BANK BANDITS GET LIFE IMPRISONMENT

Killers of Patrolman, in Plymouth Bank Robbery, Smile When Sentenced Wednesday in Recorder's Court.

With an air of bravado, the three young bandits, who pleaded guilty to the killing of Patrolman Earl J. Kobinsky, when he interfered with their flight after holding up the First National Bank of Plymouth, July 9th, smiled as Judge John V. Brennan of the recorder's court, sentenced them to life imprisonment Wednesday afternoon.

Arthur Sheehan, 16 years old, was sentenced to Michigan state prison, at Jackson, at his own request, and the other two, William McFayden, 18, and James Bylander, 23 years old, to Marquette branch prison, although they had asked to be sent to Jackson.

A fourth member of the gang, Jerome McCarthy, was shot and killed in the gun battle by Patrolman Kenneth McPherson, Kobinsky's partner. McCarthy was at the wheel of the automobile, while the bandits and McPherson engaged in the battle.

LET THEM LEARN

Everybody should learn to swim. But nobody can learn from reading a book or a set of swimming lessons—you've got to get in the water. No one can tell when the ability to swim may save a life, either of the swimmer or someone else. That one who can't swim constantly faces a danger when on the water that could have been avoided through a little time spent in acquiring the art. Plymouth mothers who refuse to let their boys go near the water long enough to learn to swim, when they are with older boys or men who can look after them, are making a mistake. It is a part of a boy's education, in a way, and he is better fitted to meet emergencies when he reaches manhood if he knows how to swim than if he doesn't. It is all right to keep warning the boy to be careful, but don't place a handicap on his later life by refusing to permit him to learn how to swim.

GOOD ANYWHERE

With the touring season in full blast it seems needless to tell anyone who drives a car that driving rules differ in different parts of the country. Yet there are some set rules, as we heard a Plymouth autoist explain a few days ago, that can always be depended on, whether you are driving in New York or California. Here they are, and it would not be a bad idea for every driver to commit them to memory:
Don't turn without putting out the hand. Don't pass another car on a hill or at a curve. Don't stop at the side of a highway to make repairs; drive into a side street or road. Don't get careless in the afternoon when most drivers are tired and care is most necessary. Don't drive fast after dark. Don't drive in the middle of the road. And don't forget to stop at all railroad crossings.

DON'T NEGLECT THIS

There are quite a few things that can be neglected by citizens of Plymouth without any serious after results, but neglecting to cut weeds is not one of them. You can postpone fixing the bad place in the sidewalk in front of your premises awhile longer, and no particular danger will result. But if you permit the weeds to grow where they should be kept down and if you permit cess-pools to flourish, it may bring about a dangerous epidemic. This seems to be a falling among residents of every town in this nation, and yet there is no reason why it should be. Any sane man knows that weeds are breeding grounds for flies and mosquitoes and other pests that carry disease germs. Everyone knows that where weeds are kept out and stagnant water is not allowed to stand and stagnate, the danger of typhoid and kindred ailments is lessened. This is a dangerous time of year. It is the hardest part of the year for very young children or very old men and women. Even though you may feel fine, and in perfect health, it does not mean that you are immune from an epidemic that may sweep our section. Let's make that epidemic practically impossible by seeing that every weed is cut and every drop of stagnant water removed at once from every foot of ground in this community.

THE HARVEST

The wheat harvest, which began several weeks ago in the southwest, has spread to the west, to the middle west, and is now on in eastern states, and once more wheat is moving from the field to the market. It should cheer the hearts of Plymouth people to know that this year's grain production is above that of 1925, though they will learn with regret that the growers are not going to get as much for it, from all present indications. It all depends upon how much will be sent to other countries, and until their own harvest is over there is no means of telling how much they are going to need. As matters stand, the outlook is for a combined winter and spring wheat production of 768,000,000, as compared with 699,000,000 last year. The carry-over from the old crop, however, is estimated to be only 55,000,000 as against 88,000,000 in 1925, so that is one thing in favor of the growers. The total supply in the United States thus promises to be 823,000,000 compared with 755,000,000 in the twelve months to a close. Sudden changes in weather may revise these figures a little, but not much. So Uncle Sam's flour barrel seems safe for another year, and even though it looked a little blue earlier in the season, even though other crops may still be backward, and even if the usual bumper corn crop fails to turn out as we hope it will, starvation is not staring us in the face by any means. We are again going to have much to be thankful for when November rolls around.

Dining Hall and Dance Floor to be Built

The building program prior to 1926 Washtenaw County Fair includes the erection of a dining room and dance floor. This building will fill a long felt need for accommodation at meal time and recreation in the evening. Work on this building will be commenced immediately. The erection of this building with sheep barn and grandstand improvement will make 1926 the banner expansion year of Washtenaw fair.

Boys' and Girls' Club Department

Boy and girl club members of Washtenaw county are putting forth their best efforts to make their exhibits in the boys' and girls buildings one of the outstanding features of 1926 Washtenaw County Fair. ODDFELLOW NOTES

Hot nights and not much doing. Our meetings for the next month will be short, but business is going on as usual.

We conferred the first degree on a class of candidates last Tuesday evening. Although it was awfully hot, the team turned out strong.

Bro. Hunter has his team in shape for next Tuesday evening, and he is going to show us some good work.

Our sick list is still the same, and our visiting committee will be busy for the next week. A more cheerful report is expected for next week.

The hot weather put a damper on the attendance last meeting, but it is not always going to be as it is at present. Our lodge room is rather cool for such a large building.

The various committees are making reports at the meetings, and judging by these reports, the committees are working hard on each proposition.

The committee in charge of our reunion picnic is getting details together and expect to give a full report at the next meeting.

The entertainment committee, with Bro. Hunter as chairman, have 15 assistants, and the report is that things are going to hum the next six months.

The Booster Club have called a special meeting for next Monday night, so every member come out and hear what is going to happen.

Hot weather is the cause of the news being scarce for this week.

The Lady Boosters held a meeting in their club room last week Wednesday evening, with a good turnout and a good time. The officers elected for the ensuing year are: President—Lady Matts; vice president—Lady Warner; secretary-treasurer—Lady Shrader. The next meeting will be held July 28th.

PLANNING FOR OUR ANNUAL FAIR

The officers and directors and the several superintendents of the Northville Wayne County Fair are busy making plans for the tenth annual fair to be held at the grounds in this village on September 21, 22, 23, 24 and 25. Water mains for fire protection have been laid into the grounds and a new sidewalk will be constructed along the west side of the Forsyth property and leading east past the east gate into the grounds. A new cement floor will be constructed in the rooms under the grandstand, and a commodious and convenient secretary's office will be erected near the east entrance to the grounds. An addition will be added to the main hall for the use of the community exhibits and vegetable display. Representatives of the M. S. ### Mistakes in Building

One's Home Are Costly
All normal men and women plan, some day, to have a home of their own; a place with trees, flowers, a garden; a home for the children. But most people building their first house usually make mistakes that can be avoided. An architect, in an article on home-building in Liberty Magazine, says: "Most architects make a mess of the first house they build for themselves. I made one of mine. I was lashed about it so much that I decided to let a few of the wife's wishes prevail in my next one—there was bound to be a first one, for the mistakes in the first were too numerous. "Instead of going at the job from a running jump the next time, I'd take counsel with my wife all the way through. No building again in a valley, with its wet mornings when the hill tops were bathed in sunlight. No western exposures, with their sun-baked rooms. No more scourge of mosquitoes. No laboring uphill through snow and slush on my way to work—that was a job in itself. No, in our new home we'd eliminate most of these bugbears. We'd live on a hill!"

Why I'm going to the Greater MICHIGAN STATE FAIR

WHEN YOUTH FLAMED HIGH
Last Sunday when we were all over to my wife's cousin Cherry Whipple's for dinner, I got bantering with Cherry about our romancing together in the old days before we both got married (to somebody else) and Cherry said: "Joe, seems to me you're looking kind of old this year!" "That so?" I snorts, "tell you what I'll do, Cherry, I'll take you to the State Fair in September and show you the best time of your young life. Midway, horse show, auto races and we'll have a bottle of pop all by ourselves." Course I wasn't very serious about it, but just then my wife comes up. "What's this—what's this, taking Cherry to the Fair?" "I accept," cuts in Cherry. "Joe invited me." Now I've got to take 'em both!

PROGRESS OF THE GREATER MICHIGAN STATE FAIR

The Live Stock exhibit is always one of the big features of the Fair. This department will be the best this year in the whole history of the State Fair. Special awards in addition to the regular prizes are made for contests won by Michigan-owned cattle.

Beauty Always Within Reach of Small Town

Several Kansas towns are feeling the urge of spring in a new-born desire to be beautiful. In fairness to Kansas it should be said that several Kansas towns are already pleasant to look upon and visit. But there is more to the urge than that, and something the Emporia Gazette said recently on the subject ought to set other towns in other states to thinking about themselves.

"We can be nice, decent, agricultural towns, with each town having some small industry, some specialty in schools or local development like oil or coal and the products of the soil. But big plants—no! We are doomed by our geography to be small towns. Then why not be beautiful towns? Why not get the best out of our towns, and our lives? Why not apple blossoms in Arkansas City, roses in Eldorado, canna in Fredonia, redbuds in Emporia? Surely if Japan can grow famous over the world for beauty of its cherry blossoms, we can make something out of the beauty that lies in our hands."

There is more to being a popular and thriving town than having the largest population or the biggest manufacturing plants or the most money. And the sooner a lot of small towns all over the country realize this, the sooner they will begin to create charm and distinction for themselves.

Even the towns that are already beautiful have something to do in maintaining their high standard. And the others should start right in making the most out of the beauty that lies in their hands.—Kokomo (Ind.) Dispatch.

Distinction Given to Grounds by Shrubbery

Shrubbery about a dwelling is of equal, if not greater, importance than trees. For, while trees give shade and add to the general attractiveness of a place, shrubbery ties the house to the ground, as it has been expressed; outlines boundaries and provides that seclusion now considered both desirable and necessary.

In small cities and suburban towns, where the custom often prevails of having the front yards in a block like one big lawn, it might break the general scheme to put in a front hedge, but shrubbery should be so massed in foundation planting as to single out that house as beautiful beyond all the others left unplanted, regardless of size or cost. And, where the back yards also have been thrown into one, or separated by almost invisible wire fences, that shrubbery following the house foundation could be carried around to the rear and extended onto the lawn far enough to make a secluded outdoor room.

Taller shrubs, with a few of the smaller trees, might be used in executing this idea without interfering with the whole block scheme, but beautifying the whole as seen from a distance.

Plant for Permanence

Above all things I would urge that permanent planting, like trees and shrubs and vines, be used. They are the background of any gardening, anywhere, and old-fashioned plants are always happy looking.

Even people who rent a house should feel enough interest in making the city itself beautiful to plant one tree or shrub or vine each season. It costs so little and they could get such fun out of only one year of watching it grow and if they stayed longer than a year they would find that nothing gives you such a feeling of home as watching something you have planted grow each year into greater beauty.—Chicago Post.

City's Growth

George B. Ford, speaking to 2,000 delegates at the national chamber of commerce meeting in Washington, asked why cities grow and then sought to answer his own question. He mentioned four causes of growth—natural advantage of position, nearness to raw materials, nearness to market and presence of skill derived from experience. All these are causes for industrial development, he explained, and "produce population growth only because industrial development leads to population growth. Cities grow because of industrial activity."

Flowers in City Yards

A novel suggestion of great importance concerns the abandonment of grass in close-in city yards, and the use of paved areas, surrounded by beds in which plants are grown. The fact that plants and many flowers can be grown successfully under conditions where lawns will fail is not generally known. In cultivated beds it is relatively easy to supply water and renew plant foods; and species of plants may be selected which best endure city conditions.

Style Used in Building

English architecture is particularly adaptable to a house set close to the street, the editor of the Home Designer and Garden Beautiful points out; for the roof recedes away from the eye, thereby enhancing the appearance of the building by apparently reducing the height.

BUILDING MORE EFFICIENT HOMES.

Baltimore has constructed an entire community of more than 100 houses where no coal, ash, or garbage man need go.

The houses are heated by gas, cooking and heating of water are done by gas; electricity furnishes lighting power for many other domestic purposes; incineration of garbage and rubbish is taken care of by gas.

These houses are especially constructed to embody these facilities and with the view of conserving every heat unit through the scientific insulation of the houses themselves. Twenty-six of the larger cities are going to build 38 such model homes during the summer.

Standardized Cities

Fifty years from now the traveler in America will be impressed with the similarity in general plan and appearance of American cities. This has been made certain by the passage of zoning ordinances in practically every important center of population in the United States. Latest figures by the Department of Commerce indicate more than half of the urban population live in zoned cities and towns. In 1916 only a tenth resided in communities where zoning ordinances governed building activities and city development. The number of zoned cities increased from 6 in 1916 to 73 in 1921, 285 in 1923 and 425 in 1925. Grouped according to population, 47 of the 68 largest cities in the United States having over 100,000 population and 150 of the 287 cities and towns having over 25,000 population have zoning ordinances in effect.—Lincoln Star.

Rose-Trellis Worth While

An alluring little rose-trellis is a fascinating adjunct to any country or suburban home, or, in fact, any home that is not cramped for space.

Even the amateur carpenter can construct an article like this, since it is little more than an arch over a seat. The arch is made of lattice work so that a climbing vine may find a firm hold. A back of open wood-work for the seat is in keeping with the airy nature of the trellis.

The whole should be painted either white or green. White is the more effective as a background for the greenery of the vines and the bright color of the pink or red roses. A comparatively small space will provide room for this house.

MUNICIPAL NOTES

BY THE MANAGER

The Police Department want a word said about driving automobiles without mufflers or with the cut out open. This practice is against the law and is of no economic use. The cooperation of garages and service stations is requested in abating this nuisance. There are a number of sick people who have been seriously bothered by the noisy cars passing their houses.

An ordinance published elsewhere, has been passed by the commission, to regulate the dumping of rubbish, etc., on village lands, and the use of autos on any village lands.

Two traffic regulations were ordered by the commission, Monday evening, which will be put in operation as soon as the necessary signs can be obtained. One closes the alley between the Wolf Store and the Plymouth Mail office to trucking, reserving it as a fire route and for fire cars. The other cuts out parking on Main street between Amelia street and the Pere Marquette tracks.

This hot dry weather has caused our 12,000 people to use the village water supply at an awful rate. Monday, 848,000 gallons were used. For several hours in the evening the pressure was lower than for a long time, but it was not from a lack of water, but the result of small mains and single distribution system. The water at the springs still is far higher than for years, and the reservoir has from six to eight feet of water in it. The steel tank is in use and the booster pumps are going most of the time.

One of these notes written early in the week, mentions the difficulty we had in keeping up water pressure in the evening. The situation is this, even if we have lots of water, unless people will co-operate by careful use of water, we will have to put sprinkling regulations in force. In order to enable residents in the high parts of town to have water for even domestic purposes. Water for drinking and cooking is more important than for outside use.

Wednesday afternoon the Wayne county road commission, by accident, broke a set of Edison wires and put our booster pump out of use for several hours.

Today's Reflections

The man who is always blowing his own horn usually hasn't very much of an ear for music.

There is only one thing that can turn the average Plymouth man's head quicker than success. And that's a woman.

Why is it that every time something is done to relieve the farmer, he has to put a new mortgage on the place?

Last year's straw hat is already beginning to look as well as this year's.

Wonder what has become of the old-fashioned Plymouth man who used to think he had to have a seersucker coat to get through the summer.

In the average town a man may escape being run down by an auto, but not by the gossips.

Every Plymouth girl knows that no matter how many divorcees there may be, there will always be marriages as long as there are car openers.

When father asks mother for a half-cup of coffee, mother fills the cup full so father will have something to get mad at.

One kind of badly needed child-labor law is one that will prevent mother from washing the dishes while daughter sits in an easy chair with a novel in her hand.

We know one Plymouth man who talks so much about "efficiency" that he doesn't get very much work done.

Quite a few things are still cheap in this country. An $8 crate of cucumbers, for instance, may have $100 worth of colic in it.

It doesn't hurt to tell the truth once in a while, so here goes: Plymouth men talk just as much as women and sometimes say less.

Poet Has Right Idea of Loyalty to Town

The Literary Digest reprints this from the Herald (Tippecanoe City, Ohio) as a sentiment typical of the period. The Digest says it thinks it knows what Mr. Meucken will say of it, so offers something, the editor says:

"MY TOWN CAN'T BE TOO GOOD FOR ME."

BY "WIB" CHAFFEE (For nearly three years the Chaffee Jingles have appeared in the advertising of The Big Green Barn garage and they have been a source of enjoyment to all. His present contribution, published below, cannot be classed as a jingle, however. In our opinion it is not only his masterpiece, but a bit of verse that is outstanding in current poetry.)

My Town can't be too good for me, Nor I too big or good for it; Though small in size My Town may be, I'd have it big in "Push" and "Sprit."

My Town must meet emergencies With dauntless courage, vim and "Peep"; Though progress is not bought with ease, My Town must not get "out of step."

My Town must tackle every task— Go forward always—never back down; 'Neath foreign suns though I may bask, I'd think with pride of this, My Town.

My Town, of course, is good enough, No matter how my fortunes swell; Nor yet how fortune may rebuff, My Town's defamers I would quell.

—And yet, down deep within my heart I know My Town improved could be; To help improve I'll do my part— My Town can't be too good for me!

Several Reasons Why One Should Own Home

There are many reasons why people should own their own homes. The purchase of a home is the most important investment you will make, and, probably, the largest purchase you will ever make, if you are in ordinary circumstances. It is the one which will have the most influence on your well-being, comfort and happiness.

To own your own home gives one a feeling of deep personal pride and satisfaction, besides reflecting the personal preference and taste of the owner. Your home becomes the center of your most cherished memories and associations, the center of your life's interest. Therefore, it means more than money can buy.

Home ownership is a symbol of security and success. A home of your own is insurance against fear and worry in old age. Insurance statistics show that those who have provided for the "evening of life" live longer than those who have no thought of "the tomorrow."

Keep Roof Painted

The timber framework by which the roofing or covering materials are supported should be coated with paint before the outer covering is laid on. Valleys, gutters and downspouts should be painted as soon as they are put in position. There is a tendency today to rely upon galvanized metal. Under the most advantageous conditions the life of galvanizing is fifteen years and its term of usefulness may be considerably shortened under adverse circumstances. For instance, galvanizing, if exposed to the corrosive elements of ocean air, will not serve as a protection for more than three or four years. Whereas, under the same conditions, gutters and spouts will last from ten to twelve years if regularly painted, or made of zinc or copper.

Architecture Improves

The dwellings of any people are the surest indication of their strength. Our highest civic ideals spring from sources which have their origins in happy, thriving communities. Since the enlightened community offers the best field for the merchandising of lumber, the interest of the lumber industry in improving small home architecture in America might result from no motive other than the seeking for commercial gain. The motive, however, lies deeper than this. They realize that beautiful homes are an inspiration to better living.

Thrifty Illinois City

Of all the cities that dot the state of Illinois, Moline, perhaps, is unequalled in one evidence of the thrift of its inhabitants. Eighty-four per cent of the homes in that city are owned by their occupants. That is more than an indication of industry and thrift; it is proof that the people of Moline believe in their city. Home-owning solidifies a community. In this respect Moline should be as solid as rock.—Chicago Journal.

HEROIC DEEDS OF WOMEN IN BATTLE

Glorious Achievements Recorded in History.

The recent dispatch that women of the Urise tribe, at war with the French in Syria, had taken part in an attack at Sueda, and, braving bullets and shells, captured two armored trains, leads George R. Witte, writing in the New York Evening World, to remark that they were simply showing the fighting instinct which has been evinced by females in all ages of the world.

In the World war the number of women who fought on both sides ran into the thousands, and the Russian women's "Battalion of Death" stands out as one of the most notable instances of patriotism in the struggle. It is only patriotism that prompts women to engage in battle, asserts the writer. For their own they will fight with the ferocity of wild tigers.

History is filled with the achievements of women in battle. In our own (Civil war many women fought at the sides of their husbands and sons. One of the most famous of these women was Kady Brownell, who enlisted with her husband in the Rhode Island regiment of Zouaves and was wounded at the battle of Bull Run. She died in 1915, the only woman member of the G. A. R. The history of Molly Pitcher, heroine of the American Revolution, is well known.

The oldest stories of women warriors and those that gave militant women their cognomen, were the Greek tales about the Amazons who terrorized Asia Minor and Thessaly and who were often depicted in Greek art.

The names of many warrior queens are familiar to every student of history. There was Semiramis, the queen of Sheba, and Zenobia; Theodora, Boudicca and Ethelfreda. And in the Middle Ages we read of Queen Eleanor of France and Margaret of Navarre, while Catherine the Great led her armies in several battles. The name of Jeanne d'Arc will live forever because of her achievements.

The history of India is full of tales of women battalions fighting in the holy wars against the invaders. Not quite one hundred years ago Benjet Singh of Lahore led a regiment of the most beautiful girls and women of the Vale of Cashmere to their death in battle against the English. In the Chinese war, 70 years ago, the "super-woman" of Georgia, led by the "Black Virgin," a Kurd, marched to the Banube to do battle with the Russians.

Promote World Friendship

Correspondence between school children of America and those of other countries is promoted by several agencies, the most active of them being, perhaps, the Junior Red Cross. Organizations for like purposes have been formed in other countries, and some of them have established relations on their own account with teachers in the United States. One of these is the International Fraternity Association of Asaka, Japan. K. Ikehara is the executive secretary. The American correspondent of this organization is Miss Minor B. Moore, 16 Fulton street, Newark, N. J. The purpose of the organization is "to advance the cause of world friendship by means of international exchange of letters, news, and tokens particular to their respective countries, especially among the younger generations of nations."

Combat Disease in Africa

The newest devices for combating disease will soon be available in the heart of the so-called Dark continent. According to a report to the American Medical association, the Belgians are equipping a hospital ship to be put in service on the Congo river that will have ice machines, disinfection equipment, operating rooms, laboratories and all the appurtenances of a thoroughly up-to-date hospital. It will have wireless outfits with which to keep in constant touch with hospitals, and numerous stations along the river and in the interior. It is hoped that in this way many sources of infection can be reached and checked before the spread can acquire dangerous proportions.

Not So Monotonous

"What a tiresome, god-forsaken place!" carped a young salesman from the city, who was marooned in the hamlet of Torpidity. "Nothing to do, nothing to see, and—"

"Aw, I'd know," responded the landlord of the tavern. "If you hunt for the chance you can probably get drunk on moonshine licker and have a fight whether you hunt for it or not. You can play checkers with a member of the legislature and not lose anything but your self-respect, and you can read Sgt Lovengood's button-busters and laugh yourself to death, and then go to bed."—Kansas City Star.

Portrait Masks in Rubber

Portrait masks in rubber are becoming quite a craze with British society women and the originator of the fashion, a young American artist, is being kept pretty busy executing orders.

The face models are first made in clay from which a cast is taken, and the rubber features then molded in the cast. Natural colors are used for tinting purposes and give a most life-like effect. The masks, mounted on a solid base, or in a gold frame, make effective ornaments for the boudoir or salon.

THE THEATRE

"MEMORY LANE"

There is as much romance in the faintly washed-up as in the king's castle —if you can get it out.

This is the theory of John M. Stahl, film producer, who says that he would rather make pictures the characters of which are common everyday folk, than those displaying millionaires and royalty.

"It is the everyday folk about us that make the world go round," he explains. "All in all, they are vastly more important than the persons who stand on top of the earth and conclude that everyone else is hidden in their shadow."

"I believe that the romance and drama in the average American home eclipses anything that ever can happen within the gilded doors of kings or the socially elect."

In "Memory's Lane," Stahl's latest release, which comes to the Penniman Allen Theatre, Saturday, July 24th, the producer tells a story of life and love in a small town. Eleanor Boardman, Conrad Nagel and William Haines head a large cast. It is a First National picture, presented by Louis B. Mayer.

"DESERT GOLD"

Zane Grey's latest "Western" is coming to town. "Desert Gold," as it is called, comes to the Penniman Allen theatre, Sunday and Monday, July 25 and 26.

The picture was directed by George Seltz, the man who made "The Vanishing American." And it is only fair to say that while "Desert Gold" is not done on the enormous scale employed in the former production, it can be favorably compared without losing any of its own glamour.

A splendid cast has been given the director and scenarist, Lucien Hubbard, with which to work. Shirley Mason is a pleasing picture as Mercedes, the little Spanish senorita; and Nell Hamilton, the young cavalry soldier, contributes greatly to the action. Robert Frazer, who seems to have struck his stride, is admirable as the happy-go-lucky Easterner; while William Powell makes a dastardly villain.

Briefly, the story is concerned with Nell Hamilton who loves Shirley. The time is the close of the nineteenth century and the location, this side of the Mexican border, on the edge of the Painted Desert. Law and order is represented by Hamilton, the lieutenant of a small troop of cavalrymen. But the country is overrun with a gang of desperados who rob and kill at will. They are captained by William Powell.

One day the latter happens to see Shirley and wants her for his own. Then when Nell goes off to his patrol, Powell and a bunch raid the hacienda and kill her uncle. But Shirley, disguised as a young boy, escapes on horseback with her faithful Indian servant.

They reach town and hide away. Hamilton discovers what has happened and goes to a hotel, where if he shows his uniform, a fight is sure to start. At the psychological moment in walks Robert Frazer, an eastern friend of Nell. He promises to help his pal out by aiding in the rescue of the girl. Then the fun and action begin. And you'll never guess who wins Shirley until the last minute.

"A SOCIAL CELEBRITY"

The movies have put another phrase into the English language. This time, it's "A Social Celebrity." The casual reader, on seeing this may ask:—"And pray, tell me, just what is 'A Social Celebrity'?" The answer would seem to be found in Adolphe Menjou's newly completed Paramount production of the same name.

"A Social Celebrity" presents the star in the role of a barber. Our ordinary gives forth the information that "A Social Celebrity" would be "a renowned member of society." But if we look at the Menjou film, we find it's the story of a barber who posed as a foreign Count and succeeded in becoming a social success. It's full of typical Menjou-esque humor and is heralded as the best thing either he or Director Mal St. Clair have ever made.

The Penniman Allen theatre will act as host to "A Social Celebrity" on Wednesday, July 28th. Monte Katterjohn is credited with the story and Pierre Collings with the screen play. Chester Conklin, well known comic, and Louise Brooks are featured.

NOW COMES THE GREAT SALE THAT SETTLES ALL DOUBTS ABOUT BUYING SUMMER THINGS!

AN EXTRAORDINARY EVENT
OUR FIRST ANNIVERSARY SALE

One year ago we bought out The A. H. Dibble & Son Clothing Store. It was an important event in a 40-year business, and an important event in the history of Plymouth. Last year when we took over this store, we staged a sale that has lived in the memory of thousands, and residents are still talking about it—and referring to it as the greatest sale Plymouth ever had.

In this, our First Anniversary Sale, we have every reason to believe that it will be a still greater one. In spite of the fact that winter edged into the spring months and spring lasted all the way into June—now that summer is here, this sale steps in with record prices and settles all doubts. Buy now and bank the difference.

No Services During July
Redecoration in Progress
Reopening August 1st

BAPTIST NOTES

The pastor was in the pulpit on Sunday morning, after three days in bed with acute lumbago, and also spoke in the evening. Joseph Stanley taught the pastor's class in Sunday-school.

The Sunday-school keeps its number up in good shape this summer. Won't you be there for next Sunday?

The choir gave us a fine anthem at the morning service, and the young men sang for the evening meeting.

We appreciate those new friends who come with us of late. Their presence and testimony are doing us good.

The basket of flowers, last Sunday, was so many as fine as they had ever seen. The church and congregation thank these friends for their kindness each Sunday in providing flowers.

The church extends its sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. Archie Collins in this hour of their sorrow. In the loss of Mr. Collins' mother.

A large number of the Aid Society and friends met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Schryer, last week Wednesday, for their July meeting. A pot-luck supper was served, and the afternoon and evening was enjoyed by all. There was a large attendance. For August the announcement has come that the society will meet with Mr. and Mrs. Roland Allenbaugh, two miles south on Mill street. Make your plans to go.

The B Division of the Aid Society met at the parsonage, last Thursday afternoon.

Trees Not for Streets

It is a mistake to use a tree for street purposes just because it is rapid-growing, because most such trees are short-lived, weak-wooded and generally dangerous. Among such trees may be mentioned:

Silver maple—a maple that has quite pendulous branches and deeply cut leaves. The branches have dark bark.
Box elder—a maple with divided leaves. A more or less globular, low-branched tree.
Western catalpa—very short-lived. Flowers are very mossy.

Alas the following: willows, European ash, birch, Carolina poplar and tulip tree.

Historians Differ on Naming of Manhattan

Philologists have long disagreed as to the origin of the word Manhattan, the name of the island on which stands metropolitan New York. But, according to a recent issue of Little Old New York, many modern authorities are taking seriously the claims which ascribe the name to a great drunken bout held on the island by the Dutch discoverers, whereas they made certain of the natives most ecstatically drunk for the first time in their lives, the Indians being so delighted by their jovial entertainment that they gave the place the name of Mannhattaunk, or the "Island of Jolly Toppers." To substantiate this, it is pointed out that many of the early maps called the island Monados, Manados and Munatoes, all said to mean "a place of drunkenness."

The Dutch scholar, Van Der Donck, seemingly refuted this idea, however, in his "Description of New Netherlands," in which he pictured the Indians as being an abstemious race whose common drink was water from a living spring or well, and having no name in their languages to express drunkenness.

Schoolcraft, one of the early philologists and historians of the nation, who made a deep study of aboriginal names and geographical terminology of the state of New York, gave a different definition.

"When the Mohicans first discovered the island," he wrote, "and denoted Hell gate, they, true to their habit of naming localities after the most striking geographical feature near it, called the island 'Mon ah tan uk,' meaning a bad running water whirlpool. Themselves they called Munatunk, or 'People of the Whirlpool.'"—Detroit News.

Awkward Situation

Try as I would, I could not rid myself of the bore.

He was not to be dismissed by anything I did.

"I must go uptown," I said; but he merely replied:

"Very well, I'll go with you."

I invented several chores, but he stuck like a leech.

Finally I hesitated in front of a private dwelling.

I had never seen it before, and said to the bore:

"I must stop here to see an old friend. Good-by."

I ran up the steps and rang the bell.

The door was opened by a servant.

"Is Mrs. Robinson in?" I inquired.

"Certainly, sir," he replied. "Step this way."

Building Storm Cellar

The weather bureau says that many plans for a storm cellar have been proposed, but all that is necessary is any sort of a room or hole under the surface of the earth convenient to get into. Naturally one would prefer to have a door to it, close enough to keep out snakes and toads. It can have cement walls and floor, or these may be of stone, plank or just the earth, if that will stand. All these details, as also many others that some designers have suggested, are only unimportant details. One only wants a room of any kind under ground, in which, at worst, he probably will never need to stay more than five minutes in a lifetime. While in the "cellar" during the passage of a storm the door to the cellar should be left open.

COPPER MONEY USED BY ANCIENT GREEKS

Really Marked Beginning of Metal Currency.

The first money of the Greeks was the copper pot. Everybody wanted copper pots and, therefore, anybody would exchange whatever else he had for them. Copper pots became a common denominator in the market, tending to replace barter. Then some young Greek hit upon the idea of making up the copper of which pots were made into strips and using them in the markets instead of pots. William Atherton Du Fay tells us, in Current History, "These strips were called 'aioles,' and six of them made a hand-ful. They were the first actual money of the Greeks. They marked the beginning of the use of metals as money."

Two hundred years before Caesar, silver displaced copper as money in Rome because it had been shown to be a handier metal for the purpose. From that time on it was the predominant money metal until, 2000 years later, gold took precedence.

In 1316 the count of Schiltz opened up a silver mine of considerable productivity in St. Joachim's thal, or hale, in his native Bohemia. He appreciated the dire need of the Middle Ages to have more money as a medium to facilitate trade. So he made his silver into coins and placed on them a picture of St. Joachim. In honor of his native community he called these coins St. Joachim's thalers. They soon became known as Joachimsthalers; then they got over into Germany and were called thalers. Later, in the Netherlands, they were called dalers. They crossed to England and were known as dollars. Joachimsthalers were, in fact, the first dollars.

After the discovery of America, Spain gained a dominance which was largely due to the possession of silver from Mexico and Peru, which provided her with a circulating medium. She made a coin, the "piece-of-eight" of pirate stories, which was a dollar. England could not furnish currency for her colonists, so the latter began to use Spanish pieces-of-eight, which were comparatively abundant. They liked these coins better than the English shillings and pounds, and so, when they set up a money system of their own, they modeled it on the Spanish rather than the English scheme. So did a dollar currency, destined to loom large a hundred and fifty years later, come into being.

Marco Polo brought the idea of paper money back from China. Many nations have since printed paper money and most of them have had a great deal of difficulty in maintaining a stable value. The United States tried a number of experiments in paper money, but when the Civil war came it had of that sort of currency only the issues of state banks which were of uncertain value. The dollar issued by the banks of one state might be worth 40 cents and those issued by another state might be worth 60 cents.

Bull Weevil Increasing

The cotton bull weevil, one of the worst enemies of American agriculture, threatens to be unusually numerous this year, according to United States Department of Agriculture scouts sent out against the armies of insect pests. Both in the older cotton regions of the South and in the Arizona fields the overwintering insects have been found in considerable numbers. At Tallulah, La., an examination of Spanish moss, in which the weevils usually take shelter for the winter, disclosed 280 of them to a ton of moss, as compared with 10 a ton in 1924, 299 a ton in 1923 and 137 in 1917.

Grooms Mules With Vacuum

Capt. A. C. Fitzhugh, Third Field artillery, Fort Benjamin Harrison, has invented a vacuum cleaner which does the work of grooming the army horses and mules. The machine is constructed after the general fashion of vacuum cleaners, but has certain features especially adapted to cleaning animals. The nozzle is equipped with a brush of special make, with which the backs of the animals are massaged in a manner similar to that followed with the old grooming brush. The animals do not object to the use of the machine.

Failure Vs. Success

After 50-years of bachelorhood, Sir Robert Home, one-time chancellor of the exchequer, spoke loudly in behalf of bachelors while addressing the Glasgow Institute of Journalists. Said he: "Bachelors are a much misunderstood class. . . . The proposal to lay a tax on bachelors, now widely bruited in England, would be opposed to all the accepted principles of taxation, which usually postulate that the more successful a man is the heavier should be his taxes. . . . To lay a tax on bachelors is thus unreasonable, for it would be a tax on failure, not on success. . . ."—Time.

More Jumble

A Nevada senator during a speech used the word "intrinsic" and a senator from Oregon picked him up on it. "Who says I didn't use that word right?" cried the speaker. "Webster says so." "Webster? What Webster?" "Webster's dictionary." "Now, see here," growled the senator from Nevada. "I'm tired of having that book quoted at me. Why, every schoolboy knows it is a mere jumble of words."—Boston Transcript.

Community Building

Care and Cultivation of Grounds Important

Where it is not possible to build the new house on a lot having good trees, the first step toward an attractive home is tree planting. Even with trees already established, plants of smaller growth are required in addition if a home atmosphere is to radiate from the house. A proper combination of these gives the most pleasing result.

Locating the walk and the drive, if there is to be one, is a necessary preliminary to planting the grounds. The less conspicuous they are the better for the general effect. If the house is close to the street a straight walk is the least obtrusive and cuts up the lawn less than a curving one; but if the house is farther from the street than the width of its own front, an unbroken lawn may be provided by curving the walk from one corner or the other. When a drive is needed it may often be used as a substitute for a walk. Walks and drives should be kept as few in number and as limited in area as conditions will permit.

Proper location of shade trees is probably the most vital of all the planting details. Where the house is placed close to the street the street trees are usually the only ornamental trees that can be used, but where there is room some are needed near each corner of the house as a frame, but none in front to obstruct the view. On a large lot additional trees provide welcome shade, but must not obstruct the picture of the front.

Tenants Seek Beauty in Business Building

So far as its ability to make its sale is concerned, a commercial building of architectural beauty will outlive its neighbor of ordinary lines and proportions.

There are several reasons for this, any one of which ought to convince the owner of a commercial building, be it a single store or an office skyscraper, that it pays actual dollars to create the beautiful rather than the ordinary or ugly.

The building that has been erected for commercial purposes should contain elements in its makeup that will insure for its owner a continuation of its profitability as time goes on. At first, a building's newness and location usually warrant the investment being made without fear of its becoming a white elephant instead of a bag of gold to the original investor. But when a new building goes up alongside, or across the street or the busiest portion of the thoroughfare moves away, then there is a great liability of a decline in the ordinary building's value as a profitable investment.

The modern buying public will patronize that shop which does not grate on its esthetic nature. Consciously or unconsciously, the present-day shopper will discriminate between the beautiful and the ugly. Wise is the investor who realizes this tendency before he commits the mistake of erecting an unattractive building.

Consideration in Building

There are a lot of things that cannot be and should not be regulated by law, but should be governed more successfully than they are by good taste and proper consideration for others of good taste. This applies in a particularly conspicuous way to architecture. To break into a street of generally good building standards with a freakish, garish or otherwise incongruous structure is not only a manifestation of bad taste, but a selfish disregard for the rights and interests of those who exercise good taste and good business judgment. The same is true of the architect or builder who puts a freak dwelling in a beautiful and harmonious neighborhood of homes. Such an architect or builder discredits himself and offends and injures persons of better taste.—Kansas City Star.

Take Inventory of Trees

Some Eastern cities take an inventory of their trees yearly. Hartford, Conn., values the trees on Washington street, the main street of the city, at $138.41 each. Newton, Mass., values each of its street trees at $120.50; Newark, N. J., at $30.72 replacement value; Springfield, Mass., at $100; Ann Arbor, Mich., at $100. The minimum value of a street tree is fixed by the forestry department of the University of Michigan at $16, plus an increment for each year of its life.

Home Owner Is King

The man who builds in the small-home class today is a monarch of rank beyond the aspirations of the feudal baron, with his ancestral castle and his army of retainers. The home builder of today has catering to his needs a host of eager slaves inconceivable and impossible in feudal days—the myriad manufacturers of building products.

Paint a Great Transformer

The season of the year is here that seems by its very brightness to throw our homes into a dingy, shabby relief. Paint is a magical transformer that will go a long way toward changing this condition, for its application will replace the worn appearance with one of pristine freshness.

Just about every two or three months the average married couple shows the need of a peace conference.

Rural District Not Healthier Than City

The idea that rural life is inherently wholesome and healthful has all the vitality of a popular legend. The crystal waters of the old family well, the gymnasium apparatus of plow and hoe and saw, the fresh food from field, garden and dairy, the constant outdoor life, the mental serenity which comes from contact with nature have been so lyrically extolled by orators, chiefly urban, that it is hard to convince the man in the street that the farmer and his family are not healthier than city folk.

Yet there are many facts which point in quite the opposite direction. An examination of more than half a million school children proved that physical culture defects occur more frequently in rural pupils than in urban. Since 1910 the New York rural death rate has been higher than that of cities. On the other hand, for the country as a whole, the rural rate is lower than the urban.

Certain reports on army recruits seem to be more favorable to young men from rural regions. The use of different standards of "rural" and "urban," however, often makes comparisons misleading.

New light has recently been thrown on this question by the examination of 3,478 male students in one of the large state universities of the Middle West. The results are distinctly favorable to the cities of more than fifty thousand population as compared with small cities, countryside and villages. The students from the large cities show the lowest number of physical defects. "It is a well-known fact," says a United States health official, "that the natural advantages which the rural districts possess are more than offset by the better health protection afforded the city dweller."—From a Report of the Rockefeller Foundation.

Women and Leisure

Mrs. Frank G. Gilbreth, an industrial engineer of New Jersey, addressing the New York section of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers in New York recently, said that science, by cutting down much of the drudgery of life, does not save humanity from fatigue. "All the labor-saving devices and electrical machinery in the world," she asserted, "cannot save you from the fatigue that arises from being daily in a home where you are not glad to be." Her husband died suddenly of overwork, and left her with eleven children. He had won a name as an efficiency expert and an authority on "fatigue elimination." She said women enjoy the misery of overfatigue and are proud to boast of being tired, while stubbornly refusing to rest.

The Provider

The late Elizabeth B. Grannis, founder of the Purty Promotion League and kindred organizations, had been discussing marriage with a girl reporter in New York.

"Marriage," she ended, "has one drawback. It drains the romance from men's souls. It changes poetic lovers into prosaic providers.

"A married woman burst into tears one night.

"George," she said to her husband, "when we were engaged you brought me flowers every evening, but it's 11 years now since you've given me a single flower."

"George was conscience-stricken. 'I'll do better, love,' he muttered. 'And the next evening he brought her a superb cauliflower.'"

Another Chestnut Enemy

A new insect enemy of the already sadly plagued American chestnut was recently caught trying to sneak past the guards at the gates of the United States. It is a native of Europe, and is known as the nut fruit tortrix, or more scientifically as Laspeyresia splendana. It is related to the codling moth, a foreign pest that long ago got into this country to work ruin in American fruit orchards, and its work on the chestnut is said to be similar to that of the codling moth on fruits. It was detected in shipments of chestnuts from Italy, which have been growing larger year by year as the supply of native nuts has been diminishing due to the ravages of the chestnut blight disease.

Turkey's Daily "Quakes"

Earthquakes are very common in Turkey. They are usually local upheavals and do not cause much alarm. Last month there was a small shock in the localities of Tavas, Kars, Agatch and Adji-Badem. Four people were killed and three badly injured. Three hundred and eighty houses were destroyed. Near Keretize mountain a small crack appeared, and a small stream of boiling water flows from this opening. Recently near Fethle shocks recurred during five days. Several buildings were damaged and part of the docks sank. Some of the inhabitants are living in camps outside the locality.

An educated man earns more—and it only takes about ten years after graduating to get educated.

Community Building

Duty of Citizens to Guard Public Health

The average citizen pays for accidents and disease in deaths, injuries, illnesses, bills, discounted investments and depreciated values. Therefore it is his job to prevent accidents and disease, says Dr. J. Howard Beard in Hygeia Magazine.

In the old days of the one-horse shay, the physician was responsible for the health of the entire community. Medical science has advanced tremendously since then. So has industrial science. Although many disease conditions have been brought under control, countless new ones have arisen as the result of the rise of industrialism.

Fast trains and airplanes are as much at the disposal of disease germs as of human beings. While large cities foster clinics and medical schools and hospitals, they also foster unhygienic living conditions, accidents and illness.

The physician can no longer handle the situation alone, in spite of his greatly increased knowledge. He must have the co-operation of every citizen in the community. It is the average citizen who can and should insist on the adoption of public health measures, on the health education of school children and adults, and on the furtherance of preventive medicine.

Appearance of House Attracts the Buyer

People who are most vociferous in their appreciation of the sentimental values of their homes, who let it be known to all and sundry that they would never sell their home because of old associations, are frequently the readiest to sell if they get what they call a "good offer." They are really good salesmen, and their boasted affection for their homes is merely good sales talk. While this attitude may be a trifle calloused, there are few of us who do not keep a weather eye upon real estate values. We are proud and pleased when there is a "boom" in our immediate neighborhood. And rightly so. We are pleased whenever the property value of our home advances, because it has materially increased our potential estate, and proud that our purchase has proved to be a wise investment.

Keep your property well painted and you will have mighty few repair bills. Paint is far cheaper than new wood or metal replacements. Watch the less obvious vulnerable points, such as roof, eaves and down spouts, porch columns, etc. The trim is usually the first to suffer.

Wisdom in Building Well

Whether the house is being built for a home, or to let, the builder will save much money on repairs and upkeep by having the house constructed of the very best materials by the best of craftsmen. The last several years have seen the erection of innumerable "cheap houses," built poorly of inferior materials. These so-called "cheap houses" have been very expensive to the owners, who have found they cheated them of the pride and satisfaction that should have been theirs in the possession of their own home. To say nothing of the hundreds of dollars worth of value that was sadly lacking.

Authentic and authoritative literature is now being published in book form and in pamphlets, magazines and newspapers, so the man who contemplates any sort of building should carefully study this literature with the idea of acquainting himself with what really constitutes good building.

War on Mosquitoes

The first mosquito bite of the season ought to remind the victim that stagnant water is standing around somewhere close by. Rain barrels, tin cans, unsealed cisterns, marshy pools and similar water receptacles and places make ideal hatching places for this pestiferous insect. Besides being a disagreeable nuisance, mosquitoes carry malaria, especially in the southern part of Illinois. Mosquitoes never breed in running water nor in bonyard territory. They rarely travel far from the place of birth. Enforcing rigid prohibition against stagnant water in the neighborhood or adding a coat of oil to it will eliminate the bites.

Few Buy Homes Outright

"More than half the houses in the United States are owned by men who make less than $2,000 a year," says W. D. Carter, retiring president of the New York State League of Savings and Loan associations. "It is estimated that approximately 90 per cent of those who build or buy a home do not pay for it outright at the start. Habits of thrift, economy and self-denial established and practiced in saving to meet the monthly payments by which the home is paid for are among the greatest assets of owning a home."

Clean City an Asset

It is not easy to magnify the influence of cleanliness as a charm. For a city to be clean is good business, if nothing else. But it is much else. Without it there can be little beauty or comfort, little of the air of prosperity that is so desirable.

Subscribe for the Mail.
"A good many men like flattery," says Dad Plymouth, "even though it seldom comes up to their good opinion of themselves."

We heard say Plymouth was very yesterday that the time has about come when it is as hard for a rich man to enter heaven as it is for a poor man to stay on earth.

Travelers Find Husky Invaluable in North

Winter traveling in northern Canada being entirely by sleigh, the breeder of huskies is able to make a good living. Just before "freeze-up" a team of five or seven dogs will fetch anything from $500 to $750, according to their strength and the efficiency of their training. This last point is vital. The life of every dog, and frequently the driver, may depend upon the dogs' halting promptly to the order. For in spite of the great thickness of the ice, practically every waterway has air-holes; and once driven into one of these, harnessed dogs find it almost impossible to regain a footing on the ice.

So dogs are taught to avoid these death-traps by being driven into them. Within reasonable distance the word is given to halt. If not instantly obedient the dogs are forced into the hole, the driver jumping free. With his help the dogs climb out, and as a rule it is not necessary to repeat the lesson.

An average team can pull a loaded sleigh at seven miles an hour ten hours a day for seven days a week. The dogs sleep in the open at a temperature of 50 degrees below zero, and can live on half a jackfish a day.

To train huskies as pets is unwise. Though they are not the fifty-fifty combination of hound and wolf which popular fancy has painted them—many huskies are three-quarters hound—there is still too much wolf in their make-up for safety, and it is not unknown for a driver, exhausted from cold or hunger to be attacked by his own team.

And yet there are authentic cases of fidelity which match any creation of the novelist. Some years ago Father Rupert was carrying Christmas cheer to the Hot Springs orphanage near Pilgrim's river. One by one the team turned up in other parts, and it was realized that the padre had met with disaster. Search parties were organized and the body was found, rigid in death.

Over the corpse, faithful to the end, stood Mink, the team leader, and the husky had to be dragged away snarling before the body could be moved.

The Funny Part

"Funny thing happened at my house last night," in the Booger Holler post office, related Tobe Sagg of Sandy Mush. "A couple of my boys got hold of an old pistol of mine and went to playing they were movie actors. Directly one of 'em rared back and blazed through his clenched teeth. 'Gimme the paper or I'll tear up the child!' The other one cocked his pistol. 'Hold on, there!' 'That devilish thing might be loaded.' 'Aw, naw; it ain't!' says he, and slung it right at the other one's head, he pulled the trigger. Well, sir, it was right funny, and—"

"Do you call it funny for one little boy to shoot another in the head?" grilly demanded the postmaster.

"No, the funny part was that the one that held the gun and said it wasn't loaded, knowed what he was talking about—it wasn't loaded."—Exchange

The Moon at Sea

At last up rose the moon. She made her cunning apparent by paling the stars in the southern sky, than by projecting a white mist of light over the horizon. Anon her upper limb, red as fire, jetted upward, and the full orb, vast and feverish as the setting sun, settled out of the sea, most slowly and solemnly; flitting with her black mist, that belted her like a circle of smoke; this vanished, and by degrees, perceptible to the eye, her color changed, the red chastened into pearl, her disk grew smaller and soon she was well above the horizon, shining with a most clear and silvery splendor, and making the sea beneath her lustrous with mild light.—W. Clark Russell.

Geologist's Lucky Day

Milton McMillan, geologist, saw a swarm of bees entering a small aperture in the wall of a canyon near Anaheim, Calif. He set off a dynamite charge expecting to uncover a honey cache. Instead he blasted into a tomb containing a well-preserved human skeleton and other objects of archaeological interest. In a clay jug, hermetically sealed, were thousands of vegetable seeds. In many of the largest teeth were hieroglyphics, presumably carved by members of an early race. The skeleton was further back in the large cavern, seated upright on a niche in the rock. A footprint in the rock measured 15 inches in length.

Women Have Long Lives

Women seem to have made all the recent records for long lives. During the last year the oldest person reported in England was a married woman of one hundred and four; in North America, a French-Canadian woman, Charlotte Nava, who died in her one hundred and tenth year. The first census of Peralta, just completed, is said to have revealed a peasant woman who is one hundred and forty-six years old and has a son of one hundred and seventeen.

How It Happened

"My least boy, Bearcat, shot off his thumb whilst fooling with a revolver yesterday," in the crossroads store related Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge. "How did he come to do that?" asked old man Sockery. "I hain't right shore, but I reckon he was trying to learn to shoot off-hand and got as far as off-thumb and quit."—Kansas City Times.

Picked Up About Town

"If the New York fad of painting knees hits this community," says Dad Plymouth, "it'll be hard for some of us to recognize the old joints."

Talking about a "one-man-top," what's the matter with Italy's new dictator?

If you really want to know who is most important around the house when an emergency arises, listen for whom the kid calls when he gets sick in the middle of the night.

In the eyes of a young girl, the man without a country is sad enough, but the country without a man is sadder.

Dad Plymouth says that as a general rule tight nuts cause more driver accidents than anything else.

"What makes the farm relief fallure so serious with a congressman," declares Dad Plymouth, "is because he used to be able to smooth over such things with a lot of garden seed."
