

MANY NEW HOUSES BEING BUILT IN PLYMOUTH

New Buildings Going Up in Every Part of the Village, Which Shows Plymouth to Be Growing Steadily.

There was never a time in the history of Plymouth when there was as much building going on as at the present time. In every part of the village new houses have either just been completed or are under course of construction. Thirty-one houses were counted under construction last week, and several more have been started since. Without a doubt more than one hundred houses will be built in Plymouth before the season closes. With all the houses that have been built, it is almost impossible to find a house to rent. Many inquiries are made at the Mail office for houses to rent, and if they were to be had, fifty or more houses could be rented at once.

Work has been resumed on the new I. O. O. F. building on South Main street, and it will be pushed to a rapid completion.

The new branch bank building to be erected by the Plymouth United Savings Bank at the corner of Stark-weather avenue and Liberty street, will be another fine building for the village.

Several other business blocks are under consideration at the present time.

One of the big building projects which is now nicely under way is the big plant of the General Machine & Iron Works, which is located in the new East Lawn subdivision, on the Toledo division of the Pere Marquette.

Plymouth is not in the midst of a boom, but we are enjoying something that is far better and more substantial—a healthy, steady growth, that augurs well for our future prosperity and development.

OFFICERS WIN OPENING BALL GAME

The House of Correction won their first game of the season, from the Windsor Athletics, 11 to 2, last Sunday afternoon on the farm grounds. The Officers took the lead in the first inning and held it. Betts, on the mound for the Athletics, tried to hold the Officers, but was removed for McLach, but the Officers, having their batting eye, McLach was sent to the showers in the sixth, and then Bolton finished for the Athletics. A. Jaska, for the Officers, was in his old stride, and was never in danger, and working his slow ball over time, kept the Athletics guessing, allowing only six hits.

The sky dark and looking like rain any minute did not keep the many fans away, the new large grand stand and both side lines being full of enthused spectators.

HOWARD-SHELDON

A very pleasant and happy event was the marriage of Ray Howard of Farmington, and Miss Clara Ions Sheldon of Clearmont, Florida, at the Baptist parsonage, last Friday morning at 10:30. Duane Sayles, an old chum of Mr. Howard, came down from Kalamazoo, to act as best man. Miss Lucia Howard, the groom's sister, was bridesmaid. Rev. H. E. Sayles read the ring ceremony, and pronounced them husband and wife.

Mr. Howard is well known all through the Wayne Association, having been elected president of the B. Y. P. U. several years. Miss Sheldon has been connected with the bank at Clearmont, Florida, and the last year with the Ford Motor office of the same place. All wish them a happy life.

OUR MOTHERS

On next Sunday, May 10, the entire nation will join in paying its annual tribute to Mothers. Whether it be through special programs in the churches; schools or public halls, matters not—Mothers will not be forgotten. The busy man who has much to engross his mind, even on Sunday, will not be too busy to breathe a silent prayer for the happiness, the peace and the contentment of mankind's greatest earthly friend—Mother. If she has passed on, then it will be a prayer for a peaceful sleep throughout eternity. If she is living, it should be a prayer spoken aloud, and to her—either by lips or letter.

At any rate, Mothers will not be forgotten on this day dedicated to them. Residents of Plymouth and throughout the entire commonwealth will join with their brothers and sisters in the other 47 states in the union in paying a fitting tribute to Mother. White flowers will be worn in memory of her, and thoughts will turn to the days, now sweet in memory, when we nestled close beside her, basked in her smiles, and learned those lessons which have helped us over the rough places in life's pathway.

We live in a busy world, a world in which the struggle for existence seems to grow more difficult as the years roll on. We have our tasks to perform, and our worries to contend with. But we are meant to hold even the smallest space in this world if we forget on next Sunday to join in some kind of a tribute to the one who made it possible for us to have a place in the world—Mother.

CHAMPION SPELLERS IN NEARBY RURAL SCHOOLS

The Detroit News Announces Another List of Champion Spellers in the Elimination Matches Held Last Week.

The Best Speller in the Metropolitan Area Will Represent Detroit at National Spelling Bee Next June.

MANY NOTED ARTISTS AT MAY FESTIVAL

SOME DETAILS OF ARRANGEMENT FOR CONCERT SERIES GIVEN BY DIRECTOR.

Ann Arbor's Thirty-Second Annual May Festival which will take place in Hill Auditorium, May 20, 21, 22 and 23rd is attracting an unusual amount of favorable comment from critics and music lovers far and wide and a large number of distinguished personages from various parts of the country have indicated their intention of being present. Representatives of music journals from New York and Chicago as well as many of the country's great newspapers will be on hand while officers of various music schools will gather for the purpose of not only hearing the concerts but gathering first hand information as to the problems involved in planning and carrying out such an important event.

On this occasion the services of eleven of the world's greatest singers, two great instrumentalists, an adult chorus of 300 voices, a children's chorus of 500 singers, an orchestra of 70 players, with conductors, accompanists, librarians and other functionaries, have to do with the program.

The Festival must be considered as a unit of which each concert is an important part and yet each concert must in a sense be considered as a whole for not all attendants hear the entire festival. To properly evaluate and balance the musical resources of various factors involved requires a keen sense of eternal fitness of things as well as an understanding of musical psychology of the listeners.

The orchestra will participate in five of the concerts, part of the time holding the fore as the principal producer and then, again, stepping into the background as an accompaniment for the choral and solo offerings. The Choral Union must shift from the presentation of such works as those of Bach to the never of Rachmaninoff as exemplified in "The Bells" and then again must adapt itself to the operatic style of Ponchinelli's "La Gioconda" which will receive its first Ann Arbor performance. The Children's chorus will appear in miscellaneous songs suitable to the youthful enthusiasm of youngsters as well as offering "Alice in Wonderland," a most suitable cantata.

Standing out in relief against this choral and orchestra background will be the offerings of the soloists, ranging the way from brilliant operatic prima-donnas to the deepest basses of opera fame. The musical curiosity of all who are looking for the sensational should be satisfied by the appearance of the much talked about and suddenly-made-famous, Lawrence Tibbett, who will make his Festival debut on this occasion after a most spectacular "operatic career. Interpersed with song birds will be instrumental solo offerings by two of the world's greatest performers, Ossip Gabrilowitsch, pianist, and Mischa Elman, violinist, both of whom are recognized as the world's greatest.

To hear them, accompanied by the Chicago orchestra under the baton of Mr. Stock will be a rare opportunity. The complete list of attractions is as follows:

Emily Stokes Hagar, Frances Peralta, and Augusta Lenka, sopranos; Loretta Degnan and Kathryn Meisle, contraltos; Rhys Morgan and Mario Chamlee, tenors; Charles Wittmann, Lawrence Tibbett, Vincenzo Ballester and Henry Scott, baritones and basses; Ossip Gabrilowitsch, pianist and Mischa Elman, violinist; Chicago Symphony Orchestra, Frederick Stock, conductor; University Choral Union, Earl V. Moore, conductor; Children's chorus, Joseph E. Maddy, conductor.

We publish below a list of the names of the school champion spellers, determined in the elimination matches held last week in the Metropolitan Spelling Bee which the Detroit News is conducting in 400 schools of the Metropolitan Area to determine the best speller in the district to send to Washington next June to represent Detroit in the National Spelling Bee.

The word at the end of each paragraph is that which the champion's last opponent missed, and by spelling which correctly, the champion won.

DAYLIGHT SAVING

The advent of May brought the usual tangle of time throughout the country, "daylight saving" time having gone into effect in various sections. Since there is no uniformity in the change, endless confusion is being caused in many states both east and west of the Mississippi river. In many instances cities and towns within a dozen miles of each other are operating under two different kinds of time, while the railroads running through them generally operate under still another time.

Plymouth citizens who have at some time or another been the victims of this annual shifting of clock hands will learn with much pleasure that an organization known as the National Daylight Saving Association has been formed to work out some method whereby there will be uniformity in time all over the United States. At present residents of the rural sections are opposed to moving the clock hands up an hour every spring and back every fall. In our larger towns and cities, however, where the residents are employed in factories, stores and offices, the faster time is favored in the summer months since it enables the workers to quit an hour earlier, thus affording them an hour more of daylight in the later afternoon.

At any rate the new organization is going to try to bring order out of chaos, though it realizes that it has a hard job ahead. We had uniformity of time during the war, when the entire country was on a daylight saving schedule. But then we were at war. Now that we are living in a time of peace we've more leisure in which to argue over the subject—and the argument bids fair to last a long, long time.

TWO MANY BUREAUS

The child labor amendment to the U. S. constitution has been defeated. Only a few state legislatures have voted for ratification, and many of them have rejected it. There is a possibility, but a very small one, that some of the states may recommend it later on. Already this country has too many bureaus at Washington, too much "regulation" and "commission," all of which makes too much taxes. The log-rollers who have nothing better to do than try and create more public offices are becoming decidedly unpopular with the people of this nation. Of course, no right-thinking person wants to see little children toiling in the fields and factories, but that is not the point. The states know what is good for their own citizens, so let them frame their own laws to cover their own conditions. When more of that is done our taxes will be lowered, our laws will be more adaptable to the sections for which they are intended, and the people of the entire nation will be happier and far more prosperous.

WE LIVE AND LEARN

We'll venture to say there isn't a garden in all this neck of the woods without a few feet planted to potatoes. And yet we read in an old agricultural report that it took people more than 100 years to discover that potatoes were good to eat. In 1728, when an attempt was made to introduce potatoes into Scotland, they were denounced on the ground that they were not mentioned in the Bible, and, therefore, unfit for christians to eat, and because they were supposed to cause leprosy and fever. Ask any of the older citizens of Plymouth, and they can possibly remember when tomatoes were considered deadly poisonous and fit only to grace the mantle or center table for ornamental purposes. The same is true of a great many other things we now eat and enjoy, and maybe in the years to come gardens will contain the very articles we now look upon as dangerous. There's a good deal of truth in the old statement that "we live and learn."

"MISS PANSY'S MAY PARTY"

There was a large attendance at the High school auditorium, Tuesday evening, when "Miss Pansy's May Party" was given by forty-one children of the First A and Second B grades. The children in the characters of flowers, bees, birds, butterflies, sunfairies, stars, Jack Frost and Lady Moon, all did their parts well, and the large audience was very appreciative of their efforts. The special features between the acts were also very good. About sixty-seven dollars were cleared from the entertainment, which will be used to purchase pictures for the school room. Miss Stader, the teacher of these two grades, under whose supervision the play was given, desires to thank the mothers of the children for their assistance in making the entertainment the success it was.

Today's Reflections

Most any Plymouth married man can tell you that the honeymoon is over about the time she asks: "Why don't you eat something besides meat and potatoes?"

Never mind whether it is proper to say a hen is "sitting" or "setting." The main thing is whether she is laying or lying.

We heard a wise Plymouth woman say a few days ago that marriage is a good deal like going to school—too many quit before they finish the course.

A Georgia judge says a man has the right to spank his own wife. But we'll bet he never tries to carry out his own decree.

If more children in this country were properly brought up, fewer would have to be sent up.

Most any Plymouth man is willing to go on a diet if he does not have to give up anything but carrots and salad dressing.

Austrian scientists claim to have found bones buried 200,000 years ago. Wonder if they've found the dog that buried them?

A movement has been started in New York to preserve wild life. It is certainly the proper place to start such a movement.

One of the hardest things to do that we know of is to convince a Plymouth family that an auto is a luxury and easy to do without.

The trouble with many of us is that we are interested in great men's lives only because it brings us a few holidays every year.

You can lose anything these days. We see where a St. Louis man is advertising for a 250-pound wife that has strayed away.

The only Plymouth man who yearns for a younger wife is the one who doesn't know how darned old he looks.

With increased cost of baggy-legged pants and the big consumption of cigarettes, a college education is getting more expensive every day.

It's about as easy for the average Plymouth man to start a garden as it is for the weeds to take it a little later on.

PATCHEN SCHOOL NOTES

(By Ruby Kipp)

Last Friday night the P. T. A. held its last meeting of the school year.

April 24th, the Junior Club of the upper grades held its monthly meeting at the home of Henrietta Gohl. Ice cream and cake were served.

The Fifth, Sixth and Seventh grades are practicing for the field meet, to be held at Elizabeth Park, June 6th.

Everyone enjoyed the entertainment which was given at the Patchen school.

Last week we enjoyed slides on the corn borer, and were benefitted by them.

Tuesday night the children had a radio party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Freshman.

The school term closes next week.

ELM

Sunday-school at the regular hour next Sunday morning.

The monthly meeting of the Parent-Teachers' Association was held in the school house Tuesday evening, May 5. The speaker of the evening was Mr. Hathaway, the Presbyterian minister of Plymouth. He gave us a splendid talk on a code of morals that was made out by Dr. Hutchins of a girls' mountain school at Berea, Kentucky.

The code consisted of ten laws, the laws of loyalty, duty, reliability, good workmanship, kindness, team work, clean play, health, self reliance and self control. Joseph Tracy gave four beautiful solos during the evening that were enjoyed by all.

The Ford Hiwilians were at Elm again last Friday night, and gave another of their wonderful programs.

Mrs. George Bentley entertained Mrs. Ralph Stringer, Wayne County Council president, and Mrs. George Michelin, Elm P. T. A. president, at a noon luncheon, Friday. The day was spent working on a Junior P. T. A. program for special work among the children next year.

Miss Cleo Maher, teacher at the Booth Home school, made a flying trip to New York, over the week-end, to attend the wedding of one of her college classmates, stopping at Bay City on her return trip.

Booth school is preparing for the final examinations, which take place June 17th and 18th.

Mrs. G. Barrows, matron of Booth Home, attended a birthday celebration, given at the Detroit Athletic Club, last Monday. Swimming, gymnastics and athletic sports were features of the evening.

Mrs. George Bentley and Mrs. George Michelin were dinner guests of Mrs. Ralph Stringer last Monday evening. In the evening they were joined by the music and athletic instructors of Redford schools, who contributed their support to the program for Junior P. T. A.

Mrs. Clyde Bentley has improved so much in health that she was able to leave the hospital last Saturday, and is visiting her mother for a few weeks.

Plans have started, to give a hard time party and old fashioned dance the last of this month, in the Elm school house. The building is to be all remodeled, so to celebrate its close of so many years' service, the P. T. A. invites everybody that ever went to school at Elm, and their families and friends to join them at this party and have a good old fashioned time. We want everybody from the baby to the granddad, Fred Wilson, Dan McKinney, Bud Shaffer and Mr. Brew have offered their services to play the piano and fiddle, so you better plan to come along with the crowd. Dale Wilson, George Bentley and George Michelin are the committee in charge.

The Elm P. T. A. and teachers will make plans to take the pupils of the graduation exercises at Elizabeth Park, the first Saturday in June.

School closes at Elm about May 22.

The road men have the cement laid on the Middle Belt or Elm road, as far as the Five-Mile road.

Hard to Find Anything That Really Is "New"

The principle of the rotorship, the most sensational of recent inventions, is acknowledged by its inventor to be based upon an invention of Doctor Magnus, made no less than seventy-five years ago.

Of all proverbs there is perhaps none truer than that there is "nothing new under the sun," and the more you study the history of inventions the more deeply you become convinced of its verity.

Take, for instance, wireless. So long ago as 1842 Professor Morse sent signals across the Susquehanna river merely by means of wires stretched along the banks.

Twelve years later, in 1854, that amazing Scot, James Lindsay, read a paper before the British association in which he boldly stated that if wires were run along the coasts of America and Britain, and properly charged, he could send messages across the Atlantic.

Penny-in-the-slot machines were used in the London coffee houses so long ago as 1829. They were in the shape of a tobacco-jar, which stood upon a table and had a slot in which a penny had to be inserted in order to obtain a pipeful of tobacco. Exactly as in the modern machine, the weight of the coin depressed a lever and released a lock.

The motor car, too, is much more ancient than most of us think, for the first automobile constructed by Cugnot, in 1769, is still on view in a Paris museum. By 1835 numbers of mechanically propelled vehicles were moving upon English roads. In the "Erin," a motor coach of that date, twenty people traveled comfortably.

Four years earlier, in 1831, a horseless coach, constructed by Fane, plied regularly between Cheltenham and Gloucester. It covered in all nearly four thousand miles, and carried three thousand passengers at an average speed of twelve miles an hour. A submarine boat was exhibited in the Thames in the year 1825, and Fulton, the American inventor, built one for Napoleon.

Even the typewriter is a great deal older than most of us imagine, for there is a record of an application for a patent for a machine of this kind in the same year that Queen Anne died.

The Extreme Edge

"Eleanor could be happy with anybody," said Henry, "only she must have sympathy."

"Diana blinked. 'She appeals to you very strongly, it appears.'"

"'All her sex appeal to me very strongly,' said Henry, 'You see, I travel along the extreme edge of the straight and narrow, so most of the women I run up against are like myself on the right track, but only just, and liable to wobble off. Awfully nice people, you know.'"

"Diana smiled with tight lips. 'Don't you think that if you went along the middle of the road you'd meet nicer ones still?' she asked."

"'Oh, nicer, I suppose, yes,' said Henry, with a little sigh, 'but for good company, give me the edge.'—From "Mischief," by Ben Travers.

Picked Up About Town

"If everybody spent as much time hunting for work as they spend hunting for trouble," declares Dad Plymouth, "we'd get about ten times as much work done."

"Work never hurt anyone," asserts Dad Plymouth. And as proof of it he points to the long hours some fellows put in whittling on a cracker box.

The season of swatting the baseball has opened, and swatting the fly time is next in order.

Dad Plymouth is authority for the statement that if the farmers followed the advice of our "city farmers" and "agricultural experts" the nation would starve to death in ten years.

"In the spring a young man's fancy," says Dad Plymouth, "consists in sitting down and watching somebody else do the work."

We used to strike up a friendship with a stranger by discovering that we both belonged to the same lodge. Now we do it by discovering that the stranger drives the same kind of a car that we drive.

Dad Plymouth declares that just about the time a fellow learns to drive his new auto, he has to turn in and learn how to drive the wolf from the door.

CATCHING CASH CUSTOMERS

A show window, of course, is intended to attract the eye of people passing by and thus induce them, either then or later, to enter and buy. Not all who stop and look can be expected to come inside and buy, but it is clear that a store window stopping say 50 people an hour will gather in more customers than a window stopping 25 people an hour.

FORMER PLYMOUTH BOY MARKING GOOD.

Thomas S. Lieth, a former Plymouth boy, is building a handsome new business block at Brighton, where he resides. The new building is to be 66x100 feet, fronting on Grand River avenue, and will cost, including fixtures and site, approximately $50,000. The block will contain a bank, hotel and insurance office. The new bank will be known as the Brighton First National Bank. Several prominent Detroit men as well as local citizens are associated with Mr. Lieth in the organization of the new bank.

MUNICIPAL NOTES

The village is co-operating at the corner of the Plymouth road and Mill street in widening the concrete pavement at that point. While they are pouring concrete, the walk and curb on the Van De Car corner will be repaired.

The note in last week's Mail concerning the "usual" amount of rubbish picked up by the village trucks, will have to be revised. The quantity taken to the dump was far greater than over before. While we are talking about rubbish, the store keepers along Main street, whose property runs back to the creek are not showing a very good spirit of co-operation, when they allow so much stuff to drop into and clog the creek. It looks "awful." These men should take just as much interest in keeping that creek clear and clean as they expect the village to.

How much more room on Main street and Penniman avenue for parking purposes would there be if the local people left their machines at home Saturday afternoon and evening? Perhaps more of our neighbors could find a convenient place to park. Think it over.

The Detroit Tank Company starts this week to overhaul our steel water tank and give it its periodic coat of paint. The fire siren will be moved to this tank while they are here, and the old tower behind the village hall removed.

Bids are being advertised for the construction of 15,700 linear feet of sewers for our sanitary sewer system. These will be opened the evening of May 18th. That same night bids will be opened for the sale of $12,000.00 sewer bonds.

John Alden Home Rich in Historic Interest

New England is still rich in the old landmarks and homes of pioneer settlers. One does not have to go far from New York to come across these ancient monuments and habitations. Situated close to the South Shore tracks and a short walk from the Duxbury station stands the house that was the home of the girl for whom the big Fall river steamer Priscilla was named and of her husband, John Alden.

"Leaving the Duxbury station going toward Plymouth," says the New York Times, "the house is on the left hand side of the train and can be plainly seen from the car windows. It is undoubtedly one of the most historic houses in America. While it is very properly called the John Alden house, it was actually built by his son, Jonathan Alden, in 1633.

"The old house is well worth a visit. Entering at the front door, the parlor on the left, the great room on the right. The great room, in fact, all the rooms are filled with fine and rare old-fashioned furniture. Across the ceiling of the great room can be seen the immense beams used in the construction of early colonial houses and the wrought-iron 'H' hinges to the closet doors. In the great room there are two rare engravings by John Jones, London, valued at $500 each.

"There is also a punchbowl 225 years old, some rare and beautiful glassware and some Lowestoft ware, including a rare helmet pitcher; a beautiful secretary with a secret drawer also adorns this room, as well as a small table actually used by John Alden and Priscilla. In the kitchen is the huge open fireplace with a capacity for four-foot logs; also a brick oven and the usual assortment of utensils in connection therewith; sets of wooden and pewter ware and much rare china. Off the kitchen is a small room in which both John Alden and Priscilla died.

Restored to Beauty

Experiments carried out by an architect have restored to light long covered beauties in London's oldest buildings, many of which have become sad specimens in their drab coverings of stucco or plaster. Lincoln's Inn hall was stripped of its sheath of dirty gray stucco by an architect who was seeking a new method of exterior adornment. To his delight the architect found the warm red brickwork underneath as fresh and colorful as it was hundreds of years ago. The same method was adopted with the famous old gate house of Lambeth palace, believed by antiquaries to be the oldest specimen of red brick in London. Its rich color had been hidden for more than 300 years under a thick covering of plaster, which, when removed, left the gate as it was designed by Archbishop Morton in 1480.

Seek to Stop Blasphemy

An Italian society is conducting a vigorous popular campaign against blasphemy with the approval of the church. In many Italian cities one may see posted on the walls hundreds of such admonitions as "Blasphemy soils your mouth and detracts from the forcefulness of your speech" and "When you blaspheme you make yourself ridiculous." In Florence a society seeks by similar methods to remind the public of the ten commandments. The pedestrian, rounding a corner, may suddenly find himself face to face with enormous letters admonishing him, "Thou shalt not steal," or the other thou shalt not. Antblasphemy days are common in many Italian cities, and are the occasions for splendid public processions, in which the local clergy take part.

BRIGGS SCHOOL NOTES

(By Alma Wagenschultz)
There was no school last Thursday and Friday, as our teacher, Mrs. Watson, had to take teachers' examinations.

Miss Barrington, the county nurse, visited school Tuesday.

Lucile Ash won first place in our sewing club work, and her garments have been taken to Wayne for the County Exhibition.

Our school had ninety-six per cent attendance last month.

Marie Humphries is absent from school on account of the death of her grandmother, Mrs. Willis.

ATHLETICS

WHAT MAKES FOR SUCCESS IN LIFE

E. W. Howe Comments on Burroughs' Philosophy.

John Burroughs, in summing up his life, said that he did what he most wanted to do in the world, what he was probably best fitted to do, not as a result of deliberate planning or calculation, but by simply going with the current, that is, following his natural bent, and refusing to run after false gods.

"Riches and fame and power, when directly pursued, are false gods.

"If a man deliberately says to himself, 'I will win these things,' he has likely reckoned without his host. His host is the nature within and without him, and that may have something to say on the subject."

"But if he says, 'I will do the worthy work that comes to my hand, the work that my character and my talent may bring me, and I will do it the best I can,' he will not reap a barren harvest."

It must be true that the majority of persons are disappointed in life. They have wanted something for nothing. They have tried short cuts to fame and fortune and have not been willing to pay the price of success.

False gods cost us the most unhappiness.

"Can there be any theory or doctrine not connected with our practical lives so absurd that it will not be accepted as true by many people?" Burroughs muses in an essay. "How firmly was a belief in witchcraft held by whole populations for a generation! My grandfather believed in it, and in spooks and hobgoblins."

"If anyone were seriously to urge that we really walk on our heads instead of our heels, and cite our hardness as proof, there are persons who would believe him."

Every man must build up a philosophy of tried principles he can rely upon. And, observes E. W. Howe, the strength and extent of his philosophy will be the measure of his success in life.

"His limitations make up the boundary beyond which he cannot go. When he reaches his limit, he cannot stop, and how for assistance, because it will not come. All the help he receives must come from himself."

"And the first principle of this philosophy is that you have no rights you do not enforce."

Repairing St. Paul's

Most of St. Paul's cathedral in London, England, the choir, transepts and dome, has been closed to the public. There are accommodations for some 1,800 worshippers in the space remaining open to the public. The temporary wooden screen which will cut off the nave from the rest of the building is being constructed as rapidly as possible. It will be placed at the western end of the main piers which support the dome, leaving the space occupied by three and a half bays available for public worship. A temporary altar and choir stalls will be fitted against this screen. No definite estimate of the time required for repairing the piers has yet been made by the experts. It is believed, however, that the cathedral will not be fully reopened for at least five years.

Can Eat Poisoned Locusts

In South Africa, where plagues of locusts are often fought with arsenic, it has been found that these insects, even though they have succumbed to deadly poison, can still be used safely for cattle food, according to Science. Experts of the department of agriculture of the Union of South Africa have determined that in order to obtain a fatal dose of the poison, cattle, sheep or horses would have to consume 200 to 700 pounds of the locusts, indicating that none of these animals are in danger from the poisoned insects. For poultry and pigs, however, there is not such a wide margin of safety.

Airplane Building Time

How long does it take to build an airplane? In automobile construction production men know the time it takes to turn out every little detail. Aircraft construction is still largely experimental and records of labor and cost are scarce. Therefore, it is very interesting to read in Aviation the record time spent in building a small three-place, metal-hull flying boat with a 70-horse-power Anzani engine by the Aeromarine company. It took 2,375 hours to design it and 6,300 hours to build it, the hull being responsible for more than a third of the entire effort.

Candle Light Obsolete

In the days of lamp and candle light a city ordinance was passed in Joplin, Mo., prohibiting the holding of auction sales at night. This was intended to prevent buyers from being taken advantage of by reason of the darkness of the auction room. This ordinance, however, has now been repealed by the city commission because auction rooms are all well illuminated by electricity and the purchasers can see what they are buying.

New Uses for Castor Oil

Railway chemical engineers have produced a special lubricant from castor oil, which is now being used with great success on the Chinese Eastern railway. It is said to be efficient and economical as a car lubricant. Castor oil is coming into extensive use for technical and medicinal purposes. In China it is also used as a food.—Popular Science Monthly.

THE NEWEST TRIBUTE

Ere Orville Wright his first plane flew
I went exploring in the blue;
And found the boundless love that lies
In the far depths of Mother's eyes.
Before the radio could begin
To broadcast joy, I "listened in";
And tuned the dials of infant choice
To catch the love songs of her voice.
She was my moving-picture show,
My heroine with breast of snow;
And every thrill young life demands
Came in the soft touch of her hands.
I know that wondrous things shall be,
New comforts and delights we'll see;
But no invention man can make
Will ever take the place of Mother love.

Honor Her in Church Next Sunday

BAPTIST NOTES

The annual meeting of the church took place last week Thursday evening. A goodly number sat down to supper and enjoyed a real feast. The program up stairs was opened by music and a prayer by the pastor. Then followed the pastor's report, consisting of the number of sermons, funerals, weddings, addresses and other things. The clerk, Miss Scott, gave a good report of the work for the past year.

Charles Grainger gave another splendid report of his work. For fourteen years he has been treasurer of the Baptist church of Plymouth. This church certainly appreciates his faithful labors.

The amount for church expenses for the year, $1923.74. The amount raised in the Sunday-school the past year, $250.56. The Ladies' Aid Society raised $563.78. The missionary treasurer reports $243.08. The B. Y. P. U. reports all bills paid. It is with satisfaction we begin the new year with all bills paid, and with thanksgiving in our hearts to God for his favor in supplying all our needs. We also thank our many friends for their help and co-operation.

The nominating committee brought in their report, and the officers are as follows, for the ensuing year:

Trustees—Roland Allenbaugh, S. L. Bennett, Lewis Schall, J. H. Hancock, J. M. Swagles, Walter Postiff, F. G. Hamill

Rev. N. E. Musser of Ortonville, gave the sermon of the evening. His topic was "The Well Equipped Christian," and he gave many vivid illustrations of pure clean young christians living every day a life of trust and prayer and great joy.

Mrs. Sayles and Mr. Hamill sang a duet.

The pastor made a few remarks, and closed the meeting for another year. Looking up with hope and faith, still we continue the work.

Those having autos and those desiring transportation are asked to report to him by Saturday night. The pastor will preach a sermon appropriate to the occasion.

There was a fine congregation last Sunday, and a good sermon by Rev. Bartlett, the visiting minister. The attendance in the men's class was four above the average, and there were two new members.

The Busy Woman's Bible Class will hold its regular monthly meeting, next Tuesday at the home of Mrs. I. W. Hummel on Ann street. There will be a pot-luck dinner at noon.

The pastor goes to Ypsilanti again next Monday night to moderate a meeting of the congregation.

The pastor preached at Ypsilanti, Sunday; spoke at the Hough school, Monday; at the Elm school, Tuesday, and was in Ann Arbor Wednesday for MOTHER!

I know not where in all this world I'd find
Another half so precious or so dear;
Or one whose love would hold so firm and kind
Throughout the changing fortunes of each year.
In all my life I cannot hope to pay
That priceless debt of faithful loyalty;
I ask no sweeter bondage than to stay,
A debtor to her precious love for me.
For it I'd yield the honor men confer,
For it I'd give all wealth and eminence.
And all I have I humbly offer her—
My deepest love and truest reverence.
I know none other I could so enshrine
Within my heart, save her—that mother mine.

Supreme Bird Singers

Unknown to America

The most famous four birds in English literature are the nightingale, the blackbird, the cuckoo, and the skylark. All four are unknown in America. We have the yellowbill and blackbill cuckoo, but they are quite unlike the English variety.

As for the blackbird, I thoroughly agree with Theodore Roosevelt and with Lord Grey that he is the finest singer in England. When I read many years ago Tennyson's poem to the blackbird, celebrating the beauty of his music, I could not imagine what caused the poet's enthusiasm; the word blackbird had for me a quite different connotation.

Our red-winged blackbird, with the scarlet epaulets, has only a genial wheeze; while the so-called cross-blackbird sings as though he had tonsillitis, or as though his voice were adolescently changing. But the British and the Continental blackbirds emit the most heavenly music. In spring dawns in Germany they used to wake me up at four o'clock; I never thought of throwing backlocks at them, for I was entranced by the melody.

One February day, while standing in front of the University of Munich during a violent snowstorm, I saw a blackbird on the branch of a tree; he had his beak pointed toward the wind, and, while the snowflakes beat upon his little face, he poured out a stream of the loveliest music in the world.

Many reasons have been given why no one of this supreme quartet can live in the United States; when they are imported, they die. Some say they cannot get the right diet—what nonsense! It has remained for me to discover and to announce the true reason. It is because we have not sufficiently great poets. When a nightingale, who is accustomed to hearing tributes from Chaucer, Shakespeare, Milton, Wordsworth, Keats, comes hither and is greeted by American poets, he dies—William Lyon Phelps in Scribner's Magazine.

Damage Done by Landslide

A famous Devon (England) beauty spot is disappearing. Thousands of tons of slate shale have been displaced in a landslide at Mulstone bay, near Brixham. Great fissures have appeared near the top of the cliff, one from 4 feet to 6 feet wide and 15 feet to 20 feet deep, showing that the rock has been broken through the movement of the cliff toward the sea. In one place the public path has disappeared. In some places there are huge gaps, and in others the subsidence has caused a perpendicular drop of 6 feet to 8 feet. A winding path leading from the top of the cliff to the Tea house is embedded under hundreds of tons of shale, and there are signs that there will be other larger falls, as the cliff face is moving outward. It is believed that thousands of tons of shale will be displaced soon. The whole top surface is slowly moving, and will be precipitated over the cliff, which is some 100 yards long and 30 wide.

Keeping Burglar Guessing

The poor burglar that bridges the contacts, short-circuits the line or cuts through the conducting wires or destroys the contact apparatus has indeed fallen on evil days. The device comes from Austria. The alarm mechanism may be put around or inside any property, safe, vault or closet. The quicksilver contact consists of a delicate mercury contact which responds quickly to any displacement. Any interruption or absence of the electric current immediately causes a storage battery, which is in a protected position, to be automatically switched on, so that the apparatus is ready to give the alarm. The alarm bell or siren could be located anywhere. The device also gives an alarm if there is a fire.—Scientific American.

Jimmy Has Loud Voice

One of the loudest talkers in the British zoological gardens is Jimmy, a small but very intelligent and affectionate chimpanzee. His singing is not musical as thousands of people recently learned, when Jimmy's voice was broadcast. Jimmy lives in the north mammal house, and has for his companion a Black Mangabey monkey. At least she should be black, but she is really a freak, for her face is white with black spots—a strange combination which has won her the name of "Freckles." She is an engaging little damsel, and Jimmy cannot hear her out of his sight. In fact, to make Jimmy yell the house down for broadcasting purposes the keepers had only to take Freckles away from him.

South American Impressions

BY CASS S. HOUGH

We are privileged to publish a most interesting account of the recent trip of Cass S. Hough of this village, and a senior student at the University of Michigan, to several South American countries. The story will be published in several installments, and we know that our readers will find it an exceptionally interesting and instructive article on these South American countries.

CHAPTER ONE

The azure of the Caribbean is matchless. As one stands on the prow of the great white ships and watches the white foam thrown into the sea against the deep blue of the sea, one must acknowledge the supremacy of the Master Painter, and simultaneously the insignificance of the art of man, when compared to this everlasting work of art.

Panama is reached the sixth day out of New York. We were fortunate and never before has appeared so beautiful. Probably the most beautiful part of all was the sight of the great palm trees silhouetted against the crimson sky.

The Isthmus, to me, is barren of interest, with the possible exception of the canal itself and the ruins of the old city of Panama. As a consequence, the Pacific was a welcome sight as we steamed slowly out past the great fortifications in Balboa harbor, into the line which Balboa saw early in the 16th century, and named it the Pacific.

CHAPTER TWO

Early one morning, I awoke to find the good ship "Santa Elisa" at anchor in an open roadstead off the precipitous Peruvian coast, where the mountains seem to rise directly from the shore. Hastily dressing, I found it possible to go ashore, and lost no time in so doing. I found the town, so-called, to be Talara, a Standard Oil Co. port for the oil town of Negritos, a town located about eight miles up into the foothills. As I stepped from the steamer into the little boats, I felt almost in another world.

The stink of the fetid water, their constant babbling and quarreling—all held interest for me. As for the town, there was nothing to see—a few shacks, no more. But it was Peru—native Peru—and as such, its dirt and filth were not objectionable to me in the least.

After calling at Salaverry, another northern Peruvian port, we steamed into Callao harbor on Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock. After the customary examination of passports, visas, and vaccination certificates, we were allowed to go ashore. Callao itself is a miniature Hoboken, with its myriads of tugs, wharves, longshoremen—the big South American ports, and the gateway to the city of the Kings—Lima—the capital of Peru.

As one steps off the "Trauvia," the first thing that greets the eye is the imposing monument of Simon Bolivar, the Protector of Peru. A few minutes in Lima will fill the average traveler with a hushed feeling. As I walked through the narrow streets, watching the passers by, I had no difficulty in imagining myself there in the 10th century; I could almost hear the clink of silver spurs, and the clatter of hooves.

"Pleasant Lima—fairness of transplanted capitals," and I concur with him heartily. The pure Castilian is a welcome relief from the harshly accented Mexican, and the much abused Castilian of Central America. Culture and refinement are everywhere noticeable. I felt to compare the "mediocre throughout," and express keen disappointment in everything he saw. True the buildings are not those of New York, and, due to their mud construction, the homes appear as though a good shower would reduce the town to a mud heap while a two weeks' rain would wipe it out entirely, but it never rains in Lima. However, what the buildings lack is amply made up in the charm and grace of the people. As they move to and fro in the streets, one wonders if they have any concern at all as they do their move, stopping in front of nearly every one of the open-fronted stores which line the street. Here and there one sees a horseback rider. When he stops and dismounts, he pulls a small leather hobbie from his pocket, hobbles his mount, and leaves it standing as we do our automobiles. Is it any wonder that Carpenter calls Lima the quaintest city in South America? Here is cheer for the sentimentalist, indeed.

One cannot help but be impressed with the devoutness of these people. Any time during the day will find from fifty to a hundred of them kneeling in the great cathedral—the architectural pride of all South America. How different it is to see the men segregated from the women during mass, the men with their bare heads, and the women with their black mantles draped over their black highly plied hair. If ever a nation was reverent, this one is.

Our three days were over much too soon, and it was with a feeling of deepest regret that we said goodbye to Lima and Callao, as we turned southward to Mollendo, our next stop, where we are to leave the boat for two weeks and visit the land of Pizarro the Conqueror, the only peer of the Indomitable Cortes; the land where Pizarro found the satisfaction for his gold lust.

CHAPTER THREE

The harbor of Mollendo is merely an open roadstead. Here the traveler gets a new thrill—that of being lifted from the deck in a large, flat-bottomed boat to a small canoe on the day—and it is a thrill indeed, due to the great waves which oftentimes lift the small boats to a height of six or seven feet. The city itself is a shabby, wooden affair, nestling in the foothills of the Andes, which run almost to the water's edge here. It is but a short walk from the customs to the railroad station, where we are to take the "Southern of Peru" up into what was once the land of a mighty Empire.

Immediately after leaving Mollendo we begin to rise up into the Cordilleras, the coastal Andes. In the distance we can see lofty peaks rising above the rugged horizon. We wind up and up until at last we reach Arequipa, the first stage of our journey into the highlands of Peru.

To many Arequipa is one of the quaintest, neatest, brightest, prettiest little cities I have ever seen. The industriousness of its people is everywhere in evidence. It is typically a mountain town—it is higher than the top of Mount Washington—with its steep, all-day incline. The streets of the city are evidenced by the massive, fortress-like doors, with their heavy locks. The windows are heavily barred, and behind these gratings the women sit, in seclusion—some of the prettiest on the whole South American continent.

Our short stay here permitted very little sight seeing, but we did manage to see a bull fight, a custom that most of the Peruvian cities have abolished. Is not Arequipa old fashioned? "The scenic wonders" after leaving Arequipa are unrivaled anywhere. Great rocky peaks tower above the surrounding terrain. Great crevasses yawn at the very edge of the narrow railroad bed, so deep that they appear bottomless. All the time we are going up. A glance over the car will find a few of the passengers succumbing to "soroche," or mountain sickness, and it is indeed a real sickness, as any of its victims will tell you.

Punta de Arrieros is reached about noon. Here we are more than two and one-half miles above the sea—and we get our "first opportunity to study closely the true Peruvian Indian. The first thing that catches the eye is their style of dress. The men are garbed very colorfully, their hand-woven ponchos reaching just below the knees, striped with every color of the spectrum. Over their heads they wear a small knitted cap, of many colors, with long earflaps, reaching almost to their shoulders. Set on top their heads, and kept there by a very clever act of balancing, are small, stiff-brimmed hats, worn probably for their style, nothing else. Their shoes vary; some are nothing more or less than fur moccasins, while others are a poor imitation of our modern shoes, laced with thongs cut from some animal's hide. The women are dressed almost identically with the men, with the exception of the "skating caps" and the earflaps.

Leaving Punta de Arrieros we continue on to Juliaca, thence to Cuzco, the far-famed city of the sun—the capital of the once glorious Inca Empire. It was here that Pizarro and his freebooters became wealthy, at the expense of the Incas. It was here, in the Plaza, that Tupac-Amaru lost his head, as did many others of his race.

Cuzco! City of the Incas, city where, in bygone times a patriarchal form of government was combined with a high state of civilization; where works were conceived and executed, which to this day, are the wonder and admiration of the wanderer; where a virtuous race of monarchs ruled an empire equal in size to that of Adrian, exceeding that of Charlemagne. Cuzco! The favored city, whose beautiful temple surpasses in splendor those of the Arabian nights; where trophies of battles won, from the equator to the plains of Chile have stood, and are to be seen by the all-greedy hand of the Conquistador Pizarro, and his lieutenant Almagro. The streets and plazas where songs of triumph in praise of Ynti and Quilla once resounded still stand—but—where is all the glory? Where are the riches that were amassed, as if this decadence, the people tread the streets with partly-bowed heads, ashamed that the sons of a once great empire should now walk the streets in almost slavery.

Cuzco of the 17th century still exists, although now the pure Inca blood had been mixed and remixed, and the race had fast become extinct. But the evidences of a once great race are everywhere to be seen. The great Temple of the Sun, the Parthenon of Inca Peru, although nearly gone, gives us a hint of the old days of splendor, when gold and silver were as commonly used as are tin and zinc today.

Probably the most impressive monument of this great race is the massive citadel of Vitacocha, the Inca with the florid complexion and flaxen locks, which stands and frowns down from Sacsayhuaman hills, as if standing watch over the city of barley and lucerne which surround Cuzco. The ascent to this citadel is steep, in the form of a staircase, and directly under the precipitous cliff on which the citadel is built, where the extensive ruins of the Calcompata, said to be those of Manco Capac, are still to be seen. The view of the city from here is extensive and beautiful. The great central square stands out in the city proper, crowded with Indian girls sitting before their piles of merchandise, or walking to and fro. Here and there we see a train of from five to ten llamas, laden with merchandise for the market. If the same spot two or three centuries ago, the city would undoubtedly have looked almost the same as now, with the possible exception of the red-tiled roofs of the adobe houses, a purely modern style of roofing. If one will only take the time to visit some of the old churches and public buildings, the old pictures found there will give us an excellent idea of the ancient dress, as well as their rites and customs. What a glorious empire this must have been! What a pity the greedy conquistador did not halt in their process of pillage to write down what they saw so that we of the newer generations could appreciate and understand those things for which their greedy eyes had no time. Practically all we have now is the great fortress on the hill of Sacsayhuaman, whose ruins are a lasting monument to Cuzco's fallen greatness, and a silent testimony of the boldness of conquest with which these children of the sun were gifted. Even the great monuments such as Stonehenge, the tomb of Agamemnon at Argos, and the great Egyptian walls of Thebes, and the Greek Parthenon, are but the remains of a great civilization, the association of this great citadel, and

THE THEATRE

"THE TOP OF THE WORLD"

There is so much to be said for "The Top of the World," George Melford's photoplay version of the widely read story of Ethel M. Dell, that the only way to prove it to yourself is to see this Paramount picture, which comes to the Penniman Allen theatre, Saturday, May 9th.

"The Top of the World" is loaded with dramatic dynamite which explodes with a terrifying bang at the height of one of the most realistic and exciting storms ever put into a motion picture. That devastating flood, sweeping down from the high mountains, washing away houses and swallowing up people, is by itself worth several times the price of admission.

Although the story revolves around the familiar "eternal triangle" theme, it starts out along brand new lines, develops several unique situations and after reaching a melodramatic climax winds up in eminently satisfactory fashion. The characters involved are an English girl, her childhood sweetheart and the latter's cousin. Most of the action occurs in South Africa, a locale admittedly check full of color and atmosphere.

Acting honors fall to the lot of Anna Q. Nilsson, who scores a distinct personal triumph; James Kirkwood who gives an uncommonly fine performance in a dual role; Raymond Hatton who impersonates an English cavalry captain; and Sheldon Lewis who proves himself a very effective villain.

Those who choose their film fare on the basis of dramatic strength of story, excellent characterization, pictorial beauty and able direction will find "The Top of the World" the embodiment of perfect screen entertainment.

"THE RAGMAN"

For his fourth picture on his Metro-Goldwyn contract Jackie Coogan has a contrasting story as different from "Little Robinson Crusoe," as "A Boy of Flanders" was from Jackie's "Long Live the King."

Instead of the glitter of the South Seas and the palm and jungle-clothed islands of the equatorial zone, the East Side of New York is the locale of "The Ragman," which is coming to the Penniman Allen theatre, Sunday and Monday, May 10 and 11, and the episodes are those characteristically metropolitan. The appeal of the narrative is intimate, and grows out of the singular association of little Tim Kelly (Jackie Coogan) and Max Ginsberg, the latter a dealer in rags, sacks, bottles and old iron.

Into the life of this submerged merchant comes little Tim Kelly, who quickly proves his business shrewdness and the partnership of Ginsberg and Kelly results. How the little fellow not only rehabilitates the spirit of the junk dealer, but his finances also, is the plot material of what promises to be Jackie's most human and beguiling picture. The nature of the story is such as to lend itself to comedy, a fact which Edward F. Cline, the director, has been highly competent to develop hilariously.

Jack Coogan, Sr., supervised the production, and the story was written by Willard Mack.

JIMMIE'S MILLIONS

Filled with chases, the flying leaps, the hurdles, the dives, the fights and the sensational acrobatic stunts which have made him so popular, Richard Talmadge's new picture, "Jimmie's Millions," marks a new chapter in the production of this type of movied entertainment in that the story does more than provide a vehicle for stunt show. The production, which will be shown at the Penniman Allen theatre, Wednesday and Thursday, May 13 and 14, stands out as an interesting and amusing story of the first order.

Richard is cast as a young war hero, who has a penchant for being late. In an attempt to make him prompt at appointments his wealthy uncle leaves him a bequest of several million dollars; but to collect this money, he must be on time for several months. He gets into many escapades from that time on, and in his endeavor to be prompt, is forced to break jail on one occasion, and then (for an entirely different reason) has to get back in again. But he is thrown out; and the consequences of trying to get put back into the hoosegow are delightful.

The choice of the cast is unusually fortunate. Betty Francisco is as talented as she is beautiful, and plays an appealing part to perfection. Lee Moran, the "bozo" detective, struts his stuff with a broad and amusing humor. The rest, including Brinsley Shaw, Dick Sutherland, Ina Hanson, Charles Clary and Wade Boteler, are all good.

SCHOOL NOTES

Thelma Peck furnished the grade notes, Ralph Meyer the High school notes and Frank Millard the base ball.

GRADE NOTES

First A have finished the No. 1 A. B. reader. Elsie Green has moved away.

The Second A and B classes are reading out of their new Happy Hour readers, and they are making a garden. Thelma Lundford is back after a trip to Oklahoma.

Reynold Leedy, a third grader, left last week for Arcadia. The pupils of the Third grade gave a balloon dance and sang songs for Miss Stader's entertainment, which was given on Tuesday evening, and was a great success.

Mrs. Pease and Mrs. Hillman visited the Sixth grade Friday of last week.

PLYMOUTH DEFEATS DEARBORN

In a one sided game, Friday, May 3, Plymouth easily gained a victory over the strong Dearborn nine, by a score of 9 to 1.

After being shut out in the first inning, Plymouth started a rally in the last part of the second. Curtis, Dault and Miller drove in the runs, with a home run by Miller. All these rallies netted seven runs. Plymouth gained two more runs in their half of the fourth, while Dearborn gained their lone run in the fourth.

Line-up: Plymouth—Curtiss, Taylor, p.; Reiman, lb.; Lacey, 2b.; Dault, ss.; Townsend, 3b.; Miller, r. f.; Barlow, c. f.; Wiseley, l. f.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The class in horticulture has planted seedlings on school property for the use of school students in studying grafting methods.

Mr. Smith fulfilled his promise made before the Britton debate—that if the team won he would give them a frater feed. It came off last Thursday night, and included Alice Hathaway, who won the declamation contest; Ernest Ambrus, the debate, alternate; the debating team, consisting of Ira Kingsley, Julia Wilcox and Forrest Hubert, and Misses Mercer, Miller and Allen.

Coach Conita drove three hundred miles to northern Michigan, in order to be on hand at the opening of the fishing season at Mancelona. He got his limit, and Mr. Smith says the fish are fine. Such devotion to a sport beats golf stories we hear.

The girls in the advanced sewing class made out budgets for clothes for a year, the cost of each article and the number of each being given. The lowest amount was $127.25, and the highest $472.50. There were four girls who itemized their annual supply of clothes as amounting to over $400. This seems like an amazing amount for a ninth grade girl to spend; and if she is allowed to spend as freely for amusements, the cost for a year for other essentials too, must be an average man's salary. One girl stated that she used fourteen pairs of shoes a year; that she had bought six since January.

The Senior Class visited the Ford plant at River Rouge, Saturday. One of the most interesting things was the assembly line, where the motor block was first taken, and before they left the tractors had been painted and filled with oil, water and fuel, ready to be started at the end of the line with an electric motor starter. As soon as they started, men drove them away to the loading docks, ready for the trains.

MOTHERS TO BE HONORED SUNDAY

TWELFTH OFFICIAL YEAR OF OBSERVATION OF MOTHERS' DAY SUNDAY.

Sunday, May 10, is this year designated as Mother's Day. This will be the 12th year of official observation the second Sunday in May having been set aside as Mothers' Day by an act of Congress signed in 1914, by Woodrow Wilson. In its provision was made for display of flags on public buildings, as well as the expression of individual tribute to motherhood.

That the idea was a welcome one has been proved by the rapid growth of ceremonies in connection with the day. Church services on Mothers' Day are now almost universally arranged with the day in mind, and other customs of the day are springing up. A white carnation is the accepted flower to be worn in memory of one's mother, and the sending to mothers of specially designed greeting cards noting the day is another simple method of expressing appreciation which has met with approval.

The actual origin of the movement which led to setting aside Mothers' Day is not generally known, hence seems worthy of attention in view of the increasing observation of it. Investigation shows that Miss Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia in 1908 made the first step toward Mothers' Day when she asked that the church in the little Virginia town where her mother had been a leading spirit, hold a service in her memory. A little later the Philadelphia churches are found to have been generally observing one Sunday in May as Mothers' Day, and the plan grew to culmination in National legislation.

Various English customs act as a precedent for the idea of Mothers' Day. In the days when young men and girls were bound out as apprentices or maids, the fourth Sunday in Lent was set aside as a day when they might return to their parents. Still earlier, the idea is found in Rome when on the same fourth Sunday, gifts were annually brought to the Mother Church. Even the pagans had their idealization of Motherhood, expressed in the worship of a super-goddess, known as Rhea, the great mother of the gods.

PLYMOUTH LADIES ATTEND CONVENTION.

The Convention of District No. 8, Pythian Sisters, was held in Ann Arbor, Thursday, April 30th. Nine ladies, who are members of the local Pythian Sisters Temple, motored to Ann Arbor to attend the session, which proved to be very pleasant and instructive to all. In the morning, the time was taken up with the reports from the different Temples, roll call, etc. which showed continued gain in membership, enthusiasm and finances. A very splendid dinner was served at noon, in the Chamber of Commerce building, to over two hundred and fifty guests.

In the afternoon, the memorial work was very effectively exemplified by the Sisters from Chelsea. This was followed by the public installation of officers, which was beautiful, and perfectly done by Huron Temple of Ypsilanti, assisted by four little girls laden with flowers. The Sisters of Milan Temple then presented the beautiful initiatory ceremony, and with their degree staff were splendid. The different Temples heartily applauding the drill with which their team completed their floor work. The fancy dance numbers by three little girls also added much to the enjoyment of the day.

As the work was completed, all were served with a delicious chicken lunch, which was very acceptable just before starting on the trip for home. The Sisters of Ann Arbor were surely voted royal hostesses.

THE CLOTHING PROJECT CLASS

The last meeting of the Clothing Project Class was held at the home of Mrs. S. W. Spicer on East Ann Arbor Street, with eleven in attendance. Miss Sorinson from the M. A. C. was leader, assisted by Miss Corbett. All of the class seemed to be getting along fine with their patterns, and had tried them out on children's clothes as well as adults; also had instructions in buying different articles. Ladies were present from Canton, Cherry Hill, Waterford, Beech and Plymouth. The next meeting will be at Mrs. Roberts', near Beech.

REBUILDING DAM AT FRENCH LANDING.

The work of rebuilding the earth-work adjoining the Detroit Edison dam, which went out two weeks ago, is being rapidly pushed and officials state that the entire job of rebuilding it will be completed in less than three months. Reconstruction will include the use of concrete and sheet piling in order to prevent repetition of a break.
