PLYMOUTH LOSES TO WAYNE

Playing the best foot ball of the season, Plymouth High school went down to defeat at the hands of Wayne, last Friday, the final score being 13 to 0.

With a light snow falling throughout the game, both field and ball were so slippery that open play was impossible. Fumbles were frequent, and with a brisk cross wind, punting was poor from the start.

In the second quarter, Wayne started a series of plunges that took the ball inside Plymouth's 25-yard line, when B. Smith, on a split play, carried the ball around right end for Wayne's longest gain of the game, to be forced out of bounds on the 5-yard line.

Wayne apparently listened to the coach between the halves, for they settled at the beginning of the second half to press their advantage at line plunging, making most of their gains through guard positions.

The line-up for the game was as follows: Plymouth: E. Carney, B. Hubert, Hanchett, Partridge, C. Wood, E. Foster, E. Sayles, Hickey, Crumm, V. Ford, W. Doudt.

Wayne: LE. Gowdy, F. Johnson, LG. Rolfe Smith, C. Glover, RG. Emerson, RT. Kousak, RE. J. Vallance, LB. L. Munkie, RB. R. Smith, RH. Schrader, FB. Tyler.

WILL OPEN OFFICE IN REDFORD

Dr. and Mrs. G. E. Aiken left last Saturday for their new home at Redford, where Dr. Aiken has opened an office for the practice of his profession.

Dr. Aiken had charge of the practice of Dr. Carl F. January during the latter's absence last summer, and while here made many friends who will wish him unbounded success in his work in our neighboring town.

LOCAL KIWANIS ATTEND CHARTER PRESENTATION

Fifty-three Plymouth Kiwanians and their guests drove to Westwood Inn last Thursday evening to attend the formal presentation of the charter to the newly formed Kiwanis club of Wayne.

The event was of particular importance to Plymouth Kiwanians and their friends, as the new Wayne club was sponsored by the Plymouth club, who received many congratulations for their successful efforts at sponsoring during the first year of their existence.

Covers were laid for 250 people, guests being present from Ann Arbor, Ypsilanti, Wyandotte, Detroit and Pontiac.

The Rev. James Thomas, pastor of St. Mark's M. E. church in Detroit, acted as toastmaster and in this capacity was conceded by all who heard him to be second to none. He introduced the governor-elect of the Michigan district of Kiwanis, Mr. Lewis C. Reimann, of Ann Arbor, who presented the new club with its official charter from Kiwanis International.

Among the guests were thirty-five Wayne Rotarians and their friends. The Wayne Rotary club, which has cooperated with the new club in every possible way, presented them with a beautiful emblem, which was hunted to the president of the Wayne Kiwanis club by a squad of Boy Scouts.

One of Westwood's famous frog and chicken dinners was served, which made the evening a thoroughly enjoyable success.

At the close of the program the guests danced to the tunes of the Westwood orchestra.

EPISCOPALIANS WILL BUILD NEW CHURCH

The members of St. John's Episcopal Mission have purchased four lots at the southeast corner of Harvey street and Maple avenue, and have commenced work upon a new parish house 28x60 feet in size with a wing 14x24 feet. The new building will be of the cottage style of church architecture. Gray stained shingles will be used for siding. The building will be constructed substantially according to plans obtained from Bishop Page.

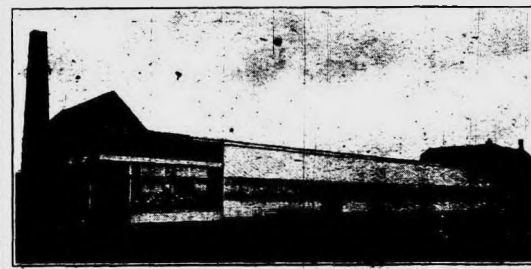

The building will not only be used for church purposes but also for parish social purposes, suppers, etc. The building will include furnace, two toilets and kitchen conveniences. One end will contain the altar, which can be screened off when the main room is to be used for other purposes.

COUNTY RALLY OF LAYMEN AT DEARBORN

A county rally of laymen of the Protestant churches of Wayne county, outside of the city of Detroit, will be held in the auditorium at Dearborn, Sunday, Nov. 28, at 2:30 p. m., for the purpose of effecting a county organization and launching an evangelistic campaign. The Adrian Brotherhood will come in full force, with their male choruses and speakers to start the movement which is spreading rapidly over Michigan.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bush, daughter, Carol, and son, Glendon, of Detroit, spent the week-end at the J. M. Larkins home.

Heide's Modern Greenhouse

We take pleasure in presenting herewith a halftone picture of a section of the greenhouse plant of Carl Heide in north village. The picture shows the new brick salesroom and the new greenhouse fronting on Mill street, which has just recently been completed.

Mr. Heide started working in a greenhouse owned by the late George A. Starkweather. About 22 years ago he purchased his present property and embarked in the business, which has grown from a unit of one small greenhouse to seventeen, with a total of 30,000 square feet of space under glass.

During the latter part of the summer Mr. Heide commenced the construction of the salesroom and greenhouse shown in the above picture. The salesroom has a floor space of 20x36 feet. It is constructed of face brick and presents a very fine exterior appearance.

Large plate glass windows afford ample opportunity to display flowers and plants. New fixtures have been installed, which include a large refrigerator for keeping flowers. A laboratory is provided off from the salesroom. The interior of the salesroom has been nicely decorated and it certainly presents a most pleasing and inviting appearance.

Mr. Heide informs the Mail that he will not have any formal opening of the new salesroom, but that he will be pleased to have his patrons and friends call at any time, and he will be more than glad to show them the improvements that have been made and extend a cordial welcome.

Through careful attention to business, courtesy and service, Mr. Heide has built up a large business, not only in Plymouth but in the surrounding towns, and he is to be congratulated upon the success that has been his.

ROTARY CLUB AT MEADOWBROOK COUNTRY CLUB

The Plymouth Rotary club enjoyed a very fine time last Friday evening at Meadowbrook Country club, near Northville. At 7 o'clock the club members and guests partook of a splendid supper, after which a program arranged by the stunt committee kept everybody interested. During the evening Alfredo and Selma, violin and accordion musicians of Detroit, rendered several selections. Eugene Wilhelm was also present and gave a pleasing monologue, as only Gene can give them. Wayne Van Dyne sang several numbers and Fred Schmidt also sang a number on the program. It was a very pleasant occasion for all present.

CRIPPLE CHILD DONATION WEEK UNDER WAY

ENTIRE STATE IS CONTRIBUTING TO HELP MICHIGAN'S INFORTUNATES.

THE LOCAL ROTARY, KIWANIS AND WOMAN'S CLUBS ARE ACTING IN THE WORK HERE.

This is Thanksgiving week, and while we are about to pause from the everyday affairs of life, it is well that we also remember the work that is being done in this state by the Michigan Society for Crippled Children. This organization, which was brought into being five years ago, now plans a state-wide organization for bringing help to the nearly 13,000 crippled children in the state. Certainly nothing could be finer in spirit.

The object of organizing county units is to find and insure the care, treatment and education, with adequate "follow-up" supervision of every crippled child in the county. Also to give support to state-wide work for crippled children. Later the legislature will be asked to aid in this work, but until it is ultimately taken over by the state the financial responsibility must be met by popular subscriptions. Half of the money raised in the counties remains there to be used in county work, the rest going to aid in the general work in the state.

Get in touch with some member of the local Rotary, Kiwanis or Woman's club, and tell them that here's your dollar to aid in the cause. All of us can spare the small amount asked, and be thankful during this week of thankfulness that we have been given this opportunity through men who had this vision to help crippled children and are now engaged in rescuing them without money or pay to themselves.

A Paying Investment. The economic value of the life of a self-supporting person to the state is estimated at ten thousand dollars. It is conservatively estimated that there are 12,000 crippled children in Michigan.

When a child, helpless or partially so, either from deformity or disease, can be cured, either completely or to a degree where it becomes self-supporting, it changes from a care and expense to the community to a contributor, a creator of the wealth of the state or community.

When, through our efforts as individuals or an organization of individuals, one hundred children are taken in hand and by treatments or operations cured in whole or in part, so they become self-supporting, we are not only giving a fellow being a chance to enjoy life, but we are adding a million dollars to the economic value of our state and community.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Perkins and son were Thanksgiving Day guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Bell of Pontiac.

MISS FRANCES COPE FOURTH IN LIST OF HONOR STUDENTS IN UNITED STATES

At a delightful banquet given by the Woman's Council for Education in International Relations, Miss Frances Cope, of Laurier avenue, and Major General John F. O'Ryan, of New York, peace advocate and commander of the 27th Division in the World war, were the honor guests.

Following the banquet, they were escorted to the auditorium of the College of the City of Detroit, where a large audience awaited them. Rev. Gains Glenn Atkins introduced Rabbi Leo Franklin, who gave the invocation. He then presented Miss Cope to the audience as the honor student of the state of Michigan, and among the first sixth of the United States. David Wilson, of Portland, Ore., being highest in the United States of the 4,508 high school students requested to take the final examinations. Only 640 students passed the test, Miss Cope being fourth in the list. She was presented with a large bouquet of chrysanthemums and a platinum friendship brooch from her class of 1926 and friends. Superintendent Cody of the Detroit schools then extended his congratulations on behalf of the Detroit schools.

Miss Cope is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Cope, former residents of Plymouth, and a former student of the Plymouth High school. Her many Plymouth friends extend congratulations.

WOMAN'S CLUB

A pleasant afternoon was enjoyed by the ladies of the Woman's Club last Friday, at the I. O. O. F. temple. After the business meeting, Mrs. E. R. Dagggett took charge of the program.

A paper entitled, "A Trip from Mt. Clemens to the Thumb," was read by Mrs. Wm. Pettigill as an opening number.

Mrs. J. G. Clark of Bad Axe, told us about the beauties and activities of the Thumb country. After hearing this interesting paper and talk about the north country, I am sure some of us will be taking that trip when summer comes again. Another place we will want to visit, is Selfridge Field. Mrs. Floyd Hillman read a paper about this well known aviation center.

At this time we were pleased to hear two vocal selections entitled, "I Wonder Why," written by Wayne Van Dyne, and Sylvain Speks, sung by Wayne VanDyne, accompanied by Miss Hanna Strasen. Mrs. E. R. Dagggett then read a short paper on "The Woman in the Home." "The Woman in Business, a subject that is talked of in this age, was presented to an attentive audience by Mrs. D. N. McKinnon. This program was educational as well as entertaining, and next week's program promises to be just as interesting; so we are expecting to see a large attendance at that time.

MOORE-WOLFE.

Earl Moore and Fern Wolfe, both of Plymouth, were married by Dr. F. A. Lendrum at 3:30 o'clock at the M. E. parsonage Saturday, Nov. 20. They were accompanied by Mrs. Faith Stevens, sister of the bride, and George Hake.

After the ceremony the wedding party returned to the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Wolfe, where a reception was held. About forty guests were present from Eloise, Wayne, Inkster and Plymouth. The young couple received a large number of beautiful presents. They will reside on Carmada street, Plymouth.

ANNOUNCE BIG CHRISTMAS OPENING

BLUNK BROS. WILL CELEBRATE ADDITION OF 4,000 FEET OF FLOOR SPACE, SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 27TH.

On another page of this paper, Blunk Bros. have taken a full page advertisement to announce a Christmas opening, which takes place Saturday, November 27th, from 9:00 a. m. to 10:00 p. m. This event marks the opening of 4,000 feet of additional floor space, which now gives the Blunk Bros. a total of 20,000 square feet of floor room.

Since the firm leased the large room, which has been known for years as Peniman hall, they have been desirous of getting an opening from their store to this room without going out of doors. This has now been made possible by the construction of an airway across the rear of the building from the main store to the room over the Dodge Drug store and Green & Julliffe's store.

This large room has been newly decorated, new lighting fixtures have been installed, and it presents a fine appearance. It is steam heated. This room is given over to the display of living room, bedroom, dining room furniture, mattresses and rugs. The room over the main store is now used for the display of novelty furniture, lamps, chairs, etc.

The room at the rear of the building is given over to the display of kitchen furniture, chairs, tables, kitchen cabinets, etc. Linoleum, Congoleum rugs and carpeting are also shown here. An elevator connects the unpacking department in the basement with the second floor.

Every department has been stocked with carefully selected goods, and the Blunk Bros. have reason to feel justly proud of their splendid stock of merchandise on every floor of their big store.

The event of Saturday is not characterized as a sale, but it is an opening to which every person in Plymouth and vicinity is cordially invited to attend, inspect the large stock and take advantage of the demonstrations of the day. In honor of the event, some special bargains are offered in every department, which cannot but help interest the pre-Christmas shopper. There will be music for the occasion, and souvenirs for all.

Since the opening of the store several years ago, this firm has enjoyed a large patronage and a steady growth, and the Blunk Bros. are to be congratulated on the success that has marked their efforts.

PLYMOUTH WINS FIRST DEBATE

Plymouth began its debating season successfully last Friday evening, by defeating Hazel Park High school of Royal Oak unanimously. The members of the Hazel Park team were Gordon Salton, Lenore Lovejoy and Rowena Salton, who upheld the negative side of the question. Resolved, that the United States government should own the coal mines.

The Plymouth team, which upheld the affirmative, consisted of Wilbur Murphy, Franklin Atkinson and Josephine Schmidt. Their delivery, refutation and general convincingness were superior to that of their opponents, according to the judges who gave the decision. Wilbur Murphy's convincing manner in delivery, Franklin Atkinson's skill in rebuttal, and Josephine Schmidt's strong work as third speaker helped win for Plymouth.

The chairman was Dr. Lendrum. The judges were Supt. of Schools, Ericson, of Ypsilanti; Supt. A. C. Leonard of Farmington, and Miss Edna Flitton, debate coach of Bedford High school. Our next debate will take place in three weeks. The team was much encouraged by the presence of 200 townspeople and students.

EASY TO ANSWER.

Why are some towns attractive, so that people make sacrifices to stay there, while others are unattractive, and people are glad of the chance to move away? Several influences are prominent. First, good schools; people will give many dollars for good educational advantages for their children. Second, town pride. People feel happier in a neat, orderly and well-kept town. It satisfies a craving for comfort. Third, the spirit of progress. People like a progressive town, with citizens ready and anxious to help in every public spirited movement that comes up for the betterment of the community. Stagnation repels them. Fourth, social friendliness. The town with the cold welcome freezes prospective residents. Nobody wants to live where people are distant or hard to get acquainted with. The town with the glad hand attracts. It is well to remember these things. In fact, we can't have the kind of town we will always delight in calling "home" unless we do remember them.

HUNTING DANGERS.

Despite the fact that newspapers have for years been publishing warnings to hunters, accidents are plentiful enough over the country to warrant the belief that with many these warnings go in one ear and out the other. It takes more than a warning to make some people understand that no matter how skilled they may be in handling firearms, accidents can happen to them the same as to anyone else.

We read recently of a young man who had hunted regularly each season for years without meeting with an accident. On returning home a short time ago he stepped from his auto and in lifting his gun out of the car it was accidentally discharged, the load striking him in the breast and killing him instantly. Other examples of peculiar accidents could be cited closer home.

The best hunters around Plymouth will tell you that it is impossible to use too much care in handling firearms. They will warn against pulling a shotgun through a fence, or pushing one's way through underbrush or high weeds while the trigger of the gun is unprotected. They know all there is to know about handling firearms, and the young man just starting in to hunt can do no better thing than to sit down and talk to one of these experienced hunters—and remember every word of caution he utters. Hunting is a great sport. It is a healthful one. There is no question about that. But it is not without its dangerous side, and accidents always happen in the very way that you least expect them to.

LESSONS FROM COTTON.

The sympathy of the entire country goes out to the cotton growers who find themselves with a crop too big to market. The government has come to their aid by taking up $15,000,000 worth of this year's crop and storing it, so that prices will not sink any lower. But there is going to be an unusual amount of suffering in Georgia despite this move.

As costly as it proves to be, however, there is a lesson in this over-production of cotton. That is the lesson of diversified crops. For many years Georgia has depended almost wholly on cotton. Now Texas has become a cotton state, and the two together are raising more than the world can conveniently use. If a part of the acreage was devoted to raising other commodities there is no doubt but everyone would be better off. If enough revenue is not received from the cotton crop, the other crops would make up for it. Thousands of farmers in the wheat and corn belts are finding this to be true. Many have gone in for potatoes, and onions and more livestock, along with their grain crops, and faring better than ever before.

More and more farmers around Plymouth are coming to realize that diversified farming pays better than specializing in one crop. Of course, some will always stick to the latter plan. But the man who wants to be sure of having something to show for his time will not depend altogether on any one product.

ALONG THE ROADS.

Connecticut has a law we believe every state should have. It provides a certain amount of money out of its state treasury every year for the planting of trees along main-traveled roads. Each year finds more travel on our highways. Why not make them more attractive by lining them with shade trees wherever it is possible? Residents of Plymouth protect the trees which grow in front of their homes. Wouldn't trees in front of every farm house and along the fence leading up to and on past the farm home give its residents a lot of satisfaction, too? We are cutting trees faster than they are planted. In view of that we feel that every state could well follow the Connecticut plan. But until they do so it wouldn't be a bad idea for every resident living along a main-traveled road to become his own landscape gardener and set out trees the entire length of his acreage.

PLAY AND LIVE LONG.

It wasn't so very long ago that play was considered something that should be put away with childish things, and about the time long trousers were donned. But according to a report sent out by a big insurance company, play is as necessary to the health of men and women as it is to boys and girls. We don't mean, of course, that everyone in Plymouth is expected to sign up with a baseball nine or a football eleven, or get out in the street and engage in an old-fashioned game of "shinny." But they should get more exercise and give the muscles a regular limbering up. Insurance figures show that fewer and fewer men are growing old before their time because they are going in for exercise and fresh air. They are playing more, and that means they are working better, eating and sleeping better, feeling better—and living longer. Insurance figures prove that, and insurance men certainly know how to calculate mortality.

CAPTURES HORNED OWLS

One of the most novel catches of the year goes to Fred Faustman, chief of police of Dearborn. Chief Faustman while hunting near Brighton, Mich., last Sunday caught two excellent specimens of horned owls.

The pair were hiding in a hollow tree when found. They are on display in the window of the Dearborn Hardware Co. This species of owl is vicious and their sharp claws and powerful wings could do considerable damage. Mr. Faustman is undecided as yet what he will do with his catch, but he may turn them over to the authorities at Belle Isle.—Dearborn Press.

SALES GAIN FOR DODGE BROTHERS.

During the week ended November 6, Dodge Brothers Dealers in the United States alone delivered 3,655 new motor cars and trucks at retail. Compared with the previous week this year, the gain is 43 per cent and compared with the week ended November 7 last year the gain is 37 per cent.

That factory production is being successfully marketed by the dealer organization and no excessive stocks have been accumulated is clearly shown by the fact that new cars on dealers hands and in transit are now only 30.7 per cent larger than at the same time last year despite the fact that retail deliveries to date this year by Dodge Brothers dealers in the United States are over 38 per cent ahead of last year.

NEWBURG

Rev. Walker preached a Thanksgiving sermon last Sabbath; also gave a talk on the M. E. Bronson hospital at Kalamazoo, asking for subscriptions toward helping in such a cause, stating that Newburg charge was one of six who subscribed the most last year in the district.

There were 78 in Sunday school, with $7.80 collection. The superintendent stated that the Sunday school had given $100 toward the debt on the church in the past year. It was voted to send two boys instead of one to the Older Boys' conference at Jackson this week. Howard Cochran and Ransing Cutler are the delegates.

Rev. Walker, Howard Cochran and Alice Gillett were the leaders in the mission study last Sunday evening. Quite a lively interest is being shown in the Epworth League contest. They are urging everyone to attend.

Mrs. Greer entertained her Sunday school class of boys at the hall last Saturday p. m.

The L. A. S. will hold their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Jess Thomas next week, Wednesday, Dec. 1. Dinner will be served at noon. The committee in charge are Messrs. James Thomas, Bennett, Hallam, Gilbert and Leonard.

Those who did not hand in their mite boxes last meeting are requested to do so at this time. There was $26.07 at the last meeting. They are in hopes of making it $30 this time. Everyone most cordially invited to attend. Bring needles and thread to sew for the Bronson hospital.

The remains of Mrs. Florence Jones, who died at the M. E. Chelsea Home last week Thursday, were buried in Newburg cemetery last Saturday.

Mrs. Charles Ryder entertained the official board and their wives and husbands last Thursday evening at her home on Plymouth road. Thirty were present. A social evening was spent with games, etc. Mrs. Walker, Mrs. Mackinder, William Smith and Newton Youngs won prizes in the guessing game. Ice cream and cake was served by the hostess. Such gatherings help to promote a feeling of good will and friendship.

Mrs. M. Eva Smith is spending the week in Toledo, visiting her sister, Mrs. Albert Smith.

Wm. Smith left Tuesday morning for a few days' visit with his sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Brown, of St. John's.

Rev. I. N. Walker and Wm. Smith took a truck load of vegetables and apples over to the Farmington Home for Children last Friday. They certainly appreciate anything one can donate to them.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Greer and family called on Rev. and Mrs. Paul R. Havens Sunday at Pontiac.

Fred Schmidt returned Sunday from his hunting trip, bringing home a fine deer.

Although it was a snowy evening, there was a large crowd at the Thanksgiving party held in the L. A. S. hall Monday evening. All kinds of indoor races by the little folks, as well as the older ones, numerous prizes being given to the winners, after which a splendid program was rendered, under the direction of Misses Anna and Ada Youngs. All joined in singing America. Invocation by Rev. I. N. Walker. Duet by Misses Anna and Ada Youngs; reading, "Caleb's Courtship," Mrs. Gladys Ryder. Two pantomimes were then given, "The First Thanksgiving" and "The Landing of the Pilgrims," the first being read by Mrs. Lydia McNabb; the second by Mrs. Gladys Ryder. The different characters were nicely taken by the young people. Howard Cochran and Elmer Carney made quite a hit in their soldiers' uniforms after the program. Pop corn and apples were passed. The Sunday school wish to thank Misses Anna and Ada Youngs, also Mr. and Mrs. Holmes for donating and popping the corn.

A CARD—I wish to express my most sincere thanks to the neighbors, relatives and the many kind friends, especially the Daisy Mfg. Co., who so kindly remembered me in my recent long illness.

Miss Cochrane, helping teacher for zone A, taught a demonstration lesson in handwriting. During the next month the children in rural schools will be working for quality and rite in handwriting. At noon the ladies of the community served the meal. Because of the favors, which were made by the children, and the efficient waitresses we did not realize that we were in a crowded school room eating off the tops of the desks of that little red school house, but were carried to a reception hall with all its splendor. Miss Crist, first grade teacher of Northville, sang two enjoyable solos. The Briggs school gave an enjoyable program, the first of which was a recitation by Arthur Bannerman. All the children took part in a play called "Painless History." This play made vivid the colonization of America. Leo Wilkins gave a recitation. Miss Oliphant told of the many letters she had received during children's book week. Miss Hoyd, also a Wayne county librarian, was present. Miss Cochrane gave the president of the Citizenship club, Leo Wilkins, a gold star to place on the card for playground equipment. The patrons of Briggs school have spent about one hundred and fifty dollars for new playground equipment. This proves that these people are looking ahead to the physical fitness of the future generation as well as the mental fitness. Mr. Frostie, who has published a work book in Michigan geography, was the speaker for the afternoon. Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. Clemens and Miss Clemens were visitors from Newburg. Mrs. Hix and Mrs. Gust were visitors from Hough district.

Christmas Cards

The Mail office will have a supply of Christmas Cards after December first. We will have some unusually fine numbers, and we invite patrons to come early after Dec. 1, and get the first choice. We cannot guarantee numbers after December 10th. Those who prefer to make selections from samples now on hand, may do so at any time now, up to December first. If wanting quantities, that is a good plan. None less than 25 sold.

BRIGGS SCHOOL ENTERTAINS ZONE A.

Saturday, November 20, Zone A met at Briggs school. In the morning the visitors were Miss Gwinn, social worker, who spoke on the problem of conditioning children; Mrs. Sharpe, school nurse, who explained that the work which she gave might be correlated with other subjects; Mr. Fisher, assistant commissioner, who made an announcement about the Wayne county citizenship meeting held at Dearborn High school Tuesday, November 22; and Miss Wellever, helping teacher, who answered various inquiries.

Mrs. Smith, from Walker school, taught a citizenship lesson on thrift, "Using Time to the Best Advantage." Miss Cochrane, helping teacher for zone A, taught a demonstration lesson in handwriting. During the next month the children in rural schools will be working for quality and rite in handwriting.

Latin Alphabet Gains
Reports from the Caucasus indicate that the movement to substitute Latin letters for Oriental characters in printing the native languages is making rapid progress. In Baku, the oil city, Enl Jol, a paper that changed to the Latin alphabet, has doubled its circulation. In Armenia and in Azerbaijan the Latin alphabet has been introduced into the public schools, and the spread of the use of Latin letters is especially fast in Georgia. Foreigners living in the Caucasus are eager for the general adoption of the new style, as it facilitates their efforts to learn the native tongues.

Frock in Letter Mail
Dresses can be mailed now in ordinary-sized white envelopes. This was done recently by a London (Eng.) girl who wished to send a frock to a friend. The frock was made of the finestest chiffon, and when she had folded it several times she found that she could pack it into an envelope used for everyday correspondence! She affixed a 1 1/2 stamp to it and sent it through the post. No extra charge was required from the addressee. The maximum weight which may be sent through the post for 1 1/2 is two ounces.

Roman Water Calliops
A circus "calliops" played with water, instead of steam, was one of Nero's playthings, according to Italian archeologists, following studies near the golden house of Nero. The "water" calliops was invented by the Egyptians and brought to Rome three centuries before Christ.

Water served to create the air pressure necessary to produce different tones in the calliops.

Several keyboards with a mechanism of strings were used to regulate the air-pressure valves in the metal tubes.

ANNIVERSARY OF BIRTH OBSERVED.

Mrs. S. Conger Hathaway and children, Miss Alice Elizabeth, Wilber and Stephen, and nephew, Merrill Warner, and Misses Hazel Voorhees and Maxine Suedler attended a birthday dinner Sunday at the home of Mrs. Hathaway's brother, William Warner, in Battle Creek.

The dinner was in honor of the birthday anniversaries of Mrs. Hathaway's mother, Mrs. A. P. Warner, who passed her eighty-seventh anniversary Sunday, and of Mr. Warner's anniversary, which occurred Saturday.

Covers were laid for 30. Mrs. Warner's four children and her grandchildren were all present. A lovely pyramid birthday cake was a feature of the dinner.

Mrs. Warner received many lovely gifts, among which were flowers from the Hathaway children.

Mrs. Hathaway and son, Stephen, spent the week-end in Battle Creek, returning home with the children Sunday.—Daily Ypsilanti-Press.

NEW CHICAGO ROAD OPENED TUESDAY.

Tuesday, November 23, marked the opening of M-23, the new short route to Chicago from Detroit via the old Pottawattomie trail. It was just 100 years ago that the government survey of this route, obtained by Father Gabriel Agass, was completed.

Richard, Michigan delegate to Congress, M-23 follows Fort street in Detroit to Oakwood boulevard to Allen road and then to Ecorse road, thence to Ypsilanti. At Ypsilanti, M-23 dips south through Saline and Clinton to the Irish Hills, one of the most picturesque districts in Michigan.

This beautiful district where nature shows at her best lies between Clinton and Somerset. Twenty-five miles of M-23 pierces the heart of the Irish Hills.

M-23 differs from M-17, the other route to Chicago, in that it takes an almost straight route toward the Windy City, bringing the traveler into South Bend, Ind., almost as quickly by auto as would be possible by airplane for that 180 miles. From South Bend, the motorist travels to Michigan City over a new concrete road and thence to Chicago on the Dunes highway.

The trail which a century ago connected Fort Dearborn at Chicago with Fort Wayne at Detroit, had its opening as a concrete highway celebrated in the Irish Hills Tuesday night, when highway officials and representatives of cities along M-23 gathered at Evans Lake hotel for a banquet.

MUNICIPAL NOTES
BY THE MANAGER

The number of sanitary sewer taps put in up to date is forty-eight. We have orders for several which we have not had time to do yet.

We are awaiting a visit from representatives of the department of commerce and the Stout air services to look over possible landing fields for airplanes near Plymouth.

We are still busy putting in sanitary sewer taps and water taps. We have been falling behind last year in the number of water services put in, but just lately there have been quite a number applied for.

The time seems to have arrived again when we must call the attention of auto drivers to the fact that we have traffic regulations in Plymouth. Left hand turns against a red light and speeding seem to have become epidemic lately, although no one can claim ignorance of our rules, which are like those of two hundred other cities in our state and have been advertised many times.

ESSEX SIX a FOUR door

now showing for the first time

Answering an insistent demand for a beautiful, well appointed four door, five passenger body on the smooth and nimble Essex chassis, the Sedan is now being shown for the first time.

It has individuality in line, color and fittings. It is unusually comfortable in the seating arrangement. Upholstering is comparable in texture and quality with that used in costliest cars.

No car, regardless of cost, rides any easier. None is more easily handled in traffic. Essex is nimble, quiet and gives unusual gasoline mileage. It has fine car qualities in chassis and body that assure long service.

The cost is but little more than for any four—even less than for some four cylinder closed cars. It is much less than you will pay for any six cylinder Sedan.

SAYS BUYERS ENTHUSE OVER NEW ESSEX SIX 4-DOOR SEDAN

An immediate and striking success has been scored by the new Essex Six four-door sedan—so much so indeed that sales activities has resembled that of the ordinary spring season—according to W. F. Sturgis, Hudson-Essex dealer. He declared that this new model had caught popular favor more quickly and strongly than any other car in his long experience.

"Ordinarily the introduction of a new body type is of no great importance," said Mr. Sturgis, "but in the case of Essex it meant a good deal. Up to the time of this car, Essex had built its whole sales record of 330,000 cars on its one body type, the coach. When it added the sedan, it doubled the variety of cars it offered the public, and gave motorists an opportunity to buy Essex value, economy and six cylinder performance in deluxe form.

The result naturally has been to appeal to great numbers of motorists. Another interesting result is that the coach itself is actually increasing the hold which it has had in public estimation. The sedan is finished in lacquer duo-tone, while the coach may be had either in attractive shades, lacquered, or in the lustrous and durable high-baked enamel finish.

Both the coach and the sedan are steel-built in Hudson's own body plant, and Hudson-Essex officials claim for them that they are not exceeded in strength or durability by any motor car bodies in the world, price regardless.

First with the coach and now with the sedan, Essex has punctured the old-time theory that motor cars had to be expensive to be good. The present Essex cars are the best, in body and chassis, which the company has ever been able to manufacture—and they contain definite details of quality not matched except at levels several hundred dollars up—yet this extra value is passed along to the public at the most favorable price ever known. It is basic value which will always bear the greatest appeal to the motor buyer. The present Essex activity proves that thought thoroughly."

"THE VAGABOND KING."

Those from this vicinity contemplating a visit to Detroit Thanksgiving week, or within, say, the next three weeks, will be afforded opportunity to see what is acclaimed by the critics the greatest musical play ever to visit the state's metropolis—"The Vagabond King." This big production was brought direct from New York, after a run at the Casino on Broadway of 500 times. The play is based upon the famous "Justin Huntley McCarthy" romance, "If I Were King," and has been set to a beautiful and inspiring score by Rudolf Friml, who composed the music for "Rose Marie," "Katinka," "Firefly" and other popular successes.

The organization now appearing in Detroit is a huge affair, numbering 125 people, with a chorus of 80 voices, corps de ballet and a symphony orchestra of 35. There are 20 rich-voiced singing actors and actresses in the foremost roles.

The play is gorgeously staged; is in four acts and seven scenes, and the action is built around the life of "Francis Villon," poet-thief-vagabond-hero of Paris, during the unholy reign of Louis XI, fifteenth century. All Detroit has flocked to see "The Vagabond King," which, it is announced, will be shown in no other city in the state. Special arrangements have been made by the new Cass theatre, located opposite the Detroit Free Press and postoffice buildings, to care for the influx of out-of-town patrons expected during Thanksgiving week.

LOCAL CHEVROLET DEALER IN NOVEL SALES CONTEST.

Turkey or beans—which? Win and you feast on turkey—lose and you diet on beans.

This is a novel inspiration in the nation-wide sales contest being conducted this month within the great sales organization of the Chevrolet Motor Company.

Winners will be those who deliver the largest percentage of their November quota. In thousands of cities throughout the country those who have won the right to dine on turkey will sit directly opposite their less fortunate bean-eating brethren.

The contest involves two assistant sales managers, C. E. Dawson and H. J. Klingler; six regional sales managers; 34 zone sales managers, 400 Chevrolet representatives, 8,000 direct and associate dealers and 14,000 salesmen.

Mr. Dawson is directing the Flint, Atlantic Coast and Southeastern regions against the Great Lakes, Middle West and Pacific Coast regions, led by Mr. Klingler.

In addition to the regional contest, every Chevrolet zone within the regions is matched against another zone and every dealer organization within the zone is matched against another dealer.

The turkey-bean banquets of the dealer organization will be held early in December, while the assistant sales managers, together with the regional and zone sales managers, will eat either turkey or beans at the regional and zone sales managers' convention in Detroit about February 1st.

E. J. Allison, local dealer for the Chevrolet car, and his staff of salesmen are making every effort to be on the winning side in this contest, and if you are contemplating buying a Chevrolet car, they would appreciate your order now.

Another Announcement

As it would appear in the dictionary:

STETSON (stet-son) quality, style, comfort, service, a world-wide commodity.

You may exclaim that the last definition is a rather broad assertion. But wait—you don't realize that the largest foreign markets of Stetson Hats are Argentine Republic, Mexico, Canada, South Africa and Europe. We are happy to announce that the Stetson Hat has found a sub-home in Plymouth. There has been many calls for this well known hat, therefore we decided it was high time to meet this demand. Beginning with next week's issue of the Mail (through the courtesy of the Stetson Mfgs.), we will publish in connection with our advertisement, the life story of John B. Stetson, by Elbert Hubbard, entitled "A Little Journey to the Home of John B. Stetson."

This is a very interesting life story. Every young man of today should read it. If young men could be inspired by a life work such as J. B. Stetson encountered, and be filled with a zeal for good, honest toil that spells success, instead of employing the short cut and the cut throat method so prevalent today, it would bring about a condition devoutly to be hoped for.

These Homes Are Part of Marquette Park Development

THE SHELLEN COMPANY CREATED THIS HIGH CLASS COMMUNITY ON PLYMOUTH ROAD. IT IS CALLED ROSEDALE GARDENS.

The new land mark on Plymouth Road at Rosedale Gardens is the water tower between Farmington Road and the Imperial Highway, visible for many miles at night when the brilliant electric light at the top is burning.

Eight streets have been paved for a half mile each, running due north and south, with sidewalk on each side. The width is set at 60 feet, with a 30 foot building line, assuring natural privacy and setting the homes back on a suitable lawn. Pembroke Avenue is 80 feet wide, being the half-mile road.

Some of the 100 homes sold are shown in this picture, which was taken on the anniversary of the digging of the first cellar in Rosedale Gardens. As a community record of growth of a new town, this picture has a lasting value and interest.

Another year will cover the sewer excavations with turf, and allow the blooming of gardens and the setting of trees, wiping away these spots of bare earth which show up so plainly from the air.

No retouching whatever has been allowed on this photograph in order to retain its value as a record. The complete picture continues swinging to the west, and shows the full square mile of Rosedale Gardens; the west section which will next spring be paved, supplied with gas and sewer, water and electricity, and put on the market.

Shelden Sons originated the new "Income Lots" land contract, which assures a 7% cash dividend on the equity for two years, and carries no interest for two years, every payment applying directly on principal.

Some interesting pictures and maps of the Rosedale Gardens development are distributed on request at the sales office just under the water tower from which this picture was taken.

MANY VISITORS TO MARK TWAIN'S CAVE

Magic of Humorist's Name Still Powerful.

The magic of the name Mark Twain has made a gold mine of one of the limestone caves that honeycomb the Mississippi bluffs. Because of that name the traveler without a car in Hannibal, Mo., dickers with the town taxi for the trip to the caves, two miles down the river bank and thence through the woods over a bumpy road. Parking space at the journey's end is full of tourists' cars and the registry is filled with signatures from every state.

Before Mark Twain's day tourists came to the cave; but since the cave has borne his name its visitors have greatly multiplied. Last year 7,000 persons registered there, a record that, according to present indications, will be broken this year, writes a correspondent of the New York Times.

Hannibal is becoming more and more "Mark Twain's home town." Strolling from the station, the visitor follows the broad Main street, pungent now and then with the mingled odors of kerosene, soap and leather from some country store. Hannibal is a sizable town with city shops, but it has many of the old landmarks of Mark Twain's time.

Not many moments pass ere the stranger is convinced that the humorist has found honor in his own country. The hotel is named "Mark Twain." In front on the sidewalk men sit in rocking chairs of a Sunday afternoon, with hats and feet at odd angles, watching the world go by. Signs advertising Mark Twain this and that are everywhere seen; and presently one glimpses Mark Twain's river.

A worn wooden signboard at the corner of a dilapidated alley points to "Mark Twain's spring." It is within a court of negro shanties, from one of which some one will surely call out offering a glass. Then on one goes, up a steep street and past a boxlike little house, set close to the sidewalk and bearing a United States flag. A marker announces that in this humble cottage Mark Twain dwelt as a boy. Around the corner at the end of Main street is the bronze group of Tom Sawyer and Huck Finn, and up the hill in a park overlooking the river is the statue of their creator.

Further on a poster says: "Don't Miss Mark Twain's Cave." The suggestion is enough. It is not easy to get there, but once arrived, the visitor is rewarded. He may savor in its depths on a hot summer day and perhaps see gnomes. No civilized cave is this, with steps and ladders and electric lights. Except for a reinforced entrance and a door, the place is much as Tom Sawyer's gang left it.

One picks up a kerosene lantern and follows the leader along a damp path between dark, damp walls. Squeezing through "Fat Man's Misery," one slips hastily under "Hanging rock" and gazes at "Aladdin's Palace," "the Cathedral" and the "Drawing room." The guide, who is called "Squirrel," points out the hole where Jesse James and his brother concealed themselves for two weeks and adds that an Indian was hanged on the "hellish boat." His ghost is said to reappear there every day—"Squirrel" names the hour at which the visitor is passing through.

Mr. Grabb's Mind

President Guth of Goucher college said in an address in Baltimore: "Most people think there is only one kind of success—financial success. That, as a matter of fact, is one of the lowest forms of success. As often as not it indicates a mind like Mr. Grabb's."

"Mr. Grabb sat in the orchestra of a motion picture theater one evening, and directly above him in the top gallery sat an errand boy. The errand boy had brought a package of sandwiches along in order to make the evening more enjoyable, but in opening the package accidentally let it fall into the orchestra at Mr. Grabb's feet. "Mr. Grabb picked it up, chose a sandwich and began to eat; but after a mouthful or two he frowned up at the errand boy in angry reproach. "Why didn't you put mustard on them, you young rascal!" he shouted."

Hydraulic Stop-Watch

A "hydraulic stop-watch" has been perfected by an Indiana inventor, for use in timing racing cars.

An ordinary three-quarter-inch garden hose is used, says Scientific American Magazine. It is laid across the track at the starting point, connected with a cylinder barrel and both filled with water. When the driver is qualifying on the track the front wheels of his machine pressing upon the hose force the water into the cylinder barrel, which operates a lever, in turn starts a stop watch, and as the driver crosses the hose again it stops the watch.

Hospital's Color Scheme

A color scheme has been worked out for the different rooms at the hospital of the University of Denver. The X-ray room has walls of a violet red, which has great light absorption power. In the operating room a soft gray is used. The wards for disturbed patients have yellowish green walls because this color has been found to have a tranquillizing and cheerful influence. Rooms with a northern exposure have yellow walls, and those with a southern outlook have sunshiny gray walls and furnishings.

PLYMOUTH ROAD AREA TO BOOM IS CLAIM

SCHANHITE POINTS TO LOCATION OF THREE NEW INDUSTRIES.

With three of Detroit's major industries planning to move to new factory sites along the Plymouth road, this highway is destined to become one of the principal traffic outlets of the west side. In the opinion of Carl W. Schanhite, owner and developer of Marquette Manor, newest of the Marquette Park properties to be placed on the real estate market.

"The Electric Refrigeration Corporation, Peninsular Stove company and the Burroughs Adding Machine company, all of which have bought large tracts of land along the Plymouth road, will draw thousands of families to the Marquette Park district within the next few years, creating a big demand for both residence and business sites in that territory," Schanhite asserted.

"The fact that these companies are planning to erect new factories on their Plymouth road holdings, I believe, indicates that this district soon will be one of the most thickly populated of Detroit's outlying sections.

"Plymouth road already is recognized as the quickest route to Ann Arbor and points west because of the heavy traffic along Michigan avenue. When these new factories begin production Plymouth road will bear much of the traffic load going west and naturally become one of Detroit's principal highways for both passenger and freight vehicles.—Detroit Free Press.

Greatest Desert Not Without Good Points

Most people are accustomed to regard the Sahara as a vast plain of sand. But this is not so, according to Capt. Angus Buchanan, who has made several explorations of the great African desert. There are great extents of unrelieved sand, but also several ranges of hills, with sparse vegetation; also plains of pebbles as terrible as the sand.

In his recent book setting forth his experiences in the Sahara, Captain Buchanan says amongst the strange things seen was a town with fortified walls of salt. The explorer has much to say of the various tribes of native inhabitants. His opinion is high of the Tuaregs, the people of the veil—a white race, or almost white. They are the real nomads of the open and overlords of the oases. Their faithful observance of their times of prayer is commented upon to the disadvantage of the Christian; but at the same time these men could indulge in blood-thirsty raiding, and the people of the oases are immoral and decadent, so that the Mohammedan religion hardly scores.

Many new species of birds and mammals were seen, and specimens obtained for the British museum. It is interesting to note that there are nine varieties of skylark in the great desert. One of the larks is a bad bird, because, when the boys chase it, it only flies off a short distance, and thus lures them into the desert, so intent on the chase that they do not observe where they are going and so get lost. Another is a "scholar" and a good bird because "it is content with the seeds by the wayside, and disturbs neither cultivation nor place of dwelling." The explorer's final word about the desert is that its poverty renews the grace of gratitude for the benefits of civilization. He thinks it would be "good medicine for the malcontents of society."

Well's Peculiar Qualities

A fresh-water well only a few yards from the seashore which, although its level is below that of the sea, is affected by the tides, yet is not contaminated by the salt water, is one of the sights at Longport, N. J., a few miles south of Atlantic City. The well, according to Paul Schureman, in the Geographical Review, has shown a rise and fall of about sixteen feet. When first drilled the water gushed as high as 14 feet above the ground, but increased drilling in the vicinity has caused the water to drop as much as 30 feet below the surface. The water is always sweet and has long been used for town consumption, but the flooding and ebbing tides cause the water to rise and drop in the well. After several years' study it was found that the weight of incoming tides on an underground stratum of clay caused the latter to bend and force fresh water from underground sources higher in the well, while ebb tides, lessening the weight, had the reverse result.

Ultra-Violet in Pills

Ultra-violet rays in pill form may be a popular medicine of the future, according to statements made recently at the British Medical association. The ultra-violet rays from the sun are helpful in curing rickets. If cholesterol, a white, tasteless, odorless type of alcohol that constitutes a part of living matter, is exposed to ultra-violet rays it becomes "activated," and when introduced into the blood it enables the intestines to absorb the salts, lime and phosphates required to build up bone. This radiated cholesterol may be put up in tablet form, and so may displace sunbaths and cod-liver oil.

ROLAND HAYES TO BE HEARD AT ANN ARBOR.

Roland Hayes, the world renowned Negro tenor, who will give the third program in the eighth annual extra concert series in Hill Auditorium, Ann Arbor, Saturday, December 4, was recently paid a very high compliment by "Vanity Fair."

We nominate for the Hall of Fame: Roland Hayes.

Because he has been acclaimed throughout Europe and America as a great concert tenor; because he brings to his recitals not merely a lyric voice of great flexibility and beauty, but also a scholarly understanding of music and a gracious and compelling interpretation; because he puts to shame the average vocal artist by a positive mastery of the five languages in which he sings; because his singing of the Negro Spirituals has in it a quality of revelation.

The story of the rise of this eminent Negro singer from the humblest station in life to an honored place among the world's foremost artists makes a remarkable story.

As a boy, he worked on the small Georgia farm-holding of his mother, an ex-slave. Despite poverty, he succeeded in educating himself, and attended Fisk University, at Nashville. He further managed to equip himself with a musical training. His tentative recitals met with so much encouragement that he resolved to try his fortune in Europe.

Reaching London in 1920, he had barely enough money to announce a recital. But that recital proved the turning point in his career. It was followed by fifteen others to packed audiences and a summons from King George V. to sing at Buckingham Palace.

There followed an invitation to appear with the Colonne Orchestra—an event which set all Paris talking about the remarkable newly-found tenor.

When Vienna and Berlin heard him, incredulity changed to admiration. At Paris had particularly praised his diction and command of style in French songs; these capitals judged him in the German lieder as a model for their own singers.

Each city was at a loss to describe Roland Hayes' silken, throat tones, which were not quite like anything they had ever heard before. And in the Negro spirituals he laid a strange and wonderful treasury before them.

In His Hour of Need

By MARTHA M. WILLIAMS

(Copyright.)

MARISE sang defiantly, head high, eyes snapping, fingers clinched viciously about the broom handle:

My people all get mad with me, For keeping my love company, They may get mad, say what they will, Upon my honor, I love him still.

"Humph! You make me sick! Rise, for pity's sake, show a little sense," Sister Ellen flung back sniffling, her jaws set at their grimace. "I'd hate to see you make such a fool of yourself even over a real man," she went on, "but this two-for-a-nickle squinch owl—why! it's worse'n a crime."

"Un-huh! And maybe so!" Marise retorted. "You talk that way because he turned you down—cold. I don't blame him—nobody could that saw you, lookin' like you do right now. As if you'd bit a crabapple or chewed on a rusty nail. I know it's hard to be left dancin' in the pig trough, just because Baby Sister is—so much easier to look at. A peach—that's what Abner calls her. Say—why'n you set your cap at Uncle Abner?"

"Beckon it must be because I never thought of it," Sister Ellen cried shakily—she was in a white rage.

Marise liked to taunt Ellen, who was ten years older, who had pampered her from the day she was born until the advent of Abner Gaines, Jr., had set things crosswise between them. A pretty fellow, even worse spoiled than Marise, he had somehow, when he came home from college, roused to flame-heat in Ellen all the repressed passion of her loveless youth. He was lightweight, perhaps, yet mighty decent, what there was of him; Ellen had all the money—it had come from her mother, the first Mrs. Gray—but that had made no difference in the spendings of the family. It was tacitly understood it must have whatever it wanted. Ab had asked her leave to court her little sister—since which time his name in her mouth had been anathema.

Godfather Abner's reaction to that had been a thunderous pronouncement that no nephew of his was ever going to marry into any stuck-up family that thought itself above him.

Matters stood thus at the approach of Governor's day. A hurried-up approach—ten days before anybody was ready. That meant a scrappy dinner—barbecue out of the question—and women, white and black, so taken up with what to wear, they had hardly a thought as to feeding the multitude. Which vexed Uncle Abner no end. He had from his youth upward been the unofficial host and head of all public affairs—in virtue of inclination, appetite and Milly and Phemy, his black house women, whom his mother had trained. Give them time, the keys, and a free hand at everything, they'd turn you out a feast. Now they were stalling down country, kinfolk in numbers like the sands of the sea. The three governors knew Ab and his viands—indeed, they had said that was why they were coming. How could he manage to feed a dozen epicures, all sharpset by a long morning ride? Almost weeping, he asked young Ab's advice. It was given sportively—with earnest under the jest—and heard spasmodically—betwixt shouting, swearing and at last eloquent silence—which emboldened Ab to chuck his elder roguishly under the chin, and say awedly yet with a twinkle: "It's a true leading of Providence."

Abner senior rose at the crack of day, whisked away to the country town, bought new garments, had himself barbered, manicured, even very faintly scented, ate the lightest breakfast of his existence, then did business with his best jeweler, the county officials, and the most persuasive minister current. Further, he bought a new car, dashing but roomy, made his will, held conclave with his bankers who, after a minute of puzzlement, slapped him jovially on the back and gave him Godspeed, after which on the edge of noon, he was whirled homeward, but halted at the Grays' hospitably open gates, shot through them, to demand insistently, instant speech with Miss Ellen.

"Now look at these!" he commanded when he had gained admission and produced a wrist watch and lavallere, diamond-set both, and flashing along with them a solitaire ring, not over big but perfect.

"Must be you're settin' up to peddle jewelry," from Ellen.

"That's as you say," came back. "Ef they don't suit ye—we can sell 'em."

"We!" she gasped.

He nodded, then laid in her hands two folded papers, saying: "My will—and the license—you git all I'm worth after I die—in consideration of comin' home with me to git things all set for them d—d governors."

"This a joke?" Ellen asked sternly, her eyes sparkling.

"Read the will—that'll show you," he said huskily. "I—I sorter got a notion I been wantin' you there at my house the longest time—but never had the sense to know it till right now."

"How about young Ab? I can't leave him out in the cold," Ellen parleyed. "But you won't—he'll marry Marise—think what fun we'll have spankin' their babies. There comes Ab now—he's fetching the minister. Now where do we go from here?"

"Home," said Ellen without a blush, chuckling in spite of herself.

PRESBYTERIAN NOTES

On Sunday evening last the young people journeyed to Ypsilanti and attended the meeting of the Young People's society of the Presbyterian church of that city.

The Presbyterian church is to be represented at the Older Boys' conference at Jackson this week-end, while Mr. H. A. Smith will go along with the boys as an adult leader.

All those desiring to furnish articles for the missionary barrel will please bring them to the church or the manse before December 1.

METHODIST NOTES

The laymen's service last Sunday evening, and their treatment of the “five-day week” movement, was greatly enjoyed. It was agreed that as a people we are in need of more genuine religion; that the workmen are worthy of more consideration, but that cutting the working days down to five would not make any vital contribution to the outstanding need of the day—more genuine religion.

The primary department of the Sunday school is to enjoy an indoor picnic next Saturday, their activities beginning at 2:30 o'clock.

CATHOLIC NOTES

Plans are under way for a “Christmas sale” to be held in the basement of the church, which will consist of booths of all kinds, containing fancy work, aprons, dolls, candy, fish pond, country store and refreshments. There will be many useful Christmas gifts, sold at reasonable prices.

We kindly ask those who can to donate articles for the affair. We hope to have all ready for the 12-13th of December.

ARABS SECURE OF PLACE IN HISTORY

Their Chronicles a Record of Achievement.

Every place we follow a Venetian or Genoese of French or English pathfinder, an Arab seems to have been there before with his horses or his ship. They were in China four centuries or so before Marco Polo—the first authentic account of the Chinese is that of Abu Zaid al Hasani, about 900 A. D. They rambled through central Asia with their caravans, and their ships penetrated to India before Spain and Portugal emerged from the Dark Ages. They were born fighters, of course, and lovers of horses.

Also they were chivalrous fighters. A Crusader's code of ethics was much less formidable than that of a clean-strain Arab, and there were no indulgences issued in Yamen. Two different codes, of course, and there were rogues as well as splendid men on both sides—Crusader and pagan.

But the Arabs and the Saracens were more intelligent than our Crusaders, more courteous and usually more daring. They had a sense of humor. Remember that the Baghdad of Haroun al-Raschid, the Alexandria of the Ptolemies, the observatories, academies and the gardens of all Near-Asia were their heritage. Read side by side the Moslem chronicles of Ibn Athir Raschid, or Ibn Battuta are much more human, expressive and likable than the monkish annals of the Crusaders—Mathew of Edessa, Matthew Paris, Archbishop William of Tyre. And, strangely enough, these Arab and Persian historians bring out values that have been unknown to us, at least in our histories of the Crusades. They are very fair—more so than our chroniclers—in giving an enemy credit for gallantry. Figures like Alexander the Great (Iskander) and Richard of England (Richard Malik) were talked about in Asia for centuries, and became heroes of the first magnitude.

Our existing stock of historians of the Crusades is unfortunate. The early stock was taken from the main church chronicles, and consisted of a lot of alliance and a great deal of fanfare, exaggerating the deeds of the Crusades. Then appeared the cynical history, making much hay of the fact that the Crusaders usually fought a losing fight, and were sometimes the very opposite of saints. Lastly, the ultra-modern history has cropped up, making much of the superstition and ignorance of the Crusaders, and tracing out with great pains the “advantages” of the Crusades, in establishing contact between the East and West, introducing Asia's inventions into Europe, etc.

In decrying the exaltation of the Crusaders, and in hunting out the mercantile gains from their efforts and deaths, we have somehow rather lost sight of the intimate personal story of the Crusaders—which a reading of the Arabic chronicles serves to bring back to us—Harold Lamb in Adventure Magazine.

Risk in Peppermint Growing

The greatest peppermint area in the world is in the region lying to the west and northwest of Fort Wayne, Ind., and reaching up for 40 miles into Michigan, according to the Fort Wayne News-Sentinel. The region contains hundreds of acres of heavy black bottom land, and travelers notice the aromatic odor arising from the fields. The yield this year is unusual and the quality of oil is excellent. One farmer, with a small mint acreage, is assured of 8,000 pounds of oil, which, at $8 a pound, will yield $64,000. But the production of peppermint is not easy. No crop requires such codding and no crop demands such an exacting perfect soil composition. When it pays, it pays well. When it doesn't pay—well, it doesn't pay. And there are many years when it doesn't pay.

SAFETY CONFERENCE.

The first annual meeting of the Michigan conference on street and highway safety closed in Detroit this week by the unanimous passage of a resolution approving, in principle, the uniform motor vehicle code of the national conference and recommending its enactment by the Michigan state legislature.

The conference, called by Howard D. Brown of the Detroit Automobile club, was attended by more than 200 official delegates from every city and community of the state. Real progress was made by the united action of all delegates who loaned their opinions and experiences to a common study of Michigan's traffic problems. Uniformity was acclaimed by all to be the ultimate solution for the present codification of Michigan's traffic code, which allows confusing uniformity in laws from county to county throughout the state.

Colonel A. B. Barber, director of the Hoover national conference in Washington, D. C., last March, attended the Michigan conference with recommendations from the department of commerce, which embodied the best recommendations from every state in the union which attended the national meeting.

The conference organized itself into a permanent body, with committees which have immediately begun to function. Officers elected for the permanent organization are: Howard D. Brown, general chairman; George W. Fortler, manager of the Grand Rapids Motor club, vice-chairman; L. J. Van Scholck, director of safety and traffic for the Detroit Automobile club, secretary; Romaine Clark, prosecuting attorney of Grafton county, treasurer.

Committees of the Michigan conference on street and highway safety, appointed at the closing session, are: William F. V. Neuman, chairman of committees on a uniform motor vehicle registration act; a committee on a uniform motor vehicle anti-theft act, chairman, W. D. Edenburn, manager of the Michigan Automotive Trade association; committee on uniform motor vehicle operators' and chauffeurs' license act, chairman, Nathaniel H. Goldstick, assistant corporation counsel of Detroit; committee on a uniform act regulating the operation of motor vehicles on highways, chairman, Colonel James Sinke, director of traffic of the city of Grand Rapids; committee on uniform traffic courts, J. Lee Barrett, chairman, executive vice-president of the Detroit Convention Tourist bureau; committee on resolutions, chairman, John L. Lovett, secretary of the Michigan Manufacturers' association.

The committees will immediately begin work with their sub-committees already appointed and delegated to hold meetings in the near future. Within a year it is hoped by delegates who expressed favorable comment at the close of the conference, Michigan should have a great many achievements to show on the statute books, as a result of this combined effort. Contrary to popular opinion that this conference seeks to add more new laws to the books of the state, their chief aim is to unify, simplify and cut down the present codification of traffic law, putting in its place the uniform traffic code recommended by the Hoover conference, and already being adopted throughout the nation.

The conference was a marked success to all and the work was only begun when delegates met and organized themselves in standing active committees. Each of the aforementioned committees are named to handle the outstanding needs at the present time. Their work will mean six great leaps towards street and highway safety. The work is only begun, but the momentum with which the conference took off on its great task promises Michigan to fulfill her obligation, in the near future, to other states who now look to this state for a solution of traffic hazards.

Today's Reflections

You have probably noticed that Europe's hatred for us hasn't cut down immigration very much.

Amos are getting so numerous around Plymouth that the wisest thing a man can do is buy a suit of armor, get his life insured and then stay at home.

Falling prices show that the cotton planters didn't look at the New York fashion papers before they plucked their crop.

They say the meek shall inherit the earth, but they won't until after all the other kind are dead.

When we look at the scanty garb of some Plymouth maidens, we wonder what they are going to do this winter besides shiver.

It is likely that most income tax payers don't care what process congress uses just so the levy is brought down.

The government's new paper money is said to be harder to imitate. But we hope it won't be any harder to get.

About all the average Plymouth man knows about music is that it's the thing he always has to face.

The traveling revivalist who converted Herrin, Ill., a couple of years ago, had better return and give her another vaccination.

The only part of agriculture that some fellows seem to be in sympathy with is corn on the cob at meal time.

As a usual rule, when a Plymouth man isn't prosperous, he blames the town, but when he is making money he gives himself credit for it.

The ex-Kaiser can do a lot of dressing up on the $5,000,000 he got from Germany, and still have no place to go.

Some say money is our best friend, but a true friend does not have to be held so tightly to keep him from getting away.

Here in Plymouth we know a man by the company he keeps and a woman by the people she talks about.

The farmer isn't worrying about what his 1926 dollar will buy near as much as he is about what it won't buy.

And just to think—we thought we were doing the European nations a favor when we were loaning them money back in World War days.

As a usual thing a Plymouth woman worries as much about wrinkles coming into her face as her husband does about the vanishing of the hair on his dome.

THE THEATRE

"THE WALTZ DREAM"

Vienna before the war. Bewitching, mad Vienna, with its light-hearted gaiety, its capricious disregard of the conventions, its singing and its waltzes, forms the background of a charming, yet virile story. From royal palace, stately, regal and solemn, to the wine gardens of old Vienna, where love and wine and song mingle gayly, the romance of a Princess grows in "The Waltz Dream," a new UFA film coming to the Pennington Allen Theatre, Saturday, November 27th.

"The Waltz Dream" was the biggest hit of the New York theatrical season some years ago on the legitimate stage. Many companies sought vainly to secure the film rights. But Oscar Strauss, composer of the music, and Hans Mueller, who wrote the book, "Nix, the Prince Consort," felt that only a continental producer could do the theme justice. UFA accordingly achieved the privilege of transferring it to the screen.

A lavish picture has resulted. A picture filled with sentiment and box office appeal. Previews have shown the American response to this great romance. It packs a powerful punch as a climax to the love of a Princess for an Austrian officer, and the renunciation of her sweetheart by a girl of the people. It is bound to appeal to everybody, wherever played.

A cast of extraordinary talent and appeal interpret the screen version of "The Waltz Dream," which is being distributed in the United States by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Jacob Tiedtke, Mady Christians, Willy Fritsch and Xenia Desai have the principal roles.

"ALOMA OF THE SOUTH SEAS"

Gilda Gray's first starring vehicle for Paramount, "Aloma of the South Seas," which comes to the Pennington Allen theatre, on Sunday and Monday, November 28 and 29, enjoyed a run of almost a year's duration at the Lyric Theatre in New York. At present two road companies are presenting the exotic tale of love in the South Sea Islands on tour.

The title role, which is peculiarly suited to the talents of Gilda Gray, was played by four actresses during the New York engagement. Vivian Osborne, Zita Johann, Galina Kopernik and Mary Ann Dentler portrayed the impulsive, dark-skinned Aloma of the state version, a product of the joint efforts of John B. Hymer and LeRoy Clemens.

The high light of the play is a realistic storm scene in the second act, by which means the villain is disposed of to make way for the happiness of Bob Holden and Sylvia, leaving Aloma to the consolation of her native lover, Nultant.

The filming of exteriors for the picture in Porto Rico and the surrounding waters, afforded Director Maurice Tourneur excellent scope for the storm sequence. Provisionally the worst storm the West Indies have experienced in eight years occurred during the Paramount unit's stay at San Juan, and the cameramen captured most of the hurricane thrills for the picture.

In the supporting cast of "Aloma of the South Seas" are Percy Marmont, William Powell, Julianne Johnston, Warner Baxter and Mary Morey. The play was adapted to the screen by James Ashmore Creelman.

"THE AMATEUR GENTLEMAN"

Richard Barthelmess, always one of the dependable artists of the screen, has scored again in "The Amateur Gentleman," which comes to the Pennington Allen theatre, Wednesday and Thursday, December 1 and 2.

"The Amateur Gentleman," based on the story by Jeffrey Farnol, was produced by Inspiration Pictures under Sidney Olcott's direction, and is released by First National. Unless we are mistaken this feature will prove to be one of Dick Barthelmess' greatest successes.

Dick is dressed in the highly romantic costumes of the Regency period in the England of 1817. The story, teeming with adventure, romance and color. The characters move and act just as they did, or should have, in that picturesque period when George the Third gave up the sceptre and his brother became Prince Regent.

Early in the picture Dick engages in fistfights with his father, the ex-champion pugilist of England and from there on the story moves fast to an absorbing climax, which contains a steep chase, several thrilling battles and a remarkably dramatic situation wherein the hero proves himself a gentleman of the first water.

The direction is under the able hands of Sidney Olcott, who contributed "Monsieur Beaucaire," "Little Old New York," "The Humming Bird," "The Green Goddess" and other classics of the screen. The photography is by David W. Gobbett and has a quality close to an old English print.

The cast is one of the best we have yet seen in support of Richard Barthelmess, and includes Dorothy Dunbar, his new leading lady, who is ravishly beautiful and quite the reincarnation of Lady Cleone. Gardner James is a force to be reckoned with as Barrymaire, while Nigel Barrie, John Miljan, Herbert Grimwood, Billie Bennett, Sidney de Gray, John Peters, Gino Corrado, Brandon Hurst, J. Edwards Davis and Jacques D'Aray make up the balance of the cast.

"Smoother and quieter than any car I have ever driven"

—such is the verdict of owners of the Greater Oakland Six, with Rubber-Silenced Chassis.

A vital reason for its velvety performance is a new and exclusive engineering principle—the Oakland Six engine rides on rubber and drives through rubber.

Rubber engine supports absorb any vibration in the frame due to torque reaction of the engine, while a rubber-silenced drive erases all body rumbles and vibrations from the rear wheels, drive shaft and transmission.

Drive the Greater Oakland Six—and experience a smoothness and quietness of operation never before achieved.

Housekeeper for Harry

By SIDNEY COOK

(Copyright)

SISTER SUE was at her wit's end to know what to do for her brother, Harry. He promised to remain in stubborn bachelorhood and it upset all Sue's plans for the future.

Her brother, being an artist, was naturally possessed of temperament and moods but not in an exaggerated degree and Sue realized that in keeping house so satisfactorily for him she was robbing herself of a joyous future. She wondered desperately sometimes why Harry didn't long for a wife instead of merely a sister to keep house for him—some one to love, honor and obey—it were.

But whether he feared a false step, the wrong girl, and consequent disaster to his artist's brain or whether he was just frankly disinterested in girls, Sue was in a quandary.

Sue had of late seen an unmistakable love light in the eyes of Terrence O'Mally when they rested upon her and she knew that only the slightest encouragement on her part would bring him to her side. She dared not let Harry know that she was interested in a marriage for him or he would balk like the proverbial mule. No, it must be a tactful and fanciful maneuver of some kind—but what?

Sue slept over the problem that night and in the morning the dawn of a brilliant idea swept over her. At breakfast she unfolded part of it to Harry. A light preliminary move on her part had been a slight dusting of powder on her cheeks in addition to the dab on nose and chin.

Harry had had a few sips of her delightful coffee before Sue broached her subject. "Harry, dear," she said, "I wonder if it would upset you terribly if I got some one in the house to help me a bit with the housekeeping—I've felt a little fagged lately."

The swift distress that came into his eyes was not lost to Sue. "Why, of course—do as you like, old girl—you do look a bit pale. I've been a selfish dog but you're such a topping little pal and housekeeper that I've dreaded another personality disturbing our harmony. Perhaps you can find some one who knows how to efface herself," he laughed and Sue joined him.

"I shall have to haunt the employment offices for awhile," she sighed, "and look over every type of domestic from Irish to old black mammy ones." And apparently Sue hunted to advantage for a few days later there arrived, with small luggage and a much smaller wee Highland terrier, a most wholesome and cheerful-looking girl whom Sue led to the extra bedroom in the studio flat.

"Nippy," whispered the new maid, "simply had to come. I couldn't have agreed otherwise." In the seclusion of the bedroom the two girls had embraced fondly—old school chums that they were. Nippy, the dog, meantime, delightfully at home, strolled out and up the stairs to the sacred premises of Harry. He went into the open studio door without any invitation and yapped up at the absorbed artist. The greeting was mutual. Harry loved dogs and most of all these stubby, important little Scotsmen.

"And where on earth did you come from?" inquired Harry and putting aside his brushes proceeded to become immediate pals with the stranger.

Meantime, in the servant's dainty bedroom the girls were talking. "Poor Harry," Sue laughed. "I can see his finish right from the start—he'll be making secret sketches of that lovely head of yours before the week's out."

Molly blushed softly and hugged Sue. "Instead of flattering me, Miss," she laughed, "you had better be showing me my duties."

"I don't often interrupt Harry when he is in the studio but I must tell him my maid has arrived. I don't want him falling off his chair when you burst into the dining room with a tray."

Sue knocked at the studio door and went in. She smiled at her brother who still fondled the joyous Nippy. "Oh, Harry—she's a perfect gem and I think she will fit into our establishment like the missing link."

"I suppose this is her dog," said Harry, indicating Nippy. "Do maids generally insist on their menageries going along with them?"

"I told her we wouldn't mind—he's such a dear—you don't mind?" Sue went out with the memory of something wistful having turked in her brother's eyes.

At lunch Sue and Harry were seated at their daintily set table and Nippy was running back and forth from kitchen to dining room wondering what it was all about.

When Molly entered with her tray Harry cast a swift look up and then continued to look. A queer little smile played about his lips and he sent a keen glance at Sue and the smile broadened.

He nodded politely to Molly who was unable to meet the quizzical look in his eyes and blushed warmly.

"Sue," said brother Harry, "in that big photograph of you and a raft of other leggy children, taken some ten years ago, there's a lovely, wholesome little girl whom I always wanted to see when she grew up. She gave such a promise of perfect womanhood that somehow I have always cherished a hope—"

Light Foils Thieves

A 30-inch, 43,000,000-candlepower searchlamp has cut the theft rate of motor cars in half, according to officials of the Worcester (Mass.) police department, where the powerful light is used. Instructed to be on the lookout for the light from its position on a building, the police, on seeing it, go at once to the nearest patrol box for details of the theft. The light is then turned on the part of the city where the theft was committed.

Picked Up About Town

Dad Plymouth says another optimist is the fellow who goes in to have a tooth pulled and kicks because there are two or three ahead of him.

It pays to advertise the right way. But the results you get from sending out a circular under a cent and a half stamp seldom amounts to as much as the stamp.

"An average man," says Dad Plymouth, "is one who is anxious to lead a good moral life until someone comes along and tries to make him do it."

A lot of people in this world are against a thing merely because they hate some man who is for it.

Dad Plymouth says that sprinkling a few tacks around over the floor is the best way to cure the sleep-walking habit.

"Take my advice and don't argue with a paper hanger," warns Dad Plymouth. "He is too apt to paste you one."

Every woman, of course, would like to be man's equal. But she'd like to pick her man.

Dad Plymouth says that if everybody was honest in this world it wouldn't be necessary to plant water-melon patches in sight of the house.
