To Simplify Street System: Some Names Not Appropriate

It was suggested by members of the city planning commission at their meeting last week that many of some city streets be changed. The discussion was brought about because of duplications of names of some of the streets. Other street names are not particularly appropriate, commissioners agreed.

Plymouth's Advantages Told to Listeners of Detroit Radio Station

Mayor Whipple Takes Part in Discussion Monday

Speaking over radio station WMBZ, Detroit, Monday noon, Mrs. Ruth E. Huston, Whipple, mayor of this city told her listeners of its history, industries, government, financial condition and desirability as "The City of Homes."

The program was of the question and answer variety, with Mayor Whipple speaking extemporaneously.

Mayor Whipple told her radio audience that the city of Plymouth has been under city commission-manager type of government since 1918, at that time the fifth such city in Michigan. Its population has increased approximately 15 percent during the past 16 years. In 1930 there were 1,484 residents and an unofficial report shows that 5,339 were living in the city April 1, 1940, making an increase of 655.

During 1939, Plymouth showed one of its biggest boom years in the building industry. Forty-one residential permits were issued, amounting to a total estimated value of $183,000, the mayor said. Four non-residential permits, amounting to $49,000, were issued along with alterations and repair permits totaling $39,196. In May alone, five residential permits were issued for homes amounting to a combined figure of $21,000, she declared. There was $11,965 spent for alterations and repairs.

In comparison with 1939, the mayor said that the 1940 budget was greatly decreased so that the tax rate could be lowered 50 cents per thousand valuation. It will be $12.80.

The total budget amounted to $30,435.90, showing a decrease of approximately $1,000 over last year, she remarked. There was also a decrease of $1,227 in the total amount of taxes spread and the bonded indebtedness was decreased $46,330 during the year. The city's assessed valuation increased from $5,407,000 to $5,410,000.

"To many of you, it will appear that in relation to the amount of building which was done, the valuation did not increase in the same ratio," she said. "But there is a good reason for it all. By the state scavenger land sale, $70,000 worth of property was removed from the tax rolls, comprising 322 parcels. There was $60,000 allowed for building depreciation and $115,000 deducted by the new state intangible tax. Veterans' exemptions, another new state law, amounted to $14,000."

According to present assessment, there is $4,556,810 worth of real estate in the city and personal property amounting to $853,330.

Mayor Whipple next was asked questions concerning the city's bonded indebtedness which she answered in part as follows: "The city of Plymouth retired approximately $45,000 worth of bonds during the 1939 fiscal year, leaving $53,982 yet to be retired. The remaining bonds cannot be called until their expiration date. It is expected that the city will be debt free by 1950. At the present time, the city is free from all special assessment bonds."

Upon hearing of the decrease in the budget for next year, it was only natural that the announcer should ask the mayor what services the city has done away with.

"The surprising thing about it all is," declared Mrs. Whipple,

Watson's had five runs, four hits and one error; Plymouth Gardens, two runs, 11 hits and six errors.

ANOTHER EGG RECORD

North Branch—An egg record to end all egg records has been reported here by Mrs. John Turner. One of the hens in her flock of white rocks laid an egg 10 inches around the long way, and eight inches around the center. It was perfectly formed, and inside was a normal egg.

"Don't tell me—I can guess You've changed to a Gas Refrigerator this time!"

... because it freezes silently with NO MOVING PARTS!

YES... more and more families every year are replacing other-type refrigerators with the only automatic refrigerator whose freezing system has nothing to cause noise, rattling or wear. Come in and see the Gas Refrigerator!

nowhere can be found a more interesting sight than the Bond Falls or other waterfalls of the Upper Peninsula. Each one is different. Each one possesses characteristics that make lasting impressions. Neither has the state done anything at any of these falls to make available to the public advantageous places to see them. At Agate Falls, nearer to the city of Ontonagon than are the Bond Falls, the Copper District Power company has created a roadside tourist park, with steps leading to the bottom of the falls, but that is all that has been done to assist the public in viewing some of nature's outstanding wonders of our north-land.

Ontonagon is especially favored as a center of interesting tourist sights. Besides these two falls, the Porcupine Mountains are not far from the city. These are the highest mountains between the eastern states and the Rocky Mountain states.

High up in the mountains is a number of lakes, the most beautiful one being the Lake of the Clouds. As one looks down upon it from a cliff rising several hundred feet above its surface, there is unfurled a sight that can be seen in no other place in the country.

Then there are the old copper mines where copper was taken from the earth in days before the war of the Revolution was fought. At Rockland, a short ways out of Ontonagon, is located the historic Victoria mine and the famous Victoria water-geyser that reminds one of Old Faithful out in Yellowstone National park.

Near it is located the highest concrete power dam in the Middle West.

In order to see all the interesting places about Ontonagon one should plan to spend not less than a week, stopping at any number of pleasing tourist lodges, hotels, cabins—or if one prefers, at free camp grounds right on the shore of Lake Superior. Ontonagon is almost directly south of Isle Royale, which is being converted into a new national park.

Here, too, is a free ad for a little restaurant in the Upper Peninsula that serves some of the best meals that money can buy. Ewen is a neat, clean appearing little village, located in the heart of an excellent farming country in the Upper Peninsula. About the place are grown some of the best potatoes raised anywhere. They "knock the spots" off Maine and Idaho potatoes and have been judged the best in more than one contest. Ewen, too, is the home of The Cloverland Press, a breezy tabloid hometown paper that is always boosting for its part of the state. But to Mrs. A. E. Brousseau, who has for nearly 20 years conducted the little Carlson Inn at Ewen, goes first prize for serving some of the best prepared food one can find anywhere.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE DETROIT NEWS

You have a mighty fine newspaper; you have accomplished many fine and progressive movements for the bettering and advancement of many communities which you serve.

Your Cradle Roll has supplied invaluable information to hundreds of mothers.

Your cooking schools have proved to be a great boon to the women of Michigan.

My children and all children within the vast scope of your news-covering influence receive great joy when they ride on the miniature railroad at the Royal Oak zoo which you so generously provided for them.

The Detroit News has grown great and powerful because it has conscientiously and efficiently served the needs of the people of this great state of Michigan.

RECENTLY YOU PRINTED ON ONE OF YOUR PAGES A NEWS FEATURE COLUMN EDITED BY DR. GEORGE W. CRANE ENTITLED "TEST YOUR HORSE SENSE." It was my pleasure to have studied at Northwestern under this splendid gentleman, student of human needs and philosopher. Well equipped in training with a Doctor of Philosophy degree from Yale University and a Doctor of Medicine degree from Northwestern, this educator of the common people needs the cooperation of a great medium as The News to help carry on his splendid work.

I have made inquiries among hundreds of your readers and the citizens of this state concerning his articles and their worth; they informed me they received much pleasure and gained invaluable information from his pertinent questions and answers.

They would look forward every day to the answers his "common sense" philosophy and teaching combined in his articles in your newspaper.

Father and mother would impart knowledge to daughter and son through this fine system of education and in turn children, daughters and sons, contributed their knowledge and learning to parents in their study and discussion of his question and answer system.

Interlocking in this matter and as vital as life, liberty and our free system of education today is the fact that teachers and philosophers of past civilizations as far back as Socrates used the same simple method of questions and answers to stimulate thought and progressive education of the masses during their lifetime.

Did not The Great Teacher and Master Himself impart knowledge and food for thought through the same method?

RECENTLY DOCTOR CRANE'S COLUMN WAS CONSPICUOUSLY ABSENT FROM THE PROGRESSIVE PAGES OF THE DETROIT NEWS. Many people are inquiring why the Doctor's vital information is not printed in your newspaper.

They fervently hope they will again see Doctor Crane's question and answer articles printed in The Detroit News.

Sincerely Yours,

JOHN A. ROSS

Will Give Award for First Racer

An award is to be given to the first boy who completes his racer for the Plymouth Soap Box derby, Clayton Koch, chairman of a Junior Chamber of Commerce committee in charge of the race here, announced yesterday. So that boys can better understand how the racers should be constructed, efforts are being made to secure the one which finished first in the Detroit race last year. It will be on display in one of the down-town store windows for a few days, and then it will be taken to the Allison Chevrolet agency which is co-promoting the event with the J.C.C.

According to an announcement just made, there will be no fees connected with any racer entered in the race. Local merchants are permitted to sponsor a racer, but are prohibited to have any part in the actual construction of it.

Ten or more Plymouth boys who compete in the race here will be sent to the Detroit Derby where they will be finalists. The Detroit winner will compete in the national finals at Akron, Ohio, in August. Each contestant will be given an official crash helmet, consisting of the Chevrolet Motor company and heat winners will be given official jerseys to wear at the Detroit meet, which is to be July 25. The Plymouth meet has been set tentatively for either July 18 or 19.

Indications are that boys will not find it difficult to be sponsored by an individual or merchant as several have already declared their sponsorship. Boys who wish to be backed by a merchant may contact one of the J.C.C. committee members who are: John R. MacLachlan, Charles P. Wolfe, Byron Becker, George Todd and Mr. Koch.

Boys are permitted to purchase wheel and axle sets for their racers. Official sets are available at the Plymouth Hardware. Any boy who has a Plymouth mailing address, between the ages of 11 and 15, inclusive, is eligible to enter the race. There will be two divisions, one for those between 11 and 13, and another for 13- through 15-year-olds.

To Receive Helmets

Each boy who enters the Plymouth Soap Box Derby to be given a steel, aluminum-finished crash helmet.

Two Students Win Special Honors

Two Plymouth students at Michigan State college were significantly honored upon their graduation Monday with special awards of merit for their achievements. Russell Kirk, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Kirk of North Mill street, received an award of $30 for writing the best short story in a contest annually sponsored by the college. This is the third year he has won an award for essay and short story writing. Kirk has also recently been awarded a scholarship to Duke University, where he will continue his education next fall. His major at M. S. C. was history and it was in that field in which he was awarded his degree at Commencement exercises this week.

Don Thrall, an art major at the college received the Arnold Scheele award for 1940. Mr. Scheele is head of the Art department and gave Mr. Thrall one of his paintings. Each year the award is given to the student who is considered by a committee to be the most advanced.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest L. Thrall of Irving street.

Hit by Lightning, Barn Burns

Fire, started by lightning, burned a large barn to the ground on the old Judson farm one half mile west of Frains Lake last Saturday afternoon. Because there was no adequate water system, nothing could be done to save the building, although members of a large crowd attracted from U.S.-12 tried to help. Many neighbors brought pails and milk cans and a bucket brigade was organized which proved successful in keeping the flames from spreading to other buildings.

When the Salem fire department arrived the driveway, leading to the burning barn, was choked with cars belonging to onlookers—a situation treated with outspoken disgust by volunteer firemen on the truck. Lightning rods on the barn were knocked off when the lightning struck and the whole roof was ablaze at once, it was said. No stock was destroyed and the damage was confined to the building which was partly full of hay.

Seventeen species of snakes and one lizard, the blue-tailed skink, are resident in Michigan.

Obituary

WILLIAM C. LYNDON

William C. Lyndon, aged 85 years and a resident of this vicinity for more than 60 years, died at his home in this city, June 6, after an illness of but a few days. Born in Fairport, N. Y., Oct. 10, 1855, he came to Michigan early in 1880 and lived in this vicinity during that entire period. For more than 33 years he was employed as a gardener and florist on the Birch farm. It was not until advancing years made it necessary for him to give up this work that he sold his little place on the Golden road and moved into the city, January 27, 1892, where he was married to Almedia Ray. He was a member of the Baptist church and was regarded as one of the city's upright and dependable citizens. Shortly after Rev. Stanford Closson came to Plymouth, Mr. Lyndon became acquainted with him and became one of his good friends. It was Rev. Closson who preached the funeral sermon. Austin Whipple sang two solos at the services held in the Schrader funeral home, Saturday afternoon. Besides the widow, three children, Mrs. Clarence Rathburn, Mrs. Irene B. Shaw and Raymond A. Lyndon of this city, and two stepchildren, Alfred W. Lyndon, of Rochester, New York and Mrs. E. O. Morley, of Syracuse, New York, survive. Burial took place in the family lot in Riverside hospital after an operation. John Geerts was pleasantly surprised when a crew of neighbors came to help do his spring farm work. Ten men worked all day plowing and harrowing his crop land.

Sutherland Beats League Leaders

Sutherland, holding down fourth position in the Central Softball league, beat the league leaders, Super Shell, last week when they scored 11 men and allowed the top team to push across only six.

The defeat puts Plymouth Plating in a 2-1 tie with Super Shell for highest honors, both teams now having lost one game. This week's games complete the first half of the season.

Monday night at 7:30 o'clock managers of Central league teams will meet in Room No. 1, Central grade school, in order to pick two all-star teams. Managers are requested to have players in mind so that the meeting can be completed as early as possible.

Schrader took the Daisy team, 7 to 4 and Plymouth Hardware was shut out, 9-0, by Daisy the next evening. Sutherland lost one to Plymouth Plating, 6-1, and Schrader won a shut-out from Perfection, 14-0. The third shut-out of the week was Friday night when Super Shell scored nine runs against Dunbar Davis' team.

Standings for the first half of the season follow:

	W	L	Pct.
Super Shell	6	1	.857
Plym. Plating	6	1	.857
Schrader's	5	2	.714
Sutherland	4	3	.571
Daisy	3	4	.429
Plym. Hardware	3	4	.429
Davis	1	6	.143
Perfection	0	7	.000

Next week at Central playing ground the following games will be played: Tuesday, Perfection vs. Schrader; Wednesday, Davis vs. Super Shell; Thursday, Sutherland vs. Plating; and Friday, Plymouth Hardware vs. Daisy.

At Starkweather, two teams are still tied for first place honors, neither having lost a game. They are the Hi-Speed and Stark teams with three wins apiece.

In last week's play, Wall Wire No. 1 won a high scoring affair from Wall Wire No. 2, 13 to 11. The Merchants' team beat Studebaker 6 to 3. Stark had an evening at the bat when they sent home 14 runs to take the Wall Wire No. 2 team by 7 runs. Allen Industries edged out Studebaker 11-10, and Hi-Speed shut out Wall Wire No. 1, 9-0.

Monday, the Lutheran church team will meet Wall Wire No. 1; Tuesday, Stark vs. Allen Industries; Wednesday, Hi-Speed vs. Studebaker; Thursday, Wall Wire No. 2 vs. Merchants; and Friday, Hi-Speed vs. Lutheran church.

DUCKS TURN BLACK

Standish—When Charles Neiman went to bed one night recently, he saw a flock of white ducks on the Pine river near his home. Next morning they were still there, but were black instead of white. A truck had overturned, spilling 3,000 gallons of crude oil down a sewer that emptied into the river.

FIRST: Kelvinator found a more efficient way to distribute its products... and cut the cost of selling. This made a big saving.

SECOND: by putting 96% of production on six-cubic-foot models (and larger), Kelvinator was able to build big electric refrigerators at lower cost.

THIRD: in anticipation of greatly increased sales, Kelvinator doubled factory schedules, and passes the manufacturing savings to you.

And the result? You save as much as $30 to $60, compared with last year's figures. Look at this big Kelvinator model at right—in gleaming Permalux.

Open that Easy-Touch door and you'll find the best features money can buy. 11½ square feet of wide, roomy shelving... chip-proof, "life-time" Porcelain-on-steel cabinet interior... big storage tray... 84 cubic freezing capacity... automatic light.

Its amazing, cost-cutting Polarsphere sealed unit uses current less than 20% of the time and has sufficient capacity to keep 5 refrigerators cold, under average household conditions.

Police Chief Warns of Dangers From Sabotagers

Keep Eye on All "Fifth Columnists," He Urges

Citizens of Plymouth will do well to keep watchful of "Fifth Columnists" at work, warned Chief of Police V. R. Smith. He said that, although this is no time for alarmism, great care must be taken in this area to protect the nation's welfare. The reason for this warning, he revealed, is a message from the FBI in Washington to all police chiefs around Detroit where a great part of the government re-arrangement program will be carried out.

"We don't want folks coming to us on mere suspicions or as a matter of spite against 'niggers,'" he said, and pointed out that clear-headed watchfulness will be of great value, especially on the job during the day.

Chief Smith also reminded that "mere talk" is not sufficient to bring a case against anyone, but that a suspicious act should be noted and reported. Especially an act that is aimed at retarding or bungling the job. "Fifth Columnists" have been around here for years, he explained, and have been working quietly to disrupt any program of armament of the United States that their governments fully expected would eventually come about.

Chief Smith said that he had been informed from Washington that foul play can be expected around Detroit because this area is the greatest industrial center for large-scale production of war materials, aircraft and tanks.

It will give Plymouth people a great deal of pride, said Chief Smith, to know that Washington considers them, among the thousands living around Detroit, as the most trustworthy and loyal in the nation and that it is their job to see that the United States will be fully able to protect itself in any emergency that may arise as the result of the terrible conflict overseas.

It is all the more important that every man and woman should exercise the calmest of judgment in helping authorities apprehend those who would prepare the way for our destruction, Chief Smith went on to emphasize. He said that he is planning to open an evening course at the high school to instruct public-minded citizens how to act most effectively in helping the city police do their part in aiding the nation's campaign to make America the best place in the world in which to live.

Entertain Members of Business Club

The Misses Hazel Lickfelt and Hanna Strasen entertained at dinner the members of the Business Women's and Professional club at the home of Fred Hubbard on South Main street, Tuesday. A business meeting was held, after which Miss Lickfelt showed movies taken of the ice carnival held in Plymouth last winter, skiing in Oakland county and Isle Royale.

No Fireworks, Says the Chief

In order that children and many of the older boys and girls will not be misled by advertisements of firms outside Michigan relative to the purchase of fireworks, Police Chief Smith said yesterday that as usual the Plymouth police department will not tolerate noisemakers and other Fourth of July explosives this year, as outlined by state law.

"And this warning applies to merchants as well as the boys and girls," the chief said. "In years past, especially last year, a number of merchants in the vicinity procured the fireworks and offered them for resale."

"It is not so much the danger of children being hurt by the explosives that I am giving warning, as I cannot remember an incident of serious accident caused from fireworks since I have been in Plymouth. But I am warning merchants against sale of noisemakers because the state is in a position to impose a large fine," he declared.

The Plymouth police department, as in past years, will cooperate with the Wayne county prosecutor's office in stamping out the use of fireworks in this county and Metropolitan Detroit. In a letter from the prosecutor, Chief Smith was informed that cap pistols, caps and other types of torpedoes of fireworks, tablets or other devices containing explosives and inflammable materials are being sold and offered for sale throughout various portions of this district.

"We intend to enforce this law to the letter because of the great danger that can be done to smaller children who do not understand, many times, the dangers connected with the handling of fireworks," Chief Smith declared. "It also induces children of tender age to become accustomed to seeing the law violated if not themselves participating in the violation."

The chief said that this warning should be early enough to stop any prospective orders for purchase of the fireworks outside Michigan, or even of the bootleg materials which get in for resale.

"If any Plymouth residents, whether they be children or grown-ups, are found to be in possession of fireworks of any description, they will be liable

57 Decathlon Awards Made

Fifty-seven awards were made to Plymouth seventh, eighth and ninth grade boys last week when the eleventh annual decathlon meet, sponsored by Rotarians, was held at Central playground.

Anthony S. Matulis, high school athletic director, was in charge of the meet. He was assisted by several members of the Rotary club, and, also by Varsity club members.

More than 200 boys participated in this year's decathlon meet as a part of their physical education course. Each was required to participate in 10 events for which points were given. Eleven events were offered, from which each participant chose 10 in which to take part. They were, in order: standing broad jump; overhead shot; 100-yard dash; dip; sit up; running broad jump; running hop, step and jump; standing hop, step and jump; and shot put. Of the 210 who took part, 48 were from the seventh grade; 68 from the eighth grade; and 102 ninth graders.

Gold medals were awarded to Gordon Vetal, Keith Sprout, Louis Smith, Carlo Robelli, Elmer Meyers and Dick Behler.

Old Timers Think Time Has Come for Band Concerts in Kellogg Park

Years Ago, Each Saturday Night Was "A Big Event"

Remember the regular Saturday night band concerts in Kellogg park? Many Plymouth residents do. They can tell you how everyone sat around consuming pop-corn, candy, ice cream and soft drinks and listened to a soul-stirring Sousa march while the kids roared all over the place, bumping into their elders with joyful abandon.

To come right down to it, Plymouth is the best little town in the countryside for happy living and real enjoyment of all the good things in life. The beautiful Riverside Parkway runs along one side of it, one of the world's greatest Universities is only a few miles away and metropolitan Detroit is only three-quarters of an hour away from our city's outskirts. And, right in the middle of all this is Kellogg park where folks like to come after shopping on Saturday nights and visit—and listen to a good band concert.

be given regularly at a time when all are out to enjoy themselves at the week's end! It's funny how lively tunes and lilting melodies, heard at a short distance amid the traffic hum, will make a person feel more generous and right with the world.

Everyone in the crowd will sing right out when the band leader calls for a community song like "Old Black Joe" or "God Bless America." It's easy to sing when you have the band to carry the burden along. And it's a lot easier when there's a business men's quartet to do the leading. One can just hear that close harmony when they get down to work on a good old barber shop ditty with the Oompahs and clarinets furnishing the background.

Can anybody think of a better investment in business and happiness for the whole community? Then what are we waiting for? A little organizing and talking, and the first thing we know the old band concert will be back in town again.

Annual Meeting of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston, Mass., June 3

An appeal for calm and more faith in the omnipotence of God in the face of present world turmoil featured the gathering in Boston, Massachusetts, Monday, June 3, of thousands of Christian Scientists from all over the world for the annual meeting of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts.

"Trusting in the omnipotence of God," said Harry C. Browne, First Reader of The Mother Church, in reading a message from The Christian Science Board of Directors, "onable on e, through demonstration, to enjoy the freedom of thought resulting from the unfolding of the characteristics of divine Mind as expressed by Christ Jesus.

"Becoming cognizant of the true idea about anything, exposes its suppositional opposite as a lie. Therefore, when the true idea of man's relationship to God is universally expressed, misunderstandings between men and nations will vanish.

"The divine Mind is in reality the only power; therefore nothing can resist the manifestation of righteousness with due regard for the necessary human footsteps, which our Leader, Mary Baker Eddy, says are indispensable in meeting problems. It is also imperative to look to the divine Mind for guidance and wisdom to supply the impetus to do all things in a right way and at the right time."

Mrs. Margaret Murney Glenn Matters, C.S.B., of the late Major General Edwin F. Glenn, of the United States Army, was elected President of The Mother Church to succeed George Shaw Cook, C.S.B., of Brookline, Massachusetts. Edward L. Ripley of Brookline and Ezra W. Palmer of Marshfield were re-elected treasurer and clerk, respectively. The chief duty of the president is to serve as presiding officer at the annual meeting.

Mrs. Matters spent her childhood in various army posts in the United States, Alaska, the Philippines, China, and Japan. She studied music in Boston where she became interested in Christian Science, joined The Mother Church and three years later, Second Church in New York. She then went abroad to continue her study of music, and while there decided to give up her musical career to devote full time to Christian Science practice.

Following Normal class instruction in Christian Science in the board of education in Boston she became an authorized teacher. The following spring she was elected Second Reader of The Mother Church. She served as a lecturer on Christian Science until July, 1938, and since then has been practicing and teaching Christian Science in New York City.

Commenting on the turbulent international situation, the incoming president said that "Christian Science reveals the power of individual man to meet and overcome the herds of mesmeric suggestions and subtle influences claiming to induce discouragement and apathy. It enables the Christian Scientist to overcome the belief that war can be of permanent advantage, or that it is to be feared. It destroys the desire for an unrighteous, unjust and enslaving peace; and it sets right that wrong sense of values which would prefer this so-called peace to that active warfare between the flesh and Spirit which The Mother Church typifies, and which ultimately in the victory of spirituality and Love."

First Dairy Tour Next Monday

(By E. L. BESEMER) The first dairy day tour will be held Monday, June 17. Plans have been made by the Wayne County Dairy Herd Improvement association and the County Extension service.

Along with general dairy feeding problems dairymen on the tour will study alfalfa and smooth brome grass pasture and the making of alfalfa silage.

The schedule for the day is: First stop—10:00 a. m., S. A. Hill farm; manager, Norman Neiman; Eight Mile road, north of Newburg road, four miles east of Northville.

Second stop—Wayne County Training school; C. E. Elliott, steward; Roy Scheppele, herdsman; Sheldon road, north of Phoenix road, two miles southwest of Northville.

Third stop—George Schaefer farm; corner Goddard road and Allen road, seven miles east of Romulus.

At the S. A. Hill farm, Northville, is an excellent demonstration of an alfalfa-smooth brome grass pasture. It shows alfalfa-brome mixture, smooth brome alone, and top dressing with barnyard manure.

At the Wayne County Training school—soybean silage, chopped hay, steel hay keepers, and the school dairy herd.

At George Schaefer's farm the making of alfalfa silage. All dairymen, their wives, 4-H dairy club members, and vocational students are invited to bring a basket lunch and meet at the first stop at 10:00 a. m. and make the entire tour.

Several million dollars worth of porcelain and pottery products are manufactured annually in Michigan.

Irving Street Being Blacktopped

Irving street, between Williams street and Blaine avenue, has been partially closed to traffic this week because city employees have been scurrying in order to make ready for blacktopping. Workmen began tearing out the road Monday morning. The blacktopping will be completed by the end of the week.

Plymouth Host to Craftsmen

Plymouth's chapter of the Future Craftsmen of America was host to 32 members of the out-state "organizations. Saturday, June 8, The F. C. A. is an organization to promote and develop craftsmanship. Nearly all of the Detroit high schools have a group, in addition to those of numerous high schools throughout the state. These groups cover such crafts as automobile mechanics, machinists, electricians and radio mechanics.

Competing against the Henry Ford Trade school, Wilbur Wright high school and Cass Technical high school, the Plymouth club won a first and third place in a craft contest. The contest included two tests: A written examination on the subject and a constructive project.

Frank Lodge, of Plymouth, is the third vice-president of the state organization. Following the business meeting Saturday morning the representatives held a picnic at Riverside park. Plans were made at the picnic for a state convention to be held in Hamtramck next fall.

Farm and Garden Club Meets

Nearly 50 members of the Plymouth branch of the Women's National Farm and Garden association, met Monday with Mrs. C. D. Branigan in her lovely home on Newburg road for the regular June meeting. Mrs. C. E. Elliott, president, presided, and gave a very interesting report of the state meeting held in Lansing in May. This was followed by the reports of committees after which Miss Emma DuBord, the guest speaker, gave a most enlightening talk on "Flower Arrangement." Mrs. Branigan and the following committee served very tempting refreshments: Mrs. John Dalton, Mrs. LeRoy Jewell, Mrs. Raphael Mettel, Mrs. Harold Brisbois, Mrs. Jack Blyton and Mrs. Milton Laible.

Plans were made to have a basket picnic at Elizabeth park on Monday, June 17, with a tour of gardens in Grassie Lake afterward. Each one attending is asked to bring one dish for the table, sandwiches and drink for themselves. The ladies are to meet promptly at 12:00 o'clock at Elizabeth park. Those wishing transportation will please call Mrs. Ralph J. Lorenz, chairman. All who can, are urged to attend the picnic and tour.

New Deal Pours Tax Dollars Into Race Tracks Instead of Defense

Political Job Holders Allowed Exorbitant Expense Accounts While Army and Navy Begs for Funds

Evidence brought out by a House committee investigation shows that John K. Jennings, WPA administrator for Indiana, received for travel in and out of the State of Indiana a total of $3,336.40 between March 25, 1937 and August 27, 1939. At Louisville, Kentucky, he attended the Derby and was paid $12.50 per diem and $11.50 for mileage traveled in his personally owned automobile. He also filed vouchers for and received per diem and mileage for a trip to Chicago at the time of the world series baseball games. Jennings also made 72 trips to his residence city, Evansville, from Indianapolis on official travel status during the period April 4, 1937 to August 27, 1939. Practically all of these trips were week-end periods.

Evidence before the House Subcommittee on Appropriations shows that $521,000 was spent by WPA for a race track at Del Mar, California. Col. Harrington, WPA administrator, testified: "We were taken for a ride on that."

The WPA in Indiana paid $46,246.29 rental for a machine for 15 months which had a value of $20,000, according to evidence furnished to a committee of Congress.

Business concerns made 60,000,000 returns to New Deal agencies in the year ending June 30, 1939. Each return covered an average of 50 questions. The average business firm received 20 demands for answers to questions propounded by 17 separate New Deal agencies.

The New Deal spends $6,000,000 a year for typewriters to serve its departments, commissions, authorities, agencies, boards, bureaus and what have you.

Payroll of the New Deal political bureaucracy was $148,000,000 in January, 1940, more than six times the payroll of the combined armed forces of the United States.

Investigators for the House Subcommittee on Appropriations submitted evidence to U. S. District Attorney Nolan of Indiana which, with other evidence, resulted in indictment of five individuals. A former WPA district director, Karl Kortepeter, was involved in all cases, tried, convicted and sentenced to 18 months' imprisonment, subject to appeal. These investigators reported that officials of the Department of Justice tried to prevent these cases from being brought to trial.

Matthew S. Murray was Missouri State Administrator of WPA at $7,500 a year. He was exposed in Congress for "irregularities," but was kept in office four months longer, when he was convicted of a Federal crime and sent to prison. The WPA Administrator then reported to Congress that Murray had resigned "for personal reasons."

Without counting in supervisory officials drawing less than $1,200, there is a total of 93,500 persons in administrative or supervisory positions in WPA, at a total expenditure of about $172,000,000. The total represents a percentage of about 11.5 per cent of funds appropriated.

This year's hearings of the House Subcommittee on Appropriations indicate an expenditure of $300,000 for the salaries of 150 persons engaged in WPA propaganda and, in addition, an expenditure of $430,000 for printed matter, radio, movies and exhibits, or a total of $735,000.

An ex-convict named Morris Berliner, with a record of three convictions for crime, including larceny and manslaughter, was made teacher of adult education in New Jersey by the WPA, according to evidence brought out in a House committee investigation.

A House committee discovered that the WPA had spent $115,000 for a four-story hen-house at Soldiers' Home, Washington, to produce 72,000 dozen eggs per annum in competition with farmers who had an oversupply of eggs.

Congress has been advised that the Federal Writers' Project under WPA has been revamped, and that 11 of the 13 supervisory officials identified as Communists have been let out.

At a time when WPA laid off workers for lack of funds, some of the administrative jobholders received increases in pay.

Russell Daane Receives Attendance Pin

Mr. Daane has been and is an invaluable member of the club, having served it faithfully for several years. For the past two years, he has been secretary of the organization and has worked on numerous committees.

Presbyterian Church Group Guests at Northville Wednesday

Members of the Presbyterian church auxiliary were guests of the Northville Presbyterian Women's Union Wednesday afternoon. A varied program, in charge of Mrs. G. A. Smith, was presented by the Plymouth ladies, which was followed by a tea.

The exchange meeting is an annual affair. Mrs. E. C. Vealey, president of the Plymouth group, formally invited the Northville club here next year. Mrs. H. S. Willis, president of the Union, accepted the invitation on behalf of the Northville organization.

A review of the book, "It Occurred to Me," by Lucile Lester, was given by Mrs. Maurie Matulis. The discussion centered principally around the author's post-World War work and dealt with her theory of non-violence and pacifism. She has carried on that theory all over the world. Mrs. Matulis said.

Two violin solos were given by Miss Doris Hamill, who was accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Maurice Woodworth.

Plymouth Has Summer Theatre

Developing with the same ideals of community progress that have been observable on the east and west coasts for the last few years, Plymouth this summer will have its own summer theatre. Unlike other summer playhouses, the cast will, with few exceptions, be entirely from Plymouth and Northville.

The season opens next weekend, June 21 and 22, on the Starlit stage at the Art Barn with a presentation of "Wuthering Heights," the play by Randolph Carter from the story by Emily Bronte.

There is very little known of Emily Bronte's placid life. She left no correspondence, and her single novel, "Wuthering Heights," darkens rather than solves the mysterious story of her existence.

Randolph Carter's stage adaptation of "Wuthering," which will feature Eva Scarpulla, as the heroine, Catherine, and Nette Worthington, as Heathcliff, both from Plymouth, catches the spirit of the book and accurately pictures the storm-tossed romance. Relieved by flashes of wit, beautiful passages of sound and color, this tense drama has been pronounced excellent entertainment. "Wuthering Heights" is the last of the Bronte stories to reach the stage and screen. Merle Oberon and Laurence Olivier have recently been seen in the Hollywood version of the tragic story. Now comes the stage adaptation, with its characters so modern they seem to be stepping out of a post-World War psychological novel, rather than from a century-old classic.

William Thams U. of O. Graduate

Dr. and Mrs. S. N. Thams, of Main street, and Mrs. Thams' mother, Mrs. W. E. Hoover, motored to Oklahoma, last week to attend the graduation of their son, William H. Thams, from the University of Oklahoma.

The young man received his bachelor of science degree, having majored in geology, with specialization courses in petroleum. At the exercises, he also received his second lieutenant's commission in the United States Reserve Army as a result of advanced ROTC work while at the university. He plans to attend the Army summer camp at Fort Sill, near Lawton, Oklahoma.

Next fall, he will further his education at the university in addition to teaching. He has recently been given an assistant instructorship. During the year he expects to complete work toward a master's degree.

He is a member of Delta Tau Delta, social fraternity, and also of the national geology honorary, Sigma Gamma Epsilon.

Mr. and Mrs. Thams and Mrs. Hoover also visited friends in Muskogee, Oklahoma, before returning home by way of Tennessee, Kentucky and Ohio, where they visited other acquaintances.

Girl Reserves Recognize 13

Also Install New Officers

In an auditorium dimly lighted by candles held by the members of the Girl Reserves, 13 girls were officially recognized as members last Monday, June 3. Following this, the new officers and cabinet members were installed into office by a simple but very impressive ceremony.

The new girls seeking to become members of the club were led by Ardith Rowland in repeating the Girl Reserver's pledge, and purpose. They lighted their candles of the office. The old officers lighted the candles of the new and blew their own out. The officers for next semester are Ardith Rowland, president; Virginia Rock, vice-president; Betty Schaeple, treasurer; Mary Jane Oksaver, inter-club councilor; Virginia Rock, program chairman; Shirley Reamer, music; Virginia Dunham, ways and means; Evelyn Stewart, service; Billie Ann Blackford, social; Jeanette Wicken, publicity; and Gladys Davison, recreation.

Following the ceremonies, the girls served refreshments and themselves with punch and cake.

1939-40 Brings Full Year

With a freshman attendance of about 210, the school year of 1939-40 started in September. Nothing except classification and confusion occurred during this month. In October the sports season got under way with cross country and football. An addition to the school was also begun. For the first time in the school's history, November marked the end of physical education classes for students past the tenth grade. The juniors who did not have a full credit in gym were required to take some sport at noon to make that up. Besides the Christmas vacation the seniors gave their prom, the juniors received their class pins and rings and presented their class play "Jane Eyre".

January brought us the sad news of the death of Mrs. Goodwin Crumby who had once been a teacher and had many friends in the school. Miss Gray's marriage to Cecil Sule was also announced. Gloriette Galloway took charge of the student government which came into effect in February. A new teacher, Miss Sweet, was introduced in February and the J-Hop was held. The enlargement of the home economics room was finished during this month. A girls' golf team was established for the first time. A one-act play contest similar to stant night was introduced in April and the spring sports were begun.

In May the musical, speech contests, Skip Day, sports regatta, and the first girls' pentathlon was held. June gave us the junior-senior banquet and graduation of 114 seniors.

Southern Small Talk

Hi You All:

Well, we bet here's some people you all didn't expect to meet around us Southern Gals in person. A little birdie blew a breeze our way to the effect that we all were going to be exposed this week. Well, rather than have us somebody else make a fool of us, we all think we'd prefer to take the privilege of writing up one last column.

And soon it's the last one, the gossip's gone to be flyin' thick and fast.

For instance, who was the person who got Betty B. to come to the door in her blouse on Monday night? Hint—he blushes awfully easily.

Speakin' of Betties, Betty Maas seems to be having lots of fun. First Rod, then Sam—and have you still got Eddie M.'s pin?

Our favorite couple, the nicest and all that stuff, is Charlotte Luzius and Martin Horvath. Running a close second to this couple, though, is Joyce Tarntzer and Ernie Elzerman.

We wonder why the boys in Mr. Latture's third hour public-speaking class are so popular. Could it be because there are only four boys to twenty-some girls? How about it, Crisp, Daily, Owens and Lorenz?

It seems to me, Bob Daniel, that you are rather too curiously persistent. I s'pose you're laughin' up your sleeve now 'cause you were on the right track. P. S.—Don't you just love to serape wax off candle sticks the morning after a banquet?

I guess Mary E. D. had fun at the Junior-Senior banquet. But who wouldn't? Between Johnson and Hoffman? And we wonder why Dorothy and Paul wouldn't even ask each other to pass the glasses. Could be they're not on speaking terms.

And these boys (you know who you are) who are so persuasive they can get girls to skip with them and get in Dutch could be to be hung.

Well, 'nuff said. Till next year "what would you say if you wake up to find your head in a bureau drawer and your legs hanging on the chandelier and your hands in the goldfish bowl?" "That's me all over!"

Bye now,

Northville Wins From Rocks!

Boys and girls! Hang your heads—You want reasons? Well, it's like this, Northville, allow me to repeat, Northville defeated Plymouth 3-2 last Friday at the Northville diamond. The Plymouth boys had complete charge of the game up until the last inning and it was Northville who struck the next two batters singled tying the score and placing a man on third. At this point in the game, the umpire called a balk on Kelley, Plymouth pitcher, and waved the winning run home.

A near riot followed, but the Plymouth boys failed to gain anything more than a "Well, it was a balk" from the umpire and so ended the game. This is the first game Northville has won in the last three years from Plymouth.

Jack Neilson was Plymouth's starting pitcher and held the opposition to but one run in the innings that he pitched. He was favored for a pinch hitter in the last of the fifth and Kelley then went on the mound for Plymouth.

Hartner, pitching for Northville, pitched well but found himself in trouble almost every inning. A usual Plymouth every season man let on base.

This game marked the close of the "40" season for the Rock nine and the finale for several of the seniors on the team. The one consolation for the seniors is that next year Plymouth will move down Northville (we hope) until they come the longest distance for a pinch hitter in the last of the fifth and Kelley then went on the mound for Plymouth.

Valedictorian Receives Award

Ruth Ash, valedictorian of the class of 1940, received a subscription to the Reader's Digest at the honor assembly. Signed in gold by the president of the magazine, this award is given to every valedictorian in the United States who is certified by the principal of the school. Last year's award went to Veronica Marti who is now in Bernese, Switzerland.

Awards Made at Honor Assembly

Many and varied were the certificates and medals of honor awarded at the annual honor assembly held Friday, June 7, in the high school auditorium.

The awards were made by the respective coaches of the subjects. Mr. Latture awarded medals for debate and letters for golf. Certificates were awarded in the following sports by the following coaches: Baseball, Mr. Jensen; basketball, Mr. Matulis; football, Mr. Matulis; tennis, Mr. Bentley; track, Mr. Ingram; cross country, Mr. Wallace.

A two-dollar prize and an honor certificate were awarded to Virginia Rock by Mrs. J. M. Bennett, regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution, for excellence in American history. Mrs. Bennett also presented Ruth Ash with a pin for good citizenship during her four years in high school. This honor gave Virginia Rock four honors as she received medals for debate, a Free Press medal for being on the first debate team, and a medal for being the winner of the extemporaneous speaking contest.

James Zukerman and Glen Ford were given medals for oratory and declamations, respectively. Both of these boys were members of the valedictorian class. Virginia Rock was the sub-district winner but was defeated in the district contest.

Ruth Ash, valedictorian for this year, received a subscription to the Reader's Digest.

Makin' the Rounds

Question of the week: "Why was Bill McAnich studying counterfeiting?" Perhaps it would be better to have a banquet for gossip instead of columns. How are your examinations coming along? Well . . .

I don't know whether Homer looked again or not but Leston S. found Cecil B. seem to be doing well for themselves. Another thing, why is Archie King mentioned so many times . . .

Believe it or not this will be the last issue of our beloved Pilgrim Prints . . . no more gossip! . . . A conundrum: Why was first hour English class like the seniors? Answer: Because they had nothing between their ears! Believe it or not . . . Yankee Doodle is a Civil War song; Patrick Henry was a Civil War orator; and Lincoln was a poet!

All Owens certainly goes for the gals. He picked Madam-oiselle for Armistices for a World War song. Which is it John or Jack Baker? Well, another interesting feat was performed by Jack Butz. . . Even though he did forget most of his speech!

Twenty-one members of the Varsity club and six coaches attended the Varsity club picnic at Riverside park Thursday evening.

The picnic, the first social function of the newly organized Varsity club, concluded their activities for this year.

Boys who had already earned their letter in a Plymouth high school sport were the only ones eligible to attend. The coaches were Anthony S. Matulis, Henry Jensen, James Latture, Carvel Bentley, and George A. Smith and Claude Dykhouse, superintendent and principal of Plymouth high school.

Don Blackford, president of the club, had charge of the picnic, assisted by Wesley Hoffman, secretary. Joe Scarpulla is the club's treasurer. All three boys will graduate this year.

Honor Students — Editorial

Now that the honor assemblies and the honor banquet are over and the school year of activities is drawing to a close, we can, without misgivings, examine the roster of Plymouth's "honor" students.

This inspection can be performed most easily on the honor banquet program which lists all who attend the honor banquet and the reasons for their being honored. There are honor students in scholastics, citizenship, dramatics, music, writing, and foreign and there are the seven yearly sports as well as girls' sports on the program.

The proportion on the program, about 50 percent scholastic, and 50 percent, is just about right. Yet aside from the honor banquet there are several criticisms which we believe are just. Anyone knows that athletes receive no recognition scholastically, but the other 98 percent don't get a thing except the privilege of standing up once in the honor banquet.

We will admit that an athlete deserves a token of his ability, but we can't see why a student in Plymouth who works hard all year in stay on the honor roll should receive something just as definite—perhaps not a letter, but at the least a pin. True, the honor student, scholastically, can show his name in the athletic write-up which is just as important to him.

Extra-curricular activities, outside athletics, yield medals if the student is possessed of talent, and these medals are given to individual contestants.

The only possible equal distribution nowadays, it would appear, is to have all students athletes, and all athletes students. One has outright evidence of his ability now, and the other has to wait until he graduates to get it.

Who Were Your Ancestors?

Have you ever tried tracing your ancestry back as far as possible? You may discover that Great-Uncle Louis was a horse-thief or that Aunt Mary was a peasant when you thought she was a rich lady; then again, you may find that you have a family crest that you can tell your friends about or that your great-great-grandfather Henry was a peer in the House of Lords, you can never guess if your family tree is a good one, a good and bad one, or just a bad one. Genealogy is an interesting study, especially if those whose ancestors are involved.

How we began discussing family trees in Pilgrim Prints one day we have never been able to determine, but once we were in that fascinating subject, we found it hard to drop. There are four who can trace their families far beyond their grandfathers' time.

Paul Harsha stated that some of his ancestors came from the village of India five hundred years ago. There was also a branch of this same family in Persia and this name is mentioned in the Old Testament of the Bible. The family, because of intermarriage, is now a mixture of Scotch, Dutch and several other nationalities.

Robert Daniel's ancestors have been traced to 1500. One of the most interesting points in this study is the unusual names. One relative was called Preserved Leonard and his wife, Sarah Keep.

Phyllis Hawkins' family tree on her mother's side has been traced back to the clans of Ireland; from there it is difficult to go further since only the leaders of the clan left records. It has been proved that this clan had once migrated from Egypt. Her father's ancestors came from Scotland. Phyllis related that her great-grandfather crossed the wilderness in a covered wagon and settled in Elm, Michigan. He and his companions built their first school and houses; the houses are still standing.

Margery Merriam can trace her ancestry back to the time of the Anglo-Saxons, 800 A. D. About 1100 A. D. the first census taken in England, recorded the Dooms Day Book, had Merriam listed among the residents. At the time the Pilgrims came to America in 1607, a man by the name of Merriam was one of this small group. Today all the Merriams in the United States are his descendents and there are no Merriams left in England. In the roster of Massachusetts there are pages and pages of Merriams at the time of the Revolutionary war. One often reads in history books about the wall that the minute-men hid behind to shoot at the British. Investigation has revealed that this wall was owned by a family called Merriam.

Music Memory Contest Held

Music by the masters has occupied the time of the seventh grade music students under Miss Doris Hamill's direction in preparation for the music memory contest.

Three classes participated in the contest which consisted of five classical records including Hansel and Gretel Overture by Humperdinck; Badinage by Victor Herbert; Lullaby—Jocelyn, by Dvorak; Carnival Overture by Dvorak; and The Sorcerer's Apprentice by Paul Dukas. Betty Ebersole and Hecamund Bushy received awards of opera stories as prizes for perfect papers. The stories were those of Aida, Lohengrin and Valkyries.

LAST ISSUE — Editorial

This is the last issue of the Plymouth Pilgrim Prints. Seniors have taken their examinations already and the remainder of the high school will begin theirs, today, (Friday). In another week Plymouth students will begin their two months' summer vacation.

Because it is an organ of Plymouth high school, which is devoted wholly to its news, the Pilgrim Prints necessarily suspends publication this summer. It will begin once more next fall in the Plymouth Mail, however, as soon as school starts.

The Pilgrim Prints this year has had a small staff which singularly did not include a single senior. The great majority of the staff are juniors who expect to be back next year.

We hope that the Pilgrim Prints this year has been an instrument of some good to Plymouth and the surrounding community. Without a doubt we have missed some important items and may have misrepresented others unintentionally but in the main we believe we have done successfully our primary function which appears to let alumni and parents know what's happening in Plymouth high school.

Cooperation with those in charge of high school affairs has been essential and we thank those who have through their courtesy made possible some of the news in our columns. We hope that our news this year has been agreeable to them and to our readers.

Wise Movement — Editorial

The decision by the junior class to donate their $15 worth of flowers used in the junior-senior banquet to the Plymouth hospital is a good example for future occasions. There is no better place for flowers than in a hospital. It is a wise precedent to follow and a wiser one to snare.

Seventeen species of snakes and one lizard, the bluetailed skink, are resident in Michigan.

Daniel Elected Prints Editor

Robert Daniel was elected editor-in-chief of the Plymouth Pilgrim Prints. Plymouth high school student publication in The Plymouth Mail, at a final meeting of the Pilgrim Prints staff at D. von Gables Monday evening.

Daniel, who is a member of the Plymouth debating team and a half miler on the track team, has been on the Pilgrim Prints one year. He will succeed Paul Harsha as editor.

Virginia Rock was elected assistant editor at the same time, a post which she held also last year. Both the editor and assistant editor last year were juniors.

Daniel and Virginia Rock are both seniors next year. They will begin work on the first issue of the publication next fall at the opening of Plymouth high school.

Both Bob and Virginia are half year students and members of the first team of the Plymouth high school debating squad. Each has several other honors—Bob received his letter this year for running the half mile on the high school track team while Virginia placed second in the extemporaneous speech contest, state competition.

Leaders' Club Chooses Pins

Senior girls in the Senior Leaders' club have sent away for pins to signify their membership in the club. Only seniors will have the pins this year, but the remainder of the club plans to supply pins for all members next year.

The pin is in the form of a shield with the initials S.L.C. on it and a wreath of oak leaves on the sides. The twelve Leaders' club girls who are getting the pins are Dorothy Barnes, Margaret Erdely, Isabelle Naim, Velma Thatcher, Patsy Arnold, Jean Schoof, Helen Jane Springer, Marjorie Knowles, Dolores Detling, Rita Archer, Barbara Ziesch and Betty Barlow.

Junior Reserves Recognize 45

In the candlelight recognition service held last Tuesday, June 11, the Junior Girl Reserves recognized 45 new members. Because of the unusually large number of girls who are now members, the younger Girl Reserves have been divided into two groups, the intermediate and the junior. The intermediate group will be composed of seventh and eighth graders; the junior group will be ninth and tenth grade students. Miss Tyler will be advisor of one group and Miss Lickly advisor of the other. After the recognition service, all the girls went to the park for a picnic, lasting until 8 o'clock.

Following is a list of girls who were recognized: Intermediate—Dora Gruebner, Mary Helen Swanson, Phyllis Schreyer, June Leslie, Geraldine Burgett, Doris Cole, Lois Mills, Rosemary Miller, Virginia Mault, Helen Schoof, Nelda Meeder, Phyllis Lee, Gertrude Mulry, Emma Tymment, Nancy Maddox, Jean Minchard, Norma Hazlett, Betty Batt, Rosemary Hether, Mary Schonberger, Marjorie Stitt, Mildred Barron and Jean Gould.

Teachers Knitting for Red Cross

Because of the present conditions in Europe, the United States Red Cross is doing its share in helping the victims of the war. Working with the Plymouth organizations, several teachers are among the first volunteers to knit sweaters for refugees, notably of Norway.

The sweaters are being made for adults and children. A slate blue color is made for children and a maroon color for adults.

The volunteers are Mrs. Haar, Miss Fiegel, Miss Herr, Miss Ford, Miss Killham, Miss Wells, Miss Saffell, Miss Taylor, Miss Tyler and two wives of the faculty, Mrs. Matulis and Mrs. Bal-den.

Will We Study English Lit?

Mussolini has declared war on England and France! Does this mean that the graduating class of 1940 is saying good-bye to the English that they knew and studied? Does this mean that English literature will no longer be studied in the course for seniors?

High school students seem to realize now, more than ever, that they are living in a history-making era. News flashes are listened to carefully; discussions and debates are carried on. American students can be well-informed if they desire. They are thinking more as they have seldom thought before. It is true that one still hears the flippant reply, "So what?" to a history-making act, but one does not hear it often or from so many. Here lies America's hope—her future—the youth of America.

Do you remember the band crash of 1929 and 1930? You who are older will probably not forget it, but to high school students at that time, it seemed so small. One student was heard to remark to a teacher about the bank crash, "Well what of it? What does it mean to us?" There was no awareness of the fact that they were seeing history made, that they were watching changes as great as those described in books. There did not even seem to be any reaction, good or bad, to the catastrophe. What a remarkable and fortunate contrast there is—the student of the thirties and the student of the forties.

We can see historical events and hear of them every day. We may have our courses altered to meet those rapidly changing conditions. By next fall there may be no England, and we cannot tell. But England and her literature will never die so long there is America. Our literature is based on the English; we study it. We cannot continue to study the fine works and masterpieces that the centuries have produced. Yes, next fall English literature will be a part of the senior course, regardless of what happens to Britain. America and her youth are the promise of today, the hope of a greater tomorrow.

Plan Student Gov't for Fall

Student government activities will be carried on next year as they have been doing. A new administration of a mayor and council will be elected two weeks after school resumes in September.

Mr. Dykhouse is asking next year's seniors to act as trustees from the beginning of the new school year until a chief of police will have been appointed. He believes that this will solve coming late-traffic problem since 300 trustees are expected to enlist next fall. Paul Harsha and Larry Arnold have been appointed to head the temporary police department.

To aid new students the council is also arranging that information desks be placed within the halls at various points. This will solve the problem of lost students. Virginia Rock and Phyllis Hawkins will head the groups.

Schraders Still in First Place

Strengthening their hold on first position in the White division of the Ingham County League, the Schrader-Hagerly nine defeated the B. A. Builders of Dearborn, 4 to 3, in a game played at Riverside park, Sunday.

"Ken" DeBozy and M. Wolfe worked for Plymouth and Bixler, Hall and Burnman and L. Hill formed the scoring battery.

Neither team scored until the last of the fifth when B. A. showed one run across. Schrader's came back their next time at bat to tie the score. They made another counter in the seventh.

The first of the ninth the Dearborn team made two putting them out in front by one score. Schrader-Hagerly, however, came to bat in the ninth. "Howdy" Scryer, pinch-hitting, connected for a triple and was pushed around when M. Wolfe, catcher, poled out another three-sacker. Kubitsky drove in Wolfe with the winning run, on a hot grounder through shortstop.

DeBozy fanned nine men.

Girl Reserves Hold Farewell Seniors Bade Adieu Tuesday

Following a custom established years ago, the sophomore and junior members of the Senior Girl Reserves gathered for the annual farewell ceremony held Tuesday, June 11, at the high school auditorium.

The Girl Reserves sang "In True Fellowship" as they marched into the darkened auditorium. Each senior girl held a lighted lantern as they formed an inner circle while the juniors and sophomores formed the outer circle. Following this a prayer was offered by Miss Fiegel after which a quartette, composed of Margery Merriam, Mary Jane Olaver, Shirley Reamer and Annabelle Decker sang a hymn. A responsive reading was led by Virginia Rock with various members of the group giving the replies. Miss Fiegel then presented the seniors with their colored ribbons—white, signifying interest, indicated membership in the club for one year; green, growth, three years; red, love, four years; and gold, service, six years. The retiring president, Ruth Ash, then gave her farewell address. After this the seniors of the inner-lighted circle handed their lanterns to the outer circle of juniors and sophomores as a symbol of graduation and farewell. They then sang their farewell song, Ardith Rowland, the new president, gave her speech and the recessional followed with the juniors and sophomores singing their farewell song written by Joanne Welch.

Miss Fiegel showed the girls movies of the May Breakfast and the teachers' picnic taken several weeks ago. Following this, the girls went to the lunchroom for refreshments. Chairman of the ceremony was Mary Jane Olaver.

"THE IDYLLS OF THE KING" A LA MONROELEAF

The following interpretation of "The Idylls of the King," written by Virginia Garrison, high school sophomore, in connection with the study of Tennyson's famous poem, parodies modern melodrama.

Note: Any resemblance to the characters in this narrative and those in "The Idylls of the King" is purely a shame.

It was back in the third or fourth century that all this happened. This King Arthur was the big shot bossing the guys around and making them go on quests. To be a Knight of the Round Table a fellow had to swear to some vows. Then all he did was rescue fair dam-sels and such pushover jobs.

Well, Art liked Sir Lancelot the best of all the knights and those two were bosom buddies. Art was the perfect man and Lancelot tried although he fell considerably short. It all started when King Art decided to marry Guinevere, a lovely doll who was the only daughter of a sourpuss king. (In those days kings were a dime a dozen). Art sent Lancelot after Gwennie because a king didn't trappee over the county to get his bride. And right there was where Art made his first mistake because Lancelot and Gwennie fell in love while coming back. When King Arthur married Gwennie she said she would love him to the death but didn't look him in the eye.

Pretty soon the knights see how the wind is blowing and toast Lance and the Queen. Art is such a right guy he doesn't know anything is happening. The day rolls around for the annual tournament for a prize of a diamond. Lance won the other eight and wants to make it a monopoly so he can present the Queen with them. They total a small fortune and would be quite a nice gift. On the big day Gwennie is sick and Lancelot, thinking she wants him to stay, tells the king an old wound will keep him from the contest.

After poor unsuspecting Art leaves, the Queen wants to know what the big idea is. Lance explains and she says he has to go or people will talk. (They aren't eating peanuts, now). He says it is too late, he already told the king that he can't enter. This is a pretty kettle of fish but Gwennie cooks up a scheme whereby Lancelot is to go to the tournament disguised, with the weak excuse of doing it to have a fair contest.

On his way to the jousting rounds, Lancelot gets sidetracked at Astolat. There the Lord of Astolat, his son Lavaine and Torre, and his daughter Elaine—a blond baby—ask him to stay overnight. He does this and in the morning borrows Torre's plain shield, is argued into wearing Elaine's token, (why they had them do not know) and taking Lavaine with him, is off to the wars.

At the tournament Lancelot is seriously injured despite winning. Lavaine, who didn't do bad for himself, takes charge and they leave without the diamond. Meanwhile things are humming back at the palace. The Queen learns of Lancelot's wearing a lady's token and gets hotter than Bob Feller pitching no-hit balls. The king sends Gawain, otherwise known as The Court-ous, out to give the prize to the knight.

Arriving at Astolat, Pretty Boy takes one look at Elaine and decides that as the great lover it is his duty to stay. When Satchel Mouth finds out Lancelot is head man in the game he gives her the diamond to deliver and goes gaily on his way to bigger and better conquests.

Elaine bullies her father into letting her deliver the diamond and goes to Lancelot. She nurses him back to health and he loves her like a sister, which is not exactly as Elaine would have it. Elaine tells Lancelot of her love, but he says it is a passing fancy, he doesn't love her, he will give her anything she wants except that and goes sadly back to Camelot. Elaine, who has a mind of her own, decides she will die of a broken heart. After giving instructions that her body with a letter in her hand be placed on a barge and floated to Camelot, she gives up the ghost and fades out of the picture.

At the castle Gwennie is given the diamonds by Lancelot. After bawling him out good and proper, she ends up by throwing them into the river. About this time the barge barges up and everyone except Elaine is forgotten. In her letter Elaine had mentioned her love for Lancelot which wasn't returned and asked that they pray for her soul. She was buried with a lot of swank with a classy ambstone and a replica of the shield she loved so well at her feet.

Thus, except for Lancelot's sorrow, ends the story of the Lily Maid of Astolat.

Moral: Shame on you for not being ambitious enough to read Tennyson's far superior story!

That Margery Merriam's little sister Sally is really a heart-breaker. Am I right, Joe Scarpulla? I wonder why Archie King wasn't at the banquet. Could be because Louise Powell is a sophomore and was therefore ineligible to attend. . . Apparently Roberta Greenaway is a fast worker when she writes letters—especially to a certain French boy who signs his replies, "Love". It seems that Lillian Fisher has two favorite names—Jack and Bob. You remember last year it was Jack Ross. Then the two Jacks—Butz and Gettle-son—who entered the picture with their jests. Now I'm told it's a Bob. Whether it be O'Connor, Bowden, Norman or Pitt was not very definite but I have it strictly from the inside now that it's Hitt. And he will be graduated next week. It seems you always wait just a little too long, Lillian.

For the past two weeks I have watched teachers knitting sweaters for the American Red Cross. I think this is a truly fine contribution on their part. Many of them learned to knit in the last war and they are now knitting for the second Great War. Do you realize that even though we Americans are not yet a part of this war, and I hope we may never be, we can help by using a little of our time and skill for the knitting of sweaters to give to the unfortunate refugee victims, be they British, French, German, Dutch or Belgian? We don't have to fight to be of aid. The Red Cross will supply all the yarn and directions for your work. If you can knit, you could be of great service by offering your abilities. Have you? I would like to commend our busy teachers, especially so at examination and graduation time, for using their few spare minutes so worthily a project.

Junior and Senior Banquet Well Attended

Approximately 300 students attended the annual junior and senior banquet last Friday in the high school auditorium. Sweet peas and roses adorned the tables as centerpieces and were given to the Plymouth hospital after the affair. Neat looking programs were decorated with pencil colored caricatures of "Gulliver's Travels," the theme of the banquet.

The after-dinner speakers spoke of junior and senior relations, all expressing the regret of the seniors leaving the school. Mr. Dykhouse, the faculty speaker, gave the seniors a word of assurance and encouragement. A ball with music furnished by Don Mielbeck's orchestra, followed.

School Daze

I now come to the last week of column writing for this semester but, breaking all tradition, I refuse to run true to form and reveal my identity. Why? Well, for one very important reason, there seems to be a few of my so-called "victims" that have their feuding blood up. For the other, I might continue to write this column next fall, so I must remain a deep, dark mystery if I want to see all, hear all and tell well—most of it. I think that's a pleasant thought to leave you with this summer.

Impressions of the Junior-Senior Banquet. What I Saw: The myriad of colors displayed by the girls in their formals made an attractive scene. I thought, "The fine gesture on the part of the junior class in offering the floral decorations to the hospital and the equally fine gesture on the part of the majority of the students who left the flowers as they were. . . The concentration of teachers at the second table. . . I wonder, "Did those juniors and seniors have 'bit of Irish devilment' in them?" . . . The questioning looks I saw darting about during the fifth columnist's speech. . . The banquet's revelations by way of pairs—Frances Morgan and Eugene Wilnow, Lila Selke and Ivan Packard, Glorietta Gallo-way and Jack Gettle-son (once again), Doris Starkweather and George Blyton, Ruth Parmalee and Lloyd Clark, Eugene Baka-well and Dorothy Ebersole, Jean Anderson and Jack Butz, and so on and on and on. Draw your own conclusions, my dear Watson.

What I Heard: Suppressed gasps of indignation and bursts of laughter during the Spy's revelations — especially when a certain stag line was mentioned along with the ensuing battle over a member of the fairer sex. . . When Spy Galloway discovered George Blyton's partner, supposedly Phyllis Hawkins, changed to Doris Starkweather. . . When Lila Selke's boy friend and Lloyd Clark's girl friends were compared. I could continue like this for two columns but if you were there you heard all this before and I suppose once is enough (especially for some of you). I imagine that Miss Galloway will have nearly as much trouble with those exposed indignant students as I have with mine, but I have one advantage—they don't know who I am.

Gossip, Bright Remarks, Etc.: Gordon Robinson revealed something very interesting when he declared that Poe was born at an early age. . . Jack's remark that "elastic currency" was a rubber check is another example. (It sounds like an old joke book, Mr. Crisp). . . I've often wondered if Allen Owens is really serious about Lester's sides. . . His ways of telling her she's breaking his heart. . . I've heard

SHAME-FACED WASHINGTON.

It must make a lot of the long-haired, shallow-brained New Deal fanatics in Washington look pretty sheepish these days when they pick up the newspapers and read every morning that Henry Ford is doing more than all of these crack-brained dreamers ever dreamed of to help put this nation in a position where it can withstand the attacks of a threatening foreign enemy. If memory serves rightly, these New Deal boys and girls are the same crack-pots who have tried diligently for the past six or seven years to drive Henry Ford out of business. America can thank God that the Washington crack-pots have never been able to even dent such a good American as our Dearborn neighbor. And it might be said right here that when loyal Americans find it necessary to begin cracking down on the enemies of our government employed in industry, there will not be any of them found on the Ford payroll. Good-Old-American Henry Ford has taken care of that problem during the past six or seven years. His employees are all LOYAL AMERICAN CITIZENS!!!

"A STATE REVENUE DEPARTMENT TO SUPERVISE ALL STATE TAX COLLECTIONS"

At a time when the streets and country thoroughfares of Europe are running red with human blood and when great armies are tramping down the growing food supplies for a vast continent, a discussion of the subject "State Revenue Department to Supervise All State Tax Collections" looks like a rather wearisome matter to be talking about. It seems all the more so when one realizes that flaming embers from the holocaust that is now burning out the civilization of the old world threatens to engulf the new world—a new world that was created to provide a safe haven for those who desired to be free of the goose-stepping, the hatreds and the greedy plundering of nations on the other side of the Atlantic.

It is a timely subject, nevertheless, and an exceedingly important one to Michigan.

There are three important reasons why the time has arrived for drastic action upon the part of the state pertaining to its revenues.

The first reason involves a state problem only. Due to a reckless, carefree and wasteful expenditure of tax dollars we have a state deficit of more than $30,000,000 that some day must be settled.

There are but two ways this debt can be paid. It can be accomplished either by an increase in state taxes or by a rigid curtailment of state expenditures. Common sense dictates that this deficit should be eliminated by a rigid curtailment of expenditures.

The second reason why we should take steps to eliminate any duplication or unnecessary expenses in connection with the collection of state revenue pertains to the $45,000,000 deficit of our federal government. The taxpayers of Michigan must pay off the debt of our own state, and we must do our share towards paying off the national deficit, created by a wild, political spending "spree" that rivals anything of its kind in all history. While we have increased the federal payroll during the past seven years from a force of political job holders of less than half a million to a total that now reaches nearly a million, we have accomplished no lasting benefit of any kind for the people of our country.

Tax dollars have been thrown to the four winds with a carelessness that has been astounding. It has been borrowed money that we have spent and it must be paid back by the taxpayers of the nation.

The third reason why it is so essential that Michigan's state government take immediate steps to conserve every tax dollar that it can possibly save is due to the fact that we are immediately confronted with the necessity of building a strong national defense to safeguard our country from an enemy that threatens us from the other side of the Atlantic. We must meet this crisis at a time when we are being called upon to pay the fiddler for the fun we have been having at the expense of the taxpayers during the past seven and a half years.

This, too, is a state tax problem. The federal government has reached a point where it is now almost entirely supported by revenues and taxes taken from the people of the various states of the nation. We in Michigan will pay our share towards any national defense program that the congress shall decide upon.

Besides these three major reasons for the utmost economy in the conduct of our state business there are numerous other reasons why we should make every tax dollar go just as far as possible.

We must not only maintain our state institutions and care for our dependent afflicted and our aged, but we must prepare for future emergencies that are bound to come in the wake of the present world war. There has never been a disastrous war that has not been followed by famine, pestilence and general despair among large numbers of people. Even at this very hour we are being called upon to provide food, clothing and medical aid for millions of homeless, destitute women and children—victims of the most brutal and useless war the world has ever known.

What will happen when the present conflict ends, leaving nearly all of Europe as barren as the dust bowl of the Mid-West, no one can foretell. But there are some things we can do to prepare for that which is ahead. We know there will be another depression following this war just as sure as the sun will rise tomorrow morning.

We cannot bury our heads in the sand as does the ostrich and refuse to face the cold facts. The thoughtless say that we should not be alarmed at what the future holds.

To point to the certainty of the problems of the future is not to create any false alarm. It is a duty.

Senator Tydings, of Maryland, one of the outstanding Democratic members of the present congress, the other day in discussing this problem before members of the senate, declared:

"With a world war now raging, and with the prospect of bankruptcy and unemployment, and disruption of all the regular avenues and methods of conducting trade and finance after the war; with the soldiers returning home; with the munition plants closed down, as they are bound to close down when the war is over; with ours closing down in our own country; with our markets largely gone, we are bound to face a serious financial problem in meeting the distress which will be evident on all sides in this country."

In face of conditions which we know are bound to come, we must right now begin to prepare for the problems that are ahead of us, and also to prepare for a far greater national security than we now enjoy.

I am inclined to believe that the Governor would be justified in calling a conference of the legislative chairmen and appropriation committees to re-check appropriations of the present fiscal year for the purpose of making substantial reductions wherever possible. Of course it is realized that these reductions would have to be of a voluntary nature on the part of the departments, boards and commissions for which the appropriations have been made, but I do not believe that many of those responsible for state expenditures would dare defy even an informal request of those who made the appropriations and who will probably have much to do with making funds available for the next two fiscal years.

To tell the taxpayers of the state that there is any relief in sight from the tax burdens they are now carrying would be to tell them something we know is not true. The establishment of a revenue tax department will not reduce the tax burden one cent. Because of the state and national deficits which must be paid and because of the necessity of building up our sadly neglected national defense we will be required to pay more taxes than ever before.

But the state can, through the establishment of a tax revenue department, reduce the costs of collecting its tax dollars and secure a more efficient collection of various revenues than we have in past years.

The more we can save by the operation of a single revenue department, the more money we will have to pay on the debt that now haunts the administrators of our state government.

Maybe, too, through the creation of such a department we can smoke out a lot of needless job holding parasites who are sapping the public treasury of tax dollars so badly needed for worthwhile purposes.

Up until a few years ago when Michigan began to spend more money than the taxpayers paid into the public treasury in order to support a vast army of political job holders, this state never had to worry much about its income.

We seemingly had enough money to take care of the needs of the various state institutions and to provide for the growth and development of the state.

During the last session of the state legislature an earnest effort was made by its members to curtail the growing costs of the state government. Much of the difficulty comes, however, after the appropriations have been made and the legislative session has adjourned. After the money has been set aside for the departments, boards, commissions and institutions, it is not an easy matter to control the expenditures. There are some groups which think that money appropriated must be spent, no matter for what purpose, just so it is spent.

It is recalled that three years ago, discovery was made of one commission that had completed its work and made its final report to the state, but the entire staff was kept on the payroll doing absolutely nothing until all of the appropriation had been expended.

There was a time when those delegated the responsibility of disbursing state funds, regarded it as a distinction to have a substantial balance to return to the general fund at the end of each fiscal year. Unfortunately, however, there are now too many who believe that the definition of the word "economy" is "extravagance."

Two years ago the writer introduced a bill in the legislature which provided a serious penalty for any one in state authority to spend more money than had been appropriated by the legislature. Of course such a proposal was a very unpopular thing among appropriation spenders and it didn't get very far.

In the past when we found need for additional funds we created some new revenue, delegating to this, that and the other state official or department the responsibility of collecting the new tax. As a result our tax system has grown up something like Topsy, without training, direction or co-ordination.

Under the haphazard system of voting new tax laws and delegating responsibility for collecting these new taxes, we now find that the auditor general has six or seven different kinds of taxes to collect. The secretary of state also collects about a half dozen different forms of taxes and revenues. Recently he was given the responsibility of collecting a part of the state sales tax.

Besides requiring the auditor general and the secretary of state to collect a dozen or more different forms of taxes, we have altogether about a dozen more tax collecting units in the state government. Even the Governor is forced to collect one state revenue. We find that the state's chief executive has been delegated the responsibility of collecting fees for the issuance of notary public appointments.

There is no question but what it would be far more economical if all of the tax collecting boards and commissions were consolidated into one department and the collecting of all revenues and taxes were made the responsibility of one branch of the state government. Not only would it be more economical, but a far better job of tax collecting could be done for Michigan if it were under the jurisdiction of one official or board.

The entire system at present is badly planned and decentralized and is costing taxpayers a large amount of money to maintain it under the present arrangement.

Numerous efforts have been made in past years to correct the situation, but seemingly because of lack of public interest and the fear of some of the state departments that some of their patronage or some of their "rights" might be taken away from them, these efforts have never met with success.

It was ten years ago when a state Commission of Inquiry Into Taxation declared that "It must be apparent to all the people of this state that inefficiency, lack of coordination, duplication of efforts, multiplicity of ideas having the sanction of official approval, lack of supervision and intelligent direction are all, not to mention many others, breeders of waste. Our present system of administration of laws having to do with taxes is so archaic as to suggest a re-vamping."

Several times bills have been introduced into the state legislature by members which had for their purpose the creation of a state tax revenue department. These bills have never been passed. The nearest that one came to securing favorable action was during the last session when a bill introduced by Senator McCallum was reported out of a senate committee with a recommendation that it be passed, but it was almost immediately killed on the floor of the senate. The Ann Arbor senator is not at all hesitant about placing the responsibility for the death of his bill. He frankly says that it was killed because of the lobbying of certain state officials.

A similar measure is now under preparation and will be presented to the next session of the state legislature. Those who have made a study of the state tax problem and know something about the folly of continuing the present conglomerated system are hoping that the public interest being created by such groups as this will result in favorable legislative action.

Several southern states have recently brought about a consolidation of their tax collecting units. Kentucky, Georgia, Tennessee, and Alabama have all established departments of revenue. A number of western states, Iowa, Idaho, Kansas, Minnesota and North Dakota as well as Texas have revamped their tax collecting units and eliminated a number of them.

New York and Pennsylvania, two of our largest states, have for a number of years maintained a single revenue department. Little, however, has been done since 1921 to bring about a needed change in our state government.

When the legislature meets in regular session next January, there should be ready for introduction a carefully worked out revenue department bill, one that will fit the needs of our state. Then after it has been introduced, citizens should never end their efforts until it has been made into law.

But we should not, and we cannot, wait that long before doing something to strengthen our link in the national chain of defense. If we can rightly divert dollars from purposes not immediately essential, if we can save something here and a little more there, and make available these funds for the protection of our homes, our institutions, our state and our nation, that should be done today!

UTTER CONFUSION

If anyone had any doubts of the necessity of calling on William S. Knudsen and others to direct the New Deal's defense program, let him read the following editorial from the June 1 edition of American Aviation, a magazine which describes itself as The Independent Voice of American Aeronautics:

If we hadn't seen it, we wouldn't have believed it. A day or so after the President loomed from seven years of inactivity on national defense into a dream world of 50,000 planes overnight, the War Department dramatically sent telegrams to all leading aircraft manufacturers to attend a conference in Washington at 10 a.m. Monday, May 20, at which time the great program would be explained and the co-operation of the industry sought.

A War Department telegram is not something to throw in the waste-basket. So on Sunday the manufacturers arrived from far and near. On Monday morning they prepared to meet with the Government to hear the details. At 9:30 a.m. there was still no place scheduled for the meeting, but finally word filtered through that the manufacturers were to meet in the Treasury Department. The room proved to be so small that half the manufacturers couldn't even get in.

Next came the grand entrance of Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, whose presence had not been expected, and Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson. Next came the photographers and the newscasters with many gracious words being spoken for the benefit of movie patrons. Mr. Morgenthau then excused himself. After extending a greeting, Col. Johnson likewise bowed out. Remaining was Gen. George Brett, chief of the Army Air Corps material division.

Gen. Brett, first of all he had to confess that the program wasn't prepared and that it would take at least 10 days in the making. Next he had to confess that the Chief of the United States Air Corps likewise didn't know what the program was to be. All he could say was that already had been said to the tune of hundreds of columns of newspaper space—that the Government wanted to do something, that it depended on private industry, that if it built factories it wouldn't operate them.

Shortly the meeting broke up. Puzzled, bewildered, disgusted, the manufacturers filed out to the Treasury Department. What's it all about? Can the country in these days afford such a fiasco as this? Every manufacturer in the United States is working night and day. He hasn't time to go out on wild goose chases. The Government KNOWS the industry will co-operate—and co-operate to the top limit. The industry has never yet let the country down, but as much can't be said for a Government that has dilly-dallied, chiseled the manufacturers for below-cost production, and left the industry to shift for itself during the past decade.

Was it merely a big political gesture to call in the manufacturers and have some newscrawls made? Was it cricket for the Cabinet officers to show to the industry and the public that the men in the Air Corps who know what they are talking about haven't been in on the plans from the start?

This is no time to make buffoons out of an industry that is willing and able to do the job for national defense. Let's cut out the circus stuff and get busy on a program that should have been started five years ago, and let experienced men who know their business have the say so about it.

The editorial bears the caption: POLITICAL BUFFONERY.

Rambling Around WITH EDITORS OF MICHIGAN Their views about public problems and issues.

POOR CITIZENSHIP In our opinion, efforts on the part of a real estate concern from Detroit to avoid the payment of $1,700 in this year's city taxes is mighty poor citizenship. This company holds that, since they have not yet received deeds to their 202 lots from the State of Michigan, they cannot be taxed on Birmingham's books for the current year. A court case will determine whether or not they shall pay. Birmingham holds that, even though the actual deeds are not in the hands of the concern, they do own the lots which, incidentally, were obtained at the Scavenger Sale for only a portion of the delinquent taxes on them. Here you have evidence of the covetousness of human nature. These lots will receive municipal protection and public services, yet because of a technicality the owners want to avoid their financial obligation to the other taxpayers who loyally support the cost of local government.—George Averill in The Birmingham Eccentric.

EXPERTS! We read in the paper that experts are now conducting an investigation to determine what kind of an auto license plate shall decorate 1941 autos, and along with that information comes the report from that same committee of experts that our this year's license plate has been successful. Oh, my! What's the use of complaining about experts? Good old fashioned, common sense doesn't govern any more. There must be experts for this and that and everything, and those experts help to absorb the money our new fangled money obtaining schemes bring forth. This is an age of experts, and we must submit to their experting.—Al Weber in The Cheboygan Observer.

"FIFTH COLUMN" LABOR RADICALS In his "fireside chat" Sunday evening President Roosevelt among many phases of his talk on preparing our national defense, referred to "Fifth Column" activities, and he promised that industrial saboteurs would be dealt with. Under the present federal laws that deal with labor, we wonder if the nation's Chief Executive really understands the danger that menaces American industry by the terms of the Wagner Act.

What would happen in an industry where, for instance, labor union agitators decided to stage a strike, "slow down," "sit down," or otherwise hamper the employer under the Wagner Act, cannot discharge employees without tremendous proof of evil-doing, employers are without adequate power to assist their government in the production of war-time necessities. For, upon the discharge of one or more employees—especially those affiliated with the C.I.O.—these persons would flee to the friendly arms of the NLRB; this latter body, if it runs true to form, would hamstring the average employe with redtape of "legal procedure," to the end that employers could not do the job demanded of them.

President Roosevelt said, Sunday night, that he wants American industry to respond to the need of national defense; he pledged his support to industry, yet he demanded that the nation retain every social and labor "advance" his administration has placed upon the statute books.

We agree with much of his social and labor legislation, but we cannot reconcile the workings of the Wagner Act and the NLRB with the demands that preparedness will make upon the production areas of the United States.

The President could show his own attitude better if he deserted non-citizen radicals, including Harry Bridges, the worst coast maritime leader; another improvement would be the resignation of Madam Perkins as Secretary of Labor.

The most dangerous "Fifth Column" stratum in the United States is the radical labor leadership whose activities are protected by an unfair Wagner Labor Act. Until this Act is re-written so that employers are given the same constitutional rights that labor has, American industry cannot function fully for adequate preparedness.—George Averill in The Birmingham Eccentric.

Let's Go Back 25 Years Ago! And Read News of Days Gone By Taken From The Plymouth Mail Files

Mrs. A. A. Taft has a new Ford automobile. Ormel King has purchased a new Alcar car. W. T. Pettigill has purchased a 1916 model Buick six touring car of Bentley brothers, the Buick agents in this locality. Glenn Smith has been remodeling the interior of his home on Maple avenue and is improving the outside by a coat of paint.

Rev. Bell has just finished building a handsome new porch in front of the parsonage, which is a great improvement to the property. Two more public drinking fountains have been put in operation. One is located in front of the village hall and the other is on the corner of Liberty street and Starkweather avenue.

Contractor Bert Crumlie has commenced the work of remodeling the tenant house of Mrs. Ella Nichols on Church street. It is to be a very neat bungalow when it is completed. Ed Place and family have moved into their house on East Ann Arbor street recently purchased from Elmer Blunk. Mr. Blunk is building a new house on the same street.

Marna Blunk will build a new house on Blunk avenue. Adrian Anderson has the contract. We understand several other parties are intending to purchase lots and build on Blunk avenue during the summer.

The Queen Esther Circle had a very enjoyable meeting at Miss Julia Gottschalk's last Saturday evening. After the regular business meeting a very interesting program was given on the Negro question in the South, by several of the girls.

The big steel gas holder at the gas plant will be completed this week. It is expected that the work of installing the gas making apparatus will be commenced this week.

If our Puritan forefathers could come back to earth, they would be truly horrified at the way the Sabbath is observed at the present time. Sunday baseball games are played on most of all the four corners at Newburg, Saturday and Sunday nights by the whooping and yelling on Plymouth road, one would think there were a lot of wild Indians on the warpath, and yet we are supposed to be civilized, God-fearing people.

In the dining room of the Methodist church, which was prettily decorated with the senior colors, red and white, the seniors gave a delightful banquet to the seniors last Friday evening.

It was an event long to be remembered, especially some parts of the program which was as follows: Toastmaster, Davis Hillmer; Bon Voyage, Hazel Parmelee; Short Cuts, W. N. Isbell; Breakers Ahead, Eleanor Kessler; vocal solo, "A Little Gray Home in the West," Hilda Smye; A Pedagogue's Point of View, Miss Lappeus; Feminism, George Burr; My Impression of Plymouth Schools, Superintendent C. F. Ruess, and recitation, "The King and the Jailer's Daughter," Ed Gardiner.

A petition from the W. C. T. U. was presented to the council at their meeting Monday evening, asking them to enforce the curfew ordinance, which has not been in force for the past several years. The council granted their request. This ordinance provides that children under 16 years of age will not be allowed to loiter, stroll, idle or remain upon the streets or in public places in the village after the hour of 8:30 p.m. from March 1 to August 31 inclusive, and after 7:30 p.m. from September 1 to April 30, inclusive, unless accompanied by their parent, guardian or other person having legal control of such minor, or unless such minor is in the performance of an errand or duty directed by his parent, guardian or other person having his care and custody, or where the employment of such minor makes it necessary that said minor be upon the streets or public places during the night after said specified hours. The whistle at the electric light plant will sound the warning at the above specified hours.

Steamer Helen C. has been sold by the Western Cedar and Lumber company of Alpena, to W. C. Brown of Plymouth. Mr. Brown is also owner of the barge, James Mowatt, and he will use both vessels in the lumber trade. The steamer Helen C. is one of the oldest steamers on the lakes and was formerly a passenger steamer on Lake Michigan. She was built in Chatham, Ontario, in 1874, as the steamer Quebec and was later re-named the F. E. Spinner, subsequently receiving her present name.
