

Charles Fisher Retires From the Plymouth United

Board With Regrets Accepts Resignation Upon His Request

Announcement was made yesterday of the acceptance of the resignation of Charles A. Fisher as president of the Plymouth United Savings bank at a meeting of the board of directors held on Tuesday evening. It has been known for some time that Mr. Fisher has had a desire to retire from the banking business but his resignation presented to the board some weeks ago was not accepted until he insisted this week upon being relieved of his duties as president.

Mr. Fisher states that his plans for the future have not fully been made, but that he plans for the present to take a much needed vacation. He has a desire to spend some of the summer months in the north where he has extensive interests and he states that he will devote much of his time to other personal matters.

Entering the old Plymouth Savings bank as a youthful bookkeeper in December, 1892, he climbed from this minor position to one important place after another.

For a time he was employed at the Daisy offices before entering upon bank work. He later became cashier of the First National bank and upon consolidation of the old First National bank and the Plymouth United Savings bank in 1903 he was made president and has served in that capacity continuously since that time.

He remained at his head during the turbulent days following the closing of all the banks in the state by a governor's proclamation and did his best to help straighten out its affairs.

The board of directors of the bank passed resolutions expressing regrets over his retirement as president. His place as the chief executive of the bank has not been filled but the board probably at its next meeting will elect a new president.

Work Commended

CAPT. CHARLES THUMME

Following an all-day examination last week at the fingerprinting headquarters of the Michigan State Police in Lansing, Capt. Charles Thumme of the Plymouth police force was given a letter of highest commendation for his knowledge of the task of learning the procedure of fingerprinting and the fine work he did in taking the test.

The local police department some time ago established a fingerprinting department. Capt. Thumme applied himself to the task of learning the procedure until now he has become an authority in the field, as the results of the state examination testify.

Plymouth is fortunate in having an efficient police force under the capable leadership of Chief Vaughan Smith, whose work has upon numerous occasions received favorable comment from both the Detroit police department and the Wayne county sheriff's office.

Dr. Grace Line Is Main Speaker At Banquet Here

Over 300 At Annual Fair Given By Girl Reserves

One of the largest groups of mothers and daughters ever to attend the annual banquet sponsored by Plymouth Girl Reserves was present Tuesday evening at the high school auditorium where the affair was held. Over 300 were served.

An exceptionally interesting program on the theme of "World Fellowship" was presented, with Gwendolyn Dunlop, president of the senior Girl Reserves as toastmistress. She was introduced by Elizabeth Whipple.

The toast, "To Mothers Everywhere," was given by Jewel Starkweather, her central idea being that even though mothers in various countries practice queer customs in caring for their daughters, still that invaluable worldwide quality—love is in all. The response, "To Daughters Everywhere," was made by Mrs. P. Ray Norton. She explained that mothers and daughters in all countries are faced with the same problems and the decisions made in one country as to how to deal with them affect those in other countries.

Dr. Grace Song Line of Howell, was the speaker of the evening, her address entitled "A Message from Korea." Dr. Line was born of distinguished parents in East Korea. After completing her education in a Japanese university, she came to the United States to enter the University of Michigan and is the first Oriental woman ever to receive a doctor's degree in public health.

In her talk she contrasted American customs with those of Korea, in terms of her own reactions. Korean customs, she said, are unlike those in either Japan or China. In Korea, a mother's duty is to train her daughter in the household tasks, she explained, stating that daughters, when they reach adolescence, are separated from their fathers, and only recently have they been allowed to choose their own husbands. Following her talk, Dr. Line autographed programs for many of the girls, writing her name in Korean.

Between the various numbers on the program, Girl Reserve groups presented international dances in costume. Table decorations were centerpieces representing various countries of the world. Miss Savory and Mrs. Salowick, Girl Reserve officials from the Y.W.C.A. in Detroit, took these decorations back with them for an exhibit of Girl Reserve projects to be held May 18 to May 23 at Hudson's store.

Annual Flower Market Will Be Held on May 16

Garden Enthusiasts May Make Exchanges of Plants

Plans are progressing for the annual Flower Market sponsored by the Plymouth Woman's club, which will be held Saturday, May 16, at Kellogg park, with Mrs. Cass Hough as general chairman.

The project is undertaken by the club to cultivate an interest in gardens among Plymouth residents. All transactions are trades with no money changing hands.

The committee in charge asks that plants be wrapped individually and labeled with names and, if possible, colors. Plants are to be taken to the market from 10 to 1 o'clock, where they may be exchanged for tickets with which purchases may be made from 1 to 5 p.m. Gardeners may bring bulbs, shrubs, annuals, perennials, seeds, vegetable plants or any other type of plant they may wish to exchange for others.

On Monday, May 4, Mrs. William McCallum, of Birmingham, organized a branch of the Michigan division of Woman's National Farm and Garden association at the home of Mrs. Paul J. Wiedman on Blunk avenue. The object of the association is to stimulate interest in agricultural and horticultural activities and to promote interests of the local town.

City Loses Its Drain Contest Against County

Court Holds Plymouth Is Responsible For Tonquish Drain

Decision in the friendly suit brought by the City of Plymouth, together with Blunk Brothers, Inc. and Arthur E. Burk, as taxpayers, against Wayne county and Leo J. Nowicki, Wayne county drain commissioner, to determine jurisdiction over the Tonquish Creek drain, has been handed down by Judge Allan Campbell of the Wayne county circuit court. The court held that the drain is a city responsibility.

The controversy began as early as 1930, when proceedings progressed to a point where the board of determination filed an order declaring the establishment of a drainage district a necessity, and the drain commissioner filed his order laying out the Forest avenue drainage district on May 1 of that year. Nothing was done thereafter, and two years later Plymouth became a city, its charter reserving jurisdiction of sewers to the municipality.

Another petition was presented in November, 1935, asking the court for the creation of the Forest avenue drain district, and to declare that the drain commissioner held the jurisdiction, right and authority to improve the Tonquish Creek drain.

In reaching its decision, the court concluded: (1) That the project as outlined in the petition, was finally acted upon in the year 1930, is no longer operative by reason of the lapse of time; (2) That the petition of November, 1935, does not confer jurisdiction upon the drain commissioner.

Commends Scouts For Fine Work at Merit Badge Show

Chairman Frank Cody Says Local Booth Outstanding

Commendation for the fine exhibit which Boy Scouts of Troop P-1 prepared for the recent merit badge show held in Convention hall, Detroit, was expressed in a letter from Frank Cody, general chairman of the show, to Sidney D. Strong, scoutmaster of the local troop.

The letter says in part: "The exhibition is now history—and what a glorious page in the history of the Detroit Area Council! The exhibit of 'surveying' by Troop P-1 was one of the outstanding booths in the exposition. Many people remarked on the fact that the merit badge requirements were so fully covered. Your booth also had the originality which many others lacked—a splendid job. The judges awarded the booth 'H' rating."

"On behalf of the exposition committee, the council's executive board and the exposition staff, I want to commend you and the unit for your fine work and to wish you continued joy and satisfaction in the game of scouting." (Signed) Frank Cody, general chairman.

The booth which the Plymouth unit prepared was 20 feet wide and 10 feet deep. The back and outside of the side panels were covered with red building paper with maps in decorative

Winfield Line Is Kiwanis Speaker

Winfield Line, of Howell, owner of the Line's stores, spoke at the regular meeting of the Kiwanis club Tuesday evening at the Mayflower hotel.

He gave an illustrated talk on the children's games he and his brother took, giving graphic descriptions of the 37 countries which they visited. He enumerated the various places worth seeing in each of these countries, and described the life of the various peoples.

He said that they spent quite a long time in Arabia where they made many friends among the Arabians. One of the most interesting accounts he gave was of the children's games he saw played in the different countries. He was surprised to find that these games are pretty much the same the world over.

Among his experiences, he recounted the story of an airplane crash in Holland and what nearly turned out to be a shipwreck on their journey to Africa. Mr. Line's talk was one of the most interesting delivered before the Kiwanis club this year.

Armless Golfer Will Play Match

Tommy McAuliffe, of Detroit, world's champion armless golfer, will play an exhibition match Friday, May 22, at the Idyl Wyld golf course, on the Five Mile road one mile west of the Farmington road. The match is scheduled to start at 4 p.m.

It is expected that Stan Hancock and Chuck Kocier will play around with McAuliffe. The featured player lost both arms at the shoulders in a railroad accident in 1901. Yet when he was nine years old, he chose caddy as a hobby and learned to play golf. Handicapped though he is, he plays regulation golf courses in scores that average between 86 and 95.

McAuliffe uses ordinary clubs; his irons weigh 15 1/2 ounces and his woods 16 1/2 ounces. He carries 13 irons and four woods in his bag. He has only one grip holding his club between his cheek and his right shoulder. Although his drives are short, he compensates for loss of distance by direction and a masterful short game.

Following his match he will put on his famous array of tricks, driving balls from necks of bottles, three balls to top of each other, three ways to get out of a sand trap, stymies, six to nine balls in a row, and many others.

CONGRATULATIONS

It is far better to have tried than never to have tried at all—and in that effort which came so near bringing to this fine little city the high school debating championship of Michigan we extend our congratulations to the young people comprising the debating team of Plymouth high. Kalamazoo won, but that does not mean that Plymouth was defeated. Far from it. Our youthful debaters climbed from the bottom row to the peak! Victory after victory was theirs. To win a place where they were able to contend for first honors is in itself an outstanding accomplishment. It all reflects the highest of credit upon Plymouth's public schools and its instructors, as well as the youthful students. And now just a word to these young people—you have gone far on the road towards success. You have demonstrated your ability to work and apply yourself. See to it that your ability and efforts are directed to the support and constant defense of the public school system, of the state and of the government which has made it possible for you to do the thing which has been accomplished.

A FISHY SMELL.

News dispatches from the Pacific coast a few days ago carried the statement that one or two witnesses appearing before the carefully selected and hostile congressional committee investigating the Townsend movement had testified to the effect that "Dr. Townsend had referred to his followers as old fossils who don't know what it's all about." Maybe he made the statement, MAYBE. But the testimony has such a fishy smell that one has a perfect right to wonder as to its correctness, especially when the same witness said further that the Californian had added, "we don't care a d--- about the old people." It would take more than a lot of sworn testimony of that kind before a bunch of congressmen who are fighting to retain their jobs to make any one believe that ANY person, no matter whether he is Dr. Townsend or Cy Pinkard would say he didn't care "a d--- about old people." Lets have the truth before this committee. Let the committee instead of trying to smear some one with a lot of blatant testimony, try and find somewhere in the Townsend movement a solution of the care of the aged problem. However it is foolish to expect such a group as composes this committee to try and find anything good in anything that does not pertain to their own selfish political aims.

HE IS RIGHT.

Harry Minthorn, who was used as a figurative example by The Mail two or three weeks ago as to what might happen in this country if it should ever come under Communist rule, states that the present ruling political party is no more at fault for conditions, prevailing today than were those that controlled the destinies of the Republican party in recent years. We quite agree with

Mr. Minthorn in his criticism of both of these groups as intended by him. But some day there will be an administration in Washington that will give the people and business some relief from taxation and that will serve the best interests of this country. We predict that those years are not far away.

CROWN HIM KING!

We see where George Averill, that energetic and independent editor of The Birmingham Eccentric, has just returned home from a trout fishing trip with a rainbow taken from the Pere Marquette river weighing considerably over nine pounds. Kind readers, that's some fish! In view of the fact that Editor Averill made this big catch and because too he thinks Wjher Brucker was such a great governor because of his outstanding accomplishment at queen crowning, might we not suggest that the editors of Michigan arrange to have Editor Averill crowned by ex-Crowner Brucker as the rainbow king of Michigan? Mr. Averill rightly believes that the good voters of Michigan are going to "crown" Brucker where the chicken got the axe this fall, so it certainly would be a fitting series to the climax he predicts to have the ex-Crowner do a little crowning before he is relegated into permanent political exile.

EDITORS DISCUSS SENATORSHIP

It is quite gratifying to know that The Plymouth Mail is not alone in its hostility to the nomination and election of Wilber Brucker as United States senator from Michigan. We have pointed out the fact that his record as governor of Michigan was about as poor an administration as any Governor ever gave Michigan, and because of his complete failure at a time of his greatest opportunity, he has not the right to expect voters to give him a far more important post than the one he so completely failed in.

Schuyler Marshall, clear-thinking editor of The Clinton County Republican-News, declares that if the Republican party is defeated in Michigan this fall, "the blame can be placed at his (Brucker's) door." Editor Marshall quotes an old-timer as declaring that "the only thing the matter with Brucker is his political greed."

Mr. Marshall poofs at the few county convention endorsements that Brucker secured, declaring "One should bear in mind, however, that the endorsements came from conventions. The rank and file of the people are not at the conventions. The active workers and politicians are there."

Philip T. Rich, editor of The Midland Republican, who touted Wilber Brucker to the skies when Brucker ran for Governor, is not for him for United States senator. Editor Rich, who keeps as close in touch with the wishes and problems of the average citizen as does Mr. Marshall, declares that unless Senator Couzens yields, "there is no one in sight who can even come close to beating him, (Couzens)."

He points out the fact that Brucker is a strong political organization man and that Couzens' great strength lies in his independence to any political party. Editor Rich further states that the "Republicans would do well to woo him and benefit from his leadership.—He may not rank high as an organization politician but as a man who has the courage of his convictions he is at the top."

Editor Charles Seed of the Rochester Clarion quotes a Lansing newspaper as saying that Brucker is back some 65 years in his political thinking. Maybe and maybe not, but Brucker, it seems to be the general opinion of thinking editors of Michigan, is not the type of a man wanted to represent this state in the United States senate.

ONE MINUTE BIOGRAPHIES OF MICHIGAN GOVERNORS and their ACCOMPLISHMENTS

By Elton R. Eaton

WILLIAM WOODBRIDGE

There has been considerable comment in recent years as to why Michigan's fiscal year does not correspond with the calendar year. It was Governor William Woodbridge who first recommended that the fiscal year end on some other date than the last day of December. He declared that the constitution required the governor to report to the legislature the condition of the state and he pointed out in a message to the legislature that with the fiscal year ending at about the same time the legislature went into session this could not be done. He recommended that the state's fiscal year end on the first of October.

Governor Woodbridge was born in Norwich, Conn., in 1780. The family later moved to Ohio and it was in that state where he started his political career, after having earned a good legal education. He served in both houses and senate of the Ohio legislature and in 1815 he was appointed secretary of the Michigan territory under Governor Cass.

Four years after coming to Michigan congress passed an act giving to this section one representative in that body and Woodbridge was elected without opposition. Besides being the second governor of the state he was also the first representative in Washington.

It was in 1828 when President John Quincy Adams appointed him a member of the supreme court of the territory. Four years later President Jackson gave the place to one of his supporters. Woodbridge was soon after elected a delegate to the state constitutional convention and in 1837 he became a member of the state senate. It was in 1839 that he became governor, serving a little over a year before being elected to the United States senate by the legislature. In the brief time he served as head of the state government he probably wrote longer and more messages than any other chief executive of the state.

Woodbridge was soon after elected to the United States senate by the legislature. In the brief time he served as head of the state government he probably wrote longer and more messages than any other chief executive of the state. His senatorial term ended his political career. His home was in Springwells Township, Wayne county.

Rambling Around With Michigan Editors

GAGGING NEWSPAPERS AND PEOPLE

We are not much worried about the threat against the freedom of the press. However, the American Newspaper Publishers' Association meeting last week devoted much attention to it. We believe this fear—if it is a fear—is aggravated by governmental domination of radio.

There are only a few commentators on the air who seem to be independent enough and have the courage to criticize the government. Fr. Coughlin represents one type. Book Carter is another. Programs purporting to represent the people, such as the "National Farm and Home Hour" are very patently government sponsored and devoted wholly to praise, not criticism.

This trend probably worries newspaper publishers. They wonder if newspapers, like radio, will be licensed and censored. There was an attempt to do just that when NRA was put into effect. Newspapers forced to place the "free press" clause of the Constitution to be included in the NRA newspaper code. General Johnson and Donald Richberg didn't want it there. Further, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace has openly stated that the way to control the thinking of the people is to control what they hear and read.

In spite of these threats, we are confident that if a "free press" is done away with in this country, it will be because the newspapers themselves neglect to exercise their freedom. That or become so unreliable that they need and deserve control. So long as newspapers indulge in honest and fair criticism, we have every confidence that American people will stand back of them. Backed by public opinion, no administration can get away with gagging or muzzling the press—no more could they gag or muzzle the right of individuals to speak as they please.

This is AMERICA. American people will keep it America—Schuyler Marshall in The Clinton County Republican-News.

SPOTLIGHT TURNED ON AGED

Regardless of how the present congressional investigation of the Old Age Pension plan in this country, it will have accomplished one thing: The focusing of the public eye on the plight of those older folk whose ability to participate in gainful employment has been diminished through many years of struggle with the forces of modern life.

Regardless of the economic soundness of the OARP, the plan apparently is as reasonable an answer to a long recognized need as is evidenced by more than 2,000,000 members rallying to the standard of Dr. Townsend in slightly more than two years.

The idea is said to have been born in Dr. Townsend's brain after he witnessed a group of aged women picking scraps of food from California garbage pails. His organization has had a remarkable growth. He is now financed with his own pockets at the expense of the old folks who have valiantly to the cause. If it is being paid for his efforts, he is one of the few who have profited from leadership in a reform cause which is bound to be effected in some form in the near future. Certainly at 25¢ a head the operation was quite painless even to the old folks who in the end will benefit.

There is now a possibility of the OARP being championed by either of the political parties both of which will shun the issue this year. But the Townsend clubs and the present congressional investigation have projected the issue into the public spotlight and that is the first step in providing a remedy for any situation.—Paul McKee in The Mt. Clemens Monitor.

A VETERAN EDITOR SPEAKS UP.

I am not at all pleased with the GOP choice of a candidate to run against U. S. Senator James Couzens, for he has neither the experience or the ability to step into his shoes. Couzens, in my way of thinking, is about the most independent representative in the U. S. Senate and he would do well to continue him in office because of his political independence irrespective of his politics.—J. E. McMullen in The Linden Leader.

Here are a few fashion hints as to what is in vogue, according to the Mail 25 years ago: "An attractive waist is of satin or cashmere de soie. The waist and sleeves are cut in one piece and the former is finished at the bottom with revers of lace and little buttons. The front is of mousseline de soie, trimmed underneath with bands of lace, which show through, and on the outside with a band of violet and a fringe. The sleeves are also finished with the velvet and the fringe." You should see the picture which accompanies this style note!

Communication

Upper Peninsula Development Bureau of Michigan
321 Maple Street,
Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan.
Editor, Plymouth Mail:

I have read with much interest your Straits bridge editorial which is now being widely quoted in Upper Peninsula papers. It is written in your characteristically lively and forceful style, and there is no wonder that your editorials are reprinted so often. I like to see a hot question here and there in editorial writing. It wakes people up and makes them do some thinking, an operation that is hard for most humans.

As I see it, we are projecting a toll bridge for the reason that half a loaf is better than no bread. For years we have had to get along with graveled main highways in the Upper Peninsula because the highway department didn't have the money for hard surfacing. About 182 miles of concrete are now under way or approved for construction north of the Straits, in addition to what concrete and black top we now have.

From the summer patronage standpoint, if it were not for a surprisingly cool summer climate and an unquestioned list of scenic attractions, we couldn't have got very far. Dust in dry weather and mud in wet weather have sent many a tourist away, never to return. We are getting on top of that situation now, and increasing numbers come back each year. In another year or two many visitors will keep on going through the peninsula and around Lake Superior over a highway that will be a scenic marvel. Many more will go to the new Isle Royale national park, which is a part of Michigan.

If we hold out for a free bridge we never can get it under the present set-up.

It is absolutely true, as you say, that no one except the taxpayers of the state and nation will pay for the bridge. And yet, to a large extent, the burden can be shifted to those who use the bridge, and thousands of them will be from other states. This idea, in the philosophy of the state appropriations to the tourist organizations, they do their best to advertise Michigan, and to get as many people as possible on the roads, railways, steamships and airplanes headed this way. One objective is the securing of more patronage for the resorts, and of more trade for all lines of business, and another is the return of gasoline taxes, liquor taxes, fishing license money, ferry fares and so on to the state treasury.

Thus the people of Michigan pay directly, as you say, the total of $100,000 diverted from general funds to the tourist associations each year, but theoretically, and I believe practically and factually, they are more than recompensed by the total of the above returns. And Michigan enjoy an outing to the Upper Peninsula summer scene or winter sports events, they contribute to this total and no doubt get their money's worth.

The bridge will be a federal affair, if and when built, and the state will lose some nice revenues through the discontinuance of the ferry service which the bridge will supplant. However, there isn't a doubt in the world that the bridge will give a decided impetus to travel, even though tolls are collected, and the state will profit through the returns from increased travel. Crossings will soon be 250,000 cars a year anyway, and the tolls on that number will amortize the loan in due time. Personally, I do not doubt for a minute that the bridge will push travel up to 300,000, 400,000 and even 500,000 cars a year in the lifetime of the present generation of youths, provided construction is begun soon. I have been pretty much all over the country, and I can certify without any doubt that we have a marvelous layout here for tourist and resorting developments. We haven't begun to measure up to our opportunities, and the bridge will help us immensely. In doing this it will benefit the whole state of Michigan.

Please pardon this long letter. I think you will be glad to have these additional angles for your personal information. You are publishing a number one weekly which I like to read. I get a copy occasionally through my daughter, who is a teacher in the Starkweather school in Plymouth. For years I have spent two days a week in Plymouth and I certainly do like the town.

Yours very truly,
Stanley D. Newton

Preston B. Whitbeck Celebrates His 88th Birthday—He Tells How to Keep in Perfect Health When One Crowds Towards Century

If you wish to live to enjoy your 88th birthday anniversary and be in good spirit and in good health, keep both your mind and body active. Be interested in the current events of the day. Be interested in all that is going on in your community and the rest of the world, then walk and work without becoming exhausted.

That is the good advice of Preston B. Whitbeck, father of Mrs. Charles Rathburn Jr., who Monday celebrated his 88th birthday by reading three daily newspapers, re-reading The Plymouth Mail that had come to his home a few days earlier, and working among the 55 varieties of flowers that he cultivates about the beautiful lawn and gardens surrounding the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rathburn on East Ann Arbor trail.

"You asked me what kind of work one of my age can do. Well there is lots one can do. I take entire care of the lawn, the vegetable garden near the house and I grow all of the flowers. Now that's a pretty good job for even a younger man to do," stated Mr. Whitbeck.

Naturally one who reads as much as does Mr. Whitbeck is well posted. His active mind is as clear as that of a college student. He is as familiar with important historical events of Detroit and Michigan as any history instructor in the state. In fact he rec-

Hospitals Will Be Honored In National Celebration on May 12

Plymouth Hospital To Take Part in This Observance

National Hospital Day May 12, in which Plymouth hospital participates, is gaining significance each year, as many national associations realize the value of familiarizing each person in the community with the facilities of their hospital.

National Hospital Day has been celebrated since 1921 when 1,000 hospitals held open house. On National Hospital Day the public pauses to learn something of the unceasing work of our hospitals, whose influence for the protection of people everywhere is measured not only by the 700,000 men, women and children served daily in the hospital beds, but by the growing number of well trained, efficient doctors, nurses and other health workers who are fitted for their work by the hospitals.

Without the equipment, the personnel and above all the spirit of research and progress that characterizes the hospital, the land would be swept by pestilence and plague, for the hospital is a bulwark against epidemic and widespread disease as well as a haven for those whom the doctor cannot adequately serve at home or in his office.

A moment's reflection will show that the service represented by the army of more than half a million men and women, the hospital trustees, medical staffs, auxiliaries and personnel of the hospitals, deserved one day out of a whole year for public consideration. This army fights for health and happiness 24 hours a day, every day, and, at a conservative estimate, saves 630,000 lives annually.

Why is National Hospital Day observed on May 12? Florence Nightingale was born, Florence Nightingale is immortal for her contribution to the elevation and development of nursing, but her work for the improvement of hospitals was just as important. So when a "day" for hospitals was suggested, there was universal approval of the election of May 12 since this date honored a person outstanding in the annals of hospital management as well as a person to whom every nurse pays deserved tribute. And so we have National Hospital Day, May 12. On this day thousands of hospitals in the United States and Canada join with the hospitals in such distant places as China, Alaska, Australia and other lands, to encourage the public to know hos-

MAYOR'S PROCLAMATION

Authorized by the city commission at its meeting Monday evening, Mayor Henry Hondorp has issued the following proclamation relative to National Hospital Day: "The approach of National Hospital Day again summons to mind the many blessings that have been bestowed upon us in the year just past by the self-sacrificing men and women who conduct the hospital in this city. It is altogether fitting that this observance should fall on the anniversary of the birth of Florence Nightingale, the British nurse, to whom we trace the high standards of the modern nurse and much of the high standards of the modern hospital. We are in a new era of healing. The old pest house has gone. It has been replaced by a vast scientific structure whose cost mounts each day as some new advance is made in medical science. Behind the imposing walls of our hospital is private philanthropy. In honoring our healing institution and the surgeons, physicians and nurses who conduct it, we must also honor those broad visioned men and women in private life who give so much of their worldly possessions to provide those costs which our unfortunates accept as charity. Now therefore, I, as the Mayor of the City of Plymouth, do hereby designate and set aside Tuesday, the twelfth day of May, 1936, as Hospital Day to be observed by all of the people in this city. I especially request that all business places in the city display the flag on this day. Signed, Henry Hondorp, Mayor of the City of Plymouth.

pitals better. On this day interesting, instructive programs are arranged by the hospitals, and everybody is welcome. Presidents, religious leaders, business men, society women, in fact all public spirited citizens who want their community to be an even better place to live in, encourage the hospitals and the public to observe National Hospital Day. It has been said that the best influences in the community are the school, the church and the hospital. The first cares for the cultural needs, the second for the spiritual needs and the hospital for the recreation of the physical well being. Without the last, it would be difficult to obtain perfection in the others. Hospital authorities are asking people to get acquainted with their hospitals, to see for themselves that the work is happy and stimulating, not sad. It is doubtful, they say, whether there is anyone who gets more real joy out of his business than does a hospital worker, and there is enough of the humorous to add real spice to life. To make a sick person well, it takes the facilities of a first-class hospital, a scientific laboratory, the highest type of knowledge and experience, and unflinching work done by people trained for just one purpose. The results are that the death rate in hospitals is lower than five per cent, much lower than when the patient is served at home, and each year sees this rate lowered still further.

The Plymouth team may have been too confident but reports are it failed to hit its stride and thus was beaten by 12 points, the total score being Ecorse 58, Plymouth 46. The home town team collected all the firsts in the field events but the running events were different. Many of these were close, with Plymouth being rubbed out only by a nose but the nose of Ecorse was big enough to collect enough points to win a meet on. ## PARADE LEADS THE WAY TO ANN ARBOR FINALS

Leaving from in front of the high school a caravan of automobiles gaily decorated with the blue and white of the school made their way slowly into Ann Arbor on Friday evening for the purpose of attending the state championship debate between Plymouth and Kalamazoo high school in Hill auditorium. Wind-ing over the hills leading into Ann Arbor the parade presented a vivid sight for the townspeople. The Plymouth colors flying in the breeze were met at the city entrance by an escort of motor cycle policemen who led the way to the parking ground near the auditorium where the band, more than a mile long and comprised of more than 50 automobiles, presented a true indication of the spirit of the rooters for Plymouth. Climaxing a successful debate season in which the team carried the school for the second and time in the history of the contest to the state finals, the Plymouth people turned out in a remarkable manner.

Arriving in Ann Arbor amid the blast of the band the parade was taken through the main streets, along the campus and to Hill auditorium, led by Bud Matts, mounted on a steady charger. The march came to an end at the entrance of the auditorium where the band led the crowd into the building.

LOCAL GOLFERS BEAT WAYNE

Heading toward the league championship, Plymouth local golfers won another match last Thursday, April 30, by defeating Wayne at the latter school. The local team gained a huge margin of 115 strokes.

Those playing for this school were: George Stetson, Lionel Coffin, Rockwell Smith, and Jack Ross. Coffin was the lowest scorer in strokes, 73; par at the Wayne course is 70.

THE SEVEN HUNDRED

This column will be a few words on the state final debate as told by one of the debaters. We started out from Plymouth at about two o'clock in the afternoon. Our car was gaily decorated with blue and white streamers. "Look," shouted a bystander as the car went by, "Some guys just got married." Looks like the mother-in-law at the back seat said a second, pointing to Miss Wells in the back seat.

Once in Ann Arbor we found that our rooms in the Men's Union had been rented out, because they thought that we weren't coming. So we whiled away time at a movie if it was care to see a dull show. I will be glad to recommend one. Mr. Latture slept through it all. Tom Brock and Miss Wells had seen it before when it was showing under a different name. We didn't stay for the ending.

Before the debate we spent some time over in the Kalamazoo cheering section. Then the time came. In response to many inquiries, the reason we were late getting on the stage was that we were waiting for Kalamazoo to go on. Then we suddenly found that they were waiting for us on the stage.

After the debate a ragged little newsboy came up on the stage and asked me if the gold watch laying on the table was mine. I told him that it was. "Well," he asked, "didn't the Detroit Free Press give you that watch?" I told him that it did. "Well don't you know that they couldn't give you a watch if they didn't sell any papers?" I said that they couldn't. "Well then don't you think you'd better buy a Detroit Free Press from me?"

However, Donald was soon seen to disappear in her general direction. Resorting to means of spying used

First Baptist Preacher Took Up Duties Here in February, 1845

Twenty-Two Families Made Up Original Congregation

(Installment Two)
 Before coming to Plymouth, Elder William B. Grow served as minister for the Baptist congregation in Dexter and later in Highland in his book, "Eighty-Five Years of Life and Labor," he says:
 "I was greatly urged to go to another field of labor, and feeling that it was what God would have me do, I preached to the Highland church from the text, 'And thy servant was busy here and there he was gone.' The brethren did not understand the purport of the text and sermon then, but a week later, when they found in the text and sermon a preacher and learned that the preacher from Milford was preaching at Plymouth, fifteen miles from home in the opposite direction, they understood it all. That they forgave me will be fully evidenced in the record that will hereafter appear of pastoral labors with them, covering two delightful years. Plymouth, being my first pastorate, and occupying fifteen years, is so full of interest, and I recite my experiences there in the next chapter, which I trust will interest the reader and increase his faith in God's ability to use the weak things of this world for the glorious work of His kingdom."
 He goes on to write of the years he spent in Plymouth as follows:

THE FIRST PASTORATE—PLYMOUTH VILLAGE

This was my first pastorate. Every pastor understands what memories naturally cluster about it, and the reader will pardon me if in my reminiscences I seem to linger long.

Prior to my going to Plymouth, there had been for several years, a large and prosperous Methodist class, under the leadership of Dr. Adams, a prominent physician of the county. This class went out of existence under most pitiable conditions, and is one of those things which a lover of the kingdom dislikes to relate. To see the kingdom of God suffer through the petty jealousies of men has been to me one of the most cruel sorrows in my Christian life. The story can be briefly told. Dr. Adams had long enjoyed the patronage of the community without a rival. Finally there came from the south a young physician by the name of Palmer, a distant relative of mine, who, believing that the field was large enough for the second man, settled at Plymouth. In the course of time a young woman of the Methodist class was taken seriously sick, and for a time her mind was inactive. Her husband entrusted her to the care of Dr. Adams, who attended her for a few days, but when she had sufficiently recovered the use of her faculties to express her own desires as to a physician, she wanted Dr. Palmer. This so aroused the wrath of the older physician that he revealed the low motives which had inspired his religious activities by exclaiming: "If I can't doctor the members of the Methodist class, then there'll be no class," and there has been no class there from that day to this. Dr. Palmer, feeling himself to be partially responsible for the abandonment of religious work in the community, sought to make some reparation, and so he came to Milford to invite my attention to the field as one offering very good possibilities for religious work. It was upon his invitation that I went to the place and held my first service in the school house on Sunday, February 15, 1845. Notwithstanding a fearful storm on the previous night, there was a goodly company assembled for the morning service. By request I preached again in both the afternoon and evening. At the close of the evening service, Squire Holbrook, a prominent man of the community and one of good report, arose and asked the privilege of the floor to present a proposition for the consideration of the meeting. He proceeded to make a motion that the society unite in calling me to take charge of the work for one year. The motion was promptly seconded by a Mr. Hinsdale, the merchant of the village, but before the motion could be submitted to a vote I interposed with an objection. I stated in the most straight-forward manner that the time had come when I was going to devote myself to the work of the ministry, and desired to labor wherever the Lord would place me, and in the present situation it seemed the part of wisdom to wait wholly upon the Lord. By the holding of nightly meetings for the week, I suggested, that we might become more fully acquainted in a religious way, and our efforts together for the salvation of others would offer God a special opportunity of making known his will concerning our plans of labor together. My suggestions were acceptable to the congregation, and so this plan was adopted and the meeting dismissed.

At Redford, fifteen miles away, lived one of God's choicest servants, the Rev. Emory Curtis, by Baptist minister of many years' experience, whose praise was spoken in all the churches, and whose judgment and advice could only be of unspeakable value to a young man contemplating his first pastorate. Accompanied by my friend, Dr. Palmer, I set out for the home of this good Baptist bishop. He has been my friend for many years, and so I felt the greatest freedom in laying before him all the questions and difficulties which presented themselves to me. He had always greeted me with marked kindness and cordiality, but never so fully as upon this occasion, when I needed the fullest approach to his heart. He listened with loving interest to the story of my call to the ministry, and felt the joy that only an old minister can feel over the consecration of a young man to the same sacred calling. When I told him of the field of labor in contemplation, his interest softened into the tenderest sympathy, and I recall to this day the pathetic manner in which he acknowledged to me the many difficulties that the field possessed. To invade a community, he said, "so universally controlled by pedobaptist influences to establish Baptist truths, will call for the most arduous labors and sacrifices—almost to the giving of your blood; but you know all the promises, and it is a part of your blessed birthright to claim them all."

I found the field all that he prophesied, and I found also that, through all the years of my labors there, his counsel and help were a constant inspiration and comfort to me. He showed his readiness to give me more than his advice by volunteering to preach for me one evening in this first week's effort.
 I returned to Plymouth that night fully conscious of the responsibilities which I was likely to assume, and as fully conscious of the keeping power of Him who had said, "Lo, I am with you always." The Monday night meeting was well attended, and from night to night there was an increase in both attendance and interest. Aside from the help of Brother Curtis for the one evening, the work rested upon my shoulders. By the close of the week three earnest seekers asked for prayer. A large gathering that completely filled the house greeted me on the second Sabbath, and in the evening service five came forward for prayer. So manifest was God's pleasure upon the work that I felt constrained to tell the people frankly that I could not but make Plymouth my field of labor. We continued the meeting for the following week, and on my third Sunday we found that God had so greatly owned and blessed our efforts that there were twenty-five hopeful conversions. While this work was going on nightly, I found time during the day to go out among the people and you can imagine my great surprise to find in a supposedly pedobaptist community, twenty-two Baptist families living within a radius of two miles of our place of meeting. These families united and formed, according to law, "The Baptist Society," and by this society I was regularly called as pastor for the ensuing year. I continued to supply the field regularly, although I retained my home in Milford until May.

THE STORY OF HILDA

1—Hilda came from an old New England family.
 2—Her ancestors were all Puritans.
 3—There wasn't an immodest or bizarre note in a carload.
 4—She was raised in one of those sheltered homes where long red flannel petticoats are still considered swell and where the women folk still go in for the bustle in a big way.
 5—Her parents made her go around with her hair down her back until she was sixteen years old. They thought it was cute.
 6—She went through school with her skirts down to her ankles, wore heavy cotton hose and slept in wooden tickles.
 7—Her folks said she was the picture of Grandmother Azalva and they wanted her to be like her. Grandmother Azalva was a woman campaigner against smoking, frivolity and immodesty in dress. She thought a woman who went in bathing without stockings and a straw hat was a hussy.
 8—When home from school, all Hilda heard was long parental talks on the maidenly virtues. Modesty was especially emphasized.
 9—She wasn't allowed to go to the pictures and never went to a bathing beach unaccompanied. She was told that the modern bathing girl was scandalous.
 10—It was pretty tough.
 11—Ultimately Hilda revolted. She ran away to the city.
 12—When her parents next heard from her she was doing very nicely in a chosen career.
 13—She had become a designer of smart one-piece bathing suits for young women and chaperons of a nuddy cult.
 MORAL—You can over-emphasize anything.

Puppies

The puppy is a lovely pet. A fact quite widely known. But I would rather have one when it gets more fully grown.
 This is Ambrose. He looks pretty worn. Didn't Ambrose always look like that?
 No. He was in very good shape last summer.
 Has Ambrose lost weight or sunnied?
 He must have dropped 50 pounds since fall.
 What caused Ambrose to drop so much weight?
 Leaves.
 What kind of leaves?
 Tree leaves.
 What have tree leaves got to do with Ambrose's dropping weight?
 If you lived in the suburbs you wouldn't ask such silly questions.
 Again I ask you, what have tree leaves got to do with a loss of weight by Ambrose?
 Ambrose has one of those little houses with lots of nice big trees all around the place.
 What of it?
 Well, in the fall they begin shedding, if you know what I mean.
 Shedding what?
 Shedding their summer garments. (Leaves, to you, you big stupid.)
 What of it?
 Ambrose, being conscientious about keeping the premises nice and neat, has to rake them up.
 How often?
 About once a day, but it seems like every fifteen minutes.
 Is this a hard job?
 Try it and be convinced. Ambrose no sooner rakes 'em all up

Northville News

Health day activities were held May 1 at the Northville school. Teachers and grade school pupils presented a program at 2 o'clock in the high school auditorium. A health play "Spring Comes to Flowerland," was staged by the first graders, while the kindergarten children presented health songs and dances. The sixth graders danced the traditional May pole dance and the second grade appeared in an original health play written especially for the occasion. "Health Day" is sponsored each year on May 1 by the American Child Health committee.

Workmen have been busy this week wrecking the old Stinson Aircraft building on East Main street to make way for the plant of the new Ale Company of Northville. The new factory, which is being designed by Smith, Hinchman and Grylls, Detroit architects, will resemble an old-English inn, and is expected to be completed sometime during the summer. From 70 to 90 men will be employed by the new industry, it is said.

An interesting program featured the annual Mother and Daughter banquet held last night at the Presbyterian church. It was opened with a prayer, sung by the group under the leadership of Mrs. W. H. Johnston. Mrs. Howard Atwood, acting president of the Nellie Yerkes auxiliary, welcomed the guests after which Mrs. M. J. Koldyke sang "A Mother's Song," accompanied by Mrs. S. W. Ambler. Mrs. Earl Montgomery gave the mother's toast and Miss Mary Louise Boyden that for the daughters. The principal speaker of the evening was Mrs. W. Irving Kelsey, whose topic was "Mothers I Have Known in Foreign Lands." Mrs. Ray W. Labbett talked on "Some Radio Experiences," and the program was closed with two songs by the Auxiliary quartet.

Installation services were held Tuesday evening of last week for the Northville Commandery of Knights Templars, composed of members from Northville, Plymouth, Redford, Farmington and Detroit. The ceremonies were held at the Masonic hall with James Garlick of Detroit, grand junior warden of the Grand Commandery, and Eugene Webb, grand marshal of Detroit, as installing officers.

The Rotary club entertained the Northville high school basketball squad and Coach Ted Watts at its meeting last week. The players were introduced by William E. Forney, chairman of the boys' work committee and incoming president of the club. Coach Watts then gave a short talk on basketball, which was illustrated by demonstrations given by the players.

Elmer Perrin, of Northville, who is a senior at Michigan State college in East Lansing, will serve as secretary-general of the ninth model assembly of the League of Nations being held today and tomorrow at the college. Delegates from 20 other institutions are expected to attend.

Miss Ann Richards, kindergarten teacher, addressed the Child Study club at its meeting last week. She outlined the physical, mental and social needs of the average five-year-old child.

The rummage sale sponsored by the Parent-Teachers association recently netted about $80 for the school lunch fund. Mrs. C. B. Washburne has announced. The association plans to make this sale an annual project. At the meeting May 14, two crocheted rugs will be sold.
 Mrs. Elizabeth Hazen, oldest resident of Northville, celebrated her ninety-second birthday Sunday, May 3, but because of ill health, no special party was planned. Since the death of her husband, she has made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Charles T. Thornton, but previous to that she lived in Novi.

King's Daughters of Northville sponsored a silver tea Friday, April 24, at the home of Mrs. Floyd A. Northrop. Two comedy skits were presented, after which tea was served, with Mrs. Herman Behrendt and Mrs. W. E. Forney pouring. Mrs. E. L. Millis was general chairman.
 Gilbert and Sullivan's "H.M.S. Pinafore" will be presented by Northville high school students May 21 and 22. The cast will include Robert Angove, Leonard Young, Charles Strautz, Herman Toussaint, Cecil Giles, Evelyn Ambler, Isabel Tibble, Constance Burgess, Helene Johnson, Patsy McLoughlin, Juanita Elkington and Isabelle Tewksbury.

The Masterpiece of Tire Construction

Racing drivers will not take chances on any tire except a Firestone Gum-Dipped Tire in the grueling Indianapolis 500-Mile Race, where its greater blowout protection has been repeatedly demonstrated.

AB JENKINS, the famous driver, used Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires on his 3000-mile run over the Salt Beds of Utah, which he covered in 23½ hours—a record of 127 miles per hour. He has driven more than a million miles on Firestone Tires, in every state of the union, on all kinds of roads, in all kinds of traffic, without tire failure or accident of any kind. What a tribute to safe, dependable, economical tire equipment.

When you drive at today's higher speeds, your life and the lives of others are largely dependent upon the degree of safety built into the tires of your car. Take no chances—equip your car with new Firestone High Speed Tires today and be sure of the safest driving equipment money can buy.

Commends Scouts For Fine Work

designs as ornaments. The troop name, subject and the name of the sponsor (the First Methodist church) were carried on a five-foot sign over the middle of the back. The insignia of the badge, a conventional surveyor's transit within a green ring about 30 inches in diameter, was hung under the sign at the back of the booth.

The exhibits included typical equipment such as is needed for mapmaking and five models illustrating the five requirements for the merit badge in surveying. Four of these were on a scale of half an inch equals a foot, and showed, respectively, the methods of measuring the width of a river; the height of a pole; the degree of slope of a hill and an illustration of the use of the plane table.

The fifth model was a landscape design on a scale of 10 feet to an inch. The Scouts in the booth made sketch maps of this during the show. A troop officer and one scout always were on duty to answer questions about the exhibit.

The troop colors added to the attractiveness of the booth. A picture of George Washington as surveyor, loaned by the Pere Marquette offices, emphasized the fact that the boys were following in the footsteps of the first president.

Timber Destroyed
Forest destruction has meant much to the state of Michigan. The original stand of lumber in that state was 390,000,000,000 feet. A little less than ten years ago there was left only 27.5 billion board feet. Consequently, Michigan, once a large lumber exporter, now imports about 60 per cent of its lumber, due to waste of its natural wood resources. What is true of Michigan is true also of other timber states.

Two more lessons for each group will be given the same days for the next two weeks.

Fishlock will give his pupils thorough training in the fundamentals of golf—grip, stance, swing and etiquette. Winners in each of the four divisions (those who show the best form at the end of the series of lessons) will be given a free membership in the club, and the runner-up will be given a free membership in the professional from another course. The four winners will attend "graduation exercises" held for the winners of the 25 courses making up the Michigan Golf association, where six leading golf professionals will choose the champions for metropolitan Detroit. Those who were unable to attend the first lessons are urged to come to either of the subsequent sessions.

C. F. Schwab won the kicker's handicap tourney held Saturday, in which over 40 players were entered. Mrs. Ethel Fielders, C. J. McGrew, M. Spaulding, O. Gutowski, and M. A. Winchell tied for second place. In Sunday's sweepstakes tournament, Herm Dworkin of Plymouth was again a winner when he paired with Bill Choffin, also of Plymouth, to take second place. ### Soft Ball Season To Begin Tuesday

Softball games, held under the auspices of the Plymouth Recreation commission with Coach K. J. Matheson in charge, will begin Tuesday, May 12, at 6:30 o'clock on the high school grounds.

Games are scheduled the first weeks as follows: May 12, Red and White vs. Plymouth Mail; May 13, Daisy vs. Hi-Speed; May 14, K. P. vs. Frigidaire; and May 15, Wilson vs. Schraders.

At a recent meeting of managers and team captains, it was decided to follow the new 1936 rule book with two exceptions, namely to play nine men instead of 10 as the rules allow, and not to allow the use of metal spikes on shoes as permitted by the rules. Gray and Hunter will again serve as chief umpires.

Each team will play 14 scheduled games, the four teams which are high at the end of the season playing a two-game knockout series for the championship. All team managers are urged to get lists of their players in to Mr. Matheson as soon as possible, in other years, each team will be allowed 14 players.

Any players wishing to join a team are asked to report to Mr. Matheson, who will try to place them. Spectators will be assured of seats at the games, as permanent bleachers are being erected by the WPA.

Trin Zoo Animals' Tossals
Animals of zoo exhibits have to leave their kennels cut, the reason being that they do not get enough exercise to keep the nails sufficiently worn down, and if the nail or claw were allowed to grow it would in time turn inward and lacerate the flesh. This operation is rarely an easy task for the keepers, but it is part of their daily work and has to be done.

Record Trade Is Predicted For American Toy Industry by Hough

Daisy Executive Back From Toy Fair In New York

Editor's Note: Cass S. Hough, of the Daisy Manufacturing company returned this week from New York city where he attended the toy fair sponsored by the Toy Manufacturers of the U.S.A. Mr. Hough is president of this organization. The following article appeared with Mr. Hough's picture in the New York Herald-Tribune Sunday, April 26.

A record year for the American toy industry, with manufacturers doing the largest volume of business in their history and with retailers enjoying their heaviest sales since 1928, is seen by Cass S. Hough, president of the Toy Manufacturers of the U.S.A. Inc., sponsors of the world's largest toy fair, now being held at the McAlpin and at the Toy Center, 200 Fifth Avenue. Mr. Hough is with the Daisy Manufacturing Company, Plymouth, Mich.

The fair, which began on Monday and will conclude next Saturday, has brought a 20 per cent increase in business to manufacturers, which if continued through this week, will mean, Mr. Hough said, a total volume of business in excess of $15,000,000 for the two-week period.

The marked improvement in business, as compared with the fair a year ago, has led manufacturers to anticipate that their annual volume will easily surpass the $100,000,000 mark and possibly reach an all-time peak of $110,000,000, Mr. Hough said.

Style Silhouettes

This is going to be an entirely frivolous and most impractical column this week. Your reporter admits it, but begs to report that she very thoughtfully decided to be "frighty" if such a thing is possible, in view of the fact that all women like to get away from pots and pans and the practical necessities of life, which include everyday clothes.

Now of course most of us have little use for the frills and furbelows in which the debutantes and college set appear evening after evening as a matter of course. But nevertheless, we all cherish secret yens to sailly forth in some perfectly stunning outfit, even if the occasion is no more than a small country club dance. And no woman is ever too old, too busy or too fed up with the social whirl to enjoy reading about what is being shown and worn in the fashion centers.

Particularly appropriate to this time of year is "May Queen," a dining ensemble with a redingote over an evening gown. It is made up in court gray, with Chinese pink facing on the redingote and long train, and a cluster of pink roses thrust into a V-neck. The long sleeves are trimmed with small buttons covered with the material.

Then there is a hostess gown which is entirely different—clinging white chiffon on which either bright red or royal blue hearts are scattered. The blouse is very full, with the material gathered into a roll at the neck, the skirt trails and flutters, and floor-length draperies fall back from the arms at the shoulders.

Designed by the famous Louise Boulanger, there is a frock of stiff pin lace with a series of delightful little "chou-bows" down the back. Interest also turns to the neck and shoulders where the material is draped to give a broad, square effect.

Mainbocher, another famous Parisian designer, has created a delightful frock of flower print, with a tiny jacket to cover the décolletage if desired. The full skirt stands out over a petticoat of vivid green tulle which shows slightly beneath the print.

If you like the smart sophistication of black, you will be enchanted by a particularly lovely gown of black net, made with long transparent sleeves. Layers of black tulle ripple from the shoulders to form a short cape, and white flowers are fastened at the low V-neck.

Nothing is more attractive for a young girl than one of those demure little frocks of starched swiss eyelet embroidery. One in pale blue is made with a full, floor-length skirt, a jacket with a peplum and short puffed sleeves, and a cluster of artificial flowers at the neck.

This business of flowers thrust into the front of a dress seems to be quite the latest thing. One smartly simple suit of sheer comes in black, navy or gray, and has artificial white tulips as its only trim. The sleeves of the short jacket are tight to the shoulders, where they flare out before being gathered into the shoulder seams.

Another style is said to have been suggested by Claude Monet's water lily paintings. It is made in sheer (black, navy, brown or clover red), with cape and skirt of rows and rows of scalloped petals, and a cluster of Monet water lilies are thrust through the belt. It is shown with a flat, broad-brimmed hat of baku straw, with a velvet band to match the dress hanging in little-girl streamers down the back. The ensemble is completed with pull-on gloves of matching suede, over which heavy, glittering bracelets were worn—the perfect afternoon costume, stylists say.

Very unusual indeed is "Shanghai," a Chinese tunic frock, with a long, slit skirt of black and tunic of black with red and gold flowers in large print. The blouse has a diagonal closing over to the left side, where it is held in place by three huge gold buttons. The elbow-length sleeves are slightly full at the shoulders.

Shoulder accents are carried to the extreme in a dress of embroidered pastel organdy made with a very high neck. The full, three-quarter length sleeves stand in high points on each shoulder. The skirt flares to the floor.

"P" TRACK TEAM TROUNCES WAYNE

The Rock team again proved superior by defeating their rivals by the score 67-33, when they encountered the Wayne team Tuesday, April 28, on Plymouth's track. Two of the previous school records were broken, one by Williams in the pole vault which was originally 10 ft. 4 in. held by Champe since '34, but Williams set the new record on 6 inches to 11 feet. The other record was made by Wagenschutz in the broad jump. This was previously held by him but he jumped half an inch further to make the record 22 ft. 4 in. The team worked very well with most of the first and seconds coming to the home town. The relay team fell into the slumps again, however, and were edged out by the faster boys from Wayne. The River Rouge team is still in the lead but those who have followed the team will remember it was by a very low margin that Plymouth lost this meet. The next meet will be held at Wayne at the latter's track and if the team works as well as it has in past few meets, the Ecorse team will have a rood opponent.

DISTRICT SPELL-DOWN WON BY DORIS SHINN

Defeating other contestants from Plymouth and Northville schools, Doris Shinn, eighth-grader at Plymouth high won the district spelling bee and a chance to compete in the state finals; the elimination took place at Northville junior high.

Noted as runner-up in the Detroit News Metropolitan Spelling Bee last year, Doris has an excellent chance for complete victory this season. If she wins the state championship, she will be given a trip to Washington, where she will participate in the national contest. Prizes totaling $1,750 are awarded there to the various spellers.

Doris' runner-up in the district event was Jean Marburger of Northville, who failed on the word "imaginable." A detailed write-up of the event was published by the Detroit News, which sponsors the spelling bees and makes the awards.

PATROL TWO EXCELS IN COOKIE SALE

The regular meeting of the Plymouth Scouts of Troop I was called to order last Wednesday evening by Ingrid Ericsson. After the business meeting the girls went on a treat, during which they all enjoyed. The annual cookie sale conducted during the past week has been especially successful this year. Patrol II sold the largest number with Mary Catharine Moon, and Dorothy Cheshole excelling as individuals. Mary Catharine sold nine dozen and Dorothy sold ninety-two dozen. Others girls in the winning patrol were Jean Hamill, Jacquelyn Schoof, Beva Barnes, Ruth Drews, Beverly Smith, and Fern Forsgren.

PUPPET SHOW STAGED FOR SEVENTH GRADERS

Jeanette Welch and Norman Pearsal, two seventh graders, entertained two of Miss Tyler's English classes last week with a puppet show. The puppets, scenery, costumes, and theater were made by these students in art class. The first play, entitled "Run-away Kids," was written by Jeanette and Norman. In this, Philip and Elizabeth (the puppets), deciding that they were tired of a rest, went out to play. After getting lost in the woods, they realized that home was not such a bad place and returned. The second play was a Punch and Judy comedy, which was very amusing. The whole project shows talent, hard work and skill, because the dolls, costumes, theater, and scenery were original with the producers. Ardyth likes the country and

SENIOR WHO'S WHO

Harold Edward Wagenschutz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wagenschutz of 342 S. Harvey street, the tallest member of the senior class, has graced Plymouth with his presence since December 28, 1914. Wag' has proved to us that his particular talents lie in the world of sports, for he certainly has an athletic record to be proud of. This versatile young man has played four years on both the football "playing fullback" the basketball "having made the All Star Twin Valley Basketball Team" and the track teams. In the latter field he has shown outstanding ability by breaking many high school and league records in high jump, broad jump, high hurdles, and low hurdles.

Harold has been a member of the Varsity club, Hi-Y, Glee club, and Student Council. Although Wag' professes to be a profound woman hater, his past and present certainly tell us a different story. In his past, he found Weltha Selle and Madeline Salow valuable important roles, while at the present it is known to all that Lib Hesse is the one and only.

Wag' states his dislike for wearing a necktie very firmly and also declares that he hates girls who two-time. Though Wag' dislikes are few he has many likes including ice skating, swimming, and good juicy beef steak. This last preference is one in common with his best friends, Bill Petz, Jack Kinsey, Dave Gates, Dick Miller, and Lionel Coffin.

Wag' is not sure that he is going to college next year but if he does he wants to learn to be a second Coast Matheson.

Victor Edward Wesseling, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Wesseling was born in Allegan, Michigan, June 10, 1917. He arrived in Plymouth when he was still young enough to enjoy the locality. Here he has begun his education and here he will finish.

Vic is a great sportsman and is greatly interested in athletics. He has been a member of the school track team for two years and the cross-country team for a like period. The favorite time of the year for Vic is that at which he is allowed by law to hunt as his heart desires, and hunting is his favorite and only hobby.

Vic has belonged to the model airplane club and is often heard to imitate the sound of an airplane motor. He expresses a profound interest in aviation and intends to study at some aeronautical school in the near future. Commercial aviation is the only thing which can interest him as he especially dislikes all other forms of work. However, this will not divert him from the commercial course he is taking in school.

As to his favorites, otherwise than in the field of labor, there are many. Robert Van Meter is the lad's best pal, custard pie his favorite food, and navy blue his favorite color.

Ardyth May Wesseling, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Wesseling, was born June 10, 1918 in Hamilton, Michigan. When Ardyth had reached the tender age of a few months, the Wesseling family became residents of Plymouth and still are. Her education has been obtained here in our Central and high schools.

She has been a rather busy girl during her high school years. Besides doing the work required in the general course, Ardyth has taken part in inter-class sports, belonged to the Leaders' club, the Commercial club, and the Glee club. This spring she will have participated in two Musicales. She also finds time to indulge in her hobbies, which include cooking, sewing, listening to the ball games over the radio, taking part in girls' sports, and traveling. She has crossed the state of Michigan from Detroit to Allegan. Ardyth likes the country and dislikes both mince meat pie and big cities. The lure of the bright lights of the big cities will never tempt her away from the old home town. She is not too fussy and likes almost all foods, but places ice cream at the top of the list. Of all the colors, brown is her favorite, and her favorite subject is history.

Usually seen with one of her best friends, Bessie Wileiden, Ardyth is a quiet senior girl of average height possessing medium brown hair, gray eyes, dimples, and a friendly disposition. After graduation, she plans to get a job or go to the home of an aunt in Stockbridge, Michigan.

Robert Van Meter, red-headed and jolly son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Van Meter, was born in Detroit on August 6, 1918. Aside from this institution of learning, he has attended Bartlett, Roberts, Clarksville, and Roosevelt schools (not simultaneous events). "Speed" Van Meter (perhaps so named because of his proficiency in typing) is a prominent member of the school orchestra and claims that he sings in Glee club. He has participated in all class sports and played on the baseball team.

It is the ambition of Mr. Van Meter eventually to lead his own orchestra, and Plymouthites may soon see him scraping his magic violin or gesturing before his adoring musicians. After graduation he intends to attend a business college, preferably Cleary, stating that he can fall back upon commerce as a vocation if he fails to attain his first objective.

Lester Upton, oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Upton, was born in Holland, the tulip center of America. Then Lester moved to Detroit, which is as famous for automobiles as Holland is for tulips. After getting the fundamentals in Detroit schools, Lester came to Plymouth. He is taking a college course, and he likes mathematics the best of anything in the course. Lester has received some training from each of the cities where he has lived.

The flowers of Holland are still close to his heart, and so he got a job in one of the local greenhouses. The automobile industry of Detroit touched his fancy, and when he graduates, he hopes to enter the General Motors Institute at Flint. But flowers and autos are not in the life blood of Lester. His true training came from the air rifle town. And that is why when Lester starts up his old Model T, it goes just like a shot out of gun—maybe not as fast, but fully as noisy! Lester plans to take up engineering. He likes blue and thinks that Jimmy Cagney is among the best movie stars. He was a delegate to the Older Boys' Conference at Jackson last year.

As to his favorites, otherwise than in the field of labor, there are many. Robert Van Meter is the lad's best pal, custard pie his favorite food, and navy blue his favorite color.

Ardyth May Wesseling, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Wesseling, was born June 10, 1918 in Hamilton, Michigan. When Ardyth had reached the tender age of a few months, the Wesseling family became residents of Plymouth and still are. Her education has been obtained here in our Central and high schools.

She has been a rather busy girl during her high school years. Besides doing the work required in the general course, Ardyth has taken part in inter-class sports, belonged to the Leaders' club, the Commercial club, and the Glee club. This spring she will have participated in two Musicales. She also finds time to indulge in her hobbies, which include cooking, sewing, listening to the ball games over the radio, taking part in girls' sports, and traveling. ROCKS OUTRIT HOWELL TO WIN 7-2

The exhibition of a fine hitting attack and the brilliant pitching of Trombley paved the way for a 7-2 victory over Howell, Friday, May 1, at Howell. Both pitchers went the entire route although Haller. Howell's pitched was nicked for 15 hits. The Rocks hitting attack was led by Gordon and Zelasko who each got three out of four.

Neither team scored in the first inning. Howell was able to collect a run in their part of the inning and Plymouth scored two to take the lead. Zelasko doubled to right field and Trombley singled over second. Both Zelasko and Trombley scored on Gordon's single. Howell's run was scored on hits by the Niles brothers. In the fourth inning Zelasko singled and he scored on Blackmore's drive to left field. The Rocks scored again in the sixth inning when Gordon doubled to center field and scored on Zelasko's double to right field. Howell also scored in this inning. Mutter, who batted for J. Niles, walked to open the sixth inning. He moved to second on Scofield's fly to deep center field and scored on Cook's single.

The Rocks big inning came in the seventh when they were able to score three runs. Blackmore opened the inning by getting his second hit of the game, a single between short stop and second base. Gordon doubled and both Blackmore and Gordon scored on McNulty's Texas leaguer. May who batted for Hudson, beat out a bunt and McNulty scored from second, making the Rocks' third run of the inning. In their turn at bat Foley led off by smashing a double over first base, but Howell failed to score the final score was Plymouth 7, Howell 2. The batteries for Plymouth, Trombley and McNulty; for Howell, Haller and Cook.

RACQUETTERS DEFEAT WAYNE

In the singles Moe of Plymouth defeated Satterfield of Wayne (4-6) (6-1) (6-2). Smith of Plymouth defeated Cooney of Wayne (6-2) (6-1). McAllister of Plymouth defeated Crawford of Wayne (6-3) (6-4). In the doubles Norman and Passage of Plymouth defeated Armstrong and Jones of Wayne (6-0) (6-0). McLain and Lyke of Plymouth were defeated by Dendel and Callaghan of Wayne (7-5) (6-8) (6-4).

The coach, Mr. Bentley, reports the team to be in a much better condition at this time than they have been in years.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH
A Mother's Privilege.
It is the mother who delivers and guides the young. She lives in obscurity and contends with hardship. For her no trumpets blare, no choirs sing, no golden decorations are decreed. She keeps the watch along the borders of darkness and makes the attack on the trenches of ignorance and folly. Patient in her daily duty, she strives to conquer the evil powers which are the enemies of youth. She awakens sleeping spirits. She quickens the indolent, encourages the eager, and steadies the unstable. She communicates her own joy in learning and shares with boys and girls the best treasures of her mind. She lights many candles which, in later years will shine back to cheer her. This is her reward. Knowledge may be gained from books, but the love of knowledge is transmitted only by personal contact.

—Henry Van Dyke.
Throughout the day we do honor to our Mothers. Morning subject at 10 o'clock—"A mother raises a statesman. What are you raising?" Every mother will be given recognition at this service with a gift. Our four choirs will sing Mother's day music.
11:15—Bible school.
6:30—Meeting of Young People.
7:30—This will be a unique service at which time we will do honor to our oldest mother present to the youngest mother, and also to the mother who has the largest family. Ten young ladies will present a beautiful setting and pay a special floral tribute to this oldest mother—we believe we have the oldest mother in the entire community as a member of this church. She will be ninety-one this summer. Come and see one of the dearest mothers we have ever known. You will want to come just for the music Sunday night.

Fine interest is being manifested in the preparations for the campaign to secure funds for the building of a new church. The next five weeks are to be marked by services of unusual character. Everyone seems ready and eager to help. A leaflet has been prepared and distributed outlining the activities between now and June 7th when the campaign is to climax. There is to be no solicitation for money until that date.

The service next Sunday is to be appropriate to Mother's day, and we are to have as guest speaker, Mrs. Nelle Thompson, of Detroit, a fine Christian mother who has been the very efficient president of the Detroit Presbyterian society for six years. Mrs. Thompson will speak on "Mothers and the Church."

A roll call of the congregation is to be taken by means of cards which are being distributed this week. Additional cards may be received from the ushers Sunday morning. Be sure to be there and sign a card to mark your attendance. The choir will have special music.

"For the hand that rocks the cradle is the hand that rules the world."
Wallace's couplet well defines the power which God has placed into the hands of mothers in shaping the future events. The emotional, character-building influence of the mother upon the future man and woman is incalculable. How important, then, that especially the mothers of our nation become aware of their holy trust and responsibility! The clearest and safest instructions regarding that trust are contained in the inspired Word of God. At no other time more than now, the turbulent world needs mother-prayer and mother influence to guide world affairs along the way of peace. Come to the house of God on Mother's Day with your children and join in the observance of this day, as God would have it, and as alone it will become a blessing.

Piping, Naval Ceremony, Was an Ancient Practice

Tending the side with side-boys, as we know it is modern practice, originated at an early date. Piping, as a ceremony with side-boys became a custom as follows: It was customary in the days of sail to hold conferences on the flagships, and to invite officers to dinner while at sea, weather permitting, explains a writer on the U. S. Steins, Mercedes Gallion. Sometimes the weather necessitated hoisting the visitors aboard on boatswain's chairs. The pipe was, of course, used for "hoist away" and "avast heaving." Members of the crew did the hoisting, and it is from this that the custom originated of having a certain number of men in attendance; in time it became a nautical gesture of courtesy.
In the British navy today when the captain is reported coming alongside, the officer of the deck gives the order, "Hoist him in," even though the accommodation ladder is in use. Tending the side is not to be confused with a guard of honor.
The piping of the side is a distinct nautical courtesy, but the United States navy has extended it to military, diplomatic and consular officers, as well as to others of the legislative and executive departments of the government. In the British navy, Commander Beckett writes, by the admiralty regulations, no military officer, consular officer, or other civilian is entitled to this form of salute.

Probably one of the greatest deeds of Benjamin Franklin was the founding of the University of Pennsylvania. Franklin's Academy, organized in 1749, had its quarters in the Charter School, and here it incorporated as the College of Pennsylvania.

A Public Service

IN THESE DAYS when so many hundreds and hundreds of people are looking for homes, one of the first places to which they go is the office of dealers in real estate. In every progressive community there are those who make a livelihood in bringing together the man who has a home for sale and the man who wants to buy a home.

Small Compensation

For this important public service, a service that is of benefit not only to the buyer and the seller, but the community as well, it is essential that the dealers in real estate charge a nominal commission. When one considers the amount of work and detail necessary in completing a real estate transaction, the charge seemingly is an exceedingly small one that the real estate dealer makes.

Where He Gets Help

Every one knows who has ever sold any property the invaluable service given by the real estate man. But did you know that in his work the wide-awake and progressive dealer finds that the want ads columns of The Plymouth Mail are of much aid to him? Frequently they provide the "lead" that makes possible for you a home or makes possible the sale of some real estate you find it necessary to dispose of. The good real estate man is entitled to his commission—he earns it, just as do the little want ads that cost you but 25 cents in commissioner, because it is in reality, not a petition to improve the Tonquish Creek drain, but rather a petition to construct a new, separate and independent drain entirely within the corporate limits of Plymouth. (3) That upon proper petition, the right of the drain commissioner to improve the Tonquish creek within the limits of the city might be conferred, although the present petition is not such a petition; and (4) That the statutes of the state of Michigan relative to the improvement of county drains are not applicable to drainage districts situated wholly within the city of Plymouth.

In a letter to City Manager C. H. Elliott, Arlo A. Emery, city attorney in commenting on the decision, points out that the opinion can easily be circumvented by including a portion of the township in the proposed drainage district.

"Under the circumstances, I do not recommend an appeal from the court's decision," he says. "It is well to note, however, that as long as the present laws remain in effect, this decision is conclusive of the rights of the drain in the premises. It is not conclusive, however, of the right of the taxpayers of the city, other than Bunk Brothers, who were joint parties in this case."

If the city should wish to renege proceedings for the improvement of this drain, Mr. Emery states, it should have the signatures of at least five freeholders of the district who are not residents of the city.

Still Live in Caves—Visitors to the Touraine region of France to see the palatial chateaux which dot the district find people living in caves. At various places along the Loire, notably near the ruins of the Chateau-Mars-la-Pile at Chinon and Langeais, are the homes of these Twentieth century troglodytes, whose chambers are cut out of limestone rock. Many of the caves apparently are occupied by people in comfortable circumstances, for the rooms are ornamented and embellished. There are several miles of such homes, where people burrow into hills, like moles and pride themselves on their residence.

Sunday Dedicated To Mothers Everywhere

By tradition, and also a proclamation by Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald, Sunday, May 10, has been set aside as Mother's Day, a day of special honor to mothers everywhere. Special services, built on the theme of Mother's Day are being held in churches and, as is customary, mothers are being remembered with gifts—a pair of hose, a box of candy, a corsage of flowers—some little attention to set apart the day from the other 364.

Custom has it that one wears a red or pink carnation for a mother who is living, a white one in remembrance of one who has passed on.
