With The Masons

The Masons of Plymouth with their friends from Northville, Farmington and Detroit, spent a very pleasant evening at the Masonic Temple in Plymouth last Friday, February 23.

The ladies of the Eastern Star provided a turkey dinner that was very much enjoyed.

The speaker of the evening, Brother George Ferguson, of Four Square lodge, Detroit, gave an interesting talk. His subject, "My America," gave the audience something to take away with them.

Owing to the limited time, Brother Ferguson's talk had to be shortened, but it is hoped that he will return in the near future.

Brother George Thomas entertained with a group of piano selections after which there was community singing led by Brother Chauncey Rauch.

Dinner for about 200 was served and Worshipful Master Hearn and the Brothers that helped to plan the meeting were very pleased by the large attendance. Some of Plymouth's oldest Masons were present.

After the dinner and entertainment in the dining room, local Masons and their visiting Brothers retired to the lodge rooms where the third degree was exemplified by the Plymouth Rock Fellowship team.

The next meeting will be the regular monthly meeting, tonight (Friday), March 1, at 7:30 o'clock. Refreshments will be served in the dining room after the meeting and Brother James Gallimore will show motion pictures, some of them having been taken locally.

Ecorse Raiders Swamp Plymouth

Take Lead From Rocks Early in Game

Leading throughout the game, February 21 except in the first few minutes of play, the Red Raiders from Ecorse outscored the Plymouth quintet, and went home the victors.

Ecorse scored first with a field goal and a Plymouth tied the score with a duplicate. Prough then hooped two baskets to throw the Rock five into the lead, but Ecorse, finding her footing, forged ahead with a series of baskets, making the score 8-5.

The second quarter opened with an Ecorse basket, two field goals in quick succession. Plymouth kept in the running by also sinking two field goals. Free throws were exchanged by both teams, and both were made good.

The fourth period opened with an Ecorse basket, two field goals in quick succession. Plymouth kept in the running by also sinking two field goals. Free throws were exchanged by both teams, and both were made good.

Norman was high point man for Plymouth with nine points, and Prough was second with seven.

As a whole, the game wasn't as exciting as usual, since neither team seemed to open up. Both defenses were working well, but the Ecorse offense seemed to click a little better.

Summary:

Behind Closed Doors

The subject this week will soon emerge from "Behind Closed Doors" as it concerns the Senior play. Dress rehearsal will be given soon. Next week cuts of the play will be presented to a general school assembly.

One thousand tickets have been printed for the affair—all of which are rapidly being sold. However, Chairman Gladys Sawlow seems to be working overtime.

As all advertisements show, Nancy Alexander and Betty Overman are the stars in the play, "The Laurel." Quite an interesting outlook can be taken of the play since Walt Spence, the author, also wrote "Jane Eyre," the play given by this year's junior class.

Wedding veils, rings, chairs, vases, roses, etc., are all included on the list of properties and from this it can be seen that a romance is involved. Who knows—perhaps even an eternal triangle!

Anyhow, the place: High school auditorium; the date: March 7 and 8, the time: 8:30 p.m. We'll be seeing you there.

Inaugurate Monitor System

Don Blackford, chief of police at the high school, has now completely installed the new system of student monitors in the halls. Chief Blackford began his work immediately following the inaugural assembly the fifteenth of the month.

The term "game" has a broad enough meaning in law to include fish and even shellfish, like clams.

Baker Hero as Rocks Win

Plymouth Five Closes Successful Season

Jack Baker tipped the missed foul shot in the last 25 seconds of a 3-minute overtime period Friday evening at Northville to enable Plymouth to defeat Northville 36-34 in the last game of the season.

Baker's feat came as a post-climax to the game in which the lead was tied 32 times at 41 at a time when five of the Plymouth regulars had been forced from the game with four personal fouls apiece.

The regular four quarters of play in which Plymouth was at one time as much as 8 points ahead ended 32-32 when Northville, rallying in the last quarter, scored 12 points.

Joe Scarfulla, the only first stringer on the floor at the close of the game, was high scorer with eight points.

From the "foul point of view," the game was a referee's party. Referee Forester called 16 personal fouls on Plymouth and 10 on Northville.

Northville, losing in the last minute of play 32-28, scored two field goals in 15 seconds to put itself on an equal with Plymouth at the four-quarter whistle.

Ecorse Steamrollers Flatten Rock Reserves 27-18

On February 21 the Plymouth Reserves were again pressed back by the Ecorse Steamrollers by a score of 18-27. As in the previous contest, the greater share of the Reserves' scoring was done by Hoffman and Gordon. In fact, this pair scored two-thirds of their team's points.

The fourth quarter was a show one. Between them the two squads made but four points. The only consolation for the Plymouth fans was that the locals made three times the number of points registered by Ecorse.

Earlier this year the Reserves were defeated by the Steamrollers in a similar contest. In this game, too, the Reserves started out by getting three points and scored a majority of its points by the efforts of Hoffman and Gordon.

High scorers for the game were Ulrich and Kelly, who each had eight points to his name. Hoffman was not on point toward Crows was the referee.

Summary: Plymouth: 18; Gordon: 5; Marshall: 2; Hoffman: 7; Hancock: 4; Hunter: 0; Olds: 0; Smith: 4; Erdelyi: 0; Dunham: 5; Lorenz: 1.

Ecorse: 27; Aldrich: 2; Campbell: 0; Guggen: 1; Kelly: 8; Miron: 5; Martin: 1; Ulrich: 8.

Coming to life after 10 minutes of play, the Rocks broke loose for eight points. Gordon, Marshall and Hoffman were the leaders.

The opposition was active too—active to the extent of ten points. By the time the boys had completed their eight minutes of execution, the score stood 15-26. Ecorse still leading.

After Ulrich made a nice shot from under the basket, Hoffman took the ball on a pass and dribbled down the center to sink a well-timed overhead toss. Minutes later, following many tumbles by both teams, Dunham took a long pass from the enemy end of the court to make his only field goal of the evening. Meanwhile Ecorse added seven points by bringing the score at the half to 16-7.

LET THE GOOD WORK CONTINUE.

Michigan attorneys, through their state organization, are endeavoring to work out a plan whereby the people, unable to pay for legal services, may have it without cost. If conditions develop in the lives of the unfortunate whereby legal services may be necessary. It is a splendid idea and other Michigan citizens should give whatever aid is possible in bringing to a successful culmination such a worthy purpose. They should, too, see to it that the lawyers, themselves, know of the public appreciation of the very splendid proposal they have in mind.

SAVING CIVILIZATION.

A federal union of religions built around the essentials of Christianity is the only hope we have of preserving modern civilization in the present world crisis, according to Prof. Walter Horton, of the Oberlin School of Theology, who presented a series of three lectures as a feature of the first annual Michigan Pastors' conference at the University of Michigan recently.

The disintegration of civilizations today, as seen in almost constant social upheaval and the growth of Communism and Fascism, Professor Horton declared, can be directly traced to the separation of cultures from their spiritual or religious bases.

To save western civilization, Professor Horton said, we must match the traditions of Christianity with the needs of the hour. By revitalizing our religion, he asserted, we will place a new and firmer foundation under the civilization which is so rapidly crumbling away. In other parts of the world, he continued, we must provide the essentials of Christianity as a center of integration for cultures that already exist.

Professor Horton stressed our responsibility to the rest of the world, declaring that "we cannot save western civilization unless we save the rest of the world along with it."

All the civilizations of today, he said, are losing their vitality, the primitive ones because the addition of external cultures have undermined old religious and moral attitudes, the more advanced ones because people are more interested in the mechanics than in the ends of civilization. Christianity has saved disintegrating societies in the past, he said, and there is no reason why it cannot do so again in the present situation.

Our present civilization is religiously inert and culturally secular, he said. Our job is that of revitalizing our religions which in turn will preserve our secular institutions. If we fail to revitalize our religions voluntarily, the process will come from without as in religious persecutions in Russia and Germany.

In urging the conversion of primitive peoples to Christian belief, Professor Horton stressed the need of preserving that which is valuable in native cultures. In these and also in the original civilizations, he said, there is much that should be saved and that need not be changed in the process of conversion.

JUST ONE LITTLE REASON.

The Lansing State Journal, one of the important daily publications of Michigan, recently made the following comment about the candidacy of Felix Flynn, of Cadillac, for lieutenant governor:

"Felix H. H. Flynn, successful business man of Cadillac, up north of where the north begins, announces for lieutenant governor."

"As to his political affiliations and record, this paper will print, as any newspaper should, news of Mr. Flynn's campaign and those of his rivals, for it appears certain he will have competition."

"The State Journal, at this time, wishes to endorse an idea, which Flynn's friend, Thomas Read, attorney general, has discussed many times—that of frequent and quickly-called meetings of the state administrative board. The next lieutenant governor will be a member of the state administrative board and the taxpayers of the state will pay that official $2,500 for his added duties. He will also get $1,100 a year as president of the senate."

"Mr. Flynn has told the capitol representative of this paper that he will not move to Lansing if he is elected but that he will be here every time he's wanted. That would hardly appear to guarantee his presence every time he might be needed. Especially as Read makes quite a point of administrative board "responsibility," and emphasizes that the board members should be available for meetings on a few minutes' notice, for decisions of state policy, Read thinks the board should cease being a "rubber stamp" and should make policy through frequent meetings with the governor. Experience indicates soundness of this view."

"The lieutenant governor should be as familiar with daily changing affairs of state as the governor himself, ready to step into that office in event of any incapacity or disqualification for duty on the part of the governor. That was the legislature's thought in passing the 1939 statute which added to the lieutenant governor's duties and raised his pay to $3,600 a year."

"The fact is that the office of lieutenant governor is going to be an important one from 1940 on. Far too important to be considered a political sinecure or a mere honor with a good salary attached to it. Far too important to be filled by anyone unwilling to devote his full and undivided time to it by being at his desk five days a week. Absentee job-holding by a member of the state administrative board receiving $3,600 a year will hardly do. Board members have more to do than attend meetings on second Tuesdays of each month. There are committee meetings almost daily, and there is no reason why the state's second official shouldn't sit on committees."

"Felix Flynn should decide for himself whether he wants to sell automobiles in far-off Cadillac or come to Lansing and settle down to the full-time, responsible job of lieutenant governor."

THE FAMILY LIQUOR BILL

Liquor commission statisticians have computed that Michigan residents spend $159,000,000 a year for intoxicants. That figure is down to $133 per family. Certainly not more than half of Michigan's families drink liquor so that makes the appalling per family figure stand at $266.

Of course, the $266 per year spent for liquor is by no means the entire cost. The $266 doesn't pay for the broken homes, the broken hearts, the wasted lives, the sickness, accidents and other miseries caused by drink.

We laughed at prohibition which didn't prohibit. We were told that repeal would solve the liquor problem. Has it? The liquor problem has been with us ever since the dawn of time. Despite prohibition and repeal it is still with us.—Nelson Brown in The Ingham County News.

WORLD IS IN USUAL MESS

In one of his last week's columns the brilliant columnist Walter Lippmann commented upon the defeat of the Ham and Eggs California and Ohio plans that were before the electors of both states recently. Mr. Lippmann pointed out that the vast majority of people, dissatisfied with poverty amidst plenty, will follow a demagogue who promises them economic security. He said that tariffs, subsidies, obtained by special and pressure groups, are undermining the principles of democratic government. He pointed out that the world's system of restrictionism, wherein each group begs for special protection from government, will eventually result in socialism and then communism. He adds that so long as the leaders of the nations, our own included, accept the doctrine of "special privilege," the internal and external affairs of every government will be upset; that wars will break out, that strikes and depressions will recur in regular periods. Mr. Lippmann, without mentioning the best available remedy for this economic mess, led his readers right up to the economic principles advocated by Henry George in his great book entitled "Progress and Poverty." (You may find copies of it in the Baldwin Public Library here.)—George Averill in The Birmingham Eclectic.

William Minchart expects to build several new houses on Mill street this spring.

John McLaren's new bungalow on West Ann Arbor street is nearing completion and is an ornament to the street.

Edward Gayde and William Pottingill attended the Retail

Grocers' convention held in Lansing Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Chilson of Livonia Center called on friends in Plymouth Sunday.

The pastor at Newburg made an announcement Sunday last that next Sunday would probably be the last service in the church on its present location. Plans are being made to begin moving it next week if weather will permit.

The men are to be congratulated on the fine dinner they served at Newburg hall last Saturday. These dinners should be better patronized. It is a worthy cause and the men work hard to make them a success.

The license and no license saloon question that has been in agitation here for a week or two past, resulted in a tremendous attendance at the Working-men's caucus Tuesday evening, an attendance that broke all previous records, village hall being crowded to its utmost capacity.

A pleasant meeting of the Woman's Literary club was held at Mrs. J. R. Rauch's home last Friday afternoon. Many members were in attendance and the house was filled. As usual the business of the meeting was transacted before the program was given. The roll call was responded to by giving one of the states of the Union and its nickname. The library committee gave a report, and while nothing definite has yet been done, the members of the club are unanimously in favor of the movement and are willing to do all in their power to bring a Carnegie library to Plymouth. The afternoon's program was in charge of the second division.
