Winter Meeting Of 'Glad' Society

The winter meeting of the Michigan Gladiolus society was held Saturday, December 4, in the horticultural building of the Michigan State college at East Lansing.

Some 100 members of the society braved the blizzard and treacherous roads to attend the meeting.

A bulb show was held in which many of the members competed. Following this two very interesting reels of colored motion pictures were shown in the auditorium. One reel was taken at a well known 150-acre Gladiolus farm and was a beautiful sight. The other reel showed some of the new varieties taken of Gladiolus growing in various parts of the state.

Prof. Ray Nelson of the horticultural department of the state college was scheduled to give a talk on "New Tests in Gladiolus Bulb Diseases", but unfortunately Prof. Nelson was discussing diseases of another sort, having been confined to his bed by illness for the past two weeks. To take his place, the college showed some interesting colored pictures of several new varieties of Dahlias. Clarence E. Sheely of Monroe, Michigan gave a talk on new varieties of merit.

The use of dogs in warfare is not a modern idea. During the Middle Ages, dogs even went into battle clothed in armor, and today a suit of dog armor may be seen in the tower of London.

Mr. Brattle was mad at his wife, according to the Dublin police, and so he moved into a one-room cabin near his home. In addition to the livestock he took with him grain, eggs and several thousand dried fish. He milked the cow regularly, fed all his guests daily. Lived quite happily, according to his own testimony afterwards.

MANNERS OF THE MOMENT

PEOPLE who wouldn't think of a drinking coffee with the spoon in the cup seem to think nothing of handing you a cocktail with a tortuous looking toothpick sticking up from the olive or the cherry. If you drink the cocktail first you run the risk of spiking an eye with the toothpick. And if you reverse the process you get neat little drops up the front of your best frock.

The only safe solution we know of is to take the toothpick out of the cherry right at the start by pulling the contrivance up against the side of the glass. Then, if you have a plate or a cocktail napkin, put the toothpick down, and when you finish the cocktail pick up the toothpick again, spike your quarry and eat it without drippings.

If you aren't given a plate or a napkin you'll have to hold the toothpick in your left hand and wave it around, hoping that the hostess will walk by and get jabbed with it.

We seriously suggest to hostesses that they pass the toothpicks separately along with the canapés. It's nice to have your cherries and eat them, too—but most people are fond of their eyes and their best dresses as well.

FIRST AID TO THE AILING HOUSE

By Roger B. Whitman

BOILER INSULATION

SOME years ago I bought a new boiler for my steam heating system. The sides and top were covered with enameled sheet metal, and the whole thing was very attractive in appearance. But the outside surfaces were hot to the touch, and the cellar was distinctly warm.

This radiation of heat by the boiler was pure waste. I did not need heat in my cellar, and the heating of that space meant that less of the heat of the fire was available for the warming of the upstairs rooms.

After two seasons, I took off the sheet metal surfaces, and found thicknesses of asbestos board underneath. There were openings between the sheets and behind them. This gave plenty of space for circulation of air underneath the sheet metal, and was largely responsible for the wastage.

All of the insulation was taken off to the bare metal. The unevenness of the metal surface was filled with a cement intended for high temperatures; cement made of rock wool was used, although asbestos cement would have been just as effective. The boiler was then covered with an inch-and-a-half of good insulating material, a layer of cement was put on top and covered with heavy muslin. When the insulation had dried out, the job was finished with aluminum paint. Now, even when the fire is going full blast, the outside is only faintly warm to the touch. Fuel is being burned far more efficiently; a larger portion of the heat is passing to the upstairs rooms. Aside from the unheated attic, the cellar is now the coolest part of the house, which is as it should be.

Several kinds of insulation are available for such a job: magnesia blocks or rock wool blocks are especially effective.

The covering of a boiler with magnesia or rock wool blocks is by no means impossible for anyone handy with tools, but I believe that a professional job is worth while because it is more likely to be fully efficient.

Hunts Deer For 46 Years

Ernest Krause and daughter, Miss Alice Krause of Fowlerville returned recently from their annual deer hunt near Match Wood, Michigan, a distance of 586 miles north. A 16-inch snow prevented successful hunting this year, he said.

Mr. Krause, who is 70 years of age, says he has gone big game hunting in the north for the past 46 years and does not plan to retire from the sport until he reaches the half-century mark. Out of the 46 years, there were only two years when he returned home without game.

Grow Gladiolus In Your Garden

(By O. P. STANCER) (Installation No. 4)

While it is true that the Gladiolus like lots of fertilizer for rapid luxuriant growth, yet care must be used in the fertilizer used. Care should be used in the use of fertilizer or manures heavy in nitrogen, such as dried blood, nitrate of soda, sulphate of ammonia, chicken or sheep manure. Too much nitrogen will give a luxuriant growth but soft, watery stems and blooms which will not keep as well as they should, then too, the new bulbs formed for next year's planting may be soft and prone to disease.

Good, thoroughly decayed stable manure if obtainable makes a good fertilizer for Gladiolus growth. If well rotted stable manure is used best results will be obtained by applying in the fall, but if that is not possible then it may be used in the spring. Fork it in as deep as possible so that it will be mixed with the soil considerably below the bulbs which will be placed from four to six inches in depth. The manure must not touch the bulbs. If the well rotted manure is spread on the ground in the spring, and then plowed under as long as possible before planting time, the manure will then be far enough down to prevent contact with the bulb.

Green or fresh manure must not be used before planting, as it has a tendency to burn the bulb or the tender young roots as they start. Your success will depend in part on a good husky root system and anything which will retard or harm the root system will be sure to jeopardize your chance of success. If the manure is not dug down deep enough, the root system will be established too near the surface of the soil, thereby causing trouble later from drought or damage through cultivation.

If commercial fertilizer is used at time of planting, first dig the trench in which the bulbs will be planted, digging it about eight inches wide and eight inches deep. Scatter the fertilizer in the bottom of the trench and work well into the soil in the bottom of the trench with a hoe. To make sure that the fertilizer will not touch the bulbs when planted, or the young tender roots as they start, fill in an inch or so of soil over the top of the fertilizer. You are now ready to plant your bulbs.

Providing you are planting in rows and have ample space, it is recommended that the bulbs be spaced from six inches to eight inches apart. The bulbs should be carefully set in, making sure they are right side up, and from four to six inches from the surface to the top of the bulb after planting.

Depth to plant depends on the type of soil. Four inches or a little less in heavy soil; five inches in medium loam and six inches in light sandy soil.

Fill in the trench and make sure that soil around and above the bulbs is firm and make sure there are no voids or hollow spots.

The distance between the rows may be from a minimum of 18 inches up to around 30 inches so that ample cultivation may be used.

The next installment will cover care after planting.

Hamill Tells Of Growth Of Community Recreations

Committee Finds Its Efforts Much Worth While

The Community Recreation Commission, whose aim it is to provide healthful and educational recreation for all children and young people within the school district, was first begun about seven years ago by members of the school board and two members from the city commission. The program has been steadily enlarged until now it includes representatives of the churches, the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs, the Woman's Club, and the Youth Federation, states Herald Hamill, its chairman.

Baseball schedules, similar to those arranged for basketball in winter, are provided for recreation during the summer months. In the past two years an extensive playground program, under the direction of M. H. Jacobi, has been inaugurated and is arranged to take care of children of all ages. The latter program has met with particular success, but additional funds must be available in order to extend the play activities to a larger number of children. Mr. Hamill said: "Swimming, tennis, games and creative work is sponsored during these activity periods, and every effort is made to provide the type of play most suited to the individual in order that his leisure time will mean development rather than arrested growth. This program cost the taxpayers of this city only three cents per person last summer, which is a small amount in comparison to the taxes levied to take care of delinquents in the state. Mr. Hamill stated that the chief aim of the recreation commission was to keep the young people of the city busy, providing those activities that will engender wholesome play and development of character—both mentally and socially, thus avoiding the notable contributing factor to misdemeanors. As a result of this program thus far, group leaders have observed a noticeable rise in leadership, cooperation, and sportsmanship.

Another of the successful projects of the commission has been carried out in the Plymouth schools. Supt. of Schools George A. Smith, in collaboration with the school board, has provided an "opportunity" room in the school house which is opened every school day from 3:30 to 5:00 p.m. Here the student has the opportunity of making what he likes, being privileged to use all available tools and materials. In addition, special rooms in the building are equipped with a variety of games which the students are invited to use during the noon hour of the school week. On Saturday mornings, boys meet according to age groups to play basketball.

John Holmes, who started with Swift & Company as a messenger boy 31 years ago and became president of the company recently. He succeeded G. F. Swift, a son of the founder of the business, as executive head of an organization of 60,000 employees engaged in the dressing of live stock and nationwide distribution of meat, poultry, eggs, butter, cheese and by-products. Mr. Swift will continue active participation in the business as vice chairman of the board of directors.

WINS RECOGNITION A Commendation

Plymouth, Mich. Plymouth, Michigan December 2, 1937 Dear Editor:

Taxpayers are again receiving tax notices that their taxes must be paid by a certain date to avoid penalty. And at the same time people on the welfare, on salary and those added parasites on the payroll are more able to pay those unjust taxes than many of property owners, who have no work and have put their savings into taxable property.

Their overhead expenses have been raised through rings, combines and strikes, their good investments have been taken over by the government or companies, interest on their savings reduced, their savings tied up in banks without interest or stolen through stocks or bonds planned and executed. It now requires bank interest on over $8,000 to pay taxes and upkeep on a small home, which means that the price of their home is tied up on which they are forced to pay taxes on. It has raised rents, and forced property values down, where neither renter nor owner knows what to do. It is easy for a dictator to do big things and become a great man in the eyes of those that have no principal and want to live on the taxpayers. Taxpayers are like a whipped dog; they have no say where or how their tax money shall be spent; and the more they kick and squeal, harder comes down the lash.

Taxes and improvements should be according to people's ability to pay.

Governors' homes should be large enough for taxpayers that will lose their homes through taxation; if the present government condition and the present tax system continues.

Taxpayers, consumers, honest laborers and preachers of the gospel, come out of that coma and let your spirit go into action and organize. We are on the verge of one of the greatest depressions that this country has ever seen. Stand for your rights and honesty. Do not allow any more people to be swindled but crime to allow others and yourself and those that are depending on you to be swindled as it is to wrong others.

Sincerely yours,
Pioneer Taxpayer

Baseball Sage Speaks Views

What do some of Plymouth's baseball fans think about the recent shake-up in Detroit Tiger circles? That's easy to find out. Maybe the expressions of Earl Gray, Plymouth baseball authority and well known sand-lot umpire, best expresses the opinion of the majority.

He declares: "G. Walker is a good ball chaser, but what good is that when a pitcher serves the apple up to the batter on the platter? Kennedy needs an experienced receiver to produce results.

"Owen was slower last year and could not get his legs to respond until late, while G. Walker is a good fielder and hitter but a questionable thrower.

"Piet is just as popular a player as G. Walker and can deliver anywhere in the infield on a pinch.

"How about those two infielders Cochrane had down around Toledo, and how about Laabs? I am not paid to run a popularity contest, but a baseball team," says Mickey. Analyze the above statement and you have, "Let a good popular player go and you will get publicity; publicity will make the turnstiles click, turnstile clicks pay salaries, and bring profits to the owners."

"With Cochrane catching in 1938, watch Lawson, Kennedy, Auker, Bridges, Wade and Pfofenberger (note the order named) with the aid of Charlie, Rudy, Hank and Chet's war clubs."

P. T. A. WILL MEET MONDAY NIGHT

Farmers Union President Tells How Producers Can Be Aided

Ira Wilmoth Makes Radio Appeal For Producers

What can be done to help out the farmers of this country and place their income up to a point where it will properly sustain a farmer and his family was clearly set forth in a recent radio address delivered from an important Chicago radio station by Ira Wilmoth of Adrian, president of the Michigan Farmers' Union. Of such interest to the farmers in this part of Michigan is his address that The Plymouth Mail has been given permission to publish it. The address follows: "Members of the Farmers' Union, farmers of America and all friends of agriculture: I bring you greetings from the Farm Union members of my home state of Michigan. To the National Broadcasting company and to President Everson I am indebted for this opportunity to speak to you today. As the state president of the Farmers' Union of Michigan, I shall use this precious time to speak to you on the subject of leadership in general, and in particular as leadership pertains to the working out of the program for agriculture as adopted by the National Farmers' Union. "I shall open my address with a quotation from the Book of Exodus. The quotation is, 'It was during those days that Moses, now a man, once went out to his fellow countrymen. He noted the Jaywalkers on the public square in Cleveland were politely reminded by police that using a red flag placed there for their convenience "might" help them in darting across the streets when the traffic lights were against them. It was all part of a traffic safety campaign to reduce the number of motor fatalities that have been mounting rapidly.

ment for the farmer, who with the hardest kind of labor, raises the products which feed and clothe all of the men, women and children of America. It is the farmer who is to be thanked for the good health and strength which comes as a result of the fine foods which he produces. This is very rough and cruel treatment for the farmer, who with his interest payments and principal payments, supports banks, trust companies, insurance companies and private lenders of money. This is pretty severe treatment for the men who by their purchases of farm machinery give work and money to thousands of factory workers, of office and merchandising people. "These cruel things that are over-taking the farmers of America are no secrets. Presidents of the United States have known these things for years. Congress after congress has struggled with this pressing problem. Great efforts have been put forth. Extensive plans have been carefully laid and carried out, yet the acute problem still remains with us. "Here then is a condition such as Moses faced when he saw the heavy burdens which the Egyptians placed upon the Israelites. Here is a clear case of economic oppression. Here is a magnificent opportunity for leadership. From this terrible situation arises the sob of men, women and children torn from their homesteads. Above the surge of the sob of millions of farm folk can once again be heard the voice of the God of Justice and Mercy. "Pharaoh, let my people go. Pharaoh, let my people go." "Let us remember that it was Moses' brother, Aaron who made for the people a golden calf that they might worship it. Let not gold in any form turn us aside from what we know to be the only just remedy for the farmers' woes. Without steadfast convictions, without a passion to stick to a high and lofty principle of justice, there will be a thousand opportunities presented to accept
