GOES TO SLEEP, HITS A TRAIN

Auto Driver Has A Narrow Escape Here Early Last Sunday.

G. L. Moore, 1833 Delaware avenue, Detroit, went to sleep while driving his automobile early Sunday morning and crashed into a Pere Marquette train at the Ann Arbor road crossing. He was but slightly injured but his automobile was completely wrecked. How he escaped being killed, he was unable to tell. The moving train carried his automobile to the side of the road where it was turned over in a heap of wreckage. Moore made his way to the Plymouth police station where he reported the accident to chief officers. He was cut about the face, a number of teeth were knocked out and he was badly bruised. After being attended by a physician, he went to his home in Detroit.

NEW ST. MICHAEL'S CHURCH AT ROSEDALE GARDENS

COMMUNISM IS NOT WANTED

D. A. R. Members Lead In Fight Against Destructive Movement.

The Sarah Ann Cochran Chapter, D. A. R., held its October meeting at the home of Mrs. Walter Nichol, Monday, October 19th.

Hotting business was followed by committee reports. The committee on patriotic education reported plans for the second contest in American history. The chapter plans to extend the contest to include the Northville schools as well as Plymouth. The committee on the proper use of the flag plans to publish the date for the display of the flag.

The program of the day was in charge of the vice-president, Mrs. Harriet Baker, and consisted of reports of the state D. A. R. conference held in Detroit, October 6 to 8, Miss Barbara Hartman, who acted as judge at the conference, gave her impressions as a judge. Mrs. Carl Bryan of Northville, registrar of the Sarah Ann Cochran Chapter, attended the registrars' round table, and brought the message of the state registrar to the chapter. Mrs. Roger Vaughn told of the work of various chapters, the very enjoyable tea at the colony club given by Mrs. Henry C. Joy, and the address given by Senator Hamilton Fish. The Senator talked on communism in the United States. He stressed the fact that six main points of communism must be combated. These are:

1. Hatred of God and all religious beliefs;
2. Destruction of private property and inheritance;
3. Promotion of class hatred;
4. Promotion of discontent and perpetual rioting;
5. Bringing about civil war;
6. Establishment of a communist government with capital of the world in Moscow.

He said their doctrine is a government of terror by terror through force and violence. In mentioning the report of the committee to investigate communism, of which he was chairman, he said they advocated that the government exclude and deport communists; that American people give precedence to American goods and American workmen; that the Department of Justice be given power and money to keep posted on communistic developments. Mr. Fish said that our government is severely criticized by communists, but our workmen for fifty years have been the best paid in the world, with the result that communists prefer to live in America. He also said that of all organizations, the D. A. R. had done the most to combat communism.

After "Michigan, My Michigan" was sung by the members of the chapter, Mrs. C. W. Root reported the Memorial Service which was in charge of Miss Catherine Weeks, state chaplain.

Mrs. Dwight Randall gave the report of her visit to Aquila Sturgis Chapter in Dearborn. She spoke briefly of her report to Aquila Sturgis Chapter in Dearborn. She also gave a synopsis of Dr. Jevic's talk on American goods and American workmen. He said the point of American government is not to own or control but to regulate. She also mentioned the fact that the conference passed a resolution that the D. A. R. of Michigan file simply and automatically during the depression. The patriotic education committee once more made a request for garments for a box for the mountain school at Crossmore, N. C.

Plymouth Boasts One Of Strongest Building And Loan Associations In The State—Annual Audit Just Finished

A recent annual audit of the Plymouth Savings & Loan Association reveals the unusual strength of Plymouth's only association. A detailed statement appears in this week's issue of the Plymouth Mail.

Due to the increasing number of new accounts the Plymouth Savings & Loan Association has been able to loan money at a time when so greatly needed.

The loans made during the past few months have been placed at less than forty per cent of a conservative valuation at the present time.

The sound investment value of real estate mortgages placed on Plymouth property in accordance with conservative appraising has been definitely established.

The soundness of these values has been reflected in the excellent condition of Plymouth's financial institutions.

Kiwanis Club Nets $504 From Recent Carnival Contest

Over half a thousand dollars!

To be exact, $504 is the amount that Plymouth residents poured into the Kiwanis club children's Christmas fund at the recent rifle shoot and carnival held in the big Powell garage on South Main St.

Chairman Edson Hinton at the club Tuesday night reported that the final figures showed, after all bills had been paid, that the club had netted $504. This is considerable more than President Allison and other members of the committee thought they would make from the event.

Ray Crowe presented a resolution at the meeting, which was passed with everyone voting in favor of it, expressing thanks to many outsiders who had worked diligently to make the event a success.

It was "Michigan Day" for the program committee. Earl Mastick having charge of the program and providing club members with considerable data as to Michigan's ranking in the nation.

Home Budgeting Is Discussed

The second meeting of the Plymouth Home Management Group was held at the home of Mrs. Sam Spier, on Thursday, October 16th, with thirteen members answering roll call.

The lesson subject "Budgeting" was first presented by the project leaders, Mrs. J. P. Root and Mrs. Ray Holcomb. The answers to some of the questions as asked by the leaders made much merit, as well bringing out splendid ideas in the arguments.

The next meeting of this group will be held with Mrs. Robert Gardner, Ann Arbor Trail, on November 12th; subject, "Filling the Market Basket." Each member have in mind the contribution of canned goods for the needy.

Publication in the Plymouth Mail in a recent issue of the visit of Railroad Jack to this community, brought to the memory of Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Gale a visit that Railroad Jack made to their home in January, 1899. At that time the family lived in Superior township district of Washtenaw county, and with the next next set for Los Angeles in 1932, three promises to be considerable rivalry among those who have Olympic aspirations.

STARS MEET IN RING SHOW

Plymouth To See 20 Fast Amateurs In Action On November 4th.

Twenty of the best amateur fighters of the state will be on the program, the first to be staged in Plymouth under the direction of the Michigan Association of the Amateur Athletic Union.

Fans from Plymouth, Northville and surrounding territory are looking forward with considerable interest to Nov. 4th, when they will witness a ten bout program which will include many who are seeking berths on the American Olympic team. The privilege of representing the United States in the Olympics is the greatest prize that can be awarded the amateur athlete.

Mrs. Betty Naylor has received from Dr. Will George Butler, author of the official song for the Washington celebration to be held next year, an autographed copy of the song, "Long Live America."

With it came a picture of Dr. Butler standing with Thomas Edison at the entrance of the Edison laboratory taken a few months ago at West Orange, New Jersey.

Dr. Butler went to visit Mr. Edison and play his famed selection for him. Mr. Edison was high in his praise of the music.

Mrs. Naylor has known Dr. Butler for a great many years, and is especially pleased over his remembrance of her with a copy of the song that will be sung in every hamlet of America next year.

It was a very lovely and inspiring meeting.

ANNUAL RED CROSS DRIVE

Plymouth's Campaign For Funds Will Start On Next Monday.

CHAIRMAN ASKS UNITED SUPPORT

Effort Will Be Made To Secure One Hundred Per Cent Enrollment—Aid For Suffering People.

On Monday morning next, October 20th, the annual Red Cross drive for memberships will begin in Plymouth, and booths will be opened as usual in the Plymouth United Savings Bank where memberships can be taken out.

It seems almost unnecessary to say all the good things that could be said in favor of the American Red Cross, most of our residents are aware of the great catastrophes that have been taken care of so promptly and thoroughly by this national organization and we all know that the funds used by the Red Cross are secured through the memberships taken out each year by the people of America, each city and hamlet throughout our country doing its share in this mighty work for suffering humanity whenever by flood or drought or other terrible calamity the need is found to exist. We bespeak for this 1931 membership drive the same generous response in the matter of memberships and efforts that it has heretofore always met with. Also we assure you to bear in mind that while fifty cents or each dollar received goes to national headquarters in Washington, the other fifty cents we receive is placed to the credit of our home branch and is deposited in our own banks where it will be available in case of need in our own community.

The month of Red Cross volunteer workers under the direction of Chairman of Booths, Mrs. R. C. Minnick. The posters and all advertising of our local campaign will be taken care of by the chairman of publicity, P. H. Hatch, General chairman, Mrs. C. H. Bennett.

A WAY TO HELP

Out they go!
 During recent weeks an especial effort has been made to get the window cards in Plymouth stores.

These cards advertise shows in other cities not so far from Plymouth, pictures that have in many cases been shown in Plymouth.

Several local business men have decided that it is not good business or not the best indication of loyalty to local business institutions to display these window cards and so they have refused to permit them to be put up in their stores.

Others have doubtless done so from mere thoughtlessness in the matter.

Now an effort is being made to get every local business concern in Plymouth to out these outside window cards.

The Plymouth Mail has steadfastly refused to accept theatre advertising from amusement places outside Plymouth. Not so many months ago an advertising contract amounting to a considerable sum was turned down.

Some of these theatres offer tickets in exchange for window card display space. But a local business man or woman gains nothing by using these outside tickets.

It can be figured this way—every time anyone comes to a show in Plymouth, not only the show is benefited but the whole town is benefited.

Sometimes before or after the show, the show house visitor will go into a lunch room for a sandwich and possibly a cup of coffee.

When this small purchase is made, not only is the Plymouth restaurant owner benefited, but the Plymouth baker that made the rolls, the Plymouth meat man that sold the meat, the Plymouth grocer that sold the flour, the Plymouth milk man that sold the milk, and many others directly or indirectly profit by this purchase, even though it amounts to but a few cents.

The Kaminian-Alton theatre offers to Plymouth and vicinity a good show as can be seen anywhere. Often some of the latest pictures are displayed here weeks ahead of the outlying theatres in Detroit. Frequently they come direct from the big downtown theatres.

No one gains a thing by advertising an outside theatre—not a thing, even though you get free tickets for the show.

So let's all get together and say, "Boys, we guess you will have to take your window cards to some other town. Plymouth folks have got a mighty good show house and all the latest pictures can be seen here. Anyway we have decided to keep Plymouth money in Plymouth, so you'll have to take your window cards somewhere else."

Out with the theatre cards of outside theatres!

DESERVED PRAISE

When officials of both the city of Detroit and county of Wayne last week paid tribute to the splendid work that Dr. Robert Haskell has accomplished at the Wayne County Training school, they spoke words of praise that were well deserved. Dr. Haskell alone can be given credit for building up one of the finest institutions of his kind in the country. Previous to coming to Wayne county he had had charge of one of Michigan's most difficult institutional problems and his success in that field caused officials of Wayne county to believe that he was just the man to assume control of the newly organized Training school. The school at the time Dr. Haskell came here was a sort of hodge-podge affair but fortunately its brief existence had not permitted conditions to go so far that most of them could not be corrected. Educators and social workers realize the importance of Dr. Haskell's accomplishments. He ranks as one of the foremost authorities in the country on the training and education of underprivileged children. It is a position of standing he has won by a devoted service to a real problem.

CONGRATULATIONS

It is a pleasure to offer to President Floyd Eckles, Secretary Berz Moore and members of the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce congratulations for their success in inducing one of the large Detroit industries to open a plant in Plymouth. It has been known for many weeks that the Chamber of Commerce officials have been putting forth every effort to induce some concern to locate in the plant of the old iron company. Surely it is pleasing to note that success has culminated their consistent efforts in behalf of the community. The officials of the company regard Plymouth as an exceptionally fine location for its business and while present plans are not to employ a large number of people, a return of better business conditions will doubtless see the old iron plant one of the busiest places around Detroit. Mr. Moore and other officials of the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce are working every minute for the benefit of Plymouth. We should back this organization to the hilt as we all profit by what it is doing.

SKY GROWS BRIGHTER

Nearly everyone dislikes to see fall and winter approach. The ending of summer always means cloudy, cold, wet days. Then comes the north wind with snow and ice—not a great many weeks away. With it this year there has been a heap of talk that the winter is going to be a "hard one." True it is that people have not been able to make as good wages or as much money as they have in past years—but did you ever recall of a harvest time when crops have been so plentiful as this year—when fruit trees were so heavily laden? Growers say that more cans have been sold during recent weeks than for many years past. Housewives talk about having every can in their basements filled with something for the winter months. In most any direction from Plymouth and you will see provisions being made for winter as never before. Food has been stored, wood that in former years has been permitted to rot on the ground, is being hauled to town—everybody seems as busy as a swarm of bees. Then, too, there has been a brighter ray of sunshine coming out of the business sky this fall than there was a year ago. Last year we were all guessing at it but now we see real evidence of an improved business condition. Many big factories in the east that have been closed down for two or three years are starting to operate again. Michigan industries reflect a trifle better spirit. Yes, everything looks a bit brighter—and next spring when warm days come and the snow and ice disappear with a bright sun shining overhead, we will look ourselves that we were worrying about last fall. The sky is brighter even during these dull, cloudy days of late October. It will continue to be brighter as time goes on—if we will just make up our minds that it shall be that way.

PAYING THE PIPER

There are growing signs that the voters of this country are beginning to realize that government costs money, and that this cost is being paid by the people of the United States.

Time was when the states said: "If we put up a million dollars for this and the federal government will give up another million, and so we will get two for one."

This proved popular, so much so in fact that counties began trying the same system with the state governments. And then townships began using it on the county governments. "Dollar for dollar" became the popular conception of getting something for nothing.

But now, all of a sudden it seems, the truth has come home to the taxpayers that there is no such thing as "something for nothing." They have discovered that they are obliged to pay all these dollars—township, county, state, and federal—and that the more debts that are piled up the more the taxpayers will have to pay.

So this "dollar for dollar" business isn't so popular as it was. The question of paying the dollars is getting as much attention as spending them. Economic truths have a way of becoming unpleasant like this.

THOMAS EDISON

Not only America but the entire world is mourning the death of Thomas A. Edison. Possibly no other one man since the beginning of civilization added so much to human progress as did Mr. Edison. Henry Ford, for nearly half a century one of Mr. Edison's personal friends, has prepared probably the best of all tributes that have been paid the great inventor and leader. It follows:

"Mr. Edison was a truly great man. He changed the face of the world in his lifetime, and everything he achieved was beneficial to mankind. The epoch created by his work will influence all the future. His fame is independent of the fluctuations of judgment of history. It is etched in light and sound on reality and hourly life of the world.

"I knew him for nearly 40 years. He was the chief hero of my boyhood and he became my friend in manhood. That experience must be rare—to have one's early hero for one's later friend. The first encouraging word I ever had from any informed person on the making of a gasoline automobile was given me by Mr. Edison.

"Great as an inventor, he was greater as a man. He knew the secret of work. His persistence amounted to genius. However much he was opposed to his ideas, he developed them through tireless experiment and downright hard work.

"His guiding principle was to make life better for human beings. His honesty was rugged, he had great courage and a lively sense of humor, but so rounded was his character that no trait stood out above the rest.

"Mr. Edison was a deeply religious man in the highest sense of that word. He knew so much of the unexplained and mystery of the universe that he revered it and the purpose behind it. He did some work for which the world is not yet ready. In foresight and insight he was a prophet.

"Latterly he turned his mind to economic questions because he believed the present system hindered the best in men. He thoroughly believed that an economic improvement which must come is a closer relation between agriculture and industry. He was convinced that our money machinery was badly in need of attention.

"Mr. Edison believed that the essential individual life survived the change called death. We often spoke of it together. Faith with him was a real evidence of things not seen. Mr. Edison himself did not grow like a young driver in a worn-out car. He has just gone, I believe, to get new facilities to continue his work. But the sense of personal loss is very heavy. There was only one Edison."

RIGHTS OR DUTY

Many times in our lives we are confronted by the question: "Shall I stand on my rights, or recognize my duties to others?"

It is quite often a puzzling question.

For sometimes the question is raised in matters so trivial that it does not seem to make any difference which way it is answered.

Yet when the answer will be of great importance to both ourselves and others, decision is sometimes more difficult.

Because if one stand on his rights he may be more duty and thus appear selfish. On the other hand, if he forget his rights and discharge his duty to others he may make sacrifice that is not appreciated by them.

Between those alternatives many a man hesitates because he feels that he'll be damned if he does, and damned if he doesn't. As the result he sidesteps, displaying weakness that brings him contempt and derision.

An old philosopher contemplated this question and reached the conclusion that "he who would be strong will in the discharge of duty sacrifice his own rights when others by his sacrifice benefit more than he might by standing on his own rights."

Troty good philosophy.

BOTH SIDES OF THE LEDGER

Politicians seeking to manufacture political capital have made much ado about tax refunds granted individuals and corporations by the Treasury Department during the last fiscal year.

Such tax returns last year amounted to more than $63,000,000. The critics who weren't shouting "federalism" were saying that the Treasury Department should be more careful about the matter of assessments and collections.

Not a word was said about the other side of the picture. While the government did make errors, $63,000,000 worth of them to be exact, it also detected mistakes on the part of individuals and corporations upon which it collected $382,788,085 in underpaid income taxes, more than five times what was paid out in refunds.

It is well, therefore, that the general public should know both sides of the tax refund and collection story. The politicians' account is bound to be biased.

THE VALUE OF AN IDEAL

At the beginning of the Fifteenth Century, a cathedral was being built. It was in the beautiful valley of the Garonne in Southern France. The setting sun patterned the ground with soft, mellow shadows. The work was hazy and the progress was slow, but they toiled on.

A stranger approached this group. For a while he watched the stone workers, and presently approached them. Of the one nearest he asked: "What are you doing that for?"

"For a few years a day," was the surly reply.

To the second, the question was repeated: "What are you doing that for?"

"To make the stone smooth," he answered without pausing in his task.

He asked his question of the third workman: "What are you doing that for?"

"Astonishment crept over the face of the artisan; then a dreamy look came to his eyes. He passed his hand lovingly over the smooth stone surface and said: "I am helping to build a great cathedral."

This answer so impressed the traveler that it served as an inspiration for all the workers. A new spirit was born. The great cathedral soon was completed. It was a work of love, of fidelity, of integrity, of beauty.

Devotion to an ideal always brings its rewards.

What Other Michigan Editors Are Thinking About

The Refusal To Pay Taxes

Evidence is accumulating that a good many solvent individuals are refusing, and at times you hear them say they're not going to pay their taxes. This, for no better reason than they do not choose to pay. No argument is required to show how dangerous and subversive of order such an attitude can become. The effects are already apparent by a shortage of funds to operate the business of the country, or to obtain credit in anticipation of taxes.

Many are not paid because they cannot find the money. No blame attaches to them. Others, however, are inventing legal quibbles and excuses for refusing to contribute to support of the government. A favorite dodge is to allege that the assessment is somewhat too high and for that reason to pay no taxes at all. This is a subterfuge which is unconvincing. Everyone who thinks his assessment is excessive has recourse under the law. He may appear before the Tax Commission or Board of Review. That is an honorable course to pursue. It is in striking contrast to the tactics of those who are not going to pay, just because they are not going to pay, thereby obtaining a temporary advantage over those who have honored their obligation to the community.

Refusal to pay taxes simply because taxpaying is distasteful is unfair. It is properly resented by those who have paid at considerable sacrifice to themselves.—George Neal in the Orion Review.

A Real Fellow

Here is a story which is worth recording. It came to us from the lips of one of our front street merchants, regarding his own help, which establishes the truth of the matter. This merchant said, naming one of his clerks, called him to the back room and stated that he knew what the times are and the struggle that the merchants and business men are having to stay in business. Now, he said, I want you to cut my wages so many dollars until times brighten up and you can afford to pay me my salary again. How is that? His particular clerk is one of the most popular in Grand Ledge, and it would have been perfectly normal for him to have taken the stand that his popularity would entitle him to the limit of wages just as long as his employer could possibly pay them. A clerk who takes the stand he did is not only a good clerk, but he is loyal and faithful to his job, for one less than that would never have taken that step. This is an outstanding case. While many have been very decent in taking necessary cuts, others have been peeved, and most very one would wait till the ax actually fell which is perfectly normal. We congratulate both the man and his employer. Such relationship and cooperation always helps in building a fine and strong bid for business.—Frank Bryce in The Grand Ledge Independent.

Public Job Salaries

Back in the days of $10 wages for factory hands no one thought of the salaries paid public officials. In Detroit, for example, it was almost impossible back in those days to get sufficient help to carry the mail. The factory wage competition was too strong. In hard times the situation is different. The civil service commission is flooded with applications for work and it is a popular notion to cut the wages of persons holding public jobs. While it is perhaps a fact that many persons in public office are being paid more money than they could earn in other fields the percentage is no more out of line than would be the case in private enterprise.

In this connection here are interesting if not actually alarming tax facts:

One third of all the land in Michigan is tax delinquent. The interest on the outstanding bonded indebtedness of Oakland county alone is two and a half million dollars annually. The Michigan State Fair showed a net loss this year of $47,000.—Murl DeFoe in The Charlotte Republican.

A Real Public Official

There is no little personal satisfaction in paying tribute to Frank Fitzgerald, secretary of state, whereby his department has pointed the way to the possibility of economy in state administrative affairs. Not that we have previously wavered in our belief of such possibility, but it is gratifying to note that it is now becoming a reality. A story in this issue is headed "Proof of Possible Economy Seen Here." It tells of a saving of from $50,000 to $80,000 to be made in issuing vehicle registration lists. Our guess would be that in the past someone has been handed the job on a silver platter, just the same as any number of state printing contracts. Fifty thousand dollars in savings on one job looks like genuine money, and we're not willing to imagine that any printing concern can go astray with "price cutting" to account for any such difference in figures. Frank Fitzgerald and his department has scored one very thrifty trick.—Harry Izor in The Durand Express.

Al Weber's Idea

We observe that a lot of our learned educators about the state and not a few old folks who have forgotten youth or never enjoyed any have decreed that the time taken out for athletics and other school contests be considerably curtailed and that the students become more concerned about their studies than game contests and such. It would seem that the boys and girls might better spend their time in honing the mind and keen athletics and mental competition than indulging in much of the honey that is now rewarded of them by the learned theorists, who would have them pour-through studies that are now made necessary for a college course, which only a small per cent ever attain, still they are obliged to pursue studies that do not fit them for anything practical and of value to them in the regular pursuits of life.—Al Weber in The Cheloygan Observer.

AUTUMN

I love the Fall
 The best of all—
 When Summer seems to say:
 "Though soon to go,
 I still will show
 A face that's bright and gay."

When my life, too,
 Is nearly through,
 As I approach my night—
 May my last days
 Still seem to blaze
 With something fair and bright!

Missouri School Has Classes in Home Life

Kansas City, Mo.—Dissenters to the theory that American home life is rapidly disappearing will find material for debate in the sixth grade classrooms of the Kansas City public schools.

Miss Anna E. Hussey, director of homemaking, operates her classes on the principle that the thirteen-year-old girls have a share in the home and family life. The more they put into it the greater happiness they derive, aside from the benefits to other members of the family, Miss Hussey holds.

In her home economics classes she teaches courtesy, how best to spend spare time, how to lighten mother's work, how to entertain the younger children, and how to prepare foods.

The courtesy classes have aroused the most enthusiasm, Miss Hussey said. With an eye to debenture days, the girls are eager to know what to do when receiving and entertaining friends.

The project method was brought into play, and various social situations were unveiled in approved form. Young daughters in homes of the occasion, and she uses all the little tricks that contribute to the word "charming."

18 Foot Shark Caught in Net, Fights to End

Boston.—An 18 foot shark, weighing close to a ton, that was strong enough to bring an 80 foot fishing boat up short despite the fact that her powerful engines were operating at half speed, was landed at the 9th pier today by the dragger Natalie II, whose crew captured and killed the big fish 25 miles northeast of Thatcher's island recently.

When the Natalie was suddenly jerked to a stop on the fishing grounds with her big ground fish net trailing under water, Capt. Tony Linguata and his crew figured the net might have fouled a ledge or sunken wreck, so they hauled it in and discovered the huge shark in the strands.

The net was landed on the boat by the powerful winches and the crew slipped and slithered around the deck for half an hour sinking inches into the 18 footer before it succumbed.

"No girl should attempt a heavy date," says Practical Polly, "unless she is strong for a guy."

The metropolitan is funny. Out in the sticks he yearns to be back among the people he doesn't care a darn about.

As the freesty grows older, it becomes increasingly clear that the famous mirrors at Versailles didn't cause enough reflection.

Beetle, Farm Pest Is Parasite's Meal Ticket

Washington.—All human effort to stay the aggressive Japanese beetle has failed, but he is being mowed down by a parasite, the tipula popillivora rhover.

This parasite is particularly adapted for use in the natural control of the beetle because it is a specific parasite of this pest in its native land, and in this country the tendency is preserved.

Soil temperatures here appear to be favorable for its normal development. The adult, wasp-like parasite shows a decided preference for the flowers of wild carrot as food, and fortunately this plant is abundant in the region now infested with the beetle.

Dentist Pulls Own Teeth and Then Fits Bridge

Omaha.—Dr. H. E. Newton, Omaha dentist, recently pulled two of his own front teeth. After the gums healed Doctor Newton made a bridge for the cavities.

The doctor, however, didn't pull the teeth as an advertising stunt. The rest of the world probably would never have known that the doctor did his own dental work if it hadn't been for L. C. Chapman, insurance man, who held the mirror while the doctor performed the operation.

Sees Increase in Size of Middle West Farms

Ames, Iowa.—Material increase in the size of Middle Western farms is economically imminent in the opinion of Dr. A. G. Black, head of agricultural economics of Iowa State college.

With machinery as the dominant force, and large capital investments being thrown into the play, larger farms will shortly become common, Dr. Black believes.

Freshmen at Ohio U. to Be Given New Deal

Athens, Ohio.—The freshman—traditionally the "underdog" at Ohio university—has been elevated to the social position held by upper classmen. A new ruling passed by the junior-senior governing board gives the freshman privileges equal to those of his big brothers, the sophomore, the junior, and the senior.

No longer will first year students be forced to wear little green caps and be subjected to the maltreatment of sophomore vigilance committee. These were outlawed by the new rules.

The junior-senior board, in order to promote on the Ohio university campus a co-operative spirit among students, and to accord with the progressive institutions throughout the country withdraws the freshman rules made and authorized by them and recommends that the sophomore vigilance committee be disbanded, the new resolution stated.

For many years freshmen have been forced to wear green, short billed caps and obey certain rules of conduct on the campus.

British Census Takers to Hear True Ages

London.—The ever delicate question of a woman's age will be one of the principal features in the census of Britain's population, to be taken April 23. All women will be compelled to tell their ages.

Their embarrassment will not be public, however, for the authorities have undertaken to inflict severe penalties on anyone who unlawfully gives away the secret.

It is believed in many quarters that a number of woman members of parliament were partly responsible for the decision to withhold the knowledge from the curious and inquisitive. The reticence of the women of Westminster in regard to their ages is most noticeable in the reference books, which almost invariably omit the date of their birth.

Eastern Cemetery Laid Out Like Modern City

Travelers in Egypt approaching Cairo from the east are deeply impressed with the striking appearance, in a sandy valley between lines of broken hills, of a seemingly opulent city, close-built with houses of varying sizes and dominated at intervals with great domes and slender minarets. They are, however, greatly amazed upon reaching the city to find that not a living soul is in it.

Such is the "Eastern Cemetery," or "cemetery of the Sahara," in this strange city of the dead it is known. It is far more luxurious than many towns of the living. It has houses, streets, courts, shaded walks, and large, central buildings which are the tombs of the wealthy or great.

The principal structure, under a huge dome, is called the "Mosque of Kalthay," the tomb of a sultan. There are also the squalid quarters of the poor.

These cemetery homes often contain several rooms, all well furnished and decorated with beautiful oriental tapestries and silk hangings.

Least Brainy Girls Can Manage Mates

Cambridge, England.—The boy who got 80 per cent in an examination should never, never marry the girl who got 80 per cent. They would be far too clever for each other, according to Prof. Ernest Barker, professor of political science at the University of Cambridge. The professor, however, would marry the boy who got 80 per cent to the girl who got 40 per cent, and she would manage him.

Rosedale Gardens

Masq-Ball, the fifth annual masq-ball of the Rosedale Garden Parents-Teachers Association is next Tuesday night and if it is half as good as the previous affairs—it will be some good time.

Last Halloween the school was crowded to capacity. "Ze Grande Marche" entended all about the kindergarten room and main hall and then some.

People folks came from all over to enjoy themselves and compete for the prizes in costumes, fancy and funny, by pairs and singles. And even city folks can be funny at times, so funny was one or two that it was funny to see them win prizes.

Master of ceremonies, Clarence Marshall Hoffman, got his "M" for "middleman" in getting up these annual parties and won him the chairmanship of the Entertainment Committee. So this year he promises More fun than ever, and if it is possible, the Maidens of Rosedale will bake more and better cakes for the occasion. Ducats are to be three bits (35c) per person.

Next Sunday, all Day and Erther there will be great things at the St. Michael's Parish affair.

To church in the morning and to the Big Chicken Dinner next at four to eight, not that it will take four hours to eat your share, but 'cause there is expected enough people there to set so many tables and serve all corners.

Consists Daniel, Adam and Arthur of the Burnett-Honcke Staff have been busy building the tables and booths for the dinner and Festival, the latter is from eight (after tea) till done.

So, folks, just have breakfast and a life luncheon at home and save plenty room for the dinner.

The Ladies' Altar Society are planning their booths and work—or rather the plans are all made and the booths are all made but the work is not.

Further Conway tells us there are some fifteen thousand invitations in the mails this week.

So come early and stay late, and if you can't come early, come late anyhow, as the building is large and the acres are larger if the building gets too crowded.

The Rectory is completed and Rosedale Gardens welcomes our latest comer—Rev. John E. Conway—to his home at 11412 on the Pembroke road.

Now comes Mrs. Adams, who is well known among club women of the big city, who has leased the old farm house, at 3225, Plymouth Road, of Mrs. George Wright. Mrs. Adams is completely renovating the old homestead by the big red barn and plans to have a newer and better idea on the order of similar up-to-date Farm Dinner places.

Now that the sidewalk and grading and sodding is all done about the St. Michael's Parish building, we have our minds on Supr. Honcke and his shrimpeers, more landscaping and artistry along these lines. Al says he no sooner will have everything pretty and green than along will come someone and bug another for and then die hole in the pretty and the building dept. make unawfull mess putting a house in the hole, then he has to rake and scrape and landscape all over again. Shame (?) just one house after another is our motto tho'.

Furnace Fires r in season all about the countryside, ditto early morning frost. Tomatoe and other like fruits r done for—and many is the "can"—(why these women insist on calling a glass jar a "can" and an iron jar a "tin" we asked smarter men than the Editor and they—and the women—don't know only care that all is well with the cuts)—well, as we were about to say regarding "cans," is that many a "can" has been "canned" and re-poses 'til winter blasts make us all hungry, many "cans" by Gardente ladies, filled with chili and fruit and something.

Sundee visitors from Ann Arbor, Detroit 'n' all points of the compass were in season last week-end, and r further expected this coming week-end.

Let's hope the Kome mittee picked a nice day (the 25th inst.) to invitation ask so many to come to the First Annual Fete of St. Michael's Parish.

The observer has observed many beautiful, useful and ornamental things that the Altar Society Ladies have had donated for the Festival Booths, seems a few were blinder lamps, dolls, glassware, well lots too numerous to mention herewith.

ROSEDALE GARDENS SCHOOL NOTES

4th and 5th Grade Room
The fifth grade pupils are working out a unit on the American Indians. We have been reading many stories about Indian life. We have made Indian vases with Indian designs on them. Our girls made and dressed an Indian doll. We have made wigwams, and also homes for the Cliff Dwellers.

The fourth grade pupils are still working on "Life in the Desert" near the region of the Tigris and the Euphrates rivers. We have made flat-roofed houses from baked clay. We also made a noose, a koofta and a kolek. The girls dressed a doll in Arabian clothing.

We have eight people on our Dental Honor Roll.

We are collecting and taking pictures of scenery near our homes and in Michigan. These pictures are to show the use men make of land.

Grades 2 and 3
The boys and girls in our room are very much interested in the study of the American Indians just now. They have built a wigwam in the room. The table is made into an Indian camp. They have made tepees, canoes, dishes, drums and other things that the Indians used. They are planning to dramatize some scenes of the Indians' life and will make their own Indian dress, war bonnets and other equipment.

In health work the boys and girls are trying hard to be "Six Point Star Children." Each point has a meaning: weight, posture, vision, teeth, immunization and throat. Several have attained this goal already.

Three people have left our room lately. Harriet Kenne, Paul Harsha, and John Doering. Our enrollment now is twenty-two.

Thin fur and thin bark are signs of a mild winter. Maybe the present political arguments are a good omen.

Stop Night Coughing

Night coughing is almost always caused by an irritated, inflamed throat, so is almost all coughing. Ordinary cough syrups do not reach these conditions, but Thoxine, a prescription exclusively for throat troubles, does. It relieves the irritation and the cough stops within 15 minutes. And Thoxine goes further too. It stimulates the internal cause which many times develops into serious illness.

A swallow of Thoxine before retiring absolutely prevents night coughing and insures a good night's sleep. It gives the same speedy relief for sore throat too. It contains no chloroform or other harmful drugs and children like it. Relief is guaranteed within 15 minutes of money back. 35c, 60c and $1.00 bottles. Sold by: Dodge Drug Co. and all other good drug stores.

NEW AUTO PLATES WILL BE ON SALE NOVEMBER 14th

In an effort to rid the unemployment situation, Secretary of State Frank D. Fitzgerald has announced that 1932 automobile license plates will be placed on sale Nov. 14. This date is 15 days earlier than in former years, but it is thought that the advance in date will stimulate the purchase of new model automobiles and thus provide increased employment for Michigan workmen.

No change has been made regarding 1931 license plates. They may be used legally until March 1, 1932 but an appeal, based on state patriotism, has been made to all persons financially able to do so, to purchase 1932 plates by Jan. 1 to assist Michigan in financing its $10,000,000 winter highway construction program, affording work to about 30,000 men.

Money to Burn
By Peter B. Kyne

CHAPTER XIII
Mr. Absalom McPeake's secretary came into his office and handed him the card of Mr. Elmer Butterworth.

"In very excellent shape indeed, Mr. Clarke. All the minor bills of the estate have been paid, with the exception of the current monthly charges of the appraisers, have completed their task, their report has been filed and about all that remains to be done is to pay the federal and state taxes, the cost of probate, my fee as executor and attorney for the estate, the few specific bequests contained in your uncle's will and that old mortgage."

"I supposed you had paid the mortgage to avoid interest charges," Elmer remarked.
"Not yet. There isn't sufficient money in the estate to pay it."

"Strange! I gathered from your first advice to me that there was quite a sum on hand in cash, and also a couple of hundred thousand dollars' worth of marketable securities. I also understood that this mortgage was for a sum of forty thousand dollars."

"That is the principal sum. Perhaps I'd better start at the beginning and tell you the story as your uncle told it to me the day he made his will."

"Perhaps that would be better," Elmer suggested.
McPeake thereupon permitted the blow to fall. For about ten seconds Elmer stared at him unblinkingly—then a slow, amused smile lighted up his face. "So forty thousand dollars at eight per cent, compounded semi-annually for forty-two years, amounts to all that, eh? Suffering noddies! I should have known there was a catch in this will somewhere."

"I'm sorry, Mr. Clarke, but there's no way out for us. The record speaks for itself, your uncle's will gives us no alternative, and the next of kin to Benedict Cathcart has been discovered and has proved her case." McPeake looked his visitor over humorously. "I could furnish you with her name and address," he suggested. "Then you might hunt her up, court her, marry her and get the money back into the family."

"Thanks, not interested. There's a girl back in Pilarotos, Calif., who claims all of my sentimental attention. I hope to tell you I wouldn't lose her for a sum equal to the national debt."

"Bully for you, Mr. Clarke! And by the way, I must say I have never seen a man take such a loss with a smile before. I'll say you're game."

"Can't lose what I never had, Mr. McPeake. By the way, was the record of this old mortgage among my uncle's papers?"

"Oh, yes! Your uncle never deserted anything."

"Well, if I had found it, I would have suspected that the mortgage had not been paid, otherwise there would have been a copy of the release among his papers. So I would have run the record down and paid it myself. Uncle Hiram worried unnecessarily."

"You would have paid it yourself with interest compounded?"

"Certainly. A note is a note, just as a lot is a lot."

"But I—well, Mr. Clarke, I was going to suggest to you that we might get together with the present holder of that mortgage and offer a settlement. The deficiency judgment is outlawed, and if we made a poor month and told her that a large portion of the estate consisted of real estate not readily salable, we might get her to abate the compounded interest. Or we might induce her to accept a lot of dead real estate at inflated values—fix it with the appraisers of the estate to reappraise the property."

faithful, obedient, hard-working, efficient rabbit of a man. His job was to be the first job he ever had—and he is still on the estate pay roll helping me close up odds and ends of business matters.
"Very early in life he made a mistake. He married—and had children—gave hostages to fortune, as it were. So his job was bread and butter and he never had the courage to quit and seek another. I think it must have occurred to your uncle, from time to time, that the impossible might happen, and he promised Bunker he would leave him one hundred thousand dollars in his will. This promise he reiterated from time to time, but when it came to making his will he betrayed Bunker. Cut him off with ten thousand dollars—and if I had not fought him all over the office he would have let Bunker down with five thousand. But Bunker is not broken, of course." Peake paused and looked at Elmer meaningly.

"And you are about to propose that I make up the deficit, eh?" Elmer suggested.
"Exactly."

"Well, I'm afraid that, in a certain sense, you are right, Mr. Clarke."

"You bet I'm right. I do not have to see Bunker to know the sort of man he is. I have little girl and little love for such men, and it is a question in my mind whether, by fulfilling my uncle's insidious amount promise, I would be doing Bunker a real kindness. The money would probably turn his head."

"Well, I'll let Bunker argue his own case," McPeake decided. "Now then, my principal debtor is Uncle Hiram, and the only way the cash can be secured is to sell off the real estate belonging to the estate. The properties are covered with old buildings in a bad state of repair, but the income from rents is excellent."

"Are the properties salable?"

"At a price—yes."

"Well, if we hang on until they are salable at a fair price, we may be years closing this estate, and in the meanwhile that mortgage will continue to draw eight per cent compounded semi-annually. That's no business, Mr. McPeake. Get an order of court to sell that property for public auction."

"My idea exactly, Mr. Clarke, your decision does credit to your common sense and business instincts."

"What have you done with that little private banking business—or was it a pawnbroking establishment?"

"I sold it at a very good figure and the probate court has approved the sale."

"When the estate is finally settled, what do you think my share will amount to?"

"Oh, I should say, offhand, a quarter of a million dollars."

"Well, I'll always be a millionaire in Pilarotos. I've been duly advertised as such and while I continue to pay my bills I'll have the credit rating of a millionaire. That will help. I can go just as far on credit as I can on cash. Just want to see that, huh, all?"

He rose to go. "Think I'll go to New York and see some good shows," he informed McPeake. "Despite the wallowing you've lauded me, I think I can afford a month or two on Broadway. After all, a quarter of a million is better than a poke in the eye with a sharp stick. I'll hang around Muscatine a few days and sign any papers you may require."

He took a cheerful departure. The instant the door was closed behind him McPeake rang for his secretary. "I've always heard that out in California they grow things big," he informed her. "Big potatoes, big pumpkins, big cattle and big hogs, but if Elmer B. Clarke is a sample of her manhood, California grows the biggest men I ever hope to see. That boy certainly can take a taking standing up."

"Take a letter to Miss Nellie Cathcart, care Pilarotos Commercial Trust and Savings bank, Pilarotos, Calif. Dear Miss Cathcart: Your sweetie arrived today and without any preliminary warning I slipped him the fatal tidings, but withholding your identity, of course. He can lose a million dollars and put his bright daydreams behind him with as much grace and humor as if he reckoned his loss in depreciated German marks instead of good red U. S. gold coin. I'm for him all the way. He's a man, and should you permit him to escape you will suffer an irreparable loss. He uses his head entirely for thinking. Pilarotos is lucky to have him for its mayor-elect. Please see to it that politics don't spoil him. Yours sincerely."

"Now make out a petition to the probate court for the sale of all the real estate of the Butterworth estate, and I'll have Mr. Clarke and Bunker sign it. Then make out an order of sale for the court to sign, and in about a month from now we'll distribute the estate and send Elmer Clarke back to win the best little love letter you ever heard of. He won't lose and he will lose only to win. That Nellie Cathcart must be a very unusual woman. She had a curiosity to find out whether or not Elmer Clarke could fit Kipling's recipe for manhood. Remember the lines? If you can meet with triumphs and disaster. And treat those two imposters both the same."

"Well, I'm banking on Elmer."

"CHAPTER XIV
The following afternoon, when Elmer again called at McPeake's office, he found Elmer there. The lawyer introduced them. Elmer greeted the old clerk pleasantly but without enthusiasm, and McPeake saw by his quick appraising glance that he was striving to find in Bunker's personality a reasonable excuse to be decent to the old fellow."

"They chatted together for an hour and then Bunker withdrew. "Well, what do you think of Bunker, now that you've met and talked to him?"

"He's a furtive little old rat," Elmer declared promptly. "He took on the respect of a colonel of his surroundings. Like all weak men, he could, I think, be very cruel. I've been thinking over his case and I've decided not to make him a gift of ninety thousand dollars. I cannot afford the philanthropy, and whenever I turn philanthropist I'm sure to get a sharp stab at the object of my solicitude. He tells me the old man paid him fifty dollars a month to start and after ten years he was earning two hundred. Not so bad. The federal government doesn't do half so well by its employees. I've slaved ten years and when I quit I wasn't earning two hundred a month. For ten years before he died Uncle Hiram was paying him four hundred dollars a month. As checks are paid, Bunker has fared far, far better than the majority, and I fail to see where he has any kick coming."

"I had an idea he'd branch the subject to you, Mr. Clarke."

"Probably afraid to do so. Wanted to see me by first and decide whether I was hard or easy. He'll think it over tonight and call to see me at my hotel tomorrow."

"What makes you think he'll do that?"

"Oh, I noted a speculative gleam in his eyes, and it's what I'd do if I were Bunker."

Elmer was right. Shortly after he had breakfast next morning Bunker called his room from the hotel lobby and asked permission to come up for a conference. Elmer readily granted it and a few minutes later Bunker, hat in hand and nervously shifting from one foot to the other, was standing before him. Elmer permitted him to stand for two minutes; then he decided that the habit of a lifetime is not readily broken and that Bunker was waiting for permission to sit down.

"Nothing doing," Elmer declared flatly. "You lose all along the line, Mr. Bunker. You played your hand very foolishly and if you erred it is not up to me to correct your error. I'm not a human Christmas tree. The interview is at an end, Mr. Bunker. You lose."

Bunker stood up, trembling pitifully. It was evident to Elmer that the man had nerved himself to a degree of courage never before experienced in all his drab life. "You give me that ninety thousand dollars or something heavy is going to drop on you. I'll bust you wide open if you don't settle within a minute, Mr. Clarke, he declared."

"Well, don't be so mysterious. Tell me what you've got on me. Perhaps the knowledge may alter my decision. Until you tell me, however, I'll stand pat. I never judge a tack until it's thrown at me."

Bunker came close and lowered his voice. "For years I kept a double set of books for your uncle—one set for him and one for the collector of internal revenue. I made false entries. Whenever I made a deposit in his bank account I deposited the exact total of the receipts as shown that day on my books cashbook. The excess money was put in a safe deposit box, and whenever there was quite a bit of money on hand I bought bonds for him—so they couldn't be traced."

"I had an idea he'd branch the subject to you, Mr. Clarke."

"Probably afraid to do so. Wanted to see me by first and decide whether I was hard or easy. He'll think it over tonight and call to see me at my hotel tomorrow."

"What makes you think he'll do that?"

"Oh, I noted a speculative gleam in his eyes, and it's what I'd do if I were Bunker."

Elmer was right. Shortly after he had breakfast next morning Bunker called his room from the hotel lobby and asked permission to come up for a conference. Elmer readily granted it and a few minutes later Bunker, hat in hand and nervously shifting from one foot to the other, was standing before him. Elmer permitted him to stand for two minutes; then he decided that the habit of a lifetime is not readily broken and that Bunker was waiting for permission to sit down.

"Please be seated," he told the old clerk. "I see you have something on your mind. You appear to be somewhat embarrassed."

"I am, Mr. Clarke. There is a little matter—perhaps Mr. Peake spoke to you about it."

"He did," Elmer interrupted. "You refer to my uncle's broken promise to leave you a hundred thousand dollars for the honest and faithful service you accorded him for more than a quarter of a century. I understand he let you down with a bequest for ten thousand, and that you are grievously disappointed. I would be, too, under the circumstances. I can very well understand your disappointment."

"It's been heart-breaking," Bunker quavered. "After all these years, and my wife building hopes on it, she has now well-nigh killed her!"

Elmer nodded. "Still, Uncle Hiram didn't pay you a niggardly salary, Mr. Bunker. Many men in your position earn much less and do not consider themselves ill-treated."

"They don't do the work I had to do," Bunker protested with sudden vehemence. "It's worth four hundred dollars a month to lie and bully and scheme and take advantage of people. That's what I had to do to earn my four hundred dollars a month. It was worth four thousand a month to have to spend ten hours a day in his society."

"I suppose you knew, from many years of experience, exactly the sort of man my uncle was?"

"Oh, yes, indeed!"

"Then why did you believe him when he promised to leave you a hundred thousand dollars in his will?"

"You mean dirty work—confidential dirty work, don't you?"

"Well, it wasn't pleasant, Mr. Clarke, but I had to do it."

"Were those dishes honest?"

"Yes."

"I think I understand your viewpoint. A man would have to pay me a fortune to get me to do things like that for him."

"Quite so, quite so. And he didn't do it," Bunker exclaimed, his voice in his excitement an angry, growling shrill. "The dirty dog betrayed me."

"And you expect me to remedy the situation by giving you ninety thousand dollars, when I collect my inheritance?"

"You could well afford to sit. I've given me life to help build up that fortune you've inherited."

"But I cannot afford it, Bunker. I may have a quarter of a million dollars left when the estate is probated and all the debts settled. Surely you wouldn't expect me to give you ninety thousand dollars out of that sum."

"I think I've earned it," Bunker charged doggedly.

"Perhaps, perhaps. But it's contrary to my code to pay anybody ninety thousand dollars for doing dirty, dishonest jobs, Mr. Bunker."

"INDEPENDENTS ARE VICTORS OVER FAST PINCKNEY OUTFIT
Starting on the opening kick-off and launching a steady running attack, Plymouth's Independent football team gained their first touchdown early in the first quarter in its Sunday contest with the Pinckney team. Coaster went over and E. Wood added the extra point with a drop kick. Plymouth threatened again in the second quarter, but lost the ball near the goal on a fumble."

"With exactly what I get—nothing!" "You forget that you are an accessory before the fact. In the eyes of the law you have committed a felony by aiding and abetting my uncle to defraud the government."

"I know. But when I turn state's evidence they won't do anything to me," Bunker laughed mirthlessly. "That's what immunity baths are for. They pay me for my information."

"Bunker, you're loathsome. Get out of my room. Quick. I don't like you, but if you're still standing there leaning triumphantly at me thirty seconds from now I'll manhandle you. Sent you police!"

(To be continued)

The locals scored again in the third quarter after two successful end runs by R. Wood and Thompson. Leo Wood gained forty yards on a pass after the kick-off and Coaster smashed the line for 14 more, placing the ball on the #2 yard line. R. Wood gained nine, and E. Wood went over for the final touchdown. Plymouth now has a smooth-running and blocking backfield. The line play has been wonderful both on offense and defense. All in all, they'll give Plymouth some real football. Come out to Barroughs Park next Sunday and see a real bunch of boys play a real game of football."

FANATICS STIR UP PHILIPPINES

Leaders Take Advantage of Zeal and Superstition of Religious Sect

Manila, P. I.—The recent battle in the island of Luzon, Philippines, between several hundred religious fanatics known as Calorums and an armed force of the Philippine constabulary caused little surprise to persons familiar with conditions in the archipelago. The Calorums, who derive their name from the Latin words "saecula saeculorum," with which many prayers conclude, have been active throughout the islands for many years under the leadership of self-styled "papas" or popes, who find it easy to take advantage of their zeal and superstition.

In the troublesome islands of Samar and Leyte, southeast of Luzon, the Calorums are generally called "Pulhanes" (pronounced "pullyhanes"), and in other localities they may, from time to time, assume other designations. But, whatever their name, they believe they are true Christians, and their faith is so strong that they think themselves immune to the bullets of their enemies.

Forty-Three Distinct Tribes.

To deal with them is often difficult, partly because of geographical reasons. Adequate policing is almost impossible in an archipelago of more than 7,000 islands, some of which are almost as large as New York state and others mere barren rocks jutting out of the sea. Large areas are jungle and mountainous—almost inaccessible to a punitive expedition and always fraught with the danger of ambush. Forty-three distinct tribes, speaking nearly one hundred dialects, inhabit the group; they range in importance from the Visayans, numbering about 4,000,000 down to the pigmies, Negritos, and others, dwelling either in the swamps or high up in the mountains.

American administrators have encountered trouble from various of these groups in many of the islands. In the island of Leyte of the Palawan branch of the Calorums once kept nearly a brigade of United States troops constantly on the march for ten months. These fanatics were not necessarily at war with American soldiers or with the native police. Armed with bolos and spears, they would swoop down on a defenseless hamlet, plunder, murder, and then take to the trackless mountains.

Alive and Fighting.

The Calorums' belief in immunity to bodily danger was well illustrated during that campaign. The priests gave their certain charms called antinganting. These were usually cut out of white paper in strange shapes and marked with crescents, swastikas, or other designs. In battle one anting-anting was worn over the heart and another fastened over the forehead. Pulhanes wounded and taken prisoner were shown the bodies of their dead comrades, but even such evidence was insufficient to shake their faith in the word of Papa Faustino, their "pope."

"My brothers are dead in Leyte," said one prisoner, "but alive and fighting in Samar."

Perhaps the most famous of all the Calorums activities is that which had its headquarters at Surigao about five years ago. Priests who appeared in the barrios there preached that a great war would begin at Surigao, sweep over the islands, and then over the whole world. Furious fighters were coming to Surigao from all over the islands, the priests said, and every government official, regardless of race, was to be slaughtered. After this massacre the immortal Jose Rizal—the George Washington and Simon Bolivar of the Philippines, who was executed by the Spaniards before America took over the islands—would rise from the dead and make his headquarters on a small island off the coast of Surigao. From there a Rizal ark would take the victors to the large island of Cebu, where they would dwell forever without restriction, while a plague would depopulate the rest of the world.

The "Difficult" Tribesmen.

The natives believed the prophecy. They slaved and sold and turned all the profits into the coffers of the priests and leaders. When authorities sent an armed force to break up the scheme severe fighting followed and a number of lives were lost.

The general belief that the Moros, the Mohammedans of the southern islands of the Philippine group, are the most difficult tribesmen to deal with is not entirely warranted. True, they are harder warriors, more courageous and intelligent than the other so-called "wild tribes." But the Moros are becoming educated, while it is next to impossible to go into the jungles and mountains and carry civilization influences among the more remote tribes.

Much of the bad name associated with the Moros is due to their custom known as "juramentado." A Moro gone "juramentado" is a Moro who has sworn to the killing of Christians and sending their souls to hell. Christian women are in no danger, because in the Moro faith a woman has no soul.

Head Hunting Negligible.

The story is still told in Moroland that in the early days of American occupation, when "juramentados" were running amuck all too frequently, an American gunboat did a little "juramentado" of its own by shelling several offending villages. When the Sultan or headman complained, he was told that there was no way to prevent a boat going "juramentado" any more than the tribal authorities could prevent some of their own people from doing it. The quick thinking Moro

The next and great step required by wisdom is the test of our sincerity—namely, reformation" (p. 5).

Coming Attractions At Penniman-Allen

"WATERLOO BRIDGE"

"Waterloo Bridge," Universal's much-discussed picturization of the sensational Robert E. Sherwood drama of the same name, will make its debut upon the Penniman-Allen screen, Sunday and Monday, October 25 and 26, with Hollywood's latest "find," Mae Clarke; Kent Douglass; Enid Bennett and Doris Lloyd in the principal roles.

Directed by James Whale, who filmed "Journey's End," and photographed by Arthur Edson, the capable cinematographer of "All Quiet on the Western Front," the British-flavored picture of air raids and the love of a London lady of the streets for a young Canadian private, is reported as one of the dramatic gems of the picture capital's current crop.

The Sherwood story depicts the ill luck of a pretty chorus girl who descends, as the War progresses, to a cheap artist's model and eventually to a solicitor. A British soldier literally runs into her during the course of an air raid, on London's well-known Waterloo Bridge, and eventually falls madly in love with her.

The ensuing situations in which the girl grows to love the boy and the intense scenes in which he takes her to visit his aristocratic parents are said to be the ultimate in drama.

Carl Laemmle, Jr., the youthful Universal production head, who has scored so soundly with "King of Jazz," "All Quiet on the Western Front," "Dracula" and "Seed," personally produced "Waterloo Bridge." Benn W. Levy and Tom Reed wrote the screen adaptation.

Frederick Kerr, well known British actor; Bette Davis; Ethel Griffies, George Arliss' talented leading lady of many successes; and Rita Carls appear with the sensational Miss Clarke, Douglass and the Misses Bennett and Lloyd in the picture's cast.

"THE VIRTUOUS HUSBAND"

One of the season's best comedies—a moment raising the viewer's eyebrows with its dialogue and the next pulling them down with an uproariously funny comic situation—"The Virtuous Husband" will be the feature attraction at the Penniman-Allen Theatre, Wednesday and Thursday, October 28 and 29.

The story, based upon the Dorance Davis stage bombshell, "Apron Strings," concerns the amazing and totally unusual antics of an idealistic young husband whose mother's letters of advice cause a highly amusing situation. The young wife objects, to put it mildly, and the ensuing situations easily attain the heights of concerted entertainment.

Elliott Nugent, brilliant young actor, as the wrongly calculating benefactor, walks on and off the screen in his character so convincingly that one very nearly forgets that he is attending a talking picture, and that compliment is almost the height of approval. Pert, little Jean Arthur is equally well cast, and she turns in one of the most excellent portrayals of her career.

Betty Compson, always capable and one of the most beautiful women in motion pictures, leaves practically nothing to be desired in her portrayal of the worldly friend of the "wronged" wife.

J. C. Nugent makes it all a family affair when he realistically and paternally advises Elliott about women. He might very well advise the young man, being in real life his father. Allison Skipworth, from the London stage, Tully Marshall, Eva McKenzie, and "Sleep-in-Eat," the retired colored man of "Feet First," all add materially to the excellence of the opus.

Direction by Vin Moore is outstandingly clever. Dale Van Every and Fred Niblo, Jr., adapted the picture story and truly fine photography was directed by Jerome Ash. It is a Universal picture.

"MONKEY BUSINESS"

Several mad wags of the magazines, newspapers and stage contributed to the writing of the story for "Monkey Business," the latest burlesque of fun in which the Marx Brothers are appearing at the Penniman-Allen Theatre, Friday and Saturday, October 30 and 31.

The major credit for this hilarious piece of film-scenario construction goes to S. J. Perelman and Will E. Johnstone.

Perelman is a regular contributor of Judge, weekly fun-magazine. His funny writings have also been published in College Humor. He is the author of two books—"Barler, Red, Jim and Barb" and "Dawn Ginsberg's Revenge." In addition to being a popular writer of comedy material, he is an able cartoonist.

Johnstone, whose comedy news-items cartoon appeared for several years in the New York World and now is a daily feature of the New York World-Telegram, has written books and lyrics for a number of successful stage shows including "Take It From Me," which ran six years; "Up in the Clouds," three years; and "I'll Say She Is," the first of the Marx Brothers stage hits.

Additional dialog for the picture was prepared by Arthur Sheekman, brilliant comedy writer for the stage whose current hit is "Three's a Crowd."

Others who contributed to the scenario are Al Shean of Gallagher and Shean fame, and J. Carter Payne, creator of the widely syndicated newspaper cartoon, "Bunny." Payne was drafted for work on the writing staff because his cartoon is entirely one of pantomime.

O. F. Beyer Advised That Business Is On Upward Grade

O. F. Beyer, the local Rexall druggist, has just received a personal letter from Louis K. Liggett—leading figure in the drug world, old friend of former President Coolidge and a keen student of modern business. The message sent from Boston headquarters of this outstanding purveyor on successful merchandising is as full of good news as an English Walnut is of meat. Mr. Liggett throws some mighty interesting sidelights on current business affairs and has crowded much unanswerable logic into the document.

Referring to one of his conversations with former President Calvin Coolidge, he tells that after an hour's discussion of business problems, Mr. Coolidge declared: "Supply and demand will make the price. It always has and always will. You cannot control what God produces."

Mr. Coolidge was referring to the English attempt that failed, to regulate production and price of rubber, and Mr. Liggett's comment is, "No special legislation—no national legislation—no world interference or world courts can establish a value that will turn the flow of business. Calvin Coolidge was right when he said that price can be regulated only by supply and demand."

The fact that at this particular time of business stress there is the largest number of Rexall drug stores in Drugdom's history, was received with no little satisfaction, because it proved to him the wisdom of becoming the Rexall druggist in this particular locality where the profit and good will assured by the Rexall plan to both the one who sells and the one who buys has been a community affair of mutual benefit.

"I think the biggest merchandising idea that has ever been promulgated in America is the fall one-cent sale," continued Mr. Liggett, and he gives this bit of history: "I brought this sale to you in the fall of 1914, after war had been declared between the European countries. Everything was at a standstill. Stock markets were closed. Everything was going to hell in a hack, and the one-cent sale put your business over the top and it will do the same thing this fall."

More money is going to be spent on the newspaper advertising program for this autumn One Cent Sale than has ever been expended before. As its projector who gave it to the independent druggists who have accepted the Rexall merchandising plan, Mr. Liggett says: "The theme and scheme back of the One Cent Sale is clean—it is wholesome—it is truthful. It is merchandising from factory to consumer with the lowest possible intermediate profit. You will give employment in your stores by reason of what your consumers buy. And after all, that is what is doing to tide us over!"

This Rexall One Cent Sale will be run the first week in November and the people of this community will share in this greatest festival of buying opportunity of the current strenuous year.

Nothing less than a six can give you built-in smoothness

The whole question was settled long ago—as to how many cylinders it takes in a motor car engine to give satisfactory smoothness. Science definitely established the fact that at least six are necessary. And today, the public accepts the multi-cylinder engine in the same way that it accepts 4-wheel brakes, parallel-mounted springs and every other principle of proved and acknowledged superiority. Everybody knows that nothing less than a six can give you built-in smoothness.

Today, six-cylinder smoothness is within reach of every new car buyer. For Chevrolet has produced a quality car, powered it with a firmly-mounted six-cylinder motor—engineered it to run with unsurpassed economy—and priced it down among the very lowest-priced cars in the market.

Retaliation Against High Tariff By Foreign Countries Declared Reason For Drop in Automobile Industry

Although the entire increase in the automobile industry since 1923 has been due to the export business, this field is becoming more and more seriously restricted by import duties and restrictions which foreign countries are erecting in retaliation against our high domestic tariffs, and it is probable that the future will find an increasing number of American manufacturers supplying their foreign trade from assembly or complete manufacturing plants located in foreign countries, concludes D. M. Phelps, Professor of Marketing in the University of Michigan, in a study of the foreign aspects of the auto industry published by the University of Michigan Bureau of Business Research.

"The conclusion appears justified that, since foreign tariff policy is to a considerable reflection of our own, the efforts of the automobile industry to increase foreign business are being counteracted by the United States high tariff policy," Professor Phelps states. "Tariff barriers limiting sales in this country limit ability of others to buy from us, and the automobile industry, which normally has a large comparative advantage, has more to gain by a tariff policy more in keeping with our status as a creditor nation than any other great industry."

High first cost, expensive operation and maintenance, lack of experience with modern transportation and machinery, class distinctions and high taxation are the chief factors limiting motor use abroad. Import duties, which make a car 50 per cent to 100 per cent in purchase price over domestic levels, are the chiefly responsible for high initial costs abroad.

"The declines in the domestic market for automobiles have not increased since 1923, but the volume of automotive products taken by the foreign market has grown rapidly from an absolute standpoint, relative to the total production of the industry, and as a part of our total manufacturers' goods exported," says Professor Phelps. Active demand for American trucks, which now accounts for 40 per cent of exports, is a feature of recent years, he finds. Foreign transportation needs or low-capacity models, coupled with the foreign builders passenger car policy which precludes good light truck production, gives the American companies a distinct advantage in this field.

The frequently stated theory that export trade will stabilize the automobile industry through modification of seasonal variation in production is not true, Professor Phelps finds. Seasonal variations are almost the same, foreign demand from Oceania, Africa and South America helping to reduce seasonal changes, while that from Europe accentuates variation and that of Central America has little effect either way.

In 1923, 50.6 per cent of world automotive demand, excluding this country and Canada, was supplied by us, in 1930 Europe supplied 38.7 per cent. If Europeans can match our mass-production advantage would rest with them, but foreign technical and management inferiority make this doubtful, he says. The natural outcome of the present tendencies is increased production of American cars, complete or by assembly, in factories located abroad, to meet the limitations of foreign tariffs, propaganda against American cars, need of models satisfying different foreign requirements, as well as the need of a more controlled distribution.

False Witness

Women are worse perjurers than men, but both are pretty bad, according to Justice McCardy, widely known as the "Bachelor Judge" of the High Court of London, and famed for his epigrammatic utterances from the bench.

Following the annual Maudsley lecture before the British Medical Association, he asserted that if the ninth commandment, "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor," were generally obeyed the courts would have comparatively little business.

"Perjury can never be more rife than it is now," he said. "It is committed in some degree in most of the civil and criminal cases before the courts. The most self-possessed perjurers are murderers, but nothing can exceed the audacious reliance upon their sex which is so frequently displayed by women. If perjury could be stopped, trials in a large majority of all kinds of cases would be incredibly short."

You have heard these radio favorites in their haunting spirituals camp meeting shouts and care-free plantation melodies on the air. Now for the first time Plymouth can both see and hear them and double their enjoyment.

Loiter With October

By George E. Post
in The Chariot

October afternoons are hours for lazy

And easy-going folks to rest at ease.

The sun looks mildly down through mists of hazy

Air that lily loafs among the trees.

The warmth harks back to summer fishing weather.

When Storm was king through sweltering July

And prompts ambitious youth to wonder whether

He might not get a bite if he should try.

Men should not always rush pell-mell toward winter

But loiter with October for the while;

See what this merry month has done as thirter

Of foliage for glorious mile on mile.

Looking Ahead!

Way back in the days when the white wings sailed the oceans the sailors always found it advisable to look ahead. They watched for any dangers that may be on the horizon and they looked for any advantage the weather might offer them in their progress.

To those who are looking ahead, watching for every advantage, we strongly recommend the use of Plymouth Mail want ads. You will be amazed at the results an expenditure of 25 cents will sometimes accomplish.

CAR OWNERS DEMAND VALUES—not Claims!

MOTORISTS are finding the Greatest Values in Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires. Ever since Firestone and Firestone Dealers began advertising the true facts about tire quality and construction and actually demonstrating the Extra Values in Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires, distributors of special-brand mail-order tires have grown bolder and bolder with misleading claims and comparisons in the desperate effort to interest car-owners.

Car owners bought more Firestone Tires in May, June and July, than in any like period in history. This clearly shows that car owners are interested in Firestone Extra Values and are not interested in comparisons based on an obsolete, tire size—confusing laboratory analyses—meaningless definitions—impractical challenges with unfair claims of twenty-five per cent savings—and deceiving price comparisons.

Why risk a tire of unknown manufacture when you can get the Extra Quality, Extra Strength, and Extra Safety of the special patented construction features of Firestone Tires—Gum-Dipping, and Two Extra Cord Plys under the Tread?

You get these Extra Values—plus our Service and the DOUBLE GUARANTEE of Firestone and ourselves—at no more cost!

Drive in today.—We have sections cut from Firestone Tires, special-brand mail-order tires and others.—See the evidence.—Take nothing for granted.—Judge for Yourself.

NUTTY NATURAL HISTORY
BY HUGH NUTTON

THE SIBERIAN WHIPPERSNOOP

Great herds of these beasts roam the frozen tundras of the north coast, feeding on the lingslugs that springs up between the great blocks of spongy peat. The Russians prize their meat highly, and capture them by calling out the letters of the alphabet. The poor whippersnoops understand only Sengalese, and, being puzzled, draw near and are easily caught.

You'll find, if you look closer, that he's nothing but a big Brazil nut and a fibrous head. His pom eyes are not popcorn, but grains of rice with spots of ink, and all he has for horns and feet are cloves. He's simply all stuck up with little pieces of chewing gum.

The Old Gardener Says:

LILIES are the last of the hardy bulbs to plant, as many kinds do not arrive in this country until late in the season. If they are not delivered before freezing weather comes on, the ground where they are to go should be covered with a deep layer of spent manure or with some form of litter which will keep it from freezing too hard to permit digging. Lilies need a location which is well drained, and if the earth is very heavy, a little sand should be run under them. Some growers go so far as to encase them with sand all around, and take pains to plant those having fleshy scales on their sides rather than in an upright position. Deep planting is important with most lilies. This means to ten inches underground.

FAVORITE RECIPES

HERE is a delicious salad for a bridge luncheon or for a hot Sunday evening supper. Heat two cupfuls of crushed pineapple, add the juice of a lemon and one cupful of sugar. Stir until dissolved. Soak two tablespoonfuls of gelatin in one-half cupful of cold water for ten minutes. Add to the hot mixture and cool. When cool and beginning to set, add one cupful of grated American cheese and one-half pint of cream beaten stiff. Mix thoroughly, put into a mold and leave in a cold place to mold. Serve with a mayonnaise dressing to which two tablespoonfuls each of chopped green pepper and celery have been added to a cupful of the dressing.

Mock Pate de Foie Gras.

Put one pound of calf's liver, one pound of salt pork, through a food chopper. Beat two eggs until light and fold in one cupful of bread crumbs, one-half cupful of milk, one medium-sized onion finely chopped or grated, four sprigs of parsley, salt and pepper to season. After mixing well turn into a greased pudding dish. Cover tightly and steam four hours. This may be served hot or cold.

Butterscotch Pie.

Take two cupfuls of brown sugar, the yolks of three eggs lightly beaten, four tablespoonfuls of flour, one tablespoonful of butter and cook until thick with two cupfuls of milk, a pinch of salt. Pour into a baked crust and cover with a meringue, using the egg whites and two tablespoonfuls of sugar. Brown in a moderate oven. This makes enough filling for two pies.

Fresh Lobster Salad.

This is a peerless salad when prepared from a freshly boiled lobster. The lobster should be boiled with a tablespoonful of salt and a few pepper corns in rapidly boiling water for forty minutes, remove and cool. If cooked this length of time the meat is easily removed from the shell and is more tender. Cut the meat into fair-sized pieces, add half as much diced celery and enough french dressing to moisten. Let stand an hour or more, drain and serve in nests of lettuce with mayonnaise dressing. All ingredients should be well chilled and serve at once. Dust with paprika. Make nests of three curled leaves with a spoonful of the salad in each.

Almond Cheese Cakes.

With the eggs so beaten, beat— Nicely strained, for this same use—

Adding milk of almonds, sweet,
With fine pastry dough, rolled flat.

One More Heston

Jack Heston, son of the famous Willie Heston who was regarded as the greatest football star ever developed at the University of Michigan, is a sophomore and a halfback at Ann Arbor, and of course he will have a load to carry in the matter of family tradition. His father was all-American selection in 1901-2-3, so Jack will have his work cut out for him. He is expected to play an important part in Michigan's 1931 campaign.

But why not give men work to produce the goods they need and let the government guarantee the factory against loss?

Village Commission adjourned.
