Defense Keynotes WCTU Convention

Mrs. Clara Todd at National Meeting

Defense was the chief consideration at the sixty-seventh annual convention of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union, it was stated by Mrs. Clara Todd, state treasurer of the W.C.T.U., upon her return from the meeting at Grand Rapids last Friday. The convention marked the first time in 25 years that Michigan has been host to the national W.C.T.U. delegations.

"Liquor is the 'boss saboteur' of national defense," declared Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith of Evanston, Illinois, national president, in her keynote address to the convention. Among Mrs. Smith's charges was the "despoiling of the nation's manpower due to the invasion of army training camps by liquor traffic."

The convention met in the same war-time atmosphere that prevailed during a previous world conflict when the prohibition movement was given its greatest impetus. Canada's program for liquor abstinence during war time gave rise to many expressions for the return of prohibition during the present national emergency in this country at the convention sessions. Convention leaders cited a recent Gallup poll showing 32 per cent of the electorate ready to vote for a prohibition law and far more than a majority favorable to much stricter regulation of liquor traffic. A Fortune poll of August revealed 39.7 per cent of the population willing to support national prohibition. It was reported.

Though opposed to peace-time conscription in principle for many years past, the W.C.T.U. has been active in soldier and sailor welfare work since last November. In the field of military welfare legislation, the association has concentrated since January on efforts to clean up camp areas and take beer out of army camps. Mrs. Todd reports.

The W.C.T.U. objectives were outlined in the Sheppard bill which proposes abolition of prostitution in cantina areas by federal prohibition and enforcement, abolition of the sale of all alcoholic beverages in camp areas and the abolition of the sale of beer to soldiers in camp canteens. The clause against prostitution was passed separately and the remaining provisions of the Sheppard bill are still on the Senate calendar.

An address on "The Morale of the Armed Forces and of Civilian Defense Workers" by Charles P. Taft, assistant coordinator of health, welfare and related defense activities in Washington and a brother of Senator Robert Taft of Ohio, was a highlight of the convention, sounding a need for moral defense and preparedness.

Methodist Church Remodels Sanctuary

Following the successful drive for funds to retire the mortgage of the First Methodist church last June, additional funds were used for the redecoration of the church interior during August while the congregation met at the Presbyterian church for joint union services.

The ceiling has been replastered, organ pipes and radiators gilded and seats refinished. A reopening service will be held Sunday morning at 11 o'clock in the re-decorated church sanctuary, states Rev. S. S. Closson.

Au Sable River Trip Interesting

Plymouth Couple Float Down River

"There is nothing quite so interesting, nothing that provides so many expected thrills as a canoe trip down the Au Sable from Grayling to Oscoda. Not only is the trip interesting, but it provides a series of scenic views unexcelled anywhere in the country," stated Mrs. Harry Bell yesterday when telling of the trip she made down the Au Sable with her husband late in August.

"We put our canoe in the river at Grayling. It is fortunate that we took plenty of supplies along with us, because there is no place between Grayling and Mio where one can buy anything. The river turns and twists through one continuous forest for a distance of nearly 285 miles before it flows into Lake Huron," she said.

"We saw many deer along the banks. All along the river are many excellent camping sights. The only difficulty we had was at Mio where we had to portage around the dam. There no provision has been made for one to get a boat around the dam. The conditions made a rather difficult portage, but that was the only place we had any trouble. We left Grayling just before noon on a Saturday and arrived at Oscoda about 3 o'clock on a Thursday.

Mrs. Bell has for many years been principal of the Stark-weather grade school. With her husband she spends a portion of each summer on some interesting trip, such as was taken by them this summer.

"Ladies' Night" was observed at the Plymouth Country club last Tuesday night and members enjoyed several rounds of golf for which prizes were given. Harold Young was taken into the club as a new member.

A truck driven by Ernest Wickstrom, Amelia street, was hit and overturned in a rear-end collision Sunday morning when a car driven by Gustave Eschels, of 5435 Goffredson road, attempted to pass the truck on Penniman avenue near Sunset. Wickstrom received lacerations of the head and Eschels sustained bruises on the forehead.

Monday evening at 6:30 o'clock the local Townsend club will serve a pot-luck supper in the Grange Hall. Ward B. Long will be the speaker, and a treat is in store for all who attend. In a recent statement, Dr. Townsend, addressing his followers, said: "Our years of toil have brought us to the point where we can begin to see the fruition of our plan."

Speaker Warns of Nazi Infiltration

Girl War Refugee Talks at Rotary Club

The infiltration of Germans into this country, destination and intent unknown, stood out as the most significant observation of Miss Jean McGuinness, American war refugee who, at last Friday's Plymouth Rotary club meeting, in a story spiced with stark realism, related her harrowing experiences of last summer during the German invasion of France.

Of a messenger list on board ship from Lisbon to New York in April of this year, Miss McGuinness reported that 300 of the passengers seeking entry into the United States were Germans—not of Jewish or refugee origin, she said. This fact stands out as the greatest danger in view of the speaker's recital of fifth column activities in the debacle of the French nation.

"The fifth column activity in France was as organized as the army and government was disorganized," reported Miss McGuinness, a Detroit girl, living in Paris as a student of music at the Cite Universitaire at the time of the panic and evacuation of the city before the march of the Germany army.

With a Czechoslovakian girl and an elderly English woman, who within a few days went mad and wandered away, Miss McGuinness fled on foot with 10 million refugees seeking escape to the south of France and trudged the roads in the midst of German bombs and machine gun fire. She witnessed parachutists dropping from the sky to spread fifth column panic among the populace.

French officers deserting in advance of the rank and file retreat, burning automobiles and the screeches of occupants being burned alive, and thousands of charred and dead bodies lying along the bloody roads. After 12 days on the road, a vanguard of German motorized and motorcycle units passed in the first advance, heralding the "armistice" of June 22.

Miss McGuinness thereupon decided to return 180 miles to Paris and while retracing her steps was given a ride in the official car of Dr. Walter Funk, minister of economics for the Reich and president of the Bank of Germany, who was responsible for the organization of the Anschluss of Austria. With this member of Hitler's cabinet, Miss McGuinness reached the palace of Louis XIV in Versailles, 15 miles from Paris. She completed her trip in a German army truck, riding to Paris on a crate of fish. After living in Nazi-occupied Paris for eight months, she obtained a visa for Lisbon last February and subsequently returned to this country. "Midsummer Nightmare" is the title of a book which Miss McGuinness has prepared for publication and those who heard her talk at Rotary club have no doubt of the veracity of that description. Many Rotary-Anns attended the meeting as guests of the club.

Maybe This Melon Is The Biggest of All

Maybe they had some big muskmelons down at the state fair this year, maybe there are some big ones over at the Northville fair, but it is doubtful if any of them are larger than the one Mr. and Mrs. Henry Travis grew out on their place on Cañon Center road and brought to the office of The Plymouth Mail the other day.

It measured over 24 inches in circumference, and apparently was not through growing when it was picked.

Mr. Travis, who raises garden truck for the Plymouth and Detroit markets, has had exceptionally good fortune with all of his crops this year, the big melon being a sample of about the way everything has grown out on his place.

Police Issue 63 Traffic Tickets

Stop-Street Violations Cause Most Accidents

Although the number of traffic offenders arrested for speeding during August shows a marked decline in comparison with the previous month, the total of traffic violation tickets issued by the Plymouth police department in August remains high at 63 in comparison with 70 during July.

Fourteen of the month's total violations were for speeding and eleven were for failure to observe stop signs. The latter offense has proved the greatest cause of traffic accidents in recent months and drivers are warned again by Chief Vaughan Smith about carelessness at intersections.

Twelve tickets were issued to drivers without operator's licenses; three for running red lights; seven for improper parking, eight for reckless driving and four for overtime parking. A total of $259 in fines was imposed by the municipal judge for the month's traffic offenses.

The highest land in Michigan is in the Porcupine Mountains with an elevation of 2,023 feet.

Mrs. Raymond Knapp at her electric sewing machine

"The Motor does the work"

"I learned to sew on my grandmother's sewing machine, and used it for several years after I was married. But it took many hours of treadle labor to do the household sewing and to make and patch clothes for a family of six on a farm.

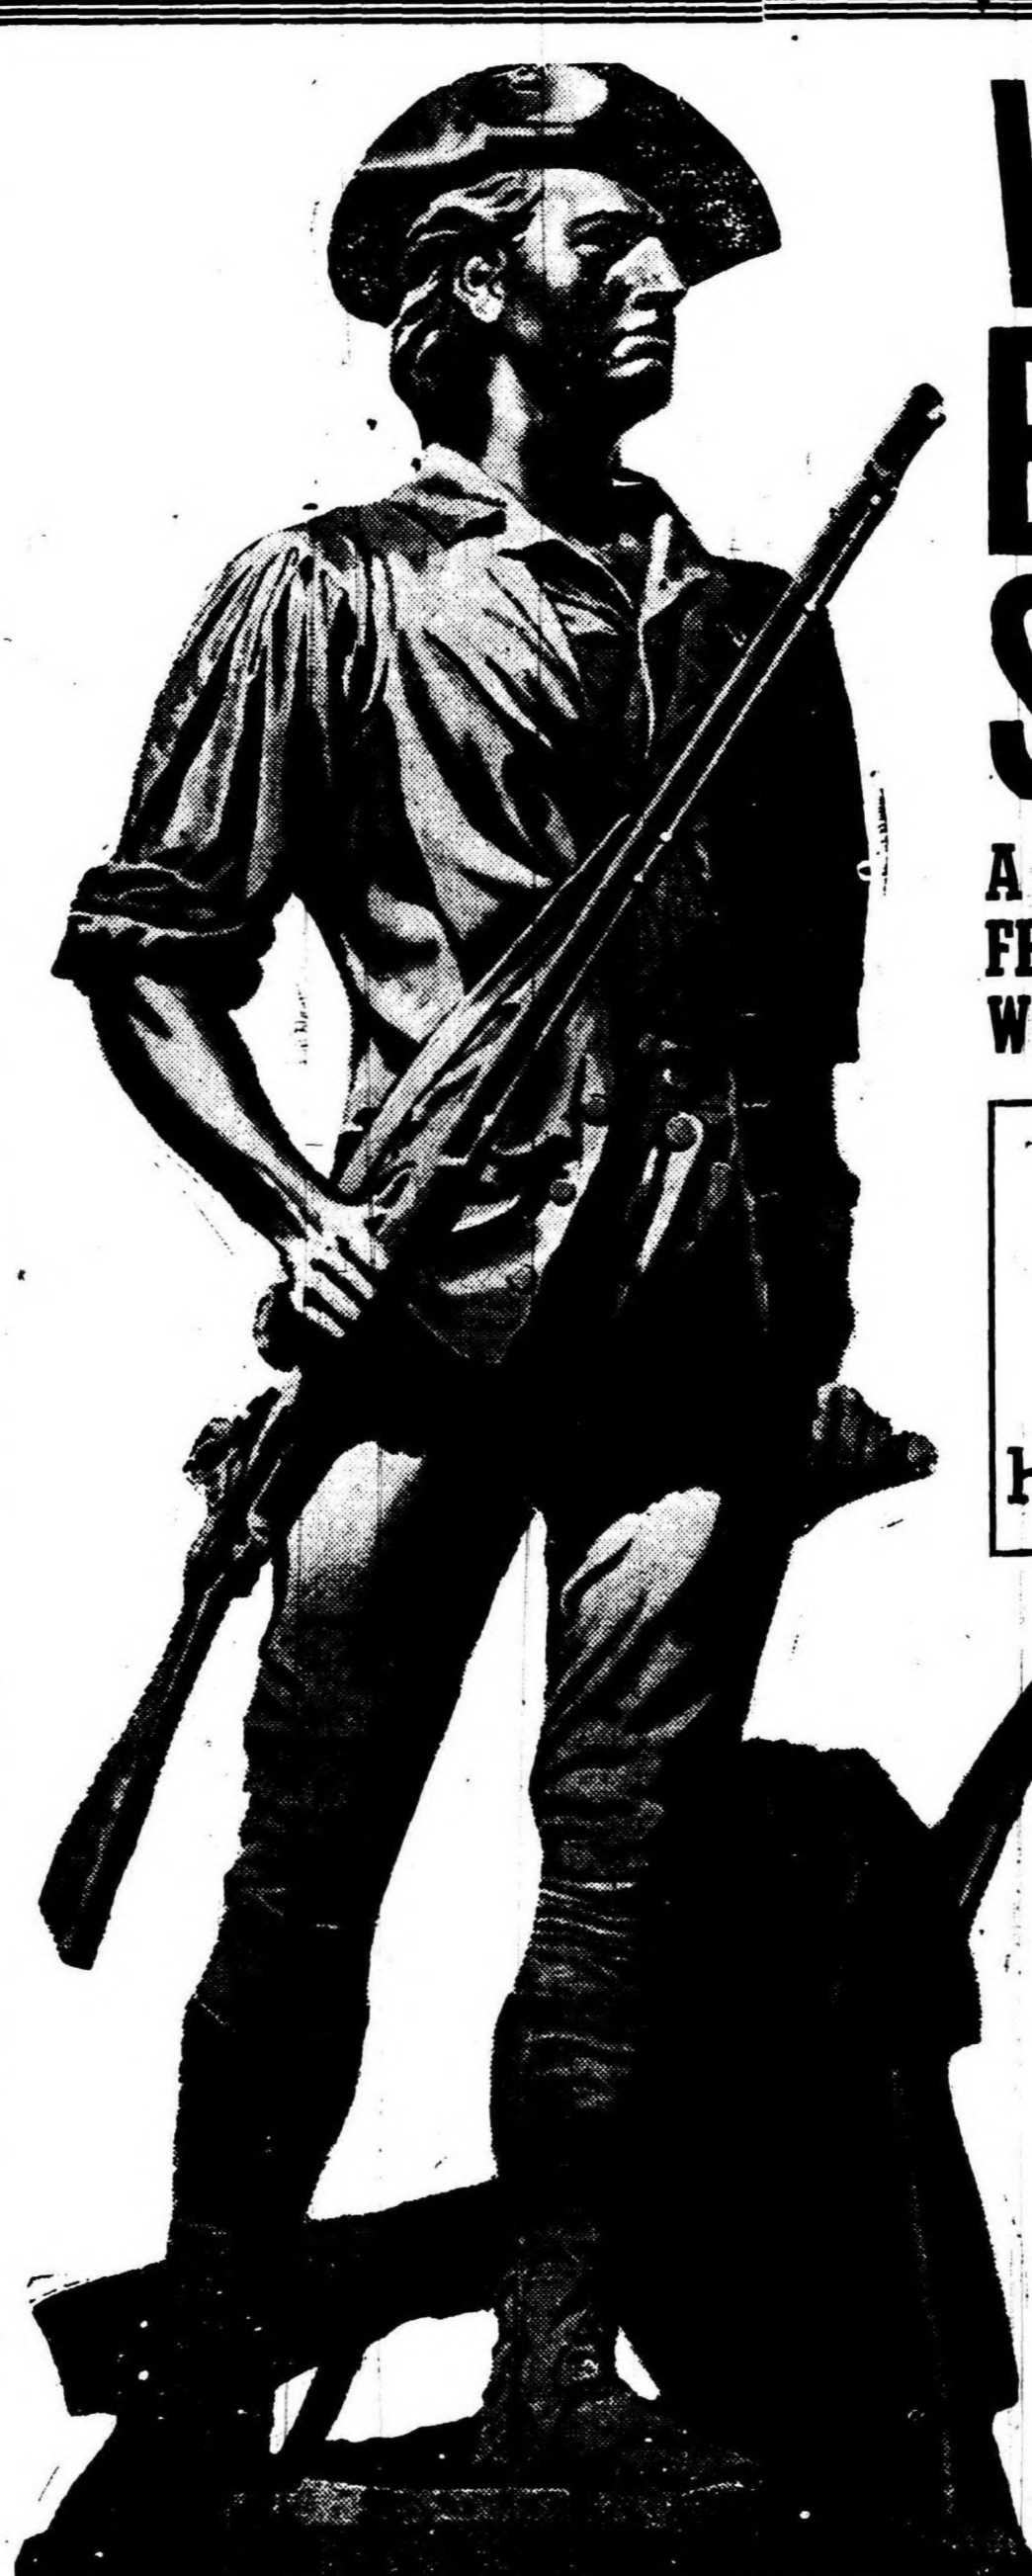

"For the past five years my electric sewing machine has done all the work. I just guide it, as my husband guides his tractor. It is faster and easier than the treadle machine, and gives me more time and energy for other things. I enjoy sewing very much!"

MRS. RAYMOND KNAPP
Monroe County

Mrs. Knapp didn't mention the cost of electricity to run her sewing machine, perhaps because it's hardly worth mentioning. It's less than a cent a day.

For electric appliances to lighten your farm or household work, see your electric dealer, hardware, department store, or any Detroit Edison office.
