

PLYMOUTH IS FAST-GROWING TRADING PLACE

Community Offers The Careful Buyer Everything One May Desire

These are great days for the thrifty shopper in Plymouth's trading vicinity, with many of the stores offering special sales and all of the merchants all the time offering merchandise bargains that are hard to beat anywhere.

The progressiveness of Plymouth merchants is shown in a very large degree by the development of one of the busiest little shopping centers in this part of the country.

Plymouth, the paved highway center of a rich trading territory, has kept pace with the demands of the buyer, and as a result this little city of some 6,000 people has retail stores that can provide the buyer with every need of a family, whether they live in town or in the country.

Not only can the demands for everything needed about the home or farm be supplied here, but those who have investigated declared that better goods are offered here at prices much below the prevailing prices everywhere.

A recent check shows that there are numerous stores of every kind in Plymouth, many of them the largest of their kind in this part of the state.

A furniture store, carrying probably a larger stock of goods than many of the big city department stores, that carry the same class in cities ten times the size of Plymouth, men's clothing stores that carry the latest there is on the market, in fact there is nothing that Plymouth cannot and does not offer to the careful and saving shopper.

The following list will give Mail readers a general idea of the large number of retail establishments maintained here for the convenience of the buying public:

- Ten men's stores
  - Seven automobile accessory stores and places
  - Eleven grocery stores
  - Five women's furnishing stores
  - One agricultural implements
  - One antique dealer
  - Nine automobile dealers

  - Two electrical contractors
  - Seven express, moving and trucking
  - Two feed dealers
  - Three retail florists
  - Two furniture dealers
  - Sixteen gasoline and oil service stations
  - Two gift shops
  - Two general stores
  - Three hardware dealers
  - Three hotels
  - 1 ice dealer
  - Eight insurance agencies
  - Three jewelers
  - One laundry
  - Five men's furnishings
  - Two millineries
  - Two notions
  - Eight painters and decorators
  - Two photographers
  - One planing mill
  - Three plumbers
  - Seven radio dealers
  - Six real estate
  - Seven restaurants
  - Six shoe dealers
  - Four shoe repairers
  - Two tailors
  - One theatre
  - Eight tire dealers
  - Two upholsterers
- So, you see, if there is anything under the sun you need, you can get it right here in Plymouth.

Village Passes First Quarter of Fiscal Year

The first quarter of the village fiscal year, beginning on April 1st, is now just past. The Village Manager has submitted a report showing the receipts and expenditures during this period with general comments on many of the items.

Out of a total appropriation of $76,328.73, the sum of $23,796.65 had been expended to July 1st. This might appear as if the budget would be overdrawn before the end of the year, but the reason for more than 25% of the total being expended is that 75% of the general bond and interest payments fall due during the first quarter of the year. None of the funds, except the one mentioned, show more than 25% expended. The disbursements are very closely watched, and reports made on all budget items, so that no over-drafts can occur. In case of an emergency requiring the spending of more money than was appropriated for any specific purpose, the attention of the Commission will be directed to such emergency, and funds provided from the contingent appropriation will be made available if the emergency warrants the expenditure.

The control of the expenditures as authorized by the budget is one of the most important municipal functions, and is the only means of guiding the village on a course to insure balances in all funds at the end of the year.

ROTARIANS HEAR MOST INSPIRING ADDRESS

ROY PLUMB OF DETROIT TALKS ON "CHEMISTRY AND INTERNATIONAL FRIENDSHIP"

Roy Plumb, of the Truscon Laboratories, Detroit, gave one of the most interesting and informational addresses ever presented at the local club program.

Discussing "Chemistry and International Friendship," Mr. Plumb discussed simply and concretely the work of chemistry in peace in furnishing dyes, reducing metals, manufacturing hand fertilizers, etc.; in war by providing explosives like gun powder, nitroglycerine, T. N. T., etc. He explained how with slight variation in compounding nitrate fertilizers become gun powder, how useful articles like glycerine and nitrate in time of peace become nitroglycerine (dynamite) for destruction in war. He gave statistics to show that more explosives were fired during the barrage preceding the attack at Chateau Thier than during the entire Civil War.

In conclusion he impressed the fact that in the future that the country is best prepared for war who has the best developed peacetime chemical industries, because they will have potential explosives and poisons, gases, and that has more completely developed its air transportation, because in any future wars, control of the air will be absolutely necessary.

Need for disarmament is moral rather than physical because future good will most result from mutual friendship because nations progressive and peacefully successful are always potentially prepared for war.

Young Couple Have Beautiful Wedding In Detroit Church

A very beautiful and elaborate wedding ceremony took place when Miss Jennie Scarpulla and Anthony Signorilli were united in marriage at the Holy Family Church in Detroit, July 30th.

The bride was very attractive in a long white satin gown and face jewelry, and carried a large bouquet of orange blossoms and lilies of the valley. She carried a gorgeous bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

The matron of honor, Mrs. James Barresi of Detroit, was dressed in pink satin, the same model as the bride's, with a pink hat and slippers, and carried a large bouquet of pink roses.

Miss Eva Scarpulla, sister of the bride, was first bridesmaid, dressed in pink and white, and carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

The best man was James Barresi, and others who assisted were Steve Gustella and Vito Abate of Detroit.

Little Miss Jennie Mully of Detroit, and little Miss Helen Jane Springer of Plymouth were flower girls, and wore long satin dresses with accessories to match. Jennie was dressed in pink and Helen in white.

There was a miniature bridesmaid and best man. Miss Jennie Mully, in a long peach satin gown and peach hat and slippers, carried a bouquet of peach roses. The web best man, Gracie Mully, was dressed in a Tuxedo suit and a high silk hat. He carried the ring on a heart-shaped satin pillow, elaborately trimmed in lace, marble and ivory of the valley and pearls.

The guests assembled at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Charles Mully, from where they went in a procession of cars to the church.

The bridal party entered the church, with the bride on the arm of her father, and proceeded to the altar through beautiful arches of roses. The church was illuminated by candles. The Mass was performed at 9:00 a. m. by the pastor of the Holy Family church, assisted by two other priests. The organ played during the ceremony.

From the church, the wedding party of six hundred guests, went to the Romanian Hall, where a bounteous wedding breakfast, luncheon and dinner were served. Dancing and wedding festivities, presided, until a late hour, when Mr. and Mrs. Signorilli departed for the Statler Hotel. They will make their home in Plymouth.

This was one of the most elaborate weddings that the Plymouth and Detroit friends had ever witnessed.

Let Contracts For Road Paving

Among the contracts awarded by the state highway department for the construction of 23 miles of concrete pavement at a cost of $700,000 was one let to the Wayne County Road Commission for the construction of two sections of U. S. 112, between Dearborn and Inkster.

The first section awarded was for seven-tenths of a mile between Nowlin avenue and Telegraph road at a cost of $27,400 and the second section was a stretch of 1.5 miles between Telegraph road and Houck Court, Inkster, at a cost of $233,651.

The width of the smaller piece will be 30 feet while the larger one will be 40 feet.

Preparations are now being made at the offices of the Wayne County Road Commission for an early start on this work. Paying of this part of U. S. 112 will be greatly appreciated by the many workers who have been forced to drive their cars over this section of the highway twice a day.

SCHOOL CENSUS GOES TO A NEW HIGH RECORD

Over 1400 Children of School Age Now Living in Plymouth

Additional indications of the growth of Plymouth and additional proof of the general feeling that Plymouth's public schools are among the best in the state was revealed this week when officials of the school district checked over the results of the school census last conducted and found that there had been an increased enrollment of 71 school children during the past twelve months.

These figures mean that at least 300 more people have moved into the Plymouth school district during the past year than lived here before.

The school census for 1930 showed 1329 children of school age in Plymouth.

The census for 1931 shows that there are now living in the district 1400 school children, an increase of 71 over a year ago.

An increase of such a size as this at a time when business conditions are not of the best would indicate the high esteem in which Plymouth's public schools are held by those seeking a home location with excellent school advantages for their children.

It also provides the best proof that can be found of the consistent growth of the community.

No Place Like Good Old Michigan, Writes An Arizona Resident

Mrs. C. S. Mundy, for many years a resident of Plymouth, who is now residing in Phoenix, Arizona, in writing the Plymouth Mail to renew her subscription for another year, declares that she enjoys the paper more than ever.

"While we have been away from Plymouth for eleven years, we are interested in our old friends and like to read about them. We like Plymouth more, but to me there is no place like good old Michigan and Plymouth," states Mrs. Mundy.

Blunk Brothers Announce Sale

A big two page ad in this issue of the Plymouth Mail announces to the public the Ninth Annual Mid-summer sale of Blunk Bros., one of Plymouth's leading mercantile establishments. A careful reading of the ad shows that there are not only hundreds, but thousands and thousands of bargains offered by the store.

A substantial reduction has been made on every item carried in the store. In fact prices have been reduced lower than ever before on the high grade merchandise carried at Blunk Brothers. The best way to find out about the bargains offered is to read the advertisement in this issue. The sale runs for eight days, but it would be well to come in early so that you can take full advantage of everything that is offered. However there are so many bargains that a visit to the store at anytime during the sale will be of a benefit to the careful buyer.

PLYMOUTH HANKS HIGH IN TAX COLLECTION

A check-up of the tax collection records for Wayne County recently made, shows Plymouth near the top of the list of all cities and villages. The total general taxes collected in 1930 was 86.6% of the amount spread. One or higher municipalities showed a higher percentage.

During the first fifteen days of July, 1931, a total of $19,000.00 was paid in taxes, which amount is 23% of the total amount levied. On the same date last year approximately the same amount of money had been received, but the total to be collected in 1931 is between 20% and 25% less than last year, therefore people paid their taxes during the first half of July this year than paid in the same period of 1930.

A semi-monthly report is being made by all cities on their tax collection progress to the Municipal Advisory Council in Detroit, and the standings of these various cities will be made public at a later date. The Municipal Advisory Council is an organization maintained by Detroit financial houses for the purpose of studying and rating the municipalities of Michigan for financial purposes. Naturally, the cities with the highest percentage of collections will be classed as the better ones, and future financing will be more easily obtainable and at less cost.

The final date for the payment of the village taxes without penalty is August 10th. After that date a penalty of 2% is added to and collected with each tax. It is anticipated that during the next two weeks a large percentage of the unpaid taxes will be paid and that the records held by Plymouth in 1930 will be maintained or even exceeded in 1931. The addition of penalties, interest and collection fees to delinquent taxes make a considerable increase in the amount to be paid, and in three years, or at the time of the sale of the property for taxes, these additions amount to between 30% and 40% of the tax as now levied.

As soon as a report on the standing of the cities and villages in the metropolitan area is received, the same will be published in the Mail. In the

DR. THOS. P. BRENNAN ADDRESSES KIWANIS

GIVES INTERESTING TALK ON STUDY OF CHILD BEHAVIOR.

Members of the local Kiwanis club were fortunate in having as their guest speaker for the day Dr. T. P. Brennan of the Wayne County Training School. The speaker was the guest of Robert Mimmack, who was chairman of the meeting.

In an interesting talk, Dr. Brennan outlined the history of the study of behavior, and told of the vast organization throughout the country that had grown since the study had started.

"Mentally ill children have only in recent years come under the study of science and now through the aid of a national organization and various sciences are their problems solved and often in a happy manner. The development of clinics and general interest in this work was given an added impetus by the war, and since that time much has been done in the way of advancement. Several viewpoints and sciences are necessary to analyze the nature of an illness," stated the speaker.

"An analysis of a mentally ill child usually develops several problems and only by treating each of them separately can a happy future be found. Often times barriers and difficulties arise between children and their families, and today many of our child problems are caused by the attitude of their parents," he stated.

W.C.T.U. Meets With Mrs. Ryder At Newburg

The Plymouth W. C. T. U. was most delightfully entertained on the afternoon of July 23rd, at the beautiful home of Mrs. Charles Ryder of Newburg. A large number of Plymouth ladies were present to enjoy the fine program furnished by the Newburg members. The readings by Mrs. Eva Smith and Mrs. Gladys Ryder were much appreciated.

Of especial interest was the paper, "What is Christian Patriotism?" by Mrs. Lydia McNeil. The beautiful duets, "The Waters of Minnetonka" and "My Blue Heaven," sung by the Misses Anna and Ada Youngs, were greatly enjoyed.

The president, Mrs. Vealey, read an excellent selection entitled "Wolves in Sheep's Clothing," and also conducted an interesting roll call giving "The Verdict of the Ages" on the use of alcohol, and showing that from time immemorial, strong drink has been a curse to humanity.

After the program the ladies wandered about the spacious grounds looking at the flowers and enjoying a social time, while a dainty tea was prepared by the committee. It was a source of regret to all when the time of departure arrived, for the meetings with the Newburg members are always most enjoyable.

The time and place of the next meeting will be announced later.

Discuss Piping Detroit Water To Local Mains

The determination of principal routes for present and prospective traffic permits a consistent scheme for city development to be laid out in a comprehensive, industry, business and residence. The streets and thoroughfares to be used most can then be improved, easily within a few years by applying each year's appropriation for paving in the right places. Without planning, heavy traffic is often diverted to less direct routes, because of isolated sections of good or bad pavement, and such a diversion may break down the light pavements on streets that would normally be but little used.

PLEASE NOTICE

Through error in the mechanical department of the Plymouth Mail, the ladies' silk hose special in the Walk-Over Boot Shop advertisement, was not changed to apply to Saturday, August first. Saturday's special which will replace the Wednesday one printed in the upper right hand corner of the Willoughby advertisement in this issue will be a free shoe shining cloth to every purchaser of a pair of shoes on Saturday, and the ladies' silk hose which was given as an opening special on Wednesday, at 25 cents, will be on sale Saturday at 25 cents.

The Red Arrow sale will run for two full weeks as is the custom of every Willoughby sale.

STREET PLANS IMPORTANT IN GROWING CITY

Zoning Committee Points Out Importance of Careful Study

This is article number 4 in the series on the subject of City Planning and Zoning, taken from city planning and zoning primers prepared by the United States Department of Commerce under the direction of the city planning committees appointed by President Hoover at the time he was Secretary of Commerce. It has been prepared especially for Plymouth Mail readers by the Plymouth committee that is making a study of this question.

Transportation enters into practically every phase of city planning, and a thorough study of the present and prospective daily movements of motor vehicles, and goods must be undertaken before the other phases may be worked out in detail. The principal object of the street system, for example, is to provide for free movement of people and goods; parks and recreation facilities should be easily reached by those who use them.

The zoning plan and the street plan are interdependent. The zoning plan varies materially with the use of land fronting on them. Certain parts of the city should be easily accessible to other parts, and to transportation terminals. The location of street railways, bus lines, railroads, waterways, and their terminals is itself one of the most important planning problems.

The local government of a community controls the streets, which are its arteries. If they are adequate for present and prospective use they permit a free flow of the traffic which is the community's life blood. If they are capriciously or inadequately laid out, they may, and frequently do, bring about serious and costly congestion.

A comprehensive plan furnishes a program for street changes and development, with the most urgent steps first on the list. It shows what land must be preserved for principal streets and what the location of new streets will affect traffic elsewhere. It enables transportation companies and business men to place terminals and new buildings at strategic points, where the traffic can be efficiently handled. It aids in making parks and playgrounds accessible to those who want to use them.

General Requirements for the Street System

"A system of wide, well-arranged thoroughfares is basic to good city planning. They should lead from the central part of the city to outlying territory, and there should be belt streets affording direct travel between one section and another without passage through the central business district. Short-cut streets should be allowed to intersect with the choice of the best routes for the main arteries of travel. Without a city plan and the machinery to enforce it, a whole section of a city may be crippled, and inconveniences may be heaped on thousands of people for years to come, by a new residential development in which the blocks run the wrong way or the main streets are too narrow, or by the arbitrary location of a factory or a cemetery.

"If some cities were permitted by the Federal Government to develop their harbors on the same principles that they use in developing their land, extension of piers and other obstructions would soon make their channels impassable. An automobile map of a modern city and its environs will disclose the extent to which they are handicapped by disturbing experiences the expensive delays now put upon both the passenger and the town resident himself by a lack of wise foresight in planning in the past.

"The determination of principal routes for present and prospective traffic permits a consistent scheme for city development to be laid out in a comprehensive, industry, business and residence. The streets and thoroughfares to be used most can then be improved, easily within a few years by applying each year's appropriation for paving in the right places. Without planning, heavy traffic is often diverted to less direct routes, because of isolated sections of good or bad pavement, and such a diversion may break down the light pavements on streets that would normally be but little used."

SPIRITUALLY BEAUTIFUL

Have you ever known an old lady who was spiritually beautiful? Could you remember what her features were like? Or did you think of her as sort of a beautiful flower of God's handiwork, sending forth love and kindness and compassion for all; and every one loving her in turn?

This same old lady probably had no money to speak of, though she had thousands of friends and was continually happy.

You probably knew another old lady who had all kinds of money and everything that money could buy to make a person happy, yet she was not happy in the least. No one was glad to see her, because no one became happy because of her. You may not exactly remember her features, but you will never forget her sharp tongue and how happy you were to get away from her.

When Jesus gave his sermon on the Mount he answered the question of how to be happy.

Many of them would not believe, when he explained to that multitude of people who had come great distances to learn the secret of true happiness, that they were all wrong in the common assumption that the acquisition of material things alone brings happiness.

The thought He gave to them was, according to Matthew, who tells the story, that you are made happy by what you are, not by what you get. The key to a blessed life lies in your heart. It is being merciful and pure in heart. You must not be angry, you must not be revengeful. You must love everyone, even your enemies.

The golden rule was a strange plan of life to most of that multitude who were there from both sides of the Sea of Galilee, from Jerusalem far off to the south, and from Tyre and Sidon to the north. It is strange to many people today, as far as actually living is concerned, but it is a good plan for happiness, nevertheless.

The next time you feel discouraged, or blue, or unhappy, why not go out and do something to make some one else a little bit happier, for that is what you would have them do to you, is it not? Then you will be surprised how much it will help you to happiness.

"You don't have to wait until you are old to grow spiritually beautiful."—Herald, Slayton, Minnesota.

BETTER BUSINESS ON WAY.

For centuries the world has had its periods of prosperity and depression. For centuries the world has recovered from depressions with incoming tides of prosperity, the time elements of which have varied as the lights and shadows of every growing dawn. Valuable as it is, the art of forecasting these lights and shadows by curves, charts and statistical data indicating world experience of the past, does not yet reflect the human element, which from time immemorial has been a factor of paramount importance.

One of the outstanding psychological facts of all periods of prosperity and depression has been undue enthusiasm as to the future when prosperity already was setting as the summer sun; likewise, undue depths of despondency when clouds of depression were lifting from the land, as is discernible now by those who can see rifts of brightness filtering here and there reflecting improvement in some industries.

Today men of wisdom recognize the psychological factor of extreme pessimism at the present time as a symptom of the approaching dawn of prosperity; nor is the vision of these men obscured by uncertainties of politics, because the fortunes of one party as compared with another are based on fundamental economic trends rather than on the strife of parties. This is the time, therefore, for conservative long range optimism rather than emotional pessimism arising from short view despair.

ADVERTISING AND PRICES

Vast sums spent by large manufacturers and merchants for advertising are responsible for a popular superstition to the effect that advertised goods are higher in price than they would be if they were not advertised. The word "superstition" is used advisedly, because it has been demonstrated many times that advertising lowers, instead of raises, prices.

Advertising campaigns are costly and the consumer must pay for them, but they are paid for by new business the advertising attracts. There's nothing paradoxical in a situation where a manufacturer or merchant adds an extensive advertising appropriation to his budget and then turns around and cuts prices.

Million-dollar advertising programs make it possible for the manufacturer to lower prices by so increasing his production that he can effect real economies through mass production and can spread his profit over a greater number of sales.

Advertising enlarges demand and thereby makes it possible for the retailer to buy stocks in larger quantities at lower cost. Moreover, goods well advertised are more than half sold before the customer enters the store, which lowers sales resistance and sales costs.

The price tags on advertised commodities are, in themselves, proof that business can save money for its customers by spending millions for advertising.—Leader, Eau Claire, Wisconsin.

ROAD SIGNS

Considerable comment has been created by the article published in last week's Mail relative to the importance of this place as a highway center. A study of the road maps shows that Plymouth has as many if not more important paved state and county highways centering in the city than many cities ten times its size.

But try and find a sign anywhere within fifteen miles pointing the way to Plymouth and giving distances to this important trading center!

One of the best pieces of advertising that Plymouth can do, would be to place a sign with an arrow pointing towards Plymouth at every mile, giving the distance to the city. These signs should also be placed at the turning points in Ann Arbor, Novi, on the roads out of Detroit, over along Michigan avenue, and even Grand River.

The cost of these signs would be trifling in comparison to the benefits derived.

TAKE TIME TO LOOK

Some day when you are driving out around Plymouth stop your car just for a minute and look carefully at the water pressure tanks of the Daisy Manufacturing company and the village of Plymouth. Both of these tanks stand high above the trees of the village, and are plainly seen from almost any direction you may travel. Recently the water storage tank of the Daisy company was given a coat of aluminum paint. Notice how much more attractive it is than the regulation black that water tanks have always been painted in? Wonder if the next time the village water tank needed a coat of paint, if it wouldn't be a good idea to follow the example of the Daisy company? It would be something different at any rate.

MR. FORD RAISES VEGETABLES

It is an interesting sight to see between fifty and a hundred men every day at work weeding, hoeing, and cultivating vegetables on the spacious lands of Henry Ford in Dearborn these days.

In an industrial area when general industry is considerably slackened, Mr. Ford has put practically all his available ground under cultivation. This has resulted in gainful employment and healthy work for many Dearborn men who would otherwise have been idle and out of work.

We do not know what Mr. Ford intends to do with all the vegetables that will be available for the market as a result of this enterprise. It matters little. There is always a good demand for such eatables. But it goes without denial that this enterprise has meant wages for a considerable number of deserving men. This step has given employment to many Dearbornites who badly needed it.

Most of this land has been lying idle in the past. Today that same land lends a pleasant contrast. The passing tourist or worker sees fields of growing things... clean, and well cultivated. Mr. Ford's foresight in this enterprise is a credit to himself, a benefit to the community, and adds to the general well appearance of Dearborn.—William Klamer in The Dearborn Press.

DEPEW'S FIRST FEE

Chauncey M. Depew's reputation as a story-teller was world wide, and it was a marvel to his friends that a business man could find time to acquire such a fund of rare humor. Some of his best jokes were told on himself. The story of his first fee as a lawyer is one of them.

Shortly after he had graduated from Yale in 1858, he began the practice of law in his home town, Peekskill, N. Y. His first client was a prosperous farmer who wanted an opinion on a rather complicated matter. Depew gave the case diligent study and gave the farmer his advice. Asked what his fee was, Depew said it would be five dollars, to which the farmer replied: "A dollar and seventy-five cents is enough for a young lawyer like you." The fee was accepted, but the farmer not quite satisfied, paid an eminent New York lawyer for an opinion on the matter, receiving the same advice Depew had given him for $175.

In after life Mr. Depew said: "In subsequent years I have received several very large retainers, but none of them gave me so much satisfaction as that dollar and seventy-five cents, which I had actually earned after being so long dependent on my father."—Fred Keister in the Ionia County News.

STATE-OWNED CARS

Five state-owned cars parked at one of Lansing's numerous golf courses on a recent Sunday made an item of news for the reporter furnishing a weekly letter for the Michigan News Service. He puts it in cold type that the conservation department has over a hundred cars and trucks, while the state highway department sports many times that number. He then points out that a lot of these cars are used for family jaunts. If he will go a little further we're inclined to believe that he would find that the state also is furnishing the gas. His suggestion of economy, however, may stir up an investigation.—Harry Izor in the Durand State Express.

"MA" - "MA"

"Ma" Kennedy Hudson, mother of California's superlative evangelist, Aimee Semple McPherson, got herself a man the other day—a Rev. G. Edw. Hudson. They were hardly tangled up in the matrimonial knot when three women publicly declared that "Ma's" new soul-mate was either married, or engaged, to them. Whereupon "Ma" promptly uttered these divine, womanly, wifely words:

"What, only three women after him? Why, there should be 3,000. I don't care how many women there are after him. I wouldn't have anything to do with him if there weren't."

"Ma" is brave—even if she sounds brutal. We suppose that now "Ma" will turn Girl Scout and write a book entitled, "Knots I have tied, and some I have not." Last reports, however, reveal that "Ma" will lose her new "Daddy."—George Averill in The Birmingham Eclectic.

HOW ABOUT IT?

Our township (Nankin) welfare department is doling out groceries each month at an approximate expense of $2,000 to the taxpayers. No doubt some of these charges who are receiving aid are worthy and should have help. On the other hand how many of them are willing to work for what they receive?

The writer recently had an occasion to view a family which was presumably in desperate straits. Upon investigation it was discovered that the family consisted of a mother and three able-bodied sons who had had an opportunity to work on a farm for $1.50 a day apiece with their noon-day meal included, but had refused on the grounds that the pay was not sufficient. IS THIS AN EXAMPLE OF THE TYPE OF FAMILIES THE TOWNSHIP IS SUPPORTING?—Mrs. Lois Hisey in The Wayne Dispatch.

A NEWSPAPER LEAK

This is the open season on wise cracklin' by sun newspaper guys and the mighty George Averill down Birmingham way wuz on the train which first opened up the traffic via the rapid transit between Pontiac and Detroit and the train ran over a water hose and water busted out and Geo. piped up "another leak uncovered" which translated means that sun newspaper fellows is wise guys which iz rife because we always did hev a good opinion of George even if he manfully carries about a great fine red mustache and writes pieces about Mr. Brucker, which sun times is complimentary but most times otherwise but that's his biz as he sees things.—Senator Chester Howell in Chesaning Argus.

$10,000 CHARITY JOB

Thomas E. Dolan has helped to make a mess out of the welfare department, which has cost Detroit taxpayers far too great a sum for the need at hand or the results obtained. Apparently no one wants to fire him and he won't quit a $10,000 a year job. Hence the courteous thing has been done; an efficient man has been named to be the wheel-horse, John E. Ballenger, who has courage enough and sense enough to put the welfare department on a saner basis.

Dolan has powerful friends in the social fabric of the city; and that's why he has been allowed to grow old and stale in the city service. But that has cost the taxpayers a heap of dough.— Floyd W. McGriff in The Redford Record.

TAX LIMITS

The taxpayer, educated to new burdens since the World War, has shown marvelous stamina as well as patience. But there are limits to even his fortitude.

The fact is obvious that lavish appropriations can only add further to our tax burdens. An iron curb must be imposed on Congress and state legislatures against profligacy with public funds.—William Cansfield in the Livingston County Republican-Press.

WORMS NOT TAXED YET!

Here's a tip, free of charge, to the promoters of license and special tax schemes: Angle worms are still exempt. Some ambitious people, too, are helping earn their way by digging worms and selling them.—Harry Izor in Durand Express.

"The honeymoon is over," says Reno Ritz, "when hubby begins to forget the thin ankles and notices the thick head."

Dotted Net Is Charming and Chic

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WHAT with the program of party frocks for the last several summers being mostly a matter of one printed chiffon frock after another, the idea of printed or embroidered cotton net suggests a most intriguing diversion.

The beauty about these very charming new quality-kind cotton nets which are now so smartly in fashion for evening wear is that they can be safely and successfully washed—no danger of colors "running" as heretofore. Then, too, these nets drape ever so charmingly, at the same time having enough body in them to stay crisp and fresh looking on the warmest evening.

Very newest printed nets carry the message that dots have appeared on fashion's horizon for midsummer evenings. For the slender woman the dress pictured is ideal. It is a very "young" frock for slim and evocative youth, and later providing you're the type.

A particularly summery and actually washable durable cotton net fashions this lovely gown. Of course, you will be interested in the deep caplet collar which reminds us that should-ers are generally covered this summer if only with a wisp of a scarf, or a tiny drape which looks as if it might have started to be a sleeve and decided to "just pretend." We most forgot to tell you that the dots which pattern this particular dress are in "English" color, red, from which striking color the hand-made silk applies, which form the corsage take their cue. A slightly stiffened peplum is featured, its hemline following the contour of the skirt hemline with considerable artistry.

Quite as effective, although not so unusual and new as the big coin dots are the charming nets which are patterned with colorful florals. These come in every key from flamboyant rose motifs to demure Dolly Varden flowerettes.

You may have quite a time deciding whether to buy a printed or an embroidered net for your next evening or garden-party frock. Choose either and you will play safe. The inspiring thought in this connection is that through perfected processes these fine quality dotted nets no matter how delicate their tones and tints may be or how bold, they may be relied on as being fast color. This means they are not only appealing from an esthetic point of view, but they are also thoroughly practical.

HATS OF ALL SIZES APPROVED BY PARIS

There is nothing monotonous about hat fashions this summer. Sizes range from mere skull caps to cape lines, with brims a foot wide. There is as much variety in shapes as in sizes and more materials involved than there is room to list. Soft, fabriclike straws, crocheted or mesh straws are being used for new versions of the beret, and to make crowns for some of the brimmed hats. The familiar panama, baku, milan, leghorn and other well knowns are making all manner of brimmed hats. Stitching is used to give body to cotton and linen hats and to decorate brimmed sports hats of jersey and felt.

Among the small hats Agnes' French coloring creations and Suzanne Talbot's derby-brimmed hats are of particular interest. Agnes has taken the various headgears and hair dresses of the Moroccans, the Algerians, the Cambodians and translated them in a collection of peaked and wrapped and draped turbans and berets that are enormously smart. Furthermore, she has taken over the brilliant and exotic colorings that distinguish the original models.

Stunning Dinner Gown

This is a Lanvin replica of a dinner gown in black. The braided peplum is unique, as are the long satin gauntlets with jeweled bracelets.

Three Colors for Scarf; Worn With White Sports

There are all sorts of attractive scarfs, many of them made of red, white and blue. There are lots of clothes accessories in those colors, anyway. They are worn with white sports clothes.

There are, for instance, scarfs made in triangles of the three colors, oddly chunked together. There are scarfs of the three colors in wide stripes, others with the center portion of the scarf white, the ends striped red and blue. These scarfs, striped and triangles, are made of the finest wool crocheted in a loose, lacy stitch.

Other scarfs are made of the three colors striped lengthwise, in soft silk crepe. Still others are made of two colors on one side, lined with the third color.

NINE OUT OF TEN WANT INSULATED HOUSES

That the general public now considers building insulation against heat and cold a standard requirement for the well-constructed home is shown by a recent nationwide survey. Nine out of every ten of the thousands of home owners questioned expressed a preference for insulated homes, and eight of every ten declared themselves willing to add $25 a room to construction costs in return for the benefits of insulation.

Comfort in winter, ease heating because insulation retards the escape of furnace or steam heat through walls and roof, and large savings in fuel are the principal reasons why home owners want insulation. But the fact that insulation also makes houses cooler and more comfortable in summer is also an important consideration in the minds of many householders

SLEEVES ACQUIRE SOME IMPORTANCE

Sleeves are interesting and important enough to write volumes about these days.

They have no one length or type this summer—that is certain. The long and the short of it, according to Patou, goes something like this: Print, silk or crepe from the elbow to the cuffs, fitting the arm rather snugly.

This short sleeve is simplicity itself. It strikes the arm when finished halfway between the shoulder and the elbow and has only a three-inch cuff put on very much like a man's shirt cuff.

Mazzy Rouff has made a "dancing" sleeve that is delightful. It has a run of six parallel tucks just above the elbow and from there on the under side it falls in cascades almost to the wrist.

PLYMOUTHITES WATCH WITH INTEREST DEVELOPMENT OF ORDINANCE

The following article which appeared in the July 26, Sunday edition of the Detroit News, will be of interest to those advocating a comprehensive city plan and zoning ordinance for Plymouth.

Large damage to property values has already occurred in Detroit, and that it is practically impossible to alter what has been done is made evident by the statement that there will not be a retroactive clause in the Detroit zoning ordinance now nearing completion.

"In one of these districts the cubical contents cannot exceed twice the width of the street the building faces, while in the second the cubical contents cannot exceed three times the width of the street."

MONEY TO BURN

BY
PETER B. KYNE
W. N. U. SERVICE

"You can't miss what you have never had," said Elmer Clarke when asked how he would feel if he learned that the story about his inheriting a million dollars were all a myth. Pretty good, he said, in that for a philosophy to meet the ups and downs of life, if one has wealth and loses it, the thing to do is to forget that one ever had it. More easily said than done; and that fact has given Peter B. Kyne the central idea for one of the most sprightly and joyous of the many clever tales he has turned out.

Elmer was a star store clerk in a small town in California. He was young and such a human life wire that anyone with half an eye could see he was not destined for long to spend his time handling out "ropes," cigars and plug cut smoking tobacco to a clientele none too discriminating. If Elmer stayed in the game at all, it would be to own his own smoke emporium, and it would be no hick affair but in the latest city style and a credit to the town. Something in the nature of these preliminary ambitions was about to be worked out when news came of the death of a relative and Elmer's being made sole heir to a million dollars. Something was lost to economics and progress, for a natural hustler now found himself with no incentive to hustle.

You may think it is the old story of the new rich or of a beggar on horseback; but it isn't. Our Elmer was a quite level-headed citizen, with plenty of savvy and a backbone that was built for carrying burdens and also acting as an efficient power station for the generation of courage; but with all these qualities he would most certainly have slipped had not a manager suddenly arisen to take him in hand and guide him from the pitfalls which his money-blinded eyes failed to see.

It was a girl, of course; but what a manager and what addressness she used to put her management into effect! She had been trust officer in the town's bank, and from behind her wicket had seen more of the foibles of life and had absorbed more human nature than Elmer had during his whole career. She had a strong hand, even if it were concealed in a delicate, soft glove; but no meddling, stiff-armed methods for her. No, indeed! You will have to learn how she worked it, by reading the story—one of the happiest efforts to one of the nation's best story tellers.

CHAPTER I.

Mr. Absalom McPeake's private secretary came into her employer's office with an unpleasant announcement. Mr. Hiram Butterworth was waiting in the outer office and desirous of seeing him.

"Keep him waiting half an hour," the lawyer answered. "I haven't finished reading the morning paper, and cheerful effort on that old razorback. It will add to my importance and diminish his."

McPeake finished reading the paper and lighted a cigar; when the cigar was consumed, he opened the door leading to the general office and bowed Hiram Butterworth in with a cheery good morning and a polite inquiry as to the state of the Butterworth health.

"I'm done for," his visitor replied, and sank heavily into the overstuffed armchair which Absalom McPeake reserved for his clients. "Yes, done for."

"I wouldn't say that, Mr. Butterworth," McPeake soothed him. "You are always pessimistic. Try being optimistic for a change."

Hiram Butterworth flared in sudden, unprovoked impatience. "Why wouldn't you say it?" he growled, and answered the question himself. "Because you don't know anything about it, that's why. And I do. I ought to. I've paid out enough good cash money to find out. I've been to six specialists in six cities, and have received six identical verdicts. I'm done for. I tell you, and don't you try to tell me I'm not. I guess I know when I'm done for. Cost me enough to find out."

He shuffled his feet, and McPeake, glancing down, observed that Butterworth's shoes were old, cheap and worn. And the thin, threadbare suit, cheap and ready-made, old and tattered, coupled with the saw-edged collar and the plain black "ready-to-wear" necktie, still further heightened the atmosphere of misery and neglect which this old man radiated.

McPeake replied with irritation: "I'm sorry to hear this disturbing report, Mr. Butterworth. What did the doctors say was the matter with you?"

"Hardening of the arteries and heart disease," the old man barked. "Three years ago I found myself getting a pain in my chest, so I called on Doc Reiter to cure it. Better told me what was what and six others have since confirmed his diagnosis." He bored into McPeake with his gimlet eyes. "I'm liable to die at any moment," he said in a low, sad voice. "So I've come to set my house in order."

McPeake frowned but kept his temper. "You will recall—pardon me for reminding you—that for twenty years I have been urging you to make a will, Mr. Butterworth."

"That's right, that's right," the miser complained. "You're one of those I-told-you-so fellows. For two cents I'd have another lawyer draw up my will."

The lawyer glared at him for a half minute, drew a pad of legal size yellow scratch paper toward him and prepared to place Hiram Butterworth's house in order.

"To whom do you wish to bequeath your estate?" he queried.

Butterworth pined his lips. "Well, Absalom, I've only got one blood relative I care to leave it to, and that's my sister's son, Elmer Butterworth Clarke."

"But you have other nephews and nieces, Mr. Butterworth?"

"Yes, my sister Hattie's two girls and two boys. Hattie's husband left them mighty well fixed, but they went hog-wild once they got control of the money—d extravagant wasters. Let 'em work for a living now, like I did. Catch me leavin' 'em anything. I'd die first."

"According to the doctors' verdicts you probably will. What inclines you toward Elmer Clarke?"

"Well, in the first place, I thought more of his mother than any other member of my family. She never bothered me with her troubles. Why, her husband was dead two years before I heard of it. She never asked me for a dollar, and I never gave her a dollar. I don't suppose we'd written to each other for twenty years before Hattie died, on account of me not thinking much of her husband. Good enough, but no git-up-an-go to him."

"To Whom Do You Wish to Bequeath Your Estate?" He Queried.

The old wretch chuckled pleasantly as he recalled his little brother-in-law. "Never laid eyes on Elmer," he went on. "Never heard from him in my life and wouldn't know him from Adam's off ox. If I hadn't seen his photograph, Absalom, he's the dead son of his Uncle Hiram."

He handed the lawyer a photograph. McPeake studied it a moment and gave it back. "You flatter yourself," he remarked acidly. "The boy resembles you as much as he resembles a wart-bog. But go on."

"He resembles me when I was his age," the miser persisted. "And I know all about him. Ha-Ha! You bet. Never made a move in my life until I knew just why I was making it. Yes, sir. He fumbled in his pocket and brought forth some envelopes."

Absalom McPeake opened the one his client handed him and drew out a sheet of typewritten paper. The first page was carbon copy of a letter:

Muscatine, Iowa,
July 16, 1924.

Gentlemen:

"A valued customer of this bank is desirous of ascertaining in the strictest confidence the mental, physical, social and moral status of his nephew, Elmer Butterworth Clarke, of your city. Any information you can give us as to his character, habits, occupation, the degree of application he exhibits in his pursuit of a living, how he is regarded by his associates and any other information you may consider will enable our customer to form a clear picture of Elmer Clarke, will be appreciated and reciprocated whenever possible. Please bill us for expense incurred in securing the information desired."

"Thanking you in advance, we are, Yours very truly,
First National Bank of Muscatine.
By Geo. D. David, Cashier."

The lawyer grunted disapprobly. "Careful you spending my money for a report from a detective agency when your banker will do it for nothing," he remarked. "This letter attached is the report. I take it. Hum-m!" He read:

"Dear Sir: We have for acknowledgment your letter of the 16th inst., requesting that we furnish you with a confidential report on Mr. Elmer Butterworth Clarke of this city."

"Mr. Elmer B. Clarke is well and intimately known to us and has been for the past fifteen years. The Great Register of Voters of this county informs us that Mr. Clarke is a Republican and that he was born October 10, 1898, in Selma, Fresno county, this state. He is the only child of the late Prof. James J. Clarke and the late Mabel Butterworth Clarke."

"Professor Clarke was a graduate of the University of California and was very eminent in the field of parasitology. His research work contributed much information of tremendous value to fruit growers of this state. He perished of a fever contracted while in Brazil studying the life and habits of a pest known as the Brazilian fly which had succeeded in invading the territory of Hawaii. His wife died of pneumonia as a sequel to influenza contracted during the epidemic of 1918-19. She was a woman of great intelligence, probity and force of character and, like her husband, was held in the highest esteem here."

"Elmer Clarke was twelve years old when his father died. As is the case with most professors and particularly those in federal employ, Professor Clarke's salary was never commensurate with his ability. Also, he was careless in the matter of providing life insurance for his dependents, with the result that the care of his widow fell immediately upon Elmer."

"At twelve years of age, therefore, Elmer Clarke played his last game of ball and became the sole and efficient support of his mother—a burden lightened somewhat by reason of the fact that Professor Clarke had left his widow a comfortable six-room bungalow on a lot of 100 feet frontage on C street in this city.

"Elmer Clarke graduated from the Union high school here at the age of sixteen and was No. 1 on the honor list of ten pupils. He immediately went to work in the local fruit cannery, where the remuneration of employees is regulated by their industry. When the canning season closed he had three hundred dollars in the savings department of this bank. The following season he bought fruit, on commission, for various packing houses and proved himself an uncanny judge of fruit values and crop tonnage."

"However, realizing the drawbacks of a seasonal occupation and faced with the necessity of financing the care of his mother, he learned telegraphy in his spare moments and secured a position as assistant station agent in the local office of the Southern Pacific railroad. He had just been promoted to station agent at the outbreak of the World war. He enlisted at once and served with the Rainbow division as a radio sergeant, until October of 1918, when he was commissioned a second lieutenant. He was wounded twice and slightly gassed."

"For three years following his discharge from the service, Mr. Clarke's health, due to his wounds and the gasping already referred to, was too precarious to permit of his accepting his old position of less responsibility and lighter duties as assistant to the proprietor of a local billiard and pool hall, with a cigar stand in connection with same."

"He has gradually recovered his health, and the last time the writer spoke to him on this subject he stated that he was now as well as he had ever been."

"Mr. Clarke is a very ambitious young man, never satisfied with what he has, always scheming for something better. He is well and favorably known in this city. As commander of the local post of the American Legion, he is a strong force for better citizenship in our community. He is profoundly interested in politics but too shrewd and far-seeing to desire a political office."

"Mr. Clarke is unmarried and there are no immediate prospects of this status being changed. He pays cash for everything and has a savings account in this bank of approximately twenty-five hundred dollars. At the present time he is endeavoring to negotiate with us a loan on his C street property, his object being to engage in business for himself. He is a member of the Rotary club, the Kiwanis club, the Hundred Per Cent club, the Optimists' club, the Advertising club and president of our local chamber of commerce. He is a God-fearer and a lover of his town and it is our opinion that he will leave it for wider and greater pastures. We regard him as a model young man and worthy of every confidence."

"Respectfully yours,
Pillars Commercial Trust and Savings Bank.
By N. C. Cathart, Trust Officer."

Absalom McPeake looked up and caught a gleam of pride in old Butterworth's pug nose. "Pretty flattering report, I should say, Mr. Butterworth."

"He takes after me," the miserable miser persisted.

"God forbid!" said Absalom McPeake.

"Don't get nasty, Absalom. The boy takes after me. I tell you. A young fellow like that who knows the value of money is the man who ought to have my estate. He'll make it grow. He'll do things with it. I want to leave everything to him and cut Hattie's children off at the pocketers."

"Very well, then, Elmer Clarke draws the capital prize. However, I suggest that you leave his cousins something also."

"Not a penny, Absalom. They're wasters, I tell you."

"Well, leave them five dollars each just so they'll be remembered in the will, and that will block a lawsuit."

"You bet, Absalom! I want you to make that will alright."

"Do you desire to make any other specific bequests, Mr. Butterworth?"

"Yes, five thousand to Bunker."

"Only five thousand to old Bunker?" McPeake looked and felt surprised. "Why, he's been as faithful to you as a dog for a quarter of a century! I think you're a miserable ingrate to cut Bunker off with five thousand. You ought to give him fifty thousand at least. Get some other lawyer to draw up your will. I'm through handling your business. You're a wolf. Get out!"

"No, you're not through. Now, Absalom, you hold your horses. You sit fresh with me and I'll name somebody else executor of my estate."

"Oh, so you want me to be your executor, also, do you? Well, I don't want the job. Now, how does that strike you?"

"Absalom, you've got to accept the executorship. You're the one man I can trust."

"Well, I'll take it provided you leave Bunker ten thousand dollars."

"Very well, to please you, but not a cent more. That's final."

"We will not quarrel about it further. Any other specific bequests?"

The miser's eyes sought the carpet and it was evident now that he was embarrassed. "I got a confession to make. Some forty years ago I had a farm in Illinois—I'll give you the full legal description later—and I mortgaged it to a man for forty thousand dollars. I wanted the money to put into the worst investment I ever made, and that was a Nevada silver mine—Consolidated Virginia. I bought stock with that money during the days of the big Comstock excitement. I could have sold out and doubled my money two weeks after I made the investment, but I held on and on, taking more and more profit in paper until the underground river burst into the Comstock bore on the two thousand foot level and ruined the mine—and me."

"Well, I lost the farm. I couldn't repay the mortgage, Absalom, and after there was a flood and the Mississippi river changed its channel and ruined that farm, I didn't want to repay the loan. I wanted to fix it in my will so that every dollar, both principal and interest, due under that judgment to date shall be paid to the widow or—"

"The legal heirs of her body," McPeake cut in professionally.

Old Butterworth nodded and handed him a fat envelope. "This contains all the information," he explained. "Anything else?"

"Nothing, Absalom, except that—well, I reckon it's usual to have the executor give a bond, so you'd better stipulate in my will that the customary bond shall be filed with the court by the executor."

"Old Safety First," McPeake repeated. "I'll have your will ready in an hour. Stay where you are."

Within the hour Hiram Butterworth had signed his last will and testament. He carried a copy of the document away with him and left the original with his lawyer. On the first of the following month he received from Absalom McPeake a bill for fifty dollars for professional services drawing will.

"The dirty, cheap, two-for-a-cent legal jackal," he raved to his man Bunker. "Sending me a bill for drawing my will after all I've done for him." He telephoned immediately to Absalom McPeake and told the latter in blunt language exactly what he thought of him.

"You're a dirty robber!" the old man shrieked. "I'll change my will this very day. I'll learn you—"

He was terribly angry—so angry, in fact, that he quite forgot the advice for which he had paid so heavily to six heart specialists. He mumbled incoherently into the transmitter, then let it fall with a crash which was not lost on the lawyer at his end of the line. Then, very faintly, McPeake heard him say: "O God! Forgive me! I'm dying—dy—"

When McPeake reached his client's place of business he found Hiram Butterworth stretched out on the grimy, uncarpeted floor of his private office. He was quite dead. Bunker, a gray-haired, gray-faced, meek, cowed-looking man, was sitting in a chair across the room watching the dead man.

He looked up as McPeake entered and a smile illumined his gray face, for he was free at last.

"The old man's heart went back on him," Bunker explained. "He's dead, and although I've worked for him nearly thirty years, I can't say I'm sorry."

"You ought to be glad, Bunker. In fact, you will be glad when I tell you that his will, which I drew up two weeks ago, provides a special bequest to you of ten thousand dollars."

"Ten thousand! Ten thousand!" the old man repeated, in crescendo. "Why, he—he—he promised me for years that he'd leave me a hundred thousand. I've devoted my life to that man and all I ever got for it was abuse and a bare living. And now he—his betrayed me!"

Bunker's form quivered and two tears, congealed slowly down his lined cheeks. "My wife will feel badly about this," he quavered. "She was sort of fixating on it. Well, what can't be cured must be endured, I suppose."

McPeake went back to his office. Two hours later, in Muscatine, Calif., Elmer Clarke received the following telegram:

"Muscatine, Iowa,
August 1, 1924.

Your uncle, Hiram Butterworth, died suddenly here today. Please wire disposal of body. I was your uncle's attorney during his lifetime, and am named executor of his estate."

"A. McPeake, Federal Trust Bldg."

This information was received by Elmer Clarke half an hour before his departure for the home of his heart's desire, whom he planned to escort that evening to the melodical band concert in the plaza. To this young lady Elmer disclosed the contents of the telegram.

"What disposition are you going to make of the body, Elmer," she inquired.

"I feel like wiring McPeake to send the old man's carcass to a medical college for dissection, in order that at the finish it might be said of him that once he accomplished something constructive, something for the benefit of the world in which he had his being."

"O, please don't do that, Elmer."

"Of course not, Nellie. He was my mother's brother, even if he was a heartless old skinflint. I suppose he died penniless for all his miserly thrift, or his lawyer would not have wired me as he did. I'll send McPeake a night letter and instruct him to give the old man a plain, decent Christian burial, the expense of which shall not exceed one hundred and fifty dollars, and to draw on me at sight for the same. For mother's sake I can't have the old man buried in Potter's field."

Nellie patted Elmer Clarke's hand. "I'm glad you're going to do the right thing for him, even if he didn't deserve it."

They went to the band concert and when they parted at Nellie's front gate Elmer held her hand longer than seemed necessary.

"Nellie, my dear, you're a great comfort to me," he said very seriously, apropos of nothing. "I like to think that some day when my ship comes in—I checked himself, and after a pause added: "But then it is, so what's the use dreaming until I know my dreams can come true?"

"Elmer," the girl replied, "within a week your ship is going to come in. I feel it in my bones—somewhat after the fashion of old men who have rheumatic twinges just before the first rains. Wouldn't it be wonderful, Elmer, if your Uncle Hiram died leaving assets of money and left it all to you? You have never met him, have you, Elmer?"

"No, and I have never desired to."

"Elmer, if the unexpected should happen and you should receive a substantial sum from your uncle's estate, what would you do?"

He looked down at her very soberly and seemed about to answer her question, when his hesitation was almost instantly developed. He bit his lip and steeled.

"I'd get into business for myself, of course," he replied.

The girl nodded soberly and he had a vague suspicion that his answer had been a disappointment, for she withdrew her hand and said good night.

Well! Well! Take Off License Fee

No license is now required to sell non-game fish taken from inland waters of the state.

The provision requiring a license was eliminated from the inland fish law by the 1931 legislature. The new law does not change the provisions necessitating a commercial fishing license for selling fish taken from the Great Lakes.

Persons taking fish to sell from any of the inland waters must comply with all of the regulations for taking of non-game fish.

Perch and pike-perch, which may be sold by persons licensed for commercial fishing, when taken from the Great Lakes, are classed as game fish in inland waters and may not be sold when taken from the inland waters.

Smelt taken through the ice or from the smelt runs next spring and which may be taken in unlimited quantities, may be sold without a license.

The list of non-game fish which may be taken and sold from inland waters without a license are:

Grass pike, calico bass, strawberry bass, rock bass, crappies, bullheads, carp, catfish, clecoes, dogfish, garfish, mullet, plottish (Menominee whitefish), whitefish, rehorse, sheephead, smelt, suckers and lake trout.

CHERRY HILL

A miscellaneous shower was given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Shultz at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hunk, Saturday evening. Many useful gifts were received.

The Young People's Sunday-school class held a picnic at Whitmore Lake, Friday evening. About eighteen enjoyed a pot-luck supper at 7:00 o'clock. Swimming and games were the amusement.

MAIL LINERS FOR QUICK RESULTS

Farmers Become Electric Users

Results of a survey by counties of Michigan farms having electric light and power service recently completed by the statistical research department of the National Electric Light Association are announced by the Utilities Information Bureau of Michigan. The survey is based upon United States census data and upon reports from Michigan utilities.

The survey, made as of August 31, 1930, shows that upon that date Michigan had 27,677 farms with electric service, out of a total of 169,915 farms in the state. Seventy-eight counties out of a total of 83 reported electrified farms, and only five reported no farms with electric service. These five are Alcona, Iosco, Keweenaw, Montmorency, and Oscoda.

Macomb county, according to the surveys, leads the state both in the number of farms with electricity, and in the percentage of electrified farms. It had at the time of the survey, 2,372 electrified farms, or 80.2 per cent of a total of 2,957 farms.

Washtenaw ranks second with 1,829 electrified farms, or 55.3 per cent of a total of 3,305 farms.

The first ten counties in number of electrified farms are: Macomb, 2,372; Washtenaw, 1,829; Monroe, 1,801; Ottawa, 1,403; Van Buren, 1,396; St. Clair, 1,360; Lenawee, 1,348; Wayne, 1,065; Oakland, 1,000; Berrien, 904.

In percentage of farms electrified, the leading counties rank as follows: Macomb, 80.2 per cent; Washtenaw, 55.3; Wayne, 52.1; Dickinson, 50.4; Monroe, 47.1; Oakland, 41.3; St. Clair, 37.4; Iron, 37.2; Ottawa, 35.9; Delta, 35.1.

While farm electrification has advanced particularly rapidly among the southeastern counties, it is interesting to note that three Upper Peninsula counties, Dickinson, Delta and Iron, are among the ten leaders as regards the percentage of farms with electric power.

Extension of farm lines has gone forward strongly during the past year with an estimated increase of more than 3,000 farm customers, so some counties can show at the present time considerable gains over the figures obtained in the survey.

Finding Big Gas Fields Up State

The development of natural gas resources in the Mt. Pleasant district of central Michigan now little more than a year old, is making rapid strides, despite a general industrial depression. Three fields have been opened up and a $250,000 pipe line, 43 miles long, is now being constructed.

Figures given by the Geological Survey Division of the Department of Conservation show the three fields in the Isabella-Clare district with 16 completed gas wells having an aggregate daily production capacity of approximately 40,000,000 cubic feet.

The first of the three fields, in Broomfield Township 12 miles west of Mt. Pleasant was opened in February 1930, with completion of the first well. There are now seven completed wells having a combined daily capacity of 30,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas.

The field includes about 3,000 acres, the largest well capable of producing from nine to ten million cubic feet a day. Until recently there was practically no market for the gas. Now the Consumers Power Company is building a 43-mile long eight inch line from the field to Midland. The line is expected to be completed within the next few months.

A second gas field is in Vernon Township, eight miles north of Mt. Pleasant. This field, having an area of about 1,500 acres has five completed wells and one more is being drilled. This field now has an approximate daily capacity of 13,000,000 cubic feet.

The third field, seven miles northwest of Clare, has four completed wells with a capacity of about 6,000,000 cubic feet of gas a day. Practically all of the wells in these fields run from 1,300 to 1,400 feet in depth.

For some time natural gas has been used on a small scale in Michigan. Short pipe lines run into Muskegon, but the supply is becoming exhausted. Other small wells have been producing near St. Clair, Marquette, Ashley and in the southwestern part of the state. However, the Isabella-Clare fields are the first large producers in Central

To Hold Gala Day At South Lyon

South Lyon has set aside Thursday, August 20th as a gala day, with plenty of fun for all visitors.

Elaborate games are being perfected for the day, such as few will forget. It is hoped there will be many home-comers.

The Board of Commerce committee in charge of affairs consists of Glenn Van Atta, C. R. Bradley, J. K. Arns, Arnold Lukasek and T. L. Smith.

Among the features of the day's program, they plan a parade participated in by youngsters with dolls and cats and pets, children dressed up to represent man and wife, bride and groom, Amos and Andy, etc., and children on decorated bicycles, tricycles, etc. Then too, the parade will have a display by the merchants, and horses by farmers. Farmers will also enter their horses in the pulling contests.

Then there will be ball games, street sports, a greased pig, hog cutting and husband cutting contests, band concerts, motion pictures, airplane rides, and it is expected that the famous Detroit News Autogiro will be there.

High Trout Fee Not Due Until '32

The increased fees for resident trout license and non-resident angler's license as established by the recent legislature cannot be enforced until 1932, according to the Conservation Department.

When the general fishing bill became law in June the Department had already issued and sold over eighty per cent of the resident trout licenses for the present season, and non-resident licenses and buttons were already in the hands of thousands of dealers.

To have resold the old and unsold licenses and re-issued new ones would have involved unnecessary expense and confusion, said Director George Hoagarth today.

Effective January 1st, the non-resident angler's fee will increase from three to four dollars. Resident trout licenses will cost $1.75 after the present season as compared to the present one dollar fee.

The increase set by the legislature for small game and deer licenses will be effective during the coming season, and licenses and buttons are now being manufactured.

Michigan and the pipe line being run into Midland represents the first large utilization of Michigan produced natural gas from that area.

There is every indication, according to the Geological Survey office that the three fields in the Isabella and Clare districts represent but a portion of the natural gas capabilities of that region.

The natural gas now being produced is of a high quality, having approximately twice the heating capacity of artificial gas.

Tells Why Fish Die This Summer

The lack of water and the low lake levels which occurred at spawning time this year, are the reasons given by the Institute for Fisheries Research of the University of Michigan, for the large numbers of fish deaths reported from many inland lakes.

Examination of specimens of fish sent to the laboratories at Ann Arbor and observations made of various inland lakes have confirmed this opinion, Wendell H. Krull, fish pathologist of the Institute said in a report.

The most noticeable single abnormal condition in the fish has been the increased amount of fungus. This is in some way associated with the lack of water, but just how is another question," the report said.

Krull believes that spearing through the ice may have had some effect on later fungus attacks. "We know from specimens which have been sent to us, that many fish are injured in spearing and fishermen will not take the fish with 'white patches' on them. These are injured fish which have fungused and under cold water conditions will live for a long time, during which the fungus possibly disseminates many spores which are capable of germinating very readily when the water is warmer."

The low water level this year have, in all probability, seriously affected fish life. Since the water level was low at the spawning time of common fish found most abundantly in Michigan lakes, and since they are particularly sensitive to water conditions, their spawning activities, no doubt, were interfered with, even to the extent of making some of the normal spawning beds unavailable for fish.

In Lake Mitchell, Westford County, for instance, the black bass did not occupy their spawning beds this spring. Depriving fish of their spawning beds, would, Krull said, increase injuries because of the increased strife among the fish, or at least decrease the resistance among them as a result of fighting and retention of sex products.

These conditions as well as spawnings, temporary starvation, sudden changes in water temperature, sudden change in oxygen content of the water, are factors which influence the susceptibility of fish to disease, particularly to fungus which is the only disease that can be held accountable for the unusual fish epidemics this summer.

Most of the losses reported during or just after the spawning season have been considered normal losses by the Institute.

These losses look very large, especially in lakes which are productive and support many large fish. At other times the losses looked large because the fish which die remain out in the lake until carried in by wave action. Sometimes after there has been no wind for a long time false impressions of the mortality are given because the fish which have died over a long period of days wash into shore at one time.

"We suggest that before one says, 'thousands of fish are dying,' that he secure a more definite estimate," the report concludes.

Rosedale Gardens

It is what the majority see, and we still have the same old School Board, as School District No. 6 had its annual meet and feast last Monday night.

Brother Chas. Schaffer was re-elected unopposed. Brother LeRoy Snell won out on a three name ticket. Bro. Jimmy Kinahan nearly won out and Sister Erie Burton nearly beat Jimmy. But Bro. Leroy had the most number of votes and was declared re-elected.

Fire escapes were discussed but got to a blank wall. Treasurer of the Funds Welner submitted his report, which was in order, and accepted.

Everyone was pleased with the condition of our dollar chest, and it was even suggested that Mayor Murphy send out his Board for instructions as to how to run things nicely.

Prize is offered to the one who makes the nearest guess as to how many weeds, north of US-12, that have not been cut this year. Also as to the percentage in comparison to our own neat acres, lots and fields south of US-12. Land Company Supt. Alfred Honcke is being congratulated as to the appearance of the Gardens, grass and shrubbery.

Now you folks who wanted something new or different—it is here at last. And they say we have more things to come.

Well, anyway, this wins the prize of the year, and it will be more than a musical paper played by swatter, too.

Our Lona Belle Rhode and Wesley Hoffman are added to the list of our radio entertainers, but they are the first in the kiddie class so to enter. They did their song and dance to perfection, and those who heard them over the local branch of the Columbia System (WXYZ) just thought they were there in person or at P. T. A. meet or something, or maybe this television business.

Vacationists are still vacationing. Gardenites seemingly taking turns at lakeing, seasiding and mountaineering. The Walker children, Mildred Mafe and Marion Virginia, accompanied by mother and aunties visited the seaside at their old home—Margate on the Sea, whilst daddy navel reserved. The Walter Browns are lakeing about 200 miles northward.

Addition of garage, driveway, ectetra, are completed, improving the McPhee, Russell and Kaercher lots, as well as a fence on the first mentioned.

Mrs. Ann Adams of Caro, who is visiting her niece, Mrs. Arthur White, was 82 years old Wednesday, and upon being asked what she would like to do to celebrate the event, she stated that she would like to take an airplane ride. She was taken to the Triangle Flying Field, where she took her first ride, which she said she enjoyed very much, only would have liked to have gone up higher and stayed up longer. Upon their return home, friends and relatives had arrived from Detroit, with a fine birthday dinner, and a cake with 82 candles. Mrs. Adams retired that night saying she felt younger than she had in years.

Municipal Notes

Water Rules Require Payment of Bills
The ordinance governing the operation of the water department requires that the water service be discontinued after a bill becomes six weeks delinquent. Bills are rendered quarterly to three different sections of the village. By this arrangement one district is being read and billed each month. The bills are out on the first of the month and are due the 15th without penalty. After the 15th of the month a 10% penalty is added, and if the bill is not paid within 30 days, the water is shut off, and not again turned on until the entire bill and penalties, including a $1.00 turn-on charge, is paid.

This is not a new regulation as it has been in force for many years. The water departments of other cities as well as all public utility companies, have a similar regulation. Approximately 90% of all consumers pay their bills when due, and only a very small number of services are turned off for non-payment. If the water is not turned off or a temporary extension of time given at the office, then the person paying on time (90% of the total) is given no advantage. In the case of tenants owing water bills, should the water be left on indefinitely and the tenant move out, the property owner is held for the unpaid account, and the water not again turned on until the owner pays the bill. Temporary extension of time on the payment of water bills is given at the village office, if the facts in the case warrant the extension.

Tonquish Creek Being Cleaned Out
Harry I. Duggeman, Wayne County Drain Commissioner, has advised the Village of Plymouth officials that his maintenance crew has started the work of removing the obstructions from Tonquish Creek in Plymouth, and that they will endeavor to provide a free and uninterrupted flow in the creek.

This action was taken by the Drain Commissioner after it was found that several dams had been placed across the creek, causing water to stand in stagnant pools. These obstructions caused an unhealthy and disagreeable condition to exist. The cleaning work now being done is of a temporary nature only. The creek can be kept in fair condition if children will not replace these obstructions which are now being removed. Parents are urged to instruct their children concerning this practice, as it is contrary to law and the additional work necessary to keep such a stream open is another reason for tax exorbitance.

OHIO GIRL FINDS HEALTH IN MICHIGAN

Miss Velma Swartz of McCutcheonville, Ohio, writes: "While visiting my sister in Detroit I was taken with a severe attack of stomach trouble accompanied with or caused by habitual constipation. She immediately gave me Mul-Sol-Lax which had helped her and to my pleasant surprise I soon began to feel better. I kept taking it during my visit and now feel better than I have in years."

Mul-Sol-Lax is a Tonic and Laxative, and brings relief in a natural way. Try it today. Take no substitute. Take home a bottle of Mul-Sol-Lax today. Sold at DODGE DRUG CO.

Dog License Fees Coming in Slowly
The dog license tax, as required by local ordinance is not being paid by any great number of local dog owners. This ordinance requires that all dogs owned by local residents and permitted to run at large in the village, shall be licensed.

The police officers have been picking up dogs found running at large without a local license, and holding them in pound until claimed by owner within 48 hours. Dogs not claimed within 48 hours, may be disposed of by sale or otherwise. Before a dog is released from the pound, the person claiming the same must pay to the Chief of Police, a fee of one dollar for male dogs and two dollars for female dogs in addition to the regular license fee. By promptly paying the dog license fee, greater expense may be saved at a later date in case the dog is impounded.

Fire Destroys Garage, Auto

Shortly after noon Thursday a fire of unknown origin completely destroyed the Edward Peterson garage in the rear of 424 North Main Street, a buick sedan which was in the garage at the time and all of Mr. Peterson's tools and machinery. The building was partially covered by insurance but there was no insurance on the automobile owned by Mr. Peterson. He had left the garage for lunch about half an hour before the fire was discovered. At the time of its discovery the entire interior of the building was in flames and in spite of the quick work of the fire department, the damage will amount to several thousand dollars.

Coming Attractions At Penniman-Allen

"UP POPS THE DEVIL"
A trio that gained triple honors for comedy and romance in "It Pays to Advertise" are seen currently in another Paramount comedy-romance, at the Penniman-Allen Theatre, Saturday, August 1st.

They are Skeets Gallagher, Carole Lombard and Norman Foster; and the name of their newest picture is "Up Pops The Devil."
Although "Up Pops The Devil" portrays an entirely different phase of modern life than that disclosed in "It Pays to Advertise," the roles are, in their essential points, the same. Foster is the young man in love. Miss Lombard is the girl he loves. And the blond and glib Skeets is the mutual friend who helps them put the old love-game "on ice" as they say in the ball parks.

"Up Pops The Devil" is based on the original Broadway hit of the same name which "packed them in" at the Masque Theatre in New York City last season. It was written by Albert Hackett and Frances Goodrich. Hackett, who is only 25, is a brother of Raymond Hackett, who played the juvenile in Ruth Chatterton's "Madame X."

The scenes of the play are laid in Greenwich village and in the Paramount Theatre, New York.

The story deals with the lives of a young couple, Foster and Miss Lombard, who live in a circle of "good time" artists and writers in the very sophisticated region of which MacDougal Street is the admitted "main stem." Their apartment is in a continual uppour due to the everlasting visits of their hosts of gay-life friends—and all their extra money goes for gin and dim. Meals and sleep come second.

But after a year of married life they decide that they will have to buckle down seriously to the business of living, and the wife persuades her husband, who is an advertising man, to give up his job and to stay at home for the purpose of writing a novel. Meanwhile she gets a job in the chorus of the stage show at the movie theatre in order to earn money to pay for the household expenses. Many humorous and many dramatic episodes result from their adherence to this mode of living, but their topsy-turvy lives at last turn right-side up.

"I TAKE THIS WOMAN"
"I Take This Woman" which appears at the Penniman-Allen Theatre on Sunday, August 2, is the story of a likable, easy-going Westerner, and a wealthy girl, beautiful, spoiled, impetuous, caught up in a sudden whirl of love, who marry, struggle to make a go of it, repent, separate and find they can't stay apart.

Gary Cooper, after a brief absence from the Western plains in "City Streets," returns to the spur and claps for this actionful story whose setting whirls from gay-time New York to the range-country of Wyoming, and back again. Carole Lombard, blonde, charming, talented, is the girl. Together they make a vivid and vital thing of this tense story from the pen of Mary Roberts Rinehart, one of America's foremost woman novelists.

"I Take This Woman" is the love story of a carefree, selfish, petted girl, used to luxury and the glitter of smart New York, who flirts with and marries, a rugged, devil-may-care ranger. Disinherited because of her mad act, she tastes the bitterness of hopeless struggle on a barren Western ranch. Discouraged, she throws it all away and returns to her father's home. There she renounces her life of gaiety and luxury, but without zest. She discovers that she has tied herself to her plainsman husband with bonds more lasting than those of law.

The picture is well acted by a superior cast, and the direction intensifies its poignant, emotional theme. In these days of easy love, easy marriage and easy divorce, this picture is timely and pertinent. This girl reckoned on an easy out, divorce, after her half-brained marriage grew wearisome; she didn't reckon on the uncontrollable force of love.

You will enjoy this picture. Its varying backgrounds are fascinating, from the road, night club to the vast Wyoming ranch to the luxurians Park Avenue home. And it is one picture with a wallop as big as its title.

NEWBURG

He was a member of the Fairbanks Post No. 17, G. A. R. Only eight members of the 26 left were able to be in attendance. Ed. Hoisington, a former resident of this place, acted as one of the pallbearers. Soon taps will be sounding for all of the boys who wore the blue.

COST BUT $8,000 PER YEAR TO RUN THE U. S. GOVERNMENT IN DAYS THOS. JEFFERSON WAS SECRETARY OF STATE, RECORDS SHOW.

Norhing illustrates more clearly the growth of the United States since George Washington's day than the enormously increased activities of our government. As one evidence of this, the Division of Information and Publication of the United States Government Washington Bicentennial Commission points to the expansion in the United States Department of State since its beginning as a Committee on Foreign Affairs of the Continental Congress, the modest salary of seventy dollars a month.

This was in 1777, and Paine held the position for two years. At the end of that period Congress dropped him for publishing a state paper which it thought he should have kept confidential. After that the Continental Congress decided to manage its own foreign affairs. It soon found itself in confusion and chaos, however, as a result of clumsy committee handling of a rapid expansion in its dealings with other countries. Accordingly, in 1781, Robert Livingston of New York was made secretary of the Congressional Committee on Foreign Affairs. He received the respectable salary of $4,000.00 a year, and was given powers closely approaching those of a present day Secretary of State.

To Livingston goes much of the credit for skillful management of our diplomacy during the later period of the Revolution, but in two years time Livingston complained to Congress that his living expenses were $3,000.00 more than his yearly salary. Besides, he was honored with election as chancellor of New York, and under pressure of this lure to another field, he resigned. Another period of chaos in our foreign relations ensued, until John Jay assumed the duties of foreign secretary, with still larger powers, which included authority to frame treaties with other nations.

Finally, in 1789, the Constitution having been adopted and the new United States having been formally established, Congress passed the act creating the Department of State as we know it today. President Washington appointed Thomas Jefferson the first Secretary of State, but as Jefferson was away at the time, it was six months before he assumed the duties of his office.

Today the Department of State receives from Congress an appropriation of more than $17,000,000.00, whereas the first annual budget submitted by Secretary of State Jefferson called for an outlay of $8,008.50. At this almost amazingly moderate cost to the country, the Department of State under Jefferson ran almost everything in Jefferson's own words, the department "embraced the whole domestic administration, war and finance excepted."

The Secretary of State then transmitted all commissions to Federal officers appointed by the President, except military commands. He kept the great seal of the United States, and promulgated all the laws passed by Congress. He even ran the Post Office service, until President Washington decided that this belonged to the Treasury Department. Nevertheless the Secretary of State continued to manage the United States mint.

He had control of copyrights and patents. He took the census and issued all maps and charts. Many of the acts of pardon passed through his hands. He conducted all our territorial affairs, collected the customs, issued consular reports, and exercised authority over the sale of public lands. And all this domestic business, together with our foreign affairs, Jefferson managed with the assistance of two under secretaries, four clerks, two messengers and a French interpreter. One item in his budget calculated to raise a smile in these days was an annual outlay of $50.00 for fireworks. And all this at an annual cost of $8,000.00.

Yet, even now, when our country has become the greatest of world powers and when many of these original duties of the State Department have been taken over by other great departments, like those of the Post Office, the Interior, and Commerce, the United States still requires perhaps the most highly organized of all foreign offices for the conduct of its steadily enlarging relations with the world.

It is one of the startling contrasts sure to arise in every American mind in 1932 when the nation celebrates the Two Hundredth Anniversary of the Birth of George Washington, the man who, more than any other, set going this vast political development.

How To Reduce and Eat Everything You Like, But, Not All You Like

By Logan Clendening, M. D.
"The doctor said for me to eat spinach to reduce and I don't like spinach."

Some such similar wall goes up. Well, you can eat anything you like and still reduce.

A good system for doing it is the checking account system. Just like a checking account in the bank. You have a balance and you check against it.

You can have 1,000 calories a day. That is your balance. It is distributed as follows: 120 grams of carbohydrate, 60 grams of protein and 30 grams of fat. (This adds up to slightly more than 1,000 calories, but the difference is negligible.)

You can draw out this balance any way you like. Suggested amount: 300 grams of 10 per cent fruits, (this means 10 per cent of carbohydrates), 100 grams of 10 per cent cereal, 5 grams of 85 per cent butter (85 per cent fat), 30 grams of bread, 400 grams of milk, 300 grams of 3 per cent vegetables, 100 grams of 20 per cent vegetables, 100 grams of 10 per cent meat or fish (20 per cent protein), 70 grams cottage cheese, 1 gram of egg.

Suggested distribution:
Breakfast—100 grams 10 per cent fruits, 100 grams 10 per cent cereal (2 heaping tablespoons), 5 grams of butter, 100 grams of milk, black coffee (no value).

Lunch—200 grams 3 per cent vegetables, 100 grams 20 per cent vegetables, 100 grams 10 per cent fruit, 1 gram egg, 100 grams milk, 50 grams cottage cheese.

Dinner—100 grams 3 per cent vegetables, 100 grams 10 per cent vegetables, 100 grams 10 per cent fruits, 100 grams 20 per cent meat or fish, 200 grams milk, 20 grams cottage cheese.

Some of the allowances:
Three per cent vegetables—Asparagus, string beans, wax beans, beet greens, cauliflower, cucumbers, egg plant, mushrooms, sauerkraut, water-cress, ripe olives, tomatoes, cabbage, celery, endive, leeks, lettuce, marrow, pickles, radishes, sorrel, spinach, rhubarb.

Ten per cent vegetables—Pumpkin, beets, carrots, okra, green olives, onions, parsnips, squash, turnips.

Twenty per cent vegetables (3 per cent protein)—Baked beans, macaroni, potatoes, rice.

Twenty per cent meat (lean portions)—Broiled beef, roast beef, steak, tongue, chicken, duck, goose, lamb chops, roast lamb, mutton, squab, turkey, veal.

Ten per cent fruits (edible part)—Blackberries, cranberries, currants, gooseberries, lemon juice, cantaloupe, peaches, pineapple, strawberries, watermelon, oranges, grapefruit.

Twenty per cent fish—Bass, bluefish, codfish, flounder, halibut, haddock, perch, shad, roe, smelts, trout, weakfish, whitefish.

Ten per cent cereals—Oatmeal, farina.

One hundred grams of 3 per cent vegetables is about 3 heaping tablespoons.

One hundred grams of 10 per cent vegetables is from 1 to 3 heaping tablespoons, depending on compactness.

One hundred grams of 20 per cent

Boy Scouts Get Sea Training

Setting up complete equipment of tents, cots, commissary depot and kitchen facilities, 89 Scouts and Leaders camped for seven days on Put-In-Bay Island during the Annual Lake Yacht Regatta, which continued from July 11th to 18th.

The demand for such an occasion is an outgrowth of service rendered last year by about a dozen Sea Scouts who were on duty at that Regatta.

Fifty-five of the Sea Scouts and Leaders were from Detroit Council, the others from various councils of the State, such as: Flint, Lansing, Jackson and Holland. Representatives from Findlay and Port Clinton, Ohio were also in attendance.

Many types of service, rendered by the Scouts, included the registration of delegates, traffic duty, government patrol boat work, duty on the Commodore's Yacht and the Judge's Yacht, besides furnishing crews for various races.

Several Sea Scout ships from Detroit, Michigan and Port Clinton, Ohio entered races and the Sea Scout ship "Silhouette" of Detroit won fourth place in the Schooner Class.

Special activities of the Scouts included a brief ceremony held at Perry's monument when a wreath was placed at the monument's base. A similar service was held at the Commodore's Memorial when a basket of cut flowers was placed there by members of the Sea Scout group.

Dr. William A. Wilson, Commodore of the Detroit Council, Sea Scouts was in charge of the entire camp.

RAINFALL AT WRONG SEASON

The Great American Desert gets plenty of rain in July and August, but it lacks rainfall at the important spring growing season.

vegetables is about 2 heaping tablespoons.

One hundred grams of 20 per cent meat or fish is about an average helping or slice.

One hundred grams of 10 per cent fruits is 3 or 4 heaping tablespoons.

Organization To Keep Up Battle

At a meeting of the directors of the Wayne Board of Commerce this week to consider the advisability of continuing the organization under the existing economic depression, a decision to "carry on" was brought about through the marked spirit of optimism which prevailed at the meeting.

The secretary volunteered to accept a substantial cut in salary until conditions improved and with the budget reduced to the lowest possible figure, it was voted en-masse not to "give up the ship."

The fact that a great many similar organizations in the country are struggling to exist was brought to light through a letter from John N. Van Der Vries, manager of the northern central division of the United States Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Van Der Vries said in part as follows:

"I remember with pleasure my visit to Wayne the past year. I have also known some of the problems which you have had to face since my visit with you. I sincerely hope that you will not allow the difficulties you are encountering to cause you to lose heart and to have your board of commerce to become less effective. The problems which you are facing are problems which you face in common with organizations in every state in the union."

"Chambers of Commerce are not fair weather propositions but are needed more in times like the present than in any other time. For this reason I sincerely hope that your board of directors will recognize that this is no time for you to lose heart."

"Furthermore, that those organizations which recognize their obligations under the present conditions of stress and proceed to so guard themselves that they can operate at their best are going to be the organizations which will show to their communities real results in the near future."

"My object in writing you is to get you to recognize your present day obligations entirely from the view of its future effects and that you will make up your mind as a board to dig in and put your board of commerce across the next winter even more effectively than you have in the past. These are times that try men's souls and I sincerely hope that you will do all you can to get your organization to function more effectively than you have in the past."—Wayne Dispatch.

NOVEL PASS-OUT CHECKS
The theatres in Japan have a novel method of pass-out tickets, which are positively not transferable. When a person wishes to leave the performance, with the intention of returning, he goes to the doorkeeper and holds out his right hand. The doorkeeper then, with a rubber stamp, imprints on the palm the mark of the establishment.

SEASON AFFECTS "TALKIES"
Experiments at the bureau of standards indicate that actors or talking "movies" must "speak louder" in a theatre in winter time, because the quality of winter clothing worn by the audience absorbs more sound than summer clothing.

"Gentle, Moist ELECTRIC HEAT bakes perfect cup cakes in my ELECTROCHEF!"

"CUP cakes that rise properly have a better flavor. Baking demands even heat—and even heat, of course, means electric heat. The mirror-like inner walls of my Electrochef electric range reflect the heat evenly to all parts of the oven. Only then will cup cakes rise properly. Instead of the intense dry heat of the ordinary oven, my Electrochef electric range maintains gentle, moist heat from a glowing element, uniform and at just the right temperature from start to finish.

"Now I never have baking disappointments. I simply set the oven dial to the correct temperature, and the cakes turn out perfectly. There is no guesswork with my Electrochef!"

Satin by Day and Satin by Night

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

AS TO the fabric which is outstanding at the present moment, it is satin by day and satin by night, which reigns supreme in the mode. The style-wise woman who is seeking to replenish her midseason wardrobe or planning her fall costumes will, if she has not already done so, discover that there is simply no getting away from satin either for sports wear or the formal evening gown or for the popular pajama fashions.

Notwithstanding its aspect of luxury, satin, whether it be white or in pastel colors, owing to the fact that it tubs perfectly, has proven conclusively that it is as practical as it is chic for the making of the sports costume. Which accounts for the enthusiasm with which fashion's followers are turning satinward this season.

Just now it is the sleeveless white or pastel satin tulleur which is making definite appeal. The model to the right in the illustration is typical. Details which intrigue in the styling of this attractive sports suit are square revers, big buttons and a belted waistline for the blouse with a generous pleating giving a proper flare to the skirt.

In many instances the mode is varied with a cunning cape arrangement to take the place of sleeves. The very latest satin sports frocks are intricately seamed after the manner which has so successfully entered into the designing of the evening satin frock.

Later on, and now for that matter, the suit or afternoon frock of black satin will become the theme paramount. If not black then brown satin will be first choice, for fashion reports are already placing emphasis on brown for fall. Softly tailored effects distinguish the very smart and very wearable costume pictured to the left. This five o'clock ensemble which is of black crepe satin endorses the jacket-suit styling, with draped collar of self-satin. The blouse is of pale pink triple chiffon.

As to satin for the evening frock word from Paris, as in fact from all style centers, reassures us to a continuance of its triumphs. We are showing in the miniature panel at the top a lovely formal gown made of rose-ivory satin. The neckline of this charming dress subscribes to the vogue which calls for softly tied bows. These bows which are so casually tied are made a feature throughout the styling of satin modes whether they be "sportsy" or ultra formal.

After you have indulged in a satin sports frock, a satin afternoon dress and a satin for formal, you will be liking satin so well by that time the urge for a satin pajama ensemble will likely follow. The vogue of pajamas for formal evening wear is interpreted in alabaster crepe satin as shown in the other tiny panel. Curved seams suggest an empire silhouette in the bodice. Shaped inserts in the wide trousers contribute a graceful fullness below the molded bodice. The girde tied about the modish jacket foretells a trend to short-waist empire lines which seem imminent for fall and winter.

COLOR CONTRASTS STYLE'S DICTUM

Different Shades Are Combined With White.

Color contrasts continue to sweep fashion, across the stable white background of the summer mode. For though this summer is distinctly a time of play upon color, it is just as definitely a white summer. In the spring we talked much of black with a touch of white and colored frocks with a touch of white. Now the talk has reversed itself and the chatter is about white with a touch of color, and sometimes more than a touch.

In the realm of sports clothes this color accent on white is of the most brilliant tones. For city and street wear it is a bit more discreet, but it is ever present in the mode as worn in smart restaurants at luncheon and tea time.

All the colors are enthusiastically talked about achieve chic through contrasting with white. To further amplify this mode there are jackets of white fur, such as broadtail and pony skin, jackets of white chiffon and of white crepes and corded silks. Gloves are white and white hats of panama, of white velvet, felt or even suede also are among the high spots of summer fashion news.

Dresses of sheer white woolen and those of white cotton fabrics are seen on city streets as well as on country club piazzas.

Linen Is in Limelight Among Paris Fashions

Linen is now high-style, as they term it in dressmaking circles. It is favored, in every color of the rainbow, and in the pleasantest of printed patterns, observes a Paris fashion writer in the New York Herald Tribune. Molyneux makes use of this vogue for linens to produce the two-piece dress, with skirt of one color and jumper or blouse of another, with emphasis placed on the jumper.

Effects typical of Captain Molyneux's designing are obtained in his new models by adding to these linen costumes a coat which matches the tunic in color and length.

Another smart use of linen is seen in its alliance with wool in three-piece suits consisting of a wool skirt, linen blouse, and a wool jacket lined with linen to match the blouse. The cloth is a soft spongy woolen in new weaves. Linen in a pale pink shade is used for the blouse and coat lining of a suit of blue cloth.

There is news in this lining of coats to match blouses, or the tops of dresses that are in two colors. In the case of longer coats, those of seven-eighths or full length, the blouse material is used for the upper part of the coat lining; the bottom part matches the skirt of the dress.

Exquisite Pajamas

These exquisite pajamas, designed for hostess wear, are in opaline green satin and imported embroidered alexandrite lace. Unlike most models of this sort the coat is long and does not fasten in front, but acts as a sort of throw-over robe. The jewels are diamonds and rubies for contrast; the sandals are the new Grecian-cut type to match.

Dark Shades Will Be Popular for Autumn

Wear blue in its many varied shades while you may for it is "hispered that blue recedes from the color chart with the advent of autumn. Blue is excellent for summer and this means not only the blue costume, but shoes, bags and hats. Blue is a spring and summer color and it is but in the nature of color fashions that it yields to the autumnal shades.

Grayed green, wine red and rich brown, are the three most important colors that will appear at the end of summer. Black, of course, persists from year to year, but the deepness of shade in colors for woollens with self-tone designs in the weave, lends color new distinction and prestige.

"Branding" Babies Ends Mix-Ups

SCIENCE, through the ultra violet ray, has discovered a means of safeguarding the identity of new-born babies and it was tried for the first time when the initials of two baby girls were "burned," by means of the ray, upon their thighs immediately after their birth. The experiment was performed at the Shore Road hospital in Brooklyn, where the initials also were placed on the arms of the babies' mothers to make doubly certain that there would be no mix-up in the identity of the babies.

The rays of a large violet ray machine are directed upon a tin disk in which have been cut the proper initials, which is placed against the baby's thigh. It requires four minutes to bring out the identification marks, which remain for ten days.

The illustration shows Nurse Therese Marc-Aurele "branding" baby Irma Wagenfeld, daughter of Mrs. Jeanette Wagenfeld, who is looking on.

FLATHORN'S TROUBLES

"DID I understand you to say that Flathorns, the Moose, is having troubles?" asked Buster Bear of Honker the Goose, who had just come down from the Great Woods of the North to the pond of Paddy the Beaver in the Green Forest.

Honker nodded. "I see your ears are just as good as ever they were," said he. "That is what I said. Flathorns is having troubles a-plenty. At least he was when I left on my way here. It seems queer that such a big fellow as he should have anything to worry about, but when I last saw him he was so worried that he was think-

Peter's eyes opened wider than ever. "Are you afraid of him?" he asked innocently, staring very hard at Buster, for he couldn't imagine Buster being afraid of anyone excepting a hunter with a terrible gun.

"Well," replied Buster, slowly, with a funny look on his face. "I—I—that is, Flathorns and I never have quarreled."

Prickly Porky chuckled. "Come Buster," said he, "own up that you always have kept out of the way of old Flathorns. You know perfectly well that he isn't afraid of you, and that you wouldn't face those big horns of his and those sharp-edged hoofs of his for anything in the world."

"Flathorns and I never interfere with each other," replied Buster with a great deal of dignity.

Peter had listened to all this with a puzzled look on his face. "But this isn't telling me what Flathorns is like," he interrupted. "He must be very big indeed if Buster Bear is afraid—I mean respects him so much."

"He is," spoke up Jumper the Hare. "You have seen the horse that Farmer Brown's boy drives in the cornfield."

Peter nodded. "Is he as big as that?" he asked, looking as if he couldn't quite believe such a thing.

Jumper nodded in his turn. "And on his head he has the biggest horns you ever saw," said he. "You see Flathorns is cousin to Lightfoot, the Deer, only ever and ever so much bigger. He is the biggest of all the family, and his horns are flattened instead of being round like Lightfoot's."

"If he is so big as all that I don't see what troubles he can have," declared Peter.

"Hunters," declared Honker. "They hunt for those big horns of his, though what they want of them, I can't understand. They hide at the places where old Flathorns goes to drink and try to shoot him. They steal along behind him through the woods. They imitate the voice of Mrs. Flathorns, and try to call him to where they are hiding so that they can shoot him, just as they imitate the calls of my friends and try to kill me. It seems to me that this is the meanest of all mean ways. None but men folks ever do anything so unfair as that. Oh, yes, big as he is, old Flathorns has his troubles. He doesn't feel safe a minute. But once in a while he gets even. He did a few days before I left to come south."

"Are You Afraid of Him?" He Asked Innocently.

ing of leaving all his favorite places because he didn't feel that they were safe any longer."

"Why not?" demanded Peter Rabbit, his eyes round with curiosity and his long ears standing straight up with interest. "Is he afraid of traps?"

Buster Bear, Honker, Paddy the Beaver, Prickly Porky, and Jumper the Hare laughed right out. "What do you think Flathorns is like?" asked Honker.

"I haven't the least idea," replied Peter quite frankly. "You said he is big, but so is Buster, and he is afraid of traps. I don't see anything to laugh at."

"There isn't," replied Buster kindly. "It just struck me as funny to think of anyone setting traps for old Flathorns, but as you've never seen him, of course you wouldn't understand. He's bigger than me. He's the biggest of all the people who live in the Great Woods."

Last Friday the radio broadcast consisted of several numbers by Mr. and Mrs. Neale, duets by Mrs. Roland Allenbaugh and Miss Gertrude Grainger, with Miss Melissa Roe, accompanist, and a testimony by Miss Catherine Compton. In the fall, if God willing, we will resume the broadcasts, but during the month of August the "Good News Hour" will be carried on by three neighboring Baptist churches. Tune in daily at 12:30 for these.

Christian Science Notes

"Truth" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches on Sunday, July 26. Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Judgment also will I lay to the line, and righteous ness to the plummet and the hail shall sweep away the refuge of lies, and the waters shall overflow the hiding place" (Isa. 28:17). The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Truth, Life, and Love are the only legitimate and eternal demands on man, and they are spiritual lawgivers, enforcing obedience through divine statutes" (p.184).

EPISCOPAL NOTES

"The younger son... wasted his substance. And when he came to himself, he said, I will arise and go to my Father."—Gospel for Ninth Sunday after Trinity.
How many people are like this young man in the story of the Prodigal Son, little valuing their blessings until they are past and gone! How many wasted opportunities that are in life! Wasted opportunities for worship; wasted opportunities for service; wasted opportunities for friendship; immutable lost chances! They never come back. Others may follow, but these are gone forever. In this sense, at least, each separate opportunity "knocks but once."
How is it with you? When the hour of worship struck last Sunday, was its blessing yours? It can be this Sunday.
Church-going is a fine investment of time; it is restful, and strengthening, and helps to develop our best selves. Yet it is all too easily neglected. Irregularly simply kills any good habit, and church attendance is a good habit! Most excuses for not going to church really mean, "I don't care." Are you wasting a weekly opportunity to enrich your life, are you missing something worth while, an hour of communion and self-improvement in the presence of the Master?
This Sunday seize the opportunity, and say, "I will arise and go to my Father." This Sunday, go to church!

CATHOLIC NOTES

Sunday is the first Sunday in August. This month being dedicated to the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary, the feast day being August 15. Next Friday is the first Friday—Holy Communion will be distributed at 7:45 a. m.
Nathan baseball team will again play ball on their own diamond at Newburg, at 3:00 o'clock.
Father Lefevre's condition is somewhat improved this week. Don't forget to remember him in your prayers and good works.
