of this village. Master Counselor Alton Trumbull of Plymouth, was appointed sixth preceptor of the Grand Chapter of Michigan. Mr. Trumbull is a worthy young man and his appointment is a distinct personal honor as well as a worthy compliment to the local chapter.—Northville Record.

A HANDSOME ELECTRIC SIGN

Blunk Bros. have had installed this week one of the largest and finest electric signs in the village. The new sign overhangs the walk in front of the store and is 18 feet in length over all. The top and lower panels are 7 feet long. On the top panel appears the word, "Furniture," while on the lower panel the words, "Dry Goods" and "Haberdashery" appear. The long or connecting panel bears the firm name, "Blunk Bros." The colors used on the sign are black, green and yellow, and when lighted at night presents a very pretty effect, which can be seen for a long distance. The sign is lighted by 50 electric light bulbs. It is certainly a splendid advertisement for this progressive firm, and it also gives the business street a very city-like look. The Blunk Bros. have also had the show windows of their store equipped with the Tork lighting device, which turns on and off the lights automatically.
