OPEN SUNDAYS AND HOLIDAYS

CANTON CITIZEN

DIES SUDDENLY

William R. Travis, a well known farmer of Canton township, was found dead in his barn, where he had been doing chores, Monday morning about eight o'clock, by his grandson, Stanley Travis. Mr. Travis was feeling as well as usual on the morning of his death, but he had been afflicted of late with heart trouble, and it was that which caused his death. Mr. Travis was 79 years of age, and was a man highly esteemed by all who knew him. He had lived in Canton township for more than 25 years. His wife died nine years ago, and his son, William, died two years ago upon the same day and almost the same hour as the father.

The deceased is survived by four sons and two daughters, Jule and Harvey of California; Sylvester and George of Canton township; Mrs. J. Lameran and Mrs. Ella Rowe of Dearborn. The funeral services were held from his late home, Thursday afternoon at two o'clock, Rev. S. Conger Hathaway officiating. Interment in Riverside cemetery.

PLYMOUTH DAY PLANS

GOING FORWARD

EVERYBODY IS ENTHUSIASTIC OVER THE PLANS FOR THE BIG DAY HERE, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 11TH.

Arrangements for Plymouth's big day, Thursday, September 11th, are progressing nicely. Another meeting of the committee was held last week Thursday evening. Several additional names were added to some of the committees as follows: George A. Smith, guest committee, and S. T. Corbett and S. D. Strong as members of the decoration committee. The following executive committee from the village commission, Chamber of Commerce and the Rotary Club have been named: Harry C. Robinson, president; Carl G. Shear, secretary; E. D. Schrader, treasurer; Harry S. Lee, George A. Smith, William Wood, J. W. Henderson, S. D. Strong.

Harry C. Robinson was named as chairman of the entertainment committee, he to appoint the other members of that committee. It was voted to purchase 250 flags, which will have the village emblem upon them, to be used for decorating purposes. The decorating committee are in touch with several concerns, who make a business of decorating streets and business places for all public occasions. The banquet, which will be served by the ladies of the Lutheran church, will be held in the High school auditorium, which is an ideal place for such an event.

Harry Robinson, who has charge of the securing of the bands and base ball teams, has succeeded in securing the 125th Regimental band of 65 pieces, and has about completed arrangements for another large band, so there is going to be no lack of music. Mr. Robinson is in touch with two of the best ball teams in Wayne county, and will complete arrangements with their managers within a few days. He also was assured by the Wayne County Road Commissioners that they would be with us on that day, the big feature of which is the opening of the newly paved Plymouth road. The finance committee is meeting with splendid success in their campaign for funds. Everybody seems to be enthusiastic over the big day, and, of course, that is what will make it the success that it should be. Everybody is urged to let their friends know about the big day, and send them a special invitation to come. Remember, every man and woman in Plymouth is on the committee to make the day a success.

FORMER PLYMOUTH PASTOR WEDS. We take the following from the Michigan Christian Advocate, under date of July 30th: "Rev. John B. Oliver, superintendent minister of the Detroit conference, recently accepted as a member of the M. E. Home, and Mrs. Ethel Reason, formerly of Pinckney, now a member of the Home, were married Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 at the Home, in the presence of all the Home family. Rev. F. O. Jones officiated. After congratulations were tendered by their friends, a three-course luncheon was served in the dining room. Rev. and Mrs. Oliver will reside in the Methodist Home at Chelsea."

BOND ISSUES CARRY The special election held Wednesday for two bond issues relative to the laying of a sewer and the paving of West Ann Arbor street brought out a total of 109 votes. The vote was as follows: For the $10,000 paving bonds, 90; against the proposition, 19; spoiled, 1. For the $2,500 sewer bonds, 92; against the proposition, 16; spoiled, 1. There will also be a musical program, and a speech by Stanley Powell, assistant secretary of the Michigan State Farm Bureau. Mr. Powell has also had a long connection with Grange work, and is a very interesting speaker. Elizabeth Park is fast becoming one of the beauty spots of southern Michigan, and the county is very fortunate in having such a place in which to hold a picnic. All are invited and welcome. Ample parking space has been secured to take care of all automobiles, on private grounds adjacent to the picnic grounds. Suitable prizes have been secured for the lodge having the highest percentage of its membership on the picnic grounds that day; also for the lodge having the greatest number of entries in the different events. Some prominent members of the fraternity will deliver an address when these prizes are presented. The place selected for the picnic is a beautiful spot with ample shade and facilities to take care of all the members and their families, including the "in-laws" and a very pleasant time is anticipated for all.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Thompson and son, Harry, of Marshall, spent the week-end with Mrs. Thompson's sister, Mrs. H. A. Spicer. Miss Isabel Spicer returned with them for a few weeks' visit with relatives and friends.

Miss Helen Robinson of Columbus, Ohio, was a week-end guest of Miss Mildred Lefever.

LEARNING TO SWIM

You have only to watch the daily papers just now to realize that the United States is in the middle of the swimming season. The toll of death is heavier than in other seasons, because more people are entering the water who do not know how to swim. Not all of these accidental drownings are due to carelessness, however; some of them are unavoidable. But we shudder to think how many lives would be lost each season if all boys were discouraged in their desire to learn how to swim.

The Red Cross has come to realize that the best way to prevent death by drowning is to teach people to swim. So this season 45,000 expert swimmers, scattered all over this country, are engaged in giving swimming lessons. Naturally, every section cannot hope to have one of these instructors permanently stationed for the summer in its midst. In thousands of towns like Plymouth, boys and girls will not have the benefit of such instruction, but there are plenty of young and middle-aged men around here who are good swimmers, and they couldn't do a community any greater service than to devote a little of their spare time to teaching our younger boys and girls to swim. Fathers and mothers should encourage it, and be glad of the chance to have their children acquire an art that may sometime save their lives.

We never know what moment our life may depend upon our ability to swim. We are not always safe so long as we do not go to the water—for the water to come to us. So the man or boy who takes the time and trouble to teach someone to swim is a real benefactor.

DOING YOUR DUTY

We've long been of the opinion that too many Plymouth men and women fail to place a proper value upon their vote. It's a presidential year, and an appropriate time to refer to the subject. We do not mean that they are "soured" on politics, but that there are too many who figure along the line of, "Oh, well, it's only one vote anyhow, and one vote doesn't mean very much."

It is poor citizenship to feel that way. Every time there is an election the taxpayers have to pay for it, the expense of holding elections comes out of our state, county and municipal revenues. So the man who does not vote has to pay for the election just the same. Not only that, but he has his ideas about this or that, and to make the idea worth anything he must express it at the ballot box. Possibly the man he voted for is not elected, doesn't he still have the satisfaction of knowing that he did his part as a good citizen to correct what he believed to be an evil? And doesn't the man who received his vote know that his ideas were acceptable to at least one more voter? Won't this give him courage to keep on fighting for what you believe to be right?

The trouble with too many of us is we go to the polls to vote against somebody or against something, instead of going there to vote for somebody, or for something. But even if you're the only man in the country espousing a certain cause or a certain candidate, show your manhood and good citizenship by going to the polls and casting your vote. You'll be more respected, even if you lose, than you will if you stay at home, refuse to vote, and then find fault later on.

Points to Good Done by Workers' Councils

About a thousand American factories have adopted one form or another of employee representation. The minutes of the boards and committees of these factories on which employees have representatives give us our first chance to pull industrial democracy down out of the cloudland of theory into the field of deportable fact.

James Meyers, who has observed at first hand the development of industrial democracy, examines the minutes of a number of factories in his article, "Democracy in American Factories," in the Century Magazine. He says this article "is designated to furnish a brief close-up of some of the actual activities of workers' councils, throwing into high relief a few of the practical principles and methods which make for success or failure in this pioneer development toward the new day of democracy in industry."

"A good illustration," he writes, "of the sound sense and business judgment exercised by a straight workers' committee in charge of the management of company houses is supplied by the minutes of a housing committee, one of the subcommittees of a workman's board."

"These workers exhibit no disposition to throw away company money. Profit-sharing is a part of the plan in this full and forms a strong incentive to economy. Careful, but just, they have, in fact, managed the property entrusted to them conservatively, restricting decorations, making tenants meet the company halfway, standardizing rents, removing favoritism. The president of this company, after three years' experience in the matter, made the following public statement in regard to workmen's management of company housing:

"The various functions connected with the management of the company housing are performed more efficiently by the board of operatives than they were previously performed by the management, according to our experience, owing to the fact that much more time and thought is given to each individual question, than the management could possibly give to it. There is more satisfaction in the village and the property is managed economically."

Early Day Oil Wells

Everybody thought Colonel Drake had "gone clean crazy" when one day, in 1859, he set forth to what later became known as the Oil Creek region in Pennsylvania on his absurd quest of oil, of which he knew nothing except that it was the basis of a liniment made by a New York firm of druggists.

With "Tinecum Bill," a salt well borer, as assistant, he put down his first drill on the first of July; and the morning of August 30, having left the work the night before with the drill down nearly seventy feet and still no oil in sight, he found, to his delight, that the well was full of oil.

Not long after Drake's sensational discovery, the "Funk" well was gushing forth at the rate of one thousand barrels a day, and Farmer Funk found himself a millionaire within a month. Soon the "Phillips" well on the Tarr farm was spouting at the rate of two thousand barrels daily, and gold was pouring into Jim Tarr's coffers at an amazing rate. And still more romantic was the experience of the famous "Coal Oil Johnny" and of Jim Sherman, who bought a lease of the Foster farm for $500, struck oil almost immediately, and within a few years saw his $500 converted into millions.

Nation's Coal Resources

It is claimed that at the present rate of consumption, 528,000,000 metric tons a year, the coal resources of the United States will last over 6,000 years. As estimated by the Coal Trade Journal the total metric tonnage of all coals is now 2,535,268,000,000. These figures, it is said, do not include the recently discovered Alaskan coal fields which can supply the Pacific states for 1,000 years or the deep lying coal deposits in Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona and the Rocky mountains which cannot be profitably mined. Also, the United States is now supplying half of the world's coal. The necessity for this large output may soon be reduced because of newly discovered mines in Siberia, Japan, China, India, Australia and New Zealand.

THE PACKARD FAMILY REUNION

DESCENDANTS OF LATE ORSON PACKARD WILL HOLD REUNION AT TOURIST CAMP GROUNDS, SATURDAY.

The annual family reunion of the descendants of the late Orson Packard will be held Saturday, August 9th at the Plymouth Tourist Camp, instead of Phoenix Park, as announced last week.

The following sketch was prepared and written by E. J. Quackenbush of Highland Park, Michigan:

Preface

A biographical sketch is really more than the history of one individual, because the record of one life is but a duplicate of many others, and the sketch becomes the real history of the settlement and growth of the section where the person lived. Such sketches are therefore of value and importance, not only to friends and relatives, but to others both young and old as the history of present civilization, how it came and what it cost. Too often we accept what is, without a thought of what it cost someone to secure it for us.

We believe that the early history of our state as worked out by the early pioneers should be taught to our children and young people more than it is, and that this can be done in no better way than by these biographical stories of our pioneer fathers and mothers. Just look around you and see what we have left to us by the work of these early pioneers. These schoolhouses, churches, beautiful farms, good homes, splendid roads and every facility for securing education, enjoying life, and the close fellowship of friends. Does it really mean anything to us or do we just take it for granted that they are ours without any thought of how they came or what they cost? I am afraid that we do not appreciate these things as we ought or have any conception of the struggle it cost to secure them. It was a struggle and a sacrifice, but full of interest and enjoyment for what costs most in struggle and sacrifice is most enjoyed and appreciated.

Today it is my privilege to bring you a sketch of the life of one of these early pioneers. I am glad to do this for it is of great personal interest, and because I feel it a duty to preserve and perpetuate the name and history of these sturdy people, who by their sacrifice and labors made possible this great and glorious American citizenship.

Orson Packard
Orson Packard was born in Macedonia, Wayne county, New York, January 23, 1806. He was married in Vermont, April 3, 1828, to Rhoda Raymond. Their parents were typical pioneers from farther east, and were no doubt descendants of the early Puritans or other early English emigrants. In 1829, he came to Michigan to look for a home, leaving his young and anxious bride mother eager for his return, and ready to take up the burden of life together far from their childhood home and friends. He located, bought and paid for a farm on section 22 of Salem township, Washtenaw county, and if I am not guessing too much built a small cabin as a shelter, and returned for his young bride and little daughter Mary (my mother).

In May, 1830, filled with enthusiasm, grit and gumption, they left their parental homes, and like the patriarchs of old, sought a new home in the far, far west. They came to Detroit, then only a small town, by boat from Buffalo, thence Plymouth by wagon and ox team, thence on foot through forest trail, he carrying the little daughter and his bride the ever ready rifle, to the little cabin home in the woods, among wild beasts and far from neighbors. It had been a two weeks' journey from their New York home of comfort and friends, to a strange land and a shelter of logs without window or floor, with bark roof for shelter from storms, and blankets for door to keep out howling wolves, bears and other wild beasts, and the ever present germ-carrying Michigan malaria mosquito.

Stop and picture this scene—a slow boat, slower oxen, still slower walking and a log cabin at last. Out of it can you gain a slight appreciation of the "set-up" of the "set-up" of today in the ease of comfort, heat and real living is somehow due to their grit, good health and common sense. No wonder grandfather was called a sober man, for the stern realities of life were staring him in the face, with no one but a wonderful, cheering woman companion and like the daughter to give encouragement. What would you have done? Notwithstanding all these difficulties, they began their home life in this wilderness, subject to all the privations and hardships of pioneer life, without neighbors, doctors, schools or churches, and with only his sturdy arm and rugged health, carved out a farm of beautiful fields, built a good home, where his children and grandchildren loved to come and have a most glorious time.

He died at the home of his youngest son, whose farm joined the old homestead, and lies buried in the old Lapham burial ground, one mile east of his old homestead.

Neighbors
The home to which he came was far from any neighbors. Soon however other settlers came, and those within a mile were considered very close. Their shopping, both as to clothing and food was done at Plymouth, then only a small collection of homes, with a flour mill and a store. While the distance was only six miles, it was a day's journey and a long "pack-a-back" home.

Education
Like all or nearly all of our early pioneers, Orson Packard and wife had only a limited rural school education, but ever mindful of its importance and value to the coming generation, their first outside interest was in providing a school for their children, and soon there was a school house built on the corner of their farm, and if I am not mistaken the baby girl emigrant became a teacher in that school.

Religion
The belief in and relation to God determines very largely our attitude and actions toward others. One's religion, therefore, in a way, becomes a measure of a person's value to his family and society. Orson Packard was intensely religious. Early in life he became a member of the Methodist church, and an active worker. Family worship and religious training was an ironclad rule in the family. In fact, he was called somewhat puritanical. Today we would call him a strong fundamentalist, believing in the infallibility of the Bible, the divinity of Christ, the miraculous birth, the atonement, the resurrection, heaven and hell. Orthodox from head to toe. Not given to argument nor easy to be convinced against his convictions. Knowing this we can easily understand a bit of history that has been of great interest to me, and one that I have spent some time in looking up.

Up to the year 1838, he continued a faithful and devoted member of his church. About that time, the members of that church became divided in regard to the stand the church took on the slavery question, as well as its attitude toward secret societies. Orson Packard was against slavery, and believing in the great dignity of the clergy could never quite reconcile a lodge member as his pastor. He was also living in the time of the anti-Masonic agitation.

About this time two circuit riders in this state, Rev. Marcus Swift and Rev. Elisha Bibbins, were in line for orders as elders in the Methodist church, but at the annual conference were refused ordination because of their stand on the two questions mentioned above. I have a letter that states that a meeting of the friends of the two ministers to consider these objections and to take some steps to have a voice in the church regarding these two questions was called to meet in the cabin shop of Samuel Bibbins in Plymouth, Wayne county. This meeting no doubt caused the break that followed.

In 1839, several classes of Methodist people living in and around Plymouth met at Thayer's schoolhouse, and took steps to form an organization that would conform to what they believed was right in the sight of the Lord. They gave it the name of the Wesleyan Methodist church, and appointed a committee to prepare a discipline that voiced their views. Whether this was the first organization of that church in America, I have been unable to discover or prove, as several other classes in other parts of Michigan and other states withdrew at about the same time. Orson Packard may not have been on the committee that wrote the discipline, but I do know that he was one of those who met and organized, and no doubt offered many a suggestion. A discipline was drawn up and called "The Wesleyan Discipline" after Dr. W. W. Phelps, a Unitarian at Ann Arbor. I have had a copy in my hands—it belongs to the Burton historical collection in the Detroit library. I have no doubt but what there are copies of this and other priceless records filed away in the garrets of homes in Salem township.

A conference of the seceding classes was called, as far as I can discover the first in the United States, at Thayer's Corners in 1841. Another conference was held at Lapham's Corners in 1842. So great had the secession become that a call for a general conference was made, to be held at Utica, New York. This general conference met in 1843, and adopted a discipline modeled after the one made at Thayer's Corners. This became the discipline of all Wesleyan churches in America.

From 1843 to 1855, this branch of the Methodist church grew rapidly and became a power in making history and men in the United States. There was a conference of this church, held at Lapham's Corners, near Orson Packard's farm, in 1842. The present Lapham's church was built in 1851, and cost $840. That amount represented many sacrifices in those days, and the church became a power for good in the community. These country churches occupied a unique position in those days. They built a community spirit, and became a center of community life. They were well attended, because members of the church felt it a religious duty to be faithful in attendance and others made it a social center.

Here it was that the young people met, clad in their finest raiment, and wearing their sweetest smiles. The church provided food for the soul and developed heart action. Attachments were often made that later developed into full fledged matrimonial bonds. I have very positive proof of that statement. Love matches were often made at church for God in love. Young people of today, with their movies and automobiles, have nothing on the early country churches in that line.

Orson Packard's family were regular attendants and worshippers in the Lapham's church, and he remained a member in good standing in the Wesleyan church until his death.

When I look around at the many descendants of this strong and rugged christian character, I can see evidence of the effect and results of such a character upon other lives, even to the third and fourth generation of relatives.

Descendants
Blood relations, 87; by marriage and adoption, 38; total, 125. Children, 8; grandchildren, 25; great grandchildren, 55; great great grandchildren, 36; great, great, great grandchild, 1. Of these 107 are still living, all but six of them in Michigan, and many of them in the vicinity of the homestead. Nearly every profession and calling is represented, except the ministry.

Many reminiscences of days spent with and at grandfather's, come to me, one of the most vivid being a real case of whipping administered to a cousin and myself for some boyish caper, which were altogether too common when we were together. Of one thing I can assure you, that there was discipline in the home even with the grandchildren, and "Spare the rod and spoil the child" was good Wesleyan doctrine.

Firestone Leads on Speedway with Five Record Breakers

When the race driver selects his tires he does so realizing that his life and chance for success depend upon them. It is significant that all of the ten money winners in the Indianapolis race were Firestone shoes. Firestone, using gum-dipping and other special processes, has developed tires to such a high degree of efficiency that at Indianapolis, May 30th, the following drivers broke the world's record for 500 miles over this brick track, making many rounds at over 100 miles per hour. Never before were tires put to such grueling service, where it was necessary for every ounce of rubber and every fibre of fabric to work in perfect unison with every other part.

Driver	Time	Miles per hour

Earl Cooper	5:08:57.11	97.94

Leadership in Everyday Service

Millions of motorists are profiting by the lengthened service of Firestone tires. Scores of unskilled technicians emphasize the long mileage Firestone Gum-Dipped Cores deliver—which builds leadership in service, safety and economy.

Leadership on Cabs, Buses and Trucks

The largest taxicab companies in the five largest cities in the United States use Firestone Gum-Dipped Cores exclusively. One fleet alone, the Yellow Cab Co. of Chicago, uses over one-half million tires yearly.

Firestone for years has been first to develop tires and tires combine which would meet the heavy trucking loads, great strains and demand for traction. By originating and carrying forward the Ship by Truck movement, and establishing Ship by Truck bureaus in all large cities, Firestone helped to speed up highway transportation and reduce costs.

Balloon Tire Leadership

Firestone's latest contribution to motoring is the low air pressure or Balloon Tire. This, the original full-size Balloon, was made practical by the special Firestone Gum-Dipping process, insulating every fibre of each cord, adding great strength and stamina. Firestone has also simplified the application of full-size Balloon tires to your present car by designing a special unit consisting of tires, tubes, rims and spokes applied by any dealer at a very low cost.

Leadership Against British Rubber Restriction Act

Attacking the unsound and uneconomic character of the British Rubber Restriction Act limiting the exportation of rubber from the Far East, Firestone was the one large tire manufacturer to take up the cause for the car owner. Soon after the agitation was started for America to produce rubber under its own control, the cost of arduous rubber was reduced and the price brought back to normal.

Dealer Leadership Through Tire Quality and Service

Through Firestone dealers you can obtain the greatest service and the promptest change in the market, whether you need a Ford 2017 or a Packard or a set of full-size Balloon Gum-Dipped Cores of a 10-horse truck tire.

GRANGE NOTES

This Friday evening will be Grange. Let us try to be present with a reminiscence of school days for roll call. The getting together will do us good.

We wish we could report Mrs. Spicer as much improved in health, but at this writing her condition is little changed.

It will be remembered that the Lily Club go to Island Lake, Sunday, August 10th, and attention is called that it is to be a pot-luck dinner, instead of basket picnic as previously stated.

It is hopeful a goodly number from our Grange may attend the annual picnic at Elizabeth park, Trenton, Saturday, August 9th. Basket picnic dinner is the order of the day.

MORE POLICE PROTECTION

Establishment of adequate policing of the outlying districts of Wayne county, has been a prominent part of the crime prevention program of Sheriff George A. Walters, who is a candidate for re-election.

Five sub-stations, with teams of regular deputies at each, have been set up over the county. They are located at Belleville, Northville, Redford, Grosse Point and at Eureka and Telegraph roads.

Each is constantly in touch with the headquarters of Sheriff Walters at the county building and the county jail, and calls for police assistance or investigation now can be responded to quicker than in any previous sheriff's administration.

Sheriff Walters has issued a statement calling upon all farmers and residents of outlying communities to ascertain the telephone number of sheriff's sub-station, nearest to them, so that they may summon the officers without delay whenever there may be need.

BAPTIST NOTES

The pastor's subject, Sunday morning was, "The Higher Christian Life." In the evening, the subject was, "The Great Commission." At the close of the morning service, the Lord's Supper was observed. A goodly number of the members sat together to remember their Lord. After the evening service the ordinance of baptism was administered to several persons.

It was said that no meeting of the B. Y. P. U. was held last Sunday evening. Most of the young people were away, or forgot their pledge. This was the first time for several years no meeting was held. We hope it won't occur again.

The pastor was called to Wixom, Sunday afternoon to preach the funeral sermon of James Palmer. For years he had not been well, owing to difficulties contracted in war. For five years he fought in Indian wars, out west on the border, and then in the Civil war.

BATHROOMS YIELD TWOFOLD BENEFITS

Two important advantages result when a modern bathroom is installed in a home.

First: The bathroom provides opportunity for the healthful practice of daily bathing. "A bath-a-day keeps you fit every way."

Second: A modern bathroom increases the property value, far more than the cost of having it installed. Houses that have modern bathrooms rent and sell for more.

A complete modern bathroom with its built-in or attached shower, medicine cabinet, bath stool and small fixtures (towel racks, tumbler holders), is a convenience worth many times its cost. In truth, it proves to be the room, of all, most comfortable.

Ask us to show you plans for complete modern bathing facilities in your home. Let the whole household enjoy the healthful practice of daily bathing. Modern fixtures—a complete bathroom—can be purchased for less than the cheapest automobile.

A Big Day in Plymouth

RECORD FARM CROWD GATHERS AT M. A. C.

OFFICIAL ESTIMATES SHOW ATTENDANCE OF SIX TO SEVEN THOUSAND AT AUGUST 1ST CONFERENCE.

The largest crowd of farm people that ever gathered for a single meeting of its kind in the history of Michigan agriculture, attended the seventh annual summer Farmers' Day at M. A. C. on August 1st.

Official attendance figures given out by E. B. Hill, chairman of the college farm day committee, placed the crowd at 6,000, an admittedly conservative estimate. Other estimates made by officials and visitors ran up to 8,000 and even 10,000.

After inspection of the college farm and experimental plots in the morning and a general visit to the buildings and barns, the crowd gathered under the campus trees for a basket picnic lunch at noon. Neighborhood and county groups from all sections of the state were in evidence during the luncheon hour.

Following inspection of the specially prepared agricultural exhibits, the crowd gathered in the outdoor meeting ground at one-thirty for the big afternoon conference. A special system of amplifiers carried the speakers' voices to all corners of the assemblage, which was spread out on the slope of the campus near the home economics building.

G. I. Christie of Purdue University; H. T. Horner of the M. A. C. economics department, and A. M. Brown of Schoolcraft, former secretary of the college, were the principal speakers. A special livestock "style review" of college animals featured the meeting, which was presided over by Acting President Robert S. Shaw, dean of agriculture at M. A. C.

DETROIT BUICK BRANCH MAKES RECORD.

The Plymouth Buick Sales Co. have received the following telegram from the Detroit Branch of the Buick Motor Co.:

"Our records for a single month's deliveries of new Buick automobiles from the Detroit branch were broken this month, when we delivered nine hundred fourteen cars. Accept personally our appreciation for the splendid assistance your organization gave us in making this record. It is doubly gratifying because it confirms our prediction that when the public drives the nineteen hundred twenty-five model, they will agree with us that the new Buick Six is a wonder."

WOMEN NEED NOT TELL THEIR AGE TO VOTE

OTHER INTERESTING SIGHTS ON COMING ELECTION RECITED BY BROWN.

"You cannot vote this year unless you register," points out Frederick B. Brown, Republican candidate for Prosecuting Attorney. "Re-registration is necessary in order to vote at the Primary election, Tuesday, September 9th, and the general election Tuesday, November 4th."

"You can re-register on any of the days appointed by the Board of Registration of your Township, Village or City."

FREDERICK B. BROWN

"Any citizen of the United States may register who is, or will be, 21 years of age on or before September 9th, 1924, and who will have lived in Michigan six months and in the Township or ward 21 days on or before that date. Anyone is a citizen who was born in the United States, or born abroad of alien parents, whose father, became naturalized prior to such person reaching the age of 21 years, or any person who has been fully naturalized."

"A married woman should register in her own name. That is, the wife of John Doe should register as Mary Doe, not as Mrs. John Doe. It is not necessary for a woman to state her exact age. It is only required that she state she is 21 years of age or upwards."—Advertisement.

Today's Reflections

An eastern doctor says the hearing is more acute when the eyes are closed. Maybe that's why so many men go to sleep in church.

Some Plymouth women can have a good time by sitting down and worrying because they haven't anything to worry about.

Sometimes a woman walks that way because she has corns on her toes, and sometimes she has corns on her toes because she walks that way.

Many a Plymouth wife can tell you that some men who were perfect babies in their infancy never got over it in old age.

Insurance men declare the span of life has been increased. Yes, but not at grade crossings.

Five children in a fiver and one dog in a limousine is about the way it averages up in most of our cities.

We overheard a Plymouth boy asking yesterday why, if it's legal to go twenty miles in an auto, it isn't twice as legal to go forty.

A fool and his money are soon parted, but what most people always want to know is where the fool got the money.

Sheriffs are always handy men. They're fine to have around to wind up a business when a non-advertiser lets it run down.

Those who think the foot-and-mouth disease doesn't affect human beings never watched a Plymouth gossip on her rounds.

Maybe the reason some men brag to their wives, is the same reason that makes them whistle when they pass a graveyard.

Another way to get rid of wars would be to have Jack Dempsey's manager arrange for them. He'd make fighting so costly no country could afford it.

These are days when the jealous Plymouth wife wonders when her husband starts out with a fishing pole, if he's going after speckled beauties or freckled beauties.

After all, a man is just as old as he feels, and a woman just as old as the tune she hums.

Scientists are still trying to communicate with Mars, and we heard a Plymouth man wondering the other day what they would ask Mars if they got it on the line.

Origin of the Lyre, as Legend Tells It

Tradition and mythology tell us that Hermes, messenger and herald of the gods, was walking along the banks of the Nile after it had overflowed and subsided, when he struck his foot against a heavy object. Looking down, he found it to be an old tortoise shell, with the dried sinews still stretched across it. He picked it up, like any other curious boy, and upon touching the sinews was amazed to hear musical sounds. Then, so the story runs, he sat down and constructed the first lyre! And tortoise shell to this day is the favored decoration of stringed instruments.

Whether or not we believe this fanciful story, it is quite certain that the Egyptians owned and played musical instruments centuries before the birth of Christ, or before Greece achieved her period of glory. Egyptian tombs have disclosed harps with strings of catgut which are in excellent condition despite their three thousand years' sleep.

The harp and lyre continued through Bible days as the only known musical instrument, but a step forward was made in the Middle Ages, when someone invented the psaltery, which was followed a short time later by the dulcimer. Both of these instruments were little more than boxes with strings across them, but they are of interest to music lovers because they represent the first attempt to make a sounding board. A small piece of quill was used to play them.

The first keyboard made its appearance in the Eleventh century. Small pieces of quill were attached to the end of the keys in a manner so they struck the strings when the key was touched, thus enabling the player to use both hands. The instrument itself was a box with a cover and strings of catgut arranged to form a half triangle, and it was known by the awesome name of clavichordium.

The Chew to Choose

YEARS of experience have shown you that BEECH-NUT Chewing Tobacco never stoops to conquer.

We don't use factory hash. We don't buy up cigar and pipe scrap. We don't pack dust and sweepings and stems. We don't cheapen BEECH-NUT Chewing Tobacco with indiscriminately purchased crops or bulk it by mixing in bitter, rancid, thick ground leaves.

BEECH-NUT is always a clean, pure, product, especially cut to just the right size and prepared through to sealing without one touch of human hands.

That's why it's still the biggest selling brand in the world. The truest friend 10c. ever had.

Huge Estates Held Up Progress of Mexico

For four hundred years less than ten thousand families have owned Mexico, says Ramon F. De Negri in the Survey. I do not mean merely controlled, influenced, directed, dominated, I mean physically owned and disposed of as a personal heritage. Humboldt said, "Mexico is the country of inequity. Nowhere does there exist such a fearful difference in the distribution of fortune, civilization, cultivation of the soil and population." It was more than slavery. It was a situation where one man owned not an estate, but a state, a kingdom almost.

When the Spaniards came and settled in Mexico, he came as a conqueror into a populated country. A system of encomiendas was developed by which he took the land of the conquered people and the people to work the land he had taken.

Cortes, for instance, claimed for himself some 26,000 square miles, including 22 towns with all the lands that these towns owned and all the people that lived in them—something over 115,000 men, women and children. With this possession went all the prerogatives of sovereignty, control over life and liberty and fortune, and this estate of Cortes, like most of the other large estates of Mexico, was entailed and persisted as a unit up to the beginning of the Nineteenth century. In fact, the records show that before disinheritment was imposed this particular estate had 18 villas, 157 pueblos, 89 haciendas, 119 ranchos, 5 estancias and contained 150,000 people—all of this the personal possession of the descendants of Cortes.

Nor was this the only large encomienda. Pedro de Alvarado received the district of Xochimilco with some 30,000 inhabitants. One of the favorites of the Spanish king was given what is now the entire state of Guanajuato. As early as 1572 there was 507 encomiendas. In addition, other large estates developed through one form or another. The result was that most of the free communal land holding of the days before the conquest disappeared. A small number of Spaniards owned practically all of inhabited Mexico as their private possession.

The Spanish kings at different times tried to destroy, to limit, to undermine the large estates of Mexico, but every attempt met with resistance, and many a law and decree of the king was marked by the viceroys, "Obeyed but not executed."

After 120 Years

On July 5, 1808, Capt. Meriwether Lewis and William Clark, commissioned by President Jefferson to explore the Northwest to the Pacific, left Washington, D. C., westward bound. Two and one-half years later, on March 23, 1809, having accomplished their objective after wintering on the banks of the Columbia, they turned their faces eastward and hurrying back they were able to recross the continent in eleven months.

A short time ago one man climbed into his airplane on the East coast at dawn and as twilight deepened into dusk along the shore of the Pacific he swung down through the mist and taxied across the field to a stop. The time elapsed on his journey, made without a mishap, is measured not in days and months and years, but in hours, minutes and seconds. The transcontinental trip that took Lewis and Clark more than two years to cover, Lieut. Russell L. Maughan, army flyer, accomplished in 18 hours, 16 minutes flying time. His average speed was 168.17 miles an hour.—From the St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Smoke Screen a Menace

The smoke screen, long used as a protective device for battleships, now becomes a menace to them, according to authorities of the united air service. A screen spread above a fleet of battleships by special smoke-emitters attached to fast small planes makes it impossible for the approach of the aerial bomb fleet to be observed. This enables the attacking planes to fly low, when, with sensitive fenders, they pick up the doomed battleship by sound, adjust their aim and loose the bomb in safety except for the possibility of a chance shot fired blindly against the pall of smoke by the anti-aircraft guns on the ship below.

It is a strange thing to find the screen employed as a weapon of offense against the very craft which originally produced it as a defensive measure.

Irrigation's Reward

Bahawalpur, an independent Indian state, is now a mere fringe of cultivation bordering upon the Indus river and southern Punjab. With the completion of the Sukkur barrage and Sutlej canal, however, practically 2,000,000 acres, especially adapted to wheat and cotton, will be added to the crop acreage of the state, which bids fair to become one of the richest in that region. It is estimated that the present population of 750,000 will be increased by 800,000 colonists from other parts of India.

Ear Splitting Silence

Flynn and O'Leary were employed as extra men in the repair shop of a large hardware concern. The "boys" were all old friends and they jostled and sang and whistled without letup. Said Flynn: "This is the noisiest place I ever worked in, Pat."

Said O'Leary: "I believe, ye, Mike. Th' only toime it's quiet here is when some one starts the gas engine and drowns th' noise."—Good Hardware.

HARD SLEDDING TO GET AN EDUCATION

Youth of Early America Had No Primrose Path.

We often hear "the good old days" spoken of with much feeling, and do not stop to consider that the present days are far and away better. In the matter of an education, for instance, it was so difficult a matter to acquire one that only the most determined student had the courage to face and overcome the obstacles which beset his path, remarks a writer in the Kansas City Times.

The schoolhouses were poor and uncomfortable, but the books and the teachers were worse. Every one of the thirteen colonies, except Rhode Island, required the building of schoolhouses and the education of children at a very early date. In 1636, only six years after the settlement of Boston, the central court voted one-half of the income of the entire colony to the establishment of a school, and later this became Harvard college.

However, this thirst for knowledge, it may be noted, was not always approved. Governor Berkeley, that narrow-minded Englishman, wrote home in 1670, "Thank God that in Virginia there are no free schools, and no printing, and I hope we shall not have them, for they bring heresy and disobedience."

But up to 1700 small groups were gathered in Virginia neighborhoods under a teacher, or young men were sent to England for an education. Sometimes, in an old deserted tobacco house, a number of the neighborhood children from nearby plantations were gathered for daily lessons. In one of these old fieldhouses, as they were commonly called, a certain character of the times—a man known as "Hobby"—taught such a little school for some years. It is from him that George Washington is said to have gained much of his education. "Hobby" was a stern, pedagogue, and the most concerted man of his times, if records may be relied upon.

After this, Washington rode on horseback to a smaller school ten miles away. The next year he rowed across to Fredericksburg each morning to a teacher, and back again at night, and this completed his attendance at school.

Gaining even this degree of education had not been easy, but, as with all other tasks undertaken by Washington, his own part was conscientiously performed. The notebooks and pamphlets used in the classes at Fredericksburg have been carefully preserved and prove painstaking care. They are now in the library of congress.

In 1847 it was required that every county of 50 families provide a school, and if a family had children and no means to pay for their schooling it was ordered that they be sent free of charge. But it was not until after the Revolution that free schools as we know them existed in America—that is, schools provided for by taxes. When the schools of Boston were made free, the country was at once marked for its liberality, not only at home but in Europe, as such an experiment had been tried no place else in the world.

But it was the teacher who took the chance at this early date, for her pay was in beans, peas, skins, corn meal or any of the exchanges used for money. A child was kept seated by the open window, to watch out for possible purchasers of these things. In 1738 all children were ordered barred from the fire whose fathers had not sent their share of fuel. But this must not have been a popular ruling nor one which long endured.

Evasive "M. Esk"

A Paris messenger boy with an expensive letter spent a hot half hour vainly searching for a "M. Esk," says the Continental edition of the London Mail. That was how he read the name on the envelope. But the concierge had never heard of M. Esk. She thought of her clients one by one but declared that no person by the name of M. Esk could possibly live on the premises. But the boy had faith in the address. He set to work to search the building for M. Esk. It was a big block of flats and it took some time to ring at every door to inquire if the mysterious M. Esk lived there. But he was rewarded. An Englishman answered the door at one flat and claimed the letter. But the letter was addressed thus: "John Jones, Esq." And this is quite a sufficient explanation of the messenger boy's difficulty.

New Plastic Wood Product

A British concern is now manufacturing a colloid preparation made with finely ground wood. It comes in the form of a soft putty. It can be molded and shaped with the hands or tools. The material is said to be waterproof and to set hard, after which it can be worked with tools much the same as natural wood. Nails may be driven into it without cracking it. If desired it may be softened after it has set by the application of a special solvent. Plastic wood, as the product is called, is expected to be particularly useful for pattern-makers and molders.

Need Universal Language

With the growth of air flying as a civil method of transportation a great need is being found for a universal air language. A good wireless operator attached to the big airplane stations really needs to know English, French, Chinese, Dutch, German, Spanish and Italian to be 100 per cent efficient in his duties.

SCIENCE UNABLE TO PRODUCE A DIAMOND

Inability to Compete With Nature Is Conceded

For more than twenty years Sir Charles Parsons, the inventor of the turbine engine, has been seeking to solve the mystery of the origin of the diamond, and a few weeks ago he confessed at a meeting of the Royal Microscopical society, that after spending thousands of dollars in his search for a solution he had been forced to the conclusion that the manufacture of artificial diamonds was impossible.

In the last fifty years many eminent scientists have tried to make diamonds in the laboratory, and some have claimed to have succeeded. The late Sir William Crookes, in language anyone could understand, gave the apparently simple formula for manufacturing diamonds when he said that the process consisted simply of dissolving charcoal (for a diamond is just charcoal, or graphite) in a liquid, and waiting for the dissolved substance to separate into crystals by slow evaporation. The ultimate crystals would, he said, be true diamonds. Nature thus transforms carbon into diamonds by subjecting it to enormous pressure and temperature in the earth.

The French chemist, Henri Moissan, subjected carbon to temperatures around 3,000 degrees C., and pressures, exceeding fifteen tons to the square inch, the carbon being enclosed in pure iron. The crucible containing the iron and carbon was then plunged into cold water, which had the effect of solidifying the iron, which enclosed the carbon in a giant grip. In this condition the dissolved carbon separated out as hard, transparent, crystalline fragments indistinguishable from a true diamond. But the largest "diamond" Moissan was able to produce was scarcely visible to the naked eye. Thousands side by side could be comfortably accommodated in the space of one inch.

Sir William Crookes himself was convinced that Moissan's crystals were true diamonds, and later repeated the French chemist's experiment with similar results. That was eighteen years ago, but since then none of the many that have worked at the problem have succeeded in manufacturing a diamond big enough to compete with the smallest natural diamond.—Detroit News.

Oysters Hearty Eaters

Oysters apparently live to eat. Prof. Thurlow C. Nelson of Rutgers college, who has made a study of the lives and diets of these favored adjuncts of the diet of man, has found that eating is their main activity. At least it takes up the most of their time. But they like a warm dining room.

If the temperature of the water in which they live is as high as 68 degrees Fahrenheit, Professor Nelson found the oysters eat about 20 hours a day. At least they kept their shells open and sucked the water in through their gills during that period. But a sudden drop in temperature often resulted in a decrease in the number of hours of activity. When the water temperature fell below 40 degrees, the oysters seemed to lose their appetite and feeding practically ceased.

The reason for this continued enjoyment of their rations on the part of the oysters may be seen from a consideration of the minute size of the creatures which form their food. Most of these, diatoms, spores and pieces of algae, are so small we need microscopes to see them, and it takes many millions of them to keep an oyster on the active list.—Science Service.

Real "Sky Pilot"

"Sky Pilot," as a nickname for a clergyman, will soon have more definite significance if the example of Rev. L. Daniels, who is in charge of a parish in New South Wales, is widely followed. The minister is now in London, England, to make an appeal for a single-seat airplane to enable him effectively to travel among the members of his congregation over a parish as large as all England. His district, Wilcannia, in the far west corner of the Australian states, has an area of 40,000 square miles. It consists of a number of small townships, many of which are about 200 miles away from his home station. Then, too, there are scattered sheep farms and isolated homesteads. Rev. Daniels will be glad to manage his own plane if he gets it, for he was trained as a pilot during the war.

Amateur Gets Busy

According to Good Hardware, an order recently received by a seed firm runs: "Please send me one dozen strawberry seeds and one bee and hive complete, one dozen plum seeds, ten square yards of grass, six wall flowers with sections of wall and one safety lawn mower and plow combined. Send also enough baskets to hold the strawberry and plum crops and back covers for the honey. The grass should be green and the seeds a favor unpopular with the chickens."—Boston Transcript.

Absent-Minded Barber

The barber on our block had a sad experience. A flogger came in to get her hair bobbed. There is money in the business, and he thought he might please her so much that she would bring in her mates. But after bobbing her hair he absent-mindedly started to lather her for a shave.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

VILLAGE COMMISSION MEET

At the meeting of the village commission, last Monday evening, the regular routine of business was transacted. E. C. Hough appeared before the commission regarding the depth of the grading being done on West Ann Arbor street. Mr. Hough asked that the commission appoint a committee to look the street over with a view of raising the grade more in contour to the lay of the land. Tuesday afternoon the entire commission looked over the project and made some recommendations for raising the grade, which are being carried out by the engineers. J. Mr. Hough also made a strong protest regarding the sale of water outside the village limits. He pointed out that it should be conserved for the use of citizens of the village and the industrial enterprises, which are vital to our future growth and progress. The mail agrees most heartily with Mr. Hough's ideas regarding this matter, and we believe there are hundreds of others who are of the same opinion. At the present time we have not got a drop of water to spare outside the village.

J. B. Hubert of the Peoples State Bank of Plymouth, was present and asked the commission to make that bank a depository for a part of the village funds, the amount to be left to the commission. The matter was laid on the table for further consideration.
