WALLED LAKE NEW CASINO OPENS EAST MONDAY

The New Casino at Walled Lake will be opened for the 1926 season on Easter Monday, April 5 with a grand ball for which unusual preparations have been made.

Music will be furnished by Nat Natoli's famous orchestra, a Seymour Simonds production.

The Casino, which is one of the finest in Michigan, and only recently built, has been considerably enlarged during the past few months.

A new electric lighting system has been installed and many added conveniences made for patrons.

The proprietor, J. L. Tolletine is looking forward to a successful season at this popular resort.

SPECIAL SCHOOL MEETING CALLED

THE MEETING HELD LAST MONDAY EVENING CALLED A LARGE NUMBER OF VOTERS.

The special school meeting, held at High school auditorium, last Monday evening, for the purpose of considering the purchasing of additional land for school purposes, was largely attended.

The meeting brought out considerable sentiment favoring the purchasing of a site and building a ward school on the north side of the village, and this was discussed pro and con.

The following day it was learned that a recent change in the school law, requires a 60 per cent vote of the total vote to carry a proposition of this kind, and for this reason the board has called another special school meeting, Thursday, April 8th, a notice of which appears upon this page.

The land upon which the board has secured options lies between the new grade school and Adams street, and is known as the Kuhn, Jenks and Buzard property.

DEATH OF AN AGED RESIDENT

Mrs. Clara Rice died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. E. J. Simmons, on Main street, Saturday, March 27th.

In November, 1880, she was married to Alexander T. Rice of North Farmington, Mich. To this union six children were born, four of whom survive her: Burt L. Rice of Detroit; Bertha E. Simmons of Plymouth; Frank C. Rice of Novi, and Charles W. Rice of Lansing.

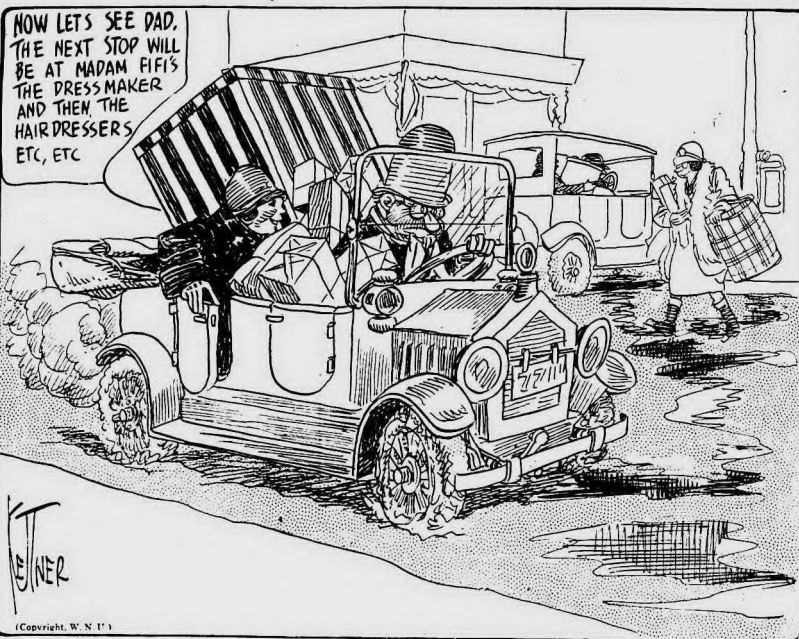

After the death of Mr. Rice in 1911, she still continued to live in her home at Novi, where she was held in high esteem by her many friends and neighbors.

Funeral services were held from the Novi church, Wednesday afternoon, at 2:00 o'clock, Rev. H. A. Sayles officiating. Interment in Novi cemetery.

GIVE DEMONSTRATION BEFORE KIWANIS CLUB

Roy Crowe, local manager of the Michigan Bell Telephone Company, entertained the Kiwanis Club at their last Tuesday's meeting with an interesting and instructive demonstration of telephone operation.

Altogether the demonstration was highly enjoyable, as well as one which will enable those who listened to it to obtain telephone service without the usual annoyances, which are so frequently experienced because of ignorance of operating methods.

WILL OPEN NEW SUBDIVISION SATURDAY

The Plymouth Corporation, owners of Sunset Park subdivision, have a full page ad in today's Mail, announcing the opening, Saturday, April 3rd.

This property is well located and well restricted. The improvements call for water, gas, sewers, sidewalks, shade trees and graveled streets.

DEATH OF MRS. ANNA L. GOTTSCHALK

Anna L. Gottschalk, nee Stockfeth, daughter of Christian Stockfeth and Johanna, nee Giegler, was born August 20, 1867, near Plymouth.

Mrs. Gottschalk, apparently well, had visited at the home of her daughter Thursday afternoon, and left her in good spirits. At home, she prepared supper, and when ready, she fell over, and expired immediately, of heart failure.

She was a woman with winning ways, making many friends. Her sudden death is a shock to her family, the church and the whole community.

Funeral services were held at Schrader Bros. Funeral Home and the Lutheran church, Sunday afternoon at 2:30, Rev. Charles Strasen officiating.

Join the Chamber of Commerce.

MUNICIPAL NOTES

BY THE MANAGER

Our attention has been called to two places where drivers parking their automobiles are not only violating parking laws, but are trespassing on private property.

Tuesday evening, the Commission opened five bids for the construction of 24,300 linear feet of sanitary sewer, ranging in size from 8 to 12-inch.

It was the intention to receive bids on the same evening, for the purchase of the sewer and water bonds. But a provision of a new state law requires more elaborate advertising than formerly, and the bond sale had to be postponed until April 12th.

Friday morning last, the fire department called on Harold Daggett on Harvey street, for the purpose of putting out a small fire on his roof.

Wednesday morning, the fire chief and a couple of men assisted the gas company in extinguishing a fire in the coke pile at the gas plant.

Water bills for metered water services for the past quarter are now ready to be sent out. Remember there is a 10% discount for payment within fifteen days of the date of statement.

The wet weather of this week has held up our street grading. The motor grader worked over quite a number of streets for the purpose of drying them out, but the rains have spoiled our efforts.

Mrs. Claud Burrows, assisted by Mrs. M. W. Pease and Mrs. W. B. Downing, entertained sixteen ladies at a one o'clock luncheon, Tuesday, at her home on Farmer street.

Mrs. Emma Laura Gruebner, the five years, five months and sixteen days old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Gruebner, died at the home of her parents on Liberty street, Sunday, March 28th.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon, from the home, with interment in Forrest Lawn cemetery, Detroit.

A joint ladies' night is being planned within the next thirty days, when the Kiwanis Club and the Rotary Club will collaborate together.

Harry S. Lee, president of the Chamber of Commerce, will preside. Calvin Whipple will lead the community singing. The Kiwanis orchestra will play, and the Plymouth quartette will sing. Additions to this program will be added in our next issue.

COUNTRY HOME BURNS

The country home of Fred Brand on the Perrinville road, three and one-half miles southeast of the village, was burned to the ground about five o'clock Tuesday afternoon, together with all its contents.

A neighbor saw smoke issuing from the basement of the house, where the fire seemed to originate, and gave the alarm.

Mr. Brand is in California, and no one was at home at the time. The fire had made such headway when neighbors arrived that all their efforts were put forth to save the barn and other buildings. The house and contents were insured.

AN EVEN BREAK
 We've talked to many rural residents and we've reached the conclusion that the only reason a man or woman buys from a mail order catalog is because somebody was enterprising enough to send them the catalog. In running through it they discovered something they would like to have, and since the price suits them they sit down and order it—without ever thinking that the same thing can be secured right here at home, at just as fair a price, and with a great saving in time. So we have also come to believe that the old idea of fighting fire with fire is a good one—that the only way home merchants can hope to hold home trade is to meet the catalog man half way—put your message into the same homes he is putting his catalog. There is one way that it can be done—one way you can get it into the home, and keep it there, and that is through your home town newspaper. You are entitled to an even break with the catalog man and the columns of this paper offer you your only opportunity to break even with him.

HAVE A GARDEN
 It is only a matter of days until ideal weather arrives, so right now is the best time you could select to plan a garden, with a view to making it produce this year not only a full measure of the outdoor exercise that all of us need so badly, but a profitable return in the shape of food supplies. The home garden movement which swept the country during the World War seems to be dying out. In those days it seemed that every possible foot of land in cities, towns and out-skirts was devoted to this useful purpose. Amateur gardeners and farmers cultivated faithfully and reaped abundant reward in health and garden products for their energy. But with the passing of necessity came loss of interest in gardens.

We believe every family in Plymouth should have a garden, because we believe it is a long step toward the prosperity of the entire community. You can buy vegetables, of course, but why not raise them and then spend the money you would use in buying them for some other purpose? You can buy the things that grow in a garden but you can't buy the health-giving exercise and the actual enjoyment that comes from spending an hour or so daily cultivating vegetables. And somehow or other the things you raise afford the greatest satisfaction when placed on the dining table. Let's have more money in circulation in this community this summer than ever before. Nothing will go as far toward accomplishing that as for every family to have its own garden—and a good one.

THERE'S NO SURPLUS
 The peculiar thing about frequent breaks in the price of some farm commodity is that it is always blamed on a "surplus." And the fact is that there is seldom, if ever, a real surplus of anything in the food line. Once in awhile we get too many perishable products, like tomatoes or peaches, concentrated in one market at one time, and some of them have to be dumped in the river. But where is the corn of 1920, when the farmers threatened to burn it, or the wheat or the cotton crops of 1914 when it was declared there was an over-supply? Plymouth citizens who will ponder over this matter a few minutes will readily see that when we raise an over-abundance in one year it only helps to tide the world over another year, and that eventually it is all used up. They will also come to see that practically every cry of "surplus" is raised by speculators and politicians, and that lending an ear to such a cry only serves to boost prices in their interest, and at the expense of the consumer.

HOME OWNERSHIP
 We note in a press dispatch that a survey recently taken in France reveals that three-fourths of the people in that country own their own homes. Even though we are a far richer nation, the proportion over here is not that great. Too many of our people have the idea of spending money as fast as they get it, and wandering from place to place, so they are constantly paying landlords for that which they ought to have in their own names—a roof above their heads. Home ownership isn't the problem today it once was; homes are easier to get and easier to pay for now. Any Plymouth man who will save enough to buy a lot will, while he is saving that much, discover a way to put a home on that lot, and later on find that he has paid for it almost before he realized it. If you are a renter you may have as good a landlord as there is on earth—but if you own your own home you've got a still better one. Sit down and do a little thinking, now that the building season is opening up, and then drop in at any bank and let someone of experience show you how you can own your own home as easily as the Frenchman who has to pay far higher tax rates than we do, and whose wages are far below the wages earned by the average American citizen.

ELM SCHOOL NOTES
 The regular meeting of the Elm Parent-Teacher Association will be held Tuesday evening, April 6th. All parents and friends are cordially invited to attend. The Elm Council of Junior Pathfinders has completed the following lessons on "Human Engineering," or "Reading the Price Tags of Life": "Dutifulness," "Duty," "Truth," "Hero," "Friend," "Individual Efforts Combined." These lessons have been given to the students of the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades, by Mrs. George Bentley, Pathfinder teacher. The response made by the children, in class and in letters has been distinctly favorable to the course.

As constructive engineers plan and build homes, schools, factories, bridges, railway lines, etc., "human engineers" learn to plan and build a life of service to mankind. Boys and girls learn to do the things they ought to want to do and will do, by choice, when they are taught to think and reason; they then learn to appreciate their individual relationship and personal responsibility to each other. Stark school came to Elm Friday, March 26th, for a spell-down. Our school was victorious. The four surrounding schools are going to meet again, and see who wins. We hope you will watch for the outcome.

Varying Dialect of

High and Low Dutch

Nineteen hundred years ago, Julius Caesar, in describing Germany, called that part of the country inhabited by the lowland tribes Germany Inferior, or Lower Germany, and the more elevated regions to the south and south-eastward, Germany Superior.

In time the linguistic designations of Low Dutch and High Dutch, or Low German and High German, came to be applied to the dialects used by the inhabitants of these two regions.

There are, in fact, more than a score of distinguishable dialects in the speech of the common people of the Teutonic or German race. These dialects shade into one another, the difference increasing with distance, traveling on a line from the highlands of southern and southeastern Germany toward and through the lowlands bordering on the North sea and the lower Elbe. The Low Dutch language comprehends several dialects of the north of Germany as well as the Frisian, Dutch and Flemish tongues. The High German dialects are usually classified in two divisions, as South German and Middle German.

But since the time of Luther, who translated the Bible into new High German (in distinction from the cruder literary language of the antecedent old High German), all these dialectic differences have been dying out, and are now perpetuated only in the spoken language of the peasantry.

Of the Low Dutch languages, the old Frisian is practically extinct; but Dutch remains as the national language of the Netherlands, and has a literature of its own, and Flemish is waging a determined fight to keep itself from being submerged by the French language in Belgium.

Matter of Hypnosis

The following episode took place in a boys' class in the primary department of the Sunday school of the Second Presbyterian church the Sunday following the week when Thurston had been in the city.

Each Sunday morning Miss Eleanor Kirby, who has been superintendent of the department for more than fifty years, tells a Bible story to the entire department, which is reviewed by the class teacher the following Sunday as a part of the lesson.

Miss Kirby had told the story of Philip baptizing the Ethiopian, and a seven-year-old boy was trying to review it, "And then—and then—Philip—baptized him." One of the older boys interrupted: "Oh, you baby! He didn't baptize him. He hypnotized him. You baptize babies; you hypnotize men."—Indianapolis News.

Patches in Politics

Ferd Funk, secretary of the Aetna Building and Loan in Topeka, and Henderson Martin, judge of the Industrial court, used to be high mugs in politics in Marion county. Funk is a Republican and Martin a Democrat.

"In the old days I dressed with becoming dignity for a county officer," said Funk. "I wore a Prince Albert coat and a clean collar. Henderson Martin used to have his wife sew patches on the elbows of his coat, the seat of his trousers and on the knees, just as soon as the clothes came from the tailor. Then he would go out on the stump and tell the farmers that they should not support me, because of my good clothes, but should support him, because of the patches on his clothes."—Kansas City Star.

Blood in Insects

The blood of an insect does not circulate through a system of closed blood tubes, as in man, but, instead, it more or less completely fills that part of the body cavity which is not filled with other organs. Oxygen is thus brought in contact with the blood by means of the tracheae. Insects have the most powerful muscles of all animals of their size. Relatively, an enormous amount of energy is released during the jumping or flying of a grasshopper. The tracheae pass directly into the muscles and other tissues. Here oxygen is passed into the tissues and oxidation takes place when the work is done.

Hardwood Floors

In addition to the beauty and comfort hardwood floors give to a home, considering the small cost added necessary to their installation, they are really economical. It is questionable if a home can be called modern that is without hardwood floors, and as a time and labor saver there is nothing among the things that are considered extras in home construction that affords greater satisfaction.

Speaking of Signatures

The small son of an Indianapolis photographer recently was reprimanded by his teacher about his writing. "You are a very poor scribe, Joe," she said, severely. "I just don't know what to do about it." "You don't need to worry about me," he answered quickly. "It don't matter. I'm gonna be a doctor, anyway."

SALEM

Don't fail to see "Valley Farm" in the town hall, Saturday evening, April 10th, at 8:15 o'clock under the auspices of the Young People's Club of the Livonia Center Community church. "Valley Farm" was given here seven years ago, with great success. The hall was filled to capacity, the first night, and the amateurs were compelled to put it on a third time in order that all might see it. Myra Dickerson Hatton took the leading part at that time. Those who saw "Valley Farm" then will realize what a rare treat is in store for you now. If you fail to see it, you will have lost a great opportunity. This play will be given in the Temple theatre, South Lyon, Friday, April 9th.

Liberal ads in the Mail are sure to bring quick results.

The Altar Ladies met at the home of Mrs. H. H. Maskell on Sheridan avenue on Wednesday last. An enjoyable afternoon was spent.

It was very gratifying to learn of the wonderful success of the St. Patrick's ball, both socially and financially, it being the greatest in the history of the parish. Much credit is due those who took part, and we wish to thank all those who attended, as in so doing they assisted in making it the success it was; also those who so kindly donated, as well as the Plymouth Mail for the prominent notice given. We hope to even exceed this record next year.

There's a Shop In Ann Arbor

That Every Woman In Plymouth Should Get Acquainted With

There is no other shop quite like it. It has made a point of specializing in unusual frocks and coats—and distinctive, dainty accessories.

It is patterned after a certain smart shop in New York—which accounts for its metropolitan air and its all inclusive stock of the important "small details" of dress upon which so much depends.

Exclusive But Not Expensive

It will be a real saving for you to buy your clothes at Hutzel's—often a saving in first cost but always a saving in that clothes from Hutzel's are of such quality that they will give you excellent service and satisfaction as long as you own them—which is decidedly more economical than to buy unsatisfactory "cheap" clothes.

From its air of exclusiveness you might think Hutzel's an expensive place to buy, but here at least is one place where exclusiveness and expense do not go hand in hand.

We refuse to sell cheap, shoddy garments to any of our customers for their sakes as well as for the sake of our own reputation, but we do, however, sell good dresses from $16.75 up, and coats from $25.00 up—and our guarantee of satisfaction, which is in itself worth many dollars, goes with each purchase, however small it may be.

An Enticing Exhibition Of Correct Spring Apparel

Here is a fashion grouping that will appeal to the discriminating taste of every woman—garments representing the acme of excellence and fashion—without gaudiness.

There are hundreds of alluring Spring dresses here. The pale colored silk frocks—leaf green, mauve, blue and pink, from the softest rose petal tint to a deep rose—peep out from beautiful lacy jabots and graceful pleating, are found in piquant taffeta trimmed frocks, gay little crepe frocks, as well as georgettes and satins.

They are also here in woolen materials—flannel, Jersey, Bay knit and twills—in the newest and most delicate Spring color combinations.

All the new Spring fashion motifs are shown in these varied models—the tailored suit, the dressy coat, styles tastefully embellished with embroidery and trimmed with fur, and the smart sport coats.

From this charming varied showing you are offered a wide selection from which to choose. For service and wear these Hutzel garments are unequalled. They are made of the most dependable materials—they keep their shapely lines and always look fresh and new.

"RUBY RING"

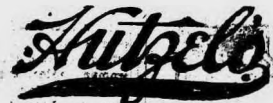

"The most complimented stocking in America" is sold in Ann Arbor exclusively at Hutzel's. A complete range of the newest Spring shades.

QUESTION THAT PUT STOP TO ARGUMENT

Hubby Might Have Known He Had No Chance.

She who, after considerable persuasion a number of years ago, agreed to (and eventually did) assume my name, put her book down and said, "Of course, I'd love to go—I'm crazy for the trip, but there's the question of clothes."

After years of married life, I'm always unable to remember that. To me, a trip is a trip—with her, it is a ceremony to be dressed up to. She tells me all women are like that. Well, perhaps, but it will take a referendum to convince me.

"—fracks, and, of course, sports clothes," she wound up. "But you don't sport," I said plaintively, yet truthfully. "You are about as athletic as Queen Mary."

"I shall need," she went on, ignoring me, "two sports hats, four sweaters, three sports skirts, a tweed suit, several pairs of—"

"And I shall need," I cut in, "two banker's uniforms, one curate's costume and a diving suit."

"—several pairs," she continued gazing rapidly at the ceiling and continuing her litany, "of sports shoes. One pair of stout brown oxfords; one pair—"

"Splendid!" I cried. "And I shall take my telephone pole, climbing spikes and my fireman's helmet. But, my dear, if you are really going into this thing properly, why are you leaving out the wrestling costume, your disc-throwing suit or your pole-vaulting outfit?"

Fifty years ago she would have said, "James don't be coarse." Other times, other manners. As it was, she merely said, "That's not so funny. Besides, every time we plan anything together, you always find some way to spoil it—I think you are horrid! I don't want to go on your old trip, anyhow. If I have to go looking like a—like a rag bag," and there was a hint of tears in her voice.

"I don't know why I'm fooled by it—it has happened a hundred times before. It is a kind of ritual we go through occasionally, and we are both thoroughly familiar with its procedure.

"There, there," I said, going over to her and kissing her, "don't take it that way. You knew I was joking—be a sport."

This time she did trick me. "All right," she said quickly. "How can I be a sport without sport clothes?"—Kansas City Star.

The Southern Mammy

The dulceness of Terlonia, about to depart for home, said at a farewell dinner in New York:

"There's one thing I'm proud of as an American girl, and that's our southern cooking, the cooking of our dear old southern mammys—fried chicken, Maryland biscuit, candied sweet potatoes, Sally Lunn. The southern mammy can more than hold her own with any chef or cordon blue.

"Once at luncheon, when I was a little girl, I sipped up with my bread the delicious gravy that went with our southern mammy's stewed chicken. "Don't sop up your gravy like that," said my governess. "It's bad form."

"It isn't," said I. "It's good taste."

Happy Reunion

Patrick Welsh, Alaskan trapper, had 16 captive beavers in boxes around his campfire. At night a big male beaver came down the stream to a point about twenty feet away. Sitting up with his forefeet crossed, the beaver began his song, and the prisoners in the boxes answered in turn.

The old beaver was looking for his mate, she was a captive, and her answers to him were so plaintive that Welsh released her. Then he stood by as the happy pair plunged into the river and went splashing and chattering to the opposite side. But we fear this isn't a pleasant story for the wearer of a beaver coat to read.—Capper's Weekly.

Foreigners in Shanghai

Forty-five foreign nationalities were disclosed in the last census of the French and International settlements at Shanghai. Of these the Japanese led with a population of 13,894. England was second with 8,191, Russia third with 4,169, and the United States fourth, with 3,033. The total population of Shanghai, including territory properly belonging to it, was estimated at more than 2,000,000. The total Chinese population within the boundaries of the two foreign concessions was 1,107,351.

Two Duty Facts

An English mathematician figures that 240 tons of soot is constantly carried in the atmosphere of London. Over here the dust of our starch factories and flour mills is interesting the bureau of chemistry. It is highly explosive and the bureau thinks might be made to run motor cars and gas line engines. It is a question of getting rid of the carbon.—Capper's Weekly.

Jap Rice Consumption

Rice consumed in Japan in 1925 is estimated by the Japanese agriculture and forestry department at 285,000,000 bushels. Of this total, 285,000,000 bushels was of domestic production while the remainder was imported principally from Korea, China and Indo-China. Compared with the preceding year an increased consumption of 6,100,000 bushels is shown.

Serious Work of Diver

Has Humorous Moments

Diving is a very serious business, but at the same time it had its laughable moments, writes a diver in a London paper. He continues:

I remember one day when I was at the bottom of the sea an old lady asked the attendants if she could communicate with me by telephone. The permission was granted and the conversation ran something like this: "Hullo! What are you doing there?" "I'm just sitting down, having a rest."

"Good gracious! What are you sitting on?"

"On some rocks."

"Oh, dear me! You are surely not sitting on those damp rocks. You'll catch an awful cold!"

Here is a laughable conversation which one of my assistants overheard on a landing-stage.

Three old ladies were standing beside a section that was being repaired, and against which was propped a builder's ladder.

I had not gone down, but was not in view, all the same. My diving dress lay nearby.

Said the first lady: "Ooh! Look at the diver's uniform. I wonder what he is doing?"

One of the other old ladies cast a glance at the ladder, then said: "Oh, I suppose he's up there repairing the roof!"

My attendants and I have a special code of signals. Three sailors, watching, asked the attendant if they might hold the life-line for a few minutes.

I happened to give a signal soon after, which they did not understand. Receiving no reply, I repeated the signal several times.

An old lady standing nearby became alarmed at the movements of the line, and ran over to the attendant in great excitement, exclaiming:

"Help! Quick, attendant, your diver wants a boat to go down and rescue him."

Brave Woman Scientist

Walking up to a Moro datto and requesting a sample of his blood for analysis looks like a formidable job, when it is recalled that the Moros, warlike Malays with a reputation for fanatical Mohammedanism, are usually regarded as the most truculent of all the peoples of the Philippines. Yet this is what Mrs. Ella F. Grove, an American scientist, now on her way back to the United States, has done, not once, but hundreds of times.

Mrs. Grove has been conducting anthropological studies based on comparative blood tests among a number of oriental races whose origins are still a riddle, under the auspices of the National Research Council and the New York hospital. In addition to her large collection of data from the Moro country, she has similar sets of facts gathered among the more tractable Philippine tribes, including the Bagobos, Igorots and Negritos.

School Failures

That nearly 23 per cent of the first-grade pupils fail to pass to the second grade in due course is shown by an inquiry conducted by the Interior department bureau of education as to the causes of children's failures in school. Inability to measure up to the requirements in reading and arithmetic, unnecessary absences from school and lack of general physical and mental development account in great measure for this condition. Unduly large classes, placing children of widely different age and mental ability in the same class, too many interruptions to school work and lack of cooperation on the part of parents are contributing causes.

WHEN WITCH FIRES BLAZED IN EUROPE

Nine Million Women Victims of Superstition.

It must have surprised some people to read of the Tipton case, where men were prosecuted for threatening a woman said to "cast spells." For, though belief in witchcraft is still prevalent in parts of France, most people fancied it long dead in Britain. There was a time when it was no laughing matter for any woman to possess a dark eye, a prominent tooth, or a black cat, especially if she did not get on well with her neighbors. Says a writer in the Continental edition of the London Mail: "But the law makes no provision today for dealing drastically with witches, nor are they any longer allowed to roast unpopular old women on the continent, as in the uncomfortable medieval dusk, when no woman was safe, and an elderly one needed to step warily. It is hardly possible in these polite and lenient times to realize that for centuries Europe literally blazed with witch fires. Sprenger tells us that the total execution of witches in Europe must have reached the incredible figure of 9,000,000. Prague burnt 1,000,000 in one year (as did Como and Paris) and destroyed 50 in one great fire. We are told the smell of witch burning was scarcely ever out of the air, and apparently the fires were never out.

And that sort of thing went on to a lesser extent in most of the cities, for the Bible said, "Thou shalt not suffer a witch to live," and they had a way of reading things very literally then.

Witch-burning has gone, but superstitions still linger with us. We still shudder at the thought of a black cat, a black dog, a black cross, a black ladder—a relic of Tyburn days. We shirk 13, and dislike starting things on Fridays. The fact is that we still have deep in our natures, as a residue of prehistoric times, fear of unknown powers. In olden days people believed in goblins, vampires and devils, and the priests devised charms to exorcise them. The psychologist says many of our fancies originated in the fears of infancy. Buried or suppressed ideas persist in the subconscious element of the cerebral gray cells, and in later life crop up at the surface as mere reflections.

But it is unwise to seek for omens and portents and to put dependence on charms. The mind has so dominant a power over the body that if we believe a thing too strongly it may come about.

Cupid and the Kitten

By SDNEY BLAIR

(Copyright.)

JANET sat down at Miss Lane's desk, feeling that something very exciting certainly was going to happen. She had always rather envied Miss Lane the big mahogany desk, with its bowl of flowers and its row of the newest books. Sometimes she wondered if she would ever be in charge of that branch of the circulating library, where so many interesting people came to take out new books and chat for a moment with Miss Lane.

Janet summoned up courage sometimes to talk with some of them, to suggest a new detective story for old Mr. Hallett, or one of the solid English novels for Mrs. Jewett. But as a rule she quietly accepted the books people were returning, marked them on the proper cards, and stamped and marked the books that were being taken out, without saying anything.

Today was to be different, however. Miss Lane wasn't coming in, and she'd have to do everything herself.

Perhaps—perhaps Mr. Atwood would come in—Stanley Atwood. He was an old friend of Miss Lane's, a mining engineer, and had been to the ends of the earth. He hated having to stay in the city, and as soon as he had finished the work that kept him there he'd go away again, to stay for a year or more.

The first half of the morning passed uninterestingly enough. A few people came in, but none of them added to Janet's feeling that something exciting was going to happen. Then, as she was arranging a pile of children's books on one of the tables, a woman came hurrying in, carrying a black kitten.

"Just look at this," she cried. "This darling little cat was walking along the street, meowing so pitiously—a boy threw a stone at it just as I passed—and something must be done about it."

"Oh, it is pretty," said Janet as she took the kitten. It snuggled against her and began to purr.

"It's beautiful!" said the woman emphatically. "And if I didn't live with my sister-in-law I'd take it home with me, but she hates cats."

Old Mr. Hallett came in just then, and he, too, agreed that it was a beautiful cat and ought to have a home.

"I'll tell you," he said at last. "I've got just the thing. I'll telephone my sister, who lives at Mountbanks, about ten miles from here, and have her come in and get it. She has two children—"

"Children are too cruel! I won't have this cat in a home where there are children!" interrupted the woman who had discovered the cat. "They tease animals so."

"My niece wouldn't dream of doing that—they're Girl Scouts," Mr. Hallett told her angrily. They were deep in bitter argument when Janet realized that Mr. Atwood had come in and was standing listening with some amusement.

"What's the matter?" he asked her quite as if they had been old friends. She explained, and he offered to go to his hotel a few doors away and get some milk for the cat.

The woman who had brought the cat in finally departed, and Mr. Hallett, having telephoned to his sister, departed also, saying that he would return at two o'clock, introduce the cat and his sister, and take both away.

Atwood sat down on the edge of a table and went on talking with Janet not just about books, but about himself and then about her, although she hardly realized the turn the conversation had taken until she had told him many things—about how she was living alone in the city, and was going to save her money so that some day she could travel, and finally—though she did not realize that—how lonely she was.

Suddenly a young girl rushed into the room.

"You steal my cat!" she cried, rushing up to Janet. "You steal my cat, my Pedro. He walk in the street for the air—you steal him!"

Janet stepped back hastily; it looked as if the excited owner of Pedro would claw her eyes out.

"But I didn't—"

"You steal my cat!" Explanations were no good at all. Janet was almost in tears when Stanley Atwood came to the rescue. Pedro's owner listened to him more readily than to Janet, even smiled coyly at him as he talked.

Pedro and his rightful owner departed at last, and Stanley turned eagerly to Janet.

"You've got to have luncheon with me after that," he told her. "Take our mutual friendship for Miss Lane as introduction and chaperon, and come along!"

And Janet went.

It was two months later, after many luncheons and dinners and picnics, that he gave her another order.

"You've got to marry me and come along to China with me—I can't go without you," he said.

And Janet went.

Improved Feeding Spoon

Adolph W. Buchbinder, an executive of Wright, Kay & Company, and for more than 40 years a jeweler in Detroit, is the inventor of a "non-spillable" baby spoon designed to facilitate the feeding of infants. The device is a silver shell attachment for an ordinary teaspoon, but is unique in that it prevents any liquid from spilling. The attachment is removable for sterilization.—Detroit Free Press.

Picked Up About Town

"I've noticed," says Day Plymouth, "that a homely wife will do anything to keep her husband and a pretty one will do anything to preserve her good looks."

Dad Plymouth was recently heard to declare that after a fellow passes forty, he finds there is little to expect except more of the same.

The most surprising thing about our big cities is the number of men who have time to attend a show in the afternoon.

"Maybe the reason why girls always kiss and make up," says Dad Plymouth, "is because the makeup is always so easy to put back on."

Some men are born leaders and others never can guess which way the crowd is going.

"My idea of golf," declares Dad Plymouth, "is just another kind of work that a fellow doesn't get any pay for."

According to Dad Plymouth, another thing that will cure vanity is to show a woman the proof of her picture before the photographer has retouched it.

BOOSTER CLUB OF PLYMOUTH AT IT AGAIN.

After laying dormant for the past four weeks, the Booster Club sprang to life again, last Monday evening, with one of the largest attended meetings ever held by the club. To give the members, who have not been attending the club regularly for the past month, some idea as to the good time ahead for them, we are sending invitations to the Rebekah Lodge and all the clubs connected with it, also the I. O. O. F. Lodge and the Lady Booster Club, to a social gathering and a real old time gathering. The committee that has this good time in hand gives the information that they have secured the services of one of the best old time dance orchestras in Wayne county, and there will be lots of card playing thrown in. Now keep the date in mind, which is the 12th of April. Here is the next date for a real big surprise for Plymouth, the 14th of April. We have secured the services of a real physical director, and the result will be one of the biggest shows ever staged in this town, so keep this date in mind.

Following this great event, there will be a far greater gathering, and the committee in charge of this affair has given us a little inside dope and to look for the advertisement in the local paper.

As we said before, the meeting was so largely attended and all felt like getting into the harness again, so our president appointed a committee to secure grounds around a good lake for the first of a series of picnics, to be held next summer. After partaking of a fine lunch put up by the club chef, William Rogers, one of the most successful meetings came to a close at midnight.

THE COMMITTEE.

HOUGH SCHOOL NOTES
Reporter—Chrystal Swegles, Grade 8

We did not have school for a week and a half until last Wednesday, on account of the illness of Miss Griffith. We have been watching for signs of spring, and we have found many signs—the bluebird, robin and pussy-willows show us that spring has arrived. The boys sent to our Kiwanis patrons for some corn testers. We had the News spelling bee in our school. The grade champions are: Fifth grade, Stanley Truskowski; sixth grade, Jeannette Merriman; seventh grade, Mary Truskowski; eighth grade, Lottie Symanowski. We have a new eighth grade pupil—Tony Marano. There are now five in our eighth grade. Our school has an enrollment of forty-two. Our sewing club members have started their second garments. The seventh and eighth grades have made history books. They are also studying hard for their examination in May. We have an automobile race to see which row will keep the floor and desks the cleanest. Each row has the name of a different car, and at the end of the day if all in the row have kept their desks and the floor clean, the car moves ahead. We have received fertilizer and cement exhibits. We expect to get many more before the end of the term. Flora Gerst is on 25 A Curtis test. We are also making Easter drawings and pictures. Mary Merriman and LeRoy Tillotson were also Tuesday visitors. We are proud of our first graders, Marian Hix and Jean Dunham. They have completed the Beacon phonetic chart, Beacon reading chart, Beacon primer, first reader and the book, "Work-a-day Doings on the Farm," besides many others. Prof. Hoppes of the Rural Education Department, Michigan State Normal College, Ypsilanti, and Miss Taylor, helping teacher of Zone II, visited school Tuesday morning.

BRIGGS SCHOOL NOTES
By Evelyn Wolff, 5th and 6th Grades

The third grade are making Easter bogdets. Those who are grade champions in the spell-down are: Fifth grade, Evelyn Rutenbar; sixth grade, Evelyn Wolf; seventh grade, Mildred Ash; eighth grade, Eleanora Delaney. We have blackboard decorations of Easter lilies, pussy-willows and bluebirds. Gertrude Miller, Harley Wolfstrom, Gerald Simmons and Lucile Ash visited school this week. Ruth Hobbins is absent on account of having the gripe. The agriculture class is testing seed corn. School was closed last week on account of the serious illness and death of Mr. Watson's father.

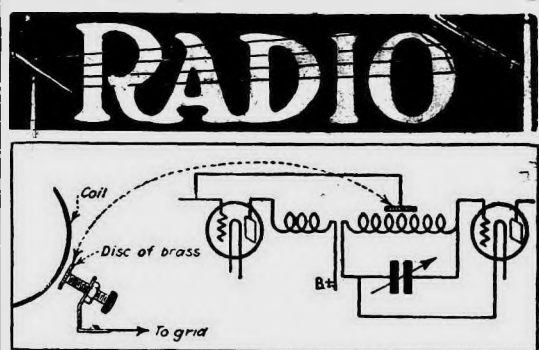

Fig. 3—Showing the Scheme Devised by Glenn Browning for Neutralizing a Radio Frequency Receiver.

By L. W. HATRY
In New York-Herald Tribune
Many home radio engineers, using the term engineer with extreme generality, design excellent little sets. That is, these home designers subtract ideas out of various articles they have read and screw them together to make a component whole including the things that they want. The men that do this sort of thing know a little of the technical and mysterious end of radio-electrics; but, much more important, they understand a deal of the practical application of things. This is written for these men. It is hoped that it will help somewhat in their rectifying a thing often done haphazardly.

First, at the risk of being uninteresting, let us go into the theory of the Hazeltine or any neutralizing scheme. The theory fits most of them, but the specific application discussed will be Hazeltine's.

The Neutralizing Arrangement.

There is a feed-back from plate to grid in a radio-frequency tube that results in the oscillation so annoying without some annulling or neutralizing scheme. The feed-back may be reduced by sacrifice of effectiveness, by introduction of losses or by a neutralizing, so-called, arrangement. The neutralizing idea works on what is known as the bridge principle. Notice the diagram in Fig. 1. The path from input to B plus, going backward for the moment, is a double one. The current can either go by the capacity of C and the inductance of L₁, or by the capacity of GP and the inductance of L₂. Now, if the current divided equally in both of those branches and reversed itself in one branch to result in opposition, the result at B plus would be nothing, assuming that we control the paths CL₁ and GPL₂, so that they are equal, and thus pass equal but opposing forces. That being the case it becomes apparent that if L₁ and L₂ are equal the condenser C must have the same capacity as between GP. That sounds all right, but the capacity from G to P is very small, and it is quite a trick to provide so small a capacity at C without having the wires running from L and G overdo the job.

Now, the exact arrangement of Fig. 1 is being used at present in many sets employing a single stage of radio frequency amplification. The detector coupler primary L is a coil of double winding, two wires in parallel, or a neutralized. So, if we arrange such a control circuit from a proper source of opposing current we can effect the same thing. This was done in the commercial neutrodyne by tapping off the inductance L₁ which was secondary to L₂ for the voltages or currents in a secondary circuit are generally completely out of phase with those in the primary. The primary L was almost always stuck at the filament end of L₁, as Fig. 2 indicates, so that the voltage transfer from L to L₁ at the lower portions would be made with small loss. Thus the tap at L₁ generally included the same number of turns as were present in L, giving an oppositional current whose voltage was practically equal to that put on the plate by L. Control of the neutralizing capacity C would then put the exact neutralizing voltage on G. Since L and L₁ were equal the condenser C had to have the same capacity as that between grid and plate—a very hard condition to meet, as was said—in the home-made, and in many cases, the factory-made set.

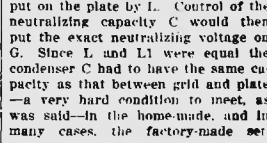

Fig. 2—Method of Obtaining Necessary Neutralizing Current.

The remedy is again as before. Have a small neutralizing inductance and a large neutralizing capacity, using the midjet variable condenser. Tap off the secondary of the neutrodyne L₁ to include the number of turns to the filament equal to about one-half of L₁ the primary. Then the neutralizing condenser is safely the usual midjet, but not very satisfactorily the so-called neutrodyne of the sliding tube type.

To Obviate the Troubles.
Fig. 3 illustrates the simply obvious scheme devised by Glenn Browning of Browning-Drake fame, which obviates the troubles we have just mentioned. The little disk of metal coming near to the inductance coil makes of itself and the coil a neutralizing capacity and tap in a unique fashion. Of course, if it is not placed properly in relation to the voltage, at which it meets the secondary, it is possible to overneutralize and thus fail.

Sets employing a neutralized stage of radio frequency—regenerative detector and whatever necessary audio—are easy to neutralize by means of a simple procedure. Starting off with the neutralizing capacity at its maximum, adjust the tickler for oscillation with the two-tuned circuits in tune. It probably will be found that the tickler rotates through a greater arc than the proper 90 degrees for the steady oscillating state. This signifies that the first tube is oscillating as well, and it should not. Make a slight adjustment of the neutralizing condenser. See if the result is a necessary greater increase of the tickler. Continue this until, not having changed the tuning, the adjustment of the tickler arrives at its greatest proportion of nonoscillating to oscillating portion of the arc of its swing. In other words, until it is necessary to give the greatest amount of tickler to start oscillation. When this condition has been reached the first tube is probably not oscillating and the behavior of oscillation and regeneration will be less erratic and more regular. This is a method of neutralizing that may be done any time of day or night, independent of both a strong signal or a buzzer and battery.

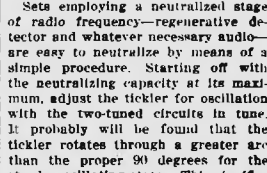

Fig. 1—Showing the Bridge Principle of Neutralizing.

single winding tapped in the center, as L indicates. Yet practical set conditions often make it impossible to put the proper capacity at C, so that the process of neutralizing is practically impossible successfully. This trouble is simple to rectify. If we express the relation mentioned in the foregoing paragraph in a mathematical formula, it will be:

$\frac{1}{2}LC = \frac{1}{2}LGP$ —permitting GP to represent capacity between grid and plate. It is apparent immediately that if any one member of the equation is reduced an increase of its partner will balance things again. If L is reduced, then C must be increased, or vice versa. That this is true offers a solution to the neutralizing trouble. It is general practice to use a small midjet variable condenser whose capacity is .00008 mfd. or greater generally. Under the circumstances $\frac{1}{2}L$ could just as well become $\frac{1}{4}L$ on the C side of the equation. In this case L to C would be a half of L to P in turns, since the turns ratio make the voltage present at C. Speaking concretely, where L would ordinarily be a total of 36 turns tapped in the center, it should be instead 27 turns tapped to put 18 turns between P and B plus and 9 turns of the neutralizing side to the condenser C.

The Neutralizing Current.

The method of obtaining the necessary neutralizing current, as used in the neutrodyne, is well known. It is shown schematically in Fig. 2. What the foregoing should have imparted to part is that the balancing or neutralizing side of the transformer formed did not need so much to be actually part of the primary inductance L as merely a control circuit allowing the passage of the correct opposing current to the grid of the tube to be

Amateur electricians hanging aerials for radio sets often make some gross error or oversight with the result that they put themselves and their property in grave danger. In the past few months several serious accidents have occurred in different parts of New England and with the object of overcoming this and at the same time protecting their own installation, the principal electric light company of Worcester, Mass., has issued a notice that its officials will inspect all such wires free of charge, upon request of the owner. The radio owners of that city were quick to avail themselves of the opportunity and a number of antennae were found that were suspended over or near the power charged electric wires of the company, and in the event of falling would have been the cause of death or of serious injury and damage to the property.

WINDSTORMS Are With Us Again

Arkansas and Mississippi have inaugurated the 1926 Windstorm season. A tornado and heavy windstorm are responsible for the loss of many lives and considerable destruction of property. The entire town of Tisdale, Mississippi, was virtually demolished.

It recalls to mind the terrific destruction caused in five mid-western states just about a year ago. Then there was the visitation to New England last fall when wind ripped its destructive way through Woburn, Massachusetts, and adjoining towns.

REALTORS THE REAL FUTURISTS

Charles J. Rush, San Antonio
But a few years ago Futurists were considered fanatical welders and mixers of artistic daubs. Today the Futurist is your Realtor.

By the very nature of his calling the real estate man deals in futures just as much as members of the stock exchange.

You who are in the habit of passing the same landmarks day after day in your journey to and from your work, seldom note the improvements under way in your city.

But do you ever consider why this building or that home is placed there?

Only a few days ago when you bought your home you and your neighbor occupied the only houses in the block. Today your block is practically complete with homes.

How did you happen to decide upon that site for your home?

Because of a Futurist—The real estate man with a vision.

What to you was merely a pasture, overgrown with brush and weeds, was to the real estate man a potential residential section.

He visualized its appearance a few years hence with homes on every building site; studied every angle of the streets that would have to be made, carefully investigated the matter of obtaining water, gas, electricity, telephones and sewers.

When satisfied that nothing would be lacking to complete the project, your city builder quietly starts his operations, laying out each street to conform to the lines of existing streets, putting in sidewalks, sewers and all utilities, often-times without publicity.

All of this work and the construction of a model home is carried on, generally unnoticed by the residents as they pass day after day.

Then the opening of the tract. Mr. Average Citizen decides that it is worth investigating and looks over the property. He sees, and in seeing builds his own homes there.

His friends follow and are convinced and under proper restrictions the tract soon becomes a community of homes, and the weed covered pasture passes into the limbo of forgotten things—

Due solely to the Futurist—your Realtor.—National Real Estate Journal.

More Fish in the Sea

"The apostolic occupation of trafficking in fish," as Sidney Smith once termed our maritime industry, has certainly grown larger since that wit amused London in the 'forties. The plaint, in a review just published of Aberdeen's fishing trade, is that potential supplies indeed are being menaced by large trawls of immature fish. But the sea contains a quantity unimagined by the layman, as is proved by the total catch of 2,540,100 tons landed at the northern port last year. This represents, on a rough approximation, 7,820,000,000 single fish!

Not the Right Color

The lady of color who was the part-time maid was just completing the cleaning of the bathroom and as she laid down the freshly washed rug she alighted and surveyed it critically. The small son of the house, who was right at her heels, following her endlessly and aimlessly, suggested, "You didn't get it clean, did you El Vira?" "No, sir, honey, I didn't." It don't look very appetizing; does it?" she replied.

Africa's Diamond Output

Experts have estimated that Africa has produced 1,000,000 pounds of the 43 1/4 tons of diamonds in existence throughout the world.

COURTS FOR SEVENTH TIME UP- HOLD ASSOCIATION'S RIGHT TO WORD REALTOR.

A perpetual injunction against the use of the term Realtor by the N. C. Sibley Company, of Baltimore, as a non-member of the National Association of Real Estate Boards or of any constituent board of the Association has just been granted by the Circuit Court of Baltimore City.

The injunction, dated February 18, 1926, was issued following a complaint brought jointly by the National Association of Real Estate Boards and the Real Estate Board of Baltimore. It holds that the use of the designation Realtor by the defendant in his advertising or in any way in connection with his real estate business was and is a violation of the complainants' rights.

The association in March, 1916, adopted the term Realtor, a coined word, as a membership designation. The injunction is the second to be issued by the Circuit Court of Baltimore City sustaining the exclusive right of the association and its member boards to the use of the term. It is the seventh to be issued by courts in various states perpetually restraining non-members from employment of the designation. The language of the present injunction is comprehensive. The conclusion of the decree is as follows:

"And it is further adjudged, ordered and decreed that the Defendant, its agents, clerks, workmen and servants (so long as it or any of them shall be a member of the National Association of Real Estate Boards or any constituent member board thereof)... perpetually refrain, and that it and they are hereby perpetually enjoined and restrained from using the term, word or designation 'Realtor' on office doors, office windows, billboards, signboards, stationery, calling cards, in newspaper advertising, stock certificates, bonds, mortgages, and other instruments, or other materials used by or in connection with the real estate business or any other manner except as applying to a lawfully elected active member in good standing of a constituent member board of the National Association of Real Estate Boards and as such a member of the National Association of Real Estate Boards."—National Real Estate Journal.

BAPTIST NOTES

The choir both morning and evening sang to the joy of all the people. The anthem in the morning was real music.

Last Sunday morning's sermon was taken from Psalm 107:27, "At their wits end." We were glad to see several back at church, after a season of sickness.

We are expecting a surprise next Sunday morning. Every member of the church ought to be found in their places in the Easter service Sunday morning. Won't you please be on hand.

The pastor spoke last Tuesday evening, at the union services at the M. L. church.

The sermon next Sunday morning will be appropriate for Easter. The evening will be given to the Sunday-school. They have a short program. The play is entitled, "The Woman's Easter."

The B. Y. P. U. banquet and annual meeting will be held at the church tonight (Friday) at 6:30. All the young people come and have a good time and listen to speeches. Roy Preston of South Lyon, one of the teachers in the public schools, will be the principle speaker.

The report of the Ladies' Aid for their supper and bazaar will be given next week.

The annual meeting of the First Baptist church of Plymouth, will be held in the church the last Thursday in April, for reports and election of officers.

Remember and bring your mission bank next Sunday. Have it full.

Prayer meeting at the church next week Thursday evening.

EPISCOPAL NOTES

Our Lenten services are now practically over, but each one has proved to be very inspiring. We have been very fortunate in securing visits each week from the different clergy in Detroit, who one and all brought a special message on each occasion. It is very gratifying to note also that these Lenten services were appreciated by the good attendances each week.

On Palm Sunday we had a very good congregation, and the Rev. Charles Wesley gave a very appropriate address. Joseph Tracey in his usual clear voice sang, "The Palms," which was appreciated by the congregation present. The singing of the Palm Sunday hymns was hearty, and we regret that some of our choir was absent through sickness.

After the service, Palm Sunday morning, Rev. Charles Wesley took charge of the Sunday-school as the superintendent. Sidney Strong, was compelled to be absent through sickness. Mr. Wesley opened the sessions with an illustrated address, demonstrating the first position of the Church Catechism, which proved to be most interesting to the children.

This evening (Friday) there will be a Good Friday service, and after the service a special practice of Easter music by the choir and congregation.

Easter Sunday Rev. Raymond of Ann Arbor, will be with us, and will preach.

In the afternoon at 3:30, Rev. Charles Wesley will conduct a special children's service, with baptism, to which the congregation and their friends are invited.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Harry Staman, who passed away one year ago, April 5, 1925.

Just one year has passed away,
Since he was called to rest;
Just when his life was happiest,
Just when his hopes were best.
Now his chair stands empty,
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our home,
That never can be filled.
While o'er his grave we stand weeping,
At the close of setting sun,
Softly on the wings from heaven,
Come the words, "Thy will be done."
Badly missed by his father, mother, sister and brother.

As Old As the Nation

Mount Vernon

and BUILT of WOOD

HOME of our first President here, indeed, is a truly great monument to his memory. Overlooking the Potomac—it still stands for all that is really American.

Perhaps nothing else in our national life holds such a place in the hearts of Americans as Mount Vernon.

Built of wood, it has stood for years in all its quiet and imposing dignity. Quiet—beautiful—it radiates a feeling of hominess and hospitality, a striking example of the desirability of wood as a building material.

"For Generations of Joy and Comfort"—BUILT OF WOOD. Economical—long-lived—attractive, as only nature can make things, it is, without doubt, the best for your home.

We'll be glad to show you how wood can be used in almost any architectural treatment. Come in and let us know what you have in mind. There are ideas and suggestions here, aplenty—all offered freely, and without obligating you in the least.

MAY YET RECLAIM VAST ARID TRACT

Plans to Renew Fertility in South Africa.

"Rainfall over the whole of the central portion of the Union of South Africa is steadily decreasing year by year, and if this goes on at the present rate, the time will come when vast areas now supporting a farming and grazing population will be given over to the wild beasts of the desert. This process can, however, be checked. Its causes are known, and being known, can be remedied."

This startling statement is not that of a sensational journalist in search of a thrilling story, but the considered judgment of a scientist, Professor Schwartz, of the University of Stellenbosch.

Put in a nutshell, the reason for this gradual decrease in rainfall is the drying up of the big tract known as the Kalahari, 400 miles from the Orange river in the south to Lake M'gami in the north. Up to comparatively recently this area was traversed by a whole system of rivers dotted with several lakes. This water system connected Lake M'gami with the Orange river. But the lake which acted as feeding reservoir for this system is drying up owing to the silting up of the streams that fed it from the north. What water it still gets and holds has been diverted by some mysterious play of nature and now, instead of flowing toward the south directly, flows eastward into the Zambesi and westward into the Kunene and Okavango rivers.

So far has this process gone, that of recent years the term "desert" has come to be generally applied to the Kalahari, although the word is a misnomer. The area is not by any means waste land yet; it is a vast undulating plain, partly covered with forest and partly with rich long grass whenever there is the slightest rainfall. It borders on one of the best cattle-raising districts in South Africa, Bechuana-land. The forests are, however, fast dying; there is ample underground water supply which may be tapped by artesian wells, but the water lies too deep to affect the roots of the trees. For mile after mile, one may see wilted and withered remains of what once were luxuriant growths.

To remedy this state of affairs, three schemes have been proposed, and the time is fast approaching when the Union government will have to make its choice between them.

The scheme which stands the best chance of being adopted, and is backed by Professor Schwartz and other South African scientists, provides for the construction of a dam across the Kunene river, which, it is calculated, would restore a great part of the old scheme of nature for the irrigation of the Kalahari.

The expenditure of money and time is likely to be very considerable, but the importance of the issues at stake are believed to justify it. Not only would the reclaimed area of Kalahari open up a vast stretch of magnificent grazing land, forest, and valleys suitable for orange growing, but the process of drying up that is threatening central South Africa with eventual economic and social ruin would be arrested.

Telling a Stranger

My daughter was to be married at home and we had to borrow some chairs for the guests. I spoke to a neighbor and she promised to loan me some. The day before the big event I spoke to her daughter on the car. During the conversation I asked her to remind her mother of the promise. The girl looked puzzled, but finally said she would do so. A few moments later a friend of the girl entered the car and greeted her with the words, "Hello, Marie!"

I was stunned, as the daughter of my friend was Alice. I looked at the girl more closely and discovered she was not Alice at all, and with that I felt quite a hot wave, as I had been telling a perfect stranger all the details of the oncoming event.—Chicago Tribune.

Nothing Wrong

They met for the first time for some months. "Where have you been, John?" said James. "Haven't been laid up, have you?" "Yes; I've been laid up for a bit." "You're not looking fit; hope it's nothing serious." "Oh, nothing much—but this is the first time I've been out for three months." "Really? What was wrong?" "Nothing, really, only the jury wouldn't believe it!"

Ship 202 Years Old

In the Baltic sea there is a ship known as the Constance which is two hundred and two years old and still in sailing service. She was built in 1723. Sweden has a vessel, "the Emanuel," built in 1740 and still engaged in carrying lumber. "The Good Intent," a vessel built in 1790, was sold at Cardiff in 1919, at the time doing regular service, and brought the respectable sum of $1,000. Shipping men point to these old wooden ships to show that they remain seaworthy many years.

State's Big or "Crop"

The conservation department of Louisiana says that the annual yield of Louisiana's muskrats is about $6,000,000, and put that state at the head of all in the Union in fur production. But the trade hardly hears of Louisiana muskrats. Instead, the furs are marketed as Southern muskrats.

THE THEATRE

"THE AUCTION BLOCK"

It is up to the country girls of the land to give a rising vote of thanks to Robert Henley, for he is the first director who has ever "done right by them."

A majority of the scenes in Henley's production of "The Auction Block," which is coming to the Penniman Allen theatre, Saturday, April 3rd, take place in the little town of Palmdale, South Carolina, and the girls and boys of the place are pictured as real people, and not the popular movie conception of American yokels.

Henley believes that for too long the movies have dealt with country boys and girls as the lucks of twenty-five or thirty years ago, while in reality there is little difference between them and their metropolitan cousins. The movies have probably done more than any other one thing to change this condition, and it is now up to the movies to admit the fact publicly.

Eleanor Boardman and Sally O'Neil play small town girls in "The Auction Block," while Charles Ray, contrary to custom, is seen as a "man from the city." Ernest Gillen, James Corrigan, Charles Clary, David Torrence, Forrest Seabury and Ned Sparks complete the cast. It is a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture.

"THE BLACK BIRD"

Creeps—thrills that run up and down the spine—gaspings of subdued terror—all this you find in "The Black Bird," which will be shown at the Penniman Allen theatre, Sunday and Monday, April 4 and 5.

And—if you want a lovely little love story—a pure flower blooming in the darkness—see the romance of Lon Chaney and Doris Lloyd!

It's a creepy picture—a thrilling mystery play, "The Black Bird," but like a silver thread, a wonderful love story runs through it. There's a crook who is reclaimed by love—after terrorizing half of London with one of the strangest masquerades ever conceived in an author's vivid brain! Gasps of amazement are followed by "ohs" of joy as the romance unfolds—like an orchid growing in a swamp. It's a picture every girl will want to see.

Then there's the adorable little French Renée Adoree, as an Anna Held-ish sort of person playing with puppets in an English music hall.

Lon Chaney plays two roles—one a creepy criminal—the other a crippled mission worker who at times is almost a saint to look on. How he does them both so perfectly is a revelation.

Doris Lloyd wears some clever gowns, and is a very lovely music hall singer, indeed, and Miss Adoree, too, is seen in some clever costumes.

Polly Moran, droll as she was in her "Sheriff Nell" pictures, plays a role that's different but no less funny. She'll show you what the badly-dressed flapper wears in London, with a vengeance.

The Limehouse scenes are creepy in their dark realism—and the music hall scenes are just like going to a vaudeville show. You'll thrill, you'll laugh, and you'll cry.

Tod Browning, who directed "The Unholy Three," directed this new Lon Chaney story, and his deft touches are seen everywhere. Incidentally, he was also the author of the story.

"MEN AND WOMEN"

Richard Dix, Nell Hamilton, loaned to Paramount by D. W. Griffith; Claire Adams and Robert Edson are featured in William de Mille's latest production for Paramount, "Men and Women," coming to the Penniman Allen theatre, Wednesday, April 7th.

"Men and Women" is an adaptation by Clara Beranger of the successful stage play by David Belasco and Henry C. DeMille. In the picture Dix has the role of a young bank cashier, who borrows his company's securities to make a "clean-up" in Wall Street. After "Manhattan" and "Too Many Kisses" Dix is one of the most popular stars of the screen.

Hamilton, another most popular leading man, plays Dix's assistant in the production. He is in love with his superior's wife, played by Claire Adams, and doesn't put himself out at all to keep it a secret.

Miss Adams, who made her debut in Paramount pictures in "The Fast Set," also a William de Mille production, is well cast as Agnes Prescott, the luxury-loving young wife of the cashier. It is her longing for the luxuries of life that leads her husband to borrow bank securities and get himself into a bad scrape.

Edson, seen in "The Golden Bed," the William de Mille film, "Locked Hours," and others, is cast as the banker in "Men and Women." Henry Stephenson has the role of a broker, who lets Dix in on a "sure thing" on the market, only to go bankrupt himself when the deal falls flat. Flora Finch, of John Bunny Comedies fame, has the part of Miss Adams' newly-rich aunt from the West. She starts no end of trouble in the Preston household when she arrives and tells Mrs. Preston that she should have married someone with a little more business ability than the plodding Will. Agnes (Miss Adams) begins thinking that perhaps this is true and—but that's for the picture to tell!

Today's Reflections

America likes good losers, but she is beginning to collect entirely too many of them.

We have room in Plymouth for only one kind of agitator, and that's the kind who is now busy getting ready to agitate the ground with a hoe.

We've noticed that the Plymouth man who insists old-fashioned winters were hardest still depends on somebody else to shovel the snow.

There are many men writing books in opposition to the Bible, but they don't seem to have as big a circulation.

Papers say a sardine merger is being formed in Maine. How can you merge a sardine any more than it is?

Older residents of Plymouth will probably recognize the new "Charleston" dance as the old "hoedown" made over.

We are glad to announce that the thermometer is getting better by degrees.

Any Plymouth man can tell you that the advice he got from his parents didn't amount to much then, but that it's worth a lot to him now.

The constitution of the United States guarantees you the pursuit of happiness. But you've got to do your own pursuing.

A "transcontinental hiker" is a fellow who gets across the country by begging automobile rides.

If the grown-up men of Plymouth would show the same willingness to dig in the dirt that is manifested by the kids, food products wouldn't cost so much.

Even when all you got of the chicken was the neck, you ought to think how much better off you are than the chicken.

Plane Without Motors

A motorless plane, operated by a system of turbines, invented by a rural mail carrier, has been taken up by the French war department. The inventor contends that he uses the resistance of the air as motive power and, although he is not giving away all his secrets, his formula would appear to put at naught most of the known laws of physics. But it appears that the air experts of the government have decided to take a good look at the model, which the inventor says he has built and which flies handily without fuel and without regard to wind currents. The model which the inventor says he has flown is described as six feet across. He says he is now preparing to build a man-carrying machine for the government.

Stamp Census

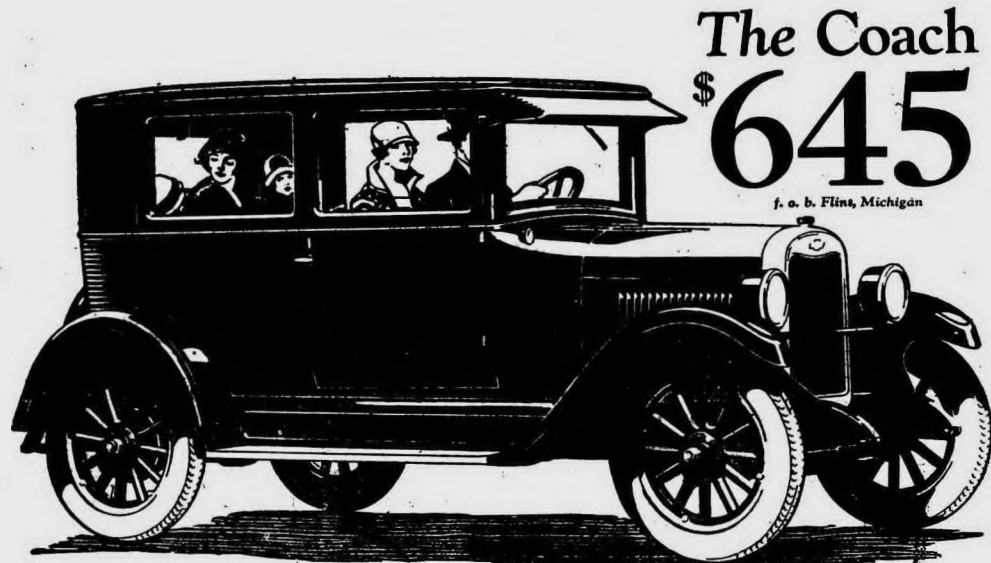

A Norwich firm's stamp census indicates that this year 2,167 new stamps have appeared, bringing the grand total up to 43,279, and there is not a philatelist in the world with a complete collection. During the 85 years during which stamps have been sold Europe has needed 12,885, Asia 7,940, Africa 9,924, America 7,320, the West Indies 2,845 and Oceania 2,355. Great Britain started the flood by issuing the "penny black" and the blue 2d "without lines," and from these islands the habit has spread all over the world.

Another pleasure that comes from riding in a friend's car is you don't have to worry when a fender gets smashed.

TREASURES OF ART BEYOND ALL PRICE

Unrivaled Collection in Metropolitan Museum.

The world's greatest treasure—estimated to be worth between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000—is declared to be the collections housed in the Metropolitan Museum of Art. A bronze horse about a foot high, dating from 470 B. C., and considered the most perfect specimen of equine sculpture in the world, is one of the articles beyond price and for which an offer of $1,000,000, or even $2,000,000, would only provoke a smile.
No insurance is carried on the Metropolitan—against either theft or fire. Its treasures are frankly noninsurable, because if policies could be written at even the approximate valuation, the premiums would be prohibitive.
There is probably no building in the world that is, however, so profusely and carefully guarded. Two hundred watchmen patrol the edifice during the day, and every visitor is covertly but minutely scrutinized. An intricate burglar-alarm system with a hundred alarm boxes and an alert central office adds further protection, which functions so efficiently that no article has ever been stolen.
The repositories for the exhibits and the picture frames are so wired that an alarm is set off the moment they are touched.
At night iron doors are swung on the room that contains the smaller golden objects. Three valuable pieces only are religiously removed to a safe. They are the Cellini cup, a gem of gold and precious jewels called the Rospiogliosi coupe; a jeweled Florentine pendant of the sixteenth century, and a small triptych (or tripe picture, which folds together something like a book) from the Baron Selys-Longchamps collection. These three are considered the most valuable of the smaller things in the museum.
The cost of maintaining and administering the Metropolitan is, roughly, $4,000,000 a year. New York contributes about $300,000, and the remainder comes through gifts and endowments and from the five hundred perpetual members—the eleven thousand annual members and a thousand sustaining members of the museum association.

To add to its collection the museum spends about $4,000,000 a year. Many of its endowments are for defined purposes or to buy special objects. Many opportunities to secure rich examples of art are lost through lack of funds.—Liberty Magazine.

Servian Village Tragedy
Superstition and tragedy ran hand in hand in a village near Belgrade, Servia. A dog went mad and was killed by a peasant. He threw the body in a ditch outside the village. Another peasant next day passing the ditch saw the body and thought it was a wolf. He took it home for its skin, but seeing the fat he rubbed himself with it, hoping, according to the superstition, to be as strong as the wolf. Other peasants, hearing about it, came to buy the wolf fat and the man did good business. Suddenly it was discovered that the fat came from a mad dog. The whole village will have to go to a Pasteur Institute for treatment.

Jap Girl Athlete
Miss Kikuye Hitomi, famous Japanese girl athlete, has now two world records to her credit, the hop-step-jump and standing high jump. At the recent Japan Olympic carnival held at Osaka, she established a new record of 11,925 meters in the hop-high jump event, breaking the previous world record of 1,017 meters held by Miss Williams of America. She had previously established a world record of 11,625 meters in the hop-step-jump event, breaking in the world record of 10,323 held by Miss Stein of America. She is coming to America next spring to study general athletic events and physical exercises.

Yale Perfects Lighting
Yale university is now modernizing the electric lighting equipment of its various buildings. Last summer while the recitation halls, lecture rooms, laboratories and dormitories were vacant a lighting expert investigated them all and made recommendations which are now being carried out. While it was found that the newer buildings were already illuminated according to the best modern methods, other buildings were found to have antiquated and inadequate electric lighting.

Instinct Warned Boys of Companion's Fault
My mother, bless her, used to worry a good deal about my upbringing. In spite of evidence to the contrary, she maintained that she never had whipped me half enough. "J. P." writes, in the Kansas City Star. Her heart was tender, she said, and she could not handle me as a man would have handled me, forgetting that she was a woman, she said. She had a set of biceps that would have honored a demonstrator in a home-muscle-builder window.
"You always went with the wrong boys, too," she said. "I remember that young Potter. Such a fine, manly young fellow. But you would not go with him."
Young Potter was as nice looking a kid as ever was. His uncle made him work for his living, but between times he kept ahead of the rest of us at school. His uncle held positive views about time-wasting, but when he played he showed that he could be a star at baseball and hockey and our other small-town pastimes.
"Why was it that you did not like him?" she asked.
I find it hard to say. Not that we were snobbish about the enforced servitude of young Potter. We were bond slaves ourselves, each of us being chained to such tasks as wood cutting and kindling splitting and horse polishing and garden weeding. But we sensed something about Potter which, without being able to define it, we did not like. He was too good a business man. He could trade us out of our young lives. When he got a little older he took over the management of the hardware store from his rheumatic uncle and his eyes began to grow a little nearer each other.
Well, he's there yet. Running the same old hardware store. Every other boy in our class either got out of that village or made a success in it, but Potter carries an odor of 10-penny nails and kited checks about with him. He has always been just a little too shrewd. By and by his customers walk on the other side of the street.
Mother never could see what was wrong with Potter. But, somehow, the kids could. He had everything but honesty.

Farm Animals in a Show
A man with a great idea walked into a theater manager's office in New York. "Just what is the act you put on?" asked the manager. "Well, it's made up of a cow, a pig and a sheep, a calf, a couple geese and a horse." The manager was puzzled. "What would animals do?" "Do—why, nothing. Just stand there and let the people look at them," said the stranger. "Say," he added, warning to his subject, "you don't know how many thousand people there are in New York who never saw a cow, a pig and a calf together in their lives. Some of them have never seen a calf except in a picture." No question but that, so far as New York is concerned, these animals have become extinct.—Capper's Weekly.

Lifelike Tailors' Dummies
Tailors' dummies which move their lips, eyes and heads by means of electric motors hidden in their chests are the Paris tailor's latest step to make his models lifelike. The first radical movement to make shop-window dummies resemble human beings was the abolition of the "Adonis" type of male beauty. Everywhere in Paris now Adonis is outnumbered by the corpulent, the undersized, the plain-faced, the cross-eyed and the broken-nosed dummy. The faces of these dummies are composed of a new material called "stiff," a mixture of fiber and plaster, which is far less brittle than wax and permits of more natural coloring.

Every Town Has Its Own "Odd" Character

There were always "types" in town and country. Every village had its eccentrics and has now. You can find "odd" characters all around—odd in manner, in dress, in physical appearance. They are a source of innocent amusement to young and old, and usually they

WAYNE COUNTY GETTING MANY RECRUITS FOR CITIZENS' TRAINING CAMP.

Wayne county has never been as successful in getting recruits for the Citizens Military Training camp at Camp Custer as it has during the last three weeks since the campaign to enlist students began. According to the second ten day report sent out by the Sixth Corps Area headquarters at Chicago showing the number of students accepted for training this year Wayne county has 72 young men already enrolled.

Wayne county also shows the largest percentage in gains over any other county in the Sixth Corps Area, composed of the states of Michigan, Illinois and Wisconsin. The success of this year's recruiting campaign for students is due to the efforts of Lieutenant Colonel Wade Mills, civilian aid to Secretary of War Davis, for Michigan, Ralph Roulter, chairman of the Wayne county committee, and the members of the general committee for this county.

Colonel Raymond Sheldon, chief of staff, 85th Division, with headquarters in Detroit, who will be the commanding officer at Camp Custer this summer is elated over the success of the Wayne county committee. Colonel Sheldon is organizing a committee of 100 women who are interested in the welfare of the United States, and when that committee is organized and gets to working with the men's committee it is expected Wayne county will get its quota of 478 young men for Camp Custer by May 1.

It was through the efforts of Colonel Sheldon that the members of the Women's Overseas Service League became interested in Camp Custer and they have agreed to furnish a hostess and an assistant for the hostess house at Camp Custer. Because of the lack of sufficient funds that could be used by the war department for employing hostesses for the various training camps in this country, it was decided to do away with hostesses for the training camps this summer. When this information was given to Colonel Sheldon by the corps area commander he immediately arranged for a conference with the officers of the Women's Overseas Service League, with the result that they agreed to furnish and pay for a hostess and an assistant for Camp Custer during the training camp.

Any young man between the ages of 17 and 24 years, of good moral character, who is physically sound is eligible for the training camp and will receive 30 days training in American citizenship at the expense of the United States government. This includes railroad fare to camp and back home again, food, laundry, medical and dental care, if necessary, and a uniform.

The entertainment program will include moving picture shows, athletic contests of all kinds, dances and many other social features all of which are free to the students. Applications for this year's camp at Camp Custer which will start on July 8 and end on August 6, can be had at the 85th Division headquarters, 204 New Telegraph Bldg., Detroit, Mich.
