Miss Kaye Krausmann Will Do Technical Research in Plymouth

Because of the need for a technical laboratory in this vicinity, Miss Kaye Krausmann, of Plymouth, recently resigned her position at Sessions hospital at Northville, in order to devote her full time to technical laboratory work. She is the daughter of Dr. G. Krausmann, who for the past eight years has been consulting physician at the Detroit House of Correction. Her technical laboratory will be established at the Krausmann home at 307 Arthur street. Miss Krausmann is one of the few registered laboratory technicians in this vicinity. For several years she has been closely associated with Plymouth physicians performing various clinical work. She is especially interested in chemical and microscopic work, with specialization in blood analysis.

Maccabees Plan Interesting Exhibit

Plymouth hive of the Maccabees is sponsoring what it hopes will be one of the most interesting and outstanding events of early spring. A public exhibition of quilts, bed spreads, lace tablecloths and fancy work of all kinds will be on display at the Jewell & Blach hall, Wednesday afternoon, April 3. Antiques, glassware, and hobbies will also be shown. Baked goods will be sold. Plymouth women who are proud of their possessions or hand work are urged to bring them so that others may have the pleasure of seeing and enjoying them.

An invitation is extended to all to attend and pass judgment on the pleasant and profitable work so many neighbors and friends utilize their leisure hours. Ribbon prizes will be awarded and tea will be served to all without charge. Plymouth women are urged to call either Mrs. Harry Terry or Mrs. Cleo Curtis if they have anything to display.

Chief Attends Detroit Meeting

Plymouth's police chief, V. R. Smith, Saturday afternoon and evening, attended a state meeting in Detroit of the graduates of the F. B. I. National Police Academy. Fifteen of the 18 Michigan graduates were present at the meeting held at F. B. I. headquarters.

It is reported that plans were formulated for a police training school which will be open to all officers of the law in the state. It shall be patterned much the same as a similar school established in Wisconsin.

All officers will be privileged to attend weekly three-hour sessions which will be taught by graduates of the police academy or by Federal officers. Courses of instruction will include general police principles and other practices taught by the government at Washington, D. C.

Following the afternoon meeting, a banquet was served at a large Detroit hotel. Speakers included L. A. Hince, instructor of the academy, followed by a general discussion.

Michigan has the second largest number of National Police academy graduates, led only by the state of New York. The Plymouth police chief was the second Michigan law enforcement officer to graduate from the school. He received his diploma in 1937 and has gone back frequently for additional courses of instruction.

More than 6,300 copies of the Boy Scout Handbook have been distributed, making it one of the most widely read books. It has been estimated that each copy is read by five Scouts.

Nutrition Group Holds Meeting

Seven members of the Joy Farms Nutrition group held an all day meeting from 10:00 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. on Wednesday, February 28, at the home of Mrs. Roy Wilcox, chairman.

The lesson on "Feeding the Convalescent" was the fifth and last in the series of discussions on nutrition, an extension course issued by the Michigan State college for the benefit of rural women. These courses are brought to the different groups in Wayne county, through the efforts of Miss Emma DuBord, home demonstration agent.

After a short business meeting the members were given instructions for serving a low-cost well-balanced meal, using the suggestions given in the previous lessons. The table was laid with a white linen cloth, centered with daffodil and red tulips in brown wicker jug to carry out the color scheme in the moss design on the china. Each member contributed one item of food, the cost not to exceed 25 cents. The meal was served Russian style at 12:30. The menu was as follows:

Tomato cocktail, salmon loaf, garnished with lemon slices, parsley potatoes; buttered peas; dill pickles; whole wheat rolls; cottage cheese and pimento salad in lettuce cups; fruit jello; pineapple cookies; tea and coffee. The afternoon was spent in taking notes on the lesson which was given by Mrs. Donald Gibbs and Mrs. Anthony Kregor. Some of the topics of discussion were: "Understanding the Convalescent," "Selection of Food," "Suggestions for the Patient's Comfort," "Types of Convalescent Diets," "General Principles of Dietary Treatment of Some Common Diseases," and demonstrations in preparing a patient's tray, with interesting recipes for special dishes for convalescents.

Wins State Championship

Jack Weir, son of Mrs. Effie A. Weir, proprietor of the Effie "A" Beauty salon, and his partner, Janet Yearek, of Detroit, were declared state champions when they won the Amateur Skate Dancing contest held Tuesday night at the Arena Gardens in Detroit. By winning several similar contests the past few months, they were eligible to enter the state eliminations this week. They will now enter the national contest to be held in Cleveland in April.

A gold medal was awarded to the champions and also a silver trophy was given which will be displayed at the Arena Gardens. The two have been skate dancing partners for the last year and a half. This is the third year Weir has been in skate dancing competition. He is the only American roller skating amateur ever to be awarded the British medal which was presented to him about a year ago.

Last year Weir and his partner placed sixth in the national contest. There were 25 couples in the competition.

Entertain C. A. R. at Northville

Mrs. Kenneth Kitchen, senior president of Plymouth Corner society, C. A. R. entertained the children of that group, their mothers and members of Sarah Ann Cochran chapter at a delightful silver tea, Saturday, in her home in Northville. The table was very lovely with its center of Irish lace and beautiful bowl of red roses and white stock flanked by white tapers. Mrs. Robert Leary, past senior president, and Mrs. J. Merle Bennett, regent of Sarah Ann Cochran chapter, poured.

The following program was given by the children with group singing by all present: "America," prayer by Thelma Thatcher, a pageant, "March of Time," by Mrs. Kitchen, with Margery Merriam as Columbia, Paul Harsha as George Washington, Winifred Cutler as Martha Washington, Jean Litsenberger as Betty Ross, Marion Goodman as Molly Stark, her own ancestor, Margaret Jean Nichol as Pocahontas, Robert Daniel as Abraham Lincoln, Edward Strong representing the Boy Scouts of America, and Joanne Kitchen, the Camp Fire Girls of America. The play was followed by a piano solo by Margaret Jean Nichol, "Alla Marcia," by Rogers; a vocal solo by Margery Merriam, "Jeanie With the Light Brown Hair," by Steven Foster; piano solo by Joanne Kitchen, "In Hanging Gardens," by Evan Davies; "God Bless America," by the group. A lovely corsage was presented to Mrs. Leary, in appreciation of her past service.

Head of the Class—and fit to be Tried!

THERE are a lot of things about this stunning 1940 Buick to claim your attention—that is, if you really want to know what's what in motorcars.

For instance, you've got to admit that its style has done a lot to brighten up and beautify the boulevards.

And, from the way folks are swinging over to Buick, it must have something value-wise that's important for you to measure.

What you hear about its quick-off-the-mark engine and the silkiness it gets from balancing after assembly certainly calls for inquiry.

So do the rave notices Buick Coil Springing gets and the talk you hear about five-foot front seat room in the SUPER and its Foamtex cushions soft as a down puff.

But skipping this—even skipping the fact that Buick's prices are lower than some sixes—there's one thing that alone is enough to send you hot-footing to your Buick dealer.

That's the obvious fact that as Buick goes these days so goes the industry.

It set this year's pace last year—and right now it is plainly the car others will be like "some day."

So do the obvious thing. Go try out this superb traveler.

Even if you don't discover that Buick is an immediate "must," you'll decide you'll never be really happy till you have one.

Michigan's State Park System Far Excels Anything Like It in Entire United States — Not One in Florida

Tropical Section of Popular Southern State Does Offer Unlimited Possibility for Development of Great National Park

(By ELTON R. EATON)

Michigan and Florida have the greatest length of shore line boundaries of all the states in the Union, with Michigan possessing hundreds more miles of water frontage than does Florida. It is these hundreds and hundreds of miles of sandy shore lines surrounding each of these states that make them the most popular tourist centers on the North American continent.

In summer time millions of vacationists seek the recreational facilities and cool weather that Michigan offers.

In winter time some of these same millions of people travel southward to enjoy the sandy beaches and warm winter weather of Florida.

But Michigan is 50 years ahead of Florida in state development of its natural facilities for outdoor recreation. Fifty years! Yes, a hundred years!

During the past twenty-five years, Michigan has created and developed more than 60 beautiful state parks for the accommodation of its own residents as well as visitors within its boundaries. Some of them lie along the Great Lakes. Some are located on the shore lines of beautiful interior lakes. All of them offer, without charge, camping and trailer accommodations.

What about Florida's state park system?

When you look at a Florida road map you are impressed by the designation of a vast "Everglades National Park," covering more than half of the ground of the southern tip of that interesting and alluring commonwealth.

Within the boundary lines of that vast national park you see printed in bold letters within a smaller boundary the words "Royal Palm State Park." It implies a park within a park.

Having been intensely interested in the development of Michigan's state park system over a period of many years, the writer visited the "Royal Palm State Park" within the "Everglades National Park" the other day to see what sort of development Florida had made in its state park system.

What about the "Royal Palm State Park"?

It isn't a state park at all. It isn't even a park as we know them in the northlands.

It is a tract of some 4,000 acres of land, owned and maintained by the Florida Federation of Women's clubs.

Amazing, isn't it, to think that the women of Florida have a far greater appreciation of what a state park can mean to a state than do the political and business leaders of a commonwealth possessed of such rich recreational advantages as Florida?

Traveling by excellent roadways some 40 miles south of Miami, one comes to the "Royal Palm State Park" with the tract bearing not the slightest designation to denote that it is Florida's famous and "only" state park.

Unless one was looking for the place, you would drive through it, thinking you were traveling along a lonely and unmarked thoroughfare.

There is maintained by the women's clubs a lodge by the side of the road where accommodations can be had for half a dozen people. The lodge and its surroundings are the only indications of development of any kind within the park.

It is true that possibly the Royal Palm State park should be permitted to remain to some extent in its present undeveloped state, as it provides the visitor with a clear picture of the natural tropical beauty that exists in these United States.

But what about the "Everglades National Park" that vast section of Florida designated as such on all maps you see of Florida?

Within its boundaries are over 2,100 square miles of land, surrounded on the west, south and a part of the east by the Atlantic ocean and the Gulf of Mexico.

Much of its coastline is available only by boat, but those who have visited the west coast of the Gulf of Mexico, state that in one section there are miles and miles of one of the finest coast lines in all America. It is not available to the public, in fact, neither does Florida nor the federal government own all the land within the designated boundary lines of the national park.

Some steps have been taken by the Florida state government to secure possession of the land so that it can be turned over to the federal government for a national park, but progress has been exceedingly slow for some reason.

Here lies a chance for Florida to tap a new flow of northern currency into its treasury. The development of a national park along that section of the western coast where the beach line is said to be so excellent, would bring thousands and thousands of more tourists to the state, just as tourists in summertime flock to the Yellowstone and Yosemite and other national parks at a medium priced accommodations can be secured. Are not the people of the north just as much entitled to a winter national park under the sunny skies of Florida as they are to parks in other parts of the nation? Of course they are and if Florida and congress have an interest in these things and the development of its winter recreational facilities for the common people of America, here lies a golden opportunity.

Boy Scouts took prominent parts in the New York World's Fair and the Golden Gate International Exposition at San Francisco in 1939.

Euchre Team Makes Record

For the first time in the history of the Canton Center-Cherry Hill Euchre club a team has gone through a full round of competition without being defeated. The team which accomplished this was the H. Wagenschultz-R. Waldecker combination. Their final game of the round was with H. Gumtow and O. Eichstadt. They emerged from the session the victors by nine games to four. Starting their winning streak when they took the R. Hood-A. Kuster combination, 7-6, they continued through the gauntlet by winning from C. Blackmore and Aldrich, 9-4; B. Yost and J. West, 6; C. Eichstadt, 9-4, winning nine straight matches.

B. Yost and J. West won seven straight sessions in winning, 7-6, from J. Murdock and P. Gots, F. Waldecker and W. Theisen had no difficulty in defeating A. West and J. Losey, 8-5 and R. Hood and A. Kuster took C. Finnigan and M. Corwin, 8-5.

Freedle and Backner also had a good night and won from O. C. Blackmore and F. Aldrich, 9-4.

Next week the league starts its third and last round of the tournament.

Announce Dates of Smelt Frolics

Dates for celebrating the silver smelt's spring spawning run have been set in two northern Michigan communities. Boyne City's eleventh annual "festival" will be March 25-30, while Escanaba's sixth annual jamboree will be April 11-15.

The Boyne City announcement is issued by Mayor "Bill" Smith of the 300-block Saultina on Lake Charlevoix ice, where smelt and perch are now biting good and some luckier anglers are catching windfalls and lake trout.

The Escanaba jamboree has a King's party held at Ford river and Queen's ball at the Coliseum on the schedule. Both celebrations are complete with banquets, parades, and queen coronation ceremonies.

Obtain New Travel Books at Library

Plymouth boys and girls who delight in reading stories about different parts of the world, will be especially interested in new books recently obtained by the Plymouth branch of the Wayne county library. ## Gives Warning on Chicks Again

Agricultural Commissioner Elmer A. Bramer issued a warning based upon complaints received last year by the bureau of animal industry, to prospective purchasers of chicks to investigate fully all bargain offers, especially in relation to sexed chicks. Departmental records disclose that this new poultry operation has made possible a "sex racket" in the chick business, making it necessary for purchasers to be equally certain of their source of supply.

Departmental records reveal that the sex of day old chicks can be determined by an expert to the extent of 90 per cent or better, with sexed pullets usually selling for double the price of straight run chicks, which average approximately 50 per cent pullets. The pullets can be sold usually from $2.50 to $4.00 per hundred, a higher amount if they are used by the breeder.

In some cases, Bramer said, "sexed" chicks are fed into the possession of dealers or salaried men, who in turn resold them for straight chicks, or for sexed pullets at a price that the unsuspecting chick buyer finds hard to pass by, only to find after a year or two that the chicks are of mixed stock of care and expenses of feeding that he purchases "sexed" chicks.

In view of the experience of the department in 1939 with this "sex racket," Bramer urges that prospective purchasers of chicks.

Plymouth People Involved in Auto Accident

Three Plymouth persons were involved in an accident Friday morning at 10:00 o'clock near Portland when a car in which they were riding skidded on icy pavement and crashed into a roadside ditch. Those in the accident were George Britcher, his wife, Vesta, and mother-in-law, Mrs. Mate Loomis, all who live on Wilcox road.

Mr. Britcher suffered a punctured lung as a result of the accident and was taken to the Mt. Carmel hospital at Detroit. He is reported to be in a critical condition. Other occupants of the automobile were uninjured.

The crash occurred as the Plymouth residents were traveling Grand Rapids to attend a funeral. Frank Loomis, also of Wilcox road and son of Mrs. Loomis, who started for Grand Rapids for the funeral later than the others, was informed of the accident when he stopped near Portland at a roadside lunch stand.

Mr. Britcher was formerly employed by the Wayne County Road commission.

Find Smelt Is Michigan Asset

Smelt is by far the most common fish-food of smelt. John Van Oosten, in charge of the bureau of fisheries Great Lakes fishery investigations, declares in an historical review of smelt in the Great Lakes. Among other things, smelt are absorbed of the charge of preying on young game fish.

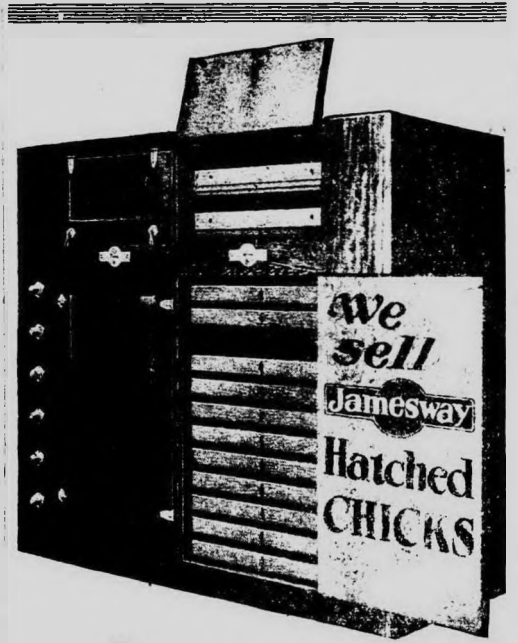

Chief diet of smelt consists of microscopic plants and animals, small crustaceans and insect larvae. Stomach analyses have shown that besides eating other smelt and smelt eggs, smelt have eaten lake shiners, yellow perch, sculpin, lawyer, rock bass, herring and stickleback.

None has been known to eat young trout. Smelt are not seeking food when they ascend the streams to spawn and young trout do not occur in the cold, deep water resort of the smelt, it is said.

All fish eaten are reported a small part of the smelt diet, while the smelt itself has been found to be food for brook trout, Whitefish, lake herring, celt, small-mouth black bass, sauger, white perch, little pickerel, northern pike, and gar occasionally; and a common food of lake trout, landlocked salmon, walleyes, perch and burbot or lawyers.

Balancing the value of current smelt fisheries against the damage done to commercial fishing gear and the smelt's competition with gamier fish for fish food, Van Oosten concludes that "On the whole, the smelt may be considered more of a blessing to the state than a curse."

He recommends further investigation of smelting, pickling, canning and salting smelt, and developing smelt into food for dogs and cats as well as for mink and fox, and into fertilizer, or fish meal.

In honor of the occasion a birthday luncheon will be given Saturday by his mother. The guests are Patrick Finlan, Jean White, Elizabeth Moody, Eric Eklund, Rodrick Norgren, Jack Signorelli, of Plymouth, Craig Rahrbaum, of Northville, and James Vogelsie, of Walled Lake, and their mothers.

Public Opinions As Expressed By Our Readers

Contributions are always welcome. To insure publication, all communications must be signed.

Plymouth, Michigan, March 5, 1940.

Editor, Plymouth Mail. Dear Friend:

Regarding the proposed grade separation in Plymouth at either Farmer street and the Pere Marquette railroad, or Blanche street and the Pere Marquette railroad, or Main street and the Pere Marquette railroad, or Ann Arbor street and the Pere Marquette railroad.

The writer has always tried to avoid personal publicity in civic matters. But concerning the above, it rather appeared that arbitrary collaboration with the county offices precluded any suggestion of a grade separation that would do the City of Plymouth the most good and not what would benefit county hot-bull traffic or Detroit store shoppers.

In fairness to the good people of North Plymouth, South Plymouth, East Plymouth and West Plymouth, I would scrap all four suggested sites.

If a city of Plymouth map is taken, one must observe that Church street practically bisects this community. And if the idea had not been developed of diverting Church street into a bottleneck in front of the city hall, Church street could have been extended to Union street, past the Daisy Manufacturing company offices, in front of the old, abandoned light plant, under the Pere Marquette railroad tracks, across undeveloped fields and fork in a wide sweeping 'Y' two ways, the south 'Y' to match the west park entrance on Mill street, the north 'Y' intercepting Amelia street and easing into Mill street.

As a fire protection route, all points east of the railroad would be the best served, even though a train stretched across every crossing from the round-house to the old fairgrounds.

As an aid to serving both Ann Arbor street and Plymouth road, it would be admirable, and it would certainly break up that excessively long block on Main street from Dodge to Union.

It would be fair to the business districts centered at Liberty and Starkweather at one end of town and Main and Penniman at the other end. Neither would receive a further congestion, yet each could be equally served.

It would tie up with Territorial road, and as far as the county's worrying about football traffic, that's their baby from the city limits on, and not the city of Plymouth taxpayers' worry.

An underpass walkway under Church street for the school children for six or eight thousand dollars should have been built three years ago, and not what we had to take for road diversion at many times more such cost.

People driving through a community past a well kept industrial plant such as the "Daisy," an impressive school system, by beautiful church edifices, through a nice residential area, cannot help but admire Plymouth as a good place in which to live.

And, incidentally, by what I hope to see some day, the Mrs. Kate Aden property secured by the city of Plymouth with its wonderful surroundings for a BIG city hospital. This would be on the proposed through-city of Plymouth highway.

Really, we need more vision for Plymouth's future, not the hide-bound idea of having to use what we now have in the best make-shift advantage. Let's look over the horizon a bit.

A Farmer street grade separation would not help very much a service auto from a South Main street store. Neither would an Ann Arbor grade separation help very much on the Liberty street store delivery trucks.

Let's do the usual good to the most number of Plymouth folks.

Coach Company Adds Another Bus to Fleet

In an effort to add to its already efficient bus service between Plymouth and Detroit, the Dearborn Coach company this week added another coach to its fleet in operation here. The latest addition is by far the most modern, comfortable and finest looking bus of the entire group. It has a Ford motor and chassis with a Union City body. It is structurally perfect with every step taken toward safety.

There are 26 cushioned deluxe seats, padded after those of larger buses, and the leather covered, wide and soft.

The new bus is the second new one in the last four months. According to Victor R. Rouse, president of the company, it is an other step forward in giving Plymouth people fast, comfortable and efficient service. Bus schedules may be obtained from any driver. There are five new buses in the fleet. Two buses run regularly between the two cities, two are used for school children and one is held in reserve.

Eighteen members of a recently organized Drama club will meet at the home of Mrs. John J. Birchall, of Ann street, for the purpose of electing officers Sunday evening. Membership to the club is by invitation only and present members include residents of both Plymouth and Northville.

At the present time the club is for the purpose of studying famous plays and well-known playwrights. Eugene O'Neil is to be the first writer considered by the group. His plays will be read for the purpose of study rather than for production.

The members of the group, in the course of their bi-weekly meetings, will attempt to bring famous actors to Plymouth for both seminar and lecture. Members of the club are connected with the dramatic course offered by the Art Barn. A recently purchased recording machine will be used in conjunction with the club. As it is now planned, recordings will be taken of well-known dramatists as they appear on radio programs. The recordings will be studied by members of the group. Club members will also be privileged to record their own plays in order to correct possible faults.

Present members of the club include Mrs. Birchall, Mrs. Mabel Blossum, Mrs. Frank Dicks, Mrs. Edna O'Conner, Ruth Erikson, Genevieve Bryce, Beth Holsick, Katherine Katsky, Eva Scavilla, Charlotte Joffe, Wirtia, Netter Worthington and Hal Horton of Plymouth; and Mrs. C. B. Washburne, J. Parker and Chandler Parker, of Northville.

MICHIGAN, MICHIGAN

titles, it was essential to have confirmation by the king. It is assumed that the French were notoriously lax about such matters and made little effort to secure complete titles and that if they did possess titles confirmed by the king they often failed to place them in proper government archives. It also was claimed that the French authorities had destroyed many records to prevent them from falling into the hands of the English.

But, likely enough, the real reason why complete titles were so seldom existent, under French rule, was that at best they conferred only nominal ownership, were the concessions made under a modified feudalistic concept of rights in property, and possessors were, in fact, little more than tenants paying tribute to the real owner—the king.

The French were in possession of the Michigan territory until the concluding of the Treaty of Paris in 1763, ending the Seven Years War (four French and Indian wars).

Between the years 1763 and 1796 the territory was the possession of the English king.

And prior possession of the territory by the English had not complicated the new government's problem of determining prior ownership of lands in the territory. It was not the English policy to sell or grant lands and except for a few doubtful sales made by local military officers, no attempts had been made to convey titles.

Only other claims to lands in the Michigan Territory were those of the original possessors—the Indians. Neither French nor English recognized claims of the Indians; in fact, with neither was it considered legal to acquire lands from the Indians by treaty or purchase.

The new officers of the territorial government, then, had those claims to consider which dated back to French occupancy, a few less valid claims which originated with the English and those of persons who had possessed property in the fire-devastated town and who were on the ground on June 30, 1796 when the new government was set up and who professed allegiance to it.

There were records of several grants of land, in the name of the French king, given by de La Motte Cadillac which were recognized by the American authorities, fee title being conveyed to holders by the United States government.

These claims recognized, the new governor and judges turned to the claims of the townspeople and of those who had cleared farms in the territory. Congress was duly memorialized and a tentative plan of land registry was set up.

In a letter written January 17, 1806 to the Secretary of the United States Treasury, Judge Woodward referred to the 442 farms and settlements which were located along the Detroit, St. Clair, Raisin, Huron and Otter rivers. Of this number, 77 farms or settlements were cited as fronting on the Detroit river, 121 along the Raisin. The new administrators, noting that all of the settlements fronted on streams or lakes—then the principal routes of travel, considered as of first concern the retaining of riparian ownership in legal form.

Whether or not there were exact surveys is not known, although there is occasional reference to certain determination of area by accurate measurement. The French method was to secure an area two arpents in width on the water and 40 arpents in depth, extending at right angles to the course of the stream. The only differences in Ken Corey's Perfection Laundry team really took the boys to the cleaners this week by walking off with first place for the high 3-game total. The Cleaners rolled 2923 taking it away from Strohs, who held on to it since the start of the season. Hoffman led the cleaning boys with 623, followed by Schaffer with 593, O'Brien with 537, Daly with 553 and Capt. Erland Bridge anchored with 610.

The Mayflower hotel team running in hard luck as usual won the first game from Strohs, losing the other two, after tying, the brewers the third game, a roll-off of the tenth frame was necessary, and as usual the "boys" won it there.

With The Masons

The regular meeting of Plymouth Rock Lodge No. 47, F. & A. M., was held on Friday, March 1, 1940. Business was carried on in the usual manner. It was announced that Friday, March 13, will be inter-lodge night to be held at Plymouth Rock Lodge with Northville and Farmington lodges participating in second degree work.

After the meeting lunch was served in the dining room of the temple. Following the lunch, Brother James Gallimore showed the Masons his fine collection of motion pictures taken while in Florida and those of the Ice Carnival at Newburg lake which were very interesting and enjoyed by all. Members were urged to be present at the meeting, March 13.

Last rites were held for Brother Preston E. Whitbeck at the Temple last Tuesday. He and his fine work for the Lodge will be sadly missed by all members.

The service squad girls will have a party, March 12. It will be for St. Patrick's day.

The movie this Monday, March 4, was Buster Crabbe in "The Oil Raider".

The social meeting on March 11 will be a "box social". The girls will bring the boxes and the boys will buy them (we hope). Mrs. Shrum and Mrs. Dalloff will champion the party.

We have a number of pupils on the honor roll this month. The following persons have all A's and B's: Donna Jane Campbell, Lily Keil, Jerry Klump, Marion Larson, Donna Jean Swarbrick, Robert Burk, Lorraine French and Irene Newman.

Lorraine French brought to school a very nice puppet for our puppet show, which is to be put on by the sixth grade. It is going to represent the earlier history.

James Vaughn brought his boxing gloves to school and the boys have been boxing during noons and recesses.

Clarence C. L. Burdgerfer, a humorist, storyteller and master mimic, will give an exhibition, Friday, March 8, at 12:30 p. m. Admission for all children will be 5 cents.

The teachers wish that people owning dogs would keep them home or tied up here, something tragic happens to them.

Mrs. Bowser, the little room teacher, went home, ill, Thursday afternoon, and Stella Phillips, an eighth grade pupil, took her place by reading to the children, and did a very nice job. They all called her "Mrs. Bowser". (Her ambition is to be a teacher.)

When William Gribbet and his boyhood sweetheart, Irene Wilkinson, learned at Gretna Green that they would have to remain in Scotland two weeks before they could be married there, the runaway lovers were "married" 20 times a day over the blacksmith's anvil to entertain sight-seers. Twice each hour the smithy doors were opened to admit the tourists, and William and Irene repeated the simple ceremony. Spectators then clamored for the seal on the proceedings, the "bridal" kiss, and the actors complied.

Interesting details have recently come in about the Carl Rengerts' sixtieth wedding anniversary which the couple celebrated on February 22. Of particular interest was the fact that Carl Lidke, who was best man at their wedding, 60 years ago, was able to present, as he had been at their twenty-fifth, fortieth and fiftieth celebration. The maid of honor is still living in Germany. Among those who visited the elderly couple included Rev. Penker, Cote, Richard Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Koeller and Mr. and Mrs. Lemuel Martin of Ypsilanti; Mr. and Mrs. Emil Lidke, Sr. and Mr. and Mrs. Emil Lidke, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Gust Lidke, from Birmingham came Mr. Kurth and Mrs. Waide, Mrs. Burcha, Miss Marie Waide, and Frederike Kurth. During the day many of their neighbors stopped in to extend congratulations. Mrs. Robert Gardner, daughter of the couple, assisted by Mrs. Fred Van Dyke, served light refreshments.

A Child Study club has been organized and met for the first time last Thursday at the home of Mrs. Fred Van Dyke. Personal problems were discussed in an open forum and several interesting articles on Child Study were read. Bill Hogan was in Chicago last week on business.

The Roy Leomons joined a group from Dearborn on Saturday night and saw "Gone With the Wind" at the Wilson theatre.

Tuesday was young Peter Leomons' fifth birthday anniversary and he had a gay afternoon playing host to Leonard Millross Jr., Ronald Dunsan and Ruth Hogan.

World Problems

The World Today

The world today is more confusing than ever. We are upset and perplexed, haunted by misgivings and constantly annoyed by crises. Almost every day brings some new surprise and we are getting tired of adjusting ourselves to ever new situations. We were supposed to admire the wonderful modern civilization of Soviet Russia, and now Russia is again the backward, illiterate, cruel, Asiatic Mussolin is once the villain, then a shrewd diplomat, and sometimes an almost ideal man. Of course, we are not asked to believe it all at once. They are times when we must believe the one thing and times when it is proper to believe the other. The propaganda makers and the masters of the ceremony. They call out the number and add the color. It is an interesting game but we do get tired of it once in a while. Now King Carol of Rumania is up for a re-painting. The artists are all set for the act. It all depends who turns he will take. It lies toward Germany, out goes the black brush, and watch them put it on thick and fast. If he should turn toward the Allies, just hear the angels sing. What does it all mean? Neutrality, of course.

George Washington in his farewell address gave us the following counsel:

"Observe good faith and justice toward all nations. Cultivate peace and harmony with all. Nothing is more essential than that permanent, inveterate antipathies against particular nations and passionate attachments for others should be excluded; and that in place of them just and amicable feelings toward all should be cultivated. The nation which indulges toward another an habitual hatred or an habitual fondness, is a slave to its own animosity, or to its affection, either of which is sufficient to lead it astray from its duty and interest."

These words of wisdom from a man of experience who had an open eye for the weaknesses of a nation deserve to be considered carefully. May it not be said that if we would follow his advice, a good deal of our perplexities might disappear? Perplexities, mental states caused by over-complicated situations pressing for solution. Actually the situation is not complicated if we keep in mind the main goal of the European war game. Germany is trying to throw off English domination of Europe which thrives on the so-called "balance of power" and keeps the nations of Europe in constant fear of each other. But for England that is the only method by which she can keep her position. She is playing that same game in India, and just as successfully. There she keeps balancing Hinduism against Mohammedanism and thus manages to keep the divided against each other. It is the old scheme of divide and rule. Nothing idealistic about it, but it works. It all depends on how long it will take the European nations to get wise to it.

Weed Test Due as Decade Ends

Some digging soon to occur near the center of the Michigan State college campus will involve unearthing a bottle—one of 11 remaining of the 20 stuffed with sand and assorted seeds and buried in 1879 as a weed viability or germination test by the late Dr. W. J. Beal.

International attention focuses on these tests whenever a bottle is dug up. Originally a test was run each five years. But Dr. E. A. Bessy, present head of the college botany department, suggested in 1920 that the bottles be taken up only at 10-year intervals, lengthening out the experiment.

So this is the spring when bottle number 10 is to be brought out from 20 inches underneath the surface. There still will be enough samples in the ground to continue the tests for another century.

Most of the seeds are of common weeds found in the vicinity of East Lansing. Purpose is to find out how long life remains in these seeds that were selected by Dr. Beal back in 1879. At the end of the 50th year, ten years ago, there still were five of the 20 varieties sprouting and putting out seedlings in the test flats.

Dr. H. T. Darlington of the botany department ran the tests in 1920 and again in 1930. Now he waits for Mother Earth to do for so that he can again obtain a bottle. From experience he has made the work easier by taking recent seed crops of the same varieties known to be in the bottles. These are planted in other sand flats to aid in the identification.

Seeds which still had life a decade ago were those of the common curly dock, evening primrose, common mullen, black mustard and a water pepper which is one of the smartweeds. Fireweed, spurge and white clover have never shown viability in the previous 50 years of testing at intervals.

Predicts Gain in Maple Syrup

That unique American operation—tapping maple trees to obtain sap for sugar and syrup—ought to be put to full use in Michigan in early spring this year because of a predicted upturn in demand and prices.

Prophesies of better prices and a good out-of-state demand are made by W. Ira Bull, extension forester at Michigan State college.

In one way, says Bull, Michigan might as well take advantage of the 1939 hurricane that swept New England and decreased the amount of syrup eastern states can produce.

Another factor is in the increased national income with prospects bright for continued employment which the forester thinks should result in a greater demand and hence a firmer price for producers of maple products.

Tap early and remember that cleanliness is necessary to produce a high quality product for table use. Forester Bull warns sugar bush owners: "Do not force product on the market at the beginning of the syrup season as that will disturb chances for premium prices."

Information on tapping and boiling can be obtained by writing to the forestry department, Michigan State college, East Lansing.

Low Pork Price Pleases Cooks

Pork in Michigan households gains more and more popularity at least with those who pay the food bills this winter, for low prices make the meat an attractive purchase.

That leads home economics staff members at Michigan State college to make a few suggestions on best uses and methods of preparation.

Cuts of pork are easy to roast because the meat usually is tender and because the natural fat usually is sufficient to make the meat self-basting.

Especially the pork loin is easy to handle because it can be purchased in a size suitable for serving almost any family. Fresh ham makes another easily prepared meat and even the shoulder is easy to carve if the bone is removed to be replaced, perhaps, by a savory stuffing. With apples plentiful, the usual accompaniment of apple sauce makes another easily prepared dish.

Thorough cooking is required at even temperature. Pork should never be served if steaks, chops or roasts still show any trace of pink in the juice. There might be a trichina parasite present, but sufficient heat can kill the trichina.

Proper temperatures for roasting range between 325 and 350 degrees Fahrenheit. Roasting time should be 25 to 30 minutes a pound, although a stuffed shoulder weighing about four pounds will require about three and one-half hours. A roast-meat thermometer says pork is done when the inside temperature of the meat is 182 to 185 degrees.

Curb Centipedes by Fixing Houses

Centipedes or "hundred-leggers" can prove to be nuisances in a home even though they often are mis-called thousand-leggers and actually have from 15 to 21 pairs of legs.

Home economics and entomology authorities at Michigan State college have collaborated for a brief description of the centipede, what he does and how a home can be rid of the pest.

For pest he is, although actual damage done by the insect is trivial.

Larger species are from four to six inches long but these normally live outdoors. They feed on insects and small animals and do not injure plants or house furnishings. They do get into homes occasionally and hide in the dark. Ordinarily they do not bite humans unless annoyed. The bite is painful but not dangerous unless a secondary infection follows.

The house centipede thrives in damp basements. He has a softer body about an inch long and has but 15 pairs of legs. He is a speedster, however, and can travel quite fast. His food mainly consists of cockroaches, flies, moths, spiders.

Control is difficult. Outside varieties can be excluded by tightening up house foundations and removing rubbish from around the outside of the house. Once in the home the remedy seems to be to kill them when they are found. Poison baits, spraying outside foundation walls with cresote and scattering naphthalene flakes along the walls are controls. Bites should be treated with ammonia or baking soda to take the sting from the small wound.

The TONQUISH CREEK BREEZE

Published at Tonquish Creek, Michigan

The People's Watch Dog
Vol. 3 No. 5

Ye editor has been terribly sick since the night of February 5. He is just now recuperating from eating too much buffalo stew. Doctors don't know whether it was buffalo or garlic that made him sick. Maybe he was both. At any rate latest reports for the Breeze say he is on his feet again and is lolling around among the sand fleas and other useless creatures on the coasts of windy Florida. Maybe a good stomach ache was a good thing for him.

The co-respondent (no that word should be spelled correspondent) of the Breeze who is breezing around on the trail of the Breeze editor to see what he is up to, is writing this newsy letter for the non-paying subscribers of the Breeze. Maybe if they had something different once in a while, they'd pay what they owe to the struggling Breeze.

Early yesterday morning the Breeze editor was seen in company with a suspicious looking character. I think I saw him eating stew from a coffee cup at the banquet. His table spoon wasn't big enough. Some folks are like that you know.

There's gossip down here among all the women that that gun Rutt Powell used to shoot the buffalo with, was his trusty Daisy rifle. It has been discovered that it wasn't the elephant shot that killed old John, but BB's from Rutt's Daisy that did the business. The Breeze always did think that stuff about the elephant gun was the raspberry. Right here we wish to call to the attention of Breeze readers that there are now some new and modern words being used in the Breeze. You never heard that word raspberry used before in the Breeze, did you? No, nor no one else ever did. You might as well know it now as any other time, but the Breeze editor is dead from the heels up. The Breeze has needed new life for a long time. It's been dead ever since the Creek was buried.

It remained for Creeker Fred Schrader to wake the natives up. When he corraled the old buffalo and then fed some of it to Gene Orendorf to try and get him to see the light, that's doing something for the human race. Fred and everybody has known for a long time past that Gene has talents, but he's got 'em all hidden under a bushel. It seems Gene is the eleventh cousin of the Breeze. You never heard that Robert Lee and for that reason he thinks he has got to be a Democrat. Well, I know a lot of Republicans who ain't nowhere so good as is Gene. (Wouldn't the Breeze editor have another stomach ache if he knew I was writing that one.) Anyway, I can't see where there's much chance to make him different than he is. Some day when he thinks the Civil War is really over, Gene may reform.

It is, indeed, a pleasant sight to see Abie Goldstein and Eddie

Buckley sittin' together and hobnobbin' since the day of the buffalo stew. There's nothing like feedin' folks stew to inject a little more brotherly love among our fellow Democrats. They certainly do get sick and tired of eatin' up chestnuts. More power to Abie and Eddie.

Brick Champe has a new theory as to how old John was really made ready for the stew pot. He thinks Creeker Schrader fed him so much garlic for hay that old John just keeled right over and died when he saw Ruff Powell and his shining Daisy. Brick says it's like feeding acorns to squirrels to make 'em taste nutty like. Brick is Tonquish Creek's most famous nature student. We never had one here in the Corners until Brick was discovered.

Anyway, it takes Tonquish Creek to show 'em. What ever peace outside of Amie Temple McPherson's tabernacle in Los Angeles could get so many folks to rub elbows and spill stew down their vest fronts as we did right here in Tonquish Creek? And we ain't offering everlasting peace and glory either in order to do it. Inquiring Reader—P.S.—Is Amie a relative of Mel McPherson? Editor's reply—NO, she is NOT, that is as far as anybody knows. That's a foolish question to bother such a busy paper as the Breeze about. The Breeze will refuse to answer any more like

THE RIGHT KIND.

Announcements recently made by Governor Dickinson of the appointment of Honorable Alva M. Cummings, of Lansing, as a member of the state liquor commission and of Judge John L. Hollander, of Kalamazoo, to conduct the McCrea removal proceedings case, should meet with the general approval of all the citizens of the state. Both of the appointments are of the right type.

Mr. Cummings has been an outstanding member of the Democratic party for a long period of years. He is strictly honest, above reproach and he will make an ideal member of the commission. His selection is the first ray of indication that the liquor commission is going to be removed from much of the suspicions that have surrounded it.

As for Judge Hollander, there is no better qualified official in Michigan to conduct such an important matter than the Kalamazoo probate judge. He is of the right temperament. He detests dishonesty in public officials and he can be expected to handle the case just as it should be.

Certainly these two appointments are most commendable and the executive office is to be commended for the high type selections.

THE FAITH THAT IS AMERICA

(By Wendell L. Wilkie, president, Commonwealth and Southern Corporation as condensed by the Reader's Digest from a copyright article in the North American Review.)

For centuries my ancestors lived in Central Europe. Some of them were peasants, some artisans, others were landed proprietors; but all of them through those centuries had been restricted in their opportunities to the group in which they were born, and no one of them had ever known the true meaning of liberty. Those who did not observe the restrictions under which they were forced to live got into trouble; one had to flee his native land because he adopted the religion of his choice; another was ostracized because he believed in the principles of the French Revolution; and still another was jailed for expressing his own opinions. In 1846, my father and my grandparents came to America to escape this repression of individual liberties.

They were led to these shores, as were millions before and after them, by a special reputation that the United States had among nations. This reputation is founded upon one simple fact: in the United States the plain man has always had a chance.

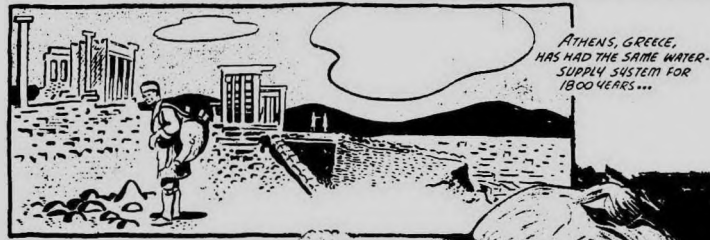

My father and mother were the first generation in their families to grow up in America. My mother became a lawyer. My father was also a lawyer. Of course, in Europe my mother would have found it impossible to practice a profession, and my father would have found it difficult to get out of the groove worn by his ancestors. Furthermore, it would have been utterly impossible for them to have given their six children the education which we received in America. We went to high school and college.

And with schooling finished, there were no doors closed to their children just because they came from a plain family in a small town. No class distinction, no law interfered with their effort to earn a living in the occupation of their choice, or to express their opinions as they pleased.

In all the long history of their family, these six children were the first to know, from the time they were born, the blessings of freedom. I don't want them to be the last.

This family record is the record of any number of American families. For us the value of freedom has had a practical demonstration. Freedom means, for example, that if you run a store, you can sell your products to anybody without a government official telling you what the prices must be; if you are a professor in a university, you don't have to alter science or delete history as a bureaucrat prescribes. If you own a newspaper you don't limit your editorial opinions to what an officer censor approves. If you are a laborer, you can leave your job when you feel like it for any other job you prefer; you and your fellow workers can bargain collectively concerning the conditions of your work; if you think taxes are too high, you can vote against those officials you think responsible. And there is no limitation upon your inherent American right to criticize anybody, anywhere, at any time.

The reservoir, pipes and flushing arrangements in the Athens water supply system have seldom needed repair. It has been estimated that 90 per cent of the entire works remains just as it was when built.

These are practical applications of this thing called freedom. In this country we take them for granted—perhaps too much for granted. But in more than half the world freedom does not exist. The present conflict in Europe is perilous to this freedom because in a modern war people destroy the very things they say they are fighting for. It is because we wish to preserve our free democratic system that we must remain at peace. But we cannot remain carelessly at peace. If the price of democracy in ordinary times is eternal vigilance, in a war period that vigilance must be doubled.

We must be careful that, under the guise of "emergency," the powers of government are not so extended as to impair the vitality of free enterprise and choke off free expression of thought. Already we hear of the need for the government to control prices, to license American business, to regiment American employees and employers, to censor the radio. In a critical time there is always a temptation to let the government have a free citizen to say to the government: "During this emergency, you take charge. You tell us what to do, what to think."

If we should yield to this temptation, the end of our free democratic system might come as readily in peace as in war. Once these responsibilities of citizenship are given up, they are not readily returned. Government, in its practical working consists only of aggregations of men; and men, having tasted power, do not easily surrender power. We must not be misled because suggested restrictions are for humanitarian purposes, for, as ex-Justice Louis D. Brandeis recently said:

"Experience should teach us to be more on our guard to protect our liberties when the government's purposes are beneficent. The greatest dangers to liberty lurk in insidious encroachment by men of zeal, well-meaning but without understanding."

The war has not changed the grave domestic questions confronting America; it has just temporarily diverted our minds from them. For ten years we have been haunted by our unemployment problem. Yet its solution has been in our hands for some time. During the depression decade, American industry accumulated an enormous deficiency in plants and modern machinery. To remedy this, industry will need more capital than the present number of unemployed. Industry will also need a great deal of additional capital, and there should be no difficulty in getting this, as soon as the millions of American investors are reassured as to the future of free private enterprise.

The lack of confidence within industry is partly a result of industry's own defects in the period of over-expansion which ended in 1929. But since then we have had several years of reforms, and some of the reforms have gone so far as to impair the efficiency and morale of business. In promoting recovery, the chief emphasis has been placed upon what the government should do; we have had colossal expenditures for "priming the pump," and a colossal tax program to pay for these expenditures. Here is just the point where our free democracy is threatened. We are not in immediate danger of losing our freedom of speech, or of press, or of worship. The greatest threat to the American system today comes from the effort to restrict free competitive enterprise. And such enterprise alone can make economic recovery possible.

We have been told that the frontiers are gone, that our established industries are slowing down, and that there is little to be expected in the way of new inventions. We have even been informed that the very basis of the American dream is no longer true: that the plain man no longer has much of a chance. But such a philosophy is as false as it is cowardly. Our people comprising only seven per cent of the world's population, still control more than 45 per cent of the world's wealth. And we enjoy the highest real wages, the shortest working hours, and the greatest percentage of home ownership on earth.

The great days of America are by no means done. We have only touched the border of our achievement. If I did not believe this, I would not believe in America. Because that faith is America. So my creed, if I were to define it, would run something like this:

I believe in America because in it we are free—free to choose our government, to speak our minds, to observe our different religions. Because we are generous with our freedom—we share our rights with those who disagree with us; Because we hate no people and covet no people's land; Because we are blessed with a natural and varied abundance; Because we set no limit to a man's achievement; in mine, factory, field or service in business or the arts, an able man, regardless of class or color, can realize his ambitions; Because we have great dreams—and because we have the opportunity to make those dreams come true.

$100-A-PLATE IS BASED ON A DEFICIT APPETITE

What the Democrats do, we suppose, is their business. This week there was a great big $100-a-plate Jackson Day dinner held. The purpose is to get money to pay up the party deficit. The Democratic party is in debt. The Republican party is in debt. The politicians who dig up $100 or $25 for the privilege of sitting down to a feast and a lot of political hot air are, in the most part, men who have jobs. The money they are spending for the honor and glory of their party is money that is paid them by the taxpayers.

There must be a lot of Democrats and a lot of Republicans in this country who would like to see a surplus dinner instead of a deficit dinner. Wouldn't that be something? The Democrats meet in the name of Andrew Jackson, who was a tight-fisted old guy. He must turn over in his grave, if there is anything left of him to turn over, when he looks down from on high and views the ritzy gatherings, Andrew Jackson was, if we read right, about as prone to high life as Governor Dickinson. About the only difference was that Old Hickory was as profane as Dickinson is sanctimonious. Then there were some Republican banquets—Lincoln Day dinners—in February. Abraham Lincoln was not exactly a dandy and prone to extravagance. We imagine Honest Abe and Old Hickory, either one or both, would snort with righteous indignation at some of the silk-hatted blucrocks now in the political picture. They would gag on swallowing $100-a-plate food. And—as we think of it—it is a bit incongruous for the champions of the "underprivileged one-third" to meet in the name of their party and gorge themselves at a price that would furnish food for one of these needy people for six months.

Each year bigger and sadder deficits are built and some of the money that makes the deficits goes to pay for the party deficits and the $100-a-plate blowouts. Surely we have cultivated some grand appetites in this country.—Schuyler Marshall in The Clinton County (St. John's) Republican-News.

HE CRACKS 'EM

One man in the United States who laughs at old Joe Stalin and blustering John L. Lewis is Henry Ford, and he gets away with it. We still have men who can tell 'em to go to h— and make 'em like it.—Robert Gifford in The Eaton Rapids Journal.

WHERE TAX MONEY GOES

In a decade marked by business reverses the state's tax bill levied against its citizens has been multiplied. State appropriations in 1940 will be $46,000,000 more than in 1930. This is an increase of $40,500,000 in aid to local units and $5,500,000 in administrative and operating costs. The increase includes $27,000,000 a year for new activities, not provided in 1930, such as old age assistance, aid to dependent children, aid to blind and relief. Major increases of aid to local governments went to schools and relief.

Think of it! 1930, following a boom year, Michigan spent $47,000,000 less than will be spent in 1940, following 10 years of business stagnation. Do you suppose there is any connection between poor business and continually increasing taxation, national, state and local?—Nelson Brown in The Ingham County News.

A BETTER YEAR

Most of the official reports indicate that economic and human conditions improved during 1939. The Department of Commerce notes substantial gains in nearly all directions up to the New Year.

Our government officials and business organizations give some credit for the improvements to sharp spurts in purchases of products and materials since the new war began.

The fact of the matter is that there has been a small reduction of unemployment; small reductions in relief, and evidences that a period of good business lies ahead. It isn't hard to figure this out, as one observes how business is pushing onward on a broad front across the entire country.

The nation's business leaders are inclined to be conservative, and that is another good sign. If we keep our nose out of this European war-mess, the year 1940 will likely show big business improvements.—Leslie B. Merritt in The Livingston County (Howell) Press.

THE PAY-OFF

Now John L. Lewis has thrown down President Roosevelt and is out for Senator Wheeler. Probably sore because the democrats have not paid back that half million loaned them during the last election, I'd be sure, too, if a man owed me a half million and would, or could not pay me.—Robert Gifford in The Eaton Rapids Journal.

YOU PAY TAXES

Do you earn $30 a week? Do you earn $1,500 a year? Then, providing you don't own an automobile, don't own a radio or don't have a telephone, you pay $183 a year in taxes! And if you do have a car, a radio and a telephone, you pay $200 a year in taxes!

That's the conclusion of Dr. William G. Sutcliffe, of Boston University, given in testimony to the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives during hearings last session on the Social Security Act.

Here's the way Dr. Sutcliffe set it up in figures.

Item	Family Spends	Tax Share
Food	$ 564.00	$ 43.96
Clothing	192.00	13.17
Shelter	327.00	93.42
Fuel-light	75.00	7.99
House furn.	62.72	3.57
Miscellaneous	279.28	21.32
	$1,500.00	$183.43

Polls have shown that a quarter of the people in the United States are under the mistaken impression that they don't pay taxes. This is largely because they don't pay any income tax. They do, however, pay plenty of taxes in HIDDEN taxes. These are the taxes about which Dr. Sutcliffe testified.

In short, every time you buy a loaf of bread, every time you buy a piece of clothing, every time you pay your rent, every time you pay your gas or light bill, every time you buy something for the house, you pay something in hidden taxes.

Government money is raised in taxes. What the government spends comes out of your pocket. Reckless government spending is a waste of your money. The national debt is not just a couple of words that mean nothing. It's a debt that will have to be paid in taxes from your pockets or your children's pockets. Stop reckless spending and taxes will go down.—George Averill in The Birmingham Eccentric.

IS IT BINGO?

We understand that the U. S. government allotted $150,000 for the WPA to count the trees in Cleveland, Ohio. Which merely proves that all the sap in this world doesn't run in trees.—George Averill in The Birmingham Eccentric.
