THE WAY TO SETTLE IT.

Now that Governor Frank Murphy and his cohorts have seen fit to make the civil service question a political issue, there is but one way to settle it—let the people of the state do the thing that the legislature failed to do.

The legislature at its forthcoming session which the Governor says he is going to call, should take such steps as may be necessary to submit to the electors at the general election in November 1938 the original civil service bill as it was submitted to the state senate and as it passed the upper house of the legislature.

Governor Murphy and his political associates have been smarting somewhat under the lashing they have been receiving from the public because of the defeat by the house of representatives of the civil service bill.

They have turned heaven and earth in an effort to make it appear that the minority party of the senate is responsible for what happened. But it is quite apparent that the general public has a little longer memory than the Governor is willing to give it credit for possessing. The public has not forgotten that it was the Republican senate which PASSED the civil service bill in practically the same form as it was presented. Neither has the public forgotten that it was the strongly controlled Democratic state affairs committee of the house that mutilated the civil service bill to such an extent that it meant practically nothing as it finally passed the house. This committee was and is under the direct control of Governor Murphy. Many strong supporters of an honest civil service bill, who are members of the house, voted for the dissected measure simply because they thought it might give a start to civil service within the state government.

But as far as anyone can see at the present time, there will be practically no use in passing any "compromise bill", not in view of the action taken by Governor Murphy and his other political buddies up at Mackinaw Island, where the governor has been continuing his vacation since the legislature ended its session on June 25.

The Detroit News urges that the Republican senators who voted FOR the original civil service bill now accept an "honest compromise bill" such as the governor proposes.

From one who has been for civil service and who followed it closely through the legislative session, let it be stated emphatically that Governor Murphy has not proposed an "honest compromise civil service bill".

In addition, The Detroit News should know by this time that Governor Murphy is not now or has been favorable to an honest civil service measure for the state.

The Governor said he was NOT for the Pollock bill a few nights before the house of representatives voted on the measure. His statement was made at a caucus of house Democrats. One of the Democratic members said so on the floor of the house, and the correctness of his statement was not challenged.

Subsequent events in the legislature bore out the truth of the statement that was made in the house.

But one should not gain the idea that all the Republicans in the house are for honest civil service. There are several Republicans who are just as opposed to it as are the Democrats. They have the same type of political minds as the Governor, with the same ideas. In fact, during the entire session of the legislature there was a group of Republicans who joined with a number of Democrats in "putting over" a certain type of legislation.

Therefore, if one will stop to analyze the situation, it can be readily seen that no "honest compromise civil service bill" can or will be passed by the present legislature.

The Detroit News and all the other newspapers that have been lauding Governor Murphy to the high heavens know this to be a fact. The governor doesn't want civil service any more than do many members of the legislature.

Not much time will be lost in the inauguration of civil service for the state if action is not taken on it until the next fall election.

The electors of the state, if given an opportunity to vote upon the original Pollock bill will, without doubt, approve of it by a big majority.

So, why not write into the fundamental law of Michigan an HONEST civil service provision, rather than accept some sort of doctored up mess that a bunch of office holders would like to "put over" under the guise of civil service in order to have the public believe "they have kept faith"?

UNHARVESTED CROPS.

Early last spring farm leaders of Michigan declared that unless the farmers of the state could secure more help that a very good portion of this year's crops could not be harvested. It was estimated on the first of April that there was an actual shortage of some 43,000 workers on the farms in this state. That estimate was made by the United States crop reporting office operated in connection with the state department of agriculture in Lansing. Since that time the demand for farm labor has constantly increased.

Think of the absurdity of the situation! With the farmers of Michigan able to use not less than 50,000 additional workers, the non-thinking legislature in Lansing voted for the greatest state welfare appropriation in the history of Michigan! Yes, that is a fact, the taxpayers of Michigan are going to spend more money during 1937 and 1938 for welfare than has ever been spent before in this commonwealth—and the farmers are unable to hire sufficient help to enable them to harvest their crops. But a lot of voters still think common sense isn't needed in Lansing.

PLAYING THE GAME

by Lawrence
Hawthorne

Whatever the game, and whatever the odds,
The winning is all up to you;
For it isn't the score, and it isn't the prize,
That counts when the playing is through!
In the great game of Life, it's the purpose to win,
And the courage to fight to the end,
That determines for you what degree of success
Will be scored to your credit, my friend.

The best you can do may not be quite enough
To defeat your opponents today;
But you never can lose, and you never can fail,
If you "put all you've got" in your play;
And the greatest reward that your efforts can bring
Is the fact that you stood to the test—
That you played a clean game, and you fought a good fight,
And you always were doing your best!

BEGIN IT NOW!

For over three long years we have heard the song of hate sung from early morn until late at night. We have heard men, long regarded as leaders in education and business, condemned as unfit citizens. Class hatreds have been raised. A determined effort by some political leaders to have it appear that there are but two classes in America, the rich and the poor, has had its unfavorable effects. The poor have been told that they are poor because of the rich. The rich have been told that they are the brakes on American progress! Those who are without worldly goods for reasons best known to themselves, have been held up as a persecuted class, and told that THEIR day has now arrived!

But in all this campaign, creating a sentiment of bitterness between two MINOR groups in the United States, no one has ever heard one word about that vast so-called middle class—the class that makes up the backbone of America.

This class, often referred to as the white-collared class, comprises the professional men, the business men, the men who operate the smaller independent manufacturing plants, intelligent workers, contractors, builders, educators—LEADERS ALL!

They are the real supporters of the government. They pay the vast portion of the tax burden. They give the community leadership that provides the stability to the nation.

They are the ones who have suffered the most as the result of all of these tirades and they now believe that the time has arrived for a right-about-face attitude on the part of the haters and pettifoggers. They believe the time is here for a re-awakening of the old spirit of America. They believe that it is time to wipe off the smear of imported foreign mud and slime, clean house, and then wash our hands of the mess we have been led into.

They are demanding that the song of praise and GOOD-WILL be sung instead of the song of hate. They are demanding that strife and turmoil be ended. They are demanding that the public office holders, who have deemed it a popular thing to condemn everything and everybody and who have sought to create ill will rather than good will, now hold their tongue, if they cannot say something good for their country.

What a God-send it would be to America if EVERYONE would join in an effort to restore confidence, to restore belief in HONEST labor and endeavor with honest service given for honest returns.

When such a campaign becomes nation-wide, when pettifogging officialdom is ended, when EVERY man, woman and child AGAIN believes that this is a perfect union, with all the blessings of liberty, then, and then only, will we have again the kind of AMERICA we knew AMERICA to be before political rabblers began to sing the songs of hate and discord.

Today is the day to begin that campaign of good-will and restored FAITH IN AMERICA.

ALMOST AS BIG.

If you have received your new window sticker from the state board of tax administration, it will be noted that the new director of the department, Draper Allen, has had his name placed on the sticker in letters almost as big as that of the state of Michigan. Well, what is the use of being director of a department unless you can have your name stuck to a window pane in every business place in Michigan?

But, to many, the antics of these new state job holders are a pain in another place. It might be interesting to note that Allen's department is one of the many that has added swarms of new job holders. In fact, the increase in his department has been one of the largest of any in Lansing. Big letters, big jobs, big payrolls, the biggest political circus since P. T. Barnum's time. That seems to be the order of the day over where the Grand river flows by Michigan's political job factory. More power to the hordes swarming to Lansing to look after the welfare of the squirming taxpayers of the nation's most troubled state! It would be funny, if it didn't pertain to such serious and important business.

RAMBLING with Editors AROUND of Michigan

ANOTHER VIEW.

We do not believe in civil service laws that guarantee a public employee or public office holder security of his job. He gives nothing in exchange for this security, and the service commands no more than the service every other person gives.

Let us just slip up a couple for contrast to see the ridiculous phase of it.

John Smith is fifty years of age. He has never enjoyed the privilege of even the high school; he has reared a respectable family on insecure income, and has given his children an education. No matter how well he might pass an examination through self-improvement, he could never qualify for civil service. On the other hand, Bill Jones is a young dandy who has never done anything except squander his widowed mother's sustenance while lingering an extra year in college to get his degree. He has never done anything for anyone, but he is just smart enough to pass the civil service examination and he is young and strong enough to be acceptable, and that is why we should bring him a life tenure of position at a good salary on a silver platter.

If you ask us, civil service is all the bunk. It's a fancy little graft thought up by some smart ones, and many of us are falling for it.—Adrian Van Koevering in The Zealand Record.

My Mother

My mother never smoked nor drank,
My mother never swore;
My mother never played at bridge
Nor mounted up a score.

My mother never plucked her brows,
Nor rouged her dear, sweet face;
And on my mother's loving lips
No stains of paint I trace.

My mother never dyed her nails,
She never bobbed her hair;
But virtue, grace and honesty
Have been her jewels rare.

Today my mother would be called
Old-fashioned, well I know,
But oh, how glad I am that God
Has made and kept her so.

THE TONQUISH CREEK BREEZE

Vol. No. 1 Tonquish Creek, Michigan U. S. A.

The BREEZE does not feel very good. This paper was born and prospered because it wanted to keep Tonquish creek in the open. The BREEZE wanted future generations to see and know the babbling Tonquish just as did old Chief Tonquish. Well, when the crucial moment came, all the Creekers fell flat. And now these modernists aided and abetted by some powerful outside influences which the BREEZE cannot yet uncover, have ordered the creek buried in a circular concrete container under about four feet of earth. The BREEZE has not yet found out just when the interment will take place but Capt. Fred Schrader will let the readers of the BREEZE know all about it. Meanwhile the BREEZE hasn't got much interest in anything.

It seems from what some of the Injuns say the young lady, who comes from up where the Tonquish Injuns used to get their squaws, did most of the fishing and caught most of the fish. But what's that compared to what's going to happen to Tonquish creek? Matt Powell thinks it's about time to think of something else besides the beauties of the Tonquish. Matt says he doesn't care so much about the purling stream as he does about the other dirty old creek with garbage in it. Says Matt, Well, that sort of indicates that all Creekers haven't been just as loyal to the creek as they should have been. Maybe it accounts for what happened. Tonquish is not a dirty old creek. Matt knows it and everybody else does. But what's the use of arguing about it any more. They're going to bury it and that's all there is to it.

There is one thing the BREEZE is going to find out about, and all the ability of all the barristers in these hereabouts is going to be used to uncover it. Why did Abe Goldstein, who was away from the final rites? Why wasn't he there, right up on the front row? He's done a lot of talking about retaining to this settlement the odors that come from the Creek. But where was he when he was needed? There is no question but what sinister influences have been at work in the Creek, but no one expected Able to be counted among the missing in the greatest hour of need.

The Home Guards fizzled out, just like a fire cracker. Where was the bullets that Sgt. Henry Hon-dorp had for the fighting forty? Where was Capt. Schrader's dashing cavalry brigade? Where was Walt Harms and his axle grease? Where was Harold Finlan and his water wagons? Where was Paul Weidman and his smoke screen? Where was all of 'em, that's what the BREEZE would like to know. These outsiders came in and walked right away with everything. Tonquish creek will never be the same any more.

Dave Bolton, one of the youngsters in the Creek, took an adoptive Creek young lady out fishing the other day. They tried for some shiners over in the creek, but Dave had some dead angle worms and they didn't go so hot. Then they went over to a lake where some of the waters of the Tonquish come from. Well

There is going to be no more Creek news this week. If you don't like the BREEZE you don't have to take it.

But It's True

Warren Bassett pitched great ball in the pinches and for the first seven innings had allowed but four hits.

88 Years Old Rides From Tenn. To Visit Here

Mr. and Mrs. William Renner and family of 602 Coolidge street were pleasantly surprised late Friday evening when Mr. Renner's uncle, Captain Gus Wesche of the Memphis, Tennessee fire department arrived at their home bringing Mr. Renner's grandmother, Mrs. Annie Wesche.

Mrs. Wesche, now 88 years of age, two years ago was given but a few days to live but after a long siege of sickness she is again as healthy as ever and expects to live over 100 years. She attributes her present excellent health to regularity in her living during her lifetime.

Grandmother Wesche was born in Germany, June 23, 1849 and came to United States at the age of 18. She has five grandchildren living and seven great grandchildren. Her home is in Memphis, Tennessee and she is extremely proud of the fact that today she can get into an automobile and travel 700 miles in two days without feeling at all exhausted or having any bad effects.

At 88, she is able to read newspapers, hear well and get about the house without any help. She says at the present time she excels in sewing and with 80 years of experience behind her, she can do an excellent job of patching.

Captain Wesche and his mother were accompanied here by Mrs. Elizabeth Decker who will visit her son in Detroit until the trio leaves for home next Tuesday.

Parkway Development Swallows Up Old Swimming Hole So Familiar To Older "Boys" of Plymouth

Of the many changes which Plymouth has undergone from its beginning as a small community to that of a city, none stands out more clearly than the new park system which so greatly adds to the beauty of the city; but there's a story behind the news.

Many of the older residents can well remember the "ole swimmin' hole" which was a popular retreat for the young boys of the town. This by-gone place of recreation was in the river which runs through the entire park system, but at the time of its popularity, the river was deep enough to permit the kids to have a good swim.

The kids are now cut down, and new park benches and stoves stand in their place. And then a road was cut through in back of the old willow, and a children's playground was built, with swings, slides, teeter-totters and many other necessary parts of a playground. Children now slide down playthings made for that purpose, whereas, before, the bank of the river was a slide.

The passing of this place of fun and excitement is felt by many of the older ones of the town, especially those in early manhood. But certainly the safety and modernness must more than compensate for this loss.

Diving boards were scooped at in preference to a large and sturdy limb of a great willow tree. That same tree stands today, apparently a great distance from the edge of the water, but only because the one-time river has become a small stream. What tales that old tree could tell if only it had the power of speech. It could tell the younger kids of the time Johnny, the most famous swimmer in town, fell off the limb and struck his head on a stone, and of how the swimmin' hole wasn't the same place 'til he got back.

There is, however, one thing which even the ingenuity of science can not replace, and that is the excitement and genuine thrill a boy got when he sneaked away from cutting the lawn and went for a swim with the gang.

The younger children who now wade in the once famous swimmin' hole may perhaps have been told by their dads of the time they used to swim there, and of the great times they had, because they went there in violation of rules laid down to them by Mom and Dad. But that's what made it fun!

And what a surprise a lot of the old boys would get if they were to get the urge to once again swim in the ol' hole. For they would find in its place a number of man-made wading pools for the young children. And they wouldn't be deep enough for the now-grown kids to even get their ankles wet. And diving! Say, since the "hole" went out of existence, there hasn't been a decent place where a fellow could really shoot out over the water from a strong and friendly willow limb.

Achievement and advancement wait for no swimmin' hole, and so today Plymouth boasts of a park system, which is the envy of hundreds of cities four and five times larger. The natural beauty of the parks make this city one of the rare spots in Michigan. The one thing those who used to be a part of the swimmin' hole know that others don't, is the joy of excitement and childish obedience which were once the most important part of a child's play. The rapidity of events has removed much of this excitement and danger and replaced them with safety and beauty combined with supervised play for the younger generation.

Add Three Days To Pheasant Hunting Season

The game bill passed by the legislature and sent to the governor for his signature provides for a hunting season on ring-necked pheasants and ruffed grouse that is three days longer in the lower peninsula than last year.

The legislature set the open season for hunting these birds at October 15 to October 31, inclusive, in the lower peninsula. It set a season of from October 15 to October 31 on prairie chickens and sharp-tailed grouse in the lower peninsula north of north-line of Town 16 north and west of Saginaw Bay and left the season closed on prairie chickens and sharp-tails in counties south of that line.

Last year the upland bird hunting season in the lower peninsula was from October 15 to October 28, inclusive.

The legislature left the open season on ruffed grouse, prairie chickens and sharp-tailed grouse in the upper peninsula for this fall the same as last year—from October 1 to October 12, inclusive. Pheasants remain on the protected list the year round to 1940 in the upper peninsula, by order of the conservation commission.

Using Sticker? Better Get Plates

Chief of Police Vaughn Smith and other Plymouth police officers are pleased over the fact that they are left no discretion at the end of this month as to what to do with automobile drivers who have not secured their new license plates by that time. The secretary of state has ordered that every automobile driver must have his new license at that time, or his car must be taken off the highways.

So there's nothing left for Chief Smith and his force to do but arrest every one who is caught driving his automobile on the old license or stickers after midnight, July 31.

Approximately 70,000 owners of motor vehicles in the Detroit district have failed to get 1937 license plates to replace sticker permits which expire at midnight July 31.

Throughout the state there are 300,000 more owners who are in the same fix and must either get plates or quit operating their vehicles after July 31.

Secretary of State Leon D. Case warns that there can be no extension of time and that all cars found in operation and bearing only 1936 plates and sticker permits will be impounded by police beginning August 1.

Owners will be charged with operating a vehicle without proper license plates and will be subject to a fine. Police will hold such cars until owners have procured 1937 plates.

With 370,000 motorists without 1937 plates Secretary Case points out that the 135 branches of his office throughout the state, 35 of them in the Detroit district, will find their facilities taxed to the limit during the last few days of the sale period.

Rev. Strasen Is Honored

Friends of Rev. Charles Strasen, former pastor of St. Peter's Lutheran church of this city for 15 years, but now retired, will be pleased to know that on last Sunday he was surprised and honored by St. Paul's Lutheran church and its pastor, Rev. Carl A. Brauer of Ann Arbor, in memory of the 49th anniversary of his entry into the ministry of the Lord.

Rev. Strasen and his family attended the early services of St. Paul's church Sunday, when at the close of the sermon, the ushers requested him to follow them to the altar where a chair had been placed for him. After the singing of a hymn of praise and thanksgiving, Rev. Brauer addressed Rev. Strasen, taking his words out of Psalms and saying that he and his congregation were thanking God with him for having elected him for the ministry to preach the gospel 49 years ago, having kept and upheld him during these 49 years in many trials and tribulations, and having blessed him so his work had brought much fruit, which judgment day would prove. He said he knew he was speaking Rev. Strasen's mind, when he would say: "To God alone all glory and praise and thanks to Him."

In the name of his congregation and for himself he extended congratulations to Rev. Strasen and wished him continuance of God's keeping and blessing during the eve of his life. As a token of love and respect he presented him with a gift from the congregation.

Rev. Strasen, overwhelmed by the unexpected honoring, the words of Rev. Brauer and the gift from the congregation, briefly responded, thanking the pastor and his congregation for their kindness.

After the close of the services, many members warmly shook Rev. Strasen's hand and wished him God's grace for his work of assisting other pastors.

Isaiah 40: 31. The one thing most needful among the Christians today is the attitude of prayer. There was a period when Christian people felt that a day was not complete unless God received thanks for His care, and seek His guidance and blessing for the day. Three meals a day are necessary for physical strength. Our spiritual body must be fed as well—fed through fellowship by means of prayer and study of His word. New Bridge to Connect Michigan And Canada

The four governments involved will pay the cost of the American and Canadian approaches, while the million-dollar main span is to be built from a revenue bond issued sold by the legislative-created state bridge commission of Michigan, is acting as general supervisor of construction. When the bonds are retired, ownership of the bridge will go to the Michigan and Ontario governments, who will maintain and operate the bridge. But the state does not guarantee payment of the bonds in any way.

The bridge will be 152 feet above the river's surface, permitting lake or ocean vessels to pass underneath with plenty of clearance. This height necessitates long approaches on both sides of St. Clair river. The main span will be 1,576 feet in length, 900 feet of span being over water. The American approach, which will cross above a dozen streets, will be 3,000 feet long. The Canadian approach will be approximately the same length, curving southward on the outskirts of Point Edward to the Sarnia city limits and connecting with the Sarnia-London Blue Water highway.

Through traffic will be routed outside the Port Huron business and residential districts to make entrance and exit easy and convenient.

The Blue Water bridge will be the border crossing point on the shortest route between the middle west and eastern Canada and northeastern United States. Even southern Michigan residents, who now cross into Canada at Detroit, will find the Blue Water bridge route the shortest way east.

Approach sub-structure work will be completed in September and the main span piers will be finished by January 1938.

V. B. Steinbaugh, chairman of the bridge commission, has announced bid on the super-structure work will be taken within a few days.
