What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Down in the Solomons and on the African coasts the Crocodile Boat or tank lighter played a most important role in landing our invasion armies. These self-propelled, light... fast boats haul tanks, artillery and other equipment from the big ships off-shore to the beach heads.

We need more and more of them, for they are essential to the successful operation of the war. They are made in several sizes from small fifty-footers, costing about $2,400 to the big 500-tonners costing around $37,000. Your purchase of War Bonds every payday will help pay for them.

Million Turkey Crop Can Be Raised This Year

Plymouth Turkey Grower Says Goal Is Not Impossible

Can Michigan produce a million turkeys this year? That's just about double the number produced in 1942.

The Extension Department of the Michigan State College says it can be done—and should be done because of the food shortage the country faces.

What does a well known turkey grower think about it?

A. B. Hersh of West Joy road says he will double the size of this year's flock, provided he can secure the turkey poults, the feed and the fuel oil to keep them warm.

"From what I hear about the feed situation, it doesn't look any too good. It will be no problem to grow a thousand turkeys instead of 400 or 500 if one can get the feed, the turks and the fuel oil needed to keep them alive when they are small," said Mr. Hersh.

C. G. Card, head of the poultry husbandry of Michigan State college, agrees with Plymouth turkey growers that Michigan can produce a million turkeys this year.

Demand for that number of the meat birds is obvious from the population concentration in and near to Michigan, says Professor Card. Michigan has an estimated 5,256,000 population including more than two million in Detroit. In addition there are five million more persons within the Michigan marketing radius.

"In wartime, at least, the turkey is more than a holiday bird," according to Professor Card. "At least the marketing could be expanded into three seasons, such as the September and October period, Thanksgiving, and the Christmas and New Year holidays."

In 1942 the state's turkey growers marketed more than a half million birds. Labor was not too plentiful, feed prices increased, yet the demand was great enough to make the turkey business profitable for those who know how, the poultry authority points out.

To get more eggs for hatching, breeders are encouraged to feed their breeding flocks a proper diet in plenty. Next point in wartime expansion is to stretch out the hatching season. Poults (young turkeys) buyers need not get the earliest birds, but can plan on reaching the market at a later season after the early birds have been fattened.

Newborn Babes Not Dependents

Induction Board Fixes Line as Sept. 14, 1942

According to information just provided members of the Plymouth induction board by the Lansing office in charge of the national selective service in Michigan, babies born after September 14, 1942 will not be regarded by the board as dependent children.

In view of this policy, registrants reporting the birth of their first child after September 14, 1942, will still be considered as category 3 cases and their classification will be reopened and re-considered in order number sequence with all other category 3 cases, state members of the Plymouth board.

This new ruling, if it stands, therefore considers a registrant who is father of a child born after September 14 as a person who has a wife, but no children.

Points Out Value Of Fingerprints

Chief Thumme Featured in Article

Strictly speaking, the burglary case described in the March issue of "Fingerprint and Identification" magazine, is not important in the annals of crime.

But it does concern Chief of Police Charles Thumme, and it does prove that fingerprint work can be important even in a small case.

With the article in question is reproduced the picture of Thumme and Frink Thompson, negro, who was sentenced to from 10 to 15 years in state prison for the crime.

Thumme describes in the article, the burglary of the home of Harold Jacobs, 855 Holbrook. When he arrived, he found fingerprints on the bathroom window, left there by the criminal. It was apparent that the culprit had fled barefooted.

Since the crime was committed on March 7, it was not considered likely that he would go far barefoot. At the same time, in that season of the year, it was fairly evident that he would be noticeable.

He was soon picked up by the Detroit police. His fingerprints checked with those taken at the Jacobs home. He was charged, convicted and sentenced.

Farmers Not Only Produce Food But Guns, Tanks, and Shells, Too

Are farmers in this war? Brother, are you kidding? Farmers harvest ships and shells, guns and tanks, planes and parachutes—as well as Food for Freedom.

Take corn and wheat for instance. Most of our wheat of course is converted into flour and bread, while most corn is used for livestock feed, and thus indirectly becomes bacon, ham, beefsteak, milk, butter, ice cream, chicken, eggs and other kinds of Johnny Doughboy's favorite foods.

But corn and wheat also help fire the big guns against the Axis. About 12½ bushels of corn or wheat make a barrel of industrial alcohol, which in turn makes enough smokeless powder to fire a 12-inch shell. Both corn and wheat are useful in producing synthetic rubber, about 333 bushels of corn going into a ton of rubber.

Cotton is another war-time essential. Uncle Sam needs it for uniforms for his fighters. He uses long-staple cotton in soldier's rubberized rain-coats, and short-staple cotton in tents, tarpaulins and coveralls.

The list of war uses of cotton is a long one. It includes inflatable life rafts, barrage balloons, aircraft pontoons, some types of parachutes, the fabric belts that feed ammunition into machine guns—even Flying Fortresses.

To make smokeless powder, cotton linters are soaked in nitric acid. Cottonseed oil is going all out as a substitute for the oil formerly imported from the Far East.

Leland Stowe Next On Town Hall Series At Fisher Theater

Leland Stowe, noted foreign correspondent for the Chicago Daily News, who recently returned from six months of covering the war in Russia, will tell his experiences to the Detroit Town Hall audience in the Fisher Theater, Wednesday, March 8, at 11 o'clock.

Stowe was the only scribe to live for a full week with the Red Army in its front line dugouts. On his way home, he spent time with American fighter squadrons in the Libyan desert.

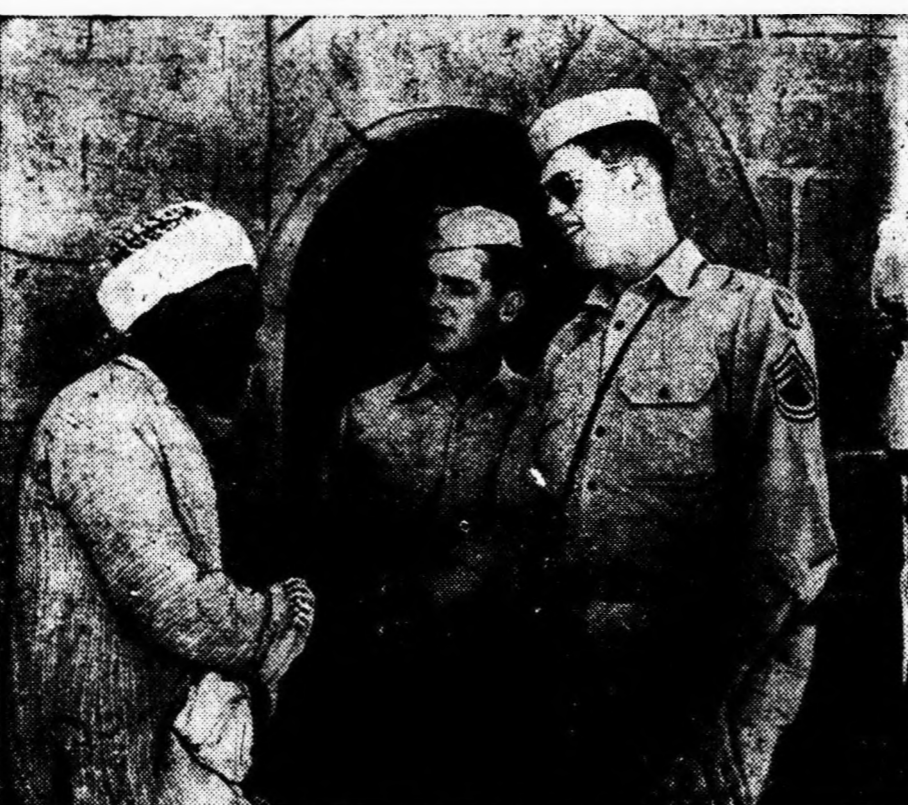

Since he flew to England on September 11, 1939, to cover the war, Leland Stowe has been able to spend only two and a half months with his family. The rest of the three and a half years have been spent covering major war fronts. These have included Finland and Norway, Greece and Albania, Indo-China, then India, Russia and North Africa.

Pulitzer Prize winner for "the best interpretive job of any American correspondent abroad," author of "No Other Road to Freedom," Stowe has been in the thick of it for 20 years. He has reported three uprisings in Spain, the overthrow of ten governments in France, the Reichstag fire trial, the conquest of Ethiopia and the Pan-American conferences in South America.

Enjoys Cactus Collecting Trip

Mrs. Anne Labadie Down in Arizona

These are happy days for Mrs. Ane Labadie, Plymouth's most enthusiastic lover of cactus plants, and the owner of one of the largest cacti gardens about here. For Mrs. Labadie is spending these winter days right out on the blazing desert down near Tucson, Arizona where her favorite flowers grow wild and in abundance.

She had long planned this winter trip to the land of her dreams and she is making a collection of many unusual plants to bring back to Plymouth to add to her already large collection.

"It is grand out here. The weather is quite warm and the sun shines every day. The desert has been a little disappointing, but right now it is starting to put on its spring dress of green and gold. Some cactus plants are already in bloom, and what a beautiful sight they provide," she writes. "It will not be long now before I will see the real glories of the desert. All desert plants are most interesting and I would like to bring home a huge barrel of cacti, one finds so plentiful about here.

"To those who might envy me, let me say that there are two sides of this cactus collecting business. Carrying 25 pounds of cactus up one side of a mountain and down the other on a hot day is not all pure joy. Then, too, you know that they are not too easily handled.

"I have taken some interesting trips about here and I am thoroughly enjoying my trip to the southwest."

Prepare Ordinance For Meat Inspection

City health inspector, Dr. Luther Peck, and City Manager Clarence B. Elliott are now considering sample ordinances to be presented to the city commission giving the health director authority to inspect meats offered for sale in the city which have not otherwise been inspected.

The ordinance probably will be offered at the next regular meeting of the city commission.

The ordinance was requested by Dr. Peck as a means of stamping out the black market in meat in Plymouth, and thus prevent disease.

All people can and should be just, merciful; they should never envy, elbow, slander, hate, or try to injure, but always should try to bless their fellow-mortals.

—Mary Baker Eddy.

City to Prepare Meat Ordinance

Problem Develops From "Black Market"

At the request of City Health Director Luther Peck, the city commission has instructed City Manager Clarence B. Elliott to prepare an ordinance to be introduced at the next regular meeting providing for city inspection of meats.

Dr. Peck requested the ordinance because the city now has no control over meats sold here. Most meat sold in Plymouth has been inspected by state or federal department of agriculture authorities but that portion which is slipping into the city from so-called black markets, offers the prospect of disease unless it is curbed.

Elliott said he already had received copies of ordinances now in effect in other cities, and would have the necessary legislation ready by the next meeting.

However, he pointed out that it would be at least five weeks after the ordinance is introduced before it can take effect.

We cannot, indeed, give like God, but surely we may forgive like Him.—Sterne.

Tire Retreading Open For All

No Longer Restricted To War Workers

Midst all the rationing talk, here is one good piece of news for motorists.

Effective immediately, it will not be necessary for motorists to obtain approval from the rationing board to obtain retreads for passenger car tires.

This was announced by the Plymouth Price and Rationing board on the basis of information received from the state offices in Detroit.

The order points out that any motorist, with a retreadable tire carcass, may take the carcass to his dealer and order the retread out of material known as Grade F, camelback.

Grade F camelback is made of 90 per cent reclaimed rubber and 10 per cent crude rubber. It is the type which has been used in the past for retreading, and is the material from which the victory tire is made.

Under the rules laid down by the rationing board, however, a motorist is not permitted to exchange his tires for tires already retreaded. To make this exchange, it will be necessary to have an order from the board, as in the past.

OPA officials estimate that a camelback retread will be good for between 10,000 and 15,000 miles.

Due to the urgency for more surgical dressings at once it was voted by the women who attend Red Cross on Fridays to also meet on Monday and Wednesday afternoons from 12 to 4 o'clock. Mrs. Carson Johnston, in charge of the surgical dressings, said "if enough women come on those days to make it worth while the extra days will continue for a time at least."

The board of Arts and Letters Book club met Monday evening with their new president, Mrs. V. H. Smale. Mrs. E. O. Whittington is the new elected secretary.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hood and William Hood of Plymouth were dinner guests, Sunday, of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Fisher.

Open house was held Saturday evening in the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Burton for their son, Daniel, who graduated Friday from Michigan State Normal. About 30 friends and relatives from Rosedale and Detroit attended. The buffet table was decorated in red, white and blue, a low bowl of white stock being placed in the center with blue candles in red crystal holders on either side. Mr. and Mrs. Percy Elstone entertained the guests with songs and piano music and games were enjoyed.

Mrs. Harold Cox and children accompanied by Mr. Cox have returned home from Chicago.

NEW METER READING PLAN Saves OVER 600,000 CAR MILES A YEAR!

Needless to say this is a necessary curtailment and a vital contribution to our war effort. It requires over 100,000 miles of automobile travel to make a single reading of this Company's meters. By reading these meters once every two months instead of monthly this great saving in car miles is made possible.

Customers find this plan convenient. You pay the same low rates for service. The only change is that your meter is read once every two months instead of monthly. The month it isn't read you are mailed a bill based on your normal use and it is, in effect, a payment on account. It lets you continue to budget your expenses on a monthly basis. When your meter is read the following month your bill covers your actual use of service for two months LESS THE AMOUNT YOU HAVE PAID ON ACCOUNT.

Your Cooperation Has Made this Vital Contribution to Our War Effort Possible
