HOUGH SCHOOL REUNION HELD LAST SATURDAY

The Event Also Was the 100th Anniversary of the Settlement of the Hough Farm by Ira M. Hough, One of the Early Pioneers of Michigan.

A very pleasant occasion took place at the Hough homestead, known as Meadowland Farm, in Canton township, last Saturday, when a reunion of the Hough school district was held upon the spacious lawn of the old homestead, through an invitation extended by Edward C. Hough. There was a good attendance of the former pupils of the Hough school as well as many of the former residents of that district, and several of the former teachers of the school, many coming from quite a distance to renew the acquaintances of their old schoolmates and to live over again the happy days of their childhood amid familiar scenes. At the noon hour a basket dinner was enjoyed in the log cabin, which marks the spot where Ira M. Hough erected the first log cabin one hundred years ago, and the centennial of which made the reunion of more than passing interest.

The log cabin with its huge fireplace, wherein a fire was brightly burning, and its walls adorned with a number of relics of pioneer days, formed a most picturesque setting for an event of this kind.

About three o'clock, the crowd assembled upon the lawn, and the meeting was called to order, with E. C. Hough presiding. The first order of business was the election of officers, and this resulted in Miss Eva Griffith, the present teacher of the Hough school, being chosen president, and Mrs. George H. Robinson, secretary and treasurer. The address of welcome was made by E. C. Hough, as the representative of the Hough family. It was so interesting and timely that we are privileged to give it here in its entirety:

"It is my pleasure and privilege to welcome you all to the old homestead my grandfather established one hundred years ago. A century has passed since he left his home in Vermont and wended his way to what was then the Territory of Michigan, and what momentous things have happened during that interval! Michigan has grown from a sparsely settled territory into a thickly settled state and its metropolis, Detroit, from a village of the side of Plymouth to the fourth city in the United States and one of the best known cities in the world.

It is only a little over a hundred years since the first surveyor was sent out by the federal government to inspect the territory which is now known as Michigan. In his report to Congress this official used the following language: 'A region of impenetrable forests and trackless morass forever unfit for human habitation. But along came the pioneer with his wife by his side. They took up their allotment of land; a little clearing was chopped out and a log house erected. Here they established their home and began to rear their family. They had faith and hope and courage and vision, and Michigan as we know it today, with nearly four million, industrially, commercially and agriculturally great, rich and strong, is really the product of the courage and vision of these faithful pioneers.

"I wish it were possible for me to take you all back with me for one hundred years in an endeavor to see things as they existed at that time, for only in that way can we compare the past with the present and satisfy ourselves that the 'world is really progressing. First of all, we wonder what leads people to leave the comforts of an older civilization and migrate to a new and unknown country. I like to think of the early pioneers as being imbued with a desire to build up an empire in a new territory and have a better opportunity to assert their own individuality, but I think many times people were led to migrate due to the fact that as population increased in the older centers of civilization in the East, the opportunities for the younger members of the family became less and the desire to better themselves, coupled with the spirit of adventure, led them to take their chances in a country at that time little known and which was inhabited only by roving bands of Indians.

"Traveling afoot and by horseback, we will go with a colony of neighbors from Vermont to New York state, and thence over the Erie Canal to Buffalo, and by sailing vessel to Detroit. After resting there a day, we strike out into the forest and follow the St. Marys River to where the Tongue River branches off, and after reaching this spot we look around and decide that this high ground is a good location for a home. The next thing is to build a log cabin and we find ourselves in rather a bad predicament because there are no roads, no hardware stores, and no lumber yards. All we have is two heads, an axe and perhaps a cross-cut saw, so from our standpoint it took some considerable nerve and stamina to meet the situation, which was the cutting down of the trees and the building of the log cabin. After the cabin had been built (with the floor of earth and no glass for windows) we would have to start in to make a living for ourselves, and this would necessitate the cutting and burning of the trees because this part of the country was almost entirely covered with forest and black walnut trees abounded on this particular farm, and on account of the softness of the wood and the ease of splitting, this farm was fenced almost entirely with black walnut rails.

"After the cabin or cage was built, the next step was to get the bird, and my grandfather married Adeline Kingsley, whose parents were building a home just below Newburg, and brought her to this very spot where they enjoyed the happiness and sorrows along with their neighbors; and many people today seem to think that they had more real happiness in life than their children who lived a century later, but I am inclined to think it is all a matter of comparison and that our sorrows and joys are just as keen today as they were a hundred years ago. It would seem odd to us all to go back and live as they did a hundred years ago, and be obliged to improvise nearly everything; to create our own light from the tallow candle, and dipper from the humble gourd; to make everything we wear and be obliged to spin (the yarn from the wool and knit in cloth; to make our own shoes; to bake bread in an iron kettle swung over the open fire, and to perform the many acts that are necessary to make a living from the soil without tools. It was a job that could be accomplished only by men of faith and a kind of unselfish vision for the future. I am sure that in those early days they had many pleasures that are unknown to us today, and enjoyed many delicacies that are almost unknown to the present generation. Deer and bear, in fact wild game of all kinds, abounded in this part of the country, and it was a matter to provide the table with good things to eat. Perhaps your nearest neighbor would be a mile or so away, but I know on account of their isolation from the rest of the world, neighbors were brought close together and an spirit of love and kindness united their families together in a way that is almost unknown in present-day civilization.

"Shortly after their arrival in Michigan, many important inventions were made, and the first locomotive was grown from a sparsely settled territory into a thickly settled state and its metropolis, Detroit, from a village of the side of Plymouth to the fourth city in the United States and one of the best known cities in the world.

"I wish it were possible for me to take you all back with me for one hundred years in an endeavor to see things as they existed at that time, for only in that way can we compare the past with the present and satisfy ourselves that the 'world is really progressing. First of all, we wonder what leads people to leave the comforts of an older civilization and migrate to a new and unknown country. ### STORMFELTZ CO. GETS NEW 150-ACRE TRACT

PURCHASE LIES IN CENTER OF MARQUETTE PARK.

Purchase of a tract totaling 150 acres, at the corner of Plymouth and Telegraph roads, is announced by the Stormfultz-Loveley Co. The land was procured from Mrs. Bessie Dunning. She was represented by Charles Field in the negotiations. It is said to have been the largest purchase of one piece of property in this section. The land lies in the center of the district, which is to be known as Marquette Park, an area of about 20 square miles, all of which will be subdivided eventually by Detroit realtors. In honor of Mrs. Dunning, the Stormfultz-Loveley Co. has named this property Dunning Park. One of the thoroughfares in the district will be known as Dunning avenue. Engineers have surveyed the land and fixed the street and lot lines. Contracts for some of the improvements, to include graded streets, sidewalks, shade trees, water and sewers are being let.—Detroit News.

We Cannot Forget

The Fourth of July may have deviated from the purpose it was originally intended to serve, and it may be celebrated far differently now than it was by our grandfathers. Family picnics may have replaced public gatherings; jazz may have supplanted the patriotic strains of the "Star Spangled Banner." But deep in our hearts we are not forgetting, nor are we letting the rising generation forget the motive back of this great holiday.

There are many things custom cannot change, and one of them is a man's love for his native land. He may manifest his patriotism in new and modern ways but always the same old love of liberty and freedom and home is deep-rooted in his heart. In the schools and churches around Plymouth we have magnificent examples of the free institutions for which our forefathers fought, and it was their victory that made these possible—the victory we are once more called upon to celebrate. In our homes we have the foundation stone of the republic, and it is in these homes we once more call the attention of a growing generation to the duty we owe our flag. In our churches we have symbolized that great privilege guaranteed in our constitution—the right to worship according to the dictates of our own conscience. And it is this same constitution we once more swear allegiance to.

With the red, white and blue waving above us; with the spirit of the constitution ever before us; with renewed pledges of loyalty to the things for which our ancestors fought and died we shall forever keep before us the events which gave us the holiday we are again called upon to observe. And, regardless of what form our celebration may take, we will forever stand united in our loyalty to our country. The Fourth of July, shall always mean to us the anniversary of the birth of the greatest nation—God's son has ever smiled upon.

FUNERAL DIRECTORS CONVENTION BEST EVER HELD BY ASSOCIATION

Plymouth Entertained Hundreds of Visitors Last Week Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

RUTH E. HUSTON, STATE FINALIST COACH, HAS STATE-WIDE RENOWN.

We take the following from the Northwestern High school of Detroit: Believing that "debating is the most stimulating of all mental exercises," Miss Ruth E. Huston has become one of the state's foremost forensic instructors and coaches, as well as a pioneer in the establishment of women in the argumentative art.

Debating has always been the main interest of Miss Huston, who is a resident of Plymouth, Michigan. As a student at Mount Holyoke and a member of the 1918 graduating class of the University of Michigan, she majored in forensic subjects as well as taking an active part in outside activities of the same nature.

At the University of Michigan, Miss Huston set a precedent by being one of the three first women to try out for the varsity debating squad. In spite of her knowledge of the art she failed to place on the team, but did, however, make a favorable impression. In order to further interest in debating, Miss Huston helped to establish the Athena Debating society and in addition to being a charter member of that club was its first president.

Following her college career, Northwestern's champion team coach accepted a position in Durand. Her team from that school reached the state semi-finals but was there defeated by a 2 to 1 decision. Next, she became the coach at Plymouth, her home town, where in two successive years she produced a state semi-finalist team and a state champion squad.

With the realization that Northwestern needed such a coach, Miss Huston was induced to come to Detroit four years ago. Her first year she coached the Colt team to the city championship, but, though she had an excellent team in the next season, her team failed to receive the championship. Undaunted by this failure, Miss Huston set to work once more in the fall of 1923 and not only produced a city championship team, but a strong state contestant as well. This season her team have repeated the success of their predecessors and have outdone every Detroit team by winning the right to compete in the state finals.

Miss Huston is a small person, but her very being suggests vitality and ability. Besides being debate coach at Northwestern, she has efficiently managed inter-house debating, and has succeeded in arousing, as a whole, more interest in argumentation than has ever existed in the school.

That she is popular with her debaters is witnessed by their enthusiastic response to her efforts. So sincere have been her efforts and so sincere the response that in her entire career she has entered her teams into eighty-five debates and of that number has lost but six, none of these, however, being lost by three to nothing decisions.

Miss Huston is as well known outside as she is within Northwestern. At present she is author of various magazine articles on the forensic art, and is, in addition, co-editor of a textbook on debating that is soon to be published. She has also completed the necessary work for her master's degree, which is to be bestowed upon her at the commencement exercises in Ann Arbor, June 15.

HEROES OF RACE WILL FURNISH THRILLS.

Balto himself, the famous Siberian sled dog, together with his heroic driver, Gunnar Kason, re-enacting for the camera their desperate race to Nome, will furnish the drama and thrills on the program at the Penniman Allen theatre, Saturday, July 4th, in the Educational Special, "Balto's Race to Nome."

This remarkable picture is not a product of stage props or actors; it is an actual reproduction of a historic event, an episode in the life of a sturdy frontiersman and a brave dog—a camera record of one of the greatest deeds of pluck and heroism within the last decade.

The picture was made in the deep snows of Mt. Baxter with Kason and his dog team, headed by Balto.

DEATH OF FORMER PLYMOUTH LADY

The following is taken from an Eaton, Colorado paper regarding the death of a former Plymouth lady:

The entire community was greatly shocked and deeply grieved Sunday, June 21, when it learned that Mrs. N. R. Huston had passed away during her sleep at 4:00 o'clock that morning at her home in the country.

Mrs. Huston had been in town Saturday evening, and had visited with various friends. She appeared to be in her usual health and possessed the same cheerfulness and optimism which seemed at all times to permeate her very being. No matter how dark the cloud, she could always find the silver lining.

"What is the secret of life?" asked Mrs. Browning of Charles Kingsley; "tell me, that I may make mine beautiful, too?" He replied, "I had a friend."

Many hearts are heavy in the loss of this friend and yet we must rejoice in knowing that she has reaped her reward and has passed on to that higher plane of understanding and has entered "That City Four Square."

Anna S. Sly was born September 27, 1877 in Superior township, Wash-tenaw county, Michigan. She received her schooling and grew to womanhood in the town of her birth.

On November 6, 1900, Anna S. Sly and N. R. Huston were united in marriage at the home of Mrs. S. L. Bennett, an aunt, with whom Miss Sly had made her home for five years.

Mr. and Mrs. Huston came to Eaton in 1904. One year was spent on a ranch east of town. For nineteen years, the family have lived on one of the W. R. Clark farms north and west of Eaton.

Four children have been born to this union. Sewell, aged 20; Clifford, who died three years ago at the age of 13; Zaida, aged 10, and Beatrice, aged 5.

Besides the members of the immediate family, Mrs. Huston is survived by one sister, Mrs. Chloe Rook of Plymouth, Michigan, and two brothers, George Sly of Seattle, Washington, and Elmer C. Sly of Ault, Colorado.

Funeral services were held at the J. L. Karr home Tuesday, June 23, at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. E. V. Kuhns of the Congregational church had charge of the services. Mrs. Harry Miller of Ault, accompanied by Mrs. Dixon Smilie, sang very beautifully and tenderly, "Abide With Me," "Some Day" and "Crossing the Bar."

The pall-bearers were Harry Bailey, Harry Miller, Arlo J. L. Marvin, Blake, Dixon, and Hugh Denton, Malcolm Tosey and Bert Lair.

Interment was in the Eaton cemetery.

NOW THE CHAIN FARM

Now they are considering the question of "chain farming"—one big corporation operating a whole string of farms, just as others now operate chains of drug stores, groceries, clothing and five and ten cent stores. They argue there is a vast saving in machinery, since it can be transported from one farm to another, and used on all of them in the chain; supplies can be bought more cheaply where they are bought for a whole bunch of farms instead of each farmer buying separately. A Chicago man is now organizing the "chain farm" company, and offering stock in it to anyone who wants to buy. So far we know of no Plymouth man risking his money in the venture. On the other hand we are inclined to believe the average local citizen with any money to invest would prefer to put it where he could occasionally see the farm and, perhaps, have a little something to say as to exactly how it should be run.

AN EDITOR'S BLESSING

Blessed are the merchants who advertise because they believe in it and in their business; for their prosperity shall increase many fold. Blessed are the country correspondents who send in their well-written items every week, for fame of their friendly neighborhood shall go abroad in the land. Blessed is the woman who sends in a written account of a party or wedding, for she shall see the details of the function and the names of her guests correctly reported. Blessed are those who do not expect the editor to know everything, but who call him and tell him whenever an interesting event occurs to them, for they shall have a newsy paper in their town. Blessed are they who get their copy in early, for they shall occupy a warm place in the editor's heart. Blessed are those who co-operate with the editor in his efforts in behalf of the community, for their town shall be known far and wide as a good place in which to live.

THE MEANEST HABIT

This may sound a good deal like preaching, but we want you to read it because of all the blessings Plymouth enjoys there is still an inclination on the part of a few to indulge in that most damnable of all vile habits—the habit of gossiping.

An Illinois man, addressing a class of graduates, asked how many of them could lay a feather in each yard in the town one day and go back and gather up each feather on the day following. The class agreed that it could not be done, that the wind would blow many, if not all, of the feathers away. "So it is with gossip," declared the speaker. "It is easily dropped—but never again, no matter how hard you try, can you gather back the words you thoughtlessly scatter."

We lose patience with the man who, dissatisfied with conditions here, goes about knocking the town and its people, instead of picking up and moving on to a new position that better suits him. But with all his knocking, he is not as hurtful to the community as the gossip. We can get at the man who knocks and try to point out his mistakes to him, but it is different with the gossip. The latter works more or less secretly, and in whispers. Every now and then some of this gossip gets to our ears—and it is always something detrimental to someone's character. It is the one thing, and the only thing left, that keeps life in a town this size from being ideal. Isn't there some way of ridding the community of the man or woman possessed of the gossiping habit? If you know of a way, try it out—we'll all be interested in seeing how well it works.

TELEPHONE CO. PAY BIG TAX

For every telephone connected with its lines in Michigan, the Michigan Bell Telephone Company pays $4.475 in taxes. It was revealed today, when A. J. Peckham, southern Michigan commercial superintendent for the company, gave State Treasurer Frank D. McKay a check for $1,436,550.28 in payment of the 1924 taxes.

In addition, the Michigan Bell this year paid the United States government $531,449.78 for income and capital stock taxes. Total taxes paid by the company this year amounted to $1,968,000.06. Taxes, like all other expenses of operation, maintenance and investment, are considered in rate making.

Increase in the telephone utility's state taxes over the past ten year period has been considerable. In 1914, the Michigan Bell Company paid taxes totaling $315,646.44, or only $1.615 per telephone connected with its lines, this year's taxes being $2.86 greater. Five years ago, or in 1919, the company paid taxes amounting to $335,833.22. It is shown, or $1.992 per telephone in operation, "considerably less than half the state tax paid this year."

Increases in taxation, Mr. Peckham states, has had considerable bearing on the increased cost of conducting the telephone business in Michigan.

W. C. T. U.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union met Thursday, June 25, at the home of Mrs. S. L. Bennett. It being Flower Mission Day, some beautiful bouquets were sent to the sick and shut-ins.

A very pleasing program had been arranged by Miss Ada Youngs. The song, "Rock of Ages," by the Misses Anna and Ada Youngs, was especially beautiful; also the "Evening Song," with which the program closed.

S. L. Bennett, with his usual thoughtfulness, furnished a delightful treat of ice cream, and Mrs. Bennett and Miss Ada Youngs also served some choice cakes and wafers. A social hour was enjoyed by all, after which Mr. Bennett conveyed the ladies to their homes.

The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Charles Draper, Thursday, July 23.

MUNICIPAL NOTES

The first fire at which the pump on the new fire engine had to be used was at the House of Correction Farm last Tuesday noon. The boys made a quick run in response to a call for help, and pumped one stream on the burning dining hall.

Fred Reiman has added two more old relics to our museum, one a hand-made sheet metal candle lantern, and one a ship lamp with three wicks, hung on gimballs.

We are opening Theodore street, which lies just on the west side of the Pere Marquette Railroad, between Main street and Farmer street. It is being graded and cindered. Cinders are being shipped us from the Detroit Edison Company at Detroit. This will serve as a relief street for traffic which might otherwise be held up by trains at Main street or Farmer street crossings.

Bills for village taxes and also water bills for the second quarter on meter users and for the second half of 1925 for flat rate consumers are being made out. These will be mailed within a week. Save your pennies.

Forty-one water taps have been put in this season. Last year we did not get to this stage until September, and in 1923 not until October. Plymouth is growing.

Since the first few days of this month, when it was so hot and dry, we have not had less than six feet of water in the reservoir and most of the time more than six and a half feet.

Now that school is out, the Manager will have the full time assistance of Miss Alice Ballen in his office. She will act as deputy clerk and attend to calls while the manager is out on the job.

It is the intention of the commission to enclose Tomquish Creek from Main street around across Wing street. The old bridge on Wing street over the creek is being torn out, so traffic will have to keep off this short block from Main street to Forest avenue, until the new culvert is built.

Now comes the vacation season. And then will come the season for resting from our vacations.

ROUGH SCHOOL REUNION HELD LAST SATURDAY.

the present-day people, no matter in what remote portion of the country they may live, so that if the style of ladies' hose as worn on Fifth Avenue changes in say September from pearl to pink, that stocks in stores all over the United States are obsolete in October. And you will find as well dressed people and as well informed people in the rural regions today as you will find in the older centers of civilization; in fact, if you want to find a real 'hick' today, look for him in the city. Farmer Cornstassel no longer exists. Gillette and his famous razor have done away with the whiskers, and a recent invention enables the farmer to cut his own hair in the latest style, and a little Stacomb smooths down the cowlicks according to the fashion of the most approved sheiks.

"What would Mother do today without the electric washing machine, the electric iron, and the dozens of other inventions that go to make life worth living and enable her to stack her dishes in the sink, go to the movies, and yet be able to get John's breakfast in time so that he is able to get his milk to the station on time?"

"I recall, as a boy, hearing people who migrated to this country from abroad tell about the wonderful things they had in the old country, and how well we would do to imitate them, but I cannot recall a single instance where one of them went back to stay."

"I read an article this week in a Detroit paper, written by a correspondent in Atlanta, Georgia, from which I would like to quote: 'Men are like Turks, they have advanced enough so they do not insist on women hiding their faces, but they can't stand the sight of knees when it is a case of sisters, wives or sweethearts. Ankle suffered the same fate a generation ago, and in another generation or less, knees will be no more than elbows. That is what Atlanta chaperones say to the criticism that has been stirred up here recently over the modern girl and her way of dressing and doing. A prominent woman educator said 'Girls are fundamentally what they have always been. In my day they didn't slip away from dances for an automobile ride because there weren't any automobiles. The severest critic of the modern girl is the one who knows least about her. Most of the people who raise a fuss about immodest dancing haven't been to a dance in twenty-five years. Men may disapprove of modern girls, but I notice they are still running around trying to marry them. There are just as many June brides as ever. You can take these staid old married men, who condemn the flapper without knowing anything about her, if one of them lost his wife, do you think he would look around for a sensible old sister? He would be right after the flapper. But you can't judge a girl's character by her make-up or her clothes. I will wager the Queen of Sheba had a nickel's worth of paint on when she came to call on Solomon, and I know that Rebecca at the well hid her eyes black.'

"Dresses used to be cut off at the top, now they are cut off at the bottom, and I think the present abbreviation is preferable. Talking about immodest clothes, what about the padded hips and bustles of our grandmothers? Manners are less formal than they used to be; for instance, boys and girls hold hands before the chaperones nowadays instead of in a dark corner, and I don't think anyone can object to the change. The modern girl is practical and self-reliant. If she is sometimes daring, it is only when she knows it is quite safe to be so."

"I am very optimistic as to the future, and I believe the day is not far distant when we will realize universal peace. Ignorance throughout the earth is rapidly giving way to education, and modern means of transportation are abolishing distance and the people of the earth are rapidly learning that the only difference between the population of the different countries is inherited ideals and prejudices, and that after all we are all seeking the right to live and to worship according to the dictates of our own conscience, and that when we can conquer ambition and selfishness and when we realize that we are our brother's keeper even though thousands of miles may separate our places of abode, we will have accomplished what is written 'They Will be done on earth as it is in heaven.'"

Following this, an hour or more was given over to impromptu speech-making by former pupils and teachers of the Hough school, and it was a most happy hour as these "boys" and "girls" related some pranks of their early school days, that brought much laughter and merriment. The rest of the afternoon was given over to visiting, and later in the day the folks left for their homes, declaring they they had had a most enjoyable time, and would look forward to another happy reunion next year.

Among those from away who were in attendance at the reunion, were: Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ash and family of Farmington; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gabel and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Horn of Ypsilanti; Miss Dorothy Butler, E. L. Blount and Arthur Wagner of Chicago; Mrs. Ira Hough of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gayfield of Port Huron.

Today's Reflections

Why wouldn't it be a good idea to sell Henry Ford the debts that our allies in the late war owe us?

The short skirt and short hair seem to have come to stay. Now if we could get a shorter ballot and a shorter legislative term we'd believe the world was making some progress.

There's this much to be said in favor of the radio—it will carry a sermon as far as it will carry jazz.

If you can't remember all the swimming rules you ever heard, try to remember that using common sense is the best of all of them.

What has become of the old-fashioned Plymouth parents who used to hope for a girl baby on the grounds that girls gave less worry than boys?

While the old songs used to go to the heart, the new ones seem to go to the feet.

Plymouth wives will tell you that about the only sweeping reform needed in the home is the one that will get the cobwebs out of the corners.

Drive and your friends ride with you; walk and you stand a good chance of being run over by a stranger.

Almost every married man in Plymouth would feel crushed if they knew the kind of husbands their wives thought they were getting.

What has become of the old-fashioned man who used to get at least three summers out of one straw hat?

Tourist travel will be heavier than ever this summer despite the fact that the flappers furnish plenty of scenery at home.

Those Plymouth people who pine for the good old days never pursued a mule and a double-axe up and down corn rows all day for fifty cents and their dinner.

A New York girl is suing for a kiss. The cost of living must be awful high in that town.

One of the first things a good Plymouth housekeeper wants is a nice dining room, so she can make the family eat in the kitchen.

Now they say cock-roaches carry cancer germs. But we couldn't hate a cock-roach any more even if they didn't.

PERRINSVILLE

There will be no more holidays at church until September, so everyone remember that there will be church every Sunday at 3:00 o'clock Sunday-school at 2:00 o'clock. Everybody welcome.

The Ladies' Aid will meet with Mrs. Carl Theuer in July. Everybody come, and don't forget to bring an apron for the bazaar.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Theuer attended the funeral of their cousin, Mrs. Mabel Coon, Monday.

Paul Ausenmocher's team ran away last week Thursday, on Middle Belt road. Mr. Ausenmocher was thrown from the wagon, which passed over his shoulder and back, bruising him quite badly. No bones were broken.

About ninety attended the Richards reunion at Mrs. Klatt's.

STARK

Thomas Karrick, living with his mother at Nankin Mills, was quietly married Saturday, June 27th, to Miss Martha Keepeff of Detroit. Their many friends here join in wishing them a long and happy married life.

Mrs. Goodell and family of Detroit, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Love on Farmington road.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Price and family and Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Shaw and family of Detroit, called on Mr. and Mrs. Schunk of Nankin Mills, Sunday afternoon.

Miss Margaret Miehbeck is taking her vacation at this writing, at her home at Nankin Mills. Miss Miehbeck has been employed the last two years at Phoenix.

Mrs. Miehbeck entertained company from Detroit and Plymouth Sunday.

Thomas Wood and son, Charles, living on the town line, have purchased a farm near Chelsea, and will move there in the fall.

A Sunday-school picnic of the three charges of Rev. Paul Havens is being planned to be held in the near future, near Nankin Mills. Watch the Mail for further particulars.

The "Ford Moving Picture" is to be seen in this vicinity in the near future. A notice will be given in the Mail.

GARDEN GROVE

"OUR RESTRICTIONS ARE YOUR PROTECTION"

"FOR THIS IS CONQUEST AND WORLD SUCCESS—A HOME WHERE ABIDETH HAPPINESS."
—Edgar A. Guest.

No matter what else a man strives for in this life, whether it be riches, honor, fame, comfort or happiness, the ultimate goal of all Americans is to own a HOME—a place out in the open, a place where he has plenty of room to move about—to have his little garden, to get away from the nerve racking, noisy bustle of the city.

It is said that no one can cheat you out of ultimate success but yourself, because the world stands aside and waits for a determined man.

If YOU are an average American, and you do not own your own home now, you are looking forward to the future when you can own one.

No matter how happy a man may be in a rented home, he never knows what real happiness is until he sleeps under his own roof. The satisfaction of having a home of your own cannot be paralleled.

Never before has the building of a home been brought within the reach of the average man as it is today. Most of us don't take the trouble to find out if it is possible for us to own a home, when it might be just within our reach.

If you will come to GARDEN GROVE, at the intersection of Seven Mile road and Farmington road, we will show you how easily you can reach your goal and own your own home, for practically the same payments as you are now making for rent.

GARDEN GROVE offers you the advantages of town. There is bus service by your door on the Seven Mile road to Detroit and Northville. There are two nice stores and a garage on the corner. There is now a good school on the property and there will be a good four-room school this year, if the plans go through.

There are a limited number of these fine homesites available and as some are more advantageously located than others, the first purchasers get the advantage. So investigate today.

If you will take the time to give us a ring, or mail the coupon below for further information, or come out and see us you will be more than doubly paid for your time.

THE THEATRE

"THE SHOCK PUNCH"

Richard Dix arrives at the Penniman Allen theatre, next Saturday, July 4th, in the role of a young man who has lightning in his fists in the Paramount picture, "The Shock Punch," directed by Paul Sloane from John Mowbray Saunders' Liberty Magazine story.

The story has to do with a young millionaire who dreads the thought of getting "soft" and hires a couple of professional pugilists to keep him in trim. The action starts with the first scene and doesn't let up for a minute.

Frances Howard is the girl in the case. She is the daughter of a building contractor, who likes Dix but doesn't take to his fistic accomplishments, and tells him that if he wants to stay in good with her he'll have to tone down a bit. This Dix tries to do, but everywhere everyone seems to be tempting him to demonstrate the famous "shock punch" he has developed as the result of weeks strenuous training.

—and he does, not once but several times, and when that old blow hits home, you'll almost break the handles off the seats.

If you don't like "The Shock Punch," the motion picture isn't made that will entertain you.

"CODE OF THE WEST"

Flapperism comes in for a sound spanking and jazz receives a knock-out blow in Paramount's "Code of the West," which comes to the Penniman Allen theatre, Sunday and Monday, July 5 and 6.

The direct and drastic methods of the West were never better illustrated than in this absorbing photoplay, in which a sturdy son of Arizona teaches a flapper daughter of New York the a-b-c of living and loving.

Pictured against marvelous natural backgrounds and abounding in breath-taking thrills, "Code of the West" unfolds its vivid, appealing story of the romance of Georgie May Stockwell, a frivolous little flapper, and Cal Thurman, a sturdy, virile cowboy.

The young westerner, unused to the ways of the East, falls an easy victim to the charms of Georgie, who flirts outrageously with him but laughs at him when he proposes to her. The realization that she has only been playing with him infuriates Cal and he forces her to marry him.

This is the beginning of an unusual series of events that reach a terrific climax during the height of a roaring forest fire. The manner in which Georgie and Cal escape paving the way to their ultimate reunion provides several mighty thrills and some great dramatic moments.

Owen Moore has the strong role of the cowboy-cavalman, and Constance Bennett gives a good account of herself as the flighty, flirty flapper. Others in the cast are Mabel Ballin, Charles Ogle and David Butler.

"A KISS IN THE DARK"

"A Kiss in the Dark," a Paramount production of the stage play, "Aren't We All," by Frederick Lonsdale, directed by Frank Tuttle, and featuring Adolphe Menjou, Lillian Rich and Aileen Pringle in the leading roles, comes to the Penniman Allen theatre, Wednesday, July 8th.

The story has to do with Walter Grenham, played by Menjou. Grenham is a holy terror with the women and when he wants to put his past behind him and take up the future with the girl he loves, played by Miss Pringle, she won't have anything to do with him because she is sure that the minute her back is turned off will go Grenham galavanting with anyone, who happens to strike his fancy at the moment.

Lillian Rich, seen recently in "The Golden Bell," has the role of Betty King, wife of Johnny King, played by Kenneth MacKenna, who heads the strong supporting cast in this production. Betty is a horn fiend, who carries on scandalously with Grenham, nearly wrecking her own home and ruining the happiness of Grenham and Janet (Aileen Pringle).

After a series of the funniest incidents you've ever seen on the screen, Menjou manages to straighten everything out to the satisfaction of all. But it's a real side-splitter while it lasts.

BASE BALL

PLYMOUTH MERCHANTS WIN TWO GAMES.

The Plymouth Merchants defeated the Methodist church team in a six inning twilight game, Thursday evening, by a score of 8 to 6. Doudt hit a home run in the first inning; Milliman and Freund each got three hits. Gray, Todd and Curtiss led with the stick for the Methodist boys.

The Merchants also defeated the strong Utica team at Burroughs field, Sunday. Utica scored four runs in the first inning, due to errors on second and third base by the locals. Plymouth scored two in their half. Utica scored one more in the fourth on clean hitting. The Merchants retaliated by scoring four runs in their half, on hits by Milross, Milliman, Trimble and Leuch, and Williams' tunk with a pitched ball. Both teams played airtight ball the remainder of the game. Final score—Plymouth, 6; Utica, 5.

THE HOUSE OF CORRECTION TAKES TWO MORE GAMES.

Saturday, the Officers team defeated the Detroit Independents, 1 to 0. On account of wet grounds, the game did not start till late, so was made a seven inning game. Puliski, throwing for the Independents, had the Officers guessing till the last of the seventh when Gifford singled, Brewer sacrificed and Rowland singled to center scoring Gifford with the winning run. Rowland, pitching for the Officers, allowed only three hits.

Next Saturday and Sunday, Captain Denniston promises the Officers they will have a battle as he has booked the Detroit Police (Bethune Station) for Saturday, July 4th, and the Detroit Police (Hunt Street Station) for Sunday, July 5th. Both of these clubs have high standings and play all fast semi-professional clubs. But the Officers have lost only two games this season, and they think they can handle them. Both games will be played on the Farm grounds.

Progress

Two recent developments have focused public attention on Graham Brothers Trucks as never before.

One was the sweeping price reductions of May 15th, ranging from $80 to $160.

The other was Graham Brothers ascendancy to leadership by building more 1½ ton trucks than any other manufacturer in the world, during the first quarter of 1925, and by achieving second position in the 1 ton and 1½ ton fields combined.

Progress such as this deserves public attention—and eliminates all doubt as to the logical truck to buy!

... APPRECIATION ...

TO THE CITIZENS OF PLYMOUTH:—

I desire at this time to personally express my thanks and appreciation to the citizens of Plymouth for their generous hospitality and their hearty co-operation in making the convention of the Michigan Funeral Directors and Embalmers Association, held here last week, such an outstanding success. This spirit of co-operation speaks well for the public spiritedness of our citizens and it was highly commented on by our visitors at the convention.

I especially wish to express my thanks to the Chamber of Commerce, the Village Commission, the Board of Education, the clergy of the village, the ladies who served the meals, the Boy Scouts, the Ladies' Quartette, Supt. George A. Smith for his generosity, the business men and citizens for their splendid decorations, the citizens who so kindly placed their spare rooms at the disposal of the visitors, and to everybody who assisted in any way in making the convention one of the best ever held by the association.

With such a spirit prevailing among our citizens, Plymouth is bound to progress. Again, I thank you.

FRED D. SCHRADER.

Notable Cases Where Skill Beats Strength

There are many examples in natural history of skill overcoming sheer brute strength, and there is one illustration of educated animal instinct which comes very near to human skill. This is the collie dog, which, by hereditary and acquired skill, is capable not only of controlling the movements of flocks of sheep and herds of cattle which, as regards brute strength, are infinitely superior to itself, but is further able to count the herd or flock and discover if one is missing from it.

Cases are on record in which collies, missing one out of a flock of sheep, have gone back and either hunted it up or found it dead. This is certainly the nearest approach to human skill exhibited in the animal kingdom.

In the jungles of India there are monkeys who are able by means of something like human skill to take hold of snakes which could easily kill or crush them. In such a fashion that the reptiles cannot strike with their fangs. The monkeys then hit the snakes' heads against stones or trees until they are dead or stunned.

A still more curious fact is that the monkeys only do this when they know they are within reach of a herb which frequently proves an antidote to the bite of the particular snake they attack.

Of marine animals the whale is physically the most powerful. Its most determined enemy is the thrasher, a fish of much inferior strength, which, by superior skill in attack, frequently comes off victor. There is also a kind of shark which arranges its attacks so skillfully that it will wound to death a whale which could kill it with a single stroke of its flukes.

Filling Zuyder Zee

When the draining of the Zuyder zee has been completed 30 or more years hence about 494,000 acres of fertile land will have been reclaimed—enough to take care of 250,000 Hollanders who otherwise would be forced to emigrate by the steadily increasing overproduction of the Netherlands. What will become of the 3,000 fishermen who now earn their living by fishing is another question. The government has taken far-reaching measures to compensate the fishermen or to aid them by shifting the scene of their activity to the coast. Moreover a small lake will be left in the center of the present sea so that fishing will not be permitted to die by inches. The greater number of the Zuyder zee fishermen will be trained in inland navigation. Recently the first training ship left Amsterdam for a trip along the Dutch rivers in order to prepare the fishermen for their new jobs. Within a few weeks several of those on the Isle of Marken will go up for examination. Several other fishermen already have become "landlubbers." One may see them roving mending in their picturesque fishermen's dresses.

SEE CHANCE TO TAKE CLOVER SEED HARVEST

FIRST CROP BAD FOR HAY, BUT MAY BE UTILIZED IN MANY SECTIONS AS SEED SOURCE.

While dry weather has been very unfavorable for clover hay production on the first crop in Michigan this year, a chance for many farmers to utilize the first crop for a seed harvest has been pointed out by Prof. J. F. Cox, head of the crops department at the Michigan State College.

Inspection of fields has shown an unusually high percentage of seed developing in the first crop, and it is thought that it may pay in many cases to handle the first rather than the second crop for seed, where fields are clean and seed is apparently setting well. That native grown seed will probably be in great demand during the coming year is also predicted.

Picked Up About Town

Price tags on dresses in show windows have kept more men single than any other one thing.

Dad Plymouth says he learned long ago never to judge a man by the talk he lets out in his own behalf.

Why is it that some women would rather find out secrets for themselves than to be told?

"Nature lovers," says Dad Plymouth, "are now demonstrating their love of nature by going into the country and uprooting everything they can lay their hands on."

From the standpoint of the creditor, mankind is divided into three classes—those who pay, those who would pay if they could and those who could pay if they would.

Dad Plymouth is authority for the statement that fat men may die earlier than bony men, but they don't do any more worrying about it.

"It's all right to burn the candle at both ends," says Dad Plymouth. "If you are sure that you can pay for the candles."

The radio is as bad as the toothache for keeping its victims up late at night. But there is a cure for the toothache.

"About the only way they could improve on these big tanks they're building for some of our millionaires," suggests Day Plymouth, "would be to equip them with fire escapes."

MANY METHODS OF SIGNALING

Early Inventions for "Long-Distance" Talk.

The fabulous honor of being the first inventor of the art of signaling, says the Scientific American, is bestowed by certain classical writers upon the ingenious Palamedes, but it is certain that long before the time of the Trojan war the Egyptians and Assyrians, if not the Chinese and other nations of remote antiquity—of whom monumental records alone remain to us—had developed regular methods of signaling by fire, smoke, flags, and so on. Signals were passed from tower to tower of the Great Wall of China, and the Tower of Babel was a signal tower.

Beacons are "as old as the hills" on whose summits they were placed. Those lighted on Mounts Ida, Athos, Citheron and intervening heights conveyed information of the taking of Troy by Agamemnon. Leander was guided across the Hellespont by the signal lamp displayed by Hero in her tower at Sestos. One night the lamp was blown out—he was drowned, and she then threw herself into the waves. Theseus, in the Argonautic expedition, conveyed information by colors of the sails hoisted, but killed his father through a telegraphic error; for, flushed with victory, he forgot his signal, and old Aegeus, seeing the black sail, and feeling sure his son was dead, flung himself into the sea.

The use of mirrors to flash signals by the sun's rays dates back to the time of the pharaohs. The Persians are said to have considerably developed it for purposes of war.

The Persians, the Gauls and the Aztecs communicated by relays of sentinels shouting to one another, and Alexander, by means of the stentorophonic tube, tactical Arrius communicated at night by means of a tall vessel containing water, which was let out slowly by a tap at the bottom; on the water floated a cork disk carrying a gauge with divisions down the side, and on each division a separate sentence was inscribed. Each signaling point had one of these contrivances; and on a light being shown from one station it was acknowledged by the other, and each clepsydra opened at the moment. When the surface of the water receded to the sentence required, the signaling station again showed a light, when the other stopped the outflow and read the words inscribed at the water level upon the corresponding gauge.

Hannibal erected watch towers in Africa and Spain to signal from; and whenever the Romans extended their conquests in Gaul, Spain or elsewhere, they made use of similar signaling devices. A representation of one of their telegraph towers is engraved on Trojan's column, and ruins of some of them are still to be seen in parts of France.

SEEK TREASURE OF ALEXANDER

Archeologists Believe It Can Be Located.

A report sent from Baku says that search has been begun by the Azerbaijan Archeological society for the treasure of Alexander the Great, which is believed to be buried near the village of Andrievka. It is rather a relief that the quest for buried treasure has been shifted to the neighborhood of Baku, and that it is the wealth of Alexander which is sought. Search for the buried treasure of Captain Kidd and that of the Louisiana-Mississippi pirate-patriot, Jean Lafitte, has been carried on so extensively that it is right to give the treasure of Alexander a chance. So much also has been written of the buried treasures of the Incas and of gold in sunken galleons that it is diverting to hear from the region of the Caucasus mountains and the Caspian sea, in old Georgia, which is now the Azerbaijan republic.

Many unsatisfactory results have attended the search for buried treasure, and in the matter of finding the wealth of Alexander one should keep expectation and enthusiasm under control. It is believed that the third king of Macedonia, in the thirty-three years of his active life between Pella and Babylon, may have accumulated wealth. In his triumphal travels in Byzantium, Egypt, Persia and other countries he might have gathered treasure. Whether he buried much of it, or any near the village of Andrievka is the question.

Treasure of Alexander the Great would be double treasure. The gold would be gold worth so much an ounce, but the gold coins, vases and amulets taken from kings, princesses and priests at Thebes and scores of other cities would be worth more than their weight in gold. Lovers of antiques, lovers of things with imperial associations, lovers of things steeped in associations of war, plunder, conquest and assassination would bid against each other.

The dispatch says: "Although there are no precise historical data indicating the existence of such treasure, the archeologists were led to excavate by the statement of an 80-year-old resident of an ancient map stolen from a Turkish sultan many years ago showing the spot where the treasure is buried. The old man's story of a stolen map has a reminiscent sound to persons who have been burnt by the buried treasure fever.

The dispatch also says that "It is an established historical fact that Alexander's troops mutinied at one point in the great empire builder's campaign against Persia—2,256 years ago—and local legend has it that he buried all his treasure somewhere on the Caspian littoral to prevent it falling into the hands of the mutineers. The trouble with many local legends of buried treasure is that they cover too much ground, and that it is hard to pin them down to any particular spot.

Don't Talk—Telegraph

A traveling man went into a railway restaurant and gazed discontentedly at the profusion of pies and cakes on the counter. "Haven't you got anything solid to eat?" he asked.

"Shall I give you some beans?" asked the proprietor, with his most persuasive smile. The traveler assented, and making short work of them, asked: "How much?"

"Twenty-five cents," was the bland response.

"What?" cried the drummer. "25 cents for a spoonful of cold beans?"

The proprietor continued firm in his price. The man paid it and departed. But late that afternoon a telegram was handed in to the restaurant keeper, for which he paid 25 cents.

It ran thus: "Don't you think your price a little high on beans?"—American Mutual Magazine.

NEWBURG

Rev. Paul Havens preached to a full house, Sunday, taking for his text the words of Jesus, "Behold my hands," St. Luke 24:39. There were seventy-two in Sunday-school. The committee on the Sunday-school picnic will report next Sabbath.

The contract has been let for finishing the two upper rooms of the Newburg school, making a fine four-room, well equipped school for a district school. Newburg is surely growing.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Clemens and son, Clarence, and daughter, Margaret, attended the wedding at the Church of the Covenant in Detroit, Wednesday evening, of Andrew Komorah and Miss Lucille Foust of Detroit. The happy couple will reside in Jackson, where the groom, since graduating from the U. of M. a year ago, has been employed. Andrew was formerly a Newburg boy, and his many friends extend congratulations.

A very pleasant surprise was sprung on Mrs. Clark Mackinder, last Wednesday evening, when eleven of her relatives from Detroit and Strathmore, bringing ice cream and cake, besides a number of nice gifts, came to help celebrate Mrs. Mackinder's birthday. Her Newburg friends join in wishing her many happy returns of the day.

Mr. and Mrs. Oppenier and grandchildren of Detroit, spent Sunday at Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Greer's. Mrs. Watson and two children are also spending the summer there.

Little Doris Cochrane is quite ill at this writing.

Jack Horton and William Lomas have purchased Myron Bell's greenhouse at Plymouth, and are moving it to Newburg.

Miss Dorothy Ehinger of Adrian, was a guest of her classmate, Miss Clara Grimm, from Friday until Tuesday.

Henry Taylor of Hamilton, Ontario, who is a contractor and builder, is visiting his sister, Mrs. Jesse Jewell, and is talking of locating here.

Mr. and Mrs. William Johnson of Salem, called on Mr. and Mrs. Clark Mackinder, Monday afternoon. They were old Dansville friends, not having seen each other in thirty-five years.

Mrs. William Bartell, who has been very ill, is much improved at this time.

Mrs. John Thompson and sister, Mrs. Gertrude Carruthers of Pontiac, took a motor trip over to Canada, visiting several places. One thing of especial interest was climbing a mountain near Hamilton, from which they got a view of Lake Ontario. They arrived home Monday.

Cracks Whip in Church, According to Custom

Our own country is so young in years and its customs and conditions have changed so rapidly during its brief existence that we know nothing of those curious customs which persist for generation after generation in a venerable country like England. In some English manors singular practices are still observed. For example, says Dr. G. C. Williamson in his book "Curious Survivals," at Calster in Lincolnshire, a most peculiar service was retained until the middle of the Nineteenth century.

The owner of the estate, known as Brigg, held certain lands subject to the performance on Palm Sunday of every year of the ceremony of cracking a whip in the church; while the clergyman was reading the first lesson the tenant cracked the whip three distinct times in the church porch and then folded it up. As soon as the second lesson was commenced he went up to the clergyman, presented the whip to him, held it over his head and waved it three times, holding it in that position during the reading of the lesson. The whip had a purse tied at the end of it, which was supposed to contain thirty pieces of silver; it had also four pieces of elm attached to it, representing the Gospels. The three cracks were typical of St. Peter's denial of his Lord, and the waving of the whip over the clergyman's head was supposed to be an act of homage to the Blessed Trinity.

The origin of the ceremonial goes back to exceedingly remote times and is said to have been connected with a penance imposed on some tenant for an act of murder.—Youth's Companion.

Arab Children Kind to Parents in Age

Of the many interesting sights in the city of Algiers, on the North African coast, one of the most striking is the great horde of old Arabs sitting carelessly around in coffee houses and the pretty parks. When the tourist steps off the steamer and enters the town the first thing that attracts his attention is, of course, the strange dresses of the native women and the flowing mantles and headgear of the men.

The second thing that attracts the attention of the curious tourist is the fact that the whole Arabian city seems to be filled with old men, none under fifty, and many so old that the creases in their faces are half an inch deep. These old men never work, their days of labor are at an end. Just as soon as an Algerian has raised his family to the point where that family can work the old man is told to take a rest, his children will support him. So he gets a few packages of cigarettes, some money for coffee and goes down town to spend the days in gossip, argument and poetic imaginings.

Unless something terrible happens, the old man never again takes up the burden of hard labor, but sits around and offers sage advice and the strange fact is that the children are actually delighted that they are able to keep the father in luxury and ease, while inside the house the routine is handled by the mother, while the daughters either sit in the shade or go out to gossip with the neighbors.

Seeks Pirate Fortune

A claim for pirate millions deposited in a Bombay bank, has been made at Milan by Signor Guglielmo Calouzi. He states that he is a direct descendant of Frederico del Re, an Italian naval officer who fled from Italy in the Eighteenth century after killing a man during a quarrel. He was captured by pirates, and later became a pirate himself. The chief of the band took a liking to Del Re, and appointed him second in command. It is declared further that when the pirate chief died he left Del Re his entire fortune. Frederico del Re afterwards settled in Madagascar, and handed over the greater part of his wealth for safe keeping to the British East India company. His descendants, it is claimed, never knew of this treasure until its existence was revealed recently by the chance discovery of an old document in Madagascar. Signor Calouzi now intends to bring a legal action to recover the fortune for himself and his relatives.

Relic of Stone Age

A prehistoric arsenal dating back to the Stone age has been found near Strood, England. It appears to be the remains of a prehistoric "workshop," and is on a chalk cliff close to Frindsbury church, within sight of Rochester cathedral. Working on a slight clue, after eight days' digging, the searchers unearthed some 4,000 flint weapons and tools. "All the flints were found in heaps about three feet high, and there were 17 separate heaps exactly as they had been piled up when the workmen knocked off work—possibly 50,000 years ago. Everybody was greatly disappointed that no human bones were found. The men who chipped these flints were living in Britain when the woolly rhinoceros and the hairy elephant roamed the Medway valley."

Work for the Camera

Archaeologists always find it rather difficult to keep their native diggers up to the mark. But the men who are excavating the Punic ruins at Utica, near Carthage, have found out that all they need to do is to take moving pictures of the work. The laborers who know that the reels are to be shown at the moving picture theater in Tunis, where they can enjoy the felicity of seeing themselves on the screen, display the most extraordinary industry. Count De Prorak, the head of the expedition, says that, if the Carthaginians had had the moving picture camera instead of the whip with which to spur their slaves to labor, they could have erected temples and palaces that would have reached the clouds.—Youth's Companion.

President's Occupations

There has never been a president of the United States who was a minister. Washington was a farmer and surveyor. William Henry Harrison studied medicine, but turned to the army and later to politics. Taylor was a soldier and a Louisiana cotton planter. Johnson was a tailor and Grant a tanner, farmer, real estate agent, hardware clerk and soldier. Roosevelt's profession was politics from his twenty-second year on. Harding was a newspaper man. All the others, after various beginnings, were lawyers.

"The Ribs of the King"

In the courts of the Irish Free State mention of the king is being discontinued! There is no longer a "king's bench." Hitherto the criminal department of that court has been known as "the crown side." As the Irish language has been placed on an equality with English in the courts a republican lawyer, translating "crown side," rendered it "taobh an righ"—"the side of the king" and was laughed at by scholars who said his Irish phrase really meant "the king's ribs."

Germans in Argentina

German immigration is one of the outstanding features of colonization work in Argentina this year. The latest enterprise is one concluded by a powerful German financial firm in Buenos Aires whereby nearly 50,000 acres of a big estate known as La Mercedes, owned by the South American Cattle and Farming company, a Liebig subsidiary, are handed over to the financial concern to be colonized. The property, ideally situated as to water and other essentials, is being surveyed and divided. Seventy German families have arrived and are located in homes erected for them. One hundred and fifty more families are en route from Hamburg. Arrangements have been made through the National Mortgage bank of Argentina whereby the settlers have 30 years in which to pay for their homes.

Old Warrior Remembered

The authorities of Malmesburg, Wiltshire, England, have set themselves the task of ascertaining the color and the cut of the whiskers worn by old King Athelstan, who died in 925. They have looked through ancient books, studied statutes and pored over archives, but up to the present time with no success. They are not discouraged, however, and the search is still going on, says the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

A fund has been subscribed for the erection of a stained glass portrait to King Athelstan in the local town hall. It seems Athelstan drove out the Danes 1,000 years ago and the people of Malmesburg want to commemorate his act.

Dogs Carry Watches

A new kind of a watch dog has made its appearance in London. These dogs do not need any special training to be efficient, nor do they differ in pedigree from any of the other useless lapdogs that escort their mistresses on sunny afternoons along the Mall.

What makes these pets distinctive is that on their collars they wear tiny watches, often set with gems, and sometimes with little bells that strike the hours. A woman from San Diego, Cal., is credited with having started the fashion, which the Bond street jewelers were not slow to encourage.

A Round Oath

The bishop of London is said to figure in the following incident. He had been salmon fishing in the Highlands when two ghillies were heard subsequently discussing his merits, and one of them remarked: "He's a very nice gentleman, he is, but he do swear something dreadful."
"Swear?" exclaimed the other, aghast. "And him a bishop?"
"Aye," said the first. "A salmon started to rise and I asked him, 'Shall I row after that d—d fish, m'lord?' And he said, 'Yes, dot'—Sporting and Dramatic News.

New England Shakes

One earthquake seems to have the effect of breeding another, and New England is getting to be a fine place for earth tremors. A slip which causes an internal earth slide appears to leave a vacancy which must be rectified by another. And thus the process goes on. A portion of this general region south of Boston felt a recent quake which the scientists tell us centered off Long Island. Another shake, they predict, will shortly be felt in Connecticut, but fortunately, they assert, it will not be of a serious nature.—Lowell Courier-Citizen.

When Better Automobiles Are Built, Buick Will Build Them

Question: Why is it that there are more than a million Buicks in use today?

Answer: Because Buicks are always popular with new car buyers and also because Buick's dependable construction results in a much longer life for Buicks than is ordinarily the span of service of a motor car.

MEN OF SCIENCE WATCH VOLCANOES

Risk Lives to Make Tests and Observations.

After a sleep of four hundred years, the famous Mexican volcano, Popocatepetl, is in eruption and volcanologists are hurrying to the spot.

A queer profession is volcanology, twin-sister of seismology. Literally, a volcanologist is a "Boy Who Stands on the Burning Deck, Whence All But He Had Fled." Good nerves—or none at all—are indispensable for the work.

When a volcano has been quiescent for so many years that it may reasonably be considered to be extinct, it ceases to attract attention. But several big "fire mountains" that are merely slumbering uneasily have their official watch dogs, ever vigilant and busy with their tests and observations, up in a little observatory near the rim of the bubbling crater.

You find them on Taal, in the Philippines, and on Vesuvius, on Kilauaea, in the Hawaiian Islands, and on Asama, in Japan. In addition to the permanent stations, temporary observatories are set up, ever and anon, by parties of "watchdogs" well versed in the ways of earthquakes and eruptions, when word comes of a volcano that apparently intends to give trouble.

The practical result of all the steadily accumulating mass of observations is a dossier of data that enables many an eruption to be foreseen in time to give warnings as to its probable extent and direction, so that lives can be saved and property removed from what, it is realized, will be the track of lava rivers. Sometimes these warnings can be given even weeks ahead. The town of St. Pierre, Martinique, that was overwhelmed by Mount Pelee, had a fortnight's warning, but neglected to profit by it.

One of the most exciting experiences of "volcano watchdogs" of recent years was during the big eruption of Kilauaea, when a party of plucky American volcanologists camped all night at the foot of a line of fountains of fiery froth three times the height of Cleopatra's Needle. It was a splendid spectacle, the blindingly incandescent molten rock spurting up in continuous jets from the fountain cones, like monstrous roman candles. For all their intrepidity, however, they must have had bad moments of feeling that home was not such a bad place after all when, about 3 o'clock in the morning, the fiery fountains "put a little more pep into it" and shot up to greater height than St. Paul's cathedral, London. The river of lava that ensued after this first blow-off of gas flowed 12 miles down the forested mountain-side to the sea.

Now the Blue Carnation

The ambition of English florists is to grow a blue carnation. The incontestable fact that in nature no such thing as a blue carnation or a blue rose or a yellow sweet pea or a black tulip occurs is no argument against the florists' endeavor to produce one of these unnatural flowers. If our gardens were only allowed to show such blooms as may be found in a state of nature they would be miserably poorer. A wild rose is a charming flower, but what reason is there in an asceticism which would deny on the color and form of Madame Chateaufort or the fragrance of General McArthur because these roses are unnatural, the product of the florists' science?—London Telegraph.

Interesting Reading

An old man, a real patriarch of the hills, wandered into the public library of a southern Indiana town, recently, and stood for a few minutes looking around. Finally approaching the librarian he said, rather defensively, "I reckon ye don't object to my readin' in that book there, do ye?" pointing with his cane in the direction of the dictionary.

Being assured that he was free to use the book, he seated himself comfortably, and seemingly, with much interest, perused the pages of the book for some time.—Indianapolis News.

Dog Adopts Chicks

Reversing the recent case in which a Rhode Island Red hen adopted a litter of puppies a four-year-old poodle, owned by Theodore Gauthier of West Springfield, Mass., is playing mother to a brood of 15 chicks, the Philadelphia Public Ledger says.

The chicks, incubator born, attracted the poodle's attention when brought home by Mr. Gauthier. Finally the poodle was allowed to adopt them after much wifling and refusing to eat. The chicks are being brought up with an abnormal tendency to cleanliness, for Fifi licks them as she would a puppy.

Fire Destroys Wild Life

The greatest single agency of wild life destruction is the forest fire, so we are informed by government officials. For eight years, from 1917 to 1924, the average annual number of forest fires in this country was 41,000. During this time 9,000,000 acres of forest land was burned over, each year or an area twice that of Upper and Lower Michigan was destroyed by the red devastator. This loss totals over $18,000,000 annually.

Austrian Interest Rates

Although interest rates were reduced in Austria recently, the minimum rate per year for short-term loans to first-class firms is approximately 16.5 per cent.

CROPS AND SOILS MEN TO MEET IN MICHIGAN

FARM SPECIALISTS OF AMERICA WILL STUDY STATE'S AGRICULTURE AT MICHIGAN STATE COLLEGE, JULY 9TH.

Leading crops and soils specialists of the nation will visit Michigan on July 9 and 10, when the annual meeting of the American Society of Agronomy is held at the Michigan State College. While most of the delegates are expected from the "corn belt" states, representation from all parts of the country is assured.

During the two day convention, the visiting farm experts will study various phases of Michigan agriculture, with especial attention to improvement work in scientific fields. The time will be divided evenly between the crops and the soil management ends of the program.

Great strides the state has taken in the past five years in increasing its acreage of alfalfa, and the methods whereby this has been brought about, will be one of the items of chief interest to the delegates. Michigan now ranks as the leading alfalfa state east of the Mississippi river. Members of the crops department at M. S. C. will discuss problems of seed adaptation and cultural practices which have been met in the state, not only with alfalfa but also with other crops.

Soil survey methods, soil management systems, special care for certain types of soil, and latest laboratory developments will be included in the soil discussions. Michigan's large acreage of muck lands will be featured.

Hot Weather Happiness

Next to electric cooking devices—and these are a joy to the housekeeper's heart—there is nothing so likely to keep the crispness and coolness in one's white cuffs and the sweetness in one's disposition as an electric fan in the kitchen.

A kitchen fan is easily and cheaply put in place. It costs very little to run. It keeps the air of the kitchen cool and sweet. You can cook anything—cabbage, cauliflower, ham, onions or whatnot—and nobody beyond the kitchen need know it.

An electric fan in any room—dining room, living room—is wonderfully refreshing in the hot weather. The expense is small.
