Workmen Dismantle Three Ford Factories - Part of Mr. Ford's Famed Industrial Experiment

Last April 7, less than one year ago, Henry Ford, greatest industrial leader of all time, died and was buried on the farm near here

Barely eight months from the time of the death of the worker who revolutionized the business of not only this nation, but every civilized country of the world, one of his most beloved experiments in industrial progress and development, one that helped the city of Plymouth, then a vi'lage, materially at a time when help was needed, has come to an inglorious end.

A few days ago when workmen began removing machinery from the Plymouth, the Nankin Mills and the Newburg plants, it marked the end of one of Mr. Ford's industrial dreams-a job for every man, with one foot "on the soil and the other foot in a factory.

By that Mr. Ford meant that he believed that small industrial factories located in rural parts of the country would provide employment for men during the winter and that during the "growing season" they would be free to till small farms on which they lived near the factories he erected.

Under the leadership of Mr. Ford, the experiment was an out-

Many of the most attractive homes in the rural sections surrounding Plymouth, Northville, Nankin Mills, Waterford and other nearby places are now owned and occupied by men who were employed in this experiment by Mr. Ford.

Millions of dollars during the life of this ideal were poured into pockets of residents in the Rouge valley of Wayne county by Mr. Ford in the form of wages. From their gardens and small tarms. they were able to produce a good share of the food they needed. selling such surplus as they produced.

Foreign relentates, industrial leaders from the nations throughout the world, statesmen and economic leaders from the Americas were frequent visitors to the five or six little Ford factories that were located along the Rouge river. All expressed amazement at the

It was one of Mr. Ford's keenest pleasures to walk into the Plymouth plant, better known to older residents as the "Wilcox Ford plant," chat with the older workers, check the machinery, look over the water power plant, then proceed on to Phoenix. It was not an uncommon sight to see Mr. Ford and one of these old timers sitting in the engine room talking over old times. But now there is a new day-and new ideas in the making of

It is the belief apparently, that workers should have both fee in the factory, not one "on the soil.

So all of the equipment of the Wilcox, Newburg and Nankin Mills plant is being moved to the Waterford plant where a large addition has just been completed. The men who worked at these three places will now go to Waterford to work, the plant being located a little over a mile north of the city limits of Plymouth. There now remains but three factories along the Rouge of the place next Thursday. December original group, the Northville. From such information as can be secured, these three larger plants will be maintained with increased production. It was announced sometime ago that the Wilcox plant in Plymouth and the Newburg plant and Nankin Mills will be sold.

All of these plants were operated in part by water power furnished by the Rouge river as it tumbled from the high hills of invited to attend. Monroe Doctrine Lives

"As a principle in which the rights and interests of the United States are involved, the American continents, by the free and independent condition which they have assumed and maintain, are henceforth not to be considered as subjects for future colonization by any European

In that paragraph is summed up the burden of the doctrine which President James Monroe proclaimed to the world on December 2, 1823. The Monroe doctrine is regarded generally as the first expression of a definite foreign policyalbeit a negative one-made by the United States.

"Keep off the grass," said President Monroe, in effect; and he added a "beware of the dog" warning: "It is only when our rights are invaded or seriously menaced that we resent injuries or make preparations for our defense."

Strangely enough, in the light of present day developments, particularly the signing in September of the inter-American defense treaty, the Monroe doctrine was a direct outgrowth of what was considered a hostile act by Russia:

The idea of "dynamic kernels" all began on September 22, 1940 when Hayden listened to a sermon on the text found in John 12:24. Hayden, who is president of the Hayden Flour Mills of that village, began thinking about it. He decided to "take God at

His word and see what happens". He planted one cubic inch of wheat on land furnished by the living in Florida, declaring that late Henry Ford. The original plot was four by eight feet. As commanded in Malachi 3:10, he decided to pay a tithe of the crop to the church, and replant the

The first crop was 50 cubic nches. For six years, the wheat was harvested, tithed, and the remaining nine tenths faithfully replanted. This year, being the seventh, he is resting as enjoined in Leviticus 25:3 and 4. Storm Damage Was Not so Bad

Hundreds of Plymouth residents who worked at the Kelsey-Hayes machine gun plant on Eckles road during the war, well remember Roy Muir, who was head of the purchasing departing the war period.

The other day a letter came to The Plymouth Mail from Mr. reports of the late summer hurricanes in that state have given northern residents the impression that there isn't much left of Florida and that the damage was great.

"As a matter of fact, while it did blow hard, the damage from the hurricanes and floods was no where near as bad as reported. Now that everything has been cleaned up down here, it is better than it was before the storms. I've seen the wind blow almost as hard up in Michigan along Lake St. Clair, where we had our cottage" wrote Mr. Muir.

When Mr. Muir went to Florida after the close of the war he purchased an apartment house

no those whose spirits tingle at I the thought of stepping away to the tune of today's flashing Fireball power:

To those who dream of touching toe to treadle and unleashing all the zip and go packed in a 1947 Buick straight-eight engine:

Here's a bright and happy idea that makes dreams come true

We'll put a sleek new factoryfresh engine - identical with the engines going in our 1947 cars right in your present Buick. We'll lift out the old engine, lower this sleek new one in its place, hook it up, and there you are with a sweetheart ready for thousands and thousands more miles of thrilling performance and with a car worth much more than it was before. It's the next best thing to getting a new Buick.

How can we do this, when new cars are so hard to get? It's this way. Sheet steel and other parts are short. That holds up bodies and completed cars. But engines are coming along great guns.

So we have these 1947 honeys ready to put in any Buick built in the last 10 years. To do it takes less time than a major overhaul. It often costs less too. And convenient payments can be arranged if you like.

Pretty nice idea, isn't it? Why not look into it today? We'll be glad to go over it in detail with your

CONTEST PUTS SPIRIT IN RECENT PENCIL DRIVE

In an attempt to arouse greater interest in the recent "March of a Million Pencils Drive" a socalled Bentley-Hearn feud went to the wire in almost a photo

Accepting the challenge from Carvel Bentley and his trade study classes, Miss Alita Hearn's latin classes went all out to settle the issue. After both groups found that the pencils, crayons, and tablets were not coming in as they should, donations of money were taken in all the classes after which the desired articles were purchased.

As this was not enough for the challenged group, one class held an auction sale in the gymnasium at which everything from books to clothing were sold. The final outcome has not yet been an-

Babson Discusses Rural Buying Babson Park, Mass., Nov. 28 .-Farmers have always been wise spenders. Until recent years, necessity, as much as long-headedness, tightened the gnarled hand that held the purse strings. Prosperity today rules in most communities and everyone should ouy with caution.

Suggestions to Farmers First, I suggest contracting for good supply of fertilizers and insecticides-enough at least for next season's requirements. Purchase of needed machinery of all kinds also should prove a good investment, despite the relatively high cost. New equipment should more than compensate for its cost through savings on high labor charges and expensive repairs to old and nearly worn out machines. The well-mechanized farm, factory or store is the dividend producer.

I also advise laying in a good supply of canned goods and dried fruits, such as prunes and raisins. Such foodstuffs will supplement the regular diet and will come in handy in the event of a crop failure next year. Money spent on a deep freeze unit should prove worth its weight in gold. A year's supply of shoes and clothing also is a good bet. So see your local merchants at once. Your winter's supply of fuel should be purchasor contracted for, immediateif you have not already done so. The railroad car shortage may result in delayed deliveries of these and other items, and their prices are likely to go higher rather than lower.

For Livestock and Dairy Farmers

The suggestions in the preceding paragraphs apply also to live-stock and dairy farmers. But there is more in the picture than that. This year's short corn crop has raised serious problems for both groups. Should, for instance, stocker and feeder cattle be purchased now? Should the 1948 spring pig crop be cut or increased? I believe that the 1948 outlook for both groups is favorable. Sticking now to livestock, I see no reason why purchases of stocker and feeder cattle on Fuller; Vice-president - Robert breaks should not prove profit- Todd; Secretary-William P.
