

Break Ground For Machinery Now Being Placed In Newburg Plant

New Ford Factory May Be Operating In Two Weeks

Machinery is now being placed in the new Ford plant at Newburg and if the present rate of equipment installation is followed, prospects are that this new Plymouth factory will be in operation within the next two weeks.

The structure has been entirely completed except a portion of the engine room and this will be finished within the next few days. Men have already started the placing of equipment and by the end of another week or ten days all of the machinery should be in place, unless of course there are not some unexpected delays.

Just how many men will be placed on the payroll of the new plant is not known but it has been generally believed that when the plant is running at its capacity there should be employment for 25 or more.

The ground around the building is being graded and workmen are busy putting the surroundings in the way that the Ford Motor Car company usually does. Of all the many attractive Ford plants in this part of Wayne county, the Newburg plant will eventually be one of the most attractive.

Donkey Baseball For Fourth of July

Next week Thursday—July 4th—is not going to be just another featureless holiday in Plymouth as many had expected it would be.

Members of the American Legion have arranged for—what do you suppose—two big games of donkey baseball!

These contests are scheduled to take place Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock and at 6:30 o'clock at the corner of Plymouth and Whitebeck roads, one mile east of the city.

At 3 o'clock in the afternoon the Rotary-Kiwanis team will play the American Legion team and at 6:30 o'clock the Wilson Hardware team will play the speedy Red & White donkey team.

All in all the two contests ought to provide plenty of amusement for one afternoon.

FROM A DEMOCRAT
Editor Plymouth Mail:

I have received from one of the state papers a reprint of a recent editorial in The Plymouth Mail relative to my appointment as Collector of Customs for Michigan. I certainly appreciate the kind words you have to say relative to my appointment.

I have received very kind treatment from the press of Michigan at all times and appreciate the fairness of Michigan newspaper men. I have never been able to see why so much bitterness had to creep into politics. Men should be able to back their respective candidates and issues and still respect the other fellow's feelings. I believe the more we subscribe to this philosophy the better government we shall have.

Sincerely,
Martin R. Bradley.

Mrs. Geneva Bailor expects to leave this (Friday) evening for a two week's visit with relatives and friends in and around Louisville, Kentucky.

Felician Sisters Institution Tuesday

Main Buildings to be Over 800 Feet Long and 300 Feet Wide

BISHOP MICHAEL GALLAGHER

Tuesday afternoon, July 2, at 3 o'clock has been set as the time when Most Rev. Bishop M. Gallagher, accompanied by a number of other high dignitaries of his church, will come to Plymouth and break ground for the vast new institution to be built by the Felician Sisters at the corner of Schoolcraft and Newburg roads. The institution, which will be more than 800 feet long and in places 300 feet wide, two and three stories high, will be one of the largest of its kind in the middle west. It will face the south, being located some 500 feet from the woods.

Its vast length is accounted for by the fact that the church for the Sisters and all of the other units of the institution will be connected by enclosed arcades.

Immediate construction of the church, the Sisters' Convent, the power house, garage and kitchen has been ordered. The academy, for the girls, which will be built separately from the main structure will not be started at once.

It is hoped to have the new buildings completed before winter. A cordial invitation is extended by the Sisters for every one to be present at the ceremonies Tuesday afternoon.

The new institution will be the home of some 600 Felician Sisters besides several hundreds of orphaned girls who will be reared and educated by the Sisters. Later a home for orphaned boys will be erected at the same place. It is to the care of orphaned children that the Felician Sisters have dedicated their lives.

The Boy Scouts of Plymouth will be the honored guests at an evening service in St. John's Episcopal church on Sunday evening, June 30th at 7 o'clock.

The speaker for the evening will be the Rev. I. C. Johnson, Rector of St. John's church, Detroit. Rev. Johnson needs no introduction to Plymouth as he has visited here before and his work has been outstanding in the Diocese especially among young boys and young men. A social hour will follow with refreshments served through the generosity of Mr. M. B. Whittelsey, Bloomfield Hills and the Ladies Guild of the church.

A most cordial invitation is extended to all Boy Scouts of Plymouth to join with us on that night.

Band Concert To Be Held Saturday Evening, July 6

City and Business Men Raise Funds For Concert Series

Through the joint cooperation of the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce and the city commission, a sufficient sum has been assured to provide a series of band concerts during the coming summer by the Plymouth Civic band.

Recently the city commission voted $275 to be expended in behalf of the band. The Chamber of Commerce agreed to raise a similar amount.

Already Secretary Berg D. Moore has secured pledges for the total amount to be raised among the business men of the city.

Ivan B. Gray, director of the band announces that the organization will appear in new uniforms that will be purchased from the money provided for the band at the first concert to be held in Kellogg park on Saturday evening, July 6.

The band will play several concerts during the summer near Liberty and Starkweather for the north side business section.

The band fund will be administered by a committee composed of City Manager Perry Cookingham, R. S. Todd and Secretary Berg D. Moore of the Chamber of Commerce.

The new uniforms will be of blue coats and white trousers.

The Return of "Buck Rogers" To His Home Port After Successful Trade Flight

Edward Hough congratulates fliers in Daisy Manufacturing company plane who took such a successful part in the Indiana Air Tour.

Piano Musicale Is Pleasing One

About forty-five guests attended the afternoon Musicale given by piano pupils of Hanna Strassen on Saturday last week in the Ladies' Auxiliary Rooms of the Presbyterian Church. It was a very enjoyable occasion for the performers as well as the listeners.

A charming stage setting was effected through the use of huge baskets of peonies and bowls of roses arranged about the piano upon which the soft light of a single lamp was thrown. Those taking part in the program were as follows:

Annabel Heller, Gloris Eckles, Shirley Hills, Rosamonde Busby, Nancy McLaren, Marion Coward, Doris Bridger, Dorothy Marie Fisher, Glenn Clark, Margaret Jean, Nichol, Beth Livingston, Yvonne Taylor, Grace Squires, George Chute, Jacquelyn Schoof, Doris Starkweather, Marilyn McClumpha, Douglas Lorenz, Lois Schaufele, Ruth Drews, Jean Hamill.

A number which was somewhat novel in character consisted of a double duet played by four children at one piano. Each selection on the program received generous applause.

After the program the guests were invited to enjoy a social hour during which fruit punch and assorted tea cakes were served.

Blazing trails through the sky, the Daisy Manufacturing Company's "Buck Rogers" aeroplane landed in Plymouth late Sunday afternoon completing a week's journey with the Indiana Air Tour. This was the second year that the Daisy Manufacturing company had entered a plane in the tour and the ship created a great amount of interest among boys and girls throughout the state who were interested in the Buck Rogers "Disintegrator."

Daisy dealers throughout the state, where stops were made by the tour, had advertised the fact that the Buck Rogers ship would be in their towns and that altitude guessing contests would be held for boys and girls. Airports were jammed with children who were anxious to win one of the many Daisy products awarded to those who made the best guesses.

The ship was piloted for the company by Miss Alice Hirshman, well known woman aviatrix of Detroit and one of the first of her sex to secure a commercial aviation license in Michigan. She was accompanied on the tour by her sister, Mrs. Elaine Egan.

On Saturday the ship left the air tour to attend the Inter-collegiate air meet at Lafayette, Indiana. At this place Miss Hirshman awarded the Daisy Manufacturing Co. trophy to Raymond Gazer of Purdue University, highest individual point scorer in the meet.

Plans are under way to enter the ship in the approaching Michigan, Wisconsin and Ohio air tours. The ship was greeted on its arrival in Plymouth by numerous Buck Rogers fans from Plymouth and on taking off Miss Hirshman repeated her altitude guessing contest for those at the airport. Jack Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson on Plymouth Road won first prize and Walter Patrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Patrick of Alice road was awarded the second prize for guessing the approximate altitude of the ship on its return voyage to the hangar at Ypsilanti.

A delightful afternoon was enjoyed with Mrs. Charles Ryder on Tuesday of this week when she opened her lovely country home on Plymouth Road to forty ladies, members of the Missionary Societies of the Plymouth M. E. church and their friends, for a silver tea. The day was perfect and the party spent a happy informal afternoon with music, games, visiting, and the serving of a dainty lunch. Mrs. Ryder has a large collection of heirlooms which afforded much interest and amusement, some of the ladies giving an "impromptu style show" in some of the ancient garments. Everyone declared Mrs. Ryder a perfect hostess.

Visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Wilson on Mill street last week were Mr. and Mrs. Asa Carr and daughter, Grace, of Hubbard Lake, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Secord, Ed Secord and daughter, Royal and Leo Secord of Detroit.

Dead Line Near For Dog Licenses

Tomorrow will be the last opportunity to obtain dog licenses without the 50 cents penalty as provided in the dog ordinance. To date only six-five 193 dog licenses have been obtained, whereas there are approximately 400 dogs in the city of Plymouth to be licensed.

Newspaper articles and notices have been published during the past three weeks informing dog owners of their responsibility to obtain the new licenses before July 1st. Unless considerable increase in the number of licenses issued is evidenced before the end of the week, several hundred persons will be required to pay an extra 50 cents for their dog license.

The police department will begin canvassing immediately after July 1st in order that all dogs will be properly licensed within the shortest possible time. Prompt action in obtaining the license this week will save a considerable amount in penalties.

Next week Thursday is July 4th.

Again an important holiday falls on the publication day of The Plymouth Mail.

Because of this fact it will be necessary for The Mail to be in the postoffice the day before the Fourth in order to assure its delivery to you at the regular time.

Therefore we earnestly request our correspondents, advertisers and all others who have notices or news for next week's paper, to see to it that it reaches the office Monday.

The Mail thanks you in advance for any assistance you may give in making easy the early publication of The Mail next week.

Possibly you can bring some copy to the office by Saturday of this week. That would help more than you can appreciate.

Dorothy Jean Richwine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Richwine, will celebrate her sixth birthday Saturday afternoon by entertaining Nancy Gerst, Barbara Davidson, Sally Williams, Ellen Mae Smith, Helen and Dicky Moore, Jackie Dobbs, Teddy Campbell, Tom Corey and Bobby Woods.

Start Work Monday Morning On Big Addition To The Daisy Manufacturing Company's Plant—All Contracts Let

Construction of the big addition to the Daisy Manufacturing plant will begin Monday morning, all contracts having been approved and signed by the officials of the Daisy company.

James A. Moynes Company, one of the largest general contractors in this part of the state, has been awarded the contract for the erection of the building.

The Corbett Electric company of Plymouth was awarded the contract for the electrical work, which will be one of the largest electrical jobs done in Plymouth in so many years.

The Grinnell company of Detroit was awarded the contract for the sprinkler system.

It is not believed that the building will be completed before early fall. It will be 46,800 feet and three stories high. There will be no basement. Plans and specifications were prepared by Smith, Hinchman and Grylls, one of Michigan's best known firms of architects and engineers in Michigan.

All of the contractors who are among some of the outstanding in their respective lines of business, have announced that they plan to use Plymouth labor and materials as far as possible.

The State of Michigan has established a dog quarantine in Wayne county and its requiring permits before dogs can be removed to other counties. According to preliminary information permits for the removal of dogs must be obtained from the Sheriff's department.

The reason for such a quarantine is the prevalence of rabies in Wayne county. The Pasture Institute at Ann Arbor reports a line of infection running from Monroe, north through Wayne to Plymouth and Northville, and around the city of Detroit to the east. The city of Plymouth has had three known cases of rabies within the last three months and five persons have been bitten by mad dogs and have been required to take the Pasture Treatments in Ann Arbor.

Rabies is not a disease subject to seasonal influence, but with the advent of pleasant weather the number of dogs running at large increases and with this there is an increase in the number of dog bites, and if rabies are present, an increase in hydrophobia in the dog population.

The Plymouth ordinance requires that all dogs shall be restricted to the owners premises during the months of July and August unless held on a suitable leash. It is important that this restriction be strictly complied with during these two months.

Vaccination has been found an effective method of assisting in the control of rabies according to the Detroit Department of Health, whose experience has shown that there is eleven times as much rabies among unvaccinated dogs than will be found among those that have received the protective treatment. Although the Plymouth Ordinance considers vaccination effective for a period of two years, one cent means a much better protection if the dog is vaccinated annually. Vaccination is desirable for the protection of the dog as well as for the safe-guarding of public health.

It is recognized that vaccination is not a 100 per cent means of protection but it generally decreases the chances of a dog coming down with this illness.

It is a mistake to assume that the earliest symptoms of this disease are a ferocious, raging disposition with a tendency to attack other animals or man. On the contrary, most infected dogs pass through a stage of unrest and solicitude. They seem to know that their condition is a

Tax Paying Time Begins Monday Statements Out

Property Owners Have Until August 10th To Pay Without Penalty

The city treasurer will mail 3500, 1935 city tax statements tomorrow.

These statements should be delivered Monday morning July 1st. These statements cover the general City tax for the year 1935 and delinquent special assessment taxes which were unpaid in 1934.

The city tax rate is the same as for the year 1934, $12.00 per thousand of the assessed value. Valuations in practically every instance are the same as for 1934; therefore, the amount of tax will remain exactly the same as the amount levied last year.

In balancing the budget the city commission estimated that 15 per cent of the taxes would be paid. It is reasonable to believe that even a greater percentage will be received because of the improved conditions over last year.

The city charter permits the collection of city taxes without interest or penalty until August 10th. After August 10th a penalty of 2 per cent is added and after September 10th an additional penalty of five per cent is added. The city treasurer will produce the funds paid and at a later date will make the payment to the county treasurer after which a permanent receipt will be issued.

In addition to the current city taxes, delinquent tax payers can arrange with the city treasurer to pay their 1933 and 1934 taxes at the city hall as well as the taxes of 1932 and prior years, which come under the Ten Year Moratorium Plan. The city treasurer will issue a temporary receipt for the funds paid and at a later date will make the payment to the county treasurer after which a permanent receipt will be issued.

The city commission has definitely committed itself to another year of strict economy by adopting a budget which will produce in revenues less than one-half the amount available five years ago. This is a very much greater reduction than the average for other comparable cities in the state of Michigan. Such a reduction is possible only if 75 per cent or more of the taxes are paid. If a greater percentage is paid then the finances of the city can be expanded so that additional services can be rendered to the taxpayers desiring the same.

Arrangements can be made with the city treasurer for the payment of taxes in installments or on partial payment basis with as little as $1.00 being paid at a time. A partial payment receipt will be given at the time each payment is made and after the entire tax has been paid a permanent tax receipt will be issued.

All the matches were very close, each one being decided on the last hole. Herb Burley had a chance to take a point from his opponent but his opponent sank a 20 foot putt on the 18th green to take all 3 points. Burley shot a 75 against a 73 by his opponent, Louis Campbell gained a point for Plymouth by getting a birdie 3 on the 18th hole. Norm Wagner could not get his game steadied down well enough to withstand the barrage of pars his opponent shot at him to take all 3 points.

Dick Grey, young Plymouth ace, did not play in Sunday's match as he was held in reserve for some of the tougher matches yet to be played.

Understanding World Affairs

Who's Who Among the Debaters

By Walter Lippmann

In view of the fact that the Supreme Court said in the NRA decision that it could not draw in advance the precise line between Federal and state power, it is not astonishing that comment about the decision is very confusing. It has, in fact, produced some of the strongest paradoxes imaginable.

Thus the President, who has spoken as eloquently as any one of the dangers of centralized power, found himself out on the end of a limb, having given the country the impression that he would like to override the states. The Republican party which descends from Washington and Hamilton through Lincoln to Theodore Roosevelt began to talk as if it would like to return to the articles of Confederation which preceded the Constitution. Mr. Hoover, who described the attempt of the Federal government to stop a man from drinking a glass of beer as a noble experiment; Mr. Hoover, who from October, 1929, to March, 1933, extended the Federal power over banks, insurance companies, railroads, farms and factories beyond anything ever known in time of peace suddenly emerged as an apostle of the purest Jeffersonian doctrine. Mr. Borah delivered an eloquent speech in praise of the Constitution and then inserted an amendment into the utility bill which was properly denounced as unconstitutional. Mr. Lowden, after an admirable speech on the dangers of centralization, sponsored a declaration in regard to agriculture which, if it means anything, means that the agricultural problem is to be handled by the central government.

As one of those who do not feel they have the final and complete answer to the question, I have been trying in my mind to define the issue. I have not got very far. As a mere beginning, I have been trying to classify the various points of view which seem to be represented in the debate. The result is crude and probably not very important, but here it is.

1. Those who believe that when the Supreme Court interprets the Constitution, it has no choice as to how it will interpret it. They would hold, for example, that the clause in the Constitution dealing with commerce is just as clearly controlling over the opinion of the Court as, let us say, the provision that the term of the President shall be four years.

2. Those who believe that in interpreting some sections of the Constitution, particularly that dealing with commerce, the Court has discretion and adapts the Constitution to the light of the precedents but of its views of public policy.

3. Those who hold that the Federal government has no power not expressly granted to it.

4. Those who hold that it has large reserve powers.

These are the four main general attitudes as to how the Constitution should be interpreted. They have existed since the earliest days.

It is useful then to note certain conflicting beliefs about the kind of government we ought to have. The conflict has existed at all times in American history.

5. Those who believe that the social system is so national in character that it must be subject to uniform laws. There are progressives and there are conservatives who hold this view. At the moment the progressives desire national labor legislation because they believe that otherwise a state with high labor standards will meet destructive competition from states with low labor standards.

There is also a very strong conservative demand for national laws on many matters. For example, many bankers would like to see a uniform banking system in place of the forty-eight state laws and one Federal law under which banking is now conducted. Like the progressives interested in labor legislation, they argue that some states are lax and this makes for unwholesome competition. Though the electric power companies are for the moment in favor of "states rights," the railroads would probably regard it as a disaster if rate-making were turned over to the forty-eight states.

All those who think along these lines, be they progressives or conservatives, are particularly impressed with the idea that a uniform law is better for their purposes than forty-eight separate laws.

6. They are opposed by those who are convinced that unless government is kept decentralized it will become tyrannical, bureaucratic, and inefficient. This school believes that the country is too large, that its regional interests are too varied, to make too much uniformity desirable. They believe also that many vigorous local governments are being trained in schools for politics, that the states are laboratories in which social experiments can safely be made, that the advantages of uniformity are greatly exaggerated, that progress made slowly by local consent is surer than progress imposed from Washington.

These two points of view do not rest on rigid and absolute principles. There is no sane nationalist who wants to abolish the states. There is no sane ruler who does not recognize that some more centralization is necessary and inevitable. Nevertheless, the opposition is real. The nationalists are prejudiced in favor of centralization, the home rulers are prejudiced against it. On a concrete question, therefore, the nationalists have to make a strong case in order to convince the home rulers.

We may note next three conflicting social philosophies.

7. There are those who do not believe that government national or state, should regulate business more than it is now regulated. They are only accidentally believers in states rights, for the states exercise their rights they would be just as earnestly opposed. They are really believers in laissez-faire.

8. Those who believe that much more regulation of the economy is necessary and desirable. The nationalists are nationalists, but if Congress were conservative, they would turn to the states. The essential thing in their view is the idea that in order to regulate the economy government must move in the direction of increased state intervention. They are moving toward a state capitalism which would eventually be indistinguishable from state socialism. Their program would require a radical change in the Constitution.

9. Those who believe that laissez-faire and state socialism are both dangerous and impracticable. They believe that during the depression it has been demonstrated all over the world that by means of a coherent monetary, budgetary and tariff policy, the economic system can be kept in a working balance without resort to the regimentation of private enterprise. They believe that without such a policy private capitalism will break down and that the regimentation and the socialism which supplant it will then break down too. Their view is exemplified by the policy of countries like Great Britain, Sweden, Australia, Belgium. It is part of the policy of the New Deal, unhappily confused and neutralized by the policy of regimentation. Personally, it seems to me the most promising. It requires no change in the Constitution. The necessary powers have existed in the Constitution from the very beginning.

10. There are those who believe that centralization is proper if the centralized power is in Republican hands.

11. There are those who believe it is proper if the power is in Democratic hands.

In 1932, for example, Mr. Roosevelt was shocked by Mr. Hoover's immense deficit expenditures. In 1935 Mr. Hoover is shocked by Mr. Roosevelt's immense deficit expenditures.

In actual life these eleven points of view may be found in many different combinations. That is what makes the current debate so confusing.

Tremendous Trifles

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

MR. JOHN T. FORD is happy. It is a big night for his theater in Washington. The gifted Laura Keane is starring in "Our American Cousin," and in the audience will be no less a person than the President. So—rearrange the box in which the President will sit tonight with the American flag." Thus John Ford's orders.

The play begins. One of the most appreciative in the audience is that sad-faced man in the stage box. A slender dark young man enters and stands for a moment behind the President. Suddenly he steps forward. "Sic semper tyrannis!" he shouts. There is a sound of a shot. The head of the President drops forward on his breast. The young man lets his pistol fall. He mounts to the rail of the box, ready to leap down to the stage.

But at that moment, the spur on his right horse catches in the fast which drapes the box. He falls to the stage with his left leg doubled under him. The horse snorts but he hobbles out of the theater.

That broken leg, however, will be come so painful that he will have to stop at the home of a kindly doctor for aid. His well-laid plans for a quick escape will be upset. He will be overtaken and shot down. That bit of red, white and blue bunting, when its folds caught the spur of John Wilkes Booth, was the avenger of Lincoln's assassins. Von that tragic night in April, 1865.

Through the watchful care of his two dogs, Robert Powell, 71, of near Homer, Ind., is living. Powell fell from the loft in his barn into a pig pen where he lay unconscious three hours. Although there were several hogs in the pen, the dogs kept guard until help came.

THE CHINA ONES THAT NEVER HATCHED—By BROWN

Reform Ahead of Recovery

By Mark Sullivan

If business and in politics there is intent effort to discover President Roosevelt's present intentions and motives. This result is in much guessing, for in the nature of things no one can know surely what is in another man's mind. Nevertheless, the speculation continues, for when a head of state has as much power as President Roosevelt, that goes on in his mind becomes sometimes of serious consequence to the country.

The facts are that Mr. Roosevelt, following his criticism of the Supreme Court decisions, has enlarged the number of measures which he says this session of Congress must enact, and has increased his insistence on them.

Preceding the court decisions, Democratic members of Congress felt that the President was willing to have the most drastic provision cut out of the public utility holding company bill. They felt that Mr. Roosevelt would permit the Wagner labor disputes bill and the Guffey coal bill to pass or not pass, according to the disposition of Congress, without pressure from the President. They felt the President was not insistent on the controversial part of the banking bill.

Now, much of that has been reversed. Now, the insistence of the President is put behind several drastic measures. When the utility holding company bill was before the Senate, that body, if left to itself, would have eliminated the most drastic provision, Washington gossip tells picturesque stories of the pressure put on Senators by the President through representatives of his who have control of patronage. In the end, the Administration was able to keep the drastic provision in the bill only by a margin of one vote.

Here, then, is a change of attitude by the President. Naturally, there is speculation about the cause of Mr. Roosevelt's change, and his present insistence on the passage of a large program of measures containing provisions which can be called radical.

The speculation which assigns Mr. Roosevelt's present attitude to mere pique over the Supreme Court decision is too simple to be convincing. A more plausible assumption would be that Mr. Roosevelt is now aware that he cannot recover the support of conservative and middle-of-the-road voters in his party and in the country. According to this theory, Mr. Roosevelt's criticism following the Supreme Court decisions alienated the conservatives and moderates from him definitely and finally. Consequently, according to the theory, he has decided to get the radical voters and hold them to him.

All this is surmise, and surmise about motive, which is always difficult to guess. The surmise is so general that it can be said to be the consensus of judgment.

If the surmise is correct, it means on Mr. Roosevelt's part, continuation of a policy which Mr. Walter Lippmann once described as "punitive and terroristic attacks on private business." Some of the bills which Mr. Roosevelt now insists upon are, in the forms in which Mr. Roosevelt insists upon them, just that—"punitive and terroristic attacks upon private business" without attempt to discriminate between evil and good.

Out of this condition arises the question: Can we have recovery under a policy of this kind? On this point, also, there is speculation about Mr. Roosevelt's mental attitude. Does he really wish for recovery? It is a fact that he is now resuming, forcefully the policy against which some of his most loyal adherents warned him as much as a year and a half ago—the policy of putting reform ahead of recovery. It seems tenable to infer that Mr. Roosevelt now proposes to give the country a drastic and complete course of reform, and let recovery take care of itself.

That is as far as it is likely Mr. Roosevelt's personal attitude goes. It is not possible to share the suspicions of those who assert that the President will hold back recovery for the sake of being able to say, some time in the future, with respect to the Supreme Court decisions: "I told you so."

There is nothing in that. Business recovery is one of the conditions that would tend to help re-elect Mr. Roosevelt next year. It is plain Mr. Roosevelt will not sacrifice or postpone reform in order to bring recovery, but he may be glad to recover, if it comes, as it seems likely to, in spite of his reforms.

As to some of the radicals in the Administration, however, the charge that they are willing to "sabotage" recovery is put in simple words by so close and acute an observer as Mr. David Lawrence: "Excessive regulation" is desired by some New Dealers so as to produce chaotic conditions that would call for a strong centralized government as presumably the only desperate alternative."

To those familiar with the temper of some of the extremists, the charge seems tenable. It is an axiom of the technique of revolution that one way to bring a new order of society is to cause the old one to be unworkable. The radicals understand this. Mr. Roosevelt has seemed to think that America could continue to be America but could at the same time become something different.

The fundamental fact is that recovery is under way through natural forces. The natural forces have been aided, since the Supreme Court decisions, by a new confidence on the part of business men. This confidence rests on the assumption that the court will invalidate some of the other drastic measures as they did NRA. Vaguely but confidently most of the business thinks that much of the New Deal is over the dam, and that America will continue in its familiar form of society and government without material change.

Scuppers, or openings used as drainage outlets on porches, should be kept free of all leaves, dirt, and other litter. Otherwise, some of the moisture they hold is absorbed by the porch flooring and surrounding materials, thereby starting deterioration. They should be cleaned, dried, and well painted with durable, water-resistant paint.

It is considered good practice when installing a porch rail and trim or other exterior portions of the house which are exposed to the weather to fit all of the pieces together so that water does not drain into the joints. This precaution will assist in preventing deterioration of the material and result in a lower maintenance cost.

ON AND OFF THE RECORD

The depression made many new problems for us, both as individuals and as a group or social unit. Overnight things seemed to turn upside down, and we found that ideas, methods, and codes of prosperity years were no longer useful.

Most of us contracted debts. Some of these debts were made when things were good, and we thought we would be able to pay readily from the weekly pay check. Then when the pay check stopped coming, as it did for some of us, or was cut in half, as it was for others, we not only were unable to pay our obligations, but were forced to make new ones in order to feed our families.

When the factories and other businesses began opening up, rehiring, and raising wages, men thought that at least they would be able to face the world again. They forgot to reckon with one thing, some of them, who began sweeping down like a flood of vultures, demanding pay or garnishment proceedings. Garnishment in most cases meant the loss of a job for the one garnished. These vultures, greedy and ignorant, some of them, their right enemies of goodness, could not realize that the debt would be paid as soon as possible and that if the debtor lost his job none would benefit, least of all the creditor himself.

Many judges in Wayne County refused to grant a garnishee in most cases. It was left to Judge Joseph Gillis of the Common Pleas bench, however, to install a system which saved the debtor, satisfied the insatiable creditor, and gave a new prosperity one of its strongest props. This is the Conciliation Court. Wayne County has received praise from all parts of the country for its pioneer step in this department. The idea is simple as all good ideas are. Any man who owes money and has a sincere desire to pay, can go to the Conciliation Court. Here he tells the judge what his earnings are, what he owes, and what his family obligations are. The judge then estimates a fair amount of money to be paid on all his bills. The client pays the court this stated amount on each pay day, and the court in turn distributes it among the creditors. The workman is saved garnishment proceedings, he keeps his job, and everyone is satisfied. This service is free of charge to the public.

Headlines May 15th in far off Sydney, Australia. "Tolan runs like a novice, has no form and is ungainly." These words, sounded blatantly by an Australian sprint champion a decade ago, have made the sports world sit up and take notice.

Eddie Tolan just recently returned from that Isle of sportsmanship and brought back with him the world's professional title. He defeated the cream of the world's sprint champions decisively in three out of four events.

Tolan, who works for a living as clerk in Harold Stoll's Register of Deeds office, has had little time for training. This fact did not hinder him on the cinders any more than his purported lack of form and coordination. He won and won undisputedly.

The man who makes the ridiculous statements has never seen Tolan in action. He has seen pictures of him however. It is a shame that the sports world is infested with men of this caliber who can't rest until they have tried to steal the glory from one deserving. Whether he was prompted by jealousy, nationalism, or pure enmity makes little difference. He spoke out of turn. In America, it is results that count, and Tolan certainly has that title. There are a lot of us, yet, and I'll bet there are a lot of Australians, who would like to be a novice like Tolan.

Wayne County courts will go on a summer schedule next Monday. That means half day in all county rooms until the hot weather is over. It is sad news to all those housewives in the county who have been hoping they would be called for jury duty and earn that extra few dollars. There are very few juries during the summer months, and when one is called the juror gets only half pay.

A million dollars seems like a lot of money. If I remember Emerson's words on comparison, however, we realize that this sum can be either large or small. When it is used to apprehend and prosecute criminals throughout a county as large as Wayne, the amount seems to me infinitely small. It represents approximately 9c of each tax dollar.

It is hardly worth while to ask whether or not you would like to do away with crime prevention methods and institutions. They are a necessity. They are as vital as brakes on your car, a lock on your door, or a life boat on an ocean steamer. You know this, and I won't expound about it.

Of course, many criminals are hardened and incurable, just as some people are incurably sick with a physical disease, such as cancer. Others are mentally ill, but not critically so. These people can be cured and it is a duty of society to protect them and doctor them before they are too far gone. This is the type we spend most of our money on. Many of them are later turned back into society and make fine men and women. There are some who erred slightly, these we can liken to a man with a cold. They are quickly cured, and while they should receive more than ordinary care, they are not sick enough for the hospital. The probation de-

Ask Better Mail Service For City

Asking for better mail service out of Plymouth, a petition signed by nearly all of the business men of Plymouth has been forwarded to Congressman George Dondero of this district, who is in Washington. During the past two or three years there has been a steady curtailment of train mail service out of this city and it has been found to be a handicap to many business concerns.

Local manufacturers and business men hope that the post-office department will work out some sort of an arrangement whereby Plymouth can be given better service in the immediate future.

SOME ONE IS TO BLAME

In the twinkling of an eye the life of Maurice Keyworth, recently elected state superintendent of public instruction, was wiped out last Saturday in an automobile accident in the Upper Peninsula. He was not driving the car in which he was riding. His death cut short what promised to be one of the most useful public careers in Michigan and some five millions of people have been deprived of his outstanding abilities, all because SOME ONE did not heed the constant warning to DRIVE CAREFULLY. That some one is still alive. In his mind he will know to his dying day as to who was responsible for the accident that cut short the career of a great common school educator. But his mental torment does not replace the loss that Michigan boys and girls, as well as the state, has suffered. It was regrettable, unfortunate and unnecessary.

NOT FOR ALL

Dr. T. B. Manny, senior agricultural economist of the United States Department of Agriculture in an address before the Iowa County Life Institute said the other day that the small farm is the solution of the relief problem in America, that the man and wife beyond fifty can find a living without luxuries by tilling the soil of a few acres.

Among other things he said:

"The middle-aged man and woman find it increasingly difficult to obtain employment when they are forced to seek new work."

"Many who reach 50 years of age may find it almost impossible to obtain regular employment in the future. For several years small scale farming as a means of livelihood has been attracting an increasing number of middle-aged people unable to obtain work in other industries."

"The owner of agricultural land need never be out of a job as long as he can meet whatever fixed charges in the way of taxes and interest on mortgages may be involved, even though the prices for farm products are not high enough to permit him to live in luxury."

But all the people out of a job and unable to find work after they reach the age of fifty are not able to farm and are not equipped to do so. Dr. Manny's solution for the ills of the nation are all right as far as they go, but it takes care of only a small part of the population.

A SOUTHERN DEMOCRAT SPEAKS UP

Governor Eugene Talmadge of Georgia, one of the states where they produce nothing except true-blue Democrats, is not at sympathetic with some of the things being done by his brethren in Washington. A portion of one of his recent speeches is a pretty good editorial. In part he says:

The cruel policy at Washington of producing scarcity is breaking the pride of the American people; it already has reduced millions to beggary.

Not only has this mad plan crushed and humiliated these citizens by forcing them to accept public charity through the relief rolls, it has tortured them with the spectacle of the farmers of the country ploughing under their crops and slaughtering their livestock, the very things of which they are in dire want, under orders from the economic theorists at Washington.

Emphasizing this grim travesty is the fact that while this program of destruction which violates all the laws of God and Nature is going on, we are actually sending money out of the country for food and clothing for our people and creating jobs for countless foreigners while Americans walk the streets.

Where is the logic of stopping work and production in this country and buying the same products abroad when one-fourth of the population is on the relief rolls?

Here are some cold facts and figures on what is happening under this program of curtailment, and what the processing taxes are doing to American industry to the benefit of the foreign businessman and the foreign workman which present an amazing picture of this appalling situation:

The importation of Japanese bleached cotton cloth has increased during the first three months of 1935 to 56 per cent more than the total importations of the same goods for the entire year of 1934.

In these three months there was imported 10,835,284 square yards as against 6,043,845 yards for 1934, and total imports of all types of cotton cloth since the first of the year through March 31 from all foreign countries were 24,759,000 square yards, of which 16,721,000 yards, or 68 per cent, came from Japan.

An astonishing increase has taken place in the importation of livestock feed. In March, 1934, only 90,760 pounds of cottonseed cake and meal were imported, while in March, 1935, 9,336,380 pounds of these articles were brought in. The three months' figure jumped from 474,014 pounds in 1934 to 35,402,698 pounds in 1935!

Butter importations for March of last year were 29,329 pounds; this year they amounted to 4,928,552 pounds. During the first three months of last year only 127,501 pounds of butter came from abroad. This year in the same period the importations totaled 8,538,140 pounds.

The same is true of corn. In March, a year ago, 16,892 bushels of corn were imported. The figure for the same month this year was 3,304,523 bushels. But 50,051 bushels were imported in the first three months of 1934. The total for the same period this year was 7,017,558 bushels.

Foreigners pulled this corn, sacked and shipped it here. We had to have it, to avoid a famine.

And while we are sending millions of dollars abroad for corn that should be grown here, we are doing the same thing with oats. In the first three months of 1934 only 8,696 bushels of oats were imported. This year the figures leaped to 6,358,255 bushels in the same period.

Most pitiful of all. We killed hogs; we shot down cows, and during March of this year we imported 11,350,000 pounds of meat!

For the first three months of this year 24,600,000 pounds of meat were imported, while our own cattle and hogs were being ruthlessly destroyed, and goats and sheep were actually being thrown over the mountains in Wyoming and California to conform with the Administration's production of scarcity program.

Secretary of Agriculture has defended this program and the processing tax with the statement that for the first time in the history of the country this tax is a tariff in favor of the farmer.

This reasoning is spurious.

A protected tariff is a duty that is imposed upon the importation of any article.

A tax for growing and manufacturing the article in America is a tariff but in a reverse form. It penalizes and places an extra burden of the American peoples for doing their own growing and manufacturing. It gives them no protection from foreign competitors. On the contrary, it helps them. This is exactly what the processing taxes have done.

This whole cruel program, that is only creating distress and impoverishing our citizens, by which we are buying abroad the very things they sorely need and that we are wantonly destroying, should be abandoned.

The AAA should be abolished; the processing taxes wiped out. It should follow the NRA, which perhaps was responsible for more unemployment and economic distress than any other feature of the New Deal.

And the party in power should return to the principles of its founders and fulfill the promises of its platform to eliminate unnecessary and extravagant governmental bureaus and reduce the cost of government.

THE HANDWRITING ON THE WALL

Editor Muri DeFoe in The Charlotte Republican-Tribune recently declared that "if the state cannot cut rates sufficiently to drive out the bootlegger it had better turn the liquor business back to private interests and let the communities regulate the business as best they can. As for official profits, of course, there are none, no matter how the figures are set up."

The Charlotte editor was one of the early advocates of prohibition in Michigan. Like many other outstanding citizens, he thought prohibition could be made successful and that it would react to the benefit of the country at large. When, because of official laxity and graft, it became evident that prohibition was a failure, Mr. DeFoe—like others—thought that officially controlled liquor business would be better than no regulation at all.

We have agreed with both positions of Editor DeFoe—and we believe again that he is right when he says local control of the liquor business is better than state control. But again we say that if those interested in the liquor business do not clean house and try to run the business in some sort of a decent way, there will come a day when the people of the country WILL not only control the business, but they will wipe it out so thoroughly that even crooked public officials will not be able to let it function. It would seem as though with the tide of public opinion turning so strongly hostile again that the leaders in the liquor business would see to it that their house is set in order, before the voters again void their investments.

GROESBECK NEXT SENATOR?

Senator Couzens may believe that the voters will send him back to Washington again, but they won't. We pin our guess on Alex Groesbeck to take his place.—Al Weber in The Cheboygan Observer.

JUST ANOTHER FLOP

"Only two weeks in Alaska those government colonists from Michigan are clamoring for return trip tickets. No market for what they may raise and prices for what they buy very high. A government store charges them 10 cents for a penny cake of yeast and 25 cents per pound for sugar. Well, it was a fool experiment of some Brain Trust kid to say the least.—Milton Carmichael in The Detroit Courier.

HIS DATA WRONG

When Radlo Priest Coughlin (if he was correctly reported) argues that he has "a right to argue for civil war to free the white man just as Lincoln preferred civil war to free the Negro" he has his history badly mixed up, and begin to reveal himself in bad light. Lincoln didn't argue for civil war, but against it. In his inauguration speech he said to the South, "In your hands, my dissatisfied countymen, and not in mine rests the momentous issue of civil war."—Emerson Gildart in The Utica Sentinel.

JUST TALK, SAYS A. D.

Secretary Wallace is quoted by newspapers as telling the visiting farmers at Washington that the processing tax is the same thing as the protective tariff. Well, the processing tax is raised to decrease American production which naturally increases foreign production, while the protective tariff is designed to increase home production which naturally decreases foreign production. We hope that Mr. Wallace has guessed closer on a lot of things or it will be just too bad.—A. D. Gallery in The Caro Advertiser.

Our tax laws which were quite equitable and fair at one time have, through gradual changes and new conditions, become burdensome and unjust. In an early day most of the wealth was in real estate and tangible personal property, the value of which was not difficult to obtain. Now it is quite different. Our tax laws must be changed and the burden placed upon those who are best able to pay.—H. J. Richardson in The Augusta Beacon.

HELL BURN LATER

Several of my editorial brethren as well as a few other good people are bewailing the fact that Gov. Fitzgerald granted a pardon to Irving Latimer, who they allege killed his mother in order to get her money, and on circumstantial evidence he was arrested, tried, convicted and sentenced to Jackson for life. He served 46 years. Now because, in spite of his imprisonment he failed to die, they are after the Governor's scalp for granting the pardon, as if 100 years instead of 46 would have given the State of Michigan any greater satisfaction? Gentlemen, don't you realize that the eternal law of compensation, for acts good or evil, follows the individual, and if Latimer is guilty of the crime charged, think you because his body has been liberated from prison that he is not tortured by day and night? I say, if he is guilty as charged, neither Fitzgerald's pardon, nor the forgiveness of God, can blot the awful scar from the man's soul—for memory is the worm that dieth not—here or hereafter. Who is the man or woman who has committed a crime, regardless how old they are who have forgotten the foul deed, and because they can't forget, that's what makes hell for them, and poor wretches, they try in vain to drown the deed in other crimes, in drink, Yes, and in suicide, wherein they fool themselves because they cannot get away from themselves, and the greater their intelligence the greater their torture.—J. E. McMullen in The Linden Leader.

Enlarge Size Of New Ford Plant

Engineers of the Ford Motor car company a few days ago spent a portion of one day re-surveying the location of the new plant Mr. Ford proposes to build in Northville.

If the new survey is any indication, the re-located stakes show that the proposed building will be some 20 feet longer than the plant originally staked out. The increased addition will give the structure some 2000 or more feet of additional floor space.

While it is not known just how soon Mr. Ford expects to start work on the new Northville valve plant, it is known that the contract has been let to a well known Detroit firm of architects to prepare the plans and specifications.

It is not known whether the new building will be constructed by contract or built by the Ford organization but the fact that the plans are being prepared by architects other than Mr. Ford's own force would indicate say some that the building will probably be built by contract.

The Story of the Bible Told in Pictures

The Queen of Sheba Visits Solomon.—After the dedication of the temple, the Lord appeared the second time to Solomon and covenanted with him, promising to uphold the Israelites so long as they obeyed His commandments. "And when the queen of Sheba heard of the fame of Solomon concerning the name of the Lord, she came to Jerusalem with a very great train, with camels that bare spices, and very much gold, and precious stones, and when she was come to Solomon, she communed with him of all that was in her heart. And Solomon told her all her questions: there was not anything hid from the king, which he told her not. And when the queen of Sheba had seen all Solomon's wisdom, and the house that he had built, there was no more spirit in her. And she said to the king, It was a true report that I heard in mine own land of thy acts and of thy wisdom. Howbeit I believed not the words, until I came, and mine eyes had seen it; and, behold, the half was not told me; thy wisdom and prosperity exceedeth the fame which I heard."—I Kings 10: 1-7. "Blessed are they," says Jesus "that HEAR THE WORD OF GOD AND KEEP IT." The services last but a short 45 minutes during the summer, certainly the best 45 minutes you can possibly spend all week, without which the entire remaining 10,035 minutes of the week are wasted and have lost their meaning. Place Skunk On The Protected List Of Michigan Animals

The skunk legally is no longer a public enemy in Michigan. The general game bill adopted by the 58th state legislature and recently signed by Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald, takes the skunk from the "vermin" class and treats him to the respectable social rating enjoyed by other species of fur-bearing animals.

The skunk may now be taken only from November 1 to January 31, whereas in former years it could be hunted the year around by sportsmen having small-game licenses and permits to carry firearms in closed game areas.

A prevailing popular belief has been that the skunk was dominantly predacious and that the harm it did outweighed its value as a fur-bearer. Studies of such well-known specialists as Dr. E. C. O'Roke and Prof. Ned Dearborn of University of Michigan have tended to place the skunk in a different light.

Skunks feed primarily on ground-dwelling insects and if they do kill chickens, as many farmers have thought, or disturb a pheasant nest, it is the exception rather than the rule.

As Maine Goes

If the furious campaign waged last year in the state of Maine may be taken as a criterion the New Dealers place the utmost confidence in the old say that "As Maine goes, so goes the nation." Further it may be recalled that the Democratic gubernatorial candidate won his election on the single plank platform, that, as a Democrat, he would be in a better position than his Republican opponent to secure federal grants for the consumption of Maine projects. His confidence was not misplaced. One of the first appropriations from the work relief fund is a sum of thirty-six million dollars for the development of power from the abnormal Fundy tides that invade Passamaquoddy bay, at the extreme eastern angle of the state.

For what purpose this additional power supply will be used is an enigma to be solved by generations to come. Present prospects are nil. No substantial volume can be utilized in the sardine, herring, or lobster fishing industries for which that section of Maine is famous, nor in the smoking of haddock to produce finnan-haddies. It cannot be argued that it will establish industry because the Pine Tree State is already so badly overloaded with hydroelectric power that artificial consumption has been induced; for example, the Bucksport paper mill promoted and built by the Insull interests at a time when overproduction of newsprint was threatening the collapse of that industry in the United States.

A power plant situated at the apex of the triangle with its market area circumscribed to the north by the Canadian boundary and to the south by the Atlantic ocean could scarcely succeed under normal industrial demand. It is difficult to visualize a more perfect example of delirium tremens spending for the mere exhaustion of a fund.—Chicago Tribune.

Shuffle Boards In The New Park

Hey, you shuffle board players! Did you know that there are being constructed for your special benefit two shuffle board plots between the Cass Benton park and the Northville fair grounds in the new parkway system?

No longer will you have to travel down to Florida or run way up to Traverse City whenever the shuffle board bug is biting. Soon all you will have to do is just jump in your car and run over to Cass Benton park and there you will find a good, well laid out shuffle boards as there can be found anywhere in the great state of Florida.

Babe Killed In Ford Road Wreck

Eight persons were injured Saturday night and a six-months old child was killed when an automobile struck a farm wagon on Ford Road near Beck Road and then collided head-on with another car.

The child was William Burghardt, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Burghardt, 5128 Berwick St., Detroit. The parents were in University Hospital Ann Arbor today but not in serious condition.

Mrs. Doris Sherwin, 24, 550 Saratoga Ave., Ferndale, is in St. Joseph's Hospital in Ann Arbor in serious condition as result of the same accident. Her husband, Harry Sherwin and their seven-months old son, Robert were placed in the University Hospital but are reported not in serious condition.

The three others injured were Mrs. Mary O'Neill, 7510 Dunedin St., Detroit, her daughter, Katherine, 9, and a son, Robert, five. Sheriff's deputies from Wayne County placed the driver of the wagon, Joseph Dario, 54, in the Wayne County jail for questioning. He is reported to have been on the road with no lights. His wagon was badly broken but he was not injured.

A "John Doe" warrant was issued by Justice A. M. Vandersall in municipal court at Ypsilanti Saturday for reckless driving, preferred by Rev. Gordon Wood, Detroit, who charges that he was forced off US-112 at the Saline overhead bridge into a guard rail Friday afternoon.

Rev. Wood was en route to the Epworth League institute at Albion, he told Justice Vandersall when the mishap occurred. The occupants of the other car did not stop but turned around and laughed. Rev. Wood charges. The guard rail prevented the car from toppling over the 50-foot embankment.

This win makes the fourth straight. The locals are out to stay on top Sunday at 3:30 p.m. the Gray A. C. of Detroit, which serious one and they are concerned with the fact that they may do harm to their master.

The rabid dog has a peculiar bark which is difficult to describe but when well known, is quite characteristic. It is neither a normal bark nor a howl, but rather a moan. The dog sits or stands with his head elevated, apparently looking into space and emits this peculiar and characteristic sound. It is quite likely that the old saying, that danger is ahead if a dog is caught baying at the moon, had its origin in this characteristic of the early signs of rabies.

Not every dog often by a rabid animal develops the disease. The best available statistics seem to indicate that in unvaccinated dogs about 50 per cent of those bitten develop rabies. Among the vaccinated, this percentage would be reduced to about five per cent. This is good evidence of the value of vaccination.

One popular error is the belief that a rabid dog is afraid of water. This is not the case. The term "hydrophobia" which means "fear of water" refers rather to the symptoms which develop in rabies when it attacks man.

Another popular error concerning rabid dogs is that animals suffering from this disease will not eat. The rabid dog is frequently very ravenous.

The incubation period, that is, the time between the date of infection and the date of the first symptoms of the disease, varies considerably in the dog. It will depend upon the age of the dog, the part bitten, and the amount of the poison introduced. It usually runs, however, from one to five weeks but may be as short as five days and there are instances in which it is as long as six months.

The disease in the dog invariably terminates in death and in no instance has it been known to last for more than ten days. This is why dogs suspicious of having rabies must be held for ten days in either the dog kennel or at the kennel of some responsible veterinarian. The Plymouth ordinance requires this precaution.

If the dog must be killed in order to capture it, its head should be severed and sent to the Pasteur Institute at Ann Arbor for examination, irrespective of whether any person is bitten.

Rabies in man is one of the most terrifying diseases. The patient always dies and usually within three days.

The coming summer may see Plymouth's dog population well seeded with rabies and it will be literally dangerous for children to play on the streets unless precautionary measures are taken promptly. The existing ordinance must be rigidly enforced. Dogs cannot be permitted to travel at large during the months of July and August. They must be strictly controlled to the owner's property and taken into public places only on leash. The Police Department has been instructed to use unusual diligence in picking up all dogs found on the streets or traveling at large. The conscientious dog owner who has any consideration for his pet should see that he is vaccinated against rabies.

The above information is given by City officials with the hope that complete cooperation can be had from owners of dogs in this City in order that the health of human beings and the dog population will be preserved. The Police Department will dispose of any dogs owned in the City of Plymouth at the request of the owners thereof.

On Saturday afternoon several little folks were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Willett on Holbrook avenue in honor of their granddaughter, Doris, of Toledo, Ohio, who is spending a few weeks with them. Fishermen Eat Up The Evidence

The fishing season opened Tuesday. Except for the fact that there was missing from the streets of the city some well known citizens during most of the day, no one would know that on another date for the next few months it is legal to catch any kind of fish in Michigan, providing of course they are of proper size.

The fishing editor has looked in vain for reports of "big catches."

One party composed of Dr. Britt Champe, Russell Powell and David Bolton went over to Walled Lake to inaugurate the season in a proper way.

They said they caught fish, but admit that they ate up the evidence of the catch before returning home.

"Yes, we caught a bass and we caught some other fish. We even baited our hooks with worms and fished for pan fish. That's what we got and we panned them right away," said David Bolton, official spokesman for this fishing party.

From such information as can be secured about this fishing trip, the three did catch a few fish and then they went to a cottage and ate their fish.

"We thought it would be better to eat them at the lake than bring them home. Not that we were ashamed of our catch, but we didn't just like the idea of lugging one bass down through the streets of Plymouth," confessed another member of this fishing party.

"So we just ate up all the evidence of our fishing trip on the opening day, that's all there is to it."

William Pettingill, Dr. Paul Butz, Frank Coward, Walt Smith, Walter Harms and 493 others tried their luck at nearby lakes during the day. So far few reports of good catches have been received. The banks of Newburg, Plymouth and Phoenix lakes were lined with people out "after 'em."

The Saturday evening contract bridge club, composed of Mr. and Mrs. Claud J. Dykhouse, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Johns, Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Hohel and Mr. and Mrs. John Paul Morrow, will be guests of the former on Blunk avenue at a co-operative dinner Saturday evening.

The happy couple left immediately for a short trip to Cleveland, Ohio and will be at home to their friends at their home on Beck Road, Mrs. Van Valkenburg has been a teacher in the Plymouth schools the past year and her many friends here extend best wishes to them for a happy, wedded life.

City Completes Street Oiling

The city of Plymouth this week completed the road oiling program for 1935. The city commission provided for tanks or 40,000 gallons of tar dust, layer at a cost of approximately $3,000.00, including the cost of applying and the gravel surfacing.

The above sum of money represents the balance of the appropriation for dust laying in the 1934 budget and all of the appropriation of the 1935 budget. It will be impossible to expend further sum on unpaved streets, except the funds required for patching, during the next twelve months, or until the 1936 budget becomes effective.

The city has experimented with various surface treatments for the laying of dust during the past three years and has found the material used this year to be the most satisfactory. The total cost will be between four and five cents per square yard. It is estimated that over a period of a few years the total cost of such treatment will not exceed the cost over a like number of years of the old method of dust laying and at the same time a surface of permanent nature will be built up.

Smith Coach In Production Here

The Plymouth Mill Supply is putting on the market a new trailer coach for campers and travelers that is causing much favorable comment around the country by people who are interested in trailers of the kind. The trailer is named the Smith Coach after Dewey Smith owner of the Mill Supply Company.

The coach is large and roomy and has four side windows for four people to travel comfortably. Fixtures on the inside of the coach include a gasoline stove, water supply tank, sink, ice box, storage closets, electric lights built in tables, reversible windows and screens and two comfortable seats at each end of the coach. One of the features of the coach is the full view afforded the driver from the rear vision mirror by the four side windows in the trailer.

THROUGH A WOMAN'S EYES • BY JEAN NEWTON

THE ANSWER IS IN KNOWING PEOPLE BETTER

"HY can't people really be what they seem at first sight?"

So asks a reader, who, I gather, is one of your younger friends.

"You meet people," she writes, "who seem perfectly charming. You feel you have much in common with them and would like to know them better. Then you get to know them. You invite them to your house, perhaps, or you visit at theirs. They still seem charming. Then you get to know them better. And then you begin to discover things."

"The woman turns out to be a cat, or perhaps just jealous because your husband is nicer to you than hers is to her. Or it develops that they are the kind who cultivate people to 'use' them. Perhaps he sells insurance—or stocks."

"Or it may be just that their graciousness which charmed you at first looks synthetic when you see them using it on other people—perhaps people you know they don't really like."

"Or you may discover that they brag; or are curious; or greedy; or not sincere."

"Why, oh why do people have to disillusion you just when you are beginning to like them awfully? And what's the answer—is it to drop friends who disappoint you for others who are sure to do the same thing when you know them better?"

Again I say our reader must be young. Because only the young expect perfection of anyone. And she is so patiently one of those spirited souls who likes so terribly when they do like, that they expect far too much.

And the answer? The answer is not to drop those people who have developed faults. No, indeed. The answer is to know them better. For when you know them better you are very likely to learn to understand their faults, and they are very likely to reveal new virtues and finenesses and charms which will counterbalance those faults.

There is a story told of Charles Lamb who was asked if he knew a certain person whom he had ridiculed. "Know him?" he replied. "Of course I don't know him. I never could hate anyone I knew."

So the answer is not in knowing people less well, but knowing them better.

Will Meet Fast Fowlervilleites

For the first time in history the Fowlerville Baseball club will invade this part of the state, Sunday June 30th to meet the Plymouth Schrader-Haggerty in the first of a three game series.

The contest will take place at the new Cass Benton ball park starting at 3:30 p.m. This new diamond is one of the best in the country.

To date each team has suffered two defeats so, this promises to be one of the feature games of the season.

The Wolverine Cubs will journey to Plymouth-Riviera Park Saturday June 29th to oppose the Schrader-Haggerty at 3 o'clock. The Wolverine Club is a member of the Detroit Baseball Federation.

Thursday, July 4th Plymouth will play a single game at Plymouth-Riviera Park starting at 3:30 p.m.

In a ten inning game on Sunday Plymouth nosed out either.

The road surface will naturally break up and pit in places, but this can be corrected with a treatment as inexpensive as the one used. However, the dust nuisance will be materially reduced and there will be some value to the treatment from year to year.

No unpaved street in the City is long enough to allow high speeds and by following the above suggestions the surface treated streets can be made to last for a considerable longer period than would be possible under high speed traffic.

Announcement!

The Plymouth Mail Has Completed the Details of its Great

and is now ready to reveal the plan, to the public.

Our share The Wealth program is entirely different than the one being set up by the politicians in Washington.

WHO CAN GET HELP

Our plan only helps the thrifty, the men and women who watch for bargains, those who like to work when they get a chance, those who regard their time as precious moments in which to do something worthwhile, just the class of people who read The Plymouth Mail and its classified section each week.

The Mail plan does not help the lazy, the indolent, the shiftless and those who sit around waiting for a bit of public pap to be handed out.

THE DIFFERENCE

Therein lies the difference between our plan and the plan being concocted by the politicians in Washington who want to pass the "pap" out to shiftless, grasping politicians and the man who refuses to work even though offered a job.

The only requirement to "Get in" on the great Plymouth Mail share-the wealth deal is to invest a 25 cent piece in a want ad. You will be amazed at the speed you will get some of the other fellow's wealth.

It's the simplest SHARE THE WEALTH plan ever devised.

Aid Is Rushed To Alaska Settlers

Prompted by the expose of conditions, the federal relief administration has moved speedily to alleviate hardships of colonists in the Matanuska valley, Alaska. Among the colonists are Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rotz and two children of Plymouth.

More nurses and doctors are to be provided, along with milk for children and better care for expectant mothers. Officials who have allegedly discriminated among the colonists and gouged some of them in selling supplies, are expected to be removed.

At the same time, Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, prepared a reply to the Senate's demand for information on the colony at Palmer camp.

The Senate demand came after stories describing conditions had been read into the Congressional Record. A "prompt reply" to the Senate's demand was promised by Hopkins.

At the same time relief officials announced Eugene Carr of the FERA bureau of statistics has been appointed to succeed M. Lester Troast, as director of the Alaskan colonization.

Troast resigned after publication of complaints from the colonists, but relief officials declined to state whether the complaints caused his action.

Carr sailed Tuesday on the transport St. Miniel. The boat also will carry a cargo of lumber to construct homes for the colonists, FERA officials said.

Carr had been in charge of the Red Cross rehabilitation in West Virginia.

A resolution proposed by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, calling for a full report, was unanimously adopted by the Senate. Senators Robert M. La Follette Jr., Progressive, and Hendrik Shipstead, Farmer-Laborite, Minnesota, joined with Vandenberg in offering the resolution.

Vandenberg, in bringing the complaints of the colonists to the attention of the Senate, placed in the record an article published on June 16, quoting a letter by Mrs. Fred Rotz, Plymouth, and a telegram addressed to Senator James Couzens on behalf of the colonists by Patrick J. Hemmer and Mrs. I. M. Sandvik.

Vandenberg read at length from the letter of Mrs. Rotz, describing the sufferings of the colonists. In conclusion, he gained permission to have the entire article inserted in the record.

"One of the novel experiments undertaken by Administrator Hopkins," Vandenberg declared, "is the colonization experiment in Alaska."

"It happens that these colonists came from Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota. Based upon the telegram received by Senator Couzens and the letter of Mrs. Rotz, it would appear essential, in the name of humanity, to inquire immediately into the facts involved."

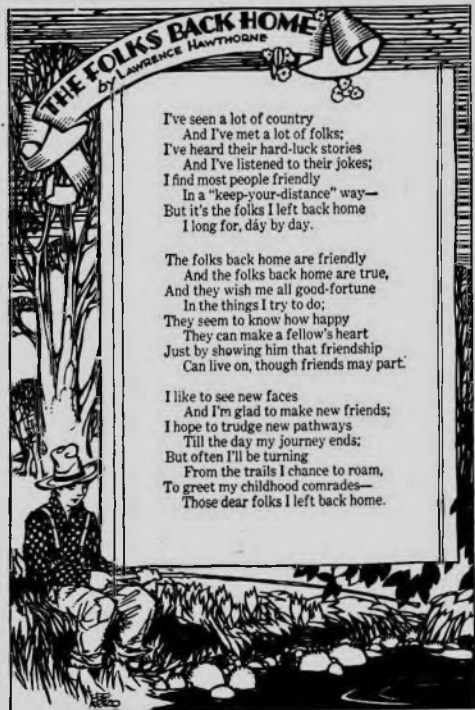

"I have no doubt that the administration officers are somewhat familiar with these conditions. It is not a pleasant thing to contemplate."

"It has seemed to me and to Senators LaFollette and Shipstead, that the least we can do on our own responsibility is to ask for a report on these conditions, and to determine precisely what the facts are."

Apparently, the situation is one which does require, in the name of simple humanity, some immediate attention.

"I hope that the request for information will inspire the federal administrators to try to remedy the difficulties."

I've seen a lot of country
And I've met a lot of folks;
I've heard their hard-luck stories
And I've listened to their jokes;
I find most people friendly
In a "keep-your-distance" way—
But it's the folks I left back home
I long for, day by day.

The folks back home are friendly
And the folks back home are true,
And they wish me all good-fortune
In the things I try to do;
They seem to know how happy
They can make a fellow's heart
Just by showing him that friendship
Can live on, though friends may part.

I like to see new faces
And I'm glad to make new friends;
I hope to trudge new pathways
Till the day my journey ends;
But often I'll be turning
From the trails I chance to roam,
To greet my childhood comrades—
Those dear folks I left back home.

THIS WEEK'S BEST FISHING STORY

"I've read so much in The Plymouth Mail about some of these big fishing stories told by Dr. Paul Butz, Frank Coward, Russell Powell and all of these other fellows that break into print now and then that I've got a real fishing story—and it is a true one too" said no less an individual than Harry Ayers, well known Plymouth township fruit grower and enthusiastic Rotarian.

"Of course even you may not believe it, but it's all true," continued Mr. Ayers.

"Years ago when I was a young fellow we went up on the Huron river near Kent lake. That was the time when fishing was good. It was in the fall and white fish were running. We thought we would get a few for supper. Well we put our boat in the river and poled it down the stream away. We came to a shallow spot where the water wasn't much over a foot and a half or two feet deep.

"We swung our boat across the stream and while two held each end of the boat, we tipped it so that the upstream side of the boat was just a few inches above the water. We grabbed the pails we had along with us and the fish were so thick that we had the boat half filled with flopping white fish quicker than you can tell it. All we had to do was to just dip the fish from the river into the boat.

"Well we had to stop for fear that we couldn't get the boat to the landing place without sinking it.

"But after we got into the boat and started back, you know we had all kinds of trouble in making headway upstream. The fish were so thick in the water that we just had to shove the boat through both fish and water. You can tell the boys that I've got another one for them if they think they can beat this really true fishing story."

Dondero Flails Wild Bridge Idea

Congressman George A. Dondero's opposition to the construction of the proposed Mackinac Straits Bridge has been registered with the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works. He expressed his position in the following language:

"I am opposed to the construction of such a bridge. Two things alone would justify the proposal. First it must be economically sound and second a necessity must exist for it.

"As to the soundness of the proposal, I call attention to the fact that if the bridge is to cost $35,000,000 to be amortized over a period of forty years, it would require an income from tolls of more than $2,000,000 per year to sustain it.

"The state maintains a ferry which is adequate, complete, safe and most desirable, the total income from which has never exceeded $400,000 per year.

"Two things alone could call for the building of this bridge, the tourist traffic and hunters in the fall of the year. The present ferry takes care of both.

"Iron ore from Upper Michigan will go down the lakes in freighters as in the past. Lumber is a vanishing if not a vanished industry in Upper Michigan. Agriculture and its products are limited to the east end of the peninsula and they find their way to market in trucks.

"This bridge is the promotion scheme of some person or persons who promoted the Ambassador Bridge across the Detroit River at Detroit. It has resulted in being a dismal financial failure.

"I challenge anyone to point out the present state ferry is not capable of handling the traffic. The state has built two of the finest docks in the country and maintains three safe, comfortable and clean steamers to convey vehicles and passengers from one peninsula to the other. If the traffic should increase the state could very easily add another steamer.

"The present charge is nominal upon an investment of about one and a half million dollars. About one dollar is charged for an automobile and twenty-five cents per passenger. The toll that would necessarily have to be charged over a bridge costing $35,000,000 would be more than ten times the present charge.

"Big boulders and rocks taken from various parts of the parkway placed over a year ago in the side of the hill are now partially covered by beautiful rock garden plants and shrubs.

"If you have not yet taken the time to see this newly created beauty spot in the Plymouth-Riverside park, do so today. It will be worth your time.

Park Rock Garden Is Beauty Spot

Do you want to see one of the most beautiful sights in all of Michigan?

Just get in your car and drive out to the beautiful rock garden created in the Plymouth-Riverside park around the spring that flows from the side of a hill just north of Newburg lake.

Not in all of Michigan, in fact it is doubtful if you can find anywhere in the country, a more beautiful spot than has been created by the Wayne county road commission out of a piece of ground that was nothing more than a barren side hill less than two years ago.

All that the county officials had to work with at the beginning was the hill and the flowing spring that was uncovered when excavation was being made for the roadway.

First the water flowing from the spring was made to fall over the top of a "natural" rock formation some six or seven feet above a pool.

based upon present traffic.

"In destroying the natural beauty of that region, it would injure the people on both sides of the Straits and Mackinac City and St. Ignace would become mere gas stations. About 400,000 people reside within 150 miles of the Straits, therefore the traffic would certainly be dependent upon the people coming from other sections of our country.

"We have gone a long way to preserve, by legislation, the historic and natural beauty spots of our country even designating the largest swamp in our land as a national park under the pretext of preserving the flora and fauna in their present condition for the people and posterity. I refer to the Everglade Swamp.

"This proposal would destroy the natural beauty of the Straits region and take away the greatest asset that that region offers to the people everywhere. Its excellent beauty.

"The report of Professor Cade of the Michigan State College, who represented the Coast and Geodetic Survey, refers to this project as being under estimated in cost and fantastic in its conception.

"It is not asked for by the state of Michigan. The highway department is not interested, and there is so little commerce which

Sugar Talk Made To Rotary Club

How the ladies of America have fallen for the propaganda of the cane sugar trust?

"But to try and tell the ladies that beet sugar, grown in Michigan, by Michigan farmers, by Michigan workers and that sells for the same price as the cane sugar grown in foreign lands and made by cheap labor is just as good and you have got a job on your hands," said A. D. Brock of Saginaw who spoke before members of the Plymouth Rotary club last Friday noon.

"But tests have proven that beet sugar has exactly the same qualities and is exactly as good as cane sugar—that tests made by the government and various educational institutions and others show not the slightest difference in beet sugar and cane sugar. One will make just as good jelly as the other. No matter what some say, sugar does not make jelly jell. It's the pectin in the fruit that does that," said Mr. Brock.

"It is all a question of whether the users of sugar want to help home industry and home agriculture or foreign industry and the big financial institutions that control the cane sugar business," said Mr. Brock.

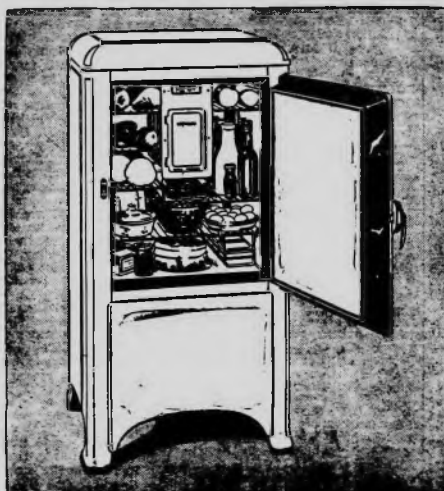

When modernizing a home by constructing new rooms in the basement or attic, it is good practice to install the wood flooring and interior finish after the room has been plastered and the plaster is comparatively dry.

Church Wedding For Miss Mary Minthorne And Claud R. Yoe

In the midst of a beautiful setting of garden flowers, peonies, daisies and spring, the wedding ceremony uniting Miss Mary Minthorne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Minthorne of this city to Claud R. Yoe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Yoe of Detroit, took place on Thursday morning, June 20, at nine-thirty o'clock in Our Lady of Good Counsel church, the Reverend Father Frank Lefevre officiating.

The bride was lovely in an egg-shell silk crepe gown with semi-train and veil carrying an arm bouquet of white roses and baby breath, while her matron-of-honor, Mrs. Mae Mauer, was becomingly attired in peach lace and carried pink roses.

The groom chose Ralph Minthorne, brother of the bride, for his best man.

Preceding the ceremony, John Schomberger sang "Ava Maria," and "On this Day O Beautiful Mother."

A reception and breakfast followed the ceremony at the home of the bride on Holbrook avenue with the immediate families, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Mauer of Grosse Pointe, Mr. and Mrs. William Brouette of Detroit and Mrs. Joseph Herter and daughter, Rosemary, of Plymouth present.

The happy couple will reside in Plymouth. Their many friends here extend best wishes to them for a long, happy wedded life.

Tomato Plants Killed By Worms

Thousands and thousands of tomato plants set out by growers in the Plymouth territory have been destroyed by cutworms during the past few days. One grower advised The Mail the other day that he had lost over 3000 plants in one field.

So great has become the cutworm menace in Michigan that the Michigan State college has branded the worms public enemy number one in the fields and gardens of Michigan, and like other criminals, public notice so far accorded them seems only to have encouraged their appetites for crime, according to the entomology department at Michigan State college.

Reports of destruction roll in to the entomology department on the telephone, by telegraph, and by mail. Six acres of everbearing strawberries disappeared in West Highland, and an inspection of the field showed a condition which was expressed as, "paved with cutworms." The taste of the insects for green stuff is not confined to any one species of plant, they have been reported as destroying carrots, corn, tomatoes, all sorts of garden plants, and some flowering plants.

When cutworms are present in the numbers now reported, the only practical method of controlling them is to use poison bait. The bait should be placed in the infested areas just before dark. It is scattered on the ground in flakes to avoid leaving lumps which might injure birds or domestic fowls.

The poison bait is prepared by mixing one bushel of bran, one-half gallon of cheap molasses, one pound of white arsenic or one pound of paris green. Enough water is added to permit thorough mixing and to allow the poison to go into solution so that each particle of the bran has a coating of the killing agent. Too much water wastes poison, as any water that drips out carries poison in solution. Two ounces of banana oil are added to the mixture.

The quantities of materials mentioned will make bait enough to treat two acres. Bait should not be wasted by applying it in areas where plants are not being damaged. Bait applied early in the day will dry out and is ineffective in attracting cutworms.

Gardeners who have only small plots of ground to protect can cooperate with neighbors in buying and mixing bait. Local dealers in supplies often will mix and sell it in quantities needed. Ten pounds of bait will treat one acre.

Arsenate of lead or calcium arsenate can not be used successfully in preparing poison bait. Sodium arsenate can be used but it usually is not so readily available at local stores.

Extension bulletin No. 117 is intended for the use of gardeners who are having trouble with bugs. Either bulletin or both will be sent to anyone requesting it from the bulletin clerk at the College, East Lansing.

What to Do With The Chicken That Does Not Lay Eggs—Just Can It

Low producers in the farm poultry flock can help cut the family food budget and home economics food specialists of Michigan State College recommend that such poultry be converted into delicious future meals by preserving them by canning. Canning chicken requires little effort, and, when properly done, changes old hens into tender, well flavored meat. The fowl is drawn by opening the bird, the entire length with a cut along the ribs through the thin flesh between the back and the breast. The cut is continued to the pelvic bone and around the vent and the entire side is opened to the entrails which can be removed easily.

After the legs and wings have been removed, the skin is opened from the wing opening toward the head and the windpipe, crop and gullet are taken out. The shoulder blades come out easily if a cut is made across the back underneath them and then broken off at the joint.

Remove the gall bladder from the liver without breaking it, and cut through the thick portion of the gizzard to remove the entrails. The giblets are packed in a separate can to avoid darkening the other meat and changing its flavor.

To pack, place one thigh, one drumstick, two wings, and the neck and the ribs in the center of the can. Cover with the back and remaining pieces, add two teaspoonsful of salt, but no liquid. Put rubber jar ring in place and partially seal jar. If using tin cans, exhaust the air in cans by placing them in boiling water for seven minutes and then seal. Salt the jars and place them in the pressure cooker, leaving the petcock open for seven minutes after the steam begins to escape. Then close the petcock and process for one hour at 15 pounds pressure. Tin cans may be cooled in cold water.
