Approve Sewer Plans For The Out County

This City And Other Nearby Places To Have Trunk Line

Plymouth and other residents in this part of Wayne county will be elated to know that there is Washington confirmation of the report published exclusively in The Plymouth Mail last winter that a vast trunk line sewer is to be constructed between the William H. Maybury Sanitorium and along the River Rouge valley. The Wayne County Training school, the Detroit House of Correction, Northville, the city of Plymouth, Rosedale Gardens and other communities lying between here and Trenton.

It has become definitely known in the last few days that after years of effort on the part of the Wayne county sewage disposal committee of the county board of supervisors that a federal grant of $900,000 has been granted for the sewage work for the out-county section of Wayne county.

The grant, coupled with $1,100,000 that the county road commission has available from Kulp Act funds, enables the commission to proceed with plans for the construction of the out-county system. The total cost of the project will be $2,000,000.

The sewage project is designed to care for about 14 cities and villages in the county outside of Detroit, which now has a sewage disposal system under construction partly financed by the PWA. The plans indicate that the sewer will probably follow the paved road through the parkway.

Plans for the project prepared by Leroy Smith, engineer for the road commission and the sewage disposal committee call for the construction of a plant on the Detroit river in lower Trenton. The plans must be approved by the county board of supervisors before work is begun, he said a few days ago.

Mr. Smith stated that work on the project will begin about December 1. He said that plans will be completed by then and minor contracts let.

Plans completed thus far call for sewer extension in Wayne and the construction of an interceptor near Northville in addition to the Trenton plant, he said.

The project is expected to take care of the sewage disposal needs of all Wayne county, outside of Detroit, and will mean cleaning up the Detroit river and the River Rouge. The $20,000,000 Detroit project completes the necessary facilities to take care of the entire county's sewage problem.

Efforts to obtain approval of the project in Washington have been carried on by the sewage disposal committee of which William F. VonMoll, Mungosung township supervisor is member. Other members of the committee are Eugene Van Antwerp, Detroit councilman, chairman; Mr. Smith; Laurence Lenhardt, Detroit Public Works commissioner; George A. Dingman, county drain commissioner, and Oscar Kaufman, attorney for the committee.

Band Concert Wednesday Eve

Culminating the activities of the recreation department of music for the summer months, the Recreation band will present a concert Wednesday evening, September 1 in Kellogg park, beginning at 7:30.

The band, composed of present and former members of the high school band, has been practicing throughout the summer months, under the direction of Lewis Evans, who also is director of the high school band.

The existence of this musical organization has been made possible through the cooperation of the school board and the city. Both bodies have appropriated money to meet the expenses of maintaining a musical organization worthy of this type of support.

Numbers will include both modern and regular band music. The program has been prepared with the idea of furnishing the citizens with a well-balanced evening of entertainment.

This is the first time that a concert has been given during the week; in the past, Saturday evenings have been set aside for this purpose. Local residents are urged to give this fine group of musicians their whole-hearted support by attending the concert.

Chief Smith Tells How To Get Traffic Cop Fired

If You Don't Like Him, Just Do These Things

If you do not like the traffic cops and if you do not like to find a traffic ticket on your car, there is an exceptionally easy way to end your dislikes—just don't do the following things that Chief of Police Vaughn Smith says you should not do, and the city of Plymouth will not need traffic cops or a traffic court:

- Don't drive faster than 20 miles per hour in the business district.
- Don't drive above 35 miles per hour in the residential district.
- Don't drive upon a highway at a speed greater than will permit you to bring your car to a stop within the assured clear distance ahead.
- Don't drive from any alley or

Presbyterian Ladies Busy With Plans

Many Important Events Scheduled For Fall and Winter

With their beautiful church nearing completion, the members of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Presbyterian church are actively engaged in their plans for a busy autumn and winter. All church functions will be held in the Masonic temple until the new building is finished.

The first calendar date chosen is Wednesday, September 22, which will usher in a fall festival. This will be something that everyone will want to attend. A moderately priced plate luncheon will be served at noon, and the dinner at night will consist of chicken and biscuit, vegetables, salads, pies and everything that will add towards making a delicious meal. The chief display of the festival will be the garden and farm produce from which may be purchased any vegetables and fruits desired. The booths will offer many new and novel ideas. There will be a delicatessen booth with its tempting array of cold meats, salads, jellies, jams, pickles, baked beans, etc. Next in attraction the dairy counter will offer deliciously cold buttermilk, cheese, milk, butter, and cream. Who knows, perhaps the kiddies may find ice cream cones at this novel booth. No church function is complete without its assortment of home-baked pies, cakes, bread, cookies and fried cakes, and all of these will be ready for purchase.

The candy booth will be a popular place with its many kinds of delicious candies. In addition to all these attractions the ladies who attend will be especially pleased with the party supply booth, where they may select tallies, favors, prizes and other items. The many people who wish to assist the ladies in making their first venture successful will keep September 22 in mind their interest and attendance will be greatly appreciated.

The next important dates are from Thursday, October 21, through Saturday, October 23, at which time a huge rummage sale will be presented. On Saturday, the 23rd, a bake sale will be held. Further information will be given at a later date.

The annual bazaar is scheduled for Wednesday, November 17 with its luncheon and dinner, needlework, baked goods, and other displays. The public is cordially invited.

Renwick Sells Property To Silkworth

Big Service Station Planned For Main And Starkweather

Announcement has been made of the purchase of the Glen Renwick property on the corner of Main and Starkweather, by the D. M. Silkworth Oil company, of Ypsilanti.

Plans for a new super service station which the company is going to build will be out sometime this week. Mr. Renwick will move his house back onto Blanch street, thus clearing the way for workmen to begin construction of the new station.

The Silkworth company already operates a number of stations in the city but this is the first time it has purchased property on which to build here.

From the information available, plans call for a station costing well into the thousands of dollars; something, those connected with the company say, will make it an outstanding example of beauty as done in the modern style.

Work is expected to begin around September 15. The station will be leased and operated by local men.

What A Democrat Thinks Of The Legislature

(By ELTON R. EATON)
What is the viewpoint of a Democratic member of the state legislature pertaining to the recent long, drawn-out session of that body that has been so bitterly assailed by nearly every section of the state in recent weeks?

Readers of The Plymouth Mail have had the writer's opinions and views in numerous articles that have been published in this paper in past months.

Knows What He Is Talking About

Malcolm W. Bingley, editorial director of the Detroit Free Press, made an interesting observation on big city editors and small town editors incident to the annual convention of the NEA in Detroit. The observation, published in Mr. Bingley's daily column, "ifty the Dopester" column, was as follows:

"The only difference between a big city editor and a small town editor is that the small town editor usually knows what his community is saying and thinking. He's part of his city instead of being isolated in omniscience."

Carrier Pigeon Stops To Rest

Tired and apparently weak from a long flight from somewhere to somewhere, a carrier pigeon, early Tuesday evening, lighted on the window ledge of the barber shop of McConnell brothers, over the Dodge drug store where it remained until Wednesday afternoon when it resumed its flight. It was first observed by Lee McConnell when he heard it fluttering against the window screen. As he reached for it, it hopped out on the chain of the Dodge sign. It was still there Wednesday morning. Mr. McConnell placed a pan of water and some feed on the window ledge and the pigeon immediately ate and drank the provisions provided it. On each leg were bands, to which were attached, apparently, messages of some kind. While the pigeon appeared not at all afraid, it would not come close enough for Mr. McConnell to pick it up.

Spare Moments Well Spent Create A Beautiful Rock Garden

Lighted Miniature Cascades Add Interesting Feature

Spare minutes and hours utilized in doing something worthwhile during the past four years is now providing the reward for the Oscar Alstro family and their many friends—the opportunity to view from morning until night one of the prettiest and most distinctive rock gardens in all of Michigan.

Not only is it a rock garden of the unusual type, but miniature tumbling cascades, with colored lights reflecting through the water as it courses over the rocks and a little stream winding its way from pool to pool, add to its many interesting features. In fact, there are three miniature falls in addition to the larger cascade. At night time various colored

Scully Goes Back To His Old Position

To Leave Sales Tax Department In Near Future

Edward Scully, who served as first field representative for the Michigan state sales tax commission in this part of Michigan, and held the position except for a brief time during the administration of former Governor Fitzgerald, being reinstated last winter, has just been advised by the Fairbanks Morse company that his old position as sales engineer is again open for him.

He immediately accepted it and has notified the state sales tax department that he would like to be relieved from his present position by the end of this month.

The retirement of Mr. Scully from the sales tax division will be regretted by residents in this part of the state who have appreciated his courteous and prompt services. He has had one big advantage, due to the fact that he is thoroughly familiar with all phases of the sales tax law and various departmental regulations.

Mr. Scully was for a long period of time associated with the Fairbanks Morse company and he is greatly pleased with the opportunity which has enabled him to return to the old position he filled so many years. He will continue to reside in Plymouth and will have 16 counties in this part of the state as his territory.

Board Prepares For Big Increase In Number Of Pupils

When Plymouth's public schools open Tuesday, September 7 for the beginning of the fall term, Superintendent George A. Smith expects the largest enrollment since the establishment of public schools in this city. He is unable to estimate the number of additional pupils to be enrolled, but he is anticipating that it will be probably a hundred or more than it was last year.

Much has been done to provide for the expected increased enrollment and work which has been going on all during the summer is rapidly nearing completion.

The repairs and alterations together with the WPA additions are all progressing toward their completion in the next few days. The government job of repairing at the Starkweather school is now practically finished.

Buildings which have been undergoing thorough overhauling and remodeling, and minor playground improvements have been completed. School supplies and books are in stock and all buildings are in readiness for use.

The roof slab on the new WPA addition of Central grade school has been finished; plastering and finishing is being completed in order that the kindergarten and grade school library will be ready at the beginning of school. The addition to the manual training room will not be ready when school starts, but it will be finished near the first of October.

The footings for the addition to the girls' shower room are now in. This will double the size of the present room. It is hoped that the shower room will be completed by the opening day of school.

To Close Church Street Soon

Announcement has been made that work will soon begin on the portion of Church street directly in front of the high school, which will be closed from the Methodist church to Main street. The plans have been completed and they call for extensive improvements. The change will eliminate one of the worst traffic hazards in Plymouth.

The one-way street in front of the city hall calls for many changes, among them re-topping with tarvis and fine gravel. The park will be extended to the walk in front of the school.

Curbing is to be laid along the one road as soon as possible, and more extensive repairs and beautification plans will be carried out early in the spring.

of representatives, a request was recently made of Alfonso Magnotta, a youthful, clean-cut attorney elected from the second Calhoun county district, for permission to use an address he made a short time ago pertaining to the legislature and its work.

Mr. Magnotta is a first term in the house. His home is in Alhambra. He is an enthusiastic Democrat, one who thoroughly believes in the ideals of his party and who never lost an opportunity during the long session to help the cause of his political alliance. He detests anything that smacks of rottenness and often opposed measures that had been sponsored by some members of his own party that he did not believe to be good legislation.

His address, which will be of much interest to residents of this part of Wayne county, follows in full:

"I propose to give you some of my observations which include legislative evils—cures that I would recommend—and finally a resume of the more important bills passed during the recent session.

"On the first day of the session I listened with great deal of interest to the ex-Governor Fitzgerald and the inaugural address of Governor Frank Murphy. Ex-Governor Fitzgerald stated that the financial condition of the state was that we were two millions of dollars in the black—and not more than five minutes thereafter Governor Murphy stated that we were three millions of dollars in the red. Of course, this discrepancy of some five millions of dollars aroused my curiosity. After making a great number of inquiries, I could find no one who knew the exact financial condition of our state. As a result of my investigation, I discovered that none of the various state departments employed the same system of accounting. It seems that a solution to this is to have a master control accounting system which will cover all of our state departments. This should be done prior to the innovation of civil service—for even though we should have civil service—there would be, after each election, new heads of departments who would employ their own pet scheme or method of accounting—hence, the subordinates of these new heads of departments would have to learn their jobs anew.

"Another evil, which is perhaps the most grave of all is that good bills are sent into committees and die. The reason for this being that either the chairman of the committee, or some of the committee members have not the interests of the state at heart, but in lieu thereof have their own selfish interests in mind. At times certain members of committees refused to take action upon certain bills because they were desirous of obtaining money from the sponsors—and at other times they refused because they, themselves, had bills in other committees which had not been voted out. There were many occasions when interested groups deliberately offered money for the purpose of having bills released from committee, well knowing that the bills would serve only their own selfish group and not the people of the state of Michigan. To cure this evil, I would suggest that there be a constitutional amendment, if necessary, preventing any bill remaining in committee for more than a designated length of time—for example not more than 15 or 20 days excepting appropriation bills, which should be given additional short period of time. In other words, all bills would automatically be voted out of committee at the end of a specific interim.

"Still another evil, is that a great number of unmeritorious, nonsensical and ludicrous bills are introduced at each session of the legislature. Some are introduced for the purpose of humoring certain groups or constituents—and others are introduced—I am sorry to say—for the purpose of procuring money from the interests at which the bills are aimed. My remedy for this would be to have an advisory committee selected either by the members or by the speaker of the house—the function of this committee would be to consider and approve all bills prior to their introduction—therefore if a bill were without merit it would have no chance of being considered by the legislature—thus, good legislation would not be delayed nor retarded.

Garden City Is Easy Victor

Garden City knocked off the Plymouth Perfection team in a crucial battle by the score of 8 to 2. Wyandotte defeated Glen Gray of Highland Park 12 to 10, thus enabling Garden City, Belleville, and Wyandotte to tie Highland Park for fourth place in the play-off positions in the Michigan Inter-county league. Ray Pyle pitched for Garden City and allowed seven hits, four of which came in the first inning accounting for the two runs that the Plymouth team scored. Not a man reached second base after the first inning.

Garden City quickly overcame the lead when Hill, Smith, and Pyle each singled in the second inning to account for one run. Slug Tatro opened up the third inning with a single. He was promptly sacrificed to second by O'Brien and Charlie Wolfram lashed a single to right field to tie the score. Lovell Hill walked to open the fourth and was sacrificed to second by Smith. Pyle drove him in with a sharp single to left, his second of the day.

Joe Higgins singled to right scoring Pyle with the fourth run. In the eighth inning the Tatro, O'Brien, and C. Wolfram combination duplicated their act of the third inning when Tatro singled, O'Brien sacrificed, and Wolfram singled to drive in the run. C. Wolfram received intentional pass and Scott drove home the sixth and final run for Garden City with a long single to center.

In need of three victories and a defeat to Glenn Gray, Belleville, and Wyandotte to get into the play-offs. Garden City came through with every thing they possessed to knock off Farmington, the league-leading Cass Benton outfit, and Plymouth Perfection to qualify for the play-offs. Next Sunday the play-offs begin with seven teams participating. Garden City will play Wyandotte in Garden City.

Miss Coraline Rathburn And Carl Stringer Wed

Miss Coraline Rathburn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Rathburn, of this city, was married at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, August 21, to Carl Beecher Stringer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde W. Stringer, of Highland Park, in the Methodist Episcopal church, of Plymouth, by the Rev. Walter Nichol, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. A reception followed in the church.

The bridal party took their places before an embankment of palms and white gladiolus flanked by cathedral candelabras with lighted tapers, as Mrs. M. J. O'Connor played Mendelssohn's and Lohegrin's wedding marches, after which Miss Herma Knisel sang, "O Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly".

Mr. Rathburn gave his daughter in marriage. She was lovely in a gown of ivory lace over satin, made princess style, with long sleeves, tight fitting at wrists, and a slight train. A coronet of lace with orange blossoms held the veil of tulle in place. Her arm bouquet was of Killarney roses and orchids.

Miss Emily Petoskey, of Grandale Gardens, who was maid of honor, wore peach satin, made with pointed neck, puffed sleeves, very full skirt and a Juliet cap of peach milline. She carried Johanna Hill roses tied with ribbon of turquoise blue satin. Attendants were Miss Margaret Buzzard and Miss Flossie Rowland, of Plymouth, whose gowns were made like the maid-of-honor's, only in turquoise blue satin. Their flowers were Briarcliff roses tied with peach satin ribbon and each wore the same kind of flowers in their hair.

The bridegroom wore a white flannel suit while his best man, Harold Brown, of this city, and the ushers, Harold Ovenshire, of Detroit, and William Maneck, of Westacres, wore blue coats with white flannel trousers.

Mrs. Rathburn wore a gown of black and white crepe and a corsage of gardenias. Mrs. Stringer wore a crepe gown of ashes of roses. Her corsage was of rosebuds.

There were 200 guests at the wedding and reception, coming from Detroit, Highland Park, Lansing, Grand Rapids, Flint, Jackson, Ann Arbor, Dexter, Northville and Plymouth. Palms and baskets of garden flowers were used in the decorations for the reception.

On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Stringer left on the steamship South America for a Great Lakes cruise. For traveling the bride chose an ensemble of toast alpaca crepe with brown accessories. They will be at home after September 15, at 280 West Webster avenue, Ferndale.

Mrs. Stringer, who was born in Plymouth, and graduated from the Plymouth school in 1934, and Mr. Stringer, who has made many friends while visiting here, have the best wishes of a host of friends, in and around Plymouth, for a long, happy and contented life together.

Approve Sewer Plans

(Continued From Page One) made two trips to Washington seeking executive approval of the $900,000 grant. Senator Prentiss M. Brown and Rep. John D. Dingell, of Detroit, were active in the fight for the PWA grant.

Agitation for proper disposal of Wayne county's sewage has been going on for 20 years, during which time litigations involving pollution have been instituted in the courts of the county.

The out-county project is part of the original $23,000,000 project for the entire county, including Detroit. The two projects were separated at the insistence of PWA officials and approval was granted to the Detroit portion which constitutes about 90 percent of the original project. The out-county system will complete the county system as originally planned.

When the out-county portion was lopped off it represented a $3,000,000 outlay. In April, 1935, the committee recommended that the total cost be reduced to $2,000,000 when it was learned that federal aid for the original project would not be forthcoming.

The out-county system will link up with the Detroit system and will include all territory and institutions in the county outside of Detroit.

Construction of the project has been urged to observe the provisions of a treaty between the United States and Canada in 1909. The treaty states that steps will be taken to prevent the pollution of the Detroit river and to preserve the health of the communities of Wayne county. Senator Brown declared recently in a letter to President Roosevelt, seeking executive approval of the grant sought from the PWA, that "if the project is not approved or completed, the Detroit river will not be cleared of pollution and the United States still will be in default of its obligations as set up in the treaty."

Haggerty, 71, No Celebration

John S. Haggerty, who had charge of the pre-depression road-building program that gave Michigan one of the finest highway systems in the Union, celebrated his seventy-first birthday last Sunday.

He was born on his father's farm, within 100 feet of his present office at 10450 Michigan avenue, and attended school with Henry Ford and other members of the Ford family. Haggerty's father was on the school commission with Ford's father. Mr. Haggerty has for a number of years made his home on Canton road near Plymouth where he has a real farm place.

Anticipating that a number of people would visit him to help him celebrate in the prevalent but mistaken belief that he was turning 75, Haggerty left the following note with his office secretary:

"If any people call around here over the week-end under the delusion that I am 75 years old, just tell them they're four years wrong. Tell them I got in my high-powered motor car and drove due north over a swell macadam road which I personally laid out long before the depression. Tell them I appreciate their good wishes and you know where I keep the stuff."

Old Residents, On Way To England Stop Here For Visit

Mrs. Henry C. Hager of Casa Grande, Arizona, a former resident of Plymouth, also a former correspondent for The Plymouth Mail, accompanied by Mrs. Dorothy Coverdill, also a former resident here, were Sunday dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Bakewell, Plymouth road. During their stay in Plymouth they also visited Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Murphy, William Bartell and family, the Alfred Bakewells, Emil Schillings, William Henrys and Mrs. Rose Torre.

Mrs. Hager and Mrs. Coverdill are enroute to London, England and sailed on the Queen Mary Wednesday, August 25. This is their first return visit to their native land for 26 and 24 years respectively. They plan to return the first of November, when Mrs. Hager will return to her ranch home in Arizona and Mrs. Coverdill will go to Detroit where she will join her husband and two sons.

MANNERS OF THE MOMENT

By JEAN

MODERN mothers have a way of trying out five or six names on a newborn baby before they reach a standstill. It's disconcerting to the friends who like to give monogrammed gifts. You present the child with a gift which you have carefully embroidered with the name "George," only to discover that since you last telephoned the baby has become "Henry."

Of course we don't believe in being too harsh on these mothers.

"That's awfully sweet of you, Auntie - but we've changed her name to Jacqueline."

After all, a resourceful mother can't have enough children to use up all the names she has thought of, so probably she should be allowed to use several on each child. But we do wish that she would tell us what she's up to. She could say on the announcement, "It's a baby girl, provisionally named Nancy." Then we'd know we should go slow. Later she could send out another announcement saying, "Nancy is now Jacqueline. This is final." And we could go ahead.

But if you're up against a young mother who hasn't inaugurated this system yet you'd better not go in for named or initialed gifts until the baby is at least six months old. And if you feel you must put some kind of a word on the spoon or the bib use "Baby." It's the only safe name for a brand new child.

Fix Season For Archer Hunters

There will be a special open season on deer and bear for bow-and-arrow hunters in Michigan this fall.

The season will run from November 1 to November 14, inclusive.

It will apply only to the counties of Newaygo and Iosco, as intended and provided by law.

The special bow-and-arrow season thought at first to have been invalidated because of a technical omission by the legislature in the general game bill has been saved by another technicality.

After study of the bow-and-arrow law and the general game bill, conservation authorities have found that two sections in the bow-and-arrow law are not affected in any way by the general game bill. One of these sections sets forth the time and place for the special bow-and-arrow season and, in the opinion of the state attorney general's office, stands as law.

Following the discovery of the technical omission in the general game bill, the department of conservation cancelled an order for special bow-and-arrow licenses and license tags for hunters, since the apparent oversight alone would invalidate the bow-and-arrow season. The oversight has been corrected by discovery of another technicality which makes the season possible. The department of conservation has renewed its order for special bow-and-arrow licenses and tags for hunters and so Michigan archers will have their special open season after all.

FILLING THE NATION'S NEED.

It is becoming more and more evident each day that the great newspapers and news organizations of the country fully realize the importance of getting to the public full and correct information pertaining to affairs in Washington. They realize that never before in the history of the country is there greater need for the services of alert, intelligent and fair writers in Washington than right now. It is because of this fact that during the past two or three years outstanding news writers have been taken from posts they have long served and advanced to more important responsibilities in the nation's capitol. Michigan newspaper readers are about to suffer the loss of one of their prominent writers who, for nearly 20 years, has served the Associated Press as chief of its Lansing staff, this news organization having announced its intention of sending Gilbert Shilson to Washington. He will immediately become connected with the Washington bureau of this great news organization. The Associated Press has, over a long period of years, maintained a high standard of accuracy and efficiency in handling the news of the nation and the world. The trend of events and the times indicates that Washington is becoming the chief news center of the world and we commend the Associated Press for picking men of the caliber of Gilbert Shilson to help provide the newspaper readers with accurate news reports of what is going on in Washington. His departure from Lansing is a distinct loss to Michigan newspapers, but the country will benefit by it.

HE KNOWS.

Murl H. DeFoe, editor of The Charlotte Republican-Tribune says that Frank Fitzgerald, former governor, is a sure starter in the Republican primary next summer for re-nomination as the Republican candidate for governor. The statement coming from Editor DeFoe makes it a positive fact that Mr. Fitzgerald is a candidate. What the rest of the crop will be, no one can predict at this time, but Republicans have got to begin to think seriously about the next campaign. Governor Murphy is a dead issue, so dead that the Democrats will probably not even start him in the race. The Republican record is not one to crow about and there is a great number of people who will stay away from the polls and not vote at all if they had any idea the barnacles that sunk the Fitzgerald craft will be attached to him again. Yes, the Republicans have a whole lot to do and think about in the very near future if they hope to win in the next election.

A GOOD JOB.

The Detroit News and the Detroit Free Press forced Governor Murphy to appoint a good civil service commission. Apparently, both the News and the Free Press had a sort of secret feeling that the Governor was not so enthusiastic about civil service as he would have its real supporters believe so after the enactment of the badly amended law which opened the doors to possible political control of the system, thanks to the good editorial judgment of these worth-while metropolitan publications, they made it impossible for the Governor to do anything but select a good commission. It is hoped that they will have the same influence when it comes to the selection of the director of the new department.

Regretful Reveries

by Lawrence Hawthorne

Often times, when I am dreaming
In the twilight's gentle glow,
And my thoughts make little journeys
Back to scenes I used to know,
Then I meet, in wistful fancy,
Many friends of other days—
Friends whom I have lost forever
On life's long, divergent ways.

Oh, how joyfully I greet them,
In these dreams that can't come true;
And how eagerly I picture
All the things we used to do!
Yes, the memories awakened
By the names that come to mind
Fill this twilight hour with longing
For the friends I'll never find.

And it brings a pang of heartache
When I dearly recall
That I could have saved so many
Of those friendships, after all—
That, if I had been more faithful
To the friends of long ago,
They might now be here beside me
In the twilight's lonely glow.

GOOD CROPS MEAN PROSPERITY.

The crop report bulletin just issued from Lansing states that the August outlook for the important crops of Michigan indicate a very good condition throughout the entire state. It further indicates that the yields this year will be record breakers, the ten year average being exceeded by many points. The same favorable condition prevails throughout the country. Good crops have during the past half century always meant good times in this country. There is no question but what good crops will mean good times for the farmers and for thousands of others who always benefit when farmers are prosperous. The only one draw-back we have to face today is the fact that meddling Washington politicians have their fingers in everything farmers do. But it is doubted if even they can kill off all the benefits that are sure to come from record breaking crops.

AUGUST

The year is waxing with the moon, and sweet
The air's refulgence blows on winds fresh born;
I hear the red bird's lovely cry at morn,
And watch him flash across the golden wheat,
Where treads the hopeful farmer with quick feet;
I see, along the ocean of green corn,
The brown and golden tassels that no scorn
Could touch, they are so perfect and complete.
August, the golden month, at night afire
With star flame burning immemorally,
Filling our hearts with love's divine desire,
And lifting earthly clouds to Deity;
Then gather courage in this August rose
To face the austere winter's winds and snows.

THE MERRY-GO-ROUND.

With the announcement of the appointment of Senator Black, radical southern Democrat, as a member of the supreme court, it looks very much as though the secret of Governor Murphy's trip to Washington three or four weeks ago is no longer a secret. Apparently, the President wanted to tell our own little Frankie that he wasn't going to be a supreme judge, and he wanted to tell him in the President's own salvaging way. There is a possibility that the President does not like the way things have been messed up in Michigan during the past six or seven months, but this we doubt. At any rate, our Governor is not going to be a supreme judge, not right now, and there are a lot of people who are disappointed. They thought possibly he might leave Michigan.

RAMBLING with Editors AROUND of Michigan

THE ISSUE.

The solidly republican opposition to Governor Murphy's labor relations bill, if we understand the difference correctly, is logical and has our hearty approval. The republican plan is to confine picketing to bona-fide employees of the plant involved, which is sound. In both Eaton county strikes—the county highway and Horner Bros. Mill—outsiders have fomented the action. It is disagreeable enough for local men to engage in picketing, legal though it is, but it is intolerable to submit to outside interference by men with no sympathetic understanding or sentimental interest in disputes, usually more or less local in character. Obviously spokesmen and committees are necessary in the case of strikes in big corporations but in nine-tenths of the counties of Michigan the men would be better off and the community much happier if the settlements were left to the parties themselves. Many of our laws carry population limitations. Industries in counties under 50,000 and employing less than 200 persons should be entirely exempt from this labor legislation, intended for settlements involving thousands of employees. Everyone will agree that there is a definite difference between small and large town labor problems and conditions.—Murl H. DeFoe in The Charlotte Republican-Tribune.

OTHERS THINK SO, TOO.

In our opinion a small city is an ideal place to live. Such communities are no longer isolated from the rest of the world by mud roads. Improved highways, the telephone and radio have completely changed the mode of living. A small town now has most of the advantages available in a large metropolitan center combined with the advantage of never being more than five or ten minutes from the open country and seldom more than a half an hour from one or more fine little resort lakes. We frequently wonder if the trend of the next few decades won't be toward decentralization of large cities in favor of numerous smaller residential cities where living is much more congenial.—Dick Cook in The Hastings Banner.

NOW WILL THE AUTHORITIES INVESTIGATE?

A couple of factory workers were enjoying the contents of their lunch boxes inside a Detroit plant. About fifty men broke in and charged down upon them. One escaped with minor injuries. The other was put in the hospital after being dragged outdoors, slugged, kicked and thrown over a fence.

As a result further rioting took place and about a dozen men were injured. A strike closed the plant, cutting more than 20,000 families off a payroll.

This was much more serious than the so-called "Ford riot". In the Ford incident, no one needed hospital attention. No part of any plant was shut down. Nobody's employment was affected. But local and national law acted quickly—ruthlessly.

It makes no difference which side one favors. Assault and battery is a crime.

Will the prosecuting attorney of Wayne county move as vigorously in this Chrysler case as he did in the Ford fight? Will he call a Grand Jury to see that all circumstances are revealed? Will indict-

THE WEST

The portals of the West are ever wide,
And gloomy clouds ride slowly through the blue,
Like tranquil towers of foam from every tide,
To shut the great horizon from the view.
Each e'en the tired sun will tarry there,
To throw his crimson splendor o'er the plumes.
His daily task complete, he has no further care
And leaves the night to fold the treasured blooms.
A white mist steals across the fading gold,
To hang like garlands on the portals dim,
For neither prayer nor priest can darkness hold,
As planets gleam, like diamonds on the rim.
The portals of the West in silence sleep,
While sun and time their daily trust must keep.

ments ensue? Will anybody go to jail because of bloodshed and brutality? Where's all this "law and order"?

Will the men on National Labor Relations Board act with the same avidity that they showed in the Ford case? Are fairness, intelligence and an equitable appreciation of the rights of American citizens to be recognized? We have yet to see whether or not they will give this assault the attention it deserves.

It is significant that when riots occurred at East Lansing and a group of college kids tossed invaders into a river, no investigation resulted. No prosecutor, no Labor Relations Board, moved toward a show-up of participants.

Ignoring this issue will induce even more public revulsion against the labor-politico alliance that has permitted so much lawlessness.

The prosecutor and the labor board have their choice between the protection of law and order and the promotion of absolute anarchy.—The Detroit.

Joe Sturgeon, editor of The Gladstone Reporter emits the following. "The Queen business is overdone." We don't like our newspaper fellows to get that sour on this queen business, especially fellows like Joe. How West Schemes To Get Tax Cash

Natives of the western states, which are supposed to be infested with the "greatest horde of grasshoppers ever known" are reported as declaring stories to that effect the bunk.

Vacationers driving through the West say that only a small number of "hoppers" were seen during their entire trip. Farmers in the West have said that there is no more this year than any other year. And the great majority of these pests which are supposedly destroying all crops have been killed by the storms which have for the past month featured western weather.

It was reported from one reliable source that any story appearing in a paper telling of the horde of insect pests invading the states was pure "political" propaganda. The idea behind the whole scheme seems to be an attempt by western public officials to obtain money from the federal government with which to buy poison to destroy the "hoppers". Then, after the money is obtained, only a small amount is used for this purpose. The remainder, the greatest amount possible, is kept by the different counties to be used for whatever purpose they see fit.

Further proof of this statement is to be found in the fact that crops in the west are expected to reach a new all-time high. Every available acre of productive land is utilized to the fullest possible extent, with irrigation ditches working overtime to feed the dry lands. The corn and wheat crops look better than in a number of years, and all indications point toward a "horde of wheat and corn" rather than toward "hoppers" which are supposed to have destroyed the farmers' chances of making a decent living this year.

What Others Think About Secrecy In The Gambling Inquiry

Following is a copy of the letter sent early last week to Lansing pertaining to the decision to conduct the gambling investigation in secret; to which no reply has been received:

August 17, 1937

Honorable Carl F. DeLano, Chairman
Legislative Committee Of Inquiry Into Gambling, Lansing, Michigan.

Dear Mr. DeLano:
To my surprise I read in The Free Press this morning that the members of the special legislative committee, appointed to investigate the cause and the continuance of widespread gambling in this state, and especially the flood of slot machines that came into rural Wayne county after the election of Governor Murphy, have decided to conduct the inquiry in secret.

I can see no good purpose in this decision. As the members of your committee know, I sponsored that resolution calling for this investigation for the very purpose of permitting the people of this state to know all of the facts pertaining to this subject that a searching inquiry might reveal.

One of the great troubles of today is the fact that the public is not advised sufficiently about these matters.

Newspapers quote your statement for closing the doors of the inquiry to the public "because a great many committee hearings in Washington on various matters have been held in such a way as to crucify innocent people by unfair publicity . . ."

I can conceive of no one interested in the gambling business or in any way associated with it, being "crucified" because they might happen to testify before a committee of inquiry such as yours.

If there are public officials who are suspected of not having performed their sworn duties, even though they might not be guilty of a crime, the people should be fully advised as to every detail pertaining to their knowledge of this matter.

It would seem, too, that the committee, for its own good, should desire to have everything pertaining to the hearings in the open. Delving into a matter of this kind is serious business and I can see no good purpose in conducting the inquiry back of locked doors.

There is nothing lost by letting the public know ALL THE TRUTH your committee should be able to uncover. I sincerely hope that you will revoke the decision and that ALL of your hearings will be conducted in the open.

Respectfully,
ELTON R. EATON.

Following is the editorial comment of two Detroit papers on the matter:

THE GAMBLING INVESTIGATORS.

Representative Elton R. Eaton, Plymouth's member of the legislature, gives a reason why the legislature's special inquiry into gambling in Michigan should be conducted in open sessions. He sponsored the resolution calling for the investigation. "There is nothing lost," he mildly states, "by letting the public know all the truth."

Nothing can be gained if the public is not fully informed. Witnesses interested in gambling enterprises—police and other officials bearing responsibilities for enforcing the anti-gambling laws—must be put under oath and be required to testify publicly, if the inquiry is to amount to anything.

The secret sessions are in keeping with the fact that secrecy and unlawful gambling go together.—The Detroit News.

NO EXCUSE FOR SECRECY.

Although various excuses have been offered for secrecy in the legislative committee investigation of gambling in Michigan, we have failed to see or hear one which amounts to anything on the ground that he did not want the inquiry turned into a circus.

The plea is a contention that the members of the committee are not competent to run an open session in a decent orderly way. Which is a very sad admission to make.

The investigation not being a grand jury session, but simply a fact finding activity, we can think of only one conceivable reason for star chamber sessions.

This is a fear by somebody that somebody may tell something about somebody that somebody else wants to protect in some way or another.

The gambling situation is a serious matter. It is a subject upon which the public has a right to the fullest information. It is a major evil, and citizens and taxpayers are entitled to know all that anybody can find out about the extent to which it exists, where it exists, and how and by whom it is protected, if it is protected.

There is no way the public can feel sure it is getting this information except through an honest, thorough, public probe within the hearing of all the world.

It is all very lovely for Chairman DeLano to report at the end of the first hearing that he and his fellow committee members have received valuable information. But the public has a right to be in a position to judge of that.

Secrecy in legislative inquiries all too often is productive of whitewash and little else.—The Detroit Free Press.

Duck Season To Open Oct. 9th

The duck and goose hunting season will open one day earlier in Michigan and throughout the country this fall under the amended migratory waterfowl regulations made effective by the United States Bureau of Biological Survey.

The season this fall on migratory waterfowl, which includes jacksnipe, coots, rails and gallinules as well as ducks, geese and brant, will be from October 9 to November 7, a full 30-day open season. Last year the season ran from October 10 to November 8.

The state conservation commission at its August meeting formally made the state seasons and bag limits conform with federal regulations. It extended the open season on woodcock four days in the lower peninsula so as to coincide with the upland bird hunting season in the lower peninsula, which runs from October 15 to October 31, inclusive.

In the upper peninsula the woodcock season will be the same as last year, October 1 to October 12.

Sewer Projects Near Finish

The WPA sewer projects which were begun last November will be completed sometime this week, Manager Elliott has announced.

That on Pacific street, near Arthur, will be finished as scheduled. The city has laid 7500 feet of water main during this period, laying a 12-inch line on Evergreen and South Main streets, and 6-inch lines on Sutherland, Ross, Simpson and Hartsough and on Williams from Evergreen to Pacific.

Along with the installation of the water main on Pacific, the city has installed sewer lines from Williams to Farmer. A 2-inch line formerly supplied the water, but it was leaking so badly that a change was necessary. The new lines will insure a saving of a great amount of water and will cut operating costs to a considerable extent, Elliott said.

Connections for every lot near Pacific and Williams are being installed and will be completed this week. The WPA curbing project on Burroughs street is now more than half completed and work will be entirely finished within the next week or so.

FIRST AID TO THE AILING HOUSE

By Roger B. Whitman
DON'T BUY WORN-OUT HOUSE

WHEN a family goes house-hunting, the first thought is for location, and the second for a house with the necessary number of rooms. Satisfied on these points, the choice is likely to go to the house that is attractive in appearance and prettily decorated. Unfortunately, little thought may be given to another point, although as a matter of fact, it is of high importance. This is the judging of the house by what it will cost to occupy; what the heating cost will be, and the probable need for future repairs and replacements. The purchase price is paid but once, while the costs of occupancy go on for as long as the house is lived in. The lower they are, the better. For an example, consider two houses, that while otherwise the same, have differences in construction that make it possible for one of them to be heated for $50 less per winter than the other. The house that makes the saving is a better buy than the other, even though the purchase price may be higher.

If the previous occupant of a house can be located, he should be asked about the amount of fuel that was burned. Another source of information is a local dealer in coal or oil. Quite often a next-door neighbor will know.

A house that has previously been lived in will need redecoration and the refinishing of floors. This is to be expected. But before papers are signed, the prospective owner should know more about the house than shows on the surface. He should know the condition of the water pipes, the stiffness of the house, the length of life that is to be expected from the roof and other matters that are usually beyond the knowledge and experience of an average prospective home owner.

A house is security for the money that it costs, and like any good security, should retain its value. I believe that a buyer will find that his money is well spent in engaging an architect or a competent and unbiased builder to make a thorough examination of the house, and to report on its condition. This will show the extent of depreciation. It will also be a guide as to the repairs and replacements that will be necessary in the future—the condition of the heating plant, the soundness of the timbers, the resistance of walls and roof to weather and to leakage of air and water, the soundness of the masonry and the condition of the mortar joints. All of those details have a bearing on the real value of the house, and on the maintenance expenses to which an owner will be subjected. The fee for examination will not be great, but whatever it may be, it will be little enough to pay for protection against the buying of a poorly built house.

Home of the Celt
Little reference is made to Britain in the ancient classics, save that Pliny speaks of it as the "Looking-on Peninsula," with its eye and vision set upon the Atlantic, and Caesar tells something of the fighting qualities of the Veneti who inhabited the southwestern seacoast. As is well known, it is the home of the Celt, and neither the highlands of Scotland nor the west of Ireland, nor Wales can produce a finer type of that ancient race that dowered Europe with a civilization long before Homer sang of the Greek gods.

This house is badly wrecked as can be seen by this picture, and in a peculiar manner. The house belongs to A. Claude Wilson, Wheatland township, Hilldale county, and the cyclone which struck there June 20, 1937 did this damage. This wreck was caused by flying boards and timbers from a house across and about 20 rods down the road, belonging to a neighbor, and which was totally destroyed by this windstorm. Mr. Wilson's barn was also completely destroyed besides considerable other damage was done. This company promptly paid the loss as follows: $1000 on house, $1800 on barn, $133.50 on site, $75 on windmill, $24 on furniture, $50 on livestock, $124 on farm tools, $54 on hay and grain and $189 other damage. It paid this policy holder to have windstorm insurance with this old company.

Crop Average Beats Record

The outlook on August 1 was generally good for all of Michigan's important crops. The composite condition of 16 leading crops stood at 81.2 percent, normal, the highest for this month during nine years of available records, and a gain of 2.2 points over the July 1 figure. The corresponding condition a year ago was 61.9 percent. While the damage caused by excessive rains in low land areas of southern Michigan in earlier months could only be repaired in part, the major portion of the state is in very good condition according to V. H. Church, senior agricultural statistician for the federal state crop reporting service.

The state's potential corn crop is estimated at 55,080,000 bushels.

the condition being five points better than a month ago, 20 points higher than a year ago, and six points above the 10-year average. Wheat suffered severely from black rust in most of the southern counties which caused much shrunken and light-weight grain and lowered the average yield per acre to 19.5 bushels which is one bushel below the 10-year average. The yield of rye is 12.5 bushels per acre which is just slightly below average. The prospects for oats and barley are about average for the state as a whole, although the yield and straw were greatly shortened in northern counties because of early-season drought which was not broken until July.

The weather has been unusually favorable for beans in recent weeks with the result that the condition improved three points during July and added 80 pounds per acre to the indicated crop, giving a total prospective production of 3,570,000 bags as compared with 2,656,000 bags in 1936. Potatoes have shown satisfactory progress except in some southern counties which have been troubled with excess moisture throughout the current growing season. The early crop is yielding better than usual. The indicated crop is 31-

130,000 bushels, or 5,000,000 bushels more than was harvested last year.

While sugar beets stands in numerous localities were damaged by early-season wet weather, the remaining stands have made good growth and show slightly better than an average condition. Second cuttings of alfalfa hay are being made with better yields being obtained than expected earlier. While pasture conditions have declined somewhat, recent rains have revived them and the August 1 condition was 11 points above average for that date.

Michigan housewives who still follow the practice of doing their own canning should take advantage of the current season's bumper fruit crop to fully restock their fruit cupboards. Not only is the crop of every kind of fruit in Michigan large this year, but the quality, flavor, and size promise to be unusually good. With a large fruit crop reported in practically all states, prices undoubtedly will be lower than in any recent year. This is a fortunate circumstance for the consumer at a time when prices of most of the other foods are moving steadily upward; and by taking advantage of the situation the public can materially aid fruit growers by thus creating an expanded market.

Michigan is the leading state in the production of cherries, and the crop this year is the largest on record. While the total crop was reduced by several million pounds as the result of a severe storm in the northern portion of the cherry belt on July 25, the harvested crop is estimated at 39,100 tons. The increase over other years is largely due to the rapidly expanding bearing capacity of the heavy settings of trees made yearly during the past 15 years.

In going across the state, observations on crops were that they are uniformly good. State reports show that the prospects for large crops are extremely good.

A visit to the South Haven experiment sub-station showed the remarkable results being obtained with the cultivated blueberry. A planting of four or five different varieties will give a six or seven weeks picking season. The bushes require an acid soil and a water table of fourteen inches for best growth.

If a green striped measuring worm is working on your bean plants please report it to the county agent office.

The second brood of codling moth is out and the apples should be sprayed for its control. If the apples are to be washed with chemicals use 3 pounds of lead arsenate in 100 gallons of water; otherwise, use Summer oil emulsion 3 quarts plus 2.4 pints of 40 percent nicotine sulphate in 100 gallons of water alone.

The moths lay their eggs during the night time when the temperature reaches 62 degrees F. or more. The eggs hatch a few days afterward, if the weather remains warm.

According to the June-July dairy news-letter corn for silage should be cut "in the dough". Dent corn silage cut when in the dough stage will contain 79 pounds more dry matter and 5.4 pounds more total digestible nutrients than dent corn silage cut in the milk stage.

It will take almost a bushel and a half of silage made from corn "in the milk" to equal in feeding value one bushel of silage made from corn "in the dough". If the corn grain is dented and hard so that at filling time you can hear the shelled corn rattling up the pipe, the crop will be too dry to pack properly in the silo. Spoilage is apt to result.

Plan to exhibit some of your products at the Northville-Wayne county fair August 25-28 entries should be made before 10 a.m. Wednesday, August 25.

Common barberries numbering 180,000 have been eradicated in the past year from 1,250 properties in the lower peninsula of Michigan, making a total of 6-325,000 from 16,000 properties in Michigan since the campaign started in 1918. The leaves of common barberry bushes are the breeding places of black stem rust, a dreaded fungus disease of small grains. The eradication program is carried on cooperatively by the United States department of agriculture, the state department of agriculture and Michigan State college.

Survey in 1936-37 has been completed in Allegan, Barry, Berrien, Clinton, Eaton, Gratiot, Ingham, Ionia, Kalamazoo, Lenawee, Livingston, Monroe, Oakland, St. Joseph, Wayne and Van Buren counties. Crews composed of local WPA employees are now working in Bay, Branch, Calhoun, Kent, Montcalm, Saginaw and Washtenaw counties. Work in Washtenaw county was completed August 15 and work will be commenced in Hillsdale and Tuscola counties. In the upper peninsula former barberry locations are being surveyed and work done in cities and towns. At present men are employed in the vicinity of Stambaugh and Iron River.

The majority of harmful barberries eradicated during the year have been in Allegan, Barry, Oakland, Washtenaw and Wayne counties. In Washtenaw county alone 54,300 harmful barberries have been eradicated since July 1, 1936, making a total of 104,000 in that county since 1918.

Common barberry is not a native to this country. The original bushes were planted prior to 1918. The majority of bushes eradicated during the past few years are the result of birds having taken the fruit and scattered the seeds in uncultivated places. Most of the bushes in Washtenaw county were in woodlots and along the banks of the Huron river where they had escaped from cultivation. Common barberries today are most likely to be found in uncultivated areas near early settlements, old nurseries, old cemeteries, homesteads and large estates. A few planted bushes having previously escaped notice are occasionally found on old properties.

Barberry bushes are difficult to dig among roots of other plants and cannot be treated with chemicals in such places. Consequently sprouting bushes are sometimes found on old locations. In uncultivated areas the bushes are usually killed by placing salt in and around the crown. About 20 pounds to each foot in diameter is used.

The common barberry, Berberis vulgaris, must not be confused with the Japanese barberry, Berberis thunbergii, which is a desirable bush not susceptible to stem rust. Harmful barberry has saw tooth edged leaves, gray outer bark, clustered oval red berries and usually three to five thorns under each group of leaves. Harmless Japanese barberry has smooth edged leaves, reddish brown outer bark, oval red berries, single or only two to three on a stem, and usually single thorns under each group of leaves, although there may be more. All barberries have deep yellow under bark and roots.

In growth the habit of harmful barberry is upright, sometimes to a height of 15 feet while the harmless Japanese variety is low and rounded, seldom exceeding four and a half feet.

Reports of the location of harmful common barberries may be made to F. B. Fowers, associate pathologist in charge of barberry eradication, Room 211, New Post Office building, Lansing, Michigan.

The TONQUISH CREEK BREEZE

Published at Tonquish Creek, Michigan

The People's Watch Dog Vol. 1 No. 13

The BREEZE scoops the whole town again! See the picture? That's exclusive in The BREEZE. No other paper has got it or can get it. The other day three Cherry Hillers came rolling into the Creek with some sort of a new contraption they call an auto-buggy. Sitting behind a funny little wheel was Cascker Paul Weidman. Next to him was Fred Schrader and hanging over the edge of the outside of the seat was Clair Maben. They wanted to show how good were the springs in the auto-buggy made way back in 1914 by Henry Ford, who used to come to the Creek once in a while before it got to taking on city ways. The auto-buggy goes without horses pulling it and it will stop without anybody yelling whoa. The BREEZE hurried out and got a picture of the funny looking contraption and presents it herewith to exclusive BREEZE readers. Our competition is so dead from the heels up that it wouldn't know a good news item or a good news picture if it saw one. That's why The BREEZE is going right to town. Reading from left to right, there is Creeker Clair Maben, who quit the Furry League as president, when it got into a jam over The Fourth of July celebration, next is Fred D. Schrader, who refuses to talk about anything that belongs to the tiger family and beams with glee when something is said about buffaloes, and last but not least by 38 pounds or thereabouts is Paul Weidman, who met his Waterloo in the first battle fit over Tonquish creek. Note—(The editor would be glad to receive some praising letters from readers about this exclusive picture in The BREEZE. It would seem as though some of our readers should write in anyway without being asked to do it.)

THREE CREEKER HICKERS

soon in this place. Several are itching to be the new Creek constable.

Charles Finlan has got a new book up at his house. It tells about a new cure for bunions. He says he hasn't got any, but he wants to know about how to cure 'em so he can help 'out his neighbors.

There's a new milliner coming to town. That's why all the boys have been hanging around the corner down by the Mayflower lately. She wrote Clair Maben about getting some meals at his eating place.

The friends of Newt Budd regret to learn that he is recovering from a severe illness. They had all planned to go to his funeral.

Fred Schrader has been trying to get some help in the Creek to cut wood on shares. He says everybody he has talked with wants all the wood for the sake of cutting it. He can't figure out from that what his share would be.

The smell from the Tonquish has sort of left the place and everybody misses it. Walt Harms says it's just like the Missouri. When they have a flood along the Missouri it washes all the dead fish and livestock down stream and takes the odor along with it.

That's why there has not been much smell along the Tonquish. There's been so many floods there's nothing left but the bottom of the creek.

Russ Cutler has been lawing it this week down at the court house.

There's a new hired man out at Perry Richwine's farm. Some of the neighbors said they thought it was the Creeker barrister working out in the fields in his shirt sleeves, but those who know him said such a thing was unheard of. So it must be there's a hired man out there.

An old timer, Charles Bennett, dropped into a Creek meeting the other day. He said the place looked natural and wanted to know if the boys would like some pop to drink. He didn't like it very well when some of 'em insisted on having beer instead of something soft. He probably won't come back again because all the Creekers said they were thirsty. There's no use in spoiling hospitality.

Some talk has been going around the Creek about a new breed of dead-beats they've been calling "chislers". The BREEZE editor can't see any connection. A "deadbeat" don't pay his lawful debts and a "chisler" the town folks say is some one who wants something for nothing and stabs the fellow in the back who gives him something for nothing. Well, The BREEZE hopes that nothing like that comes to the Creek to stay for keeps.

Doc. Butz is reported to be hurrying back from the Canadian wilds where he has been fishing for some big fish. The BREEZE can't understand why he had to there's such big suckers in the Tonquish. It sort of looks as though he wanted to try and out-smart Creeker Maben who fishes only the Tonquish. It would be funny if he didn't get anything after his wild goose chase.
