Students Plan for Real Work

More than a half a hundred high school students are now participating in the apprentice training course offered through the facilities of Plymouth high school.

Harry E. Reeves, in charge of the apprentice program, said most of the students who are participating in the program will achieve success in life, even though they do not continue through their lives with the work in which they are now engaged.

The jobs now being handled by the high school students range all the way from the carrier of a mail route in the Plymouth post office to work on farms.

They include a multitude of jobs, including watch repair, auto mechanics, filling station attendants, plumbers, farm machinery sales and supply work, bakers, restaurant help, men's furnishings stores, butchers, cashiers, dry cleaners, jewelry sales work, retail store clerks of all kinds, hotel management, printing and press work, feed store, florist, bookkeepers and hardware store management.

In the latter field, a boy has been developed who is capable of managing the store from the buying, through the markup to actual keeping of the records.

Mr. Reeves said that many of the students will not continue through life in the job for which they are now fitting themselves, but that those who have the fortitude to stick it out under all conditions, which have acquired habits of life which will be of immeasurable benefit in the world after the war.

Of course, many of the boys now engaged in the apprentice training program will never complete their courses, for they will go into the armed services as soon as they reach the age of 18.

But regardless of whether it is completed, it will help them.

Already nearly 40 youngsters, most of them of junior high school age, have been lined up and signed up to work on farms during the coming harvest season. Some of them already are working at cutting asparagus. Others will work later in the tomato fields.

But in any event the youngsters will have demonstrated their ability to stick with a job until it is completed, and that will be a strong point in their favor when they go to apply for another job regardless of where it may be.

Rosedale Gardens Post Office to Become Permanent One

Postmaster Harry Irwin announced this week that the present postal arrangements in Rosedale Gardens have been made permanent.

The Kingsley hardware store will continue as a sub-station of the Plymouth post office, and the Rosedale Gardens route also has been made permanent, with Martin Jones as carrier.

William Folson is the new carrier on RFD 5. His appointment is for the duration and six months.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"The war stories I like best, Judge, are the ones by the special writers overseas who live right with our troops. They give us a better idea of how our men react to things going on over there and back here at home."

"I agree with you, Sam. I never miss one of those stories in the papers or magazines. And there's one thing those writers seem to agree on no matter where they are stationed with our men...and that is that the men who have left their homes and families to go away and fight this war don't want to come back and find that prohibition has been put over on them while they were away...either nationally or locally. They have heard about the attempts being made and they resent it bitterly."

"I agree with them, Judge, even though I don't happen to drink myself. Furthermore, I don't think it's fair for us at home to be making any major changes while 10,000,000 of our fighting men are away and have no chance to express their opinions."

Class News

Mrs. Moran's 8A arithmetic class studied circle graphs. The class is divided into groups of threes with a chairman in each group responsible for the work. They used the percentages of marks in all the eighth grade arithmetic classes and figured them into the degrees of a circle, using colored paper for the different sections. Joe Mandel, Robert Beckel and John Henderson made up the nearest graphs.

Mr. Stadtmiller's vocations class has completed a brief study on the importance of saving through real estate, bonds and life insurance. The class is looking forward to marriage in their vocations books. His geography classes receive a paper each week, entitled "Young America," which contains up-to-date maps and good news coverage.

Miss Hamill has a very interesting bulletin board with a pictorial comparison of World Wars I and II.

Mrs. Carey's history classes saw a movie entitled "Men and Machines" on the industrial revolution. It shows how machines brought about mass production in the United States.

Larry Livingston, Plymouth graduate of '28, will furnish the music for the J-Hop, which is a homecoming for him. He has a seven-piece orchestra featuring a girl vocalist, which provides music for dancing from 9 until 11.

Change of Price for M-D Banquet

Because of the tax on entertainment the price of the Mother and Daughter banquet has been reduced from $1.50 to $1.25, the actual cost of the food. In doing this the Girl Reserves will make no profit except what may be received in a silver collection. Roberta Orr is the general chairman, with assistants for refreshments, Elaine Kunkel and Annmarie Cooper; posters, Marion Fisher and Mabel Vickstrom; publicity, Kay Fisher and Mary Brandt; program, Margaret Brown and Dora Gruebner; tickets, Carolyn Rocke and Audrey Noble; decoration, Edith Nolte and Joan Gillis; hostesses, Peggy Hart and Barbara Stover; programs, Ruth Hoysradt and June Van Meter. Mrs. Marjorie Bingham, authority on geography and natural resources, from Cranbrook Institute of Science, will speak on "Michigan's Good Green Earth." The banquet, a chicken dinner, is May 10 at 6:30 in the high school auditorium.

Former Runner-Up Wins Story Contest

Beverly Hauk won first place in the short story contest conducted by Miss Lovewell's ninth grade English class by telling the fairy tale "Cinderella." Beverly was the runner-up for J. Hanna, who was absent for the finals. Dick Palmer came in second with the story, "Tar Baby." The other contestants were Mary K. Gillis with "Little Black Sambo," and Dona Swarbrick with "Big Claws and Little Claws." The contest was judged by Mr. Latture and his speech class of five.

Odds and Ends

The other day as Mr. Latture picked up a yardstick to point out something on a chart he said, "I was born 100 years too late. Then teachers could use hickory sticks."

Speaking of strange state laws, there is one in Kansas states that when two trains come to an intersection, both shall stop and neither shall proceed until the other has passed! One law, introduced but rejected, suggested that to prevent the front and back coaches of trains being damaged in train crashes, they be removed from the train!

One wonders if Marilyn Vershure found, a place to have her flash bulbs developed. Better find a book on photography, but quick, Marilyn!

In PHS seeing another Casanova is the person of Chuck W.? Maybe Ella Ahern could tell us about it.

Maybe the whole male species is becoming vainer or it could be just Heinz H., who is trying to improve the appearance of his nose by powdering it in Latin class.

Lydia Rose says she wishes that there was a shortage of thumb tacks. They are a menace in physics class for she almost invariably finds one on her chair.

When the teacher asks if there are any questions before a test (and Miss Spultz always does) some bright pupil answers, "May we use our books?" (and Dick Daniels is always one who does). Jack Huebler's brush cut grew to a full inch and one-half so quickly that he had to get it cut again!

Bernard Birt is quite interested in chemistry or does chemistry have anything to do with airplanes?

Have you all heard David Johnson's joke about Baron Cold? He was bare and cold.

It's nice to know the Girl Reserves have an economical secretary. It seems Dora even used the last plain white page in her book for minutes.

Marion Miklosky seems to be very popular with the boys whose names are in the Girl Reserve man's file. We wonder what she puts in those letters she writes to receive so many answers.

P. H. S. Has Budding Illustrator

One of PHS's most talented junior artists is Eunice Meinzing. When one doesn't know where to find her, he looks in the art room—she's there most of the time. She plans to study at Wheaton college in Illinois and become a fashion illustrator. Eunice's family is all artistically inclined. Her father is head of the Meinzing illustrators at General Motors and does commercial art. Her uncle owns the Meinzing Art school in Detroit and he has two cousins who do portrait and landscapes.

PROMOTION COMES TO KENNETH GUST—HE'S NOW LIEUTENANT (J.G.)
 News has just been received from somewhere far out in the Pacific that Kenneth A. Gust has won his first promotion in the navy. He has been advanced from ensign to lieutenant (j.g.). He completed his course at Harvard last summer, was immediately assigned to active duty on the Pacific coast. After being stationed in Seattle and Portland for a time, he left the coast late in the fall for the South Pacific. Since then it is believed that he has been in the combat zone almost continuously.

SENDS GREETINGS TO ALL OF HIS FRIENDS OUT AT KELSEY-HAYES
 Pvt. William Meshekey, with the infantry at Fort Dix, N. J., in a letter to The Plymouth Mail, asks that the home-town paper say "Hello" to all of his old friends out at the Kelsey-Hayes plant, where he was employed before entering the armed forces. Since going into the army, "Bill," as he is best known to his many friends, has been located at Fort Custer, Camp Forest, Tenn.; Camp Phillips, Kansas, and then was sent to Arizona and New Mexico, where he spent several months before being transferred to New Jersey. He declares there is nothing that brings him quite so much pleasure as reading The Plymouth Mail.

HELPS TO KEEP BIG BOMBERS FLYING OVER NAZI EUROPE

One of the men who keeps 'em flying' from the Eighth air force heavy bombardment base in England is Master Sgt. Norman Zeuner, a Flying Fortress engineering crew chief.

The sergeant is the son of Mrs. Lena Zeuner, 4427 St. James street, Detroit. His wife, Mrs. Ruth Perkins Zeuner, lives in Plymouth at 260 Union street. He is a graduate of Walled Lake high school, and before entering the AAF in April, 1942, worked for the Ford Motor company in Dearborn as a machinist.

The sergeant supervises work in the repair and maintenance of a Fortress. He and his crew often work through the night, by the light of flashlights or by auto headlights, to pre-flight the bomber for an early morning take-off on a bombing trip against some vital military or industrial objective in Nazi Europe. When the big war bird returns to base, Sergeant Zeuner and his crew check it again for battle damage. They stay at work on the ship until engines, tires, instruments and all its complicated mechanism are once again in top fighting trim.

IT'S GREAT TO KNOW WHAT IS GOING ON BACK IN OLD HOME TOWN

Duane N. Ostlund, out in the big Pacific ocean, declares that it is a happy day when The Plymouth Mail arrives so he can know what his old friends are doing and where they are located.

"I was glad to read about the student 'hangout.' Maybe something like that would be a good thing to keep their minds off our troubles. It's a good thing to keep everybody busy and thinking of something else besides trouble," writes Duane.

ALBERT L. FISHER RISES UP TO DEFEND THE SEABEES

"I read that letter in The Mail from Charles Lee McGorey about the Seabees. The marines are O.K., and so are the Seabees," writes Albert L. Fisher, who is at present on one of the Hawaiian islands after having spent some time on the other side of the Pacific.

"His letter continues: 'The Seabees have worked under enemy fire and I have never seen any marine that could outwork a Seabee.'

"I recall a little incident that happened on one of the islands where we had landed. The Japs in a pillbox were holding off an invasion force. A Seabee crawled out to his trusty bulldozer, lifted the blade to shield himself, and drove it right up to that pillbox and smashed it all to the devil, burying the occupants in it. They all went to meet their sun god. Well, the Seabee was decorated for that little job. May God give our forces, all of them combined, the strength to win over our enemy soon, so we can all go home to our families," said Seabee Fisher in ending his letter.

NO CANDY WHERE THIS FIGHTER IS STATIONED

Claude B. Underhill, son of Mrs. George Huger of Alois street, stationed somewhere way down in the South Pacific, writes that one of the things the boys miss greatly on the islands where he has been stationed is some good, sweet American candy. "We don't have anything like that down here," he writes.

"I am now an engineer on aircraft work and like it very much. We repair planes and keep them flying," he adds.

"We are now on a coral island. In some places there is dense jungle. One who has been here appreciates home."

WANTS TO "MARCH DOWN STREETS OF TOKYO, AND THEN PLYMOUTH"

"It has been a long time since I've written to 'Our Boys' column. But I've done a lot of traveling since," writes Corp. Finch L. Roberts from somewhere out in the Pacific.

"In true Marine fashion we do not stay long in any place. We have been in Samoa, New Caledonia, New Zealand, Fiji, New Hebrides and the Gilbert islands," writes Corporal Roberts.

"But we have a long ways to go yet, and I hope to see many more islands and countries before coming back home. My main interest now lies in seeing China and in marching down the main streets of Tokyo and finally Main street in Plymouth. Good luck to you and The Plymouth Mail."

The Second division, in which Corporal Finch is serving, has been awarded the Presidential Unit citation for the work it did in seizing Tarawa from the Japs.

EASTER GREETINGS COME FROM SAM VIRGO OUT IN THE PACIFIC

From somewhere way out on the Pacific where he is serving in Uncle Sam's navy, came Easter greetings the other day from Sam Virgo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Seth Virgo of this city.

Not only did he send Easter greetings, but there came news, too, that he had been given a second class rating, which carries with it a bigger pay check.

"This is April fool's day, and I'm not fooling when I say I would like to be home over Easter with my folks."

EMERSON ROBINSON WRITES OF THE SOUTH PACIFIC

In an interesting letter, written from somewhere in the South Pacific, Emerson Robinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robinson of Forest street, tells of his experiences in that part of the world.

The young soldier, who saw combat service in the Aleutians, has been in uniform for three years and during the past seven months has been in the air force operations department.

In part, he writes: "I've changed stations and am now located in the Marshall islands. Surprised? Maybe not, for chances are you've been following the papers and seeing what a good job the boys are doing. But believe me, after the traveling is over, Plymouth has them all skinned. Of course the southern waters of the Pacific are beautiful and on moonlight nights it really puts forth a wonderful picture. In the lagoons, where the water is calmer, the cones of colored coral are something to see. In the Ellice islands we would surface dive with water glasses on and see all colors of coral.

"One particular time in going down, we found a dark hole and, poking around, found a young octopus. Tentacles from tip to tip was about three feet and he couldn't do us much harm. But here's the danger—usually the old man or old lady is nearby and they can kill a man in a few minutes. It didn't take us long to get out of there.

"On another occasion we hooked a six-foot shark off of a freighter and what a fight the young shark put up. It had to be shot three times with our carbines before settling down. For a youngster he had teeth like a buzzsaw. Haven't had time to do any swimming here, besides the ocean is too rough and there are sharks in this lagoon. In the Ellice islands our showers were made from barrels sitting on a brace to the tree. Here we have one building where about a fourth of the squadron can take a shower at once. Water is taken from the ground, purified and stored in a big tank. What they really lack is hot water and so help me when this is over or I get back in the states, I'm going to take a hot bath and sit in it all night. There is a possibility that in a few weeks I might go back to Hawaii for a rest period, which is two weeks long. I'm keeping my fingers crossed and it will seem plenty good to see a little civilization again. All I want to do is eat a big steak and sleep on a bed with springs.

TAKEN IN NAVY—SENT TO A HOSPITAL

Blake O. Fisher, who dished out buckets and buckets of ice cream to the residents of Plymouth in the past year or so, and was recently taken into the navy, writes that he is now a patient in the hospital at Great Lakes. Soon after being taken into the navy, he was sent to the navy hospital for an operation. He expects to be there for about three weeks.

HIGH PRAISE FOR WORK OF SEABEES FROM A SEABEE

The battle between the seabees and the marines as to which outfit tops the top, still rages. Both are mighty good outfits, there's no question about that. Not so long ago Alden Plank, who ran the job department of The Mail office before he put on one of Uncle Sam's uniforms, wrote from somewhere down south a letter of highest praise for the seabees. In a few brief weeks, one of our FIGHTING MARINES way out somewhere in the Pacific said if it wasn't for the marines there wouldn't be anything for the seabees to do.

Now comes another letter from Seabee Plank, who since has been shipped to some far-off Pacific island, to rise up again in defense of the seabees.

"I can't tell you where I am or what I am doing, but you may know that we are right up there doing our bit to help the marines win. You might ask the marines how they like our chow," cracked back Seabee Plank, in his letter to The Mail from "down under."

PLYMOUTH WAC PLAYS ON AFRICAN CHAMPION BASKETBALL TEAM

From the Allied force headquarters at Oran, Algeria, came the interesting news the other day that Pauline R. Dundas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Dundas of 1073 Penniman avenue, serving as a WAC in Uncle Sam's fighting forces, is a member of the WAC championship basketball team of the dark continent.

Miss Dundas, playing guard, took part in the final game of the tournament contest that brought basketball fame and glory to the WACs.

The final game was played in a North African gym against the "Oran Angels." The WAC team is called the "Pioneers" and has delighted thousands of American fans in Africa by the spectacular way they marched to the basketball championship in Africa.

MELVIN BLUNK LANDS OVER IN ENGLAND

"I cannot tell you where I am located, but I am somewhere in England," writes Melvin Blunk from across the Atlantic. "Be sure and change my address so I will get the paper over here. You don't know how we appreciate it. I like England very much, but of course I miss my family, my parents, my relatives and all of my friends," he said. "Cheerio, ole chap."

HAS BEEN TRANSFERRED TO THE WEST COAST

A card from Earl Merriman advises that he has been transferred to Mather field, Sacramento, California, where he will start "on the line training for cadets."

"California is a very fine state, but it is far from being as fine as good old Plymouth," he writes.

JACK HOVEY IS NOW IN NORTH AFRICA

Jack Hovey, who joined up with the navy about nine months ago, is now in North Africa. He writes that the country where he is at present stationed is very beautiful.

"Everything is green and flowers are in blossom. The days are warm and the nights cool. There are no women here, except a few natives, and one rarely sees them. There is a good show at the base every night," he writes. Mrs. Hovey is the former Isabelle Nairn. Both are graduates of the Plymouth high school.

HIGH PRAISE FOR WORK OF SEABEES FROM A SEABEE

The battle between the seabees and the marines as to which outfit tops the top, still rages. Both are mighty good outfits, there's no question about that. Not so long ago Alden Plank, who ran the job department of The Mail office before he put on one of Uncle Sam's uniforms, wrote from somewhere down south a letter of highest praise for the seabees. In a few brief weeks, one of our FIGHTING MARINES way out somewhere in the Pacific said it wasn't for the marines there wouldn't be anything for the seabees to do.

Now comes another letter from Seabee Plank, who since has been shipped to some far-off Pacific island, to rise up again in defense of the seabees.

"I can't tell you where I am or what I am doing, but you may know that we are right up there doing our bit to help the marines win. You might ask the marines how they like our chow," cracked

PLYMOUTH WAC PLAYS ON AFRICAN CHAMPION BASKETBALL TEAM

From the Allied force headquarters at Oran, Algeria, came the interesting news the other day that Pauline R. Dundas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Dundas of 1073 Penniman avenue, serving as a WAC in Uncle Sam's fighting forces, is a member of the WAC championship basketball team of the dark continent.

Miss Dundas, playing guard, took part in the final game of the tournament contest that brought basketball fame and glory to the WACs.

The final game, was played in a North African gym against the "Oran Angels." The WAC team is called the "Pioneers" and has delighted thousands of American fans in Africa by the spectacular way they marched to the basketball championship in Africa.

Tells How Michigan Happens To Be One of First States to Have Public Fishing Grounds

Appearing in a recent issue of the popular sportsman's magazine, Outdoor Life, was the following article pertaining to the establishment of public fishing grounds in Michigan, written by Elton R. Eaton, editor of The Plymouth Mail:

Ben East's article, "Blue Print for Free Fishing," was of especial interest to the undersigned.

I note that he gives credit for the establishment of public fishing grounds to the Michigan United Conservation Clubs, of which I have been a member for many years.

Actually, the public fishing grounds of Michigan have been made possible by legislation which was introduced in the Michigan state legislature by myself when a member of the House of Representatives and which I induced both the House and Senate to pass. The amendment was presented on general orders and was approved by a voice vote.

When the measure came up for final enactment on the floor there was some slight objection to the proposal, but there was no opposition, as stated in your article, from the Michigan Department of Conservation.

Before introducing the amendment, I discussed the proposal with P. J. Hoffmaster, director of the Department of Conservation. He agreed with me that some action should be taken by the legislature to open lakes and streams fast being closed to public fishing. He approved of the proposed amendment and gave it his support during the time it was pending in the legislature.

He did state that as a general rule it was not for the best interests of the department to earmark too much of its income; but in this case the amendment called for increased revenue to take care of the costs that would be involved. I agreed with him then, and my opinion has not changed, that it is not advisable to earmark too much of the revenue of a department that is doing such a splendid work as the Department of Conservation. Such a practice, if followed to such an extent that the department's regular income would be reduced, would work a handicap rather than be a benefit.

As I recall the discussions at the time the measure was pending, there was not one single objection raised to its intent. On the floor of the house, I quoted Mr. Hoffmaster as being in favor of the amendment and stated that he recommended its enactment.

The few "no" votes came chiefly from some farmer members who thought the advance in the price of a fishing license to cover the costs of purchasing and improving fishing grounds was somewhat high. The amendment provided a fee of $1, with 40 cents of the amount earmarked for the purchase of public fishing grounds. A few members from some of the larger cities raised the same objection, but the vote in favor of the bill was most emphatically yes.

My first interest in this problem came about many years before the creation of the Michigan United Conservation Clubs. Back in 1927, when Grover Dillman was state highway commissioner, I made an effort to have him create a public entry to Huron River at the time he was constructing a new bridge over the stream on Grand River Highway. Mr. Dillman was in accord with the plan, but unfortunately he did not have available funds to cover the cost of such an improvement.

As one of the postwar projects, I have recommended to the Michigan Department of Conservation that steps be taken as soon as possible to create public parks at trunk-line highway crossings of various streams throughout the state. Such a step would provide access for sportsmen and vacationists to hundreds of miles of beautiful streams and good fishing, now practically inaccessible.

I am sure you will be interested in knowing the legislative history of the measure which made possible Michigan's public fishing grounds, and I think in fairness to the author of the measure that some note be made of it. While I am not speaking for Mr. Hoffmaster I believe, too, that in justice to him and his department, his position should be set right.

Michigan has had for more than a quarter of a century one of the most progressive conservation departments in the country. It is due almost entirely to the high type of leadership the department has had that has placed this state in the forefront in conservation development.

Not Enough Tires for Everyone

Officials of the Plymouth war price and rationing board pointed out this week that despite announcements from Washington, there actually has been comparatively little change in the setup for rationing tires.

The announcement from Washington said there would be more tires available for the entire nation during the month of May. These are divided between the various rationing boards on the basis of need.

The tire panels of the rationing boards then consider the need of the various applicants for tires. Those engaged in essential war work get first call on the available supply, which never has been large enough to meet the demand.

After the essential drivers have been taken care of, what is left will then be rationed among the less-essential drivers.

In no event will new tires be granted to persons with tires suitable for recapping. The rubber supply has not yet reached the point where that is possible.

The new changes permit motorists with only "A" cards to buy used tires which they never have been able to do before.

Will Keep Church Open for Prayers When Invasion Starts

Complying with a request of Bishop Frank M. Creighton of the Episcopal diocese of Michigan, Rev. Francis E. Tetu will open his church for prayers during the hours when news comes that the invasion of Europe by Allied troops has started.

"I trust that when the hour arrives you will see that your church is open and that you will summon as many of your good people as are available to unite in prayer for God's blessing upon our armed forces and on all who minister to their needs, and for an early, honorable and lasting peace," said Bishop Creighton in his message to Rev. Tetu.

"Certainly we will comply with the bishop's request," said Rev. Tetu yesterday. "Our church will be open the minute definite news of the invasion is received."

Mrs. Chester Tuck to Preside at One PTA Conference Discussion

At the annual state PTA conference to be held in Grand Rapids next week, Mrs. Chester Tuck, director of district No. 1, who resides at 33642 Hampshire, will preside at one of the conference dinners.

Many subjects growing out of war conditions and pertaining to children are listed for discussion by prominent residents of the state who are devoting much of their time to a solution of these problems. Mrs. Tuck is well known in this vicinity because of her PTA work.

Babson Says - -

Future Presents Golden Opportunities

Babson Park, Mass., May 5.—There are more than 35,000,000 families in the United States. Statisticians believe that some 65 per cent of these families will be heavy spenders as soon as the German phase of the war is over. People have accumulated the funds with which to make very substantial purchases. Most articles will be bought to replace present equipment.

Just when the automobile companies will be able to again manufacture passenger cars is not now known. The chairman of the board of one of the largest companies in the industry recently said that his company originally based its plans on the assumption that the German war would end in November. Recently, however, the directors of this company have revised their time schedule. They do not now believe the war will be over in November.

Customers for new cars should not expect new models. Cars will constitute what would have been the 1942 models plus a few refinements. Trucks for civilian use will be available before passenger cars. I anticipate that at least 3,600,000 families will be in the market for new automobiles. This does not include cars sold for export, used car sales or cars purchased on a wholesale basis for sales forces. These families will spend at least $3,300,000 for new cars just as soon as they can be delivered.

This market includes all of the varieties of household equipment commonly in use, such as electric irons, sewing machines, Vacuum cleaners, washing machines, stoves, radios, refrigerators, fans, garbage disposal units, lamps, carpet sweepers, mangles, electric toasters, etc. Thirteen million, seven hundred and fifty thousand families will want one or more household appliances. Many of these will buy some kind of mechanical refrigerator and possibly 2,500,000 radios will be purchased.

A potential market, in excess of $1,200,000,000, therefore exists for household appliances. This does not include household equipment for apartments, for commercial use or for export. In connection with the sale of such articles, the sales forces of dealers and distributors will greatly be increased. For the small business man, the merchandising of household appliances may offer an attractive future.

Many items in this category, such as floor coverings and furniture, have not been restricted during the war. To some extent, families have been able to keep abreast of the replacement demands and buy some new articles. Home furnishings, therefore, will not enjoy the postwar demand that the more restricted metal and rubber consumers goods will have.

Nevertheless, nearly 6,500,000 families will buy furniture, rugs, carpets and/or linoleum along with lamps, glassware, curtains, draperies and household linens. Most of the thousands of couples who have been married during the war have not yet had an opportunity to furnish their homes. Furthermore, there may be a sharp rise in marriages after the war which should mean several hundred thousand more customers.

Within six months after the war is over and materials are available, at least 1,500,000 families should be in the market for a new home. Nearly 25 per cent of these will not spend more than $3,500 for a house. A little more than 25 per cent will be able to spend up to $5,000. This is where the big market exists for prefabricated houses, provided manufacturers can get their costs down.

Some 40 per cent of the families will be able to spend more than $5,000 on a new house. At the moment, the big real estate market is in homes costing less than $10,000. More household conveniences and better utilization of space should enable even large families to live comfortably in smaller houses.

A big postwar market exists for repairs and improvements in existing farm structures. Such improvements would include interior and exterior painting, insulating, new plumbing and bathrooms and general remodeling. Kitchens will be modernized and much new heating equipment installed. Over 10,000,000 urban and rural families are almost certain to make some kind of improvements or repairs to their homes in the postwar era. To do this, they will spend close to $8,000,000,000.

Most families will not pay cash for the above-described items. The habit of installment buying, while deplorable, is firmly engendered in the American people. Consequently, the outlook for most credit and financing companies should be bright. But for the same reasons the country will be headed for another depression after this spending and borrowing period is over.

Livonia School Election May 22

Much interest is being shown in Livonia township in the election of members of the board of education of the newly organized township school district. Due to the requirements of the state law, the time for campaigning was limited to two weeks from the date of the consolidation election on April 22.

In addition to the candidates proposed by the members of the original district school boards and circulated by them throughout the area, one other name has been presented. Robert Snodgrass, 32190 Myrna, Route 9, Plymouth, a science teacher at Mackenzie high school in Detroit, is a candidate for the three-year term.

When the electors go to the following places Saturday, May 6, between the hours of 10 a.m. and 8 p.m., they will receive ballots with no names printed. It will be necessary for each voter to write in the names of candidates for whom he wishes to vote.

Following the election, the five candidates elected will have 10 days to qualify. On May 15 they will meet for organization of the board of education through selection of a president, a secretary and a treasurer from their own number. Within the week meetings will be held between the newly elected board of education and the original board members for transfer of accounts and records and the township school district will be prepared to function.

VICTORY'S SONS

They were clearing out the Japs on Attu that morning in May. A battalion of Americans had landed. Within five hundred yards of shore, the major in command was killed by a sniper. Then Private Louis Drozinski went into action.

"I saw the sniper who got him and picked him off, and another Jap in the same dugout. I got permission to take a machine-gun section around the flank. I found out later that we killed 21 Japs. I was shooting tracer bullets with a rifle to guide the fire of the machine guns when four bullets hit me.

"I lay there until dark with bullets singing over my head. I tried to make myself pass out by holding my breath so I wouldn't draw attention, but I couldn't. A couple of Yanks crawled up and carried me back about 100 yards. They left me wrapped in a raincoat until the next day when stretchers bearing found me. That was 27 hours after I had been hit." For his gallantry in action he was awarded the Purple Heart.

IT'S A big wash for the duration...

give your electric washer this PREFERRED TREATMENT

To help your washer stand up under the big load it faces for the duration, keep in mind these few simple rules:

- (1) Drain washer and rinse tub thoroughly after each washing. Remove agitator or suction cups and rinse.
- (2) Wipe dry with a soft cloth to remove any soap curd or lint that may remain. If your washer has a spinner dryer, this too should be cleaned, rinsed and wiped dry.
- (3) Don't try to force thick, bulky articles through your wringer—and especially don't run through belt buckles or other hard objects that might cut the rolls. They are rubber, and precious!
- (4) Release the pressure on wringer when not in use. This saves the spring and the rubber, and prevents the rolls from becoming flat on one side.
- (5) Don't overload your washer. Cramming in too big a wash simply puts a strain on the motor, and results in a less satisfactory job.
- (6) When you finish washing, dry the wringer thoroughly, also dry the connecting cord and wind it up carefully. Leave cover off washer to prevent it from becoming musty.
