

City To Make Study Of Water Condition

Commissioners Ask The Manager To Prepare Data

Resolution Is Passed At Monday Night's Meeting Making Possible For First Time Thorough Knowledge Of Water Problem

Plymouth residents who every summer for a number of years past have suffered as a result of water shortage will be pleased to know that at the meeting of the city commission Monday night a resolution requesting the city manager to prepare immediately a full report on the water situation was passed without a dissenting vote.

The resolution, presented by Commissioner Ruth Huston Whipple who has been intensely interested in the water problem, provided that the city manager make a thorough survey of the water situation and find out:

First, if there is another well at the city water farm which has never been used, and if there is a well there as some have reported, what its capacity is and how deep it was driven.

Second, an inquiry into the advisability of increasing the capacity of the water reservoir of the city near Waterford or building another one much larger than the present one on the same site and to serve as an auxiliary of the present reservoir.

Third, whether it is advisable to again drill and try and find a water supply within the city or near the city. Past tests have never worked out satisfactorily, but the resolution calls for a complete report as to what these past tests produced.

Fourth, the question of whether the additional water supply Plymouth needs should come from the Detroit city water mains being built near this city.

Fifth, the advisability of developing our own water supply and using the Detroit water service only for stand-by service.

These five points seem to fully cover every angle of the water question and the report, if it goes into the detail requested, will provide Plymouth residents for the first time with complete data on the water situation. Following its preparation the city officials will have a basis upon which to work.

Railway Employees Hold Picnic Here

Former employees of the Detroit, Jackson and Chicago Railway and their families held their annual picnic Sunday at Plymouth Riverside park with over 300 in attendance. Charles J. Thumme, of Plymouth, was re-elected secretary-treasurer of the organization.

A. H. Cady, of Ann Arbor, who began his service as conductor and worked through the ranks to the position of general superintendent, was again elected president. Newton Vail of Jackson was named vice-president.

Many of the old veterans were present, among them Harry Fields, of Ypsilanti, 86 years of age, who began work in Detroit in the old horse car days, and Mr. Vail who was with the company from its beginning until it went into receivership and ceased operating.

Those attending came from Detroit, Jackson, Ypsilanti, Dearborn, Wayne, Saginaw and Flint, other cities in Michigan and some from nearby states. Letters were read from others who live too far away to be present.

The men of this organization served the people of southern Michigan courteously and well for many years. They will hold their next annual picnic the third Sunday in August, 1937, in Plymouth Riverside park.

The group this year voted their thanks to Fred D. Schrader for the use of chairs and the Eckles Coal and Supply Co. for donating their truck for the occasion.

City Collects 75 Per Cent of 1936 Taxes Up to Date

Payments Exceed Those Of Last Year By Six Per Cent

Seventy-five per cent of the city's taxes have been collected so far this year, as compared with 69 per cent at the same time in 1935. Mrs. Nellie V. Cash, city treasurer, reported this week. The total collections to date come to $51,443, while by this time last year $40,415 had been paid in. This means a difference of $11,028 in the actual amounts.

The total assessment this year is $67,934.16, or $9,642.39 greater than the 1935 figure of $58,351.77. The 1936 valuation comes to $5,036,004, while the valuation last year was $4,862,646, a difference of $173,358.

The deadline for the payment of taxes without penalty was August 10. A two per cent penalty was added at that time and will be collected up to September 10 when it will be increased to 3 per cent. After October 10 the penalty will be 4 per cent.

The second installment of the Moore-Holbeck 10-year moratorium taxes are being collected at the city treasurer's office and may be paid there until September 1, after which they are payable at the office of the county treasurer. Interest of four per cent is charged on the installment.

Dr. Nalbant Is Hurt In Crash

Dr. J. P. Nalbant of 518 South Main street, received bruises and lacerations Monday morning about 10:30 o'clock when his car collided with another driven by Mrs. Herbert Siefertman, of Cleveland, at the intersection of Lilley and Warren roads. Mrs. Siefertman and her husband also were bruised and cut.

The occupants of both cars were brought to the Plymouth hospital, where it was at first thought Dr. Nalbant had sustained a fractured arm and Mrs. Siefertman a skull fracture, but x-rays revealed no broken bones. Mr. and Mrs. Siefertman were released from the hospital Tuesday evening. Dr. Nalbant is reported improving.

According to reports the two cars approached the intersection at right angles to each other and neither driver saw the other until it was too late to avoid a crash. The cars were badly damaged.

Townsend Club Has a Big Rally

Many people from Plymouth and surrounding country were in attendance at the Townsend meeting held in Kellogg Park Saturday evening, August 15.

The program opened with the audience singing America as is the custom of the club, and the salute of the flag. The first speaker of the evening was Clinton C. DeWitt, an attorney of Detroit, followed by Earl N. Nash of Ferndale, the Townsend candidate for congress, from the 17th district, who was introduced by T. A. Price of Ferndale. Mr. Nash gave an interesting and convincing talk on his candidacy and felt rewarded by the close attention given him by his listeners.

That the meeting was a success was proven Monday evening when a larger group than ever attended the regular meeting held in the Grange hall. Plans were made at this meeting to have Mr. Price of Ferndale, who is district organizer, speak at the next meeting which will be held on August 31.

Annual Picnic Of St. Michael's To Be Event Sunday

Yearly Affair Heads Rosedale Gardens Activities

One of the outstanding events of the year in Rosedale Gardens is the annual benefit picnic sponsored by St. Michael's church, to be held this coming Sunday on the church grounds, just off Plymouth road. Several thousands have attended these affairs in the past, and preparations are being made for a large attendance again this year.

Men and women of the parish are working to arrange splendid entertainment which will include performances by both radio talent and other artists, and numbers by the Plymouth Civic band. A dance floor with a special (Con. on last page, this section)

Legion To Hear About Convention

Reports of the state convention of the American Legion, held from Saturday through Tuesday in Lansing, will be given at a meeting of the Myron H. Beals post and its auxiliary this (Friday) evening. The business session will follow a potluck supper in Riverside park.

Those attending the convention from here were Leonard Murphy, adjutant, Harold P. Anderson, commander, and Mrs. Don Ryder, of the auxiliary. Mr. Murphy served on the music and drill committee.

Annual Playground Picnic Is Big Event At Riverside Park

Games and Contests Are Arranged For 175 Children

Children who took part in the playground activities this summer held their annual picnic August 12 at Plymouth Riverside park. About 175 boys and girls gathered at their respective playgrounds at 9 a. m. and were transported to the park in trucks loaned for the occasion.

Upon their arrival they were told there were 10 pounds of candy hidden in the woods and that they could have all they found. Off they scurried, each intent on finding as much of the candy as he could.

Games and relays followed the candy hunt. Then lunch was served at long tables, with ice cream for dessert. Late in the afternoon a tired but happy group of children made their way home still talking excitedly of candy, prizes and "eats."

Results of the contests were as follows: 50-yard dash for boys under 12, Gorton first and Pank second; 50-yard dash for boys under 16, Van Landingham and Rathburn; 25-yard dash for girls under 12, L. Niedospal and

Work Is Started On Addition To Central School

Auditorium, Library and Kindergarten Being Built

Work has started on the new addition to the Central grade school which will contain an auditorium-gymnasium, kindergarten room and library. The addition, which is being built as a WPA project, will be 60x64 feet and will cost approximately $25,000. It is expected to be completed before cold weather sets in this fall.

The auditorium will be 34½ by 53½ feet, with a stage at the north end 12x18, feet having dressing rooms on either side. This will take up the west half of the building. On the east side will be the kindergarten at the north, with a large bay window, and a library to the south. An enlarged staircase also is being built at the south end taking the place of the stairs in the old building which are to be removed. The new stairway has the approval of the state fire marshal's department and all questions of inadequate stairs is removed.

The new addition will be a material improvement to the school plant because prior to this time the grade school children have had no place for physical training during cold or stormy weather. The auditorium also will fill the need of a room for debating, dramatics and adult recreation, along with community gatherings. It will have a seating capacity of 300.

The foundation and walls are being constructed sufficiently strong to carry a second story when this is needed. The addition of 12-foot walls on three sides will provide four classrooms at a small expense.

The project is under the direction of the board of education in co-operation with the WPA. The board furnishes the architect, project director (Superintendent of Schools George A. Smith), and $2,108 worth of materials. The balance of materials and the labor are paid for by the federal government.

A maximum of about 40 men will be employed on the work. The WPA project at Starkweather school—the building of a cement stadium, sodding of banks and preparation of a playground—has been completed and the men who worked on it are being transferred to the Central addition.

Thomas W. Moss, of Plymouth, is the architect in charge. When the building is completed it will be one of the outstanding of the smaller WPA projects in this part of the state.

Another Of Weekly Concerts Is Planned

Another in the series of popular Saturday evening concerts by the Plymouth Civic band is planned for 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night in Kellogg park.

A varied program of well known music is being arranged. The band is under the direction of Ivan Gray.

All Invited To Get In Fair Parade

All arrangements have been completed for the big Plymouth parade to the Northville-Wayne county fair in Northville next Thursday afternoon.

The parade will form on the east side of Main street from Pennington avenue north to the city hall and sharply at 1 o'clock the Plymouth police car will lead the long string of cars from this city to the fair grounds.

Every one who takes part in the parade will get free parking at the fair, just as they did last year. They will be permitted to park their cars after the parade circles the race track, inside the race track grounds to the east end.

But no one will get this free parking unless they are in the parade and enter the grounds when all of the Plymouth cars do.

When the line is formed on Main street in Plymouth, Secretary Leonard T. Murphy will have stickers for the windshields so there will be no confusion about the parking when the cars once reach the fair grounds.

The Plymouth band will follow directly after the police car. Mr. Murphy has arranged with Paul Wiedman for a big Ford truck the same as last year for the band. The band will also play at the fair on Thursday afternoon.

Practically all of the business places in Plymouth have decided to close next Thursday at 12 o'clock.

The merchants have fixed this hour so that every one will have a chance to go home and get ready for the fair.

It is urged that all cars be headed north on Main street along the east side near the city hall as soon after 12:30 as possible.

The parade will leave promptly at 1 o'clock. So there will be no delay at the gates in Northville. Mr. Murphy and his aides will have admission tickets for sale and will pass along the cars so you can buy them in Plymouth before leaving.

Every one hopes to make this year's Plymouth fair parade the biggest one the city ever had. It is good advertising for Plymouth as the 150 or 200 cars swing around the race track before the big crowds.

There will be a mounted escort to meet the Plymouth parade at the fair gates in Northville and will lead the parade through the grounds and around the race track.

The following merchants have already announced that they will enter decorated cars and floats in the parade. If others who are not listed, desire to enter floats in the parade, they should get in touch with Leonard Murphy at the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce at once.

The list follows: Plymouth Motor Sales, Mayflower hotel, Plymouth Feed Store, Schrader Bros., Charles Finlan & Son, Cloverdale Dairy, Blunk Bros., E. J. Allison, Woodworth Co., A. & P., Krogers, Bartlett & Kaiser, Plymouth Chamber of Commerce.

Earl Mastick, Consumers Power Co., Carl Shear, Eckles Coal Co., Plymouth Lumber & Coal Co., Towle & Roe, Wilson Hardware Co., Plymouth United Savings bank, Smith Motor Sales, Wild & Co., Daisy Manufacturing Co., Detroit House of Correction, Plymouth Mail, Detroit Edison Co.

It is not necessary for you to notify Mr. Murphy if you do not plan to decorate your car.

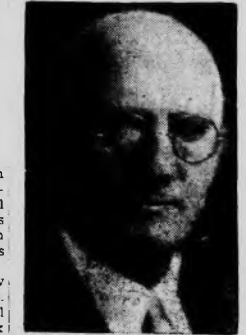

The fair begins Wednesday, but Thursday is Plymouth's big day. The two fast Plymouth baseball teams have been scheduled for games that day. The horse show program will be one of the best of the entire week and the race entries are said to be numerous for both trotting and pacing events.

Every one is urged to get into the long parade of cars that will go from Plymouth to Northville next Thursday to the fair.

Mr. and Mrs. Starr Herrick, sons, Louis and Leroy and Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Bailey of Detroit, spent Sunday in Lansing.

Bank Sells Garage For A New Factory

Northville Lauds Road Builders

MON. EDWARD N. HINES

Edward N. Hines, who holds the distinction of being the first man appointed to the first Wayne county road commission and who has held the position during the more than 30 years of the existence of the group that has led the nation in highway construction progress, was paid unusual honors Tuesday noon by the Rotary club of Northville and nearly two score other guests.

The club, in appreciation for the rebuilding of the paving of Main and Center streets and the widening of these two business thoroughfares, invited the Wayne county road commission to come out to its meeting Tuesday and be its guests. The commission sent its veteran chairman to represent the group.

President William Forney of the club and Chairman Willard Ely, long time supervisor of Northville township and an intimate friend of Commissioner Hines, were unsparing in their praises of the commissioner and his associates. They declared that the progress of western Wayne county was largely due to the interest that Mr. Hines and the other members of the commission had always taken in both Northville and Plymouth.

Supervisor Charles Rathburn of Plymouth township, who was a guest at the meeting, somewhat shared in the honors, as Mr. Hines in his response declared that much of the satisfactory work in this part of Wayne county was due to the 100 percent cooperation that had always been given the county by Supervisors Rathburn and Ely.

Mr. Hines told most interestingly the history of the first road built in Michigan and he gave credit to John C. Calhoun, an important figure in early American history, as being the first good roads booster in Michigan.

The meeting was one of the largest attended that the Northville club has enjoyed in some time, as many members of the Northville Exchange club, joined with the Rotarians in the tribute to the county road commissioners.

Newburg To Hold Homecoming Day

The annual Newburg homecoming will be held Saturday afternoon, August 29, at the Newburg school corner of Ann Arbor and Newburg roads.

All people of the surrounding countryside who are interested in a good time for themselves and others are invited to attend. There will be races of many kinds, with prizes for boys and girls of all ages from six to 96, and a penny scramble for the small children.

There will be also a special prize of $5 for the winner of the horseshoe pitching contest, and a fish pond will be available for Isaac Walton enthusiasts. Refreshment stands are being planned for the thirsty and hungry.

This homecoming is being held under the auspices of the Newburg Ladies Aid society.

Company To Make Grills For Car Radiators

Following closely on the announcement that the Burroughs Adding Machine company has under contemplation the construction of a big unit for its business on a site on the east side of Plymouth, comes a statement from Leonard Murphy, secretary of the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce, that The Precision Products company has purchased the old Sturgis garage at the corner of Mill and Amelia streets and will within a few days start up a small factory unit here.

The company which has plants in both Kalamazoo and Jackson, and one in the east, manufactures radiator grills for automobiles and numerous other small parts for cars.

The transaction followed a recent trip to the east by Russell Deane of the Plymouth United Savings bank, former owners of the property, who contacted officials of the corporation and was successful in bringing about a consummation of the transfer.

In addition to the large garage building the company purchased four and a half acres of ground adjoining the garage and also owned by the bank.

William Maher, an official of the corporation, advised Mr. Deane that the garage building would be used for the present but that the company hoped that it would be able in the spring to erect a new factory building on the vacant ground it has just purchased.

In another week or so about ten men will be employed in the new plant. When the new building is erected, the company hopes to employ between 50 and 100 men, stated Mr. Murphy.

Fishing Trip Is Best Says Dr. Butz

Dr. and Mrs. Paul Butz and son, who recently went to northern Ontario on a fishing trip, have returned home highly enthusiastic over one of the most successful fishing trips they have ever taken.

They were located on Lake Wahnapitac, several miles north of Skead, Ontario.

Following several days of some of the best lake and stream fishing they ever have experienced, they trailed overland some seven or eight miles to a lake where they fished two or three days for mountain trout. Photographs they brought back with them tell of the success they had in landing these beauties from the deep waters up in the Canadian wilds.

It was necessary for them to pack their canoes to this lake. Dr. Butz states that to swing a 16-foot canoe over his head and tote it down through the woods and brush.

"You might add that when the Plymouth Democrats returned home from up in Canada fishing, it is quite apparent that all the flies and mosquitoes followed them, because we didn't see any," stated Dr. Butz.

Alexander Given Legion Position

Lislie H. Alexander of Plymouth, who is a member of the Lloyd Green post of the American Legion in Northville, was elected finance officer of the state department of the Legion at the convention held from Saturday to Tuesday in Lansing.

Mrs. Lida Murphy, of the Northville auxiliary was named first vice-president of the state auxiliary organization. Guy M. Cox, of Iron River, is the new state commander, and Mrs. Carl Goetz, of Monroe, is president of the auxiliary.

GETTING SOMEWHERE

It is beginning to look as though the state is going to get somewhere in the next year or so with a civil service system for the state government. The Plymouth Mail has long advocated an end to the present deplorable and costly patronage way of selecting state workers. Thanks to Prof. James Pollock of the University of Michigan who has been one of the tireless workers in favor of civil service, there will be presented to the forthcoming legislature, a civil service bill that is a model. It should have one hundred percent support.

Briefly the proposed measure provides: Creation of a four-person State Civil Service Commission, safeguarded from political domination by any one governor or any one party.

Protection to state employees against religious or "political dismissals."

Protection to state officers against time-wasting work on "spoils system" patronage.

Protection to the taxpayer against losses occasioned by "spoils system" practices, which the State Civil Service Study Commission computes at $1,000,000 a year.

Provisions for "equal work for equal pay."

Protection to state employees against forced contributions—"political assessments"—to enrich politicians' campaign chests.

Provisions for employment and promotion strictly on merit, rather than on "political pull" or blood kinship with some politician.

Creation of an employment preference for veterans after they have shown standards of ability.

Protection against the possibility of "pay-roll padding," which the Study Commission finds is now "continuously possible," although most state employees are too honest to steal through issuing pay checks to non-existent persons.

Protection against the unnecessary creation of additional state jobs, possibly at the desire of politicians who wish to pay political debts.

An estimate that the commission's operations will cost, after Civil Service has been operative for two years, only $200,000 a year. This sum is only 20 per cent of the $1,000,000 loss estimated annually through continuance of the "spoils system."

Inclusion under the proposed civil service system of the bulk of the state's 13,500 or 14,000 employees. Exemptions from civil service employment rules are granted to elective officials, appointive executives, their confidential employees or deputies, the state police with their existing merit system, teachers or educators, and legislative or judicial employees.

Uniform regulations of hours of work, sick leaves, leaves of absence and vacations for state employees, none of which have existed in the past.

Strict safeguards concerning appointment of the commission's chief administrative officer, a state personnel director.

Opportunities to dismissed employees to appeal their cases to the Commission and obtain redress if they have been unfairly treated.

Use of the State's Civil Service Department for the assistance of local governments who seek to install Civil Service, but only if the local governments request such aid.

Penalty clauses to punish those who violate civil service rules, including methods to remove from office or employment any person so convicted.

A GOOD QUESTION TODAY

In the only address ever made in Michigan by Abraham Lincoln, he made the statement, "A majority will never dissolve the Union. Can a minority do it?" The address was made at a Republican rally in famous Bronson park in Kalamazoo Wednesday, August 27, 1856. We might well indeed ask ourselves the question today, "can the minority control our government?"

FERRY SERVICE

The Plymouth Mail has long been one of the advocates of either free ferry service at the Straits or only a charge of a sufficient amount to pay for the boats and operating expenses. We have opposed, and we still oppose the practice of the state in operating the ferries as a money making project. It was not intended that way in the beginning, but so fast and so easy did the money come from the ferry service that the state has always maintained it as an easy way to get more cash out of the taxpayers.

Editor Vernon J. Brown of the Ingham County News, who is also a member of the state legislature, recently drove up to Mackinac Straits to make a personal investigation of the problem. While his views do not accord with those of The Plymouth Mail, what he writes on the subject is of more than ordinary interest. Mr. Brown says:

"Last week in this column there was discussion regarding the matter of free transportation across Mackinac Straits, the governor having offered that suggestion while on a recent visit to the Straits country. The article of last week was followed by a personal visit to the Straits by the writer. Facts obtained of conditions there justify further discussion of the ferry service and of the possibility, remote as it now appears, of constructing a bridge to connect the two peninsulas of Michigan.

"Few people realize how this tourist business is growing. In fact the state highway commissioner, Murray D. VanWagoner, speaking before a group at the Soo last Saturday evening, confessed that the increase in traffic this year has caught his department off guard and that despite the best efforts of the state ferries and all the help which can be had from the railroad ferries, still there is too much delay to those who are in a hurry to cross the Straits to get to their summer homes or their points of destination either north or south.

"During the first year the ferries were operated back in the early twenties, only about 10,000 cars were transported across the Straits during the entire year. Last Saturday alone the state ferries carried 2582 motor vehicles and more than 7000 passengers. A year ago on the same day only 2582 cars were carried. The state has already taken steps to have a larger and faster ferry in use for next year. Meanwhile the railroad ferries are kept in commission at all times except when required for regular train service.

"Sunday at noon more than 150 motor cars waited in line at Mackinac City for transportation. Monday at noon, a count was made and 125 were standing in line with no ferry at the dock and with cars driving up every few seconds to add to the congestion.

"Added ferry service is immediately necessary. Figures will show that with double the increase over 1936 totals for the season, the interest charges and maintenance on a $32,000,000 bridge structure would be paid from the revenues now collected by the ferries and from reasonable charges to the railroads. Present traffic shows a 74 per cent increase for the season over 1935. If the traffic keeps on doubling, the revenues soon will justify consideration of a bridge. A bridge will require nearly five years to build and have in use. Such a rate of increase as has occurred this year, continued over a five year period, challenges serious consideration to both immediate better ferry service and the bridge itself as an eventual reality.

"Meanwhile the argument that the state provide free ferry service certainly falls against some damaging facts. No one who has been at the Straits during recent weeks can come away without surprise at the number of out-of-state cars making the ferry crossing. A count taken by highway department employees last week at the junction of U. S. 2 and U. S. 31, at the Rogers monument, disclosed a ratio of six out-of-state cars passing that point to one bearing a Michigan license. Scrutiny of the cars crossing into Canada at Sault Ste. Marie shows a surprising number of Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota and western states cars. America is on wheels and going places. Michigan should never undertake to supply all the people of the United States with free transportation. Were free ferry service to be offered, added docks as well as greatly added ferry boats would be required immediately.

Reasonable charges for safe, speedy ferry boats, is the goal for the state to seek. Free ferry service is neither required nor to be desired. Certainly all the people of Michigan should not be taxed to transport a limited few of its own citizens plus all the people of other states who visit within our borders."

ONE MINUTE BIOGRAPHIES of MICHIGAN GOVERNORS and their ACCOMPLISHMENTS

By Elton R. Eaton

DAVID H. JEROME

No. 16

Michigan's first native born governor was David H. Jerome, who was born in Detroit in 1829.

Soon after his birth, the father died and the mother with the children returned to New York, but came back to Michigan, settling in St. Clair county, working on the farms and in the woods. Young Jerome did much towards the support of the family.

He served as deputy clerk and deputy register of deeds of St. Clair county for two years and gained considerable praise for his excellent work in the two positions, which he held at the same time.

Soon after, in company with a brother, he chartered the steamer "Chautauqua" and young Jerome became its captain. A portion of the season was engaged in the passenger business between Port Huron and Detroit and part of the time Jerome used the steamer as a tow-boat. During the season the two made quite a sum of money, but lost the entire amount in an effort to raise the "General Scott," which had sunk in Lake St. Clair.

Jerome followed the lakes for some time, going to California in 1853 where he made considerable money by running a store. He returned to Michigan locating at Saginaw. Interested in politics, he was elected a member of Saginaw's city council, and helped in the organization of the Republican party at Jackson.

In 1862 he was elected to the state senate, serving three terms. He introduced the bill providing for the establishment of the soldier's home at Harper's hospital in Detroit. At the Republican state convention in Jackson in 1880 he was nominated for governor and was elected, serving one term. It was during his administration that the St. Mary's Falls canal was transferred from state to federal control and attorneys given permission to form county bar associations.

RAMBLING with Editors AROUND of Michigan

THE BEST WAY

I believe that a reduction in the amount of the sales tax from the present 3 per cent to 2½ or 2 per cent would provide a better method of lifting the sales tax burden and would avoid any danger of clouding the constitutionality of the entire act by allowing special exemptions. Certainly the elimination of foodstuffs from sales tax will bring a clamor from other branches of business who feel their products have just as rightful a claim to being "necessities." The agitation for sales tax relief comes from voters who remember its imposition as an "emergency" measure and the promise that it would be reduced when the emergency had passed. The constantly increasing revenues pouring into the state treasury from sales taxes are evidence that the "emergency" status is past and I believe the taxpayers are entitled to a reduction in the percentage of sales tax. Of course the politicians will fight any reduction in sales taxes—Michigan's tremendous sales tax revenues are building up a treasury fund which is the financial answer to a politician's prayer.—J. John Pope in The Grandville Star.

QUITE RIGHT

Political radio speeches have at least taught us something. A short time ago we thought—in our ignorance—that nothing could be worse than the jazz we were then listening to.—Charles Seed in The Rochester Clarion.

YOU CAN'T CHANGE AMERICAN INSTINCTS BY LEGISLATION

Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace wants to replace the American competitive system with a sort of "co-operative commonwealth." This is just one form of State Socialism. It assumes that centralized authority of the people, working through government, can regulate an age-old instinctive desire for individualistic self-preservation; desirable as the ultimate objective of Mr. Wallace's reasoning may be, as human nature is now constituted the idea will not work. Other nations have tried it in the past, some are trying it right now—yet the United States is supposed to be the most prosperous and happy nation on earth, even though we still operate on something of a free democracy. Mr. Wallace is an honest and sincere gentleman, but his heart is running ahead of his head when he thinks that federal regulation can insure a maximum of food, clothing, and shelter to everybody, in our humble opinion.

We agree with those who hold that a change is necessary in the production and distribution of life's necessities, to the end that human exploitation may be minimized; but we feel that such a change can only endure when it is nurtured by evolution, not by the revolution of ignoring a country's Constitution.

What this country needs—what the whole world needs—is an understanding of, and compliance with, natural economic law. And economic law guarantees decent reward from an individual's own efforts, even though that individual may require democratic regulation by his government.—George Averill in The Birmingham Eclectic.

WAYNE FLOWER SHOW

The Wayne Flower Show committee this week announces plans for the annual show, this year planned for September 2 and 3, and adds that an attendance of 2000 is their goal.

One of the most amazing growths of interest in the past few years has been that which the general public displays in flower shows. From a pursuit once considered confined to "old ladies" the exhibition of flowers has been taken up by both sexes and almost every class. A special group in this year's Wayne show, for children 5 to 12, is proof that even the youngest may succumb.

The popularity of the hobby is not hard to discover, for it lies in the fact that flowers and gardening offer something to everyone. They satisfy love of beauty, please the amateur botanist with their wonderful life histories, and provide a happy outlet for those with a competitive spirit, who enjoy a fair chance at an award. Then the sheer physical work of gardening is exercise taken painlessly, in a return to mother earth.

But flowers, like all other things, give back only that which is put into them. The committee is justified in expecting a crowd of 2000 to view the flowers, but the flowers must be there to view. Only by co-operation, and generous offerings from the gardens of Wayne, and the surrounding territory, can the show be a success. Enter your own flowers before you visit the show, and see how much more splendid it will seem.—Mrs. Lois Hisey in The Wayne Dispatch.

THE PUBLIC HAS A RIGHT TO KNOW

Pouring through our many exchanges we find all of them carrying innumerable reports of the different school districts of the community the paper represents. This just reminds us how good that is, that the public, those people that help pay for the maintenance of our schools, get a break, and are privileged to learn just where the money for the operation of our schools comes from and how and where it is spent. Some of them seem to be building up or continuing that same old kind of spending public money, where school officers get in the habit of charging for everything they do for their own school, and the school pays more for supplies and ordinary necessities than the public pays for individual services and materials, but publicizing these things is the only thing that will bring an end to careless, unnecessary spending.—Al Weber in The Cheboygan Observer.

Some extra beats from this old heart,
For long before the state began,
Men shed their blood for Michigan.

The towering pine that marked the way,
And blazed the trails of yesterday.

day,
Has welded into soul of man
A mother-love for Michigan.

You find, of course, in every state,
Some men that love, some men
that hate;

But, find the fellow if you can
Who has no love for Michigan.

FACTS ABOUT... water

—especially HOT water!

15 GALLONS OF HOT WATER ARE USUALLY NEEDED FOR THE WASHING MACHINE ON WASHDAY.

THE BEST TEMPERATURE FOR "HOT" WATER FOR HOME USE IS 140 TO 150 DEGREES. THIS IS SUFFICIENTLY HOT TO REMOVE GREASE, BUT IT WILL NOT SCALD THE SKIN NOR "SET" DIRT IN CLOTHING.

SOMEONE MUST CLEAN ONE MILE OF WINDOW GLASS IN THE AVERAGE HOME EACH YEAR! PLENTIFUL HOT WATER MAKES THIS TASK MUCH EASIER. THE CONVENIENCE OF AUTOMATIC ELECTRIC HOT WATER IN YOUR HOME MAY COST AS LITTLE AS 10¢ A DAY. ASK ABOUT THIS MODERN SERVICE AT ANY DETROIT EDISON OFFICE.

HAVE YOU EVER NEEDED HOT WATER IN THE MIDDLE OF THE NIGHT? WITH AN AUTOMATIC ELECTRIC WATER HEATER, YOU HAVE HOT WATER AVAILABLE INSTANTLY WHEN YOU WANT IT, AT ANY HOUR.

ON THE PATHWAY OF PROGRESS

by O. Lawrence Hawthorne

Let us today, with reverence and pride, Review the splendid record of the years. With hearts inspired and hopes intensified, Let us pay homage to those pioneers Who fought their way across a continent And built a nation from a wilderness! So nobly their heroic lives were spent That we enjoy the fruits of their success.

By them the path of progress has been made A boulevard; the covered wagon train Is now a wondrous motor car parade. And as we ponder on these things, we gain A clearer vision of the distant goal. Toward which our fathers bravely led the way; We gain new faith and greater strength of soul To meet the problems we may find today.

Knows How He Will Spend Legacy

"THREE hundred and fifty thousand dollars is a lot of money, particularly when coming out of a clear sky, but I have it all mapped out as to what I'm going to do with it." So George A. Mudgett, fifty-six-year-old clothing store operator of Glendale, Calif., commented as he announced he had received news from relatives that he is one of 14 heirs to an estate valued at approximately $5,000,000. The inheritance was left by Mudgett's aunt, Mrs. Frank Barnes, owner of a large hotel and other property in New York. Mudgett said he was going to buy a boat and take a trip to Alaska.

Odd Pals at Santa Monica

IN THE KITCHEN

The competent cook knows how to make use of "left-overs" without detracting in the least from the savoriness of a meal. With the proper seasoning, many tasty dishes may be concocted from ingredients which might seem at first to be unappetizing. Stale bread need not be thrown away. Neither should it be served up in such form that members of the family turn up fastidious noses. Here are several suggestions for tempting desserts which make the most of dry bread:

Spiced Bread Pudding
1 cup toasted bread crumbs
1 cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon soda
1/2 teaspoon ground cloves
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup sour milk
1 cup raisins

Steamed Puddings
When sponge cake, ginger bread or other cakes are too dry to serve, it is a good plan to steam them and serve with a sauce. 1 1/2 tablespoons cornstarch, 1/2 cup brown sugar, 1-3 cup granulated sugar, 1 pint boiling water, 1/2 cup raisins and 1 tablespoon butter makes a good sauce.

Cake Crumb Pudding
Two cups stale cake crumbs, 1 egg milk jelly and 2 tablespoons of sugar are the needed ingredients. Reduced prices after May 1. Custom hatching, Moore Hatcheries, 41733 Michigan Ave. Three miles west of Wayne. Phone 421-J. Wayne, Mich. 331f-c

EVEN SUMMER

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

WHO has not seen a summer rain Sweep swiftly o'er a sunlit plain? Bright was the morn' And soft the breeze. Yet gales are born Of even these. And suddenly the sky is gray. Yes, even on a summer day.

Who has not seen the summer hour Grow darker with a sudden show'r? Yet shall you own it Be always fair. And loss unknown. And hurt, and care? Shall life be always joy to you. The sky the same all summer through?

Who has not seen the rain appear? Who ever lived a cloudless year? The dripping leaf. The fallen nest. So comes grief. To even joy's breast— And even so to you it may. Yes, even on a summer day.

TRY THIS TRICK

By PONJAY HARRAH Copyright by Public Ledger, Inc. Most of them had been statesmen. They sent him to the best schools and then to a university where he would get the democratic touch.

This is one trick that becomes more and more bewildering if you repeat it. People will think that luck sided you the first time; but the longer you repeat the more bewildered they become. Give a person a coin. Turn your back, tell him to hold the coin in one hand and raise the hand to his forehead. Then request him to place both fists on the table.

To accomplish this, merely look closely at both hands. The blood will have left the hand raised to the forehead, hence it will be lighter in color. GIRLIGAGU

What have we here? We have an automobile. How big is the automobile? It is a four-passenger automobile. How many people are in the automobile? Eight people and a dog. How can eight people and a dog get into a four-passenger automobile? We've often wondered about that, too. Are the people comfortable? Certainly not. Even the dog is suffering.

THE STORY OF OSCAR 1—Oscar's great ambitions for the boy. 2—When he was a little fellow, they used to take him around the house and point out the oil paintings of his ancestors. 3—Most of them had been statesmen.

4—They sent him to the best schools and then to a university where he would get the democratic touch. 5—They never ceased emphasizing that in the United States every boy had a chance to become President and they liked to impress upon him that his chances were better than average.

6—Their idea was that he should get a broad education and then enter the law. Most Presidents came from the law, they said. 7—He inherited certain statesmanlike instincts and the ability to mix well on necessary occasions. 8—After graduation he went into politics and his folks said that he had the right sponsors.

9—He was soon looked upon as a rising young man in the affairs of the state and won a state senatorship in no time. 10—Everybody liked Oscar. He had a way with him. 11—After a few years he became governor and served with distinction and the attendant publicity.

12—Then they began to talk of him as a favorite son. 13—He looked like a clinch for the White House. 14—Then came the 1920 collapse and chaos. Oscar observed the troubles of a President with considerable cooling of his ambitions. 15—But the party went on booming him until there seemed no way out. 16—Oscar fooled them, however. 17—He suddenly quit the state and became a professional tester of experimental parachutes over the Grand Canyon. 18—He left a note saying that he figured it was less strain and worry. MORAL—Now and then you find a man who can sidetrack an ambition.

Good Shows Are Planned For Next Week At Theater

"The Harvester" First On Program Marked By Variety

Opening the week at the Penniman-Allyn theater, the screen version of Gene Stratton Porter's famous novel, "The Harvester," will be shown Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. This saga of the soil, a favorite with young and old for many years is brought to life on the screen by Russell Hardie, Anne Rutherford and Alice Brady.

Miss Brady plays the part of a scheming mother whose efforts ensnare Hardie (the "Harvester") into an engagement to her daughter, thus very nearly wrecking his life and that of the girl he loves. The picture shows the emotions and untamanglements of those simple country folk who seem to city eyes to lead such uneventful lives.

Herbert Marshall and Gertrude Michael will appear Wednesday and Thursday in "Forgotten Faces," the dramatic tragedy of a woman who sends a man to prison for 20 years, then endangers her own daughter with the old scandal. The man, however, comes back to wreak a strange vengeance and save the girl's happiness.

The double feature for Friday and Saturday includes Zane Grey's "Desert Gold" and "Half Angel." The first is the story of the Indians' fight to retain their heritage in the face of the white man's greed. It has much of the riding and shooting and hair-breadth escapes which make westerns so popular. The players include Larry Crabbe, Marsha Hunt and Tom Keene.

"Half Angel" is the story of a girl who is tried for the murder of her father, acquitted, then caught in a web of circumstance which brands her as the murderer of the woman who befriends her. The part of Angel is taken by Frances Dee, with Brian Donlevy cast opposite her as a crack-brained reporter convinced of her innocence. Donlevy pursues the girl because he thinks he wants a story, although in reality he has fallen in love with her. Charles Butterworth turns in an excellent performance as Donlevy's extremely jittery stooge.

All Schools Will Get A Copy of State Seal

In order that the official seal of the state be made familiar to school children, Orville E. Atwood, secretary of state, has had authentic copies of it made for school distribution. The reproductions of the seal are appropriately colored to bring out the features specified by the legal description of the seal. The copies will be appropriate for framing by each school.

Actual distribution to the some 6,000 public schools of the state will be handled by Dr. Eugene B. Elliott, state superintendent of public instruction. The reproductions will be received in the near future, with distribution of school supplies by the state school head. Distribution to the approximately 500 parochial schools in Michigan, will be handled by John J. O'Hara, auditor general.

The drawing of the seal from which the official reproduction was made, was prepared this summer under the direction of Dr. Louis Webber, deputy secretary of state. The move was decided upon by Atwood because of wide-spread laxity through many years, in the printing of reproductions of the seal for various official uses throughout the capitol, on stationery and forms of various kinds. For ordinary use, reproductions of the state seal are not sufficiently large to permit inclusion of many details provided by law.

Northville News

Leases on farm lands north of the village are being obtained by the McKinley Oil company of Detroit, in the hope that oil may be found there. It is said the company wants to lease about 18,000 acres from farmers in the vicinity.

The company has made a study of the district for more than three years, according to reports, and plans to lease the land for about 25 cents per acre for five years, with rental privileges at the end of that time. If oil or gas is discovered, the owner of the land will receive one-eighth of the profit and enough of the product for his own consumption.

Operations will not be started until all leases have been obtained, it is said. So far it has been reported that leases have been taken on the Simmons fruit farm, and part of the Fuerst, John and Alex Christensen farms, and that the company is trying to lease the Henry Hills land also.

Beginning last Friday morning, traffic regulations were changed to prohibit all angle parking in the future. All cars must be parked parallel to the curbs, and no double parking will be permitted. Chief of Police William Safford has announced.

This change follows the opening of the newly paved Main street, with two seven-foot parking lanes and four nine-foot lanes for traffic. All motorists are being asked to co-operate with the village in observing the new rule, which was made for greater convenience and safety.

More than 250 men returned to work Monday at the Northville Ford plant, following a lay-off of one week. The lay-off came at the annual August shut-down, although this year employees were not certain whether it would come now or at the time of moving into the new plant.

Mrs. Charles F. Murphy, second vice-president of the state department of the American Legion auxiliary, was elected to the office of the first vice-president at the annual convention held in Lansing for two years previous to holding the office of second vice-president. Mrs. Murphy was committeewoman from the seventeenth district.

Others from Northville at the convention were Mrs. Wilbur H. Johnston and Mrs. George Alexander, local delegates, with Mrs. Chub Smith and Mrs. P. W. Partidge, alternates.

Approximately 40 per cent of the village taxes have been paid, according to Harold Bloom, treasurer, the amount being about $22,000. The taxes were due July 31, but the village council moved the deadline to August 30, and it is thought that, as in previous years, the limit will finally be extended to September 30. The amount paid so far this year is slightly ahead of 1935. Mr. Bloom reported.

The wedding of Miss Ruth Gotro, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Gotro, and Kenneth Cook, son of Mrs. Anna Cook of New Hudson, was solemnized August 8 at Our Lady of Victory Church, by Father Joseph G. Schuler. The attendants were Miss Dorothy Vroman and Clarence Renn. A wedding breakfast was held at the home of the bride's parents following the ceremony, after which there was a reception for 150 friends and relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Cook left for a trip through the east.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Keeney have announced the engagement of their daughter, Martha Isadora, to Ernest A. Haskin, son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Haskin of Lansing, Michigan. The wedding will be an event of August 30.

Some complaints have been received about stray dogs in the city, without licenses, which have been bothering children and tearing up flower beds. According to a village ordinance, dogs without licenses are liable to be impounded.

Dr. H. I. Sparling and Charles A. Dolph have been elected Northville delegates to the national convention of Exchange clubs to be held August 30 in Detroit. Carl Ely is the alternate, and Roy Crowe, Maurice Lapham, Harold Bloom and Mr. Ely will represent Northville on the reception committee.

Alex M. Rennie was the Rotary speaker last week, telling of a camping trip in the Canadian wilds. Mr. Rennie and his family camped at a lumber camp in Ontario which had been deserted in 1930. Members of the Wayne County Road commission and the Exchange club were guests at the meeting this week.

Plan Examination For Appointments

Young men of Plymouth who are interested in appointments to either the United States Military academy at West Point or the Naval academy at Annapolis will have an opportunity to try for them through competitive civil service examinations to fill the vacancies of the seventeenth congressional district. These examinations will be held Saturday, October 17, in Detroit and other designated places. Congressman George A. Dondero has announced.

Congressman Dondero has a vacancy in each of the service schools and as usual will make his nominations on the basis of competitive examination, the young men attaining the highest ratings receiving the principal appointments.

Young men within the age limits prescribed for these academies may receive authorization to take these examinations by addressing a request to Congressman George A. Dondero, 527 Washington Square Bldg., Royal Oak, Michigan. The letter of application should give the following information: (1) Full name; (2) place of legal residence; (3) month, day and year of birth; (4) height; (5) high school attended and year of graduation; and (6) preference as to service school, Annapolis or West Point.

Melon and Tomato Day, August 22nd

Commercial growers of cantaloupe and tomatoes are invited to the first "Melon and Tomato Day" to be held at Michigan State college Saturday, August 22. C. H. Mahoney, extension specialist in horticulture, is planning the program.

Nearly three acres of melons are on test, including varieties obtained from Egypt and China. There are 196 strains from all of the standard varieties grown in Michigan. Although 35 percent of the melons in the state are produced in Berrien county, growers also are expected from Ingham, Monroe, Wayne, Jackson, Van Buren, Saginaw, Bay and Livingston counties.

In the tomato work, three projects will be explained to commercial growers. Early variety trials include testing of 86 variety strains for field production. Another portion of the tests compares southern grown plants from Georgia, Kentucky, Tennessee and Illinois with Michigan grown plants. Canning trials for yields

Old Timers Will Play Ball Sunday

Sunday afternoon over at Carleton, Harry German veteran of all veteran baseball twirlers, will probably pitch to the only man in the world who will receive the fast ones while sitting in a chair back of the batters. Many from Northville and Plymouth expect to go over Sunday to see this game of the Old Timers against the Carleton team.

The Carleton Messenger has the following to say about the game that will be played Sunday, August 23:

Edward Standish, an old time pitcher and recent years a fielder with a big stick at bat, writes the manager of the Oldtimers as follows:—Friend Harry, Expect to be with you the 23rd of this month, but I have not played much ball as usual. As ever, Ed Standish, Stockbridge, Mich.

Also Jim Callahan of Jackson who is a fifty year old Michigan leaguer and is able to step behind the batter to catch most anytime, says that he will, if possible, be at Carleton, Sunday, August 23rd and play in the Oldtimers-Carleton game.

Harry German personally saw Bobby Veach and Bob Fathergill who were former Detroit Tigers. Each stated that they would be at Carleton for the big game for all they now know. Veach was seen at his coal yard on Greenfield Road and Fathergill was approached at his office at the Ford plant at Highland Park. Those that were at the game last year will recall that Bob Fathergill is the bouncing fielder who punches the ball terrifically. Also he fell on his "tummy" last season here and bounced nearly out of the playing field. He says for all that he will run any man a hundred yards that weighs over 300 pounds. Bob appears about that weight himself but he still is a ball player.

Zimmerman, the left hander who will pitch for the Carleton boys, realizes that he will be up against a set of good hitters in the coming game but expects an offset in the Oldtimers' fielding. The Oldtimers, nevertheless, have been notified of this particular game some two months ago and have had time to condition themselves for his occasion.

The veteran players whose ages will run from 40 to 62 years are the choice of players who have been in and out of baseball during their entire lives.

"Dud" McLaughlin of Wyandotte who once was a good catcher for the Carleton team has offered his services for a few innings in right field and he has always shown help for the Oldtimers at bat.

Be as it may, this is the annual affair for the State Oldtimers against some town team and, although Carleton will have the date this year, in the following years it may be awarded to some other village, as many places have spoken for a play in their town.

ST. PETER'S EV. LUTHERAN CHURCH
 Edgar Hoenecke, pastor
 The services at our church began at 10:30 every Sunday morning, summer and winter. You are always given a most cordial and considerate welcome. We endeavor to follow the words of our Master: "If ye continue in my Word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the Truth, and the Truth shall make you free." We preach that Truth at all cost and reckless of any and all consequences. Though this Truth might seem to hurt you temporarily, be assured that thus alone, by wrecking the former, evil structure of man's own folly, can the Temple of God be erected in the heart of man. Above all else, our earnest intention is, with God, to "seek and to save that which was lost."
 Harvest Home Festival will be observed on the first Sunday in September, at 10:30. We invite the farmers and gardeners of our congregation to set aside the finest products of the year's growth for the display in the church. This celebration is in keeping with that of Deuteronomy 26: "Thou shalt take of the first of all the fruit of the earth, which thou shalt bring of the land that the Lord thy God giveth thee, and shalt put it in a basket, and shalt go unto the place which the Lord thy God shall choose to place His name there. . . . And the priest shall take the basket out of thine hand, and set it down before the altar of the Lord thy God." Bring your fruit, vegetables, produce of any kind, or grain to the church on Saturday, September 5th, so that it can be included in the display.

"Mind" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, August 23. Among the Bible citations is the following (Heb. 4: 12): "For the word of God is quick, and powerful, and sharper than any two edge-sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of joints and marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 179) "Immortal Mind heals what eye hath not seen; but the spiritual capacity to apprehend thought and to heal by the Truth-power, is won only as man is found, not in self-righteousness, but reflecting the divine nature."

As Christ went about "He had compassion on the multitudes because they were distressed and scattered abroad as sheep having no Shepherd." This is a picture of the multitudes today who are bewildered and fainting on every side. The needs of the multitude are the same in every age. But Jesus Christ can meet the need in every life. His grace is sufficient. Friend do you have a need in your life? Jesus has compassion on you and wants to supply that need. Won't you give Him a chance?

A hearty welcome awaits you at the "Church with the Full Gospel Message" (Elizabeth and Ann Arbor Trail).

Chinese Student Speaker Tuesday At Kiwanis Club

Eugene Lee Tells About Progress Made In China

In a talk designed to further international goodwill and understanding, Eugene Lee of Ann Arbor, a Chinese student at the University of Michigan, addressed the Kiwanis club at its meeting Tuesday evening. He spoke chiefly of the progress being made in transportation and education in his own country.

He explained that in 1931 a National Economic Council was established, with bureaus set up under it for the improvement of the national welfare. The bureau of roads, he said, has constructed more than 30,000 kilometers of trunk line highway in less than five years, making the total highway mileage in China 100,000 kilometers, and has operated bus lines at the rate of a cent and a half a mile. The bureau of water works has constructed dams and river improvements for irrigation purposes and flood control, while the bureau of agriculture has started to improve silk and tea production and has fostered animal husbandry, he explained.

As for railroads, Mr. Lee stated that the ministry of railways has issued $120,000,000 in bonds for the construction of 1,500 miles of new trunk line connecting the southwest with the central part of China, to be completed in three years. The national program, he says, calls for 100,000 miles eventually. Airways are operated by the China National Aviation corporation, of which 45 per cent is American-owned and the remainder owned by the Chinese government, he explained. Airlines connect all the big cities of the coast and have gone far into the interior.

China is favored by nature for water communication. Mr. Lee asserted, because on the Yangtze river, the second largest in the world, steamers can go inland 2,000 miles from the sea. However, the speaker asserted he did not believe in the improvement of waterways for navigation when such improvement would mean heavy costs and interest charges. Rather he advocated water improvements in China for flood control and water power purposes.

Speaking of educational advancement in China, Mr. Lee said: "For some 70 years China has sent students to America for advanced studies. We are heavily indebted to you in almost every respect. We appreciate your democratic idea, spirit of work and attitude toward life. The advanced studies thus far have benefited those who have taken them, as well as the nation in general. Now we have started a new program of education for the masses. In June of this year the ministry of education definitely decided to get rid of the 200,000,000 illiterates in six years. It is a question whether the work can be completed in six years, but things do develop very fast sometimes, like a revolution.

"Formerly we sent graduates of high schools to this country for college education, but now we send college graduates for graduate study. This means we have learned much from you in the field of college education. To our American friends of sympathy to China I want to comfort you with the news that we have improved and are improving faster and faster."

Chicago now is listed among cities which require compulsory and periodic inspection of automobiles. Owners of cars found to be defective are given 10 days to correct defects.

It is estimated that there is enough coal in the United States to last 2,000 years, and enough oil to last a century. There is probably enough motor fuel to supply all needs for at least 2,900 years.

By crossing European and Asiatic roses with the native prairie rose of northern Canada, Frank Skinner, farmer of Dropmore, Manitoba, produces flowers which withstand severe winters.

Railroads of the United States are operating over more than 260,000 miles of rails.

IN THE KITCHEN

Summer not only means vacations, it means busy days in the kitchen as well, for the canning and preserving season is upon us. Fortunately modern methods and equipment have taken most of the drudgery out of this task, so that the work is pleasant and the housewife knows she will be more than repaid by the shelves of jars and glasses which will mean more varied meals, as well as economy, during the coming winter.

No method is absolutely "fool-proof", but there are two which home economics specialists and housewives have found to be the most satisfactory—"open kettle" and "cold pack". In the first, food is cooked directly in an open vessel and then packed at once in sterilized jars and sealed immediately. All jars must be in perfect condition, and boiled for at least 15 minutes. Food is packed into jars within half an inch of the top while boiling hot. After the jars are sealed, they are turned upside down while cooling; when they are cold the bands are screwed down tight.

For the cold pack method, jars must be sterilized for 15 minutes. Food is prepared according to recipe, placed in the jars and liquid added to within half an inch of the top, or, when using syrup, to an inch and a half of the top. The rims of the jars are then wiped and sterilized lids screwed on firmly. Process for the length of time indicated in the receipt, whether pressure cooker, steam cooker or wash boiler. Remove jars and set aside to cool. Do not turn jars upside down and do not screw tops down after jars are cold.

Mustard Pickles
1 qt. green cucumbers, cut small
1 qt. tiny cucumbers
1 qt. sliced or very small onions
1 large cauliflower cut in pieces
4 green peppers, sliced

Soak all ingredients for 24 hours in salt water, using 1 cup of salt for 1 gallon of water. Then scald in the same brine and drain. Make a paste of 8 scant tablespoons of ground mustard, 1 tablespoon of tumeric, a scant half cup of flour, 1 cup of sugar and 2 quarts of vinegar. Mix dry ingredients with a little vinegar, then add remainder of the vinegar. Scald, stirring until well mixed and smooth. Pour over the vegetables while hot and seal in jars.

Corn Relish
Grind 1 large head of cabbage, 4 onions, 4 green peppers and 6 red peppers. Add scraped kernels of 20 ears of young corn. Bring to a boil with 1 1/2 cups of sugar, 1/2 cup salt, and 4 cups cider vinegar. Add 3 more cups of vinegar and a mixture of 3 tablespoons dry mustard, 1 teaspoon tumeric, 1/2 cup flour and 1 tablespoon celery seed. Cook 30 minutes. Pour in jars and seal while very hot.

Currant Catsup
Pick over, wash and stem 10 pounds of currants. Mix currants, 3 pounds sugar and 4 cups cider vinegar. Add a small muslin bag containing 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon black pepper, 1/2 teaspoon allspice and 1 teaspoon cinnamon. Bring to a boil, then reduce to just below the boiling point and cook until thick or about 2 hours.

IMAGINARY INTERVIEWS

Ann Harding: "You may say I went to England to get away from it all."

Register Now!

Because of the intense interest being shown in politics this year, a large vote is expected in the primaries on September 15. Those residents of Plymouth who are eligible to vote, but who are not registered here are urged to register by September 5, the deadline.

Eligible voters are those persons over 21 years of age who are United States citizens and have resided in the state for six months, and in the city for 20 days previous to the day of election. Those people who already are properly registered will not be required to register again as no complete re-registration of voters is being held this year.

New registrations may be made any day at the office of the city clerk in the city hall.

Argument Over The Biggest Goggle Eye Breaks Out Again

(By The Fish Editor)
I've read in The Mail several times about Jack Taylor being the champion goggle eye fisherman of Plymouth. In fact, I think the paper one time said he was the champ of all Michigan because he caught a goggle eye he said was bigger than any other goggle eye anyone else ever caught," said Russell Powell the other day just after he had returned from up at Sage lake.

Russell took Walter Anderson along with him to look after the small ones that might happen to take hold of their hooks, a friend of Russell's told the fish editor, on their last fishing trip up north. Continuing his fish story, Mr. Powell said among other things: "Of course you know there has always been some question about the size of that goggle eye. Now I caught one that was just as wide as it was long. It was not less than eleven inches long and it measured from top to bottom and bottom to top about 22 and a half inches. If any one ever caught a goggle eye bigger than that one, I would like to hear the story."

"I was telling a friend of mine about it the other day and he didn't even know what a goggle eye was. That just shows how dumb some folks are who do not fish. Some folks still call goggle eyes a rock bass. But that's out. It's old fashioned to call a goggle eye a rock bass. It's a goggle eye. That's what Jack Taylor said he caught up at Loon lake. Why, the smallest goggle eyes in Sage lake are bigger than the biggest one in Loon lake," said Mr. Powell. Well, gentle reader, it looks as

Edison Company Cuts City Rates

City officials were advised Monday evening by officials of the Detroit Edison company of a voluntary reduction in rates for street lighting in this city, a reduction that amounts to practically 12 per cent. This means a saving to the city of some $67 per month.

While it has not been stated it is understood that the reduction will permit the restoration of practically all of the lights that have been turned out and will give Plymouth these additional lights at no greater sum than is being paid at the present time.

The action of the Edison company will be pleasing news to Plymouth residents in sections where lights have not been burning for sometime, as it is understood the city proposes to restore the old lights in view of the reduced rate that the company has offered.

Mrs. Roy Jewell entered the hospital for x-rays of a fractured arm.

It is said that cod liver oil is good for puppies and old dogs.

The first wheat to be harvested by the Pilgrims for a Thanksgiving feast was grown in a cemetery.

though the argument over that goggle eye that Mr. Taylor caught will never end. It has continued now for over two years and here comes Russell Powell fresh from a moonlight fishing trip to Sage lake with another chapter about that Taylor goggle eye.

The Book Shelf

A Column for Lovers of Good Reading
By DORIS FLINT

"THE HOME PLACE"

DOROTHY THOMAS
"The Home Place" a purely mid-western story of rural life which appeared in Harper's magazine has recently been published in book form by Knopf. It is the type story which will appeal to any one living in or interested in a rural community.

The Young family had always been fairly prosperous farmers; had raised and educated three good sons and all were living well when the depression came. Tom, the oldest had been disappointed in love and had later married Edna, a hard working, heavy shouldered neighbor girl who had already borne him two sons.

When the story opens he with his wife and two sons are living with Father and Mother Young since he had lost his farm which he had owned down the road. Ralph, the next son had graduated from an agricultural school, married a school teacher and was doing well on a large farm in the West when the depression came. He, like Tom, lost his farm and found it necessary to return with his wife and little daughter to the old home. Phyllis, the wife was of a sensitive nature and found it difficult to understand Edna who was always rather gruff and almost disgustingly practical to the school teacher. Edna's boys took delight in teasing Phyllis' little girl.

Harvey, the youngest son had a good job in an office of a prosperous business in a nearby city. Just as matters were at their worst at the farm, he appeared, out of work and with a wife who had absolutely no patience with anything connected with the farm. She sat about all day in her pajamas smoking cigarettes and fussing with her nails much to the disgust of Edna and everyone else except Tom who saw in her a resemblance to his first sweetheart. Edna recognizes the reason for Tom's change in manner but apparently nothing comes of it except the tension of the household is somewhat relieved because of his increased amiability. The story seems to be a little weak in this spot.

The story covers a difficult year in the lives of the Youngs and their womenfolk including Great Grandmother Young who is a bit daff with spells. Author Thomas writes intelligently of the homely tasks of the farm and the reader cannot help but feel that she shows a great deal about human nature and Nebraska farm life.

Toward the end Edna fractures her back and Phyllis and Ralph with their daughter and new baby move to a house of their own and the story comes to a classic Cinderella conclusion and all live happily ever after.

Suggest Changes In Street Names

Several changes in the names of streets have been submitted to the city commission by property owners, and commission members are seeking public opinion on the proposed alterations before taking action.

The changes advocated are: Elm, Wing and Joy streets to Elm; Linden and Brush streets to Linden; Garfield and Evergreen streets to Garfield; Burroughs and Sutherland avenues to Burroughs; Deer and Dewey streets to Dewey; and Harding and Pine streets to Harding. Some people have suggested also that Main street be changed to Plymouth avenue, and that Mill street be given some other name.

Plymouth's gala day yesterday, as promoted by the Plymouth Fire Department was certainly an unqualified success, both in point of crowds present and variety of entertainment afforded. The program as outlined for the day, was carried out in full and more, in fact, the boys seemed to think they couldn't do enough. The weather was fine and the entertainment a big success and the people were well satisfied. Hurrah for Plymouth and the Plymouth Fire Department!

Fred Drews and Lydia Kehr! were married at Perrinsville last Wednesday afternoon. Miss Martha and Norman Drews, James Horan and Miss Nellie Sherman were present at the wedding and afterwards the whole party went to Detroit. They have the best wishes of their many friends.

A goodly number attended the W. C. T. U. last week held at Mrs. Patterson's notwithstanding the excessive heat. The leader set us all to thinking more about hygiene, pure food and household economies, which was the program for the meeting. Plans were discussed for the future which if carried out will be a social and financial success.

Secretary M. F. Gray of the Lansing Business Men's Association has completed negotiations with Phillip T. Colgrove of East State, president of the Michigan State Good Roads Association, and has received the assurance that the annual meeting of the organization will be held in Lansing August 31 and September 1.

There was a large attendance at the Gleaner social held on Mr. Carson's lawn last Thursday evening. Ten gallons of ice cream were disposed of.

dance orchestra will interest many of the guests. Games, races and a tug 'o' war will be run off. Dinner in the usual liberal country style will be served from 1 to 6 p. m. and prominent figures from state, city and county government are planning to attend. These contacts made at the picnic have in the past proved of value and service to many people, according to Father John E. Contway, pastor of the church. A Bavarian garden will be one of the features of the occasion.

The long list of prizes to be given away includes an automobile, electric washer, radio, $25 in auto accessories, five tons of coal, $10 in cash, a pair of woolen blankets, a toastmaster, a mixer, a large rug and many other articles. The car is on display at the church.

Father Contway has expressed the hope that he will be able to greet all his friends at the church sometime during the day. He reports that every possible preparation in kitchen, grounds and booths is being made to assure visitors of an enjoyable day.

The Rosedale Gardens Civic association held its last regular meeting July 14, at which time preliminary plans were made for a flower and vegetable show to be held September 10, with Mrs. Stanley James as president. The new club house will be formally opened with a dance on September 19 and after that time the men of the community will hold open house every Monday evening, and the women every Thursday evening. A drive for dues has been started, and the association also is working on new traffic regulations to cut down speeding in the subdivision.

With elaborate ceremony and beautiful flower decorations, the Forty Hour devotions were observed Saturday, Sunday and Monday at St. Michael's church. Crowds thronged the church for the occasion, spending an hour in adoration and silent prayer before the Host. Father John E. Contway opened the series of services, speaking on the text "He loves His own." Father Marion of the Congregation of the Passion, made two forceful addresses in direct, simple style, with applications to the needs of daily life. The closing of the services was marked by special music for the procession of 80 children before the Sacrament, the celebrant being Father Keating of the Shrine of the Little Flower in Royal Oak.

Mr. and Mrs. William Scantlin, of Chicago, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Shierk.

Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Cunliffe, of New Jersey, former residents of Rosedale Gardens, are visiting friends in the subdivision.

Mrs. Paul Harsha and two sons, of Arden avenue, are in Charlevoix for the remainder of the month.

Long Puff Sleeves

THROUGH A Woman's Eyes

By JEAN NEWTON

"IF I ONLY HAD THAT"

"WHY do single women believe that if they were married, life would be one sweet song? No matter what troubles they experience they attribute them to being unmarried. They seem to think that all a married woman has to do is take life easy while her husband slaves for her all day, utilizing his spare time to relieve her of any little responsibilities and chase care from her brow. With the strength of male shoulders to lean upon, a woman can have no troubles—and perish the thought of the male himself constituting a problem.

"A girl I have in mind, who, complaining of the 'breaks' she had not got, countered every argument of her married friend with 'but you have a husband to take care of you' is the case in point which has brought me to you about this. The girl is otherwise intelligent. That's the surprising part of it."

Perhaps our reader is exaggerating in attributing the viewpoint of this girl to "single women." As far as I have been able to observe it is by no means the viewpoint of all single women that having a husband is synonymous with being free of all care. How could this be so, when most of them have married friends.

However, it is not surprising that a single girl or unmarried woman who is discontented, who is not satisfied with her lot should imagine that if she were married she would be happy. In the battle with life, whenever we feel the burden of our particular assignment of difficulties, it is natural for all of us to focus our consciousness of failure or frustration on one thing that we want and have not got. "If only I had that" or "if only this would happen, everything would be all right!" There is no greater or more general delusion than the panacea.

Marriage with the right man, a home and children are something that every woman naturally wants to start with. If the "every" is inaccurate, let us say "has at some time wanted or taken for granted." What more natural than on those days when things go wrong, or at those periodic stock-lakings when we are all inclined more to add up our losses than to count our blessings—than that the usual delusion, "If I only had this—if only that would happen" should in the case of the single woman focus on having a husband.

It takes only some observation and experience to convince us that no one boon or the lack of it can make anyone's life happy or unhappy. The point seems to be, "The fault, Dear Brutus, is not in our stars, but in ourselves, that we are underlings."

Louis Tiffany, the artist, was born in New York City in 1846. He studied under George Inness and Samuel Coleman, New York, and under Leon Bailly, Paris, devoting himself to decorative art, particularly mosaics, stained glass and enamels. He invented Tiffany favrite glass, which possesses refractive powers capable of iridescent effects. Among his oil paintings are "Algerian Shops" and "The Pool." In 1918 he established at Oyster Bay, N. Y., the Louis Comfort Tiffany Foundation for art students. He died in 1933.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

by Thornton W. Burgess

JERRY'S FEARS ARE ENDED

FOR a week Jerry Muskrat continued to find good things to eat at several of his favorite eating places, things of which he was very fond, and which had been put there by the stranger, who visited the Laughing Brook and the Smiling Pool every day. At first, as you know, Jerry had been very suspicious. He had feared a trap at each of those places where the good things were. But he had was he troubled by any uncomfortable suspicions.

"I don't believe that this is the trapper of whom Billy Mink and Bobby Coon warned me," thought Jerry. "It must have been some one else who set those traps for Billy Mink. This is a friend. I don't know why he takes so much interest in me and brings me all these good things, and I don't care. I hope he'll keep right on bringing me apples, carrots, and such things. They certainly do taste good to me. Yes, siree, they certainly do taste good to me."

Sometimes the stranger came early in the morning and sometimes he came late in the afternoon. Always he left something for Jerry and Jerry was very grateful. Those feasts saved him a lot of time and trouble hunting for food. This gave him more time to work on his house and make it ready for winter. Jerry had a feeling that the winter was to be a hard one, and he intended to be fully prepared for it. So he worked hard making the roof and walls of his house thicker than usual and making his tunnels in the banks of the Smiling Pool so that no matter how hard the winter might be, he would be quite comfortable.

Jerry so lost all fear of that stranger that sometimes he would work when he knew that the stranger was watching him. However, he always took care to see that the stranger had no gun with him. Had the stranger had a gun Jerry would at once have been suspicious and would have kept out of sight. As it was, he would keep right on working until the stranger left, and then hurry over to see what he had left for him. Jerry was very happy and quite without fear.

Jewells Start Homeward Trip

From out the far west comes the first word from Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Jewell, who have been touring the northwest states and Pacific coast for the past few weeks, a card having been received by The Plymouth Mail from the travelers that was mailed in San Francisco.

"We have had a great trip. Starting back east today and will be home very soon. We like San Francisco. In fact, we think it is the best city we have visited on our trip. It has been wonderfully interesting so far, but you can tell our friends that we will be exceedingly glad when we get home," wrote these popular Plymouth tourists.

When Mr. and Mrs. Jewell left for their trip, they had their car equipped so that the front seat could be tipped back and made into a sort of Pullman berth for sleeping at nights. Mr. Jewell also took all of his fishing tackle and some of the Isaac Walton followers around Plymouth are waiting to hear the fish stories that are bound to find circulation upon the return of the western visitors.

Consumers Old Orchard Tourist Camp

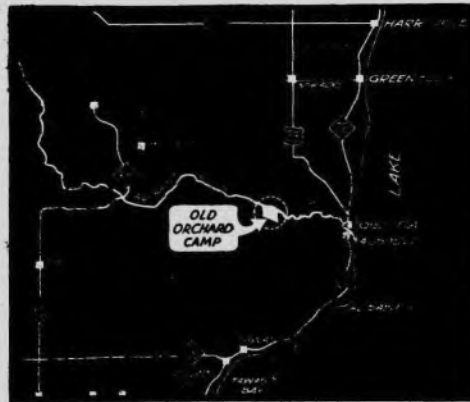

Map of immediate vicinity of Consumers Power Company's Old Orchard tourist camp on the AuSable river showing main highways and leading cities.

JACKSON, MICH., Aug. 14.—Anxious to provide ample camping facilities for Michigan's vacationists as well as for the millions of out-of-state tourists who choose the Wolverine playground for their recreation, Consumers Power Company today announced the broadening of its Golden Anniversary celebration to include the opening of one of the largest completely equipped tourist parks in the state on its property in northern Michigan.

Located on the scenic AuSable river and having an area of more than two million square feet, the travelers' haven of picturesque native beauty will be known as the Old Orchard tourist camp. "The opening of Old Orchard park is in line with Consumers' policy of providing accommodations for tourists," said F. G. Boyce, manager of the utility's production and transmission department, in commenting on the subject. "In 1933, we opened the 27-acre Oxbow park, just above Hardy dam on the Muskegon river. With its latch-key always out, thousands of tourists have visited Oxbow and found it a perfect camping site and a spot of genuine beauty.

"Michigan—the state which we have served for fifty years—is the summer and winter playground of visitors from all parts of the country," continued Mr. Boyce. "Nature's scenic and recreational gifts to Michigan are unsurpassed and our miles of excellent highways that reach into favored spots carry millions of travelers—all of whom are contributors to the state's second largest industry, the half-billion tourist business. This year, as well as in years to come, the spendings of vacationists will greatly enhance the value and earnings of our communities and their people, and we should encourage our 'home-folk' to appreciate and evaluate this business and make our visitors 'feel at home.' It is with this thought in mind that Consumers Power Company, with its manifold resources and creed of Serving Michigan, opens this splendid tourist camp for the people of Michigan and her visitors."

Deriving its name from a quaint apple orchard—surely an oddity in the land of the pines—Old Orchard is located on the county highway running between Hale and Oscoda, about one mile west of Consumers' Foote hydraulic generating plant on the AuSable river. It extends along the highway approximately 7,200 feet, the east portion of which averages about 20 ft. in width, extending to the beach of Foote pond. The west half averages some 400 ft. in width and also runs from the highway to the river edge.

Entrance to the park which is but a few miles from the famous Lumberman's Monument, is through a picturesque rustic gate. A few yards from the open gate is the caretaker's lodge where ordinary supplies can be purchased, such as baked goods, and staple articles, gasoline and oils. Many large tables, stoves, deep wells and piles of dry fire wood are important supplementary features of the park. From the picnic grounds the camp continues several hundred feet by way of a wooded trail along the shore to a sandy point of land accessible for water sports. Nearby is a dock complete with boats for use of fishermen. Throughout Old Orchard are toilet facilities.

Consumers Power Company rules and regulations for users of Consumers Power Company's Old Orchard tourist camp are as follows:

1. All those intending to use this park for camping purposes shall first register at the Caretaker's lodge and be assigned a camping lot by the caretaker.

2. The camper shall use only the lot assigned to him and shall not change his camp to another lot without the consent of the caretaker.

3. The camper shall keep the lot allotted to his use in a clean and neat condition at all times; shall use receptacles to be furnished for all garbage and refuse; shall cut no trees, brush, boughs, etc. or build fires except in the camp stoves furnished.

4. No loud noises or boisterous and improper conduct will be tolerated.

5. Before leaving, the camper shall see that the lot which has been occupied by him is left clean and free of all refuse and debris and in as good a condition as when entered and shall notify the caretaker immediately before leaving in order that an inspection may be made of the lot that has been occupied and a record made of his departure.

6. The undersigned receives no compensation for the facilities furnished in this private park. On that account occupants accept the use of these premises in the condition in which they are maintained, and with the distinct understanding that the undersigned is released from all liability for loss, damage or injury sustained by any person or persons while upon or about these premises.

Former Resident Comes From California To Visit Friends

Mrs. O. M. Southworth Writes Of Trip In Diary

Friends of Mrs. O. M. Southworth of Venice, California, who was formerly Mrs. E. L. Riggs, a prominent Plymouth resident, are hearing many interesting tales of her recent trip from her California home to Michigan, via the Panama Canal to Baltimore, Philadelphia and then west.

While Mr. Southworth visits in Benton Harbor, his old home, Mrs. Southworth is the guest of Mrs. R. O. Mimmack and other friends in Plymouth. The Southworths left Venice on June 20 and have traveled 6,000 miles, coming from Los Angeles harbor by way of Panama, across the Caribbean sea, stopping at several islands of the West Indies group and landing at Baltimore.

They visited in Philadelphia and Sidney, Ohio, before coming to Michigan, and will return to California by way of Boulder Dam. Mrs. Southworth is keeping an interesting diary of the most interesting experiences of her trip, excerpts from which are reprinted here:

"June 20, 1936
We left home at 11 a. m. and drove to Wilmington, California, where we boarded a large freighter bound for New York through the Panama Canal. The boat is 425 feet long, 54 feet wide and has a displacement of 12,200 tons. We have stateroom No. 5. * * * Our first meal was lunch and upon going to the dining room we found three tables. We were assigned to our places and everything was good, or in other words they had a good cook. There is one table for the officers and two for the passengers. There is a crew of 37 men, all white, which makes about 50 people on board. * * * At night after dinner is over the tables are cleared and any wishing to do so may play cards. Went to bed at 9 as we were tired.

"June 21
Left Los Angeles harbor at five in the morning. The sea is smooth and the ship very steady. Had breakfast at 7:30. They tell us we shall be about 12 days getting to the Panama Canal. * * * This boat has a deck load of over three million feet of lumber. The company owns 2,000 tons of sugar, land, saw mills, lumber and the boats which transport goods to different ports in the east—Norfolk, Baltimore, New York and Boston. Today we listened to Major Bowes' program at 4 p. m. Weather just fine and slept with

"June 22
"Fine weather all day. Quite a bit of excitement this afternoon as one of the deck hands fell into the hold of the boat and broke one of his arms. As there is no doctor on board, the wireless operator signalled to a boat which happened to be coming and was headed for San Pedro. He told them what had happened, and asked if they would take him on board. After our boat had changed her course, understood that they would not take him. Then afterwards they said they would, so they put the man in a small boat with three sailors to row it, lowered it into the water and it was not long until they reached the other boat and had the man on board headed for San Pedro. They will arrive in about three days. It would have been 11 days before he could have had a doctor if he had stayed on this boat until we reached the Panama Canal, which is our first stop."

The diary goes on to tell of the days at sea before reaching the canal. On one day they sighted the San Bernardino Islands, the first land they saw after leaving Los Angeles harbor. On the beach

"We were all afternoon going through the locks and canal. Travelers as a rule are prepared for what they are to see of its great locks, of its ingenious methods of lifting ships, of its course through artificial lakes, above the level of the oceans, 45 miles long, but one thing that comes as a surprise is the beauty and magic charm of its natural setting. The deep vivid verdure of islands and hillsides, the colors of flowers amidst the green along the shores, the waving foliage of shoredside banana plantations, each with its palm thatched house, the purple slopes of the mountains in the Continental Divide that seem to recede as the ship advances, the red-roofed military stations, the model, spotless towns in the Canal Zone, all these are things that one can know and feel only by actual passage through the Canal."

On July 4 the passengers were given an extra special dinner, the menu for which included "pearl onions, olives, shrimp cocktail, celery, turkey giblet soup, baked Virginia ham with raisin sauce, stuffed young turkey and cranberry sauce, candied sweet potatoes, mashed potatoes, apple-celery salad, garden peas, mince pie, Roquefort cheese, fresh fruit, nuts, raisins, iced tea and coffee."

There were some rough days on the Caribbean. Mrs. Southworth's diary shows but after they passed San Salvador and went through the Windward passage, the water was calmer. All day, July 11, the ship passed up Chesapeake bay and the following day it docked at Baltimore, having completed 5,350 miles on the water.

The diary continues with an account of days spent in Philadelphia, with visits to Leary's Book Store, which was established in 1836 and now houses 20 thousand square feet of books, Benjamin Franklin's grave, and Washington's headquarters at Valley Forge. Mrs. Southworth states that the book will contain a full account of the remainder of her journey also.

Honsinger Says Forest Fires Bad

Ralph Honsinger, one of the young men who some patrons of Glen Smith's chairless lunch room on Main street, say makes better coffee than does Smitty, has just returned from a vacation trip to the Upper Peninsula.

He declares that the forest fires are just as bad as reported. In fact, one day he traveled at four different times through smoke clouds that were almost as thick as heavy fogs.

In connection with Mr. Honsinger's statement about the forest fires he saw in the northlands, comes a bit of interesting information from the state conservation department at Lansing in which it says that fire prevention authorities in northern Michigan where large acreages have been under a smoke-haze for weeks, are beginning to fix a very critical eye on the probable causes of forest fires—among them the woman with the cigaret.

A number of conservation officers and fire wardens have expressed the belief that the woman smoker is becoming a serious fire hazard, that she is more careless and reckless in disposing of burning tobacco and lighted matches than the men.

"The hazard conditions we have to face and the number of fires we have had to combat in the upper peninsula this summer have been among the worst in years," commented L. N. Jones, regional supervisor of the department of conservation. "The excessive heat, the low humidities and the exceedingly dry condition of the country have set the stage for major catastrophes in our forest lands. We believe that the careless smokers with burning tobacco and lighted matches have been contributing to our fire suppression difficulties and that the woman smoker unquestionably has played a part."

Despite all the efforts of conservation authorities in fire prevention and suppression work, the number of fires occurring in northern Michigan is believed to have influenced the tourist trade and possibly has resulted in some diminution of revenue in certain parts of the upper peninsula.

"We have had reports of some tourists leaving the northern part of Michigan through fear of forest fire, a fear that would have been dispelled by a fair understanding of the situation," Jones said. "Actually there is no danger to tourists or campers as a result of forest fires. Whenever a possibility appears that camps, resorts or other buildings or improvements might be endangered by a fire or fires within the immediate neighborhood, we give first consideration to the protection of those camps and buildings."

"Prospective tourists need not hesitate about entering the upper peninsula because of reports of forest fires," Jones said. "No danger to the tourist or traveler exists in any of the fire-hazard areas."

"Whenever any road becomes blinded by smoke or a fire set, close as to endanger traffic, we take steps to close that section of road to public travel."

Cloverdale Adds New Drink to Products

The Cloverdale Dairy announces the addition of Mission Orange Drink to their line of well-known dairy products. Since taking on the distribution of Mission Orange for Plymouth, a very gratifying increase in business has been noted, according to Mr. Bakhaus. "Mission Orange Drink has met with exceptional popularity," stated Mr. Bakhaus in a recent interview. "It is made from the juice of California Valencia oranges, shipped direct to our dairy from California. We mix the fresh orange drink each morning in our sanitary plant, and bottle it under the most sanitary conditions. It is delivered under refrigeration to schools, restaurants, beverage stands, fountains, and other places where people go for refreshment. Mission Orange Drink is pure and healthful, and rapidly mounting sales indicate that this delicious fresh fruit drink is the most thirst satisfying of beverages."

"Two Beautiful Peninsulas"

(By Stellanova Osborn)

It is likely that the Upper Peninsula of Michigan was first discovered by white men in the tenth century. Norse sagas have been interpreted to claim this. Old copper workings and other evidence support the assumption. This region was visited soon after 1600 by the earliest of the French explorers,—intrepid adventurers who followed the great inland waterways and were not likely to be turned back short of the falls at the Sault, especially since at that point there was the largest permanent settlement of Indians in America. Without question it was the oral accounts of the region, carried back by these voyagers, that led to the visit of Etienne Brule, 1617-1618, at which time the northern peninsula was found, to a recorded certainty.

Marquette and the Jesuits came. Others followed. Saint Luson hoisted the fleur-de-lis of France at Sault Ste. Marie, for Louis XIV, May 5, 1671. After the French were driven from the country, England disputed possession of the Upper Peninsula with the United States. It was again at Sault Ste. Marie, in 1820, that Lewis Cass hauled down the Union Jack, in spite of menacing, hostile Indians, and raised the American flag. The last ground in the United States that flew the British colors was on Drummond island, near the Snows.

Physically the Upper Peninsula belonged to the section that is now Wisconsin. In 1837 it was washed on the Lower Peninsula by President Andrew Jackson in lieu of a strip in northern Indiana and Ohio, over which an actual war was engaged in. This was between Michigan and Ohio, the only war engaged in by any state in the Union against another. It was known as the "Toledo War."

Michigan Territory held a constitutional convention and declared itself a state, but refused to accept the boundaries delimited by the administration at Washington, even though this action prevented the acceptance of Michigan as a state in the Union for the time being. That is the reason there is debate as to the year Michigan became a state, and why Michigan is celebrating its centennial over a period of two years. There was a deadlock. Old Hickory ordered another convention in Michigan, which he controlled completely with the result that Michigan was at last admitted to the Union in 1837, with the addition of the Upper Peninsula that was unwanted as a baby on a doorstep. It is interesting to note that the seal of the State of Michigan, which was adopted prior to this convention, to this day takes no cognizance of the added territory. Its motto is: "If you seek A (one) beautiful peninsula, look about you." The Straits of Mackinac was a barrier between the two sections of the new state, and has continued to be ever since.

In the United States Field

Notes in connection with the survey of 1855, attention was called to valuable iron and copper deposits in the Lake Superior country. The opening of mines and the cutting of the great tracts of pine attracted railroads northward out of Wisconsin from Green Bay. For a time it seemed the Upper Peninsula could not look to its own state for help. During the early 1880's, when the mines were shut down and merchants needed credit urgently, Detroit banks refused to come to their assistance. It was the banks of Chicago and Milwaukee that saved them. For many years these business men remembered the coldness of Detroit with bitterness and felt friendly and partial toward Milwaukee and Chicago. This continued until Detroit made ample amends.

Settlers followed the railroad that ran north out of Wisconsin. They learned that this lumbering and mining region was not forbidding, even in the long winter, and made their homes here and grew to love it. Farming developed.

Then the summer vacationers discovered the northland. Its unbreathed air, its pure waters, its sparkling sunshine cooing evergreens to fragrance, and its beauty, became known as a source of rest for body and mind and an opportunity for delight and pleasure. Historic and literary traditions lived. Visitors began to come in ever increasing numbers up the west shore of Lake Michigan. They came even by way of the Lower Peninsula of Michigan, in spite of the inconvenient crossing at the Straits of Mackinac. It was not until the summer of 1923 that the State of Michigan provided ferry service there. Before that the crossing had to be made on a railroad car ferry.

It is not strange that for decades all who lived west of the center of the Upper Peninsula thought in terms of Chicago and Milwaukee and Minnesota and Wisconsin, rather than of Detroit and Grand Rapids and Lansing and Michigan. Nor is it surprising that more than once when regional frictions arose, there was irresponsible agitation to create a new state called Superior out of this isolated section of Michigan. In Lower Michigan the first resentment at being forced to accept the Upper Peninsula was forgotten and gradually the region was recognized as a welcome and valued section of the state. But the Straits of Mackinac have remained, a six-mile moat to separate them. Today is a bridge-building era, yet the only way for automobiles and railroad trains to get across these Straits is on slow-moving, clumsy ferries. When winter comes, for six months, an infrequent car ferry is the only way across.

It is an interesting fact that the United States government, which made a state of these two disconnected peninsulas in 1836-37, gives promise in 1936 of providing a means to physically unite them. There is in this an element of justice.

There was talk of bridging the Straits of Mackinac before the state summer ferries were provided. Five years after the inauguration of these ferries, the question of a bridge was revived. Governor Fred W. Green, who understood the situation at the Straits and had vision to see the possibilities of a united Michigan, requested a study of the feasibility of a bridge by the State Highway Department. The report returned to him was favorable. Governor Green was one of the earliest and remains one of the most earnest advocates of a bridge to join the two peninsulas.

The present movement for the construction of a bridge across the Straits began in 1933, when it was presented to Governor Comstock as a likely enterprise to be undertaken by the Federal Government under its huge Public Works Administration program. A preliminary application was filed with the P. W. A. in order to provide proper State control and authority for the proposed structure. The Legislature of Michigan in the Extra Session of 1934 created the Mackinac Straits Bridge Authority, with power to examine practical problems of engineering and to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge.

At the time the project was submitted to the Federal authorities, the State Engineer for the Emergency Public Works Administration was Dr. Mortimer Elwyn Cooley of the College of Engineering of the University of Michigan. As a practical engineer of national prominence and as a loyal and farseeing citizen of his state, he was earnestly in favor of a bridge to unite the two peninsulas. He spoke of it as the foremost project in the State of Michigan, and the only P. W. A. project of state-wide interest that was submitted to him. No undertaking could have a more enthusiastic proponent than he has been. But the state remained strangely indifferent to the idea. Nothing much was heard of it. What little discussion there was of it was chiefly in the Upper Peninsula and much of that was unfavorable. They said it was impossible from an engineering standpoint. State Engineer Cooley, in Detroit, chafed at his intimate friend, Chase S. Osborn. Something galvanic had to be done to awaken Michigan, he said, or its opportunity would be lost.

Mr. Osborn, a former Governor of Michigan and the only Governor ever chosen from the Upper Peninsula, had been a consistent advocate, over a long period, of some adequate vehicular crossing at the Straits. A tunnel or a bridge—whichever should be found better—was a necessity, and some time sooner or later would have to be built. When Dean Cooley presented the facts of the bridge project and the need for immediate action to arouse public sentiment, Governor Osborn took up the matter. He wrote to Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald, who at that time was opposed to the bridge, a letter giving twenty-three reasons why it should be built, and sent reprints of the letter to newspapers. The matter was taken up at once in news and editorial columns throughout the state. What had been indifference became interest, and interest became enthusiasm and enthusiasm became insistence.

Early in December, 1935, during a personal visit with President Roosevelt in Georgia, Chase Osborn spoke to him about the proposed bridge at the Straits of Mackinac. The President was big enough to admit that he had thought the Straits were something like thirty miles wide and that the proposal had seemed wild to him. When he was told that less than three miles of actual spans would be necessary, and heard the case of the two separated peninsulas, he showed a lively personal interest in the matter. His declaration of this interest at a press conference the same day, which was telegraphed throughout the nation, did much to awaken Michigan. The President ordered the Chief of the United States Army Engineers to make a report to him on the project. This is completely favorable. March 15, 1936, Mr. Ardis M. Kennedy, who was born in the Lower Peninsula of Michigan and grew to manhood in the Upper Peninsula at Sault Ste. Marie, printed the news of this report in striking form in the Sunday Chicago Tribune, of which he is the editor. A half page of this great newspaper was devoted to a summary of the report to the President and a large drawing taken from the map that accompanied it.

The quickening of public sentiment was effectively crystallized when interest in the project attracted some hundreds to Hancock, Michigan, to a conference of the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau, the largest winter meeting in its history. An entire session was built around the Mackinac Straits Bridge and they passed a resolution endorsing it, January 22, 1936. Steps taken there, and a few days later by the Sault Ste. Marie Chamber of Commerce, resulted in the immediate organization of the Mackinac Straits Bridge Association to centralize, co-ordinate and give impetus to all work for the bridge.

As soon as possible the Bridge Association, working closely with the State Bridge Authority, sent delegations to present the matter to civic bodies and other organizations throughout the Lower Peninsula. President John R. Merrifield and Secretary W. J. Cummings of the Association, State Representative Edward Fenlon, George E. Bishop and Engineer J. H. Cissel did remarkably effective work. Congressman Prentiss M. Brown of St. Ignace co-ordinated their activity with the administration at Washington. Resolutions in favor of the bridge began to be passed by many organizations throughout the state. Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald, after he had studied the question thoroughly, declared he was for the Bridge 100 per cent. State Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner has always warmly favored it. He states that the increase in traffic at the Straits is a problem that cannot any longer be evaded.

One of the earliest organizations to pass a resolution favoring the Bridge was the Heart of Nature club of Pontiac acting on its own initiative. The enthusiasm of this club, through its President Seth R. Turner, and its constructive and influential activity throughout the Lower Peninsula has been noteworthy.

The idea of a bridge across the Straits of Mackinac is winning the favor of the people of Michigan. Contagious enthusiasm for the Bridge is running through the state. Plans are under way to send an imposing delegation and motorcade to Washington at an early date.

The practicability of the Straits Bridge, from an engineering standpoint, has been established by many experts. The structure has the enthusiastic sponsorship of the eminent Mortimer E. Cooley, of the Colleges of Engineering and Architecture of the University of Michigan. Engineer James Harlan Cissel of the Mackinac Straits Bridge Authority, who is an outstanding graduate of Purdue University, the largest engineering school in the world today, and professor of structural engineering in the College of Engineering of the University of Michigan, and has been associated with the State Highway Department of Michigan as Consulting Engineer, has complete confidence in the enterprise. The plans for the Bridge have been studied and approved by the Chief of the United States Army Engineers, which alone is enough.

The details of the construction of the Bridge and of the plans to finance the structure have been so ably marshalled, and presented with such telling clearness by Engineer Cissel, that his work in molding favorable public opinion in Michigan has been of especial importance. His activities have been tireless and his facts have been invulnerable.

A preliminary P. W. A. application, for a bridge over the long route by way of Round and Bois Blanc and Mackinac Islands, was rejected.

The revised application, filed September 7, 1935, which has been approved by the Mackinac Straits Bridge Authority of Michigan and by the United States Army Engineers, provides for a direct crossing. This is at present under consideration by Public Works Administration authorities.

The terminals of the proposed Bridge would be at Mackinaw City and St. Ignace. A causeway and viaduct approach, starting at the Mackinaw City terminal, would extend some 4600 feet to the main steel construction. The principal bridge structure would consist of the main span of 2700 feet, flanked by 600 and 900 foot cantilever spans—in all 14,000 feet long. This would terminate about 8700 feet from the St. Ignace shore line, at which point the approach would be similar in construction to that on the Mackinaw City end. The principal bridge structure would be 2.65 miles long, with causeway and viaduct approaches totalling 2.52 miles.

The main span of 1700 feet would be located so as to cross the deepest water. The Mackinac Straits Bridge Authority recommends a clearance of 135 feet above the water surface, as sufficient to provide for Great Lakes traffic passing beneath it. The United States Army Engineers advocate a clearance of 150 feet, equal to that afforded by fixed bridges on the St. Lawrence River. This is only a detail of construction.

The plans provide for a two-lane highway and a single track railway, with provisions for adding further highway and railway facilities when traffic warrants. The solution of many problems in design and construction would be involved. Two of the proposed piers must be constructed to depths of 180 feet below Lake level. However, the foundations for the San Francisco-Oakland Bridge in California were sunk to a maximum depth of 240 feet below mean water-level. Those for the Huey P. Long Bridge across the Mississippi near New Orleans were sunk 180 feet below water level. The Mississippi currents are swifter than through the Straits and the bottom is shifting. The Straits lie in solid dolomite, a high magnesian limestone. Soundings of the Straits of Mackinac by the United States Army Engineers, have been used in determining depths of water along the line of proposed construction. Actual samples of foundation material have been obtained by diamond core drills, which show that the piers could rest on a perfect foundation.

The only unique problem in design presented by the Straits Bridge is the need of a substructure that will resist ice pressure. This has had serious consideration. The main piers will weigh upwards of 60,000 tons each. It is possible to anchor or dower these piers into the rock bottom of the Straits. It is completely practicable to so shape the construction at the water surface as to prevent any material pressure of surface ice on the sides of the piers.

As planned, the structure would rank in magnitude as one of the largest in the world, and, in some respects, the largest. Its situation and purpose would be unique. There are giant bridges over the great rivers of North America—many over the Hudson, the Mississippi and the St. Lawrence. The Straits of Mackinac Bridge would actually cross the ends of two of the Great Lakes and would have no competitive vehicular crossing of any kind within several hundred miles.

A comparison of costs is interesting. The new Huey P. Long Bridge, built by the State of Louisiana unaided, has been reported $13,000,000. The San Francisco-Oakland Bridge, now being completed by six counties of California and the Federal Public Works Administration, $75,000,000. Denmark and Sweden are considering a $150,000,000 bridge to link the Danish and Scandinavian peninsulas. The estimated cost of the proposed Straits of Mackinac Bridge, covering construction, rights of way, engineering, interest during construction, and administration, is $32,383,265, and it may be done possibly for $20,000,000.

The proposed plan to finance the Bridge is such that it could not become a burden on the State of Michigan. If the pending application is passed on favorably, the Federal Public Works Authority will make an outright grant of 45 per cent of the estimated cost of the Bridge and 55 per cent will be provided in the form of a loan. This would mean a direct Federal grant of $14,572,469, without obligation of interest or repayment; and a loan of the balance, $17,810,796, at 4 per cent, upon security of bridge revenue bonds issued by the State Bridge Authority and held by the Federal Government. Under this plan, all financial obligations must be met entirely out of revenues produced by the use of the Bridge. The Federal Government as owners of the bonds, would have no recourse to any funds other than those obtainable from toll charges. No deficit can be passed on to the State of Michigan.

There will be no deficit, especially after the first year or two the Bridge has been in operation. A detailed study of the rate of increase of traffic, in the eleven summers that the state ferry has been running, indicates that the Bridge will be able to more than pay its way by the time that it is completed and in full operation, which would be January 1, 1941, at the earliest. To meet obligations, traffic would need to increase for the next six years at an average annual rate of 17.8 to 20.7. The actual average rate for the 11-year operation of the state ferries, including the first years and the depression period, was 13.5. In the period 1924-1929, the average increase each year was 28 per cent. From 1933-1935 there was an increase of 23.3 per cent annually. It should be noted that in these estimates of the future increase in traffic at the Straits of Mackinac, no consideration has been given the fact that wherever bridge facilities are substituted for ferries, traffic over the bridge is usually much greater than that carried by the ferries which it replaces.

These calculations of the returns from the Straits of Mackinac Bridge are based on a toll equal to that now charged on the state ferries. As soon as possible it would be desirable to have the great bridge become, in fact, as well as in truth, what it really would be, an integral part of the state and federal highway systems, and as such be free from all tolls.

There are other returns from a Bridge that must not be overlooked. The element of convenience has been the basis of all our public road-building. The facilities afforded to the residents of both peninsulas, in their trade and communication with each other, is in itself a full return on the investment. The added attraction of the structure itself can easily increase Michigan's $300,000,000 annual revenue from its tourist trade to double that amount by the time the Bridge is well in operation. And this increase in summer visitors to the northland will not only mean much to the region in dollars and development, but will bring rich returns in health and happiness to the nation. These values cannot be estimated in money.

A Bridge at the Straits of Mackinac will make a belt line around Lake Michigan that will knit this middlewestern region helpfully. It will create a new continental highway from the East to the North and Northwest, making accessible the grandeur of the Lake Superior country, with the newest National Park of Isle Royale. The whole Hudson Bay country contiguous remains unexplored and is fascinating.

The sooner there is a Bridge at the Straits of Mackinac, the better it will be for not only the Lower Peninsula but for at least one-fifth of the United States. The all-year-round service of the Bridge will be worth more to Michigan than any number of fleets of part-time ferries could. The Bridge will mean the end of long delays also in summer, when traffic congests on both shores. It will mean the removal of all possible hazards of fire on crowded ferry boats, of collision in a fog, and of speeding on the highways trying to catch a ferry. It will mean economy of operation in the long run, for the overhead of a bridge will be less than that of a fleet of ferries constantly needing to be augmented, to be replaced and given greater dock facilities.

The Straits of Mackinac Bridge will make of Michigan a single, united state, after a hundred years of existence as divorced peninsulas. In Michigan the years 1935-1936-1937 are being devoted to the celebration of its centennial as a state. It has been proposed that this Bridge across the Straits of Mackinac could be the finest Centennial monument, joining the two Peninsulas in spirit and in truth as never before. Too much must not be expected, but it is completely possible that during the Centennial of the State of Michigan, the Mackinac Straits Bridge may be inaugurated and dedicated and started upon. Its building shall be the beginning of a new era for this section of the continent.

Tax-payers:

Michigan Real Estate is Worth Protecting.....

Make your 2nd payment on the 10-Year Plan before September 1, 1936.

MICHIGAN has made real progress in cleaning up its back tax problem. During last year's drive fifty-five millions of dollars in taxes for 1932 and prior years were put on a 10-year plan, by payment of the first part.

Now the second payment becomes due.

You must meet this payment promptly in order to retain the fullest benefits you secured by putting your back taxes on the 10-year plan.

See your county treasurer immediately. Make your second payment, with interest of 4%. Your property should be a cherished possession. Protect it by keeping your tax record clear.

And remember: if you failed to place these taxes on the 10-year plan heretofore, you still may do so by paying the first two parts, together with 4% interest, and a small extra charge on the first payment.

Note: If You can pay now in full You will Save 8% to 36% in Future Interest Payments.

THOSE who are in a financial position to do so are urged to pay up the remaining portion of their back taxes now on the 10-year plan. For them there is a substantial saving, ranging from 8% on the third year's payment to 36% on the tenth year's installment. Pay now and save.

R. & W., Frigidaire Winners Of First Play - Off Series

Wilson's Frigidaire Are Losers To League Leading Teams

In the first round of the play-offs for the championship of the Recreation Softball league this week, Red and White, who hold top place in the league standings, defeated Wilsons 7 to 4, while the second-place Daisy team took the Frigidaire nine into camp 9 to 4.

The R. and W.-Wilson game was a hard fought battle. Wilsons scored one run in the first inning without a hit. Penny, first up, walked, McLellan also walked and both runners advanced on Curtis' wild pitch; then Penny scored on Dietle's long fly to left. In the third Wilsons got three runs on two hits, an error and a base on balls. R. and W. tied up the game at this point by scoring four runs.

Straub, first man up, tripled when Vaughn Smith misjudged his line drive, and scored when the catcher dropped the throw to the plate. L. Bassett singled, Partridge singled and Curtis walked, filling the bases. Ferguson and K. Gates popped out, after which D. Gates and W. Bassett walked, forcing in two runs. Schryer singled, scoring Curtis, and was out trying to stretch it to a double.

R. and W. went into the lead in the fifth by scoring three runs on three hits and an error. Wilsons started a rally in their last turn to bat when Detloff got to second on a two-base error by R. Gates. The next batter singled, but he was found to be the wrong batter; Gilder, the proper batter, was declared out and Detloff, who had scored, was sent back to second. Penny struck out, McLellan singled and Detloff was out trying to score on the hit.

The slugging of H. Williams and C. Lee plus the pitching of Rorabacher brought Daisy victory over Frigidaire. Daisy went to bat first, and the two men first up were retired on easy chances. Then J. Gilles lined out a single and scored on C. Lee's home run. R. Williams followed with a single and scored on his brother Harold's homer over the left fielder's head. The next two batters walked, but died on base when Rorabacher hit an easy roller to second.

Frigidaire had to wait until the third inning before getting a man out, and even then could not score. Daisy duplicated their first inning in the third by batting around the lineup for three runs on three hits, two bases on balls, an error and a wild pitch. Frigidaire broke the ice in the fourth, scoring two runs on three hits.

Daisy picked up two more in the fifth, then in the refrigerator boys' half of the inning, A. Gates was given a base on balls. R. Herter reached first when the umpire ruled interference by the Daisy catcher and H. Burley singled, moving the two others ahead. With the bases loaded L. Herter singled and Gates scored. Roy Kincade lined into center field, R. Herter scoring after the catch, and the next two batters popped out. Rorabacher held Frigidaire in check for the remainder of the game, allowing only two men to reach base. L. Herter was the only man to save Rorabacher's pitching, getting three of his team's eight hits.

Perfection Nine Defeats Ace of Clubs by 14 to 4

Only One More Game Before Play-Offs Are Started

Perfection Laundry defeated Ace of Clubs Sunday 14 to 4, to tie the Wyandotte for fifth place in the Michigan Inter-County league standings, while Schrader-Haggerty bowed to Garden City 8 to 5, but retained fourth place in the league.

Only one game is left on the schedule for each team, and the play-offs for the championship are scheduled to begin August 30. A team must finish in one of the four top positions, or a tie for one, in order to take part in the play-offs.

In Sunday's game between Perfection Laundry and Ace of Clubs, Zielasko was the leading hitter with four out of six, while J. Williams caused the fans to hold their breath with his beautiful catches. H. Pisarek gave up but seven hits until the ninth inning.

At the Wayne homecoming celebration on Saturday, the Perfection nine defeated the Wayne Merchants 10 to 4. Panosian, starting his first game for the local boys, allowed only six hits to gain his first victory. It looks as though the laundry boys have at last found a good left-handed pitcher. Ray and Clarence Levandowski led the hitters with three out of four.

Engagement of Norma Savery Is Announced

The party given Monday evening by Miss Norma Savery of Detroit at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cody Savery, on the Brookville road, was a lovely announcement of her engagement to George Schmeman of Detroit and was attended by twenty of her girl friends from Detroit and Plymouth.

Madame A-du-blah was present and read the fortunes of each guest as she gazed into the crystal. Following this the hostess presented individual corsages of roses to which a tally card for bridge was attached. Later all were invited out to the porch where a two-course luncheon was served at a table with appointments in silver and white, a crystal placed on red velvet being the centerpiece. Silver balloons, with ribbons running to the crystal, had numbers on a pin and each guest was asked to punch a corresponding number on balloon, finding inside the names of Norma and George.

The guests were Carol Savery, Paula Mueller, Georgina Stocken, Olive Flint, Vivien Norton, Inez Fisk, Mildred Moore, Henrietta Grimm, Alvina Schmeman, Mayda Wolfelder and B. Maloney of Detroit, Mrs. Max Utting, Mrs. Herman Schmeman, Amy Blackmore, Maurine Dunn, Mary McLuttermoser, Doris Williams Curtis, Arbutus Williams Killingworth, Irene Livingston Lyke and Jewell Rengert Smith of Plymouth.

Model Home and Garden Attracts Many Visitors

Many Plymouth residents are among the crowds viewing the modern home and model garden laid out by the horticultural department of Michigan State college, which is located at the corner of Hennespin avenue and Merriam road, in Garden City. Although the place has been open to visitors just a little more than a month, 16,000 people have inspected it, according to reports of the Garden City Civic association, its sponsor. The home itself is constructed of cinder block with a flat concealed roof, and finished in an ivory and green combination which blends well with the landscape. In the rear is a chicken coop of the same material which will house 30 chickens, completing the idea of a little farm in a modern setting.

The interior contains many new features stressing labor-saving for the housewife and comfort for the whole family. The living room is located on the second floor; it is the only room on this floor and has windows on all sides for a maximum of light and ventilation. The large cemented roof of the built-in garage is canopied with gaily colored awnings to afford a delightful porch for summer months.

The utility room contains a compact forced-air heating plant, coal bin, laundry trays, vegetable closet and fruit cellar. The whole house is provided with ample close space to satisfy the needs of the most exacting housewife, including a large one off the living room in which an extra bed may be stored.

On the ground floor is a combination kitchen and dinette, two corner bedrooms and a utility room. The kitchen has a large combination sink and work bench, stove and refrigerator. The floor is covered with durable linoleum and the walls done in a lighter linoleum which is easy to clean. The two bedrooms are done in soft shades of red and blue, while between them is a bathroom with tiled floor, linoleum-covered walls and the newest in sanitary fixtures.

The utility room contains a compact forced-air heating plant, coal bin, laundry trays, vegetable closet and fruit cellar. The whole yard was lighted with Japanese lanterns, adding to the pleasure of the guests.

Graphic Outlines of History

Serier's Warning of Approaching Indians
John Serier stands out as a prominent and picturesque figure in early Tennessee history. He was called "the greatest of Indian fighters" by his countrymen who were constantly being menaced by savage Indians. Serier's bravery and sterling character won for him the admiration of all the settlers throughout the territory. There is a quiet charm about our services that comes from understanding and experience.
